

Dao of the Bizarre— Immortal

WUXIA
WORLD

Dao Of The Bizarre Immortal

Author: Foxtail Quill, Translator: Chacha And Char

Source: <https://www.wuxiaworld.com/novel/dao-of-the-bizarre-immortal>

Generated by Lightnovel Crawler

Dao Of The Bizarre Immortal

1. Chapter 1 - The Master
2. Chapter 2 - Li Huowang
3. Chapter 3 - Jade Pendant
4. Chapter 4 - Black Cauldron
5. Chapter 5 - Pills
6. Chapter 6 - Worth
7. Chapter 7 - Zephyr Temple
8. Chapter 8 - Rewriting The Script
9. Chapter 9 - Black Taisui
10. Chapter 10 - Steamed Buns
11. Chapter 11 - Xuan Yuan
12. Chapter 12 - Pill Recipe
13. Chapter 13 - Refining Pills
14. Chapter 14 - Ally
15. Chapter 15 - Zheng Kun
16. Chapter 16 - Head
17. Chapter 17 - Found It!
18. Chapter 18 - The Method To Become An Immortal?
19. Chapter 19 - Superstitious
20. Chapter 20 - Dan Yangzi
21. Chapter 21 - Attaining Immortality
22. Chapter 22 - Exit
23. Chapter 23 - Home
24. Chapter 24 - Plunder
25. Chapter 25 - Path In The Forests
26. Chapter 26 - Frightening
27. Chapter 27 - Evil
28. Chapter 28 - Lu Family
29. Chapter 29 - Stage
30. Chapter 30 - Performance
31. Chapter 31 - A Wandering God
32. Chapter 32 - Hu'S Family Ancestral Hall
33. Chapter 33 - Continue The Performance!
34. Chapter 34 - The God Of Happiness

35. Chapter 35 - Confused
36. Chapter 36 - Donkey Cart
37. Chapter 37 - The Nine Classes
38. Chapter 38 - Jianye Town
39. Chapter 39 - Wild
40. Chapter 40 - Midnight
41. Chapter 41 - Monk
42. Chapter 42 - Monastery
43. Chapter 43 - Buddha
44. Chapter 44 - Righteous Monastery
45. Chapter 45 - Buddha Statue
46. Chapter 46 - Xin Hui
47. Chapter 47 - Placing The Incense Sticks
48. Chapter 48 - Escape
49. Chapter 49 - Strayed One
50. Chapter 50 - Buddha
51. Chapter 51 - Negotiation
52. Chapter 52 - Dan Yangzi
53. Chapter 53 - Ponder
54. Chapter 54 - Wandering God
55. Chapter 55 - Healed
56. Chapter 56 - Beyond The Border
57. Chapter 57 - Shaman
58. Chapter 58 - Li Zhi
59. Chapter 59 - Chosen Apprentice
60. Chapter 60 - Shaman
61. Chapter 61 - Second Deity
62. Chapter 62 - Night Visit
63. Chapter 63 - Red Veil
64. Chapter 64 - Drum
65. Chapter 65 - Let'S See How You Beat The Drum Now!
66. Chapter 66 - A Virtuous Person
67. Chapter 67 - Parcel
68. Chapter 68 - Festival
69. Chapter 69 - Meal
70. Chapter 70 - Lake
71. Chapter 71 - Water Bandits
72. Chapter 72 - Dragon Gate Village
73. Chapter 73 - Murder
74. Chapter 74 - Death

75. Chapter 75 - Warehouse
76. Chapter 76 - Bamboo Slips
77. Chapter 77 - Ba-Hui
78. Chapter 78 - The Aftermath
79. Chapter 79 - Market
80. Chapter 80 - Nun
81. Chapter 81 - The Benevolent Nunnery
82. Chapter 82 - Abbess Jingxin
83. Chapter 83 - Strayed One
84. Chapter 84 - Sense Of Doubt And Confusion
85. Chapter 85 - Descent
86. Chapter 86 - Departure
87. Chapter 87 - Forest
88. Chapter 88 - Rules
89. Chapter 89 - Wu Family
90. Chapter 90 - Girl
91. Chapter 91 - Li Huowang
92. Chapter 92 - The Eighteenth Lunar
93. Chapter 93 - Red
94. Chapter 94 - Bewilderment
95. Chapter 95 - Pain
96. Chapter 96 - Ba-Hui'S Descent
97. Chapter 97 - Doctor Li
98. Chapter 98 - Backtrack
99. Chapter 99 - Night Visit
100. Chapter 100 - Yang Xiaohai
101. Chapter 101 - War
102. Chapter 102 - Benefits
103. Chapter 103 - Marriage
104. Chapter 104 - The Second Deity
105. Chapter 105 - Greed
106. Chapter 106 - Begin
107. Chapter 107 - Buddha
108. Chapter 108 - Dan Yangzi
109. Chapter 109 - Injury
110. Chapter 110 - Insane
111. Chapter 111 - Method
112. Chapter 112 - On The Way
113. Chapter 113 - Unexpected Meeting
114. Chapter 114 - Cavalry

115. Chapter 115 - Dog
116. Chapter 116 - Ao Jing Sect
117. Chapter 117 - Ba-Hui
118. Chapter 118 - Pain
119. Chapter 119 - Yingzi
120. Chapter 120 - Injury
121. Chapter 121 - Yang Na
122. Chapter 122 - Chocolate
123. Chapter 123 - Who Was It?
124. Chapter 124 - Treatment
125. Chapter 125 - Why?
126. Chapter 126 - Wicked Person
127. Chapter 127 - Who Is It?
128. Chapter 128 - It'S Not Me
129. Chapter 129 - Up
130. Chapter 130 - Death
131. Chapter 131 - New
132. Chapter 132 - True Or False?
133. Chapter 133 - On The Way
134. Chapter 134 - Found
135. Chapter 135 - Beneath The Mountain
136. Chapter 136 - Sword
137. Chapter 137 - Sitting Oblivion Dao
138. Chapter 138 - The Five Realms Of Buddhism
139. Chapter 139 - Escort Office
140. Chapter 140 - Possessed
141. Chapter 141 - Shaman
142. Chapter 142 - Master'S Wife
143. Chapter 143 - Treatment
144. Chapter 144 - The Green Forest
145. Chapter 145 - Drunk
146. Chapter 146 - Practice
147. Chapter 147 - Hou Shu
148. Chapter 148 - Nuo Opera
149. Chapter 149 - Old Friend
150. Chapter 150 - Trouble
151. Chapter 151 - Shadow Play
152. Chapter 152 - Doubt
153. Chapter 153 - Courtyard Houses
154. Chapter 154 - Dunes

155. Chapter 155 - Nature
156. Chapter 156 - Peng Zhi
157. Chapter 157 - Peng Jiao
158. Chapter 158 - Er Bing
159. Chapter 159 - Liar
160. Chapter 160 - Death
161. Chapter 161 - Go Back
162. Chapter 162 - Unexpected Harvest
163. Chapter 163 - Arrival
164. Chapter 164 - Goodbye Abbess
165. Chapter 165 - Have Not Won
166. Chapter 166 - Five Elements Intercalation
167. Chapter 167 - Chaotic Battle
168. Chapter 168 - Cooperation
169. Chapter 169 - Made It
170. Chapter 170 - Dan Yangzi
171. Chapter 171 - Strayed One
172. Chapter 172 - Disciple
173. Chapter 173 - The Southern Heavenly Gates
174. Chapter 174 - Opening The Gates
175. Chapter 175 - Crazy
176. Chapter 176 - Talk
177. Chapter 177 - Horse Carriage
178. Chapter 178 - Village
179. Chapter 179 - I'M Back
180. Chapter 180 - Strange
181. Chapter 181 - Asking Rice
182. Chapter 182 - Great Deity
183. Chapter 183 - Village Protector
184. Chapter 184 - Getting Married
185. Chapter 185 - Toast
186. Chapter 186 - Beauty
187. Chapter 187 - Confrontation
188. Chapter 188 - Soldiers
189. Chapter 189 - On Their Journey
190. Chapter 190 - Bandits
191. Chapter 191 - Military Family
192. Chapter 192 - Clean Up
193. Chapter 193 - Sympathy
194. Chapter 194 - Disguise

195. Chapter 195 - Play
196. Chapter 196 - Kill
197. Chapter 197 - Longteng
198. Chapter 198 - Move
199. Chapter 199 - Change
200. Chapter 200 - Both Parties
201. Chapter 201 - Village
202. Chapter 202 - Harvest
203. Chapter 203 - True? False?
204. Chapter 204 - Wang Wei
205. Chapter 205 - Fight
206. Chapter 206 - Jin Shanzhao
207. Chapter 207 - Someone'S Staring
208. Chapter 208 - Danger
209. Chapter 209 - Blood
210. Chapter 210 - Peng Longteng
211. Chapter 211 - Keep
212. Chapter 212 - Charred And Rotten Flesh
213. Chapter 213 - Reward
214. Chapter 214 - Yang Xiaohai
215. Chapter 215 - Seniors And Juniors
216. Chapter 216 - Considerations
217. Chapter 217 - Rabbit
218. Chapter 218 - Women'S Mountain
219. Chapter 219 - Second Deity
220. Chapter 220 - The Marketplace
221. Chapter 221 - The Marketplace \(2\)
222. Chapter 222 - Baolu
223. Chapter 223 - Leave
224. Chapter 224 - Riverside
225. Chapter 225 - Reaching Home
226. Chapter 226 - Wu Yue
227. Chapter 227 - Beauty
228. Chapter 228 - Hysteria
229. Chapter 229 - Unexpected
230. Chapter 230 - Source
231. Chapter 231 - Sun Baolu'S Secret
232. Chapter 232 - Cauldron
233. Chapter 233 - Lion Dance
234. Chapter 234 - Death

235. Chapter 235 - Black Taisui
236. Chapter 236 - Darkness
237. Chapter 237 - Sheng Erzi
238. Chapter 238 - Sent Off
239. Chapter 239 - Daoist
240. Chapter 240 - Lion Dance Palace
241. Chapter 241 - Exit
242. Chapter 242 - Talisman
243. Chapter 243 - Li Huowang
244. Chapter 244 - Treatment
245. Chapter 245 - Black Taisui
246. Chapter 246 - Box
247. Chapter 247 - Sun Xiaoqin
248. Chapter 248 - Show Off
249. Chapter 249 - Success
250. Chapter 250 - Enquiry
251. Chapter 251 - Surveillance Bureau
252. Chapter 252 - Clue
253. Chapter 253 - Baolu
254. Chapter 254 - Lamb Meat
255. Chapter 255 - Employer
256. Chapter 256 - Birth
257. Chapter 257 - Lama
258. Chapter 258 - Large Village
259. Chapter 259 - Show
260. Chapter 260 - Woman
261. Chapter 261 - Object
262. Chapter 262 - Xiucai
263. Chapter 263 - Changes
264. Chapter 264 - Master
265. Chapter 265 - Town
266. Chapter 266 - Pink Show
267. Chapter 267 - Resume The Journey
268. Chapter 268 - Pi County
269. Chapter 269 - Inn
270. Chapter 270 - Fear
271. Chapter 271 - Yin And Yang
272. Chapter 272 - Ghost
273. Chapter 273 - Death
274. Chapter 274 - Method

275. Chapter 275 - Familiar
276. Chapter 276 - Ghost
277. Chapter 277 - Surveillance Bureau
278. Chapter 278 - The Creditor
279. Chapter 279 - Technique
280. Chapter 280 - Yinling City
281. Chapter 281 - Exquisite Pagoda
282. Chapter 282 - Voice
283. Chapter 283 - Information
284. Chapter 284 - Departure
285. Chapter 285 - Sounds Of Hallucination
286. Chapter 286 - Ganyuan Village
287. Chapter 287 - Blind
288. Chapter 288 - Reinforcement
289. Chapter 289 - Blind Chen
290. Chapter 290 - Sitting Oblivion Dao
291. Chapter 291 - Source Of Auditory Hallucination
292. Chapter 292 - Death
293. Chapter 293 - Trouble
294. Chapter 294 - Plan
295. Chapter 295 - Tuoba
296. Chapter 296 - Treasure
297. Chapter 297 - Strayed One
298. Chapter 298 - Going Home
299. Chapter 299 - Cowheart Village
300. Chapter 300 - County Magistrate
301. Chapter 301 - Sounds Within The Mist
302. Chapter 302 - Impermanence
303. Chapter 303 - Bai Family Members
304. Chapter 304 - Deceived
305. Chapter 305 - Reed
306. Chapter 306 - Punctured Stomach
307. Chapter 307 - Cold
308. Chapter 308 - Warmth
309. Chapter 309 - Return
310. Chapter 310 - Speak
311. Chapter 311 - Lunatic
312. Chapter 312 - Li Huowang
313. Chapter 313 - Yinling City
314. Chapter 314 - Matters

315. Chapter 315 - City God Temple
316. Chapter 316 - Talisman
317. Chapter 317 - Fortune Telling
318. Chapter 318 - Seamstress
319. Chapter 319 - Fortune Telling Pattern
320. Chapter 320 - Objective
321. Chapter 321 - Water Son
322. Chapter 322 - Human Xiao
323. Chapter 323 - Method
324. Chapter 324 - Monster
325. Chapter 325 - Gift
326. Chapter 326 - Good News
327. Chapter 327 - Noodles
328. Chapter 328 - Mid-Autumn
329. Chapter 329 - One Family
330. Chapter 330 - Taisui
331. Chapter 331 - Banquet Dinner
332. Chapter 332 - Human Cup
333. Chapter 333 - Meeting Someone Familiar
334. Chapter 334 - Ji Xiang
335. Chapter 335 - Buddha'S Skeleton Temple
336. Chapter 336 - Abacus
337. Chapter 337 - Collapse
338. Chapter 338 - Sitting Oblivion Dao
339. Chapter 339 - Fa Cai
340. Chapter 340 - Zhuge Yuan
341. Chapter 341 - Spindle
342. Chapter 342 - Huanhuan
343. Chapter 343 - Da Long
344. Chapter 344 - Li Sui
345. Chapter 345 - Bai Lingmiao
346. Chapter 346 - Heavenly Mater
347. Chapter 347 - White Lotus Sect
348. Chapter 348 - Tombstone
349. Chapter 349 - Arrival
350. Chapter 350 - Storyteller
351. Chapter 351 - Gather
352. Chapter 352 - Spouse
353. Chapter 353 - Muddled One
354. Chapter 354 - Appear

- 355. Chapter 355 - Hidden
- 356. Chapter 356 - Man
- 357. Chapter 357 - Hidden
- 358. Chapter 358 - Main Deity And Second Deity
- 359. Chapter 359 - Change
- 360. Chapter 360 - It'S Over
- 361. Chapter 361 - Yin And Yang
- 362. Chapter 362 - Plan
- 363. Chapter 363 - School
- 364. Chapter 364 - Suffering
- 365. Chapter 365 - Sky
- 366. Chapter 366 - Carriage
- 367. Chapter 367 - Shaman
- 368. Chapter 368 - Hope
- 369. Chapter 369 - Double Happiness
- 370. Chapter 370 - Bai Family
- 371. Chapter 371 - Shangjing
- 372. Chapter 372 - Kindness
- 373. Chapter 373 - Small Favor
- 374. Chapter 374 - Emperor Of The Liang Kingdom
- 375. Chapter 375 - Coffin
- 376. Chapter 376 - Surveillance Bureau
- 377. Chapter 377 - Sima Lan
- 378. Chapter 378 - Records
- 379. Chapter 379 - Strayed Ones
- 380. Chapter 380 - Storyteller
- 381. Chapter 381 - Refining
- 382. Chapter 382 - New Year
- 383. Chapter 383 - Arrival
- 384. Chapter 384 - Candy
- 385. Chapter 385 - The Dragon King
- 386. Chapter 386 - White Tower
- 387. Chapter 387 - I'M Sorry
- 388. Chapter 388 - Xing Island
- 389. Chapter 389 - Sedan Chair
- 390. Chapter 390 - "Li Huowang"
- 391. Chapter 391 - Li Huowang
- 392. Chapter 392 - Zhuge Yuan
- 393. Chapter 393 - Really?
- 394. Chapter 394 - Past

395. Chapter 395 - Storyteller
396. Chapter 396 - Two Blooming Flowers
397. Chapter 397 - Lu Xiucai
398. Chapter 398 - Half-Immortal
399. Chapter 399 - Savior
400. Chapter 400 - Noodles
401. Chapter 401 - Acquaintance
402. Chapter 402 - Great Qi
403. Chapter 403 - Twisted One
404. Chapter 404 - Grand Elder
405. Chapter 405 - Discrepancy
406. Chapter 406 - You Capital
407. Chapter 407 - He'S Here
408. Chapter 408 - Emperor
409. Chapter 409 - Goal
410. Chapter 410 - Mahjong
411. Chapter 411 - Departure
412. Chapter 412 - Surveillance Bureau
413. Chapter 413 - Jian Zheng
414. Chapter 414 - Son
415. Chapter 415 - Hong Zhong
416. Chapter 416 - Retreat
417. Chapter 417 - What If
418. Chapter 418 - Reality
419. Chapter 419 - Bai Lingmiao
420. Chapter 420 - Meeting
421. Chapter 421 - Stepmother
422. Chapter 422 - Conjoined Lotus
423. Chapter 423 - Returning To Shangjing
424. Chapter 424 - Task
425. Chapter 425 - Friend
426. Chapter 426 - Deputy Chief
427. Chapter 427 - Rather Kill A Thousand By Mistake
428. Chapter 428 - Sitting Oblivion Dao
429. Chapter 429 - Bei Feng
430. Chapter 430 - Golden Palace
431. Chapter 431 - Mahjong Tiles
432. Chapter 432 - Both Sides
433. Chapter 433 - Bei Feng
434. Chapter 434 - Key

- 435. Chapter 435 - History
- 436. Chapter 436 - Stone Tablet
- 437. Chapter 437 - Doulao
- 438. Chapter 438 - Sitting Oblivion Dao
- 439. Chapter 439 - Zhuge Yuan
- 440. Chapter 440 - Libation
- 441. Chapter 441 - Past
- 442. Chapter 442 - Hong Zhong
- 443. Chapter 443 - Cultivating The "Truth"
- 444. Chapter 444 - Li Jiancheng
- 445. Chapter 445 - Start
- 446. Chapter 446 - Cowheart Village
- 447. Chapter 447 - Anklet
- 448. Chapter 448 - Shaman
- 449. Chapter 449 - Change
- 450. Chapter 450 - Gao Zhijian
- 451. Chapter 451 - Hospital
- 452. Chapter 452 - Children
- 453. Chapter 453 - Time
- 454. Chapter 454 - Someone Familiar
- 455. Chapter 455 - Problem
- 456. Chapter 456 - Change
- 457. Chapter 457 - Natural Disaster
- 458. Chapter 458 - Appearance
- 459. Chapter 459 - Evil Entity
- 460. Chapter 460 - Lotus Seat
- 461. Chapter 461 - Someone Stronger
- 462. Chapter 462 - Missing
- 463. Chapter 463 - Li Sui
- 464. Chapter 464 - Origin
- 465. Chapter 465 - List
- 466. Chapter 466 - Bai Lingmiao
- 467. Chapter 467 - Happiness
- 468. Chapter 468 - Solution
- 469. Chapter 469 - Village
- 470. Chapter 470 - God Yu'Er
- 471. Chapter 471 - Double Third Festival
- 472. Chapter 472 - Official Business
- 473. Chapter 473 - Relic
- 474. Chapter 474 - Spiritual Sin

475. Chapter 475 - Doctor
476. Chapter 476 - Chat
477. Chapter 477 - Spiritual Sin
478. Chapter 478 - Counter
479. Chapter 479 - Someone'S Coming
480. Chapter 480 - Retreat
481. Chapter 481 - Irresistible Offer
482. Chapter 482 - New Emperor
483. Chapter 483 - Dragon
484. Chapter 484 - Ji Lin
485. Chapter 485 - Relic
486. Chapter 486 - Arrival
487. Chapter 487 - Change
488. Chapter 488 - Past
489. Chapter 489 - Gao Zhijian'S Background
490. Chapter 490 - Cowheart Village
491. Chapter 491 - Dharma Sect
492. Chapter 492 - Fear
493. Chapter 493 - Night Visit
494. Chapter 494 - Leader
495. Chapter 495 - Shai Zi
496. Chapter 496 - Sword
497. Chapter 497 - Appearance
498. Chapter 498 - Truths And Lies
499. Chapter 499 - Yang Na
500. Chapter 500 - Sworn
501. Chapter 501 - New Things
502. Chapter 502 - Vision
503. Chapter 503 - Dream
504. Chapter 504 - Zhuge
505. Chapter 505 - Shai Zi
506. Chapter 506 - Truth Or Lies?
507. Chapter 507 - Journey
508. Chapter 508 - Daoist
509. Chapter 509 - Impossible
510. Chapter 510 - Alive
511. Chapter 511 - Ji Lin
512. Chapter 512 - Shangjing
513. Chapter 513 - Indoor
514. Chapter 514 - Own People

515. Chapter 515 - Task
516. Chapter 516 - Increase
517. Chapter 517 - Bodhisattva
518. Chapter 518 - Kill
519. Chapter 519 - Eldest Princess
520. Chapter 520 - Ao Jing Sect
521. Chapter 521 - Zu Yi
522. Chapter 522 - Ascension
523. Chapter 523 - Letter
524. Chapter 524 - Shangjing
525. Chapter 525 - Old Ox
526. Chapter 526 - Method
527. Chapter 527 - Prince Ren Mansion
528. Chapter 528 - Slice
529. Chapter 529 - Great Qi
530. Chapter 530 - Omen
531. Chapter 531 - Zhuge Yuan
532. Chapter 532 - Back
533. Chapter 533 - Doctor
534. Chapter 534 - Shangji Guankou
535. Chapter 535 - Natural Disaster
536. Chapter 536 - Great Qi
537. Chapter 537 - Dharma Sect
538. Chapter 538 - Chibao
539. Chapter 539 - Trapped
540. Chapter 540 - Guankou
541. Chapter 541 - Secret
542. Chapter 542 - Finding
543. Chapter 543 - Deal
544. Chapter 544 - Transaction
545. Chapter 545 - East Gate
546. Chapter 546 - Pursuit
547. Chapter 547 - Chief
548. Chapter 548 - Great Qi
549. Chapter 549 - Xu Nian
550. Chapter 550 - Dragon
551. Chapter 551 - Year
552. Chapter 552 - Death
553. Chapter 553 - Departure
554. Chapter 554 - The Great Qi

555. Chapter 555 - Shangguan Yuting
556. Chapter 556 - Return
557. Chapter 557 - Emperor
558. Chapter 558 - Luck
559. Chapter 559 - Huangfu Tiangang
560. Chapter 560 - Trade
561. Chapter 561 - Lightning Attacks
562. Chapter 562 - Scheme
563. Chapter 563 - Shai Zi
564. Chapter 564 - Schemes Within Schemes
565. Chapter 565 - Zhuge Yuan
566. Chapter 566 - Curfew
567. Chapter 567 - Death
568. Chapter 568 - Locate
569. Chapter 569 - The Young Emperor Of Great Qi
570. Chapter 570 - Emperor
571. Chapter 571 - Ascension
572. Chapter 572 - Change
573. Chapter 573 - Shai Zi
574. Chapter 574 - Xuan Pin
575. Chapter 575 - Twisted One
576. Chapter 576 - Plan
577. Chapter 577 - Heavenly Mater
578. Chapter 578 - Drum
579. Chapter 579 - Prelude
580. Chapter 580 - Fuse
581. Chapter 581 - Secret
582. Chapter 582 - Siming
583. Chapter 583 - Li Huowang
584. Chapter 584 - Shangjing
585. Chapter 585 - Palace
586. Chapter 586 - Gao Zhijian
587. Chapter 587 - Ji Zai
588. Chapter 588 - Talk
589. Chapter 589 - Mental Hospital
590. Chapter 590 - Trouble
591. Chapter 591 - Appear
592. Chapter 592 - Wang Wei
593. Chapter 593 - Self Defense
594. Chapter 594 - Transfer

595. Chapter 595 - Mental Illness
596. Chapter 596 - Wu Cheng
597. Chapter 597 - Medicine
598. Chapter 598 - Trap
599. Chapter 599 - Face To Face
600. Chapter 600 - Consuming Medicine
601. Chapter 601 - Intelligence
602. Chapter 602 - Arrival
603. Chapter 603 - Wooden Ship
604. Chapter 604 - Eight Immortals
605. Chapter 605 - Strayed One, Twisted One
606. Chapter 606 - Truths Or Lies
607. Chapter 607 - Xu Shou
608. Chapter 608 - Lies And Truth
609. Chapter 609 - Yang Na
610. Chapter 610 - Jade Pendant
611. Chapter 611 - Li Sui
612. Chapter 612 - Cowheart Village
613. Chapter 613 - Yang Xiaohai
614. Chapter 614 - People
615. Chapter 615 - Newcomer
616. Chapter 616 - Refugees
617. Chapter 617 - White Lotus
618. Chapter 618 - Mercy
619. Chapter 619 - Visitors
620. Chapter 620 - Gather
621. Chapter 621 - Dharma Sect
622. Chapter 622 - Buddha
623. Chapter 623 - Chess
624. Chapter 624 - Ambush
625. Chapter 625 - Join
626. Chapter 626 - Treatment
627. Chapter 627 - Strike Tree Flowers
628. Chapter 628 - Ni'Er
629. Chapter 629 - Death
630. Chapter 630 - Daoist
631. Chapter 631 - Answer
632. Chapter 632 - Antrabhara Temple
633. Chapter 633 - Hospital
634. Chapter 634 - Qian Fu

635. Chapter 635 - Beard
636. Chapter 636 - Dharma Sect
637. Chapter 637 - Xu Nian
638. Chapter 638 - Change
639. Chapter 639 - Wonton Stall
640. Chapter 640 - Old Woman
641. Chapter 641 - Yamen
642. Chapter 642 - Escape
643. Chapter 643 - Goodwill
644. Chapter 644 - Good Person
645. Chapter 645 - Help
646. Chapter 646 - Psychiatric Patient
647. Chapter 647 - Needle
648. Chapter 648 - Discharge
649. Chapter 649 - Return
650. Chapter 650 - Smoke Signals Rising
651. Chapter 651 - Theatre
652. Chapter 652 - Death
653. Chapter 653 - Disappearance
654. Chapter 654 - Star
655. Chapter 655 - Gaze
656. Chapter 656 - Surveillance
657. Chapter 657 - Answer
658. Chapter 658 - New
659. Chapter 659 - Sun Baolu
660. Chapter 660 - Earth Dragon
661. Chapter 661 - Someone Familiar
662. Chapter 662 - Feng Capital
663. Chapter 663 - Qing Qiu
664. Chapter 664 - Dismiss
665. Chapter 665 - Gao Zhijian
666. Chapter 666 - Confidant
667. Chapter 667 - On The Way
668. Chapter 668 - Li Sui
669. Chapter 669 - Stronger
670. Chapter 670 - Bintie City
671. Chapter 671 - Trouble
672. Chapter 672 - Boat People
673. Chapter 673 - Boat
674. Chapter 674 - Water Banquet

675. Chapter 675 - Dragon Household
676. Chapter 676 - Big Sister
677. Chapter 677 - Father
678. Chapter 678 - Family
679. Chapter 679 - Departure
680. Chapter 680 - Kill
681. Chapter 681 - Touch
682. Chapter 682 - Water
683. Chapter 683 - Ten Emotions
684. Chapter 684 - Eight Sufferings
685. Chapter 685 - Kangning
686. Chapter 686 - Qian Fu
687. Chapter 687 - Plan
688. Chapter 688 - Guacang City
689. Chapter 689 - Chief
690. Chapter 690 - Earth Dragon Moving
691. Chapter 691 - Cloud Swamp
692. Chapter 692 - Soldiers
693. Chapter 693 - Open
694. Chapter 694 - Scholar
695. Chapter 695 - Natural Disaster
696. Chapter 696 - Stomach
697. Chapter 697 - New
698. Chapter 698 - Ascension
699. Chapter 699 - Above The Heavens
700. Chapter 700 - Savior
701. Chapter 701 - Freedom
702. Chapter 702 - Believe You
703. Chapter 703 - Two Sides
704. Chapter 704 - Chen Hongyu
705. Chapter 705 - Take Action
706. Chapter 706 - New Helper
707. Chapter 707 - Qing Wanglai
708. Chapter 708 - Projection
709. Chapter 709 - Help
710. Chapter 710 - Danger
711. Chapter 711 - Devotees
712. Chapter 712 - Division
713. Chapter 713 - Courtesy
714. Chapter 714 - Breakthrough

715. Chapter 715 - City Wall
716. Chapter 716 - Door Gods
717. Chapter 717 - Ambush
718. Chapter 718 - Bring It On
719. Chapter 719 - Array
720. Chapter 720 - Taishan Shi
721. Chapter 721 - Method
722. Chapter 722 - Remove
723. Chapter 723 - Car
724. Chapter 724 - Sister Wu
725. Chapter 725 - Unfinished Building
726. Chapter 726 - Act
727. Chapter 727 - Captive
728. Chapter 728 - Model
729. Chapter 729 - Zhao Lei
730. Chapter 730 - Rest
731. Chapter 731 - Them
732. Chapter 732 - Illusion
733. Chapter 733 - Real
734. Chapter 734 - Mahakala
735. Chapter 735 - Enter
736. Chapter 736 - Soul
737. Chapter 737 - Hong Zhong
738. Chapter 738 - Siming
739. Chapter 739 - Hong Zhong
740. Chapter 740 - Sitting Oblivion Dao
741. Chapter 741 - Liu Wan
742. Chapter 742 - Sitting Oblivion Dao
743. Chapter 743 - Real Or Fake?
744. Chapter 744 - Sitting Oblivion Dao
745. Chapter 745 - Information
746. Chapter 746 - Let Go
747. Chapter 747 - Help
748. Chapter 748 - Choice
749. Chapter 749 - Cultivation
750. Chapter 750 - Pursuit
751. Chapter 751 - Plot
752. Chapter 752 - Departure
753. Chapter 753 - Mental Illness
754. Chapter 754 - Reinforcements

- 755. Chapter 755 - Deity
- 756. Chapter 756 - Chicken-Feet Man
- 757. Chapter 757 - Break
- 758. Chapter 758 - Death
- 759. Chapter 759 - Being
- 760. Chapter 760 - Ma Tuo
- 761. Chapter 761 - Change
- 762. Chapter 762 - Fatigue
- 763. Chapter 763 - Prisoners Of War
- 764. Chapter 764 - Weapons
- 765. Chapter 765 - Ba
- 766. Chapter 766 - Woman
- 767. Chapter 767 - Awakening
- 768. Chapter 768 - Ba-Hui
- 769. Chapter 769 - Projection
- 770. Chapter 770 - Bai
- 771. Chapter 771 - Banquet
- 772. Chapter 772 - Plan
- 773. Chapter 773 - Solution
- 774. Chapter 774 - Chief
- 775. Chapter 775 - Underground
- 776. Chapter 776 - Search
- 777. Chapter 777 - Abbot
- 778. Chapter 778 - Buddha
- 779. Chapter 779 - Ceremony
- 780. Chapter 780 - Secret
- 781. Chapter 781 - Siming
- 782. Chapter 782 - Clothes
- 783. Chapter 783 - Motorcycle
- 784. Chapter 784 - Dragon-Slaying Immortal-Killing
- 785. Chapter 785 - Emperor
- 786. Chapter 786 - Decree
- 787. Chapter 787 - Explode
- 788. Chapter 788 - Ru Shou
- 789. Chapter 789 - Trust
- 790. Chapter 790 - Tian Wu
- 791. Chapter 791 - Heavenly Dao
- 792. Chapter 792 - Death
- 793. Chapter 793 - Change
- 794. Chapter 794 - Why

795. Chapter 795 - Deal
796. Chapter 796 - Help
797. Chapter 797 - Clue
798. Chapter 798 - Lion Dance Palace
799. Chapter 799 - Allies
800. Chapter 800 - Sea
801. Chapter 801 - Dragon King Temple
802. Chapter 802 - Ao Mojie
803. Chapter 803 - Dragon Vein
804. Chapter 804 - Destroy
805. Chapter 805 - Arise
806. Chapter 806 - Ascend
807. Chapter 807 - Mental Image
808. Chapter 808 - Dream
809. Chapter 809 - Baiyu Capital
810. Chapter 810 - Heavenly Dao
811. Chapter 811 - Siming
812. Chapter 812 - Dragon Qi
813. Chapter 813 - Death
814. Chapter 814 - Perish
815. Chapter 815 - Won
816. Chapter 816 - Li Sui
817. Chapter 817 - Red Packet
818. Chapter 818 - Story Teller
819. Chapter 819 - Qi Kingdom
820. Chapter 820 - Shangjing
821. Chapter 821 - Emperor
822. Chapter 822 - Grain
823. Chapter 823 - Mother
824. Chapter 824 - Bodhisattva
825. Chapter 825 - Trouble
826. Chapter 826 - Helpers
827. Chapter 827 - Luck
828. Chapter 828 - Busy
829. Chapter 829 - Reviving The Society
830. Chapter 830 - Mo Family
831. Chapter 831 - Rescue
832. Chapter 832 - Ceremony
833. Chapter 833 - Return To The Throne
834. Chapter 834 - Help

835. Chapter 835 - Who Was It?
836. Chapter 836 - Ambush
837. Chapter 837 - Search
838. Chapter 838 - Secret
839. Chapter 839 - Someone Familiar
840. Chapter 840 - Meeting
841. Chapter 841 - Answer
842. Chapter 842 - Five Worlds Of Buddhism
843. Chapter 843 - Method
844. Chapter 844 - Voices
845. Chapter 845 - Mental
846. Chapter 846 - Hospitalization
847. Chapter 847 - So?
848. Chapter 848 - Xiaoman
849. Chapter 849 - Invitation
850. Chapter 850 - White Lotus Sect
851. Chapter 851 - Zen
852. Chapter 852 - Po Daer
853. Chapter 853 - Li Sui
854. Chapter 854 - Chat
855. Chapter 855 - Help
856. Chapter 856 - Void Home
857. Chapter 857 - Analysis
858. Chapter 858 - Plan
859. Chapter 859 - Sickness
860. Chapter 860 - Choice
861. Chapter 861 - Visitation
862. Chapter 862 - Method
863. Chapter 863 - Meeting
864. Chapter 864 - Trigger
865. Chapter 865 - Negotiation
866. Chapter 866 - Cooperation
867. Chapter 867 - Strange
868. Chapter 868 - Act
869. Chapter 869 - Liar
870. Chapter 870 <No Title>
871. Chapter 871 - Theater
872. Chapter 872 - Army Of Unspeakable
873. Chapter 873 - Siming
874. Chapter 874 - Lies

875. Chapter 875 - Night
876. Chapter 876 - Search
877. Chapter 877 - Temple
878. Chapter 878 - White Lotus
879. Chapter 879 - News
880. Chapter 880 - Disbelief
881. Chapter 881 - Conversation
882. Chapter 882 - Dragon Vein
883. Chapter 883 - Fate
884. Chapter 884 - Fate
885. Chapter 885 - Change
886. Chapter 886 - Contact
887. Chapter 887 - Tianchen Kingdom
888. Chapter 888 - Reward
889. Chapter 889 - Bandits
890. Chapter 890 - Ambush
891. Chapter 891 - Tongue
892. Chapter 892 - Phone
893. Chapter 893 - Journey
894. Chapter 894 - Plane
895. Chapter 895 - Strike
896. Chapter 896 - On The Way
897. Chapter 897 - Decay
898. Chapter 898 - Contact
899. Chapter 899 - Culvert
900. Chapter 900 - Fight
901. Chapter 901 - Big
902. Chapter 902 - Fake Skill
903. Chapter 903 - Same Path
904. Chapter 904 - You Capital
905. Chapter 905 - Goodbye
906. Chapter 906 - Intelligence
907. Chapter 907 - Motivation
908. Chapter 908 - Fight
909. Chapter 909 - Zuoqiu Yong
910. Chapter 910 - Growth
911. Chapter 911 - Borrow
912. Chapter 912 - Plan
913. Chapter 913 - Trust
914. Chapter 914 - Idealism

915. Chapter 915 - Living Together
916. Chapter 916 - Medicine
917. Chapter 917 - Order
918. Chapter 918 - Accident
919. Chapter 919 - Festival
920. Chapter 920 - Xuan Pin
921. Chapter 921 - Contact
922. Chapter 922 - Fuse
923. Chapter 923 - Help
924. Chapter 924 - Cultivation
925. Chapter 925 - Important
926. Chapter 926 - Target
927. Chapter 927 - Muddled One
928. Chapter 928 - Information
929. Chapter 929 - Contact
930. Chapter 930 - Yuan Er
931. Chapter 931 - Underworld
932. Chapter 932 - Hellhounds
933. Chapter 933 - Strayed Ones
934. Chapter 934 - Expected
935. Chapter 935 - Truth
936. Chapter 936 - Desert
937. Chapter 937 - Danger
938. Chapter 938 - Projection
939. Chapter 939 - Eye
940. Chapter 940 - Death
941. Chapter 941 - Explain
942. Chapter 942 - Cultivating The "Truth"
943. Chapter 943 - Zuoqiu Yong
944. Chapter 944 - Wait
945. Chapter 945 - Fight
946. Chapter 946 - Change
947. Chapter 947 - Death
948. Chapter 948 - Dragon Vein
949. Chapter 949 - End
950. Chapter 950 - Xuan Pin
951. Chapter 951 - Siming Of Flesh
952. Chapter 952 - Siming
953. Chapter 953 - Truth
954. Chapter 954 - Superimposed

955. Chapter 955 - Spy
956. Chapter 956 - Changes
957. Chapter 957 - Attack
958. Chapter 958 - Escape
959. Chapter 959 - Enemy'S Counterattack
960. Chapter 960 - Wounded
961. Chapter 961 - Exchange
962. Chapter 962 - Jiang Xiangshou
963. Chapter 963 - Escape
964. Chapter 964 - Make-Up
965. Chapter 965 - Father
966. Chapter 966 - Ji Zai
967. Chapter 967 - Funeral
968. Chapter 968 - Conversation
969. Chapter 969 - Murderous Aura Command
970. Chapter 970 - Help
971. Chapter 971 - Black
972. Chapter 972 - Change
973. Chapter 973 - Yi Donglai
974. Chapter 974 - Convince
975. Chapter 975 - Treatment
976. Chapter 976 - Switch
977. Chapter 977 - Qing
978. Chapter 978 - Questioning
979. Chapter 979 - Shai Zi
980. Chapter 980 - Pursuit
981. Chapter 981 - Untitled
982. Chapter 982 - Cowheart Village
983. Chapter 983 - Murderous Aura
984. Chapter 984 - White Yang
985. Chapter 985 - Counterattack
986. Chapter 986 - Treatment
987. Chapter 987 - Tower
988. Chapter 988 - Bell
989. Chapter 989 - Change
990. Chapter 990 - Nuo
991. Chapter 991 - Baiyu Capital
992. Chapter 992 - Three Ancient Ones
993. Chapter 993 - Secret
994. Chapter 994 - Creep

- 995. Chapter 995 - Battle
- 996. Chapter 996 - Come In
- 997. Chapter 997 - Change
- 998. Chapter 998 - Draw
- 999. Chapter 999 - Fu Shengtian
- 1000. Chapter 1000 - Helper
- 1001. Chapter 1001 - Scatter
- 1002. Chapter 1002 - Kill
- 1003. Chapter 1003 - Body
- 1004. Chapter 1004 - Mental Illness
- 1005. Chapter 1005 - Food
- 1006. Chapter 1006 - Suppress
- 1007. Chapter 1007 - Death
- 1008. Chapter 1008 - Consuming The Heavenly Daos
- 1009. Chapter 1009 - Reset
- 1010. Chapter 1010 - Past
- 1011. Chapter 1011 - Death
- 1012. Chapter 1012 - Arise
- 1013. Chapter 1013 - Truth Or Lies
- 1014. Chapter 1014 - Start
- 1015. Chapter 1015 - Change
- 1016. Chapter 1016 - Clash
- 1017. Chapter 1017 - Three Ancient Ones
- 1018. Chapter 1018 - Eyes
- 1019. Chapter 1019 - Pollute
- 1020. Chapter 1020 - We Will
- 1021. Chapter 1021 - Past
- 1022. Chapter 1022 - Cured
- 1023. Chapter 1023 - Epilogue
- 1024. Chapter 1024 - Epilogue, Qing Wanglai'S Pov

Chapter 1 - The Master

Li Huowang held the pestle, using it to rhythmically pound the mortar, slowly breaking down a mud-covered green rock into powder.

Despite the cave being cold and humid, the only thing covering him was an overall woven from rough fabric. Still, he did not seem to be bothered by it.

He was not the only one in the cave. Around him were people roughly the same age, with their hair tied up and wearing the same apparel.

The only difference between them and him was that everyone else was either visibly disabled or had some sort of medical condition, such as albinism or polio.

Everyone here was different—it was as if this cave was a twisted museum displaying the various ailments that could affect a human.

All of them were engaged in the same task as Li Huowang: using the mortar to pound raw ingredients into powder. Some were pounding golden rocks, while others were grinding herbs. Although it looked like everyone was diligently doing their assigned task, a few seemed less focused.

“Ack!”

Suddenly, a girl’s scream was heard, causing everyone to turn toward her.

In a corner of the cave, a harelippped young man was grinning maliciously while attempting to hug a girl with albinism.

“It’s ok, let me play with you for a bit. Just a little bit. Heheheh...”

Li Huowang ignored the commotion and kept his eyes closed, focused on his own task.

The girl's cries grew louder and louder.

The commotion started to annoy Li Huowang. He tightened his grip on the mortar.

Then, a dull sound of rock hitting bone reverberated through the cave.

The young man stumbled backward, startled and stunned by the impact. He immediately clutched the wounded area on his head, grimacing in pain.

The girl who had escaped her predicament held down her shirt and hid behind Li Huowang.

"You are so dead! Don't you know what the Master is like?! He'll kill you once he finds out!" the young man shouted furiously, threatening Li Huowang.

"And what does that Master think he is?! He is insignificant!" Li Huowang's statement caused everyone to stop working. The entire cave fell into complete silence. No one had expected him to utter such words.

Seeing everyone's stunned expressions, Li Huowang took a deep breath, trying to calm himself down.

What's happening to me? Why am I so angry with them? This isn't how I usually act. I can't let them affect my emotions. That wasn't the real me. I need to calm down.

Just as Li Huowang was trying to regain his composure, a voice called out for him from the entrance.

"Disciple Li, Disciple Wang, our Master has summoned both of you," shouted a young man.

The young man who shouted the order held a higher rank than Li Huowang, evident from the green Daoist robe he wore.

The robe, though ancient and faded, was still in a better condition than what Li Huowang wore.

The man brandished a horsetail whisk and observed the other disciples, his eyes filled with arrogance.

Seeing the young Daoist, the man with the bleeding head laughed loudly. “Hahaha! You are dead! Today’s the day to meet our Master!”

Li Huowang completely ignored him and, alongside the other disciple, Disciple Wang, walked toward the entrance. Disciple Wang had a deformed mouth, skewed sideways with drool leaking from the corner of her lips. Her face was pale and she appeared quite unhealthy.

Li Huowang had just taken two steps when someone tugged at his shirt. When he turned around, he saw it was the girl with albinism.

Tears streamed down her face as she shook her head, her eyes filled with fear.

Li Huowang ignored her, shook her off and continued walking.

The cave they were in was the Preparation Room. Exiting the Preparation Room, they entered a larger cave. This cave was riddled with entrances to other smaller caves similar to the Preparation Room. Based on the unevenness of the cave, it was evident that the one who made this place wasn’t particularly skillful.

The entire cave system was quite vast, with tunnels leading in all directions, almost like an ant colony.

Above the entrances to the smaller caves, rotten wooden planks were nailed, each excellently carved with different names: the Spiritual Palace, the Judgement Hall, the Memorial Palace, and the Four Heavenly Palace.

The entire cave system was designed to resemble a proper martial dojo.

As they ventured deeper into the cave, the girl beside Li Huowang took out a black item and handed it to him.

“Want some candy?” she asked blankly.

Li Huowang frowned. He knew that she was mentally challenged. So, despite being irritated, he took the candy and tucked it into his clothing.

Seeing that Li Huowang accepted the candy, she took out another piece and put it in her own mouth, chucking and saying, “Master is great. Master gives us candy.”

Li Huowang remained silent as they continued walking. Fifteen minutes later, they arrived at their destination. A giant black furnace appeared before their eyes.

Green smoke billowed from the furnace, rising toward a hole in the cave ceiling. The furnace almost resembled a small metallic hill.

As they approached it, the furnace grew larger and larger until Li Huowang was engulfed in its shadow. It gave off a very oppressive feeling.

But the oppressive feeling wasn’t only due to the furnace; it was also because of the hunchbacked figure that stood in front of it.

Wearing a blue Daoist robe, the figure had his white hair tied up and was adorned with a crown, giving him a sage-like appearance.

He, too, was pounding something with a pestle, similar to what Li Huowang had been doing earlier. However, the difference was that the pestle he wielded was enormous, almost resembling a giant pillar.

The pestle rose and fell, the echoing sound of rock being pounded reverberating through the chamber.

“Mas... Master!” the girl stammered, holding her left thumb with her right hand and covering it with her remaining fingers. She brought both her hands close to her chest and bowed, her eyes filled with respect.

The sound of the pounding abruptly ceased as she spoke.

Even though Li Huowang had mentally prepared himself, he couldn’t help being startled when he saw the figure turn around.

When viewed from the front, the Daoist presented a strikingly different impression. While his posture appeared noble and sage-like from behind, he was an ugly man. Cracked and distorted lips revealed his few remaining teeth.

“You are here? Good girl! You’ve kept me waiting,” he exclaimed, leaping into the air, his dirty robes fluttering in the wind. He then gripped her by her neck with a single hand and jumped back to the mortar.

Before she could even utter a sound, he tossed her into the stone urn, seized the pestle, and slammed it down into the stone urn with a twisted expression.

The girl let out a scream, which abruptly halted.

Meanwhile, he kept pounding. Blood and flesh splattered across his face and body, yet he paid it no mind as he started chanting fervently.

“Fire Ox extends my life, Fire Pig shields my soul, Wood Rat protects my body, Wood Dog maintains my form, Wood Monkey anchors my life, Wood Horse protects my soul, Wood Dragon anchors my spirit!”

Once the girl had been completely ground into a paste, he held up the stone urn which weighed hundreds of kilograms, and poured its contents into the furnace. Excitement filled his eyes as he raised both hands into the air.

“Start the furnace and refine the pill!”

Upon hearing this command, two young female assistants, their faces covered in an excessive amount of makeup, emerged from the shadows. One began fanning the flames, while the other added secondary ingredients into the furnace—various types of stone powders and wriggling lifeforms.

A peculiar scent soon filled the air; however, it was strangely pleasant for the nose.

The Master closed his eyes, took a deep breath and stroked the last few strands of hair that made up his beard. A satisfied expression soon appeared on his ugly face.

Finally, he slowly opened his eyes and placed his hands behind his back before turning toward Li Huowang. “So, I heard you called me insignificant? Is that true?”

The atmosphere around them froze instantly.

Staring at the Master who wouldn’t hesitate in the slightest when taking a life, Li Huowang remained motionless. He closed his eyes and focused on calming his breath.

You can’t deceive me; all of this is a fabrication. It’s all fake!

“Are you mute?! Speak!” The Master’s voice grew louder, accompanied by the sound of his approaching footsteps.

As he drew nearer, the pungent stench of rotting flesh assaulted Li Huowang’s nostrils.

Li Huowang shuddered and clenched his teeth, summoning all his strength to open his eyes. And when he did—

The dark cave around him vanished. He found himself in a brightly lit room filled with fresh air. It was a hospital ward!

At that moment, Li Huowang glanced down and realized that he was tightly bound to a bed with leather belts.

Chapter 2 - Li Huowang

“Phew, I’ve finally returned,” Li Huowang sighed in relief before calling out into the microphone installed at the headboard.

A few moments passed before his attending physician came into the room, holding a white tablet. The physician was accompanied by a nurse.

“How are you feeling, Little Li? Are there any changes in the hallucinations?” The doctor sat on a stool and asked in a kind voice.

“In the hallucination, I was stuck in the same place and doing the same thing as last time. However, this time, that bald master cruelly killed a person right in front of me and attempted to use her body parts to refine a pill,” Li Huowang described his hallucinations in detail.

“Mm-hmm.” The attending physician nodded, taking notes on the tablet.

Li Huowang thought about something and hesitated before asking, “Doctor, what do you mean when you say a different hallucination? How does it reflect my psychological and subconscious status? Does all of it mean something?”

“No, you do not need to care about such things. It is much more important to take note of how long your hallucinations last as well as your mental stability,” the doctor shook his head and avoided the question.

“Since this is a hallucination, you must always remember that it is not real. You have already recovered from your psychosensory disorder, so you must not regress. Everytime you enter a hallucination, you must always follow the logic of that world. With the help of our treatment, you should be able to recover soon.”

Li Huowang’s heart pounded upon hearing this. This was the key to being discharged from the hospital, so he could not afford to be careless.

Meanwhile, the doctor did not forget to cheer his patient up.

“Actually, you’ve already recovered quite a lot. When you were admitted, you couldn’t even differentiate between the real world and your hallucinations. You are on track to recovery, so keep it up. Keep fighting!”

While the two of them were conversing, the soft sound of footsteps echoed from the direction of the door.

Both of them turned at the same time and saw a girl peeking into the room. She was wearing a black turtleneck.

She looked to be sixteen or seventeen, an age where she was like a flower ready to blossom.

Her skin was white as jade, her straight black hair covering her shoulders like a dark waterfall. She looked as pretty as a flower in bloom.

Both teenagers wanted to say something, but no words came out.

Meanwhile, the doctor chuckled; he knew what was going on and so he just adjusted his glasses and promptly left the room.

“I still have something to do, so I will leave the two of you alone. Oh right, don’t forget to take your medicine on time, Little Li.”

As soon as the doctor left, the young girl walked into the room. Both of them smiled at each other as Li Huowang felt a warm feeling in his heart. All his concerns about his illness were quickly forgotten.

“Stop smiling. You look ugly when you smile like that. I brought you a little something... It’s the homework assigned to us by our dear teacher!” The girl smiled slyly, revealing a sling bag made from cloth behind her.

Seeing this, Li Huowang’s smile disappeared immediately.

“Nana, we are childhood friends! Is this how you are going to repay me?”

Yang Na turned around and closed the door before taking out a portable game console and waving it in front of him cheekily. “Of course there’s also this! Call me big sister, and I will give it to you! Hehe~”

“Big Sis! My dear sister! You are my one and only big sister.” Li Huowang excitedly ran up to her and took the gaming console from her hand.

He was bored out of his mind staying within this psychiatric hospital. It wouldn’t be an exaggeration to say that he might end up going crazy from boredom.

“Don’t play too much and make sure to do your homework.” Yang Na sat beside the bed and reminded Li Huowang.

“Yeah, yeah.” said Li Huowang, while fully concentrating on the flashing screen.

Her white, slender fingers tugged at his blue and white hospital gown as she said, “Hey, don’t forget about our promise.”

Li Huowang momentarily paused his game and looked up at her. His face was filled with determination as he said, “Yeah, we promised each other that we will enter the same university.”

Seeing him staring at her with such determination, Yang Na lowered her head shyly, and her voice became as soft as a mosquito as she said, “Ok. Please recover soon. I will be waiting for you.”

Li Huowang suddenly pulled her into his embrace.

Her face was red, but she did not stop him. She just closed her eyes and whispered ‘pervert’ under her breath.

Both of them did not move. They were already content even if all they got to do was just hug like this.

After they had spent some time together, Yang Na had to leave. She was now in her third year of high school, a very important year of her life. It was a luxury to free up half a day from her schedule.

While her visits were short, Li Huowang always appreciated them. To him, she was a ray of sunlight in his miserable life.

“Let me send you out.” Li Huowang stood up from his bed, still in his blue and white hospital gown and wore the white sandals that were prepared for him by the hospital.

Just as he walked her to the door, he felt that something was wrong. He noticed a mortar on the table beside his bed.

Li Huowang took two steps back in surprise. When he checked again, he saw that the mortar had transformed into his meal box.

“Are you ok?” Looking at how startled he was, Yang Na started getting concerned.

Seeing her worried face, Li Huowang grinned mischievously. “Haha! Fooled you! Were you scared?”

Yang Na puffed out her cheeks in anger and pinched his waist. “You are already so old yet still like to act like a child. To think you would pull a childish prank like this.”

“Wait, don’t be mad. I was just trying to cheer you up.” He tried to grab her hands, but she easily shook him off.

After multiple attempts, he finally succeeded in grabbing her hands.

When the other patients who were sunbathing in the courtyard saw both of them, they grinned. Ah, how good must it be to be young and in love~

They walked quite slowly but still arrived at the entrance soon enough.

Standing at the entrance, Yang Na turned and looked at him reluctantly. “I will come back again next week, so please be well.”

“No, you don’t need to come. I know that you must be under immense stress due to all the studying you have to do right now. You only have half a day off every week. Don’t waste it on me.”

Yang Na raised her feet and gently stepped on Li Huowang’s sandals, her lashes fluttering gently as she blinked.

“You dummy. Don’t try to make it sound like I can’t handle it. I have never dropped from the top three spots in our class, so I have never had any stress.”

“Aaa~” Li Huowang held his chest, showing a pained expression, “such harsh words, my lady.”

Yang Na chuckled and lightly punched him before leaving the hospital. She then walked toward the bus station just across the hospital.

Li Huowang stood at the entrance of the hospital until she got on the bus and disappeared from his view. Slowly, the smile on his face disappeared.

He was concerned about what he had just seen, and so he quickly went to the doctor’s office.

An hour later, Li Huowang was turning and tossing in his bed. He was concerned about his future with Yang Na.

A new set of medications had been prescribed to him and was now placed on his table.

The mortar that he had seen, as well as Yang Na’s smile, were constantly on his mind.

What if my illness worsens? What if I am not discharged before the National Higher Education Entrance Examination? Then I would not be able to enter the same university as Yang Na.

Even though he was stuck within the hospital, he still knew about the rumors. In the eyes of the people outside, he was nothing but a crazy man.

To think that his childhood friend, Yang Na, would confess to him a day before he was admitted to the hospital, despite knowing that something was wrong with him.

Yang Na is an amazing girl, so as a man, I must not let her down.

This can’t be right. I’ve been following the doctor’s orders, so why have my hallucinations been getting worse? Should I transfer to another hospital? But this is already my third one.

There should be nothing wrong with Doctor Li's treatment. Dad had told me that he was the best.

All these thoughts continued to plague his mind before he finally gave up on thinking and sat up.

He took out the textbooks and exercise books that Yang Na had delivered to him and started studying. He wanted to use complex theorems to drown out his ever-growing thoughts.

Late into the night, he started completing his homework.

After completing a mock exam sheet for English, he stretched his back and rubbed his temples.

“Yawn~ What time is it? It should be pretty late.” Li Huowang wore his slippers before heading to the toilet. He needed to sleep soon.

Just as he walked toward the toilet while yawning and scratching his chest, his right hand felt something weird and paused.

He looked down at his gown and saw something black and sticky stuck to his chest.

That color looked quite familiar.

Suddenly, a thought flashed across his mind.

He touched the object and licked his finger. A bitter taste that was accompanied by a hint of sweetness caused his pupils to shrink in surprise.

This was the piece of candy that the mentally challenged disciple had given to him!

An object that should have only existed in his hallucination had appeared in reality!

Chapter 3 - Jade Pendant

Once he confirmed that the piece of candy was the real deal, Li Huowang's heart started pounding.

I need to tell Doctor Li!

However, as soon as he was about to take his first step, he stopped himself. Soon, other thoughts flooded his mind.

He knew that the piece of candy was not the only thing that he had seen within his hallucination. There were other items as well, and some of them were way more valuable!

As he savored the sweetness of the candy in his mouth, he shuffled around his ward.

This is a chance! Both me and Yang Na can become rich! Heck, I could even reach the peak of my life!

He quickly realized the implications of all this.

I mustn't tell Doctor Li. The last thing I need right now is for me to be dragged into a lab to be dissected. Plus, this is not something that would fall under his jurisdiction.

But still... this is not something that I can be hasty about. I have to understand the logic behind this phenomenon.

A plan started to hatch within his mind.

Just as he was formulating a plan, the room around him started to distort, slowly fading away.

Huowang had already grown accustomed to this phenomenon. He quickly shoved his homework and textbooks into his bag and threw it toward a corner of the room to avoid it being torn apart while he was in the hallucination.

He promptly pressed the red button beside his bed, and several nurses immediately barged into the room seconds later. They restrained him on the bed.

When he opened his eyes once again, he was back inside the cold and dark cave. The other malformed disciples were staring at him curiously.

He sat up from the cold stone floor and once again surveyed his surroundings to gain a new understanding.

Even if this was just a hallucination, everything around him felt like treasures placed within a vault.

Maybe he wasn't sick. Maybe he had acquired a strange power that even the doctors did not know about.

Maybe I'm not sick. Yes, that's right. I'm not sick.

He had long suffered from his ailment, facing discrimination from everyone no matter where he went.

It was as if ever since he was afflicted with hallucinations, he was no longer a human but a mutant.

Just the mere thought of finally being free from that stigma and discrimination excited him.

Li Huowang, now in quite a good mood, chuckled as he approached a bald guy near him. "Haha, this is interesting."

"What are you guys gathering around and loitering for? Quickly go and get back to work! If the guiding drug that was requested by Master isn't ready and ruins his chance at becoming an Immortal, he will skin all of you alive!" A spiteful voice echoed from the entrance.

Li Huowang turned toward the voice and saw that it was the same Daoist who had summoned him before, Xuan Yang. He was still arrogant as ever; it was as if it was a disgrace for him to speak to all of them.

Seeing Li Huowang's fearlessness, Xuan Yang felt that his authority was being challenged. He shook the horsetail whisk in his hand and confronted him. "Disciple Li, to think that you did not end up becoming a part of the guiding drug for Master. It's quite a shame."

Meanwhile, Li Huowang couldn't even be bothered to pay attention to his words. All his attention was placed on a jade pendant attached to Xuan Yang's waist.

This must be an antique. If I were to get my hands on it and bring it back to the real world, it would be worth quite a lot of money, right? But how should I do it? Should I just take it and place it near my chest, just like I did with that candy?

When Xuan Yang saw Li Huowang remain silent, he mistook it to mean that Li Huowang was afraid of him. He scoffed and left the cave.

Staring at Xuan Yang's back, Li Huowang thought about his plan. He wanted to take the jade pendant and see if he could bring it back to the real world. The easiest way to do so was to steal it at night.

That is a really nice jade pendant, and soon, it will be mine.

At that moment, a white hand, one that was slightly reflecting the dim light within the cave, gently tugged at Li Huowang's sleeve. At the same time, a soft voice spoke to him, "Disciple Li, quickly get back to work, or you won't be able to eat."

Li Huowang turned and saw that it was the girl suffering from albinism that he had helped out before.

He thought about something before taking out the partially melted black candy and placing it in her hand. Then, he went back to his place and picked up the pestle, continuing with his work.

Currently, he couldn't afford to do something out of character, be it at the hospital or within the hallucination.

He must not tell anyone about this shocking power. He planned to slowly explore the rules of this power before deciding on his next move.

The mundane task of grinding up drugs finally came to an end for the day.

It was soon late at night. Amidst the darkness and the sound of snoring, Li Huowang opened his eyes.

It was dark. There were no windows, nor were there any lights. He had to slowly feel the cave and navigate toward the exit.

He first came up to his workstation and picked up the powder of a green rock that he had ground earlier. It was glowing softly, providing just enough light to walk around the cave.

Even though he looked extremely conspicuous within the completely dark cave, he didn't care.

Even if I am found out, I will just return to the hospital. I have a way to escape this, so there is nothing to fear.

He assured himself as he walked in the cave by himself.

The hallucination was something brought about by himself, so how could he be afraid of it? He was fearless even though he couldn't control the hallucination.

The cave was large, but since Li Huowang had been here for quite some time, he could navigate it pretty easily.

He soon arrived in Xuan Yang's small cave. It was simple, but the large bed that he had all for himself was enough to show how much authority he had compared to the rest of them.

Li Huowang was surprised to see that Xuan Yang wasn't in the cave. However, his clothes were here. Li Huowang couldn't care less and immediately grabbed the jade pendant from the Daoist robe.

He sneaked out of the cave and carefully examined the jade pendant under the dim light from the green stone powder.

The jade pendant was surprisingly smooth and clear. Images of clouds and intricate patterns were carved onto the jade. Even an amateur could tell that this was excellent quality jade.

As he carefully examined the jade pendant, Li Huowang grew happier and happier. If he could truly bring it back to the real world, both his and Yang Na's university tuition fee of four years could be easily paid off!

"Hehehe~ Miss Yang Na, get ready to become a rich lady." Li Huowang muttered those words before placing the jade pendant within his clothing and leaving.

Up until this point, everything had progressed quite smoothly. Just as he reached the entrance, he encountered a group of people going up a flight of stairs.

They were almost the same age as Li Huowang, and consisted of both boys and girls. Fear covered their faces as they were illuminated by a flickering torch.

Both parties were surprised and none of them made any noise for quite some time.

In the end, Li Huowang was the one who broke the silence first. He raised the hand that held the green rock powder and illuminated them. “Xuan Yang, your clothes... Were you assigned to the Preparation Room?”

It was not only Xuan Yang. The rest of them also had responsibilities assigned in different sectors. One of them was even the one who had fanned the furnace before.

But regardless of what their usual responsibilities were, they were all wearing clothes made from coarse fabric. None of them had anything else on them except their clothes.

Xuan Yang was not as arrogant as he was during the daytime. His expression quickly changed before he approached Li Huowang and whispered, “Let’s go! We need to leave, now! It’s time to leave this place! I’ve already bribed the disciple guarding the entrance to the cave!”

“Leave? Oooh! You guys are trying to—”

Before Li Huowang could even finish his sentence, Xuan Yang had already covered his mouth.

Chapter 4 - Black Cauldron

As Xuan Yang covered Li Huowang's mouth, the others holding torches swarmed up, staring unkindly at him.

“Aren’t you leaving? Then you’ll die here today! We’ll not allow you to report back to that Baldy!”

Li Huowang was surprisingly calm in the face of his life-and-death predicament. Rolling his eyes, he silently cursed the sudden turn of events in his hallucination. He took a deep breath and closed his eyes.

When he opened his eyes again, he found himself back in the hospital, bound by a wide belt onto the bed. The other disciples surrounding him had vanished.

“Nurse Wang, I’m awake, can you untie me?” Li Huowang called out into the microphone, calling for the nurse on the night shift. He eagerly wanted to see if that jade pendant was still in his clothes.

However, there was no response even after he shouted for some time. Li Huowang knew that Nurse Wang liked to slack off, and was probably engrossed in secretly watching Mary Sue TV dramas and not paying attention.

Li Huowang looked down at his chest under the blue-and-white hospital gown. He desperately tried to twist and turn, attempting to use the pressure to feel whether the jade pendant was still within his clothes.

Unfortunately, his body was restrained quite tightly, and while he felt it sometimes, at other times, he couldn’t feel it. After trying a few more times, he gave up.

Li Huowang yawned; he could only lie on the bed and pray that Nurse Wang would eventually glance at the surveillance screen after she had finished her drama.

It was already late at night, and even the second floor that housed the critically ill patients was very quiet. Amidst this silence, Li Huowang dozed off. When he woke up, he found himself lying on the ground inside the icy cave.

He was still in the same place, but the group of people plotting their escape was nowhere to be seen.

“Tsk... just this group of NPCs wanted to deal with me?” Li Huowang said as he pulled out the jade pendant from his pocket and gently flipped it over before putting it back.

After a while, he returned to the large dormitory and laid on a pile of dry grass, waiting patiently for the arrival of dawn. He was so excited that he couldn’t sleep, and so he spent his time contemplating the value of the jade pendant.

Li Huowang didn’t know how much time had passed, since there were no clocks around. When he saw the disciples beside him start stirring, he sat up as well.

It’s morning now, so Nurse Wang should have changed shifts as well. Should I go back and take a look first? Nurse Ai is a lot more professional than her.

Just as Li Huowang was sorting his thoughts, urgent footsteps were heard from the entrance.

A Daoist disciple frantically entered. He had a topknot and was dressed in a black Daoist robe.

“Hurry! Master wants everyone to gather at Hui An Palace!”

This sudden command perplexed everyone, but they had no reason to delay since it was Master who wanted them to be there.

Soon, all the disciples had gathered in the biggest cave in Hui An Palace. Torches illuminated the confusion on their faces.

Li Huowang noticed that there were a few people missing from the group. Even besides Xuan Yang, some of the Baldy Master's personal disciples were nowhere to be seen.

Oh, they also tried to escape with Xuan Yang's group? Li Huowang thought, silently watching the spectacle unfold.

At that moment, an ugly person stepped out from a dark tunnel, and all the Daoist disciples besides Li Huowang instinctively lowered their heads.

This was their Master, Dan Yangzi.

"Ke~!" This cough caused everyone to tense up.

"There was an escape attempt late last night, and two of my very own personal disciples were involved in it as well. I am deeply saddened!"

His words expressed sorrow, but the hostility on his face was palpable.

Li Huowang scoffed inwardly.

They were discovered just like that? Xuan Yang and that bunch are really lousy.

"There cannot be any order without rules. Mistakes must be punished! This is the iron clad rule of my Xishan Donghua Sect! Follow me."

No one dared to make any sound as they followed Dan Yangzi.

Following him, they traversed caverns large and small, and crossed a turbulent underground river. Soon, they arrived at a damp classroom-sized cavern.

Li Huowang saw those who had attempted to escape last night. Not a single person was missing, and they were all tied up in a corner.

Initially they were dejected, but started struggling agitatedly when they saw their Master. However, the pieces of cloth in their mouths prevented them from speaking.

Dan Yangzi couldn't be bothered to listen to their pleas, and gestured with one hand, pointing forward with a finger. "Open!"

A large hole suddenly opened up in the smooth floor of the cavern, and those who had tried to escape last night instantly fell inside it.

This was followed with muffled shouts and hysterical cries echoing from within the hole, together with the sound of flesh being torn apart.

Faced with this terrifying scene, many of the Daoist disciples trembled with fear and wished that they could look away.

“Move closer and observe closely! This is the fate of those who try to escape!” Dan Yangzi’s words caused everyone’s faces to turn a few shades paler.

No one dared to disobey Master’s orders, and everyone came to the edge of the pit.

The inside of the pit was completely dark. The pitch-black circular hole was like a whirlpool that wanted to pull everyone in.

After observing carefully, Li Huowang saw a black cauldron within the hole, with twisted talismans on its rim.

There seemed to be something moving within the cauldron, but Li Huowang could not make out what it was.

The only thing he could distinctly take note of was a nauseating stench of blood.

Whatever was inside the cauldron, it was definitely extremely dangerous.

Logically, something belonging to this hallucination shouldn’t be able to harm me. Nothing like that has ever happened before.

He still felt anxious despite comforting himself, and prepared himself to return to the hospital at any time.

Whoosh!

At that moment, a wriggling shadow shot out from within the hole, swiftly coiling around a disciple beside Li Huowang and dragging him down into the hole.

Everyone was frightened, swiftly retreating back to the smooth walls of the cavern. They would have long since started running if not for the fact that Dan Yangzi was watching them.

The spectators were petrified with fear as they tried to make sense of what it was that they had just seen.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang, as the person who stood the closest, had clearly seen what it was.

It was a black mass with a fleshy texture. It had clusters of black tentacles extending from its sticky and slippery skin!

Just based on that, Li Huowang was certain that the organism that Dan Yangzi was rearing here was not something that existed in the normal world.

Even though Li Huowang could not guess what exactly it was, he did not want to go over for another look.

Li Huowang knew that all of this was his own brain's imagination, but he had to wonder why would he dream up such a monstrosity?

As he was surveying his surroundings, a sudden but terrifying thought emerged in Li Huowang's mind.

Wh-what if this horrifying and mysterious world was real?

Li Huowang's body started to tremble. He realized this hallucination was unlike anything he'd experienced before. He thought of those people who had just died before. If they had been real and not a hallucination, then would he also die if that thing had grabbed him?

Li Huowang was starting to get overwhelmed by the suffocating fear. He forced himself to take a few deep breaths, then followed the self-soothing methods taught to him by Doctor Li.

These are all hallucinations, no matter how real they may seem. Li Huowang, you definitely cannot get lost in them once again; they're all created by you, there's nothing to be afraid of.

Yang Na is still waiting for me. I cannot let her down. I can beat all of this. I must!

Feeling composed, Li Huowang was ready to face the hallucination once more, determined not to let it overpower him.

Chapter 5 - Pills

Currently, Dan Yangzi did not know about what Li Huowang was thinking, and he wouldn't care even if he knew. He just continued to lecture his terrified disciples.

"Remember what you have seen today, lest any of you harbor any ill intentions!"

Dan Yangzi's words made everyone's hearts shiver, the fear in their eyes clear as day.

With his hands behind his back, Dan Yangzi paced around in front of his disciples, his eagle-like gaze scanning their faces.

"Listen carefully. Assisting others in becoming an Immortal is a great honor. If and when I become an Immortal, I will not forget your contributions. But for anyone who tries to ruin my plans, there will be dire consequences! Hmph!"

He suddenly stopped in front of Li Huowang, fixing his gaze on this young man whose face had a slightly different expression from the others.

You are just a figment of my imagination, so why should I be afraid of you? Li Huowang thought, calmly locking eyes with his Baldy Master.

The atmosphere in the cave became tense as Dan Yangzi raised his right hand, revealing his nails that were caked with dirt. The pitiful gazes of the other disciples' locked onto their fellow disciple who had dared to provoke their master, waiting to see how he would be dealt with.

Unexpectedly, Dan Yangzi's expression softened. He raised his right hand and patted Li Huowang's head, dispelling the tense atmosphere.

"Last night, when those traitors invited you to leave with them, why didn't you go?"

While this seemed to be a question directed toward Li Huowang, it was thinly veiled praise.

Just as Li Huowang was about to respond, he saw Dan Yangzi raise his right hand.

"No need for words. Although you didn't report to me in a timely fashion, compared to those traitors, you did quite well."

Dan Yangzi lowered his hand and continued, "I can see that you have talent. From now on, you don't need to work in the Preparation Room. You will now be my official disciple."

Li Huowang was taken aback; his status was suddenly being elevated? But he soon realized that with the loss of so many people in the cave, Dan Yangzi was probably short on helpers.

"Since you are now an official disciple and have entered the sect, you need to have a Daoist name. Hmm... Your Daoist name will be Xuan Yang."

Li Huowang glanced at the circular hole in the corner, recalling the tragic end of the previous Xuan Yang.

Hmm, this name is really inauspicious.

Though Li Huowang couldn't care much about this sudden preferential treatment, the others from the Preparation Room were very envious; becoming Dan Yangzi's official disciple meant that he wouldn't be killed.

Dan Yangzi knew that he needed to offer some more rewards to keep them hooked. "Xuan Yang, since you have just joined our sect, I'll show you some goodwill."

Upon hearing this, Li Huowang quickly walked up to Dan Yangzi, expecting to receive something.

From the gourd on his waist, Dan Yangzi poured out five dark pills and placed them in Li Huowang's palm.

"Keep them well. These five pills are divine pills refined by me. When you eat them, not only will they increase your lifespan by ten years, they will also temporarily grant you a huge boost in strength, allowing you to protect yourself."

Li Huowang's brows creased into a frown as the pills were placed before him.

Could these things possibly be made using people as well?

Just as he had this thought, he noticed one of the pills roll slightly. It changed from a circular to an oval shape, almost as if something was struggling to emerge from it.

However, when he focused his eyes to take a closer look, he found that the pill had not changed at all.

Damn, am I going crazy? Why do I even care about the things I encounter in this hallucination? It's all fake, and I absolutely cannot get caught up in it again.

Frustrated, Li Huowang slapped his own head.

Meanwhile, Dan Yangzi just ignored Li Huowang's reaction and turned toward the remaining disciples. "See that? Going against me means death. But you will be handsomely rewarded as long as you help me!"

Everyone looked alternately between Dan Yangzi and the pills. At this moment, all of them were lost in their own thoughts.

Seeing that he had managed to achieve his objective, Dan Yangzi waved his filthy sleeves, signaling for everyone to disperse and continue with their work.

Li Huowang no longer needed to go to the Preparation Room. His Daoist name was Xuan Yang, meaning that he now owned everything that belonged to the previous Xuan Yang – his status, his Daoist robe, and even the small but unique cave.

However at this moment, he couldn't care less about anything that was happening in the hallucination.

He was much more concerned about his gains.

Now with his hands crossed, Li Huowang looked at the two items placed on the white hospital bedsheet—the jade pendant and the pills.

"My gosh, I actually brought both of them out."

But now, he had a dilemma. The old problem that he had been ignoring resurfaced, and now he had to confront it.

If I take these pills out of there, and they actually work, does it mean that it is not a hallucination, but a real place? What is happening to me?

He had faithfully followed the doctor's advice and firmly treated everything there as a hallucination. But now that these things were physically appearing before him, he felt conflicted.

If all that really had been a hallucination, then how did these things become tangible? What risks do they pose to me?

If that place really was another world...

The horrifying imagery of the mentally challenged disciple being ground into a paste and used in the concoction of a pill, Xuan Yang being swallowed by the creature inside the black cauldron, as well as many other scenes flashed through his mind, causing his breathing to become more rapid.

Ah! So annoying! I don't even have anyone I can discuss this with.

Feeling exasperated, Li Huowang scratched his head.

After venting his emotions for a while, Li Huowang still had to come face to face with reality. After a long period of contemplation, he determined his next course of action.

Whether it was real or fake, inside the hallucination, he would continue to act like usual, treating it as if it were real. If by any chance it was all real, this would ensure his safety, and if it turns out to be fake after all, then there was no harm in it of itself.

For now, before he made any further plans, he would need to verify the authenticity and the value of the objects he had acquired.

Having made his decision, Li Huowang took a deep breath and picked up one of the pills with his index finger and thumb.

No, it's too dangerous to take this myself.

His gaze then shifted to the patients enjoying the sun in the garden outside.

After a brief internal struggle, he dejectedly put the pill down. They were just as unfortunate as him, so how could he possibly use them as his test subjects? He would need to get his hands on a guinea pig later.

Then, Li Huowang turned his gaze toward the circular jade pendant. Compared to the pills, dealing with this item would be much easier.

"Alright, what do you want? I went to great lengths to be able to sneak out for your sake. If it's a prank, then hmph!" Yang Na clenched her small and white fist, threatening Li Huowang.

"Yang Na, I only called you here for help as a last resort. You know that I can't get out of here," Li Huowang said while walking to the ward's door to close it. Then, he also drew the curtains.

Translator's Thoughts

Li Huowang, drawn by the talented @格子的乱七八糟 on Douyin!

Chapter 6 - Worth

Upon seeing Li Huowang's actions, Yang Na panicked and took a step back. "What are you doing? The nurse station can hear everything that we say over here."

As soon as she finished speaking, laughter resounded from the speakers by the bedside. "Haha, don't worry! We can't hear anything. Little Li, keep at it!"

"Ladies, can you please stop being so nosy? Go and focus your attention on the ICU." Li Huowang shouted toward the speakers.

Then, he grabbed Yang Na's hand and led her to another corner of the room.

He took out the jade pendant from his pocket and placed it in her palm, then leaned close to her ear and whispered. The more she listened, the more Yang Na's eyes widened.

"This can't be true... This—" Before she could even finish her sentence, Li Huowang covered her mouth with his hand.

Their gazes met, and Li Huowang looked at Yang Na with intense longing in his eyes.

"Help me! Everything I have told you is true. None of the people outside trust me, not even my parents—they all think I'm crazy. You're the only person I can trust in the whole wide world. I'm not insane!"

After a few seconds, Yang Na finally nodded while biting her lips.

As she was leaving, she looked back at him through teary eyes multiple times, clearly worried about Li Huowang's mental state.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang watched her departing figure with mixed emotions. While he no longer cared about what others thought of him, Yang Na was different.

"Nana, please trust me! Just this once!"

Li Huowang shuffled around nervously inside his room. The time spent waiting for something always felt the longest.

During this time, he had suffered from another bout of hallucination, but Li Huowang quickly snapped out of it. While the doctor had told him that this wouldn't be ideal, he was afraid that he would end up missing Yang Na.

One, two, then three days passed while Li Huowang became increasingly anxious.

"Little Li, your little girlfriend is here to visit you~" Upon hearing the nurse's announcement, Li Huowang jumped out of the bed like a carp and rushed toward the hospital entrance.

Li Huowang bumped into Yang Na in the garden located within the hospital, and they embraced each other with excitement.

She suppressed her voice and whispered in his ear, "Huowang, it's real, the jade pendant is real!"

"I'm not sick! Hahaha! I'm not sick!" Li Huowang exclaimed, tightly hugging the girl and twirling her in the air.

The two basked in their excitement for quite a while before finally calming down.

"Did me asking for your help affect your life and studies?" Li Huowang asked Yang Na in a voice filled with concern, as they sat beside a flower bed in the garden.

However, Yang Na decided to dodge the question by changing the topic. She extended four slender fingers toward Li Huowang, "Do you know how much this jade pendant is worth? This much!"

"40,000?"

"400,000! And I am sure that he under-valued it. We'll definitely get a better offer if we ask around."

"400,000! Damn, 400,000!" Li Huowang chuckled. Such a sum could cover his medical expenses for these few years, and there would even be some leftover. Even more importantly, this was just the beginning.

"Miss Yang Na, are you ready to become a wealthy wife?"

Li Huowang's teasing made Yang Na blush slightly. "Stop joking. All of this is so strange. Are you sure that it won't harm your body?"

"It's fine! I'm perfectly okay. What could possibly happen to me? Heck, with the current situation, I might have to lengthen the duration of my treatment. After all, this is precious! I can't be cured too quickly."

Hearing this, Yang Na's expression tensed up. She worriedly replied, "Huowang, these are two separate matters. I don't want money. You must not stop your treatment or your medications. Promise me, or I won't help you anymore."

Li Huowang had thought of many reasons to refute her, but a warm feeling arose in his heart as he looked at her concerned eyes. "Okay, I promise you."

Yang Na smiled, and gently patted his head. "That's more like it, you stinky head."

Just as the two were discussing how to sell this jade pendant, a few burly middle-aged men bustled past with riot forks.

Confused, Li Huowang asked one of the familiar faces, "What happened to Master Zhao? Did something happen?"

"Don't ask what you shouldn't, Little Li. Get back to your ward quickly. Also, if you happen to meet Old Liu, remember to report it immediately. That guy must have secretly spit out his medications again." That person hurriedly said, then turned back and rushed toward the stairs.

'Aren't there two layers of iron barricades surrounding the critically ill zone? How did Old Liu manage to escape with his small physique?' Li Huowang thought as he looked toward the critically ill zone with eyes full of doubt.

Back when he could not differentiate between hallucination and reality, he was kept there for a period of time. Those memories were not very pleasant.

Li Huowang saw that the other patients were being escorted back to their wards by their respective nurses. Seeing this, he turned to Yang Na and said, "It's a little chaotic here, so you should go back first. Call the hospital tonight and we'll talk over the phone."

"Okay. Take care of yourself. Also, remember what you just promised me." Yang Na said before turning around to walk toward the distant hospital entrance.

"400,000!" Li Huowang sighed as he walked toward his ward. Quite a few new ideas and questions started popping up in his mind after confirming that the jade pendant was worth so much.

Was it a hallucination or a reality?

Then again, if something from there was so valuable, then it didn't matter whether it was a hallucination or reality.

He hadn't even taken a few steps before a familiar cry resounded behind him. Li Huowang turned back, only to see a bald and skinny old man knocking Yang Na to the ground.

Li Huowang's blood instantly boiled over as he witnessed such a scene unfold. He gritted his teeth and dashed up fiercely, "Old Liu! That's my girlfriend, let go of her!"

"Huhuhu~" A whistling sound filled the air as a hexagonal brick flipped and flew toward Li Huowang, directly smashing into his head.

Li Huowang felt the world spinning around him, and then he fell heavily onto the ground. His vision gradually turned red due to the wound that had opened up on his head.

A pair of bloated feet covered with the hospital gown walked across Li Huowang's reddened vision, toward the screaming and struggling Yang Na.

The heavy footsteps gradually approached Yang Na.

There was only one thought running through Li Huowang's mind. ' I must not let Yang Na be harmed!'

Trembling, he fished out one of the pills given to him by the Master and stuffed it into his mouth. It mixed along with his own blood that was flowing out of the wound on his head.

In an instant, an extremely hot stream of energy surged out from his abdomen into his four limbs, filling him with strength. At the same time, his fuzzy mind instantly turned incomparably clear.

Bang!

He delivered a firm punch onto the fatty's chin. The impact caused some of the fatty's yellowed teeth to fly out, barely leaving him with any teeth.

Drenched in blood, Li Huowang paid no attention to the fatty who had now fallen onto the ground. Instead, he took large strides toward Old Liu, and stomped on his skinny chest.

Crack-crack.

The sound of bones breaking resounded over and over. At the same time, Old Liu was spitting out blood, his bones breaking into pieces like noodles.

Meanwhile, Yang Na was sobbing on the ground, clutching her tattered sweater. Seeing this, Li Huowang clenched his teeth, causing his gums to bleed as well.

His bloodshot eyes stared unwaveringly at the two people on the ground. He stomped on the concrete floor with one foot, and then leapt toward them like a cheetah.

"Huowang! Stop! What are you doing?!"

Chapter 7 - Zephyr Temple

Li Huowang lay on the bed, wearing the hospital's specialized straitjacket. He looked up at the intravenous drip above him, seemingly waiting for something.

Then, the ward door squeaked open, and in came a voice, "Hey, Little Li, weren't you recovering well before? What happened so suddenly?"

Li Huowang's attending physician walked in, looking at him with a disappointed expression.

Upon hearing this, Li Huowang, whose head was wrapped in bandages, anxiously explained his case, "Doctor, they were the ones who attacked Yang Na first! I was forced to fight back to protect her!"

The Doctor adjusted his glasses with his finger and said, "You call that fighting back? That's more like killing! Liu Jianye is still admitted to the ICU. Your kick nearly killed him. You have spent quite some time here, and know how the others are. Did you really not consider Master Liu's condition before you took action? I had assumed you to be a sensible kid."

When Li Huowang thought of the frightened Yang Na, he continued to remain indignant. "So what if he has a mental illness? Does that give him a free pass to do whatever the heck he wants? If I had to choose between Yang Na being harmed or being sent to prison, I would pick the latter in a heartbeat."

"You-" Hearing Li Huowang's retort, the attending physician was at a loss for words.

Finally, he just sighed and shook his head. "Forget it, the hospital director has called the families of both parties. You don't need to worry about these matters anymore."

Upon hearing that, Li Huowang turned away and curled toward the other side of the bed where no one was facing him, contemplating whether the jade pendant worth 400,000 would be enough for compensation.

However, he wasn't all that worried. Now that he knew that those pills were indeed effective, Li Huowang suddenly felt that he had many new choices in his life.

Feeling that his young patient's spirits were low, the Doctor tried to console him. "Little Li, don't worry, you won't be sent to jail. The hospital can issue a certificate for you. Focus on recuperating properly, and we'll handle the other matters."

Li Huowang sensed the concern in his tone and replied, "Thank you, Doctor."

"There's no need to thank me; after all, I'm still your attending physician. And I have to care more for you as well since you're so young," Li Huowang felt his hand pat his own shoulder.

"But Little Li, tell me the truth. How did you manage to injure them to that extent? That's not something the average person can achieve. Were you in a normal state, or were you going through a stressed hallucination?"

Li Huowang's heart skipped a beat, his attention focusing on his shirt pocket. "That was me."

"I specialize in psychology and have some expertise in this area. Think well before you answer me again, and don't try to hide your illness. I especially hate it when my patients try to deceive me."

Though the Doctor's tone was friendly, Li Huowang could sense the heavy atmosphere in the room.

What should I do? I can't let him know about the existence of those pills.

Just as Li Huowang was anxiously trying to find a way to avoid the question, his surroundings started to fade, and the Doctor's voice started growing hazy.

Just a few seconds later, he found that he had once again slipped into the hallucination and that he was lying on the stone bed inside Xuan Yang's solitary cave.

He sat up and supported his head, surveyed the simple furnishings around him, and smiled.

Hehe, no matter what happens, this is also a way out.

He did not plan to return so quickly this time around. In case the Doctor was the one waiting for him.

He stepped out of his room and saw some of his fellow disciples entering and leaving the cave's passageways. His mind started to plan his next moves.

Since those pills were effective, he knew that he could not be as careless in the future. He had to manage his standing in this place properly and maximize the benefits he could reap from there.

Fortunately, his status was elevated from a mere guiding drug ingredient working away in the Preparation Room to one of Baldy's official disciples. This allowed him to have much more freedom of movement.

When he saw a bearded man who was also wearing a set of Daoist robes walk by him, Li Huowang's eyes gleamed, and he immediately chased after him, shouting, "Senior, senior!"

The bearded Daoist turned to find that it was Li Huowang who was calling out to him. He replied indifferently, "Junior Xuan Yang, what's the matter?"

Li Huowang imitated the tone they spoke in, "Junior just became Master's disciple and would like to receive Senior's guidance. What should I be doing next?"

"Forgive me for being blunt, but even though you were personally accepted by Master, your seniority is the lowest. For now, you can only run errands within Zephyr Temple. Only the inner-circle disciples have the privilege of learning the cultivation of Immortality from the Master, and you aren't qualified enough yet. For now, follow me and wait outside the pill room."

"Cultivation of Immortality?" Li Huowang mumbled to himself. He had never heard of any immortal using humans to refine pills to achieve immortality.

"Can Master really become an Immortal?"

The bearded Daoist had a look of self-satisfaction as he said, "Of course. Master even has supernatural powers. You just need to serve him well."

From talking to this senior called Xuan Yin, Li Huowang also got a clearer idea of the hierarchy within this cavernous Daoist Temple. There were five official disciples, one personal disciple, and only one temple master, which was Dan Yangzi himself.

Aside from these people, the rest were just auxiliary staff members, such as the cooks, the guiding drug ingredients working in the Preparation Room, or the young assistants tasked with doing miscellaneous work. In total, there were around 180 people.

This was the first time that Li Huowang got a comprehensive understanding of this Daoist academy. They didn't have a lot of people, especially after the last batch of disciples died.

While they were conversing, the pill furnace appeared before Li Huowang again, and along with it came a sense of suppression. White smoke faintly wafted out from within, as though it was being used to refine something.

This time, accompanying Dan Yangzi was his inner-circle disciple as well, who had a gloomy expression.

After waiting for a while with Xuan Yin, Li Huowang was assigned his task. It was the same task as the previous Xuan Yang—to retrieve ingredients and keep a proper inventory of the Preparation Room.

Li Huowang arrived at the Preparation Room which was covered in white dust. The workers within looked toward him, a tinge of fear in their nervous expressions.

Initially, the young girl suffering from albinism pursed her lips and took a few steps forward in an eager manner, but in the end, she did not say anything and slowly backed away.

The other party's status had changed from a fellow oppressed to the oppressor.

Li Huowang looked at them while his mind whirled. The dynamics of his relationship with them had changed, and perhaps he could use this fact to gain some benefits.

"Um, do you guys have any money on you?" asked Li Huowang.

This question left everyone stunned.

"Money, don't you understand? Silver, gold, or jade will do too," Li Huowang asked again.

If he were being honest, Li Huowang really did need money now. It was unknown just how much compensation he would need to provide Old Liu with, and his own family was from an ordinary background. If the compensation was huge, his Mom might even have to sell the house. Hence, his urgent need for money.

"Since it cannot be spent here, better to pass it all to me as protection fees. I'll have your backs from now on."

His words were quite straightforward, so everyone understood them and began to search their pockets. They did not beg for Li Huowang to protect them but only hoped that he would not bully them after they handed over their items.

A blackened and shattered silver piece about half the size of a thumb; a copper hairpin; and around forty round copper coins with a square inner hole. All these items were his harvest.

Li Huowang sighed when he saw all these things; it seemed that he had miscalculated. These guys wouldn't have much money at all. From the looks of it, even his medical insurance would be worth more than all this junk.

Chapter 8 - Rewriting The Script

Just as Li Huowang was preparing to leave, he saw the girl suffering from albinism shyly remove one of her shoes before removing a golden anklet that had a red thread tied around it from around her almost transparent ankle.

Li Huowang's eyes widened as he estimated the weight of the golden anklet in his hand. Even though it was somewhat light, it was still made of gold and should be worth a decent amount.

Satisfied, he stuffed these objects into the wide sleeves of his Daoist robes. He then pointed to the girl suffering from albinism and said, "Listen up, from now on she's in charge of the preparation room. All of you should obey her instructions."

Seeing everyone nodding hesitantly, he took the prepared ingredients and rushed off toward the pill room.

On the way, he stole glances at the waists of others he saw, hoping to find another jade pendant. Unfortunately, he was disappointed.

When Li Huowang returned to the furnace room, he saw the large and oppressive pill furnace slowly opening.

At the same time, Dan Yangzi flicked his sleeves, causing several dark-blue pills to be arranged neatly into rows in front of him and then be poured into the khaki gourd hanging on his waist.

As he watched this, Li Huowang burned with envy; these should be the supernatural powers that Xuan Yin had told him about. He wondered if he could learn them somehow.

If I could bring this ability back to reality, then focusing purely on money would be quite short-sighted.

Li Huowang bent down to place the ingredients in his hand, ready to observe and listen. Currently, he did not understand much, so it was better to just watch and absorb as much as he could.

“Xuan Yang~”

Another task? So soon? Am I really just an errand boy now? I can't keep running around like this... I've got to think of a way to convince Baldy to pass his supernatural powers onto me.

In response to his name being called out, Li Huowang clasped his hands together and bowed toward Dan Yangzi. “Master, what are your orders?”

“Go to the preparation room and bring the guiding drug ingredient called Bai Lingmiao.”

Li Huowang's heart skipped a beat. His right hand reached into his sleeve and touched the golden anklet that had a red thread tied around it. Bai Lingmiao seemed to be the name of that young girl suffering from albinism.

“Eh?” Upon seeing his new disciple not reacting, Dan Yangzi turned to look at him.

Li Huowang clenched his teeth. He had just told them that he would protect them, but now he had to send her to her death immediately after. It was honestly rather indefensible.

“Didn't you hear what I said?”

Sensing that Dan Yangzi's tone was becoming antagonistic, Li Huowang sighed helplessly before closing his eyes.

When he reopened them, he was once again returned to the pristine hospital ward, bound to the bed.

What should I do?

If it had been before, then he would have just followed the orders without any hesitation. But the problem was that there was a very real possibility of that world being real. If he really brought her to Baldy, it would likely result in her death. This fact weighed heavily on his conscience.

After the nurses released him, Li Huowang bit his nails and paced back and forth in his room.

What should I do? What should I do?

Before he could come up with any ideas, the door was pushed open, and his attending physician walked in.

He smiled bitterly. He was trapped on both sides and now he had nowhere else to run.

The doctor pointed at him with a frustrated look on his face and said, "Hey, we'll talk one-on-one after the visitors leave."

"Visitors?"

Before Li Huowang could respond, he saw his weary-looking mother enter the room with a bag of fruits.

"I heard that you got into a fight at the hospital. How's your head? Why are you wrapped in bandages like that? Does it hurt?" She rushed over and examined him anxiously.

"Mom, it doesn't hurt. I'm fine, really. It's them who caused trouble." Li Huowang immediately reassured her.

After he spent some time consoling her, at least Li Huowang ensured that his mom wouldn't shed tears.

Faced with his next of kin, even his troubles at the other end had to take a step back.

Li Huowang selectively reported some positive news, "Mom, don't worry, I'm fine. My illness is much better now, and I've also been keeping up with my studies. I'll be able to take the Entrance Exam once I'm discharged."

"Stop hiding things from me. The doctor has told me everything. Go on, tell me what exactly happened that day. Who started the fight?"

Li Huowang used the calmest tone he could muster to explain to his mother, but that did not seem to appease his mother's anger by much.

"That's perfectly justified, so what compensation are we talking about! They are the ones who were in the wrong. Even if they have some mental illness, it's the hospital's responsibility to take care of them! Our family has never bullied others, but we don't let others bully us either! If they want to file a lawsuit, then the truth will still be on our side in the court!" Sun Xiaoqin said as she slammed the table in agitation.

Li Huowang continued to soothe her while glancing at the doctor who was awkwardly touching his nose beside them. "Mom, mom, don't get so worked up. You came all the way here to visit me, so let's enjoy our time together."

Sun Xiaoqin suppressed the rage in her heart and bent down to take out the fruits from her bag. "Don't bother yourself with this matter. Mom will settle it. Come, these are your favorite grapes. Eat more, you have become so skinny now. The hospital food isn't that good, right?"

"No, the hospital food is not bad." Li Huowang sat beside her and began to eat.

Li Huowang felt at ease as he listened to his mother's complaints while eating the sweet grapes.

He liked this sort of feeling. He had not experienced familial warmth for a long time, ever since he had entered the hospital.

As he looked at his mother, Li Huowang almost wanted to spill out everything that had happened to him. But just as the words reached the tip of his tongue, he swallowed them back.

No, she's different from Yang Na. If I speak of it, she'll only think that my illness has become even worse. I cannot let her worry anymore. I'll only tell her once everything has stabilized.

Just as the mother and son were happily chatting, the attending physician's phone rang. After listening for a bit, he said, "Madam Sun, Mr. Liu's family has also arrived. Let's go have a look."

"Son, stay here and rest. Also, eat more. I'll get some more for you once you're done," Sun Xiaoqin cheerfully said to Li Huowang, then puffed her chest and turned toward the door. She seemed like a rooster about to enter a confrontation.

Without even knowing why, Li Huowang felt an immense sense of peace as he watched her departing figure.

Due to his mother being so strong-willed, Li Huowang felt very secure as long as he was by her side. She was just like a large umbrella above his head, one that protected him from the turbulent wind and rain. All his worries from before seemed to vanish in an instant.

Keke, the lobby will definitely be bustling later on.

Li Huowang took another yellow-green grape and bit down on it, causing the fresh juices to burst forth in his mouth.

At that moment, Li Huowang's body shook violently for a while, and his surroundings started changing once again.

Oh no, Mom's visit almost made me forget about how to trick that Baldy. What should I do now?

When his surroundings stabilized, Li Huowang found that he was already standing in the preparation room. Dan Yangzi was also standing nearby, looking quite displeased. Meanwhile, the other attendants were huddled in a circle with their heads drooping.

Dan Yangzi flipped his filthy hand to reveal a black, viscous object wriggling within the palm of his hand. Each movement was accompanied by a sound as though it was a toad trying to lick its eyeballs.

Eh? Wasn't it supposed to be that he would be using Bai Lingmiao to refine pills? Did the script change?

Li Huowang hesitated for a second, then asked, "Master, what is that?"

"Hmph, it's good stuff. Taisui, Black Taisui."

Chapter 9 - Black Taisui

"Hmph, it's good stuff. Taisui, Black Taisui." Dan Yangzi's icy-cold voice reverberated in the small Preparation Room.

Li Huowang tilted his head slightly before once again glancing at the disgusting object placed in Dan Yangzi's hand.

Upon closer inspection, he realized that it was quite similar to the thing inside the black cauldron. No, the thing in Dan Yangzi's hand was definitely the same man-eating creature!

This thing is... a Black Taisui? Is he planning to use this thing to refine these pills? Such a strange taste.

With a flick of Dan Yangzi's wrist, the squirming Black Taisui flew through the air in an arc before landing directly on Li Huowang's foot.

The sticky and soft texture sent shivers down Li Huowang's spine, and his legs involuntarily trembled as he backed away.

Li Huowang stared at the dust-covered Black Taisui that sat on the floor before looking toward Dan Yangzi in confusion; he could not understand what all this was supposed to mean.

"It's a reward for you. Pick it up and swallow it. You were just a guiding drug ingredient before, but you can't be so careless anymore; after all, you're my disciple now. Swallowing it can help suppress your hysteria."

Li Huowang could not understand what he was saying, and he didn't want to understand it either. His young face turned pale, and he kept backing away, shouting, "I won't eat it! I'm not sick!"

"You won't eat it? Hmph, that's not your choice. Changming, Changren."

Dan Yangzi lifted his chin slightly, and then two Daoists with swords on their backs swiftly approached Li Huowang, each grabbing one of his arms.

Dan Yangzi then gestured with his right hand. The Black Taisui, which had been squirming toward a corner of the room, flew straight into his hand.

As Dan Yangzi started approaching Li Huowang with that nauseating thing, his body began to tremble uncontrollably. An icy coldness permeated his entire body from the inside out.

He instinctively wanted to struggle and escape, but the hands of the two seniors were clamped down on his shoulders firmly like iron chains.

Fortunately, he had one last resort. With rapid breaths, his chest heaved intensely. In his trepidation, he clenched his teeth and closed his eyes tightly, using all his strength to curl his thoughts and physical body inward.

"Huowang? Huowang! What happened?? Are you in pain?"

At that moment, Yang Na's gentle voice melodiously floated to Li Huowang's ears.

When he opened his eyes, he saw a girl in a high-necked white sweater before him. Overwhelmed with emotions, he rushed toward her and hugged her tightly, almost as if grasping onto his lifeline.

The young girl's face blushed slightly. She struggled to escape his grasp as she spoke softly, "Huowang, Huowang, let go of me. There are others watching us."

Li Huowang looked up and saw his mother standing beside the attending physician, smiling at them. "Oh my, my son is quite amazing."

Li Huowang felt a gradual sense of calm chasing away the terror in his heart as he looked at the clean and tidy hospital ward, the bright sunshine outside the window, and his beloved family.

The attending physician adjusted his glasses, frowning as he approached Li Huowang. "Little Li, just what did you see in your hallucination? Your emotional fluctuations have been quite intense lately. What's been going on? Have you been following my instructions?"

Li Huowang's heart skipped a beat as he thought about what he had just experienced. He anxiously asked, "Doctor, is there any medications that can temporarily suppress these hallucinations? I really can't take it anymore; I need a break."

"Alright, I'll prescribe you with some antipsychotic medications. But Little Li, medications are only an adjunct. If you want to completely get rid of the hallucinations, you will still need to follow my instructions," the doctor said as he wrote the prescription on his tablet.

Li Huowang directly rushed in when he saw the nurse deliver the blue capsules. He didn't even bother to drink any water, directly placing them into his mouth.

For now, he did not want to bother with the Master and his pills, and just wanted some peace and quiet. The earlier scene had really frightened him quite badly.

The capsules were sticky and grainy, which made them rather nauseating to eat. However he endured his disgust and directly swallowed them.

"Little Li, tell me, just what did you see in your hallucination that scared you so much?"

Li Huowang felt much more relieved after having taken the medications. He smiled and replied, "I didn't encounter anything. It's just that the guy over there was saying strange things. He was saying that his side is reality and this side was the hallucination. Ha... haha..."

As soon as he spoke these words, the surrounding air seemed to quieten, while the vibrant colors in his surroundings became dull and lifeless. Yang Na, his mother, the attending physician, and the nurse all seemed petrified in place.

This sudden change in the surroundings made Li Huowang's body tremble, and his breathing became more and more rapid.

He helplessly looked out the window; the sunny sky had suddenly turned pitch-black. The originally safe and peaceful environment had all but vanished.

Fear seemed to tangibly envelop him, and panic suppressed all his other emotions. Li Huowang instinctively pushed Yang Na toward his mother's embrace.

But upon contact with his mother, her body exploded as if it was made of bubbles. His mother, the reliable shelter that could protect him from any and all hardship, had also vanished.

"Huowang."

Li Huowang's body trembled violently. He turned around only to blankly watch as Yang Na vanished completely right in front of him. His only love had also completely vanished.

At this point, all that Li Huowang cherished in his heart had vanished completely. Only desperation, oppression and agony remained.

The clean walls of the hospital ward around him receded rapidly, almost like a waning tide. He was once again back inside a dusky cavern located within the mountains.

Li Huowang's eyes were flushed red, and his veins were bulging on his forehead. He wanted to scream and pour out all the despair and suffering in his heart.

However, he couldn't do it—he couldn't do it because a Black Taisui had tightly blocked his throat. He couldn't make any sound, and he had to endure through all the despair and suffering.

Dan Yangzi had both his hands behind his back, as he watched his disciple who was trembling and retching while kneeling on the ground. Then, he shook his head and walked toward the door of the Preparation Room.

"Tsk, you say you don't suffer from hysteria even when you're acting like this? Your illness is the most severe in the whole Preparation Room. Do you think that I just randomly picked you to be a guiding drug ingredient? Alright, since the hysteria is now gone, you can work well. Remember, Zephyr Temple doesn't tolerate any slackers. Come and find me for your medication on the first day of every month."

After that, the other disciples followed Dan Yangzi and left. Apart from Li Huowang who was on the ground, only the other guiding drug ingredients remained in the Preparation Room.

The guiding drug ingredients, with their strange appearances, some due to congenital and some due to acquired diseases, looked at each other, unsure of what they should do.

Finally, after half an incense stick worth of time had passed, the Black Taisui in Li Huowang's mouth finally slid down his throat, giving way to his heart-wrenching cries that echoed within the cave.

"Why!! Why did I end up in this cursed place?! Why won't this disease leave me alone!"

Chapter 10 - Steamed Buns

Li Huowang curled up like a fetus, remaining motionless in a corner of the Preparation Room.

The other guiding drug ingredients didn't dare to disturb him and just quietly went about their own tasks.

Unknowingly, night had descended upon them, and all the oil lamps on the wall were extinguished.

Darkness enveloped Li Huowang like a blanket as he lay there like a corpse, unresponsive to the changes in the outside world.

At around 1 a.m., a faint candlelight flickered to life at the entrance, illuminating the nearby shelves and dissipating the darkness around Li Huowang's body.

It was Bai Lingmiao who was timidly carrying a bundle of dried grass toward Li Huowang, before carefully placing it over his body.

Then, she pulled out a steamed bun made with mixed grains from her pocket, and placed it near his mouth.

Seeing Li Huowang continue to remain motionless, she pursed her lips and gently nudged him. "Senior, please have a bite. You haven't eaten anything all day."

Li Huowang's eyes were open. He hadn't blinked for those last few hours, and was just numbly staring at the icy-cold ground. He showed no signs of movement despite Bai Lingmiao approaching him.

Bai Lingmiao wanted to leave, but after a moment of hesitation, she took out a jade pendant from her pocket and placed it in the palm of Li Huowang's hand.

"Senior, this is yours. Please take it back."

This time, Li Huowang finally reacted. He looked at the object in his hand and realized that it was the circular jade pendant he had stolen from the previous Xuan Yang.

Li Huowang remembered that he had given this item to Yang Na in order for her to exchange it for money. Just the thought of Yang Na made his broken heart start to ache once again.

"How did this end up with you?" asked Li Huowang.

"It was Senior Li who passed it to me. Even though I said that I didn't want it, you insisted on giving it to me."

Under the dim candlelight, Li Huowang slowly sat up and carefully examined the jade pendant with cloud patterns on it.

Before this moment, he had never felt that everything here to be so real. However, in this reality, there was only genuine despair and agony.

If he was given the choice, he would prefer to remain trapped in that beautiful illusion forever.

Seeing Li Huowang respond, Bai Lingmiao asked softly, "Senior Li, where were you captured by Master? I'm from the Liang Kingdom. Where are you from?"

Li Huowang was stumped, but then he shook his head dispiritedly, "I don't know."

He truly didn't know. He did have memories of the past. But after today's events, Li Huowang himself was unable to determine just how many of those memories were true and how many were false.

Even here, he was nothing more than a lunatic that could not distinguish fact from fiction.

As he was shaking his head, Li Huowang suddenly felt that there was something abnormal on his head. He reached out to find a blob of congealed blood in his hair; he had been injured before.

Bai Lingmiao saw Li Huowang touching his own hair and explained, "That was done by Senior Wang."

Li Huowang knew Senior Wang; he was that hare-lipped fatty who had wanted to harm Bai Lingmiao

“After he did that, you killed him with one kick.”

Li Huowang’s mind played the scene in the hallucination, where he kicked Old Liu and sent him flying.

Remembering the scene, he lowered his head, silently chuckling; he was insane enough.

Then, Li Huowang reached into his pocket and fished out the golden anklet with a red thread tied around it, and placed it before Bai Lingmiao. “This is yours, take it back.”

Bai Lingmiao looked at her own anklet and pushed it back with both her hands, “Senior Li, you were right. There’s no use for this here, so you can take it.”

Li Huowang looked blankly at this golden anklet. This object had no use to him now, since everything he cared for had all but vanished.

“Senior Li, I would like to use this item as compensation, and ask for a favor.”

Bai Lingmiao’s words caused Li Huowang to look at her.

“If you are ever able to get out of here alive, can you pass on a message to my parents? They stay at the foot of the Cow-heart Mountain in Liang Kingdom. Tell them that their daughter isn’t filial, and cannot fulfill her filial duty of supporting them through their old age.” Bai Lingmiao’s voice choked with sadness.

“Senior Li, I really don’t wish to trouble you, but I have no other choice. I will probably be taken to the Pill Room soon.”

Li Huowang’s face had been filled with despair and numbness. But upon hearing those words, his silent eyes gleamed with some light as he came to a decision.

He looked at the dried grass on his body, then at the steamed bun beside him. He gently placed the red-threaded golden anklet back into his pocket once again.

“I’ll keep my word. Since I’ve taken something of yours, then I will help you.”

Bai Lingmiao’s sorrowful eyes lit up, but quickly dimmed again. “Senior Li, that won’t do. It will get you into trouble as well.”

“Keke... Do you think I’m afraid of that now?” Li Huowang had completely thrown caution to the wind. Since everything he cared about had vanished, what else was there to be fearful of?

“Alright, Senior Li, you’re so mighty!” A male voice suddenly rang out from outside the Preparation Room, causing the two inside to jump in fright.

When candlelight illuminated that person, they saw a mischievous monkey-like face with thin lips. His face had patches of yellow and white, and it seemed that he had some form of skin disease like vitiligo.

This person took out two mixed-grain steamed buns, and placed them beside Li Huowang to get on his good side.

“Hehehe, Senior Li, have these steamed buns. When I was having dinner, I remembered that Senior Li hadn’t eaten anything yet, so I specially saved these two for you. You may not recognise Junior, since I was born and raised without a formal name. You can call me Puppy. Hehe, yesterday, I gifted 17 copper coins to you.”

Puppy anxiously fidgeted, while the will to flatter was plastered on his face. He evidently wanted to rely on Li Huowang, and did not want to simply be a guiding drug ingredient. From the looks of it, there were clever people everywhere.

Li Huowang did not respond. He just picked up the three slightly hardened steamed buns and wolfed them down; after all, he hadn’t eaten for a whole day.

Due to eating too quickly, he slightly choked on them. Immediately, the smart and sensible Puppy ran out to bring him a cup of water.

With the help of the icy underground water, Li Huowang stuffed the three mixed-grain steamed buns into his stomach.

He struggled to stand up, shaking constantly due to his legs that were numb from lying on the ground for too long.

Bai Lingmiao reached out to help support him, but Li Huowang pushed her away.

His eyes were fixed on the dark exit of the Preparation Room, before he walked out unsteadily.

His enemy was no longer that sudden illness. Now, his enemy was that Baldy, Daoist Dan Yangzi, someone who used humans to refine pills.

When Dan Yangzi's ugly and nauseatingly large face appeared in his mind, Li Huowang's eyes were filled with a strong hostility, and he grinded his teeth with a grating sound.

Just moments ago he was wallowing in despair, but now he was now filled with motivation. The only thing he had to do now was to find a way to kill him!

Chapter 11 - Xuan Yuan

“The Three Emperor-Officials emerged from the chaos. Under the order of the Jade Emperor, they took on the role of the Heavenly Official, Earthly Official, and Water Official. The Heavenly Official ruled over all that is under the heavens, the major gods, the great sages, and the emperors. The Earthly Official ruled over the gods of the Five Great Mountains, the minor gods, the sages, and the enlightened ones. The Water Official ruled over the gods of the rivers, the streams, the lakes, and the Immortals. The Three Emperor-Officials ruled over their respective realms with integrity, and the beings in the realms prospered. They took pity on the mortal realm and did many things to fulfill the needs of the mortals. With their supreme intellect and compassion, they lovingly blessed and protected the mortal realm.”

The sound of chanting echoed within the large cave. Including Li Huowang, the six disciples within Zephyr Temple were sitting on a mat listening to the morning lecture of their Master.

There were no books to read from. Li Huowang was chanting as accurately as he could along with the other disciples.

Li Huowang was in the midst of chanting the scripture when he raised his head. He focused his gaze on Dan Yangzi who was sitting at the front. Hostility flashed within Li Huowang’s eyes, but he quickly suppressed it.

Facing the ugly bastard, Li Huowang wanted nothing more than to flay him and consume the flesh of this Master of his. But he endured. He knew that he was too weak right now.

His enemy was too strong, so he could not act rashly. All he could do was to endure and wait for an opportunity to arise.

While it might be really difficult, and Dan Yangzi might end up discovering his plans and kill him, Li Huowang didn't care about any of that anymore.

When he saw Dan Yangzi shift his body sideways, Li Huowang quickly averted his gaze upward, past the three incense sticks, and focused on the three deity statues placed within an alcove in the wall of the cave. The three deities were three separate gods wearing yellow Daoist robes, their eyes neither sad nor joyful, their gaze forever gazing toward the insignificant mortals. The three deities did not have an air of holiness. In fact, they looked quite normal. If it wasn't for the Daoist robes they were wearing, the three of them would look just like normal humans.

While Li Huowang did not recognize the three deities, he secretly etched their faces into his memories.

The sound of chanting gradually died down. After they chanted the final verse, one of the assistants pounded a red drum thrice, signaling the end of morning lectures.

All of the disciples stood up along with Dan Yangzi. They held their left thumb with their right hand and covered it with their remaining four fingers. Then, they raised both hands above their head and paid respect to the three deities.

After paying their respects, Dan Yangzi turned around slowly and looked at his disciples.

When he saw Li Huowang standing at the very end in his Daoist robes, he nodded his head with satisfaction.

"Xuan Yuan, Xuan Yang has just become an official disciple, so he would naturally know very little about what we do. As his senior brother, you should guide him."

"Yes, Master." A chubby man with a round face bowed toward Dan Yangzi.

"Alright. It is now past 7 am. I have nothing else to tell you. Go and have your meals." Dan Yangzi said as he walked into an adjacent cave with his hands behind his back.

A man wearing a Huyuan hat followed Dan Yangzi, albeit with a gloomy face.

“That was Senior Brother Zheng Kun. Ever since Zheng Kan and Zheng Zhen betrayed Master, he is the only direct disciple left. Please be more respectful to him if you meet him again. His temper is even worse than Master’s,” Xuan Yuan came up to Li Huowang and explained to him about the other disciple.

Li Huowang nodded. “Thank you for explaining all that to me, Senior Brother Xuan Yuan. Does Zheng Kun also know how to use special powers, just like Master?”

While there were still many things that Li Huowang didn’t know, it was clear that Dan Yangzi could manipulate objects through the air and possessed superstrength, easily capable of picking up a stone urn weighing hundreds of kilograms.

But the thing that Li Huowang was the most wary of was the most frightening thing that his Master could do—his ability to have complete knowledge on anything happening within the cave, including the fact that he said that his Master was insignificant or knowing that Li Huowang had not agreed to run away with the other disciples.

If Li Huowang wanted to fight against Dan Yangzi, he needed to know the details of this ability.

“Zheng Kun is a direct disciple, so how would I know what he has learned from Master?” said Xuan Yuan.

Li Huowang realized that there was a hint of jealousy within this statement.

The strength of a single person is way too weak here. Should I find an ally within the Zephyr Temple?

Just as Li Huowang had this thought, he immediately erased it out of his mind.

Those who would have tried to stand against Master were most likely already eaten by the Black Taisui. The remaining people were either those loyal to Master, or those who were extremely afraid of him.

“Let’s go. We can talk as we walk.” Xuan Yuan turned around and guided Li Huowang toward the kitchen. “I know what you are thinking. Don’t try to learn Master’s method of becoming an Immortal. In terms of seniority, you can be considered the youngest. All you need to do is follow Master’s orders. When the time comes, you will naturally learn about it.”

They had just arrived in the cave that was used for eating meals. The rest of the disciples were already here and eating congee.

Li Huowang recognized three of them. One of them was Xuan Yin, while the other two were Chang Ming and Chang Ren. The two of them had a sword strapped to their backs. In addition to Xuan Yuan and himself, all five official disciples of Zephyr Temple were gathered here.

“One of the rules of Zephyr Temple is to not speak while it is time to eat or time to sleep. I will teach you the rest after our meal.” Xuan Yuan had just finished informing Li Huowang about the rule before he too sat down to eat the congee.

Li Huowang followed suit and drank a mouthful from the black ceramic bowl. All the while, he was silently observing the other official disciples.

Their faces were distinct but average, neither ugly nor nice. Li Huowang felt something was off, wearing the same Daoist robe as them and sitting at the same place.

When Xuan Yang was blowing his nose, his snot falling onto the ground, the other two official disciples frowned. Li Huowang finally realized what was weird, it was their aura!

Some of them had a dignified aura like that of a scholar, while some of them were rough, almost as if they were born to do menial labor.

Where did Dan Yangzi find the other four official disciples? Did he promote them from among the guiding drug ingredients?

After their meal, the other disciples set down their empty bowls and left without even looking at their new junior brother.

Meanwhile, Xuan Yuan guided Li Huowang throughout the Zephyr Temple and explained about the different sectors to him. From Xuan Yuan's explanation, he understood that the other four official disciples were in charge of different parts of the Zephyr Temple.

Some of them were in charge of the assistants, while others were in charge of collecting and buying raw materials from the outside. Some of them were even given the responsibility to feed the Black Taisui. Those with more experience even had to do multiple jobs. However, it hasn't always been so busy for them. Ever since the last batch of escapees were killed, they had to take care of all the extra responsibilities.

Li Huowang was responsible for the same task as the previous Xuan Yang, which was to manage the Preparation Room. The main goal of the official disciples was to assist their Master in becoming an Immortal.

After talking for an entire day, Li Huowang gained a much deeper understanding of the Zephyr Temple through Xuan Yuan's explanation. He did his best to remember as much as he could. This was no longer a hallucination that he could just leave freely. All of this information might come in handy when killing Dan Yangzi. His relationship with Xuan Yuan was also slightly closer than before. Both of them were walking back.

"Junior brother Xuan Yang, there is no need to be so nervous. You probably won't have much to do, since Master does not refine pills every day."

"Huh? Could you explain that to me in more detail?"

"Refining pills highly depends on the weather and the time.

Some of the ingredients to refine pills can only achieve their strongest effect at certain times. For example, today is not a good day to refine pills, but the day after tomorrow, between 11 pm-1 am, would be an excellent time to do so.”

Translator's Thoughts

Dan Yangzi, once again drawn by @格子的乱
七八糟 on Douyin!

Chapter 12 - Pill Recipe

“I don’t think you would understand it even if I were to explain it to you. After all, it’s quite a complicated process. Just learn it from Master.”

“Oh, I see.” Li Huowang brushed him off.

The pills that Dan Yangzi gave him were clearly effective, meaning that the laws of this world were different from those of his original world.

If he wanted to fight against Dan Yangzi, there was much more he needed to learn about this world.

Is he something akin to a cultivator that I’ve always read about in novels? That can’t be right. Since when do cultivators use live humans to refine pills? And since when do they enslave people in order to achieve Immortality? Based on what I know, if he was a cultivator, then shouldn’t I be given a special technique to cultivate? I don’t have any of that!

As Li Huowang’s understanding of this world deepened, he felt that the laws of this world were bizarre. Dan Yangzi did not even give him the impression of a cultivator.

“Oh before I forget, this is my advice, as a Senior Brother to a Junior Brother. Try your best to ensure that everything is done even before Master asks for it. Take what happened yesterday for example. Because of your hysteria flaring up again, we missed the right timing to refine the pill. So, if you send in the guiding drug ingredient to the Pill Room before 11 pm on the day after tomorrow, you will technically be making up for your mistake from the last time. It should make Master happy. While our Master may be moody, as long as you keep him happy, he will give you benefits.”

“Yesterday’s pill ingredient?” Li Huowang was shocked.

“Yeah, did you forget? What exactly did Master ask you to retrieve?”

Bai Lingmiao!

Li Huowang’s pupils shrank. So many things had happened so quickly that he had nearly forgotten about this! To think that it was not yet over.

If he did not come up with a plan before the day after tomorrow, then the girl suffering from albinism would suffer the same fate as the rest of the guiding drug ingredients and be turned into minced meat!

Li Huowang stumbled back to his room and laid on the stone bed, the red-threaded golden anklet still pressed against his chest. It felt as if it was red hot, spurring Li Huowang to quickly think of a way to save her.

But Dan Yangzi was too strong, and Li Huowang had no allies within Zephyr Temple!

Those who had tried to flee blindly had already perished, so Li Huowang couldn’t really copy their plan.

As he tossed and turned, the night passed.

Before the morning classes, Li Huowang wore his robes and started walking out of his cave.

He wanted to go to the Pill Room and see if there was anything that could help him.

Just as he was walking out of the cave with an oil lamp, a sharp face appeared within the darkness. Li Huowang was startled but he soon composed himself. The one who had appeared in front of him was Puppy!

“Hehe, Senior Brother Li, sorry for scaring you. I didn’t see you in the Preparation Room the entire day and got worried. That’s why I came to find you.”

“Is disciple Bai alright?” Li Huowang took a step back.

“Yeah, she’s fine. You’ve already chosen her to be the one to take care of the Preparation Room, so who would go against your order? Ever since you were made in charge of the place, no one else has been taken away. You are amazing!”

Upon hearing Puppy spout such words, Li Huowang felt irritated. He took the oil lamp and walked past Puppy.

When he arrived at the Pill Room, he saw that some of the assistants had already started cleaning the furnace and floor using rags.

One of them was even standing within the stone urn with a pig bristle brush, using it to scrape off the leftover meat within it.

As Dan Yangzi’s official disciple, no one would question him for entering the Pill Room.

Li Huowang walked around and observed the room.

The entire room was quite simple. With the exception of the black furnace that took up one-third of the room, there was only the stone urn and the pestle beside it. There was nothing else in the room, not even books on refining pills or any tapestries. The room looked quite empty and spacious.

“What are you looking at?” A familiar yet chilly voice sounded from his back.

Li Huowang turned and bowed. “Master.”

“I’m asking you, what were you looking at?”

Li Huowang thought quickly and came up with an excuse. “I was in awe of your amazing pill-refining skills, so I came here to see if I could someday attain the same level of mastery as Master.”

Dan Yangzi was satisfied with Li Huowang’s attitude.

Looks like the brat has finally become obedient.

He held both hands behind his back and circled the black furnace. “It’s good to be curious and to want to improve yourself. However, it’s not that I don’t want to teach you, but the Dao of External Pills is not simple. Ordinary pills are easy to refine, but it is extremely difficult to become an Immortal through the Dao of Pills. You need to be able to refine both external and internal pills. I've almost succeeded in doing so, but I've had to expend a lot of effort in the process."

Dan Yangzi was ecstatic as he pictured himself living life as an Immortal.

"Master, are you almost at the realm of an Immortal?"

Li Huowang had just said this when Dan Yangzi reeled back from his imagination and composed himself. "The path to becoming an Immortal is a long road, but I know that I can be one. Do you know why?"

"No."

Dan Yangzi's eyes shone with excitement. "That's because this method to become an Immortal was recorded within a sacred text written by Taishang Laojun himself! He personally gave it to me! Who else could possibly become an Immortal? If he says that I can become one, then I will definitely become one!"

Taishang Laojun? Who is he? Is he one of the three deities?

Li Huowang didn't recognize that name.

While he wasn't sure about the details, Li Huowang still had to put up a facade. "Master is right! You will definitely become an Immortal and live as long as the heavens and earth!"

Dan Yangzi loved listening to praises like these, causing a grin to appear on his grotesque face.

"Hahaha! Good! If you wish to learn how to refine pills, then let me teach you a simple one. This is the recipe to refine a Blood Nourishing Pill. Remember it: 600g of Crimson Pills, 500g of nut grass, 110g of actinolite..."

This was an unexpected harvest that Li Huowang could not afford to miss out on!

He quickly tried finding some paper and ink to write down the recipe, but the entire room was devoid of any such items. He did not find anything despite doing his best to scan the entire room.

Out of desperation, he picked up a piece of charcoal from under the furnace and started writing down the recipe on his robes.

“...start the furnace at 1:45am, put in the ingredients; look closely, breathe quietly, and pay attention. Refine it slowly using a weak flame. Open the furnace at 6 am. Use this recipe to slowly practice on your own. I’m looking forward to seeing how talented you are.”

Li Huowang threw the charcoal away once he was done writing it down. He showed his Master the recipe he had written. “Master, please take a look and see if I’ve missed anything?”

But when Dan Yangzi saw the recipe written in charcoal, his initially joyous face became sour.

He raised his right leg and kicked Li Huowang, causing him to crash into the furnace and fall heavily onto the ground.

Then, Dan Yangzi muttered angrily under his breath and left.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang just sat still on the ground.

Once he suppressed his anger, Li Huowang felt that something was wrong. He hadn’t done anything wrong, so why did his Master act like that?

He looked at the recipe that he had written. While it was not written in the best of handwriting, it was still legible.

At that moment, a sudden thought popped up into his head. He looked around the empty room that was devoid of anything with words. He then thought about how none of them had any books for morning classes.

Piecing together all the information, he came to a realization.

Could he be illiterate?

Chapter 13 - Refining Pills

Li Huowang stared at the furnace in front of him carefully. Beside it there were three incense sticks that were used to record the passage of time.

Without a clock, Li Huowang could only use such crude methods to calculate time.

When the final incense stick had burnt out, he immediately doused the flame and opened the furnace. A strange herbal smell wafted out from the inside.

Li Huowang was ecstatic! He did it! The pills were rolling around in a sieve. After using the sieve to separate out the waste product, he placed the irregularly-sized black pills into a box to inspect them.

These were the Blood Nourishing Pills that Dan Yangzi had taught him the recipe of. It was a simple pill used to coagulate blood.

One must not consume more than 50g of it or they risk having all of the blood within their body coagulating.

It sounded like a dangerous drug, in that it would do more harm than good, but due to how simple refining it was, Dan Yangzi chose this recipe to let Li Huowang practice refining pills.

After counting it, Li Huowang had refined 13 large pills and 26 smaller pills.

But this was not all he had obtained through this practice. He had also gained some basic knowledge about pill refinement by practicing how to refine the Blood Nourishing Pills.

Refining pills was much harder than he had expected. Not only did he have to take into account the age of the herbs, he also had to know the direction in which the herb had grown.

If a single mistake was made, the success rate of the refining process and the potency of the pills would plummet drastically. The pile of black waste beside the furnace was evidence of this.

After inspecting the pills, he took out a piece of bamboo and kept the pills inside. He took a deep breath, wore his robes, and walked out.

It's almost going to be 11 pm soon.

When Li Huowang opened the door to the Preparation Room, everyone inside immediately stood up and stared at him fearfully.

In their eyes, Li Huowang was the embodiment of the grim reaper.

Li Huowang gazed at them with a complicated expression on his face. Under everyone's gazes, he stood in front of Bai Lingmiao.

The girl trembled, her white hair shivering ever so slightly. She tried her best not to cry but in the end she couldn't stop tears from pouring out of her eyes.

Li Huowang held her hand and slowly walked toward the Pill Room.

Walking in the damp cave, Bai Lingmiao entrusted her final words to Li Huowang.

Li Huowang merely listened and stayed quiet throughout their walk.

However, when they arrived at Li Huowang's room instead of the Pill Room, he brought her in and whispered, "Take off your pants."

Bai Lingmiao's eyes were frozen. She was quite scared by his words and actions.

45 minutes before 11 pm.

Li Huowang escorted Bai Lingmiao into the Pill Room. Dan Yangzi had arrived at roughly the same time as him.

When he saw that Li Huowang had already brought the guiding drug ingredient here without his orders, a satisfied smile appeared on his face. He was growing happier and happier with Li Huowang.

“Hoho, good disciple. Come here.” With a single wave of his arm, Bai Lingmiao flew through the air and was caught by Dan Yangzi. He used a single hand to grab her neck and then threw her into the stone urn.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang’s heart was racing as he clenched his fist.

Dan Yangzi had just picked up the heavy pestle when he stopped. “Huh? Her period came now of all times? The composition of the drug has changed.” Dan Yangzi frowned as he saw the blood stain of Bai Lingmiao’s pants.

Li Huowang sighed in relief. His plan had worked!

Once he had understood a little bit more about refining pills, he had come up with this plan.

In this world, the composition of a drug varied wildly even for rocks and herbs based on how they grew. So he assumed that a guiding drug ingredient, especially a human, could naturally be altered.

With his limited knowledge, he somewhat remembered that a girl’s menstruation blood was considered impure in Daoism. That was why he came up with a plan to fake Bai Lingmiao’s period by smearing his own blood on her pants.

Also, he had to ensure that Dan Yangzi noticed this personally so that the suspicion wouldn’t be cast on him.

Thankfully everything went according to plan. It seemed that Bai Lingmiao was saved.

Dan Yangzi waved his arm and Bai Lingmiao flew out from the stone urn, landing heavily on the floor.

She hit the floor hard. She covered her bruised knees and could barely stand. Since Li Huowang couldn’t help her in front of Dan Yangzi, he stood still on the side.

“Xuan Yang, take this guiding drug ingredient back.”

Li Huowang silently sighed in relief upon hearing it. “Yes, Master.”

When Bai Lingmiao walked back to Li Huowang’s side, he saw that her head had split open and blood was flowing down her cheek.

However, despite her injuries, she was very grateful toward Li Huowang. Compared to death, such injuries were nothing.

Thankfully we were able to fool him this time around. It should take quite some time for Bai Lingmiao to get chosen again.

Li Huowang escorted her toward the exit.

“Xuan Yang, since she cannot be used, go and bring another. I remember that there is another one with albinism. Quickly go and return; we can’t miss the time.”

Li Huowang’s body shook slightly out of surprise but he immediately turned and bowed. “Yes, Master.”

Li Huowang didn’t remember anything about when he returned to the Preparation Room. He just approached a boy with albinism and dragged him out of the room.

The boy screamed and cried, even begging for mercy while kneeling down on the floor. But there was nothing that Li Huowang could do. He could only drag him back to the Pill Room.

After delivering the boy, Li Huowang was just about to leave when Dan Yangzi called for him. “Didn’t you want to learn the Dao of Pills? Come and take a look. It’s not everyday that you would have the chance to observe the refinement of such a complex and rare pill.”

Li Huowang stayed and observed the entire refinement process, adding in the secondary ingredients and fanning the flames as requested by Dan Yangzi.

When the flames finally went out, the furnace was opened. Seven black pills appeared in front of Dan Yangzi, organized neatly in a row.

“Not bad. Looks like you have some talent in pill refinement. The other disciples are not as inquisitive as you are. Come, this is your reward.” Dan Yangzi took one of the pills and handed it to Li Huowang.

“Thank you for the pill, Master!” Li Huowang bowed toward Dan Yangzi as he extended both his hands to receive the pill.

Chapter 14 - Ally

He had just swallowed the pill when Li Huowang felt a burning sensation from his dantian. The burning sensation intensified with each moment to the point that he almost puked.

“Xuan Yang, go back and rest. This pill is quite potent. It will take some time for you to absorb it completely.”

“Yes, Master.”

He staggered back to his room and hunched a bit. However, nothing but water came out; the pill had already been absorbed by him.

Soon, the sound of bones cracking filled the air as his joints dislocated and his body contorted.

The burning sensation coming from his dantian spread out toward his limbs. His entire body was burning, almost as if he was wearing a sweater in summer.

The heat from his body was making him nauseous. He laid down on his bed and saw the ceiling shifting in his vision. He remembered how everyone in the Preparation Room looked at him fearfully, as well as how he had now become an accomplice of Dan Yangzi. He had done what he despised toward the other weak disciples.

While Dan Yangzi was illiterate, he was no fool. In front of absolute power, nothing else mattered.

I'm going to kill him! I swear that I'm going to kill him!

Li Huowang howled within his heart.

In his delirious state, he grabbed the edge of the stone bed with his right hand. When he swore that he would kill Dan Yangzi, his right arm's veins bulged.

Crack!

The stone bed cracked under his strong grip.

Li Huowang was surprised at the sound. He looked at his hand and then at the piece of rock that he broke. He quickly realized that this was the power of the pill!

It wasn't just his strength. There were other changes to his body as well. He felt that his eyes could see even further than before. It was as if the pill had removed all the impurities within his body.

But when he remembered how he had obtained this strength, he felt sick.

"Senior Li, are you alright?" Bai Lingmiao carefully peeked in from the entrance.

Li Huowang stared at her with a conflicted look on his face, not knowing what he should tell her.

Bai Lingmiao stepped into the room. "Senior Li, please don't be mad at yourself. All of us know that you could have done nothing more in those circumstances. If Master... If Master calls for me again, you don't have to bother finding someone else... after all, everyone here will eventually die."

Li Huowang didn't want to hear this right now. He stared at her bleeding head and took out one of the pills he had refined before. "Eat this, it will stop your bleeding."

Bai Lingmiao stared at the pills in Li Huowang's hand and shook her head in fear. "No, I cannot eat pills. I must never eat pills!"

Li Huowang chuckled and threw the pill onto the ground. "Yeah, there's a certain amount of poison in it. In the end, it's not some miraculous medicine."

Bai Lingmiao bit her lips and asked Li Huowang a question she had on her mind. "Senior Li, do you intend to fight back against Master?"

Li Huowang's face paled and he immediately ran toward the door and closed it.

“It’s alright. Master can’t hear us now. Master utilizes the Wandering Gods to help him patrol the caves. Everytime there is a procession, the Wandering Gods must return to the procession.”

“What are the Wandering Gods?” Li Huowang asked. This was the first time he had heard of them.

“They are as their name implies. You can’t see or touch them. I’ve heard my grandpa say that only those proficient in Daoism can command them.”

“Oh?” Li Huowang immediately remembered this information. It was quite crucial for him.

“When is the procession?”

Bai Lingmiao was puzzled by his question. “On the first and fifteenth day of each month in the lunar calendar. Senior Li, didn’t you know this? Did your parents not take you to the procession?”

Li Huowang shook his head. In his memories, or at least in what he thought were his real memories, he lived in the city and didn’t attend any such event, since they were only seen in the countryside.

“Senior Li, let’s get back to business. Do you wish to fight against Master?”

His face froze a moment before he said. “Yes! I want to tear him apart!”

Bai Lingmiao nodded and sighed. “Then let me help you. I might be able to do something!”

Li Huowang stared at her. He saw conviction within her eyes. It seemed that Bai Lingmiao was not as weak as he had thought.

“Alright, you will be the first one to help me,” Li Huowang agreed. He really needed an ally.

Li Huowang thought about their circumstances and told her, “We still don’t have enough people. Go to the Preparation Room and see if any of them are unsatisfied with Master.”

Maybe some of the people in the cave might not want to fight against Dan Yangzi, but those in the Preparation Room were already doomed to begin with. Some of them wouldn't want to go down without a fight.

Bai Lingmiao nodded and left.

Li Huowang sat down and took out the jade pendant. He thought about the disciples who failed to escape.

Xuan Yang... Was this how you gathered everyone too? I hope I don't suffer the same fate as you.

After taking some time to gather his thoughts, he started to focus his attention on Zephyr Temple. He started to properly take care of the Preparation Room, regardless of whether he had to deal with humans or items.

Dan Yangzi naturally rewarded such a hardworking disciple. He taught him various basic pill recipes, treating Li Huowang the same as a direct disciple.

The basic pills were not very potent, allowing Li Huowang to only treat some minor injuries and flu.

Additionally, the pills contained a certain amount of poison. If he ate too many of them, it would cause some side effects instead. He wasn't sure if this applied to all the pills in this world or only Dan Yangzi's pills.

There was one more rule. He couldn't consume two different types of pills at the same time as it could lead to unforeseen circumstances.

Rather than becoming something akin to a folk doctor, it was more apt to say that he was someone who could use poison.

But the pills were not really that important. What was more important was gaining Dan Yangzi's trust and building a strong relationship with Dan Yangzi.

There were even times when Li Huowang was told to help Dan Yangzi refine pills.

Then, Dan Yangzi took in one of the young assistants as an official disciple, and so Li Huowang was no longer the most junior disciple. He had become a part of Zephyr Temple.

After spending some time with his Master, Li Huowang confirmed that Dan Yangzi was indeed illiterate. He even hated those who could read and write.

He would never allow his disciples to be better than him, which was also why he sought after disciples that were illiterate.

After confirming this, Li Huowang was suspicious of what Dan Yangzi told him previously.

Master had said that the method to becoming an Immortal was given to him by Taishang Laojun himself, recorded within a sacred text. He even said that if Taishang Laojun told him that he could become an Immortal, then he would become an Immortal. Since he and the other disciples are illiterate, how could they have known the contents of the sacred text? Who told them about it?

Chapter 15 - Zheng Kun

“My home is located in the Lower Liang city; enter the city through the east gate, and go to the 22nd house on Prosperity Street. I’ve hidden two pieces of gold within the third pickle jar under my bed, between the layers of pickles. Spend wisely. It should be enough to ensure that our child grows into a proper adult. Please pass my message to my wife.”

A middle-aged man, his face riddled with pimples, held back his fear as he told Li Huowang his final words.

The man was the guiding drug ingredient needed in the Pill Room today. Li Huowang could do nothing but listen to his final words and remember them.

Staring at the back of the trembling man walking into the Pill Room, Li Huowang turned around and left. He was feeling agitated.

This was the eighth person that he had taken to the Pill Room. As time went on, there were fewer and fewer people within the Preparation Room. But what made him feel awful was the fact that he had started to grow accustomed to it.

But he didn’t want to grow familiar with this feeling! He refused to become Dan Yangzi’s accomplice.

He needed to find a way out of this, and away from this terrible place. But it wasn’t easy. With only himself and the malformed people from the Preparation Room, it was impossible to fight against the seemingly invincible Dan Yangzi.

There were two key pieces of information he had ascertained. One was that on the first and the fifteenth day of each lunar month, without the Wandering Gods, Dan Yangzi could not spy on them. The other was that Dan Yangzi could not read, meaning that there was someone else in Zephyr Temple translating the sacred texts for him.

Should I slip into Dan Yangzi's place and see if I can kill that person? Then I would become the only literate disciple here. He would have to use me to translate the sacred text! Then it should be very easy for me to kill Dan Yangzi.

This idea had just come into his mind when he dismissed it.

Firstly, while he knew where Dan Yangzi lived, he didn't know if there were any traps laid out there. Secondly, he didn't know just how strong the person reading the sacred text for Dan Yangzi was. If he just entered blindly, he might end up dying instantly.

Should I poison his ingredients? No, he was the one who taught me how to refine pills. He would easily identify the poisoned ingredients and kill me.

Li Huowang kept thinking as he walked back, trying to find a way to kill Dan Yangzi.

Just then, a moody man wearing Daoist robes and Huyuan hat came in from the opposite direction. Li Huowang recognized him as the direct disciple Zheng Kun.

Li Huowang knew next to nothing about him. He barely even saw him with the exception of meal times. Even then he had only seen him a few times.

Compared to the official disciples like Li Huowang, Zheng Kun didn't have to bother with the daily maintenance of Zephyr Temple. As to what he was normally doing, Li Huowang had no idea.

Both of them were about to pass by each other when Zheng Kun leaned slightly toward Li Huowang, causing their shoulders to hit each other. Li Huowang felt like he had hit a piece of metal.

At that moment, Zheng Kun suddenly stood firm. He turned around with a malicious grin. "Xuan Yang, thanks to you, our Master is in a much happier mood."

Li Huowang stared at him for just a second before he ignored him and was just about to leave when a strong force pulled him backward.

Li Huowang stumbled a bit, almost falling backward. However, he managed to stand his ground “What’s wrong, Junior Xuan Yang? Are my words nothing to you?” Zheng Kun folded his arms and walked toward Li Huowang.

“Senior brother Zheng Kun, I still need to go and tidy up the Preparation Room under Master’s orders.” Li Huowang replied calmly.

“Don’t try to throw Master’s name around. I was the one who escaped with Master back in the days when we were being chased by others who wanted to kill us. You weren’t even there! Let me tell you, Xuan Yang: Just do your job and don’t try to stand out. Stop trying to overstep your boundaries.” Zheng Kun’s tone was serious.

Li Huowang was not angered by his words. He just stared at Zheng Kun with a stunned expression and thought about something. He remembered Xuan Yuan telling him that Zheng Kun was temperamental, but to think that he was this hot-headed.

“What’s wrong? Why don’t you try saying something? Huh? Speak up!”

Li Huowang seemed to have realized something as his previously stunned face became animated with a hint of exaggeration. His tone was mocking Zheng Kun.

“It was Master’s own decision to pay more attention to me. Even if Master were to tell me the method to become an Immortal, there would be nothing you can do about it!”

Now it was Zheng Kun’s turn to be stunned. He had never thought that Li Huowang would say something like that.

When he came to his senses, Zheng Kun formed a seal with his fingers and thrust it into Li Huowang’s left chest while tearing through his Daoist robes!

“You?! You think you deserve it? If Master did not tell me the method to become an Immortal, then he would never tell you either! Who do you think you are, you garbage of a drug ingredient!”

The intense pain almost caused Li Huowang to faint, but he had managed to guess correctly. He smiled even though he was in pain.

“Haha, looks like Master has not even told you. Maybe you are untalented! Senior brother Zheng Kun, the path to Immortality heavily relies on your own talent. Since you are untalented, it's natural that Master would not waste his time on you!”

Li Huowang's words had touched upon Zheng Kun's reverse scale. He thrust his fingers three more times into Li Huowang's body. “You damned garbage of a drug ingredient! You seek death!”

Under the intense pain, Li Huowang's laughter grew louder. “HAHAHA! Come and kill me! Let's see Master's face when he knows that one of his disciples is killing another one of his disciples!”

Seeing Li Huowang's grin and maniacal laughter, Zheng Kun kicked Li Huowang to the ground. “Damned hysteric!”

Li Huowang laid on the ground motionlessly for at least half a day. After some time, a pair of large hands gently picked him up.

“Sigh... Junior brother Xuan Yang, why didn't you listen to me? Didn't I tell you to show respect to Zheng Kun? Why did you have to taunt him?”

It was Xuan Yuan, the kind disciple. Because of his peaceful temperament, he was the only person Li Huowang would talk to regularly.

Li Huowang pressed against his injury and endured the pain as he said. “Why? Would he have killed me? Master's Wandering Gods are still around. If any more disciples were to die here, Zephyr Temple might not be able to maintain itself.”

“Wandering Gods?” Xuan Yuan was perplexed.

He doesn't know?

Li Huowang suddenly came to a realization.

Wait, don't tell me no one else knew how Master had complete control of all information within the Zephyr Temple?

Thinking about how the other two direct disciples had died, it seemed that not everyone knew about this.

“Nothing, I’m just saying that he wouldn’t dare to kill me.”

“You can’t say that. He’s a direct disciple, and you are only an official disciple. He might not be able to kill you, but he could make your life harder.”

“Haha! So what? I’ve been used to such a hard life ever since I was born.”

As he spoke to Xuan Yuan, Li Huowang chuckled at what he had discovered through Zheng Kun—that even the direct disciples didn’t have the qualifications to learn the method of becoming an Immortal.

Dan Yangzi didn’t even trust Zheng Kun.

But most importantly, when he told Zheng Kun that Master would rather teach the method of becoming an Immortal to him rather than Zheng Kun, he saw a strong sense of dissatisfaction from Zheng Kun’s eyes.

It seemed that Dan Yangzi’s disciples were not as loyal as he had thought.

He had a feeling that he might be able to exploit this...

Chapter 16 - Head

Zheng Kun's attacks had broken two of Li Huowang's ribs, and he had also received numerous bruises on his body. Fortunately, all of these were injuries that could be recovered from by just consuming some pills.

Rather than being worried about his injuries, he was much more concerned about his plan.

On the first day of the next month, Li Huowang went and found Zheng Kun. He once again taunted Zheng Kun, inciting the latter to hit him again. During the conflict, he let the information about the Wandering Gods slip out, making it look like he had an accidental slip of the tongue.

When he saw Zheng Kun's expression change ever so slightly, Li Huowang knew that he had succeeded. Zheng Kun must've wanted to learn how to become an Immortal.

He hadn't known for sure how Zheng Kun would react to this information. However, he felt that there wasn't much to lose, and based on Zheng Kun's reaction, it seemed that he had succeeded.

Soon, it was once again the fifteenth day of the month. Today was a good day to refine pills, meaning that Dan Yangzi would stay in the Pill Room for the entire afternoon. It was also a day when the Wandering Gods were absent.

Though the Zephyr Temple was fairly large, Li Huowang had long since identified Zheng Kun's usual route. At this moment, Zheng Kun was silently meditating in one of the halls.

Did I guess it wrongly? Don't tell me that he doesn't actually want to become an Immortal?

Another fifteen days passed, yet Zheng Kun did not act this time either.

Finally, when Li Huowang had thought that all hope was lost, on the fifteenth day of the second month, Zheng Kun was nowhere to be found in his usual location at the Zheng Yi Hall. It looked like Zheng Kun had finally decided to act.

While Dan Yangzi was refining pills, Li Huowang followed his plan and rushed toward Dan Yangzi's room.

Just as he had almost reached the cave that was Dan Yangzi's room, Li Huowang suddenly stopped. He saw Zheng Kun standing a distance away from the entrance to Dan Yangzi's room.

Judging by his behavior, it seemed that Zheng Kun had used someone to trigger whatever traps were present in Dan Yangzi's room while he himself kept watch. From the looks of it, he was more careful than Li Huowang had thought.

Finally, after an hour had passed, Li Huowang saw Xuan Yin sneaking out of Dan Yangzi's room.

Seeing that it was safe, Zheng Kun took out two pairs of black talismans. Both of them placed a talisman each on their knees and disappeared like the wind.

The entrance to Dan Yangzi's room had a door, and currently, it had been opened ever so slightly, luring whoever was curious enough into its trap.

Seeing that someone else had already gone in and come back out safely, Li Huowang knew that whatever traps there were inside the cave should have been disarmed. He silently walked toward the room.

This was his chance!

Dan Yangzi's room was quite spacious, but it was extremely messy. There was even the stench of dead rats hanging in the air.

Even though the place was vile, Li Huowang immediately saw something quite valuable within the room—a single stone slab wrapped in a net of bronze coins that was held together using black threads.

If his guess was correct, the stone slab should be the sacred text that Dan Yangzi had told him about. He carefully walked over to the stone slab and read its contents without disturbing the net of bronze coins around it.

While Zheng Kun wanted to secretly learn the method to become an Immortal, based on his surroundings, it seemed that he had failed to find anything.

Li Huowang read the sacred text carefully, but it was barely legible. The text reminded him of ancient Chinese hieroglyphics; however, it was more likely that the text was written in a language that was even more ancient than hieroglyphics.

While the characters of the Chinese language had seen a relatively lesser amount of changes over time compared to the other languages, these characters were still extremely difficult to decipher. The more he read, the more he felt that it was wrong.

Didn't Dan Yangzi say that one must cultivate both the Dao of Internal Pills and the Dao of External Pills in order to become an Immortal? However, this sacred text doesn't state this.

“Gandharva appears amongst every soul... and out of his own selfless accord... because he feels content, all of the souls will be content too...”

Wait a minute, this isn't a sacred text. It's just some random scripture!

“Hehe~” At that moment, a spine-chilling snicker sounded behind him.

He quickly turned around only to find nothing behind him.

Instead, he saw that there was a small hole within the cave. Within that hole was a tall green vase that was the size of his forearm.

Something isn't right.

Li Huowang slowly made his way back to the entrance of the cave, making sure that he retraced his steps exactly. Based on the current situation, it seemed that Zheng Kun had not removed all of the dangers.

“Don’t move.” A shrill girl’s voice resounded behind him.

Li Huowang slowly turned his head backward and saw something horrifying—there was a pale girl’s head placed on the mouth of the vase.

The girl didn’t seem to be alive. Her skin was as pale as a corpse, yet her cheeks were extremely red due to makeup.

There was a red dot on the girl’s forehead. Li Huowang stared at it and felt that all this was quite surreal.

He immediately knew who was the one who had been reading the sacred text for Dan Yangzi. Looks like it was... whatever that thing was.

“Are you with the guys from just now? You are in quite a lot of trouble hehe~ All I need to do is to ring the bell and my father will immediately come back.” Her braids were tied to several red threads, all of them attached to little bronze bells.

Li Huowang immediately realized the immense danger he was in! He quickly reorganized his thoughts and acted calmly. “Go ahead and call him then. Once he’s here, I will let him know that you’ve been cheating him.”

Seeing the head on the vase reveal an expression filled with nervousness, Li Huowang chuckled.

I was right! Looks like I’m not the only one who wants to lie to that illiterate Baldy.

Whatever this thing was, it was already doing something he planned to do!

No one in the Zephyr Temple was trustworthy! Each and every single one of them had their own schemes.

“You can’t blame me! The words were so complex and so I couldn’t read them! Father forced me to read them, so there is nothing I could have done!” The head on the vase cried.

Looking at how she was almost about to break down, Li Huowang amended his plan and came to a decision.

“Ok, then let's make a deal. I will leave this place right now, and you should act as if I was never even here. I will also act as if this place never existed. This way, everyone will be able to protect their lives.”

The head on the vase thought about it for a moment and agreed. “Ok, then go quickly. I will also act as if you were never here.”

Li Huowang slowly walked toward the entrance. “Since the sacred text is fake, did you also lie to him about using humans to refine pills?”

The head on the vase smiled. “Yes. Because I remember reading a recipe that used humans as ingredients for guiding drugs. So I lied and told him about the recipe as if that was what was written in the sacred text. Don't worry, the pills are not deadly. After all, I don't want my father to die. However, I'm afraid that once he knows that I am worthless, he will abandon me. Look, I don't even have any limbs—”

Just as she was chatting up a storm, Li Huowang suddenly raised his right arm and smashed the jade pendant at the vase.

The round jade pendant became a blur of white before hitting the vase hard, causing the vase to fall down on the floor and crack.

The vase broke into several pieces, allowing Li Huowang to see what was in the vase. A complete set of organs was tied together using black prayer beads, and covered in feces and urine.

“Aaaaaaaaaaaaaa! FATHER! It hurts! Father! It hurts so much...”
The cries of the girl slowly faded away.

Translator's Thoughts

The girl in the vase looks like. @格子的乱七八

糟

Chapter 17 - Found It!

“Who! Who did this?!” An incredibly furious howl spread across the entire cave system. The voice belonged to Dan Yangzi. This was the first time that he was angered to this extent.

Dan Yangzi hadn’t really been angry when some of the disciples tried to escape, nor was he angry when Li Huowang had demonstrated to him that he was literate. But this time, he was truly angry.

The atmosphere within the Zephyr Temple became oppressive—it was to the point that even the oil lamps on the walls were dimmer than usual.

Under Dan Yangzi’s command, everyone arrived within the large hall where the disciples had their morning classes.

The air was filled with a stench of blood—Dan Yangzi had already killed some of the people who had arrived earlier, their bodies strewn across the floor.

Killing people often helped Dan Yangzi calm down, but this time, this was nowhere near enough.

Splat!

Something fell onto the ground. At that moment, everyone saw that it was something akin to a head entangled with a mass of bloody organs.

It was the very same head that was placed above the vase that Li Huowang had broken. Now that she was truly dead, her cheeks had dulled in color; however, her eyes still revealed the fear she felt right before death.

“Who?! Who did this? Who entered my room without my permission while I was refining pills?!”

Dan Yangzi’s voice was low but deadly, like a lion ready to pounce. “You would better come clean! If you do, I will give you a swift death! If I have to find you myself, then I will make sure that you will be in so much pain that you will be begging for death!”

The entire cave fell silent, regardless of whether it was the guiding drug ingredients, the assistants, or official disciples. None of them moved.

“Still staying quiet? Fine! Then I will ask each and every one of you! Chang Ming, Chang Ren, what were you guys doing while I was refining pills?”

Chang Ming and Chang Ren were the disciples with a sword on their backs. “Master, both of us were following your orders and guarding the entrance to the Zephyr Temple. We never left our post!”

Dan Yangzi approached them and observed their expressions. Just when Chang Ming and Chang Ren were starting to have cold sweats, Dan Yangzi slowly turned toward the person beside them. “Xuan Yuan! Where were you?”

Meanwhile, Li Huowang, who was standing beside Xuan Yuan, knew that it would be his turn soon. While he was nervous, he had to calm down.

Stay focused! As long as he doesn't notice anything different about me, I win!

“Xuan Yang! Your turn! What were you doing after you sent the guiding drug ingredient to me?”

The moment he heard this, Li Huowang immediately gave him the answer that he had already prepared. “Master, I went back to the Preparation Room to prepare the ingredients we would need for the next pill that we will be refining!”

“Is that so?” Dan Yangzi slowly walked over, his bloody stench and oppressive aura causing Li Huowang's body to stiffen up to its limit.

No wonder the rest of the disciples were sweating so much.

Time passed by ever so slowly. Under the intense pressure, the beads of sweat on Li Huowang's forehead grew larger.

Suddenly, he felt the pressure weaken. Just as he thought that he had succeeded, Dan Yangzi's voice rang beside him. "Did you guys see Xuan Yang going into the Preparation Room?"

Li Huowang turned to see who he was addressing and saw that Dan Yangzi had already approached the guiding drug ingredients. He was asking them!

"Think properly before you speak. If any of you can help me find the culprit, then I will immediately send you back home, and even give you some money."

The moment he said this, several of the guiding drug ingredients were shocked. They wanted to go home, to leave this horrible place.

"Master, Senior Li was indeed with us." Feeling that the situation was about to go out of control, Bai Lingmiao immediately replied.

Dan Yangzi stared at her. "Oh? And what about the rest of you?"

At this point, Puppy was visibly excited with a conflicted look on his face. He clenched his teeth and stepped forward. "Master! Let me tell the truth! Xuan Yang had not come to the Preparation Room even once! The culprit must be him!"

The moment Puppy said that, Xuan Yin smirked, almost letting out a laugh. His face which had initially been pale with fear now looked much better after realizing that he would live today.

Meanwhile, Dan Yangzi turned and looked at Li Huowang before approaching Puppy. Suddenly, he slapped Puppy in the face. "Bullshit! Xuan Yang had personally brought a guiding drug ingredient to me! How could he bring the guiding drug ingredient if he never went to the Preparation Room? Are you trying to die?"

Puppy was visibly shaken as he fell on his knees, tears covering his entire face as he kowtowed. “No! I was wrong! I was tempted by my own greed and lied!”

Still expressionless, Dan Yangzi continued to stare at the horrorstruck Puppy. At that moment he suddenly turned around and looked at Xuan Yin. “Why were you smiling just now? Were you happy that Xuan Yang just got framed?”

The moment he said this, Xuan Yin wasn’t able to stop his body from shaking. The pressure coming from Dan Yangzi was immense.

As Dan Yangzi slowly walked toward him, Xuan Yin visibly grew more and more nervous, to the point that the people around him could tell that something was suspicious about him.

When Dan Yangzi was finally standing in front of him directly, Xuan Yin was no longer able to withstand it. He fell onto the ground as a yellowish liquid slowly spread out on the ground around him. “Master! I didn’t want to do it! It was Disciple Zheng Kun who forced me to do it!”

The moment Xuan Yin said that, Zheng Kun suddenly snarled, launching himself toward the exit of the cave system like a jaguar.

“To think that it was you!” Dan Yangzi huffed. At the same time, a clear ringing sound rang out as he swung his right hand. Then, a single bronze coin fell onto the ground, rolling and spinning like a top.

Zheng Kun was almost out of the cave system when Dan Yangzi raised his right foot and stomped the ground, his cloth shoes kicking up a pillar of dust.

Crack!

The bronze coin split into five fragments and blew apart. However, the coin was not the only thing that split apart; Zheng Kun himself had split apart as well.

All four of his limbs were torn apart, just like the coin.

However, even without his limbs, the bloody Zheng Kun was still alive. He crawled desperately toward the entrance just like a maggot.

“My dear disciple! You were the one who had followed me the longest! How could you?! I should’ve known that you were the only one who could have disarmed the restrictions that I had placed in my room!” Dan Yangzi stomped on Zheng Kun’s head, preventing him from crawling further.

“Master! I’m... I’m sorry. Please spare me! I don’t even have any limbs now! I’m now nothing but trash! Master, when the monks from the Righteous Monastery were chasing us, we were only able to escape thanks to the deaths of my two brothers! Master! Please reconsider!”

Dan Yangzi slowly increased the force in his leg, causing Zheng Kun’s suffocated face to be buried completely into the ground, silencing him.

“My dear disciple! Did you know that I knew exactly what you were thinking? You and your brothers were nothing but ingrates!” Dan Yangzi spat out those words and stomped down one last time!

At that moment, Zheng Kun’s head exploded under the force of this stomp. Blobs of blood and tissues flew around, with some of them even splattering onto Li Huowang’s face.

Chapter 18 - The Method To Become An Immortal?

Dan Yangzi had found the one who broke his vase, but he was not happy about it. He kicked away Zheng Kun's corpse with a complicated expression.

"I've been raising you like a godson! To think that you would betray me like this!"

The cave was completely silent with the exception of Dan Yangzi's rapid breathing.

This lasted for an entire ten minutes before Dan Yangzi pointed at Li Huowang among the crowd. "You, come forward and kowtow to the three deities."

Li Huowang was momentarily stunned by his words. Under everyone's gaze, he slowly knelt in front of the three deities and kowtowed.

When he was done, Li Huowang knew what was coming as he held the incense sticks.

"From now on, you will be my direct disciple!"

"Yes, Master." Li Huowang was ecstatic!

This moment has finally come! Don't you fucking worry, Baldy. I will definitely help you attain "immortality".

"Come with me. I need you to do something," Dan Yangzi said as he carefully picked up the remains of the head and her organs in his arms.

Li Huowang followed him, and soon he was back in Dan Yangzi's room.

The sound of ropes flying through the air echoed in Dan Yangzi's room as the black threads binding the stone tablet flew off and entered Dan Yangzi's sleeves like little black snakes. At that moment, the sacred text was displayed in its entirety in front of Li Huowang. "Can you read what is written on this?"

Li Huowang scrutinized the tablet and asked, "Master, didn't you say that in order to become an Immortal we need to be able to refine both internal and external pills? However, the method to refine the internal pills isn't here."

"What?!" Dan Yangzi's eyes flickered back and forth between him and the dead girl.

"I am telling the truth," Li Huowang said with conviction.

Li Huowang didn't know what kind of lies the girl in the vase had fed to Dan Yangzi. If he were to follow her original script, there was a high chance of failing, so he decided that it would be much easier to be honest and come up with something else.

Furthermore, it was not as if he was lying. It was the truth. The entire method to become an Immortal was a fake story that the girl in the vase had come up with.

Naturally, he would also come up with his own fake story and method as well.

Dan Yangzi was initially hesitant about believing Li Huowang completely. But the more he thought about it, the more untrustworthy the previous method seemed.

No wonder I haven't been able to become an Immortal even after such a long time. She always said that the words in the sacred text changed every day and were not possible to memorize.

"Ptui!" A vile green glob hit the girl's head as Dan Yangzi spit on her. He then turned and looked at Li Huowang. "So, what does it really say?!"

"This stone tablet records a technique to cultivate internal strength. It says here that during the time between the new year's eve and the new year, it is possible to utilize several external pills and this technique to capture a portion of the spiritual energy that the heavens release into the mortal realm. We can then absorb it and use it to become Immortals.” Li Huowang stared at the stone tablet and uttered each word with such confidence that it seemed like all his words were the truth.

“It seems that there are several kinds of pills. This one requires 120g of Cinnabar, 5g of White Strychnine, 60g of Asadin, and... a Wandering God? Master, what kind of ingredient is a Wandering God?”

Dan Yangzi did not reply immediately, instead observing Li Huowang for a while. “You! Even that little girl could trick me. Are you also trying to do the same?”

Li Huowang immediately replied. “Master, this is the method to become an Immortal! How could I trick you?! After all, I want to become an Immortal too!”

“Good!” Dan Yangzi clapped and laughed happily. “Then let’s become Immortals together, both master and disciple!”

Li Huowang was stunned for a moment, before continuing his facade, displaying an extremely excited expression. “Is that true? Master! Can I become an Immortal too?! Thank you, Master!”

Meanwhile, Dan Yangzi had been silently observing Li Huowang’s expression and only nodded after he was certain that there was nothing wrong with Li Huowang.

“Yes. Don’t worry about the pills. Now, tell me how to use the technique. When both of us have mastered it, we will proceed to refine the pills. There is still quite sometime before the new year.”

“Yes, Master!” Li Huowang then proceeded to teach him how to use the Internal and External Heavenly Circulation technique that he had come up with.

Li Huowang was in Dan Yangzi’s room for quite a long time. He only managed to get back to his room late at night.

Li Huowang happily walked down the tunnels with his lantern illuminating the path in front of him. He was satisfied with how things were going and how quickly he would be able to achieve his objective.

He was delighted with this opportunity after having waited for so long.

When he came to the Preparation Room, just as he had expected, the guiding drug ingredients inside still hadn't gone to sleep.

As he walked in, all of them surrounded him, their eyes filled with happiness and excitement. Everyone knew what today's developments meant for them and Li Huowang. Li Huowang had already told them about what might happen today beforehand.

"Don't worry and just wait for my good news. All of you will be able to go home soon."

As Li Huowang said this, everyone almost cried from happiness. They would finally be able to go home!

"Senior Li! I will treat you as my adoptive father! You are practically a living saint!" One of them who was affected by hand, foot, and mouth disease was kneeling on the ground and kowtowing to Li Huowang with gratitude.

Everyone else saw this and followed suit.

Li Huowang made some effort to calm them all down. "If it weren't for all of you this afternoon, then I would've been dead. Shouldn't I be the one kneeling in front of you now?"

All of them stood up, their faces lit up with their bright smiles.

Li Huowang stared at their happy faces, feeling something warm in his heart. In this bizarre world, these malformed people were more or less his comrades.

"Senior Li, how was my acting? That Baldy was so stupid that he fell for my act!" Puppy pounded his chest with pride.

"Not bad. If it weren't for you, Dan Yangzi might not have been fooled so easily."

While everyone was praising him and asking questions, a certain someone was worried about him.

“Senior Li, are you alright? Did he hurt you?” Bai Lingmiao came up to him, her eyes filled with worry.

Li Huowang suddenly remembered how Dan Yangzi wanted to become an Immortal with him. This would also mean that Dan Yangzi wanted Li Huowang to test the pills first.

I don't need to tell her this.

“He has to rely on me to translate the contents of the sacred text now. Don't worry, he will never harm me.”

After exchanging some pleasantries, Li Huowang became serious. “The first day of the month is almost over, and the Wandering Gods will soon return from their procession. I need your help. Did your grandfather tell you any other stories like these?”

He still hasn't figured out what kind of ingredients he should list to refine the fake pills.

Merely cinnabar or other minerals containing mercury would not be enough to satisfy him. Li Huowang needed ingredients that were extremely toxic or vile—the worst of their kind.

He still remembered just how strong Dan Yangzi was. He needed to make sure that Dan Yangzi would die this time.

Chapter 19 - Superstitious

Upon hearing Li Huowang's question, Bai Lingmiao's eyes widened. "Yes, there are quite a few more stories that my grandfather has told me. He told me not to run out of the village; otherwise, I would be captured. He told me that the people outside the village are ruthless and would strip me of my skin, forcing me to wear flayed dog skin instead. After that, they would then use us to perform on the street and fool people into thinking that the 'dogs' are smart and can listen to orders. He also told me that the children would never be able to grow after all that because the dog skin would be fused to their body."

Li Huowang shook his head. "No, I meant stories that are used to scare children, something akin to the Wandering Gods."

"Wandering Gods? Hmm..." Bai Lingmiao furrowed her brows as she tried to think back. "My grandfather would tell me random stories from time to time, mostly about giant man-eating insects living within the hills. He didn't really tell me any stories similar to that of the story of the Wandering Gods."

"Who told your grandfather about the story of the Wandering Gods?"

Bai Lingmiao's eyes shone with innocence as she replied, "It was his grandfather who told him. And, I will pass down the story to my grandchildren one day."

Li Huowang shook his head. From the looks of it, he might need to revise his plan a little.

"Senior Li, I know of a story." A frail teenager suddenly spoke up.

His joints were twisted abnormally, with one shoulder being higher than the other. He was propping himself up against the wall.

Even within the Preparation Room, he was one of the more “abnormal” ones.

“Senior Li, my surname is Zhao. I’m usually called Wu at home, but you can call me Zhao Wu.”

Li Huowang was desperate for ideas, so he couldn’t really care about who was talking. “Sure, tell me about your stories.”

Zhao Wu looked around and whispered to Li Huowang. “You wanted something vile and evil, correct? I’ve heard my elders tell stories of something known as Mountain Grandma”.

“Mountain Grandma? What do they look like?” Li Huowang tried to recall if he had ever seen pictures of anything like it, but nothing came to mind. In fact, he had never even heard of the term before.

“Shh! Senior Li, don’t be too loud about it. This thing is very dangerous. I’ve heard that the Mountain Grandma has very keen hearing. If you keep on talking about her, she will definitely come and find you.”

“Oh?” Li Huowang was intrigued.

“I’ve heard my uncle say this before: the Mountain Grandma would appear in different forms in front of different people. Some would see her as a monster with long ears, while others would see her as an older family member that was long dead. But in all of the stories, one thing remained constant. Those who stayed with the Mountain Grandma for a certain period of time would transform into one too!”

Li Huowang rubbed his chin, deep in thought. “What a weird world we live in. There are so many crazy things in this world. Alright, this should do. Anything else?”

“Yeah! There’s something called the Companion Fish. It’s also very vile.”

Li Huowang learned many weird names from Zhao Wu. He decided that most of them would be the ingredients of the fake pills that he would use to kill Dan Yangzi.

“Looks like you are quite knowledgeable. Thank you. I think all these will help me a lot,” said Li Huowang.

If Li Huowang were to only list out poisonous ingredients, Dan Yangzi might discover his plot. But if he were to add in some of these ingredients that he might not even know about, the plan would be much more likely to succeed.

He needed to use ingredients that even Dan Yangzi might not know. The more ingredients like that there were, the more likely he would think that the pills would turn him into an Immortal.

Hearing Li Huowang’s praises, Zhao Wu chuckled. “I’ve heard these from my uncle. He used to be a wanderer, so he traveled a lot and learned a lot about the world.”

“Alright. Thanks! It’s almost time now, so I need to go back. All of you just need to wait for my news.” Li Huowang took a deep breath and started walking back to his room.

He had just taken two steps when a giant blocked him. The man was at least 1.9m tall. ”I...I...I...”

Li Huowang recognized him. Everyone in the Preparation Room simply called him Simpleton. He was cross-eyed and drooling.

He wasn’t really a simpleton; it was just that he had difficulty processing information and had a slower response rate. “I... I know some too!”

Li Huowang sighed and patted his bald head before leaving. The next day arrived.

Li Huowang was called to Dan Yangzi’s room early in the morning. “I’ve more or less mastered the Internal and External Heavenly Circulation technique. Now tell me the ingredients used to refine the pills.”

“Yes, Master.” Li Huowang approached the stone tablet and once again began to inspect it. He tried to make his words as believable as possible. “Hmm... Take two hearts of the Mountain Grandma and extract their essence? Master, what is this?”

Meanwhile, Dan Yangzi was pacing about in his room, his face full of uncertainty. “Is that so? I need something this vile to become an Immortal?”

“Master, what is a Mountain Grandma?”

“Ignore it. Keep reading.”

“One Companion Fish. Take its gills and soak it in 100g of Asadin...”

Li Huowang combined his own knowledge and Zhao Wu’s knowledge to come up with an extremely believable pill recipe. It had taken him all night to consolidate all the information.

After Li Huowang read the ingredients for the fake pill out loud, Dan Yangzi was surprisingly excited and kept on mumbling.

When Dan Yangzi finally compiled and analyzed the ingredients in his mind, he felt very shocked.

“Yes... That’s right. Asadin is a cold ingredient by nature, and so it would require something with a hot property like a Companion Fish to balance it out. This is amazing! And to think that we would need to use the hearts of Mountain Grandmas to refine a pill. Why did I not think of it before? Since humans can be refined into pills, then naturally evil beings such as these should be able to be used to refine pills too!” Dan Yangzi started reasoning with himself as he tried to make sense of the ingredients.

Li Huowang realized that Dan Yangzi could be really smart at times, but downright stupid at other times. He never trusted anyone besides himself.

It all boiled down to superstitions. In a world without gods and demons, being superstitious would be seen as foolish, but even in a world filled with supernatural beings, being overly superstitious would still be foolish.

Just then, Dan Yangzi reached into his sleeves and pulled out a bronze handbell that had a dent. Li Huowang noticed that it was similar to the bells that were used to control zombies in the movies he had watched before.

Dan Yangzi shook the bell violently, and a screeching sound was heard.

The sound was so loud that it made Li Huowang feel like his head would split open from the pain. He barely had enough energy to close his ears and clench his teeth.

At the same time, he noticed that the bell had not only affected his hearing but also his sight.

Everything around him started to twist and turn, almost as if the entire world was being shaken.

What is this? What is Dan Yangzi doing? Did I make a mistake? Have I been found out?

Just as Li Huowang thought that he had failed, he saw the edges of everything around him start to twist and turn, before gathering in front of Dan Yangzi. The edges of the table, the edges of Dan Yangzi's sleeves, and even the edges of the sacred text were gathering in front of Dan Yangzi.

He couldn't really see what that item was, but he was certain that it was made from the edges of everything, and that it was alive.

For a moment, Li Huowang thought that he was seeing illusions and shook his head. But then that 'thing' split into two in front of Li Huowang's very own eyes.

Chapter 20 - Dan Yangzi

When he saw the two wriggling ‘things’ in front of Dan Yangzi, Li Huowang had a hunch.

Are these the creatures that will gather the ingredients for Dan Yangzi?

Just as he had this thought, Li Huowang saw Dan Yangzi lower his body and scoop up some dirt before shoving it into his mouth. Then, he started talking with the ‘things’. His voice was oddly different and sounded extremely unnatural, yet the creatures somehow understood him and quickly left after Dan Yangzi finished instructing them. When they departed, everything returned to normal.

“Don’t worry. Even if the ingredients on the sacred text are hard to get, I can still obtain them. It’s a good thing that I still have some people outside,” Dan Yangzi said happily.

“Yeah! Master is someone who will definitely become an Immortal. Nothing in this world is too hard for you! But Master, what were those things?”

“Hehe. It seems that you still have much to learn. Those are the Wandering Gods that the sacred text mentioned.”

Due to the dangerous situation Li Huowang was in for the past few months, he had never had the time to consider this, nor did he have time to contemplate the world he was in.

What is a Mountain Grandma? What are the Wandering Gods? None of this existed in his original world.

If it weren’t for the pork and lamb that he had eaten in this world, he might’ve thought that nothing in this world was ordinary.

“This is a good treasure. I had to use a lot of my power just to take it.” Dan Yangzi placed the bronze bell back inside his sleeves.

“Take?”

“Yeah, of course, I had to take it from someone else. Do you think anyone would give it to you for free? That’s what I should do if someone has something that I don’t! This was something that I learned when someone took my bun from me when I was five years old. When I was younger, I robbed people and took their money. Then I started stealing and taking techniques, treasures, and disciples. I’ve even taken the entire Zephyr Temple! Even the statues of the three deities have not condemned me!” Dan Yangzi said with satisfaction in his voice.

“You should listen well when adults talk. That is what it means to have manners. I’m only teaching you now because I treat you like my own family.”

“But Master, what if you can’t take something away from someone else?”

“If I can’t take it away? Then I would partner up with someone else to try and take it! You are literate, yet you don’t know how to use your brain? If you can’t take it even after joining forces with a partner, then poison them! If you can’t poison them, then frame them! Do every shady thing you can to get what you need!”

The few sentences Dan Yangzi had just uttered were enough to show Li Huowang just how he did things. He would do anything and everything he could, regardless of the method, to obtain what he wanted.

“Master, you are quite wise!”

“Yeah. So what if I can’t read? So what if I can’t understand many things? They told me that my ways were vile and evil. So I decided that I will become an Immortal! I will show them just who is stupid and vile!” Dan Yangzi’s last few words rang out as a shout, his ugly face filled with wrath.

Li Huowang didn’t know who Dan Yangzi was referring to, but it was clear that both of them had a deep grudge against each other.

Since then, Li Huowang spent most of his time with Dan Yangzi, including eating and sleeping. Both of them researched the method of becoming an Immortal.

During this period, Li Huowang perfected the recipe little by little, increasing the credibility of the sacred text.

The ingredients that Li Huowang had requested soon arrived.

One of those items was sticky and pale white in color, covered in soft black fur. The other was a clump of faintly glowing black boil.

Li Huowang was not only disgusted by the ingredients but also amazed by Dan Yangzi's power. To think that he could actually acquire them!

"Master, should we refine them now?" Li Huowang asked.

"No need, there's still a bit more time before the new year. Let's go have our New Year's Eve meal."

Dan Yangzi's words surprised Li Huowang.

New year's eve dinner? Was this a tradition?

Li Huowang quickly followed Dan Yangzi out of the Pill Room.

They soon arrived in the cave meant for eating meals. The other three disciples had already arrived. They were Chang Ming, Chang Ren, and Xuan Yuan.

When he saw the empty table, Dan Yangzi frowned. "Why did you not prepare the utensils for the dead disciples? Quickly prepare them and get ready to welcome them and celebrate the New Year."

Soon, every dead disciple had their own set of utensils, and the round table was filled with them.

Dan Yangzi smiled and nodded with approval. He sat on his chair while Li Huowang sat on his right side. The left side was left empty. That seat was meant for Zheng Kun.

"Plate the dumplings."

A steaming plate of dumplings was carried in by the assistants. The aroma was quite tantalizing as the assistants used metal spoons to carefully place the dumplings inside everyone's bowls, including those meant for the dead disciples.

"Hoho. It's going to be a New Year soon, so relax and eat," said Dan Yangzi.

Even though he said that, everyone, including Li Huowang, only ate after Dan Yangzi had taken the first bite.

Dan Yangzi picked up a white dumpling with his chopsticks and placed it in his mouth, chewing it with much delight. "Mmm~ The pork lard and chives blend together quite well! Hmm? What's this? A coin? Haha! This is a sign of good luck!"

Li Huowang stared at the dumplings for quite some time before digging in as well.

Dan Yangzi smiled when he saw Li Huowang eating the dumplings. "You guys are lucky to be able to eat such amazing dumplings. When I was your age, I didn't even know what dumplings looked like. I had only ever heard about how delicious they were. Then, on one of the New Year celebrations, I had the chance to smell a delicious aroma coming from one of the houses. On that day, I learned what dumplings looked like when I barged in there. I didn't even play with their beautiful daughter that day. I cut her down and directly started eating the dumplings that were on the stove. I remember eating at least half a kilogram of dumplings. Back then, they had the same stuffing as well—pork lard and chives."

The other disciples only smiled weakly, while Li Huowang stuffed his cheeks.

Dan Yangzi saw the tears on the corners of Li Huowang's eyes and sighed. He carefully took his own bowl and gave Li Huowang his own share of the dumplings. "Sigh. Looks like you have had a very tough life too. Eat slowly and don't choke on them."

The New Year's Eve dinner of five soon ended amidst the clanking sound of the bowls.

Just when Li Huowang thought they would begin refining the pills, he saw Dan Yangzi take out a stack of red envelopes from his sleeves and pass them to his disciples, including the dead ones.

“Come now. It’s almost the New Year. Place them beneath your pillows. When I was your age, I had no elders to give me my red envelopes.”

Dan Yangzi placed the final red envelope beside Zheng Kun’s bowl before smiling at Li Huowang. “You don’t need a red envelope. Come now, let’s become Immortals together and share the same longevity as the heavens and earth!”

Li Huowang smiled and laughed happily. “As you wish, Master!”

“Let’s head back to the Pill Room, start the furnace, and refine the pills! You will control the flames!”

“Yes, Master!”

Translator's Thoughts

This is a depiction of the Wandering Gods, composed of the edges of the world. @格子的乱七 八糟

Chapter 21 - Attaining Immortality

Before him were two fist-sized red pills with a metallic luster, two pills with a fleshy texture that seemed alive, and two decaying black pills with a pungent odor.

Li Huowang nodded in satisfaction; he had used everything he could think of when refining them. With so many ingredients, these pills were most definitely lethal and wouldn't leave behind any possibility of life.

A stick of incense was lit up beside him, representing the time remaining before the beginning of the new year. According to his fabricated cultivation technique, he had to start cultivating at the moment the new year started and absorb the spiritual energy that descended from the heavens.

Li Huowang sat down cross-legged and prepared himself, picking up the fist-sized red pill. He was about to die, yet he was unexpectedly calm.

Yes, he had not prepared any contingency plans.

Li Huowang understood that he would definitely have to consume these pills, otherwise Dan Yangzi would never consume them.

His amiable attitude during the New Year's Eve dinner was nothing but a facade. The matter of attaining Immortality together was just a way to use him as a test subject.

However Dan Yangzi would have never anticipated that Li Huowang wouldn't care about his own life at all.

Li Huowang had long since grown indifferent about his own life and death; in the first place, he never even belonged here.

His only reason for staying alive was to watch this disgusting bastard, Dan Yangzi, being lured into his own grave.

At this point, Dan Yangzi was seated opposite him, and he had also picked up a red pill.

Under both of their gazes, the incense stick gradually burned up.

Just as the incense stick was about to burn out, Li Huowang took a deep breath and stuffed the pill in his hand into his own mouth, and then swallowed it whole.

Meanwhile, Dan Yangzi, who had also been preparing to take the pill, paused and focused completely on observing Li Huowang's actions.

Li Huowang had an excited look on his face, not paying any attention to Dan Yangzi. He then swallowed the remaining two pills directly. Then, he closed his eyes and formed gestures with his hands before resting them on his knees.

Sweat slowly trickled down his cheeks as his body began to tremble, while an uncontrollable ecstasy gradually appeared on his face.

"There's so much innate spiritual energy! This... This... This is how it works, I understand! I'm really going to attain immortality~!"

A hint of anxiety appeared in Dan Yangzi's eyes, but he still didn't consume the pills immediately. It wasn't until he saw wisps of white smoke rising up from the top of Li Huowang's head that he hurriedly swallowed the three pills.

Then, the cross-legged Dan Yangzi closed his eyes and began to practice the Internal and External Heavenly Circulation technique.

At that moment, Li Huowang slowly opened his eyes to watch his Master, his smile wider than even before.

When he saw the white smoke rising from atop Dan Yangzi's head and dark substances crawling through his veins, Li Huowang relaxed from his cross-legged sitting posture. He clutched his stomach that was suffering from excruciating pain and began to howl maniacally with laughter.

“HAHAHA! Baldy! Baldy! You can’t attain Immortality! The only thing you will become is a ghost. Let’s meet again on the Bridge of Helplessness, hahaha!”

Dan Yangzi seemed to have heard him but showed no reaction. With his eyes closed tightly and his teeth clenched, he sat cross-legged on the spot, excitedly circulating the Internal and External Heavenly Circulation technique.

“You’re still cultivating? All of that was made up by me! I copied it all from Xianxia novels, hahaha! Ouch, my stomach hurts, hahaha...”

Li Huowang slowly crawled to Dan Yangzi’s side, laughing at his pale-white face. He raised his trembling right hand and slapped it onto Dan Yangzi’s face. “Hey, are you deaf? I’m talking to you.”

Another slap followed, but there was still no reaction from Dan Yangzi.

Trembling, Li Huowang took out a pill from his pocket and stuffed it into his own mouth. Immediately, his veins bulged, and his body became filled with strength.

“I told you to stop cultivating! Can’t you hear me?” Li Huowang punched Dan Yangzi’s face, deforming his mouth and nose.

At that moment, Dan Yangzi, whose mouth was now filled with blood, suddenly opened his eyes and glared vehemently at Li Huowang. Then, he flicked the sleeves of his Daoist robes, sending Li Huowang flying.

“Get lost! You demons won’t hinder me from becoming an Immortal! I’m about to attain Immortality! The ancestors are about to receive me!”

Li Huowang didn’t get up from the ground after he was thrown aside. He simply lay there and looked at Dan Yangzi, mumbling to himself, "He's gone mad. His obsession with becoming an Immortal has driven him completely crazy. Ah! My stomach really hurts."

Just like that, one person sat while the other person laid down, as some time passed. In the meantime, the pain in Li Huowang's abdomen became more and more intense, and his body instinctively curled up like a shrimp.

"Ouch, why is it so painful? When will this suffering end? Maybe I should have prepared a knife to slit my throat." Li Huowang writhed on the ground in pain.

Amidst the intense pain, Li Huowang's consciousness gradually blurred. In his confusion, he once again saw Yang Na's face. "Yang Na, are you here to receive me?"

Yang Na's face quickly melted before rearranging into the face of his attending physician. "Bed 14, impaired consciousness. Preliminary diagnosis—food poisoning! Quick, bring in the electric suction for a gastric lavage!"

Li Huowang slowly closed his eyes, and an extremely faint voice slipped out from his lips.

"Gastric lavage my ass ... Don't forget, we are in a psychiatric hospital. Where would you find a gastric lavage machine? Can't you guys at least make the hallucination be more logically consistent?"

After uttering this last sentence, Li Huowang lost consciousness.

He was very comfortable now, his stomach no longer hurting.

Amidst his daze, Li Huowang felt his body falling continuously without ever reaching the bottom.

"Huowang, you have to hang on. You promised me!" A hazy, yet urgent female voice rang beside his ear.

After some time, Li Huowang suddenly opened his eyes. He propped himself up with both his hands and began to vomit uncontrollably.

He expelled a mass of black liquid mixed with fragments of hair, flesh, and dumplings, as well as a few pieces of internal organs.

The pieces of flesh in the black liquid quivered a little before they stopped moving.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang was stunned by the sudden turn of events. He was still alive? How was that possible? If he was still alive, then Dan Yangzi—!

When this thought struck him, Li Huowang broke out in a cold sweat. He subconsciously turned around to look across, his mouth uncontrollably gaping open as wide as possible.

Damn, did he become some kind of a god... what?

Then, he saw his master's body had been completely deformed. His grotesque head had been split open, and three fleshy mouths were protruding from within. Inside each of the mouths were three or four smaller mouths with disgusting yellow teeth within. The mouths twisted around one another and opened wide toward the ceiling.

Besides his head, his body had also undergone some significant changes. Feathers were stuck to his flesh with an asphalt-like substance and protruded from his flesh forcefully like thorns.

What's this? Three flowers blooming, with feathers sprouting from the body during ascension to Immortality? Isn't this a sign of one becoming an Immortal?

Just as this thought passed through Li Huowang's mind, those three mouths opened as wide as possible, and then three different voices belonging to Dan Yangzi in his youth, in his middle age, and in his sunset years rang out. "So that's how it is, I understand! Hahaha!"

Bang!

There was an explosive sound, and Dan Yangzi's strange body immediately burst apart, flesh and blood scattering across the entire Pill Room.

Chapter 22 - Exit

In the Pill Refining Room of the Zephyr Temple, Li Huowang sat there, covered in Dan Yangzi's blood, too stunned to react.

Were those three pills so powerful? Did we make pills or explosives?

After a long while, he got up from the ground and touched his face. Then, he bent down and began to examine Dan Yangzi's scattered remains.

After some time, he was not able to see a single piece of moving flesh. Even Dan Yangzi's bronze bell had been dented. Li Huowang finally breathed a sigh of relief; Dan Yangzi had been well and truly killed by him.

But now that he's dead, what should I do next?

Li Huowang stood on the spot, unsure of what he should do next.

He had thought he would be very happy after he managed to avenge himself. But when this moment really arrived, he found himself at a loss.

All the planning these past few days had revolved around killing Dan Yangzi. However, he hadn't imagined that he himself would survive.

Now that Dan Yangzi was dead, Bai Lingmiao was safe. He had achieved everything that he had promised to do.

What should I do next?

Just as he was contemplating this issue, the door to the Pill Refining Room was suddenly opened. Chang Ming and Chang Ren stepped in warily, each holding a sword.

They looked around and did not see Dan Yangzi, then turned their vigilant gaze toward the blood-soaked Li Huowang. "Hey! Where are you from, demon? Speak, where's our Master?"

“Master? You’re currently stepping on him. Besides, I’m Xuan Yang, my two dear Seniors.”

This reply made Chang Ming and Chang Ren subconsciously look down and raise their feet to see internal organs scattered around them, causing their pupils to shrink intensely.

Li Huowang looked around, then picked up half of Dan Yangzi’s face. “Look, he really is dead.”

He died because of me.

Logically, he should have died a long time ago for killing people so indiscriminately, but that’s not why I killed him. I did it for personal revenge.

Just as Li Huowang was about to explain his reasons to the duo before him, Chang Ming and Chang Ren exchanged glances. Without a single word, they sheathed their swords and dashed out of the door.

“Hey, wait for me to finish explaining before you leave.” Li Huowang shouted, feeling exasperated.

When there was no response even after shouting at them for a while, Li Huowang smiled bitterly. He clutched his stomach, which was still aching ever so slightly, and walked toward the door.

“Baldy’s dead! He’s dead! Everyone can go out now! You can all go home!!” Li Huowang shook that dented bronze bell vigorously and shouted loudly.

It was the first day of the New Year. The piercing clanging sound from the bell did not attract any Wandering Gods, but did attract the young assistants and the guiding drug ingredients.

When they saw that half-face clutched in Li Huowang’s hand, they were overjoyed and kowtowed on the ground.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang slowly walked through the entire cave system. He wanted to bring this piece of news to everyone within the Zephyr Temple.

More and more people joined his ranks, shouting alongside him, “Baldy is dead! He is dead! We can go home!”

At this point, Li Huowang felt someone reach out and try to support him. He turned around to see that it was Bai Lingmiao who was shedding tears of joy.

Li Huowang smiled toward her, then happily displayed Dan Yangzi’s half-face. “Baldy is dead! You can all go home to celebrate the new year! You can all go home!”

“Hey! Senior Li! You can go home too! We can all go home!”

Li Huowang’s face froze for a moment, but then he continued to wave the bronze bell with all his strength and hollered with all his might, “Dan Yangzi is dead! Come out! You can all go home now!”

But not everyone in Zephyr Temple was elated by the news. Just as Li Huowang walked close to Dan Yangzi’s residence, he heard the clinging sound of metal from afar.

Li Huowang led the crowd over. Outside Dan Yangzi’s dirty residence, he saw Xuan Yuan standing in confrontation with Chang Ming and Chang Ren. Both sides had drawn their weapons, and the atmosphere was very tense.

Li Huowang saw the so-called sacred text that was circled in black lines and copper coins, and he naturally realized what they were fighting over.

“Junior Xuan Yang! Come quickly! Let’s join forces to kill these two accomplices of Dan Yangzi! Then we can share this sacred text that gives the method to attain Immortality!” Xuan Yuan urged Li Huowang. He no longer had an amicable look on his face.

Meanwhile, Chang Ming took a step forward and pointed his longsword directly at Li Huowang, who was standing at the entrance. “Get lost if you don’t want to die! Master taught you the path of pill refining! In this situation, do you think you would be able to handle both of us who are trained in the path of swordsmanship?”

Seeing the scene unfolding in front of him, Li Huowang sighed helplessly. “That is not some sacred text granting the secret of Immortality. There are only ancient scriptures written on there. Whatever I said earlier was fabricated by me to deceive Baldy. Don’t believe Baldy’s nonsense; he was full of lies, pretending as if Taishang Laojun personally gave that sacred text to him. Given his personality, it’s likely that he stole or looted it from someone. Seniors, let’s go.”

However, Chang Ming and Chang Ren just held black talismans between their fingers and swiped them against their blades. An eerie wind suddenly started blowing through the room.

“Junior Xuan Yang, if you don’t wish to get involved, then cut your nonsense and get lost,” Chang Ming and Chang Ren raised their swords and said in unison.

At that moment, Li Huowang felt Bai Lingmiao timidly tug at his Daoist robes.

“Then, Seniors, you guys can continue. We’ll meet again if fate allows.” Li Huowang put his hands together and bid farewell to both parties before bringing everyone else toward the entrance of Zephyr Temple.

The moment Li Huowang closed the gate, rumbling sounds rang out from within.

Within the black passageways of the cave system, a group of people were excitedly and emotionally returning home. Each of them held an oil-lamp with trembling hands.

The tunnel was quite unfamiliar and rugged, and some parts even required ropes to climb. Li Huowang did not recall ever being here before.

Even so, he clearly knew that this was the Zephyr Temple’s exit; he could see the hands of the people around him trembling more and more violently.

After walking for a period of about two incense sticks, they could see a vague light in the distance. When the people saw that light, their pace became even more disorderly, and some of them even started sprinting.

As they ran, the light in the distance became larger and larger until it filled everyone's vision.

After exiting the tunnel, almost everyone squinted and shielded their eyes. After having lived in the cave system for so long, the outside world was simply too bright for them.

They were finally able to see the scenery outside the Zephyr Temple once their eyes gradually adapted to the brightness.

The distant skies had flowing clouds, while the faraway mountains had green forests. Everything appeared pure and beautiful, almost as though they were viewing an ink painting.

Right at that moment, the first rays of the New Year's morning sunlight peeked through, shining upon their faces.

Li Huowang squinted at the sunrise and mumbled to himself, "Did I spend a whole night with Baldy in the Pill Refining Room? Even the sun is out now. The weather is pretty good today."

Suddenly, someone beside him moved. It was a child with tears streaming down his face. He single-mindedly dashed toward the small road leading toward the forests.

This started a chain reaction as more and more people ran toward that direction. They wanted to get as far away from this terrible place as possible.

In just a while, there were only seven or eight people from the Preparation Room left, all of them looking toward Li Huowang.

"Senior Li, we should leave as well." Bai Lingmiao was smiling very happily, with tear stains still on her face.

"Hold on for a moment." Li Huowang said before pulling out some paper notes from his pockets and passing them to Bai Lingmiao. "These are the last words and the addresses of the guiding drug ingredients who had to die. When you guys go out, find some messengers along the way and pass them along.”

For a moment, Bai Lingmiao was at a loss as she held onto those paper notes, frozen on the spot.

Then, Li Huowang once again smiled toward the remaining people before turning around with the oil lamp in his hand, and walking back into the darkness of the Zephyr Temple, all alone.

Chapter 23 - Home

“Senior Li!” Bai Lingmiao’s frantic cry made Li Huowang turn around. He was holding a lantern in the darkness while looking toward the others standing in the sunlight.

He once again waved them off. “Go on. All of you can go back home now.”

“Senior Li, come together with us. Staying together on the way back will be safer too. Or did you forget something inside?” Zhao Wu said while lying on Simpleton’s back. His expression was rather nervous; it was as though he could sense that something was amiss.

“Keke... Go together? To where?” Li Huowang said as he turned around before once again heading toward the darkness.

“Let’s go back home together to celebrate the New Year. Senior Li, where is your home?”

Li Huowang just chuckled soundlessly in the darkness before carrying the lantern and walking back to where they came from. “Home? I don’t have one now. I have not been able to return to my home since a long time ago!”

Then, Li Huowang silently walked back into the darkness. Zephyr Temple was currently very peaceful, and only the sound of his footsteps was accompanying him.

Amidst this peaceful environment, Li Huowang suddenly began to hum a song, his footsteps becoming lighter, as he swung the lantern from side to side rhythmically.

As he continued humming, Li Huowang returned to his residence. He then closed the door and placed down the lantern on the table. Not even bothering to wipe off the blood that had splattered on his face, he slowly lay down on the stone bed before closing his eyes.

"It's the first day of the year. I haven't eaten that disgusting Black Taisui this month. I should be able to see Yang Na again soon, right?" Li Huowang's lips curled slightly upward at the thought.

He silently waited for his childhood sweetheart to bring him back to the world that he belonged to.

Having not slept for an entire night, Li Huowang's consciousness soon began to fade gradually. However, at that moment, the door suddenly opened just before he could slip into the beautiful dreamland.

Li Huowang rubbed his eyes and sat up only to see Puppy, Zhao Wu, and the others standing at the door.

Bai Lingmiao stood there uneasily, her gaze darting around for a while before it finally settled down.

"Senior Li, if you can't go back to your home, then come to mine. My house is very spacious, and the room in the East wing is empty."

Li Huowang looked at the kind girl before him before shaking his head gently. "This place is comfortable too; I have grown quite used to it."

Only a raving madman would choose to stay in such a dark and ominous place. Bai Lingmiao's lips quivered slightly as she found Li Huowang's words to be quite unbelievable.

"I once had a home and a family, but..." Li Huowang looked up toward the pitch-black roof. His expression was complex, as though he was recalling something.

Puppy thought for a while, then shot a few glances at the others and whispered, "Since Senior Li wants to stay here, should we just leave?"

"Shut up!"

Bai Lingmiao's sudden outburst caused Puppy to jump in fright. This was different from the submissive young lady that he knew.

Meanwhile, Bai Lingmiao stepped up in a hurry and stubbornly said, “Do you think that your current actions would make your family happy? If your family knew you were like this now, what would they think?”

Li Huowang smiled bitterly before his expression turned extremely agonized as he said, “How would I know what they would think? I don’t even know if they truly exist! I might just be a madman who is all alone. Everything around me could be completely dreamt up by me.”

Bai Lingmiao reached out with her almost-transparent hands and grabbed onto Li Huowang’s hand. “Senior Li, you are not alone—you still have us.”

Li Huowang just blankly stared at the girl before him, looking at her determined and delicate face. At that moment, he felt that his understanding of this girl was very shallow.

Why is she so kind to me?

Suddenly, his surroundings began to change again. The cave system around him started to switch back to white hospital walls.

At the same time, Bai Lingmiao’s features melted and reformed into Yang Na’s face. Her tearful face was filled with worry.

“Nana!” Li Huowang dashed across the room, hugging her tightly with an extremely pained expression.

“Huowang, you cannot give up on yourself. You must live on, no matter what you encounter. Alright? You must persevere, no matter what you encounter. Never ever give up.” Yang Na’s voice quivered.

Soon, that face morphed into that of his mother. “Son, you cannot die. If you end up dying, how will your old man and I survive!”

After this, that face rapidly morphed into various people that Li Huowang recognized, all of them encouraging him.

Suddenly, everything around him froze. Then, the bright hospital ward quickly became dim.

Li Huowang slowly released the person he was embracing, only to find that he had actually been embracing Bai Lingmiao.

While the girl in his arms was slightly embarrassed, she didn't evade his gaze. "Senior Li, let's go. I'm uncomfortable with staying here for much longer."

Then, she pulled out those paper notes from the pouch at her waist and said, "Senior Li, there's no use passing these on to me. After all, we are all illiterate."

"Right, Senior Li, only you are capable of handling this." At that moment, the others standing at the door chimed in.

"I, I, I can re-" Simpleton stuttered as he tried to speak.

However, before he could finish what he was saying, Zhao Wu covered his mouth. "Even if you can read, you would better pretend that you can't!"

Meanwhile, Li Huowang silently looked at the paper notes containing the last words left behind by those people with an inscrutable expression.

Bai Lingmiao then used both her hands to push those paper notes toward him. "Senior Li, you were the one who personally promised them. A true man doesn't go back on his words."

The reality and the hallucination constantly alternated within his brain. Finally, Li Huowang reached out to retrieve those notes. "Let's go."

Li Huowang had decided that no matter where he was, he would do his best to live well, not just for himself, but also for those family members who may or may not even exist.

Upon hearing those words, everyone broke out into relieved smiles.

While they did not know what Li Huowang was thinking, it was fine as long as he did not choose to stay in this cursed place.

The group then flocked around Li Huowang and walked out of the dusky room together. They were about to start heading toward the entrance when Li Huowang suddenly called out for everyone to stop.

“Hold on. Since we’ve decided to leave this place, we have to plunder it a little. Simpleton, carry Zhao Wu with you and lead the others to the kitchen. Take the food supplies that we can carry while traveling. We won’t last if we don’t have anything to eat.”

Li Huowang then brought Bai Lingmiao to the Pill Refining Room to take some of the pills that he could recognize. Li Huowang had practiced the Dao of Pills for some time now and could be considered half a doctor with these items. He did not know how long they would have to travel before they could reach their homes, so it was better to be well prepared.

However, he only took the pills that he recognized. He did not even dare to touch the ones that he didn’t recognize and were refined by Dan Yangzi, much less take them with him.

When they regrouped with the others in Zheng Yi Hall, Li Huowang said, “Hold on, there’s one more thing I have to take with me.”

Li Huowang then carried the lamp in his hand and carefully made his way toward the cave that held the Black Taisui.

Translator's Thoughts

Bai Lingmiao looks like. @格子的乱七八糟

Chapter 24 - Plunder

Since he planned to go with Bai Lingmiao and the others, Li Huowang had to suppress his hallucinations. Otherwise, he would forever be stuck alternating between reality and hallucination, and would not be able to do anything productive.

The Black Taisui reared by Dan Yangzi was the key to suppressing his hallucinations.

The group came before the cavern and stopped. They could see the Black Taisui climb out from the dark cauldron. This was the first time they saw the true appearance of a Black Taisui.

It was a large, slimy, and sticky black mass. At first glance, it seemed like there was hair covering its entire body. However, upon closer inspection, it was revealed that they were actually slender tentacles, or filaments that had yet to mature.

Its entire body was like a giant maggot that expanded and shrank freely.

At the same time, there were several openings along its swollen body that released a nauseating stench whenever the creature quivered.

This scene made everyone feel weak in their knees; in fact, they were so shocked that they almost turned around and fled.

However, Li Huowang could astutely sense that something was amiss. This Black Taisui was significantly smaller, and the black liquid was constantly leaking out from beneath it.

What's going on? Could its life be interlinked with Dan Yangzi's?

Li Huowang felt his heart sink.

With that in mind, he quickly dashed out. When he returned, he was holding parts of Dan Yangzi's remains.

Li Huowang then dashed to the Black Taisui's side and knelt down on one knee. He then laboriously collected the squirming rotten flesh into his embrace and pushed Dan Yangzi's remains in toward the gaps on the Black Taisui's body.

However, once he stuffed the remains in, even more black liquid seeped out from the Black Taisui's body, and its body shrank even further.

Li Huowang's face was filled with anxiety; it was as though he was not holding a wriggling black creature, but his own sick child.

Unsettled, he grabbed the sides of the Black Taisui and gently shook it. "Hey, hey! Don't scare me like this. What am I going to do if you end up dying?"

However, the Black Taisui showed no response—there were no signs of any movement from its body.

As it turned smaller, Li Huowang decided to be ruthless—he opened his mouth and began to forcefully bite down on its body.

Li Huowang's sudden actions dumbfounded Bai Lingmiao and the rest. They could only stand on the spot and watch the bloodied Senior Li carry the quivering creature, tearing into it with big bites.

From their perspective, Li Huowang was behaving more like a monster than the Black Taisui.

Puppy moved to Zhao Wu's side and whispered, "Should we go off on our own? If we go with him, I'm afraid he is going to eat me up while I sleep."

Fear crept into their eyes as they continued to watch him.

Meanwhile, the shrunken Black Taisui's flesh had visibly tightened when Li Huowang started to bite it. This made Li Huowang start to feel like the item he was gnawing at was a tire.

But he couldn't care about such things anymore and continued to devour it in big mouthfuls. However, no matter how much he ate, he could not catch up to the rate at which it was dissolving into black liquid. Not long after, there was only a layer of black skin left in his lap.

“Senior Li, have you eaten your fill? Can we leave now?”

Puppy asked warily.

Li Huowang tossed the sticky and smelly layer of skin onto the ground with regret. He did not know how long its effect would last this time before his next hallucination. He could only hope that he would find another Black Taisui or some other way to suppress his hallucinations.

“I’ll change my clothes first,” said Li Huowang.

The remaining items were practically worthless. There was no point in gathering the “cultivation technique manuals” since Dan Yangzi could not read.

Li Huowang took off his sticky Daoist robes and changed into a brand-new green set, immediately feeling refreshed.

After he finished changing, he led the group toward the entrance while explaining the rationale behind his actions.

When Li Huowang explained that he had merely been trying to use the flesh of the Black Taisui to control his hallucinations, they could finally put their minds at ease.

“Ah, I see. I had just assumed that Senior Li was hungry.”

Puppy cracked a joke to lighten the atmosphere.

There was a new fork in the passageway in front of them, with one of the paths leading to Dan Yangzi’s residence.

Li Huowang stopped, feeling curious.

Should we go in and check the aftermath of the battle between our three Seniors?

While he did not want to get involved in their feud, he did not want to see a new Dan Yangzi being born either.

“Let’s go and take a look.” Li Huowang led his group toward the direction of Dan Yangzi’s room.

When they reached outside Dan Yangzi’s residence, Li Huowang found that the door that he had closed previously had not been opened. This showed that nobody had left Dan Yangzi’s room.

“Seniors, are you guys finished? We’re leaving.” Li Huowang called out.

After waiting for a while without any response, he pushed open the door. A pungent stench of blood welcomed them, while a palm dripping fresh blood appeared before them.

Everyone looked upward, only to see an even more gruesome scene. Xuan Yuan was dead, killed in a terrible fashion. His body was almost cleaved in half by a sword.

Meanwhile, Chang Ren was also dead, stabbed in the back by someone else. Xuan Yuan was more of a scholar than a warrior, so this could have only been done by his brother, Chang Ming.

And the one who survived till the end, Chang Ming, was not in good shape either. His body had been pierced through by the black lines and copper coins hanging around the sacred text, pinning him to the wall; he seemed to have triggered one of Dan Yangzi’s traps.

Chang Ming was not yet dead. His eyes were filled with desire continued to stare resolutely at that so-called sacred text containing the method to attain Immortality.

“Cough cough~”

Upon seeing Li Huowang walk in, Chang Ming who was pinned to the wall seemed to want to say something. However, the copper coins embedded in his neck had completely severed his trachea, making him unable to speak.

Li Huowang walked up to him and smiled before bending down to pick up his sword.

This was a longsword that measured 1.2 meters long. The blade reflected the cool light from the oil lamp, making it seem very sharp.

Li Huowang exerted some of his strength to brandish it for a few strokes and then said to Chang Ming, “It’s a good sword. Senior, it seems like you won’t be able to use this sword for now, so Junior will make good use of it from now on. While Junior is not a swordsman, it's better to have a weapon in my hands than having to use empty fists out there, don't you agree?"

Chang Ming tried to use his expression to hint at something, but Li Huowang could not understand him.

Li Huowang then took the scabbard from Chang Ming's body before sheathing the sword and hanging it on his back.

Next was the most important part, the sacred text.

Li Huowang turned toward the sacred text without any sort of protection.

At that moment, Chang Ming suddenly started struggling intensely. However, the copper coins on those black lines dug even deeper into his body, and soon the light in his eyes quickly became dim.

"Senior Li, Senior Chang Ming is dead." Puppy's eyes widened in shock.

Li Huowang looked at the so-called sacred text before them and sighed softly. So many people had died just because of this object of unknown origins.

Li Huowang leaned closer to examine it. He was even more focused than when he had been under Dan Yangzi's tyranny.

However, after repeatedly looking through it, he still felt that this was a scripture. With some guesswork, it looked like a text advising people to do good.

Li Huowang took a step back, then reached behind him with one hand and slowly unsheathed his sword.

Clang!

The sharp sword struck heavily onto the stone slab that was engraved with scriptures.

Translator's Thoughts

Black Taisui was

Chapter 25 - Path In The Forests

Clang!

The longsword and the sacred text collided, giving off an extremely piercing collision sound. Everyone else within the vicinity subconsciously covered their ears and took a few steps back.

“It couldn’t even leave a mark. Isn’t Chang Ming a swordsman? His sword can’t even cut it... however, this sword shouldn’t be something ordinary.” Li Huowang raised the sword and contemplated for a while. Then, he grabbed the hilt with both hands and swung it down heavily once again.

He gritted his teeth and hacked the sword several times before there were any changes in the situation. However, this change was not in the so-called sacred text, but the longsword in Li Huowang’s hands.

Clang!

The force of the impact caused the blade to break apart, ruining the sword.

He looked at the broken blade, feeling a little stunned. The weapon he had just come into possession of was gone just like that.

He looked around and took a few quick steps toward Chang Ren’s dead body, pulling out his sword. “Thankfully there’s a spare.”

He sheathed the sword, and circled the sacred text, pondering what his next move should be.

He had planned to destroy this so-called sacred text, but from the looks of it, it was indeed worth something, and might even be a treasure of sorts.

Since he had made the decision not to give up on living, something so valuable couldn't be simply left behind like that.

No matter what, I have to take it out of here first. Then we might even be able to pawn it for some money if needed.

Li Huowang had completely abandoned the unrealistic hopes of using this thing to turn into an Immortal. He had seen the aftermath of those who had tried it before, and he did not wish to suffer the same fate.

While Li Huowang struggled to lift the stone tablet which was far heavier than he had imagined, he was still able to manage somehow.

After he wrapped the stone tablet in a cloth and placed it on his back, Li Huowang turned toward the others waiting outside, "Let's get out of here."

They dumped the oil lamp inside Dan Yangzi's smelly cave, setting it ablaze. The flames soon spread, igniting everything that was flammable, including the bodies of Chang Ming, Chang Ren, and Xuan Yuan.

The flames grew quite rapidly, and Li Huowang got to witness just how naturally combustible human corpses were.

As they walked back along the original path, they began to set fire to all the rooms. The blazing flames danced and came together. They burned anything and everything they could within the Zephyr Temple.

The thick smoke started to make them cough, and so they quickened their pace.

After three incense sticks worth of time, everyone was standing under the sunlight and silently watching the smoke billowing out of the Zephyr Temple's entrance.

The heavy smoke rose upward, carrying with it all of the Zephyr Temple's darkness and evil, and dispersing it all into the bright skies.

Li Huowang looked up and chuckled before turning toward the distant path in the forest. He gazed at it with a sword and a stone tablet hanging on his back. "Let's go."

The rest of the group followed suit while carrying food. Unknowingly, Li Huowang had become their leader.

As they gradually approached the distant path in the forest, Li Huowang was no longer as gloomy.

This place seems special. I'm quite looking forward to the people or the events that the future will bring.

The sunlight illuminated his face, and his mood brightened as he breathed in the fresh air.

"Senior Li, please slow down... my eyes hurt."

Li Huowang turned back to find that Bai Lingmiao was covering both of her eyes under the sunlight.

He walked over and held up her face to examine it. To his surprise, he could see the blood vessels behind her eyeballs through the center of her pupils. As her dark-red blood vessels were illuminated by light, it became slightly pink in color.

This... should be some kind of defect?

He was not a medical expert, but he could at least guess at this. He recalled that elderly people suffering from albinism that helped with fortune-telling and massages were mostly blind.

It seemed that Bai Lingmiao's disease would cause her eyes to have some defects, and render them much weaker than that of the average person.

This won't do.

Li Huowang tore off a piece of cloth from his green Daoist robes, and then gently covered her eyes. "From now on, cover your eyes in the daylight."

"But... I won't be able to see anything."

"It's okay, I'll guide you." Li Huowang grabbed Bai Lingmiao's soft right hand before leading the rest toward the path in the forest.

While Bai Lingmiao stumbled initially, she soon began to run together with Li Huowang.

Dududu~

The old and wrinkled Lu Zhuangyuan forcefully tapped his smoking pipe on the side of his theatrical trunk.

After tapping out all the black tobacco that was stuck within, he replaced it with some fresh tobacco from his smoking pouch, and lit it with his tinderbox.

He took a satisfying puff before turning in the direction that the horses were facing and asking, “You skinny boy, are you done?”

“Almost!” A youthful voice replied.

“You lazy boy, why does it take so long for you to relieve yourself? Others might end up thinking that I’m mistreating you by making you eat soil,” Lu Zhuangyuan smoked while grumbling discontentedly about his younger son.

He looked behind his carriage, at the entire troupe that was standing on the forest path. Aside from one horse-drawn carriage that carried costumes and musical instruments, there was his older son, and two distant nephews from the village. While their troupe was small, these were his hard-earned assets that he had spent years gathering.

It was this troupe’s work that allowed his entire family to eat well during these difficult times.

“Dad, have some water and buns.” Lu Juren passed some food and a gourd of water to his father.

“Why are we eating when it’s not mealtime yet?! Do you think this food is free? Do you know just how much food costs now? Your daughter is already two years old, but why are you still acting like such an immature child?!”

Despite the scolding, Lu Juren wasn’t angry; he just smiled innocently while moving away and passed the food back to his wife.

“You got scolded again? You were just asking for it.” Luo Juanhua placed the food back into the cart and then playfully poked their baby daughter, who was sitting on the trunk.

“Being scolded won’t take any skin off my back. Ever since Mom passed away, Dad’s temper has just been like that.”

“Have you spoken to Dad about what I told you last night?”

“Let’s bring it up again next time. There hasn’t been a good chance, and he is tight on money right now.” Lu Juren said as his face soured.

“Tsk~ Is he so tight on money that he cannot even buy some fabric for his own granddaughter’s clothes? She’s always wearing these costumes.”

“Well, the costumes can also-”

“Ahh! Ahh! Ghost!” A terrified shriek interrupted their conversation, at the same time causing the atmosphere around the troupe to stiffen.

Not long after, the others saw a half-naked young boy shouting at the top of his lungs and dashing out from the forest, straight into Lu Zhuangyuan’s embrace.

“What ghost?! How can there be any ghosts in broad daylight?! Hurry and put on your pants!”

Even though Lu Zhuangyuan berated his own son, he still stepped before Lu Xiucan, shielding him. He gripped his smoking pipe tightly and looked warily toward the forest.

At that moment, some figures could be seen moving, and it seemed like some people were approaching them.

Chapter 26 - Frightening

“There’s... There’s shit!”

“Stop pushing! I’m not blind! Don’t tell me that you want to eat it? Even if you are a simpleton, you shouldn’t be eating shit, right?”

“Puppy, stop talking. There are people in front of us.”

“Alright, Senior Li.”

It wasn’t long before Lu Zhuangyuan saw the people walking out of the forest.

No wonder my son thought that they were ghosts. They look so frightening!

Lu Zhuangyuan took a deep breath when he saw them walking out. A skinny guy with black and white markings on his face, a white-haired lady, a twisted man on the back of a giant of a man, and there was even someone with hair all over their face.

Lu Zhuangyuan had traveled and seen a lot. Even so, the scene in front of him was enough to frighten him.

“Father, I’m scared.” Lu Xiucan said as he walked backward. It was as if he wanted to hide his entire body behind his father.

And you think I’m not scared?

Lu Zhuangyuan silently scolded his son in his heart. If it weren’t for the young Daoist and the young assistants who looked quite normal, he too would’ve made a run for it.

Lu Zhuangyuan stammered as he spoke to Li Huowang.

“Respected sir... are these... the monsters that you’ve subjugated?”

The moment he said this, several pairs of eyes filled with hostility focused on him.

“You damned geezer! Are you asking for a beating? Who are you calling monsters?”

At that moment, Lu Zhuangyuan saw the Daoist motion for the man with black and white markings on his face to stop talking. This made him even more certain that the Daoist was the one in charge of all of them.

“Old man, may I ask where this road leads to?”

“Wuli Gang! It’s just slightly further ahead. In fact, we are pretty close to it, hehe.”

The moment he said this, he stealthily took his pipe and used it to burn the rump of his horse. The horse neighed loudly and ran down the path along with their stuff.

“My horse! Aiya! Quickly! Follow it!” Lu Zhuangyuan pretended that he was anxious as he took his people and quickly ran for his horse, using this opportunity to make a quick getaway.

They ran so fast that they were gone in an instant. They continued running for two hours until Lu Zhuangyuan saw his youngest son vomiting due to the stress. Finally, Lu Zhuangyuan blew a whistle, signaling the horse to stop.

Instead of caring for his youngest son who was vomiting, he went and checked on the horse that was pulling their cart; horses were much more expensive than the people in the troupe.

As night approached, the sky slowly turned dark.

“What were those things? I swear, they looked so terrifying!” Lu Juren was sweating buckets as he panted.

Lu Zhuangyuan kicked him. “Don’t you see that it’s getting dark soon? Quickly go and gather some firewood!”

Soon, a warm fireplace was made just slightly off the forest path. They roasted some multigrain buns till they were soft and mushy before passing them along to everyone, trying to use the taste of the food to calm themselves down.

“Look at how frightened you guys look! Remember: When you are on the road, you need to be calm even if you encounter something strange like that. You must remain level-headed!” Lu Zhuangyuan said to the others.

“Father, maybe they were not monsters? They looked like humans to me. The young Daoist even called you old man.”

Listening to his daughter-in-law, he shook the gourd of water in his hand.

“No matter what they are, don’t go trying to interact with them. If we want to survive out here, we need to remember not to interact with others if we can avoid it.”

This was based on Lu Zhuangyuan’s personal experience. Even if it was very little, he had survived until now thanks to it. He needed to teach all this to both of his sons as well. After all, they would one day inherit the entire troupe.

He passed the gourd of water to one of his nephews and then looked at his granddaughter who was in his daughter-in-law’s arms.

Lu Zhuangyuan fell more and more in love with his granddaughter as he looked at her munching on a small piece of bun with her newly-grown teeth.

He turned back to his cart and took out a single salted duck egg from inside a round jar. Then, he carefully opened the egg and exposed the fatty yolk inside it before passing it to his granddaughter. “Come, suck on this. This is some good stuff!”

Seeing his granddaughter sucking on it voraciously, Lu Zhuangyuan smiled contentedly.

Even though he was somewhat disappointed that it wasn’t a grandson, she was still a part of his family, and he took great care of her.

Sensing that this was a good opportunity, Luo Juanhua said, “Father-in-law, look at how much Cui Er has grown. I think it’s time for her to get a new set of clothes. I don’t think it’s appropriate for her to wear a costume every day.”

When Lu Zhuangyuan heard that, he knew that his daughter-in-law was asking for money. His smile disappeared in an instant and was replaced by a stressed expression.

He was just about to decline when he saw the loose costume that his granddaughter was wearing, causing him to sigh.

He smoked his pipe for a while before he walked to his cart, his face filled with wrinkles. He then took out a long bronze key to open up one of the chests.

He rummaged around for a bit before taking out a stack of bronze coins. He counted 50 before placing the rest back inside.

“Don’t buy the fabric for the clothes in the cities. It would be too expensive there. We will reach Wuli Gang in two days. Once we get there, go and ask around to see who is willing to sell some fabric. Ask around multiple houses and buy roughly a meter or so from the one that is the cheapest. Oh, and remember to buy fabric made of cotton and not linen. She is still young and it might not be suitable for her to wear rough linen.”

“I understand.” Luo Juanhua was quite happy as she took the coins. She had thought that it would already be very good if she was allowed to purchase some linen, but to think that her father-in-law would be so generous this time around.

The child was still quite young so she wouldn’t need a lot of fabric to make a set of clothes for her. She might even be able to save some of the money for herself.

Lu Zhuangyuan split the white of the salted duck egg amongst the rest of them after his granddaughter had finished eating the yolk.

While everyone only got a little bit, they were happy to just be able to taste the salt and egg. It wasn’t every day that they got to eat protein.

There was nothing else to do after they finished dinner, and it was already quite late into the night. Lu Zhuangyuan told all of them some random stories before everyone went to sleep.

Lu Juren was the one in charge of keeping watch in the first half of the night. It had been a long day and he was already very tired, but he still forced himself to stay awake. He stared at the bonfire, making sure that it didn't die out.

“Son, go and get some sleep. I will keep watch.” Lu Zhuangyuan sat beside his son while smoking his pipe.

Lu Juren yawned. “No need, father. I’m not that sleepy. You should get some sleep first.”

“No. Go and sleep now. As an old man, I don’t need to sleep a lot.”

Just as the two were telling each other to go and sleep, Lu Zhuangyuan suddenly used his hands to cover his son’s mouth. Then, he silently pointed toward a dark figure that had appeared from the depths of the forest.

“Hehe~” A shrill sound of female laughter soon rang out from their right.

Both of them stared in the direction of the voice but couldn’t see anything.

“Hihi~ Tell me. Do I look like a human or a God?” The shadows of the trees in the forest shifted; it was as if something was walking toward them.

Lu Zhuangyuan was scared, cold sweat drenching his shirt. He had experienced many things in his lifetime and knew that something was trying to ascend to Godhood through him.

He knew that he must not answer the question wrongly. If he did, there was a chance that everyone here would perish.

But the problem was that he didn’t know what the thing was. Why was it asking him?

At that moment, a strange rustling sound was heard as the trees in the forest shook.

Translator's Thoughts

The spirit trying to ascend to Godhood through asking a question is a very interesting piece of folklore.

Basically, to become immortal, an animal/spirit/human would cultivate until they reach a bottleneck. Once they reached it, they would seek out people with good karma/or stronger cultivation. They would then ask how do they look, a human/animal or an Immortal/God?

If the person answered the former, the cultivator's effort for the past hundreds of years or so would go to waste and they have to do it from scratch again. If the answer is the latter, the cultivator would ascend.

But here's the caveat if you were the one being asked the question: If you answer they look like an animal, the cultivator would take revenge on you because you wasted their cultivation for the past hundreds of years. If you answer they look like an Immortal, they would take your karma and lifespan to ascend. If you don't have sufficient karma/lifespan, you will die.

Chapter 27 - Evil

“Hihihi~ Tell me. Do I look like a human or a God?”

The ‘thing’ in the forest shook the branches, her voice growing louder and sharper.

“You look like a human! Please spare us! We are all hardworking people who are just trying to survive!”

Lu Zhuangyuan was overtaken by fear and started groveling on the floor, kowtowing endlessly toward the direction of the voice.

He continued groveling until he saw a pair of feet wearing red-colored embroidered shoes at the edges of the forest.

He felt chills running down his spine as he slowly raised his head and saw a girl wearing a padded flower jacket standing there, her feet looking comically small. Her face was large and white, but her mouth was very small by comparison. Her eyes were like black beads, unmoving and unblinking. Her white face was especially conspicuous within the darkness, almost looking like a floating balloon.

“Hehe, you think I’m a human?” The ‘girl’ with the tiny feet covered her mouth as ‘she’ laughed before walking closer toward the bonfire.

When Lu Zhuangyuan saw her body wriggling around as if ‘she’ didn’t have a skeleton, he knew that he was fucked. It was a real spirit this time!

“A-a child! Everyone! Wake up! I need a boy’s urine!” Lu Zhuangyuan's horror-filled voice woke everyone up.

Lu Juren grabbed a burning stick from the bonfire and threw it toward the spirit.

However, the burning stick just passed right through the body of the ‘girl’.

The ‘girl’ with tiny feet slowly approached the bonfire before stopping. ‘She’ then turned toward the Eastern direction.

At the same time, the tree branches before Li Huowang shook as he and the rest of his group appeared from the forest while holding a few glowing rocks in their hands.

“Hmm?” Bai Lingmiao, who had already taken off her blindfold, saw that something was wrong. “Senior Li, that ‘girl’ might be a spirit! She has another face on the back of her head!”

Li Huowang unsheathed his long sword and stared warily at the girl with tiny feet. “What are you?”

“Hehe~ Can’t you see? I’m a human!” Her voice rang out once again as ‘she’ moved her body like a centipede, quickly approaching her new targets.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang wouldn’t give up easily. He immediately took out the bronze bell from his left sleeve. There was a dent on the surface of the bell.

As soon as he shook it, the ear-piercing sound of the bell rang out, and everyone, including Li Huowang, had to cover their ears as they started experiencing head-splitting pain.

However, Li Huowang did not stop; he continued ringing the bell. Soon, he saw everything within his vision, including the spirit, start to shake.

At that moment, the padded jacket of the spirit exploded, releasing a cloud of black fumes.

The bronze bell was effective against her!

Meanwhile, the spirit screamed in pain and ran back into the depths of the forest, her body slowly disintegrating. Soon, ‘she’ disappeared from everyone’s field of vision.

The ringing sound of the bell soon stopped, and then Li Huowang examined the bronze bell with a surprised expression.

To think that not only could this thing be used to call the Wandering Gods, but you could even use it in situations such as these.

Unfortunately, everytime he rang the bell, the most he could achieve was to cause the edges of the world to squirm and shake; the Wandering Gods never appeared in front of him. He didn't know whether it was due to the dent in the bell or if there were some other causes.

At the same time, the more he learned about this world, the more bewildered he was. What were all these monstrosities?

“Savior!! Our savior! Thank you so much for helping us! I was blind not to acknowledge you before! Come! Come and join us by the fire.” Lu Zhuangyuan, tears and snot all over his face, happily pulled Li Huowang toward the fire.

Compared to that scary thing, those weird-looking people behind the young Daoist were much better! With the young Daoist here, at most they just looked scary, but, the spirit from just now could've taken their lives!

“Sigh! This damned animal! If it hadn't suddenly run away earlier, how could I have possibly abandoned you.” Lu Zhuangyuan gestured his smoking pipe toward his horse, tapping it gently.

After tapping his pipe a few times, he suddenly shouted toward the people behind him. “Juanhua, quickly go and bring out some buns and water. Bring the largest and highest quality white buns. Also, bring three...no, five salted duck eggs!”

Li Huowang was not used to such hospitality, especially with how friendly Lu Zhuangyuan was acting toward them. “Old man, there's no need to go to such lengths for us. Can I ask you some questions?”

“Ask! Ask away! You just saved all our lives earlier! Ask me anything!” Lu Zhuangyuan patted his chest with pride.

Lu Zhuangyuan even wiped the mouthpiece of the pipe he was smoking with his shirt before lighting up a puff and passing it to Li Huowang.

“Erm... thanks old man, but I don't smoke. Now, can you tell me what it was that we just encountered? What was that thing called?" Li Huowang said as he gently pushed the pipe back into Lu Zhuangyuan's hands.

Li Huowang still knew nothing about this world. If he wanted to survive here, he needed to learn more about it.

Lu Zhuangyuan was stunned by his question. "Huh? How would I know? Young Daoist, you were the one who chased it away. Shouldn't you know more about it than me?"

Looking at the old man's confused eyes, Li Huowang realized that he had asked the wrong person. The old man might not even know as much as him.

"I heard you shouting and asking for a boy's urine. Would it be able to hurt that thing?"

"Yeah! These kinds of things are afraid of filthy things. I've heard that it could work even if we were to use our snot. But the best item would still be a young boy's urine. It's filled with Yang energy, and at the same time, it's considered really filthy."

"Really? Have you used it before?"

In the face of this question, Lu Zhuangyuan, who had been certain of what he had said until now, suddenly turned sheepish. He chuckled as his eyes darted around. "Maybe? It was the elders in the village who always told us this technique. Since they told us about it so often, I guess it should work."

Li Huowang sighed.

Why is it another folklore passed down using word of mouth? This place is much too backward.

"Alright old man. Then let me ask you something you would know the answer to. Have you encountered these kinds of things before? If yes, how frequent was it?"

"Nah, if I were to encounter these kinds of things every day, then I would've quit running around with my troupe and taken my son back to our village to tend to the fields," Lu Zhuangyuan said as he placed his pipe in his mouth and took another puff.

“I’ve traveled the lands for so long and have only encountered spirits a total of four times,” he continued.

“I see.” Li Huowang surveyed the forest around him. He had gained a slightly better understanding of the world he was in.

After living with Dan Yangzi for such a long time, he had thought that things like the Black Taisui would be everywhere around him. However, that didn’t seem to be the case.

Even though everyone had heard of these kinds of things happening, from the looks of it, it was still very rare to experience such things.

Chapter 28 - Lu Family

“Sigh! You don’t need to worry about these kinds of things. As long as you gather more people when you travel, you should be fine,” Lu Zhuangyuan told Li Huowang based on his experience.

“Oh? Is it because the more people we have, the more Yang energy we would have, and thus those things wouldn’t come to disturb us?”

“Yeah!” Lu Zhuangyuan placed some new tobacco cuttings into his smoke pipe and continued smoking. “Even if they want to eat people, how many people could they possibly eat? Even if we meet one, all we need to do is run faster than the others. Rather than worrying about these kinds of things, I would rather worry about bandits and man-eating insects.”

Li Huowang didn’t know what else he could say. It looked like his knowledge of this world was still insufficient.

“Come, the buns have been cooked. You should eat them while they’re hot.” Luo Juanhua approached them with some buns that were lightly grilled on sticks.

Li Huowang accepted the buns and passed them to some of the young assistants that he had picked up along the way.

These assistants were the children who used to do the menial tasks back in the Zephyr Temple; they had made a run for it without any preparations as soon as they left Zephyr Temple.

When Li Huowang and the rest found some of them, they had already fainted due to extreme hunger.

And so, Li Huowang had picked them up along the way. He didn’t have the heart to let them be on their own.

Staring at the hot food, the rest of them immediately started eating; it was already late, and they were starving.

Seeing Simpleton consuming one bun per bite, Lu Zhuangyuan's eyes twitched a little.

These are white buns! It's something so expensive that I wouldn't even eat it usually. Damn, maybe I shouldn't have taken out so many of them .

Just then, Li Huowang asked Lu Zhuangyuan about something he knew. "Old man, do you happen to have a map? I'm not from around here and was lost in the forest. I have no idea where we are right now."

Li Huowang was indeed lost. The only things around them were trees. Without being able to pinpoint their location, they were effectively stuck here. The others didn't know where they were either.

The rest of them came from places that were quite far away from here. They only knew about the street they used to live on, or which area they had lived in within their town. But when Li Huowang asked them about how to get there, they didn't know.

It seemed that Dan Yangzi avoided finding guiding drug ingredients from just a single area to cover up his tracks.

"Hm? A map? No, I don't have one; however, I know the roads around here. Where would you like to go?"

"I need to go to many places. Please take a look at these and see which of these places is the closest," Li Huowang said as he took out many pieces of paper from his sleeves.

"Huh? What's this? What are the words written on these?" Lu Zhuangyuan stared at the papers, his wrinkled face scrunched up as he tried to read the words.

Even though the meaning of his name was 'scholar', he wasn't one. If he was, he wouldn't have needed to organize his own theater troupe.

Lu Zhuangyuan could read only some words. Under Li Huowang's guidance, he finally understood the addresses that were written on each of the pieces of paper.

Thankfully he knew most of the places written about on the paper. After all, he had traveled the lands for a very long time.

But even if he knew where these places were, it didn't mean that Li Huowang could get to them easily.

"Wow, you even have to go to a place in the Liang Kingdom? It was the country that waged war with our Qi Kingdom two years ago."

Lu Zhuangyuan squatted down, using his smoking pipe to draw a rough map on the ground.

If Li Huowang were to describe the map, it looked like a giant piece of biscuit fell onto the ground and was shattered to pieces.

They were currently on the top left side of the map. As they moved to the right, there were numerous kingdoms that they would have to go through.

It seems similar to ancient China when the kingdoms were not united. Li Huowang noted as he stared at the map.

While Li Huowang didn't have high expectations, he more or less confirmed the fact that he had not traveled back in time to ancient China. Based on the map, it seemed that he was in a much more special place.

"I've only traveled through the northern border region of our kingdom. I am familiar with most places around here. But I have no idea where most of these kingdoms are. All I know is that they put on a very different kind of show there, much different from ours."

Bai Lingmiao felt anxious. Her home was located at the base of the Cowheart Mountain in Liang Kingdom. From the looks of it, her house was very far away.

Li Huowang felt the slight shift in her mood and comforted her. "Don't worry."

Lu Zhuangyuan stared at Li Huowang and the malformed people behind him. His mind had started to become more and more active now that they were out of danger, and he no longer had to fear for his life.

“Young Daoist, one of your destinations is the town of Jianye. We will be passing by that place too. How about we travel together?”

“Jianye village? Whose village is this?” Li Huowang asked as he rummaged through the pile of paper.

“Senior Li, it’s my village,” Zhao Wu suddenly said. “There’s an escort service in that town. If you pay them some money, they will be able to send letters to the entire Nanping area.”

Li Huowang no longer hesitated, placing all the papers back into the sleeves of his robe. “Alright old man, looks like we will have to travel together till Jianye village.”

Both the map and the information he had gotten from the old man were not enough for Li Huowang. He needed to reach a place where he could get more information. There was much to do, including the fact that he had to find more Black Taisui to suppress his ailment and send out the letters, and they even needed to prepare more food for themselves. If possible, Li Huowang even needed to find some other sects.

This was a dangerous world. They would all perish if they didn't have enough strength. Li Huowang didn't want to get kidnapped by someone like Dan Yangzi again.

Lu Zhuangyuan was happy and immediately waved his hand in front of himself. “No need to be so courteous; in fact, I should be the one thanking you!”

Even though he said that, Lu Zhuangyuan was extremely happy on the inside. With such a Daoist by his side, it was akin to getting free protection!

At the very least, this was enough to recoup the cost of those white buns and five salted duck eggs.

“Yawn~” At that moment, Simpleton yawned loudly. He had eaten and wanted to go to bed.

Seeing how everyone's eyes were half shut, Lu Zhuangyuan stood up. "Oops. It's already this late into the night. Young Daoist, please go to bed. I will watch over the fire."

"No need, let me do it instead," said Li Huowang. He wasn't trying to be friendly; he just didn't want to trust anyone.

Everyone was tired after their journey. Soon, both groups of people huddled near the fire and drifted to sleep. Only Li Huowang and Lu Zhuangyuan stayed awake as they kept watch.

The next morning, Li Huowang was woken up by Puppy, who was in charge of keeping watch in the second half of the night.

"Senior Li, they are already packing their stuff."

"Let's go, we need to move as well." Li Huowang picked up his sword and the stone tablet. He led everyone else to follow the troupe.

While they were traveling together, both parties were quite cautious of each other. The two groups didn't speak to each other, only whispering to their own companions.

On the other hand, Li Huowang and Lu Zhuangyuan were happily chatting away at the front.

Li Huowang needed to learn more about this world from Lu Zhuangyuan, while the latter wanted to solidify their companionship. After all, to Lu Zhuangyuan, praises were free, and more praises were always welcome.

"Oh my. To think that you are so strong even though you are so young. It looks like your future will be limitless. Haha~"

Translator's Thoughts

Lu Zhuangyuan with his smoke pipe and salted eggs! @格子的乱七八糟

Chapter 29 - Stage

“Haha, please don’t think too highly of me, old man. Do you know of any famous sects around here that are similar to the one I am from?” Li Huowang asked Lu Zhuangyuan about something he needed to know.

“Of course, I do. In the Western Capital City, there is a Monastery. I’ve heard that anyone who prays there for a son has their wishes come true!”

A Monastery?

Li Huowang remembered what Dan Yangzi had said before. He was once chased and hunted down by monks.

Could this be the very same Monastery?

Li Huowang silently noted down the location. Compared to the man-eating Dan Yangzi, the Monastery should be a place with good people.

“But, you are a Daoist. Is it appropriate for you to go to a Monastery?”

Li Huowang stared at the Daoist robe he was wearing. Luckily, Lu Zhuangyuan had reminded him.

It seems that I will need to change out of my robes. Either way, I’m not a real Daoist.

“How’s your business been recently? Is everything going alright?”

Sensing how Li Huowang had changed the topic, Lu Zhuangyuan understood and didn’t press on.

“Sigh... Not really. The kingdom recently had a drought and then a flood shortly after that. The people don’t even have much money. Nowadays, there are so few people who would pay to watch such shows. Even the rich people would not hire us to perform at funerals; they just make do with dinner and wrap it up. What a bunch of unfilial punks!”

“It will all come to pass. You just need to endure for a couple of years.”

“Yeah, there’s nothing much we can do but to endure. I’ve been thinking of traveling along my route a hundred more times when the times get better. Once I’ve accumulated enough money, I will finally be able to buy a theatre for my family in Western Capital City. If I manage to do so, then I will be able to die happy. With a theatre, at the very least my sons and grandchildren will not have to suffer as much as I did. All they would need to do is to study back at home. Who knows, maybe we will get lucky and someone in my family will become a scholar! If that happens, then from then on we would be able to live in peace.” Lu Zhuangyuan chuckled at the thought as he smoked his pipe.

Li Huowang listened to Lu Zhuangyuan’s goals and felt somewhat envious. To think that he would still have a goal to look forward to even though he was already so old.

The more they talked, the friendlier the atmosphere between them became. At the very least, the Lu family no longer treated Puppy and the rest as monsters, but as people with ailments. To begin with, it was not their choice to be inflicted with such ailments; everyone was just trying to live the best life they could.

By the time they arrived at Wuli Gang, Luo Juanhua was already friendly enough with Bai Lingmiao to allow her to carry Cui Er.

Standing in an empty field that the farmers would use to dry their grains, Lu Zhuangyuan took a look at the village and saw that many of the farmers were having their dinners just outside of their house and said, “Alright! There’s quite a few people here in Wuli Gang. Lu Family! Open the boxes and set up the stage! It’s time to earn some money!”

They needed to perform, and Li Huowang's group was not in a rush to travel; everyone was already tired from the journey, and so this was a good opportunity to rest.

While Li Huowang was not interested in such old school performances and operas, the rest of them were clearly interested; they decided to help out with setting up the stage. They took some bamboo stakes and red clothes to set up the stage.

Li Huowang was trying to sleep on a stack of dried rice stalks when he felt someone poking at his nose. He opened his eyes and saw Bai Lingmiao grinning at him.

She raised both her hands, and a golden item dangled in front of Li Huowang. She excitedly said, "Senior Li! Look! This is such a clean bronze mirror! I can use it to see myself clearly! This is what they use to put on their makeup!"

"It's not sunset yet, why have you taken off your blindfold? Aren't you afraid of..."

At that moment, Li Huowang saw his own reflection in the mirror and was shocked—he didn't recognize the face in the mirror.

"Senior Li, what's wrong?" Bai Lingmiao asked, having sensed that something was wrong.

"Junior Bai, did I look like this even back when I was in Zephyr Temple?" Li Huowang gingerly touched his face.

"Yeah. You've always looked like that. What's wrong? Is there something wrong with your reflection?"

Li Huowang set down his hands and touched his reflection in the bronze mirror. However, it didn't change. In the mirror, he no longer looked like a teenager; it seemed that he had been in this world for quite some time.

If the world with the hospital was my reality, then I would have been 17 years old. So how old am I now?

He couldn't come up with an answer when he asked himself. His memories were all jumbled up, and now he didn't even know how old he was.

Based on his reflection, the only thing he could predict was that he was no more than 30 years old.

Li Huowang tried searching his memories for any mentions of his age, but there were none.

“Senior Li? Is everything alright? Please don’t scare me.”

Seeing Li Huowang’s reaction, Bai Lingmiao was quite nervous.

“Nothing. I’m fine. I was just thinking about something.

Quickly return the mirror back to them. They would need to use it to perform their show.”

“Alright.” Bai Lingmiao took the bronze mirror and walked backstage.

“Yi~Yi~Aaaa~” Lu Juren started singing on the stage.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang once again laid down on the rice stalks. “Sigh, I feel like my entire life is a joke.”

He thought that he would be much more emotional, but he was surprisingly calm. Now, he just had another objective—to find out just how old he was.

The night sky was clear and had a moon, so the simple stage could be seen by everyone in the village.

Hearing the news of a theater troupe arriving outside the village, almost everyone in Wuli Gang came out to watch the show.

Most of them had nothing to do anyways. They would usually tend to the fields and sleep. To the farmers, having a troupe performing in front of their village was one of the rare opportunities to enjoy some entertainment.

The Lu family’s troupe was small. With the exception of the granddaughter, there were only 6 performers.

Due to that, they had to exclude some of the performances. There were too many things to do, including having to play the musical instruments, applying make-up, and performing.

Luckily, the farmers were not a picky bunch. All of them took a stool and happily watched the show.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang and his group were resting on a bunch of dried grass stalks and admiring the show from afar; the sound coming from the stage was loud enough for them to hear.

Li Huowang had never watched one before, and so he didn't know what it was that they were performing. The only one he could recognize on the stage was Lu Zhuangyuan. The latter had put on black makeup while carrying a large halbert. It looked extremely tiring for him to perform on stage at his age; after all, he had to sing while swinging the halberd around.

"Excellent!" The sound of cheering suddenly rang out, surprising Li Huowang.

The show continued as the area in front of the stage was filled with people. The entire Lu family poured their heart and soul into their performance on the stage, captivating the farmers below. The only one who wasn't interested in the show was Li Huowang.

Soon the moon had crawled to the middle of the sky, and the performance of the Lu family came to an end.

Just then, Li Huowang saw Luo Juanhua appear on the stage in tattered clothes. She was carrying her daughter and a basket woven using dried grass.

"My cruel uncle-in-law has chased me away~ I'm just like a lone swan drifting in this world~ I have suffered so much, just like the wild grass that people step on~ Both me and my daughter are cold and hungry, and have had to endure so much~ The only thing we could rely on is the food and the money that people donate to us~"

As she sang, Luo Juanhua pinched her daughter lightly on the buttocks. At the same time, the two-year-old child started crying as if she understood what she had to do.

Chapter 30 - Performance

Li Huowang didn't know what she was performing, but soon, he saw the farmers below the stage start standing up and taking out some coins before throwing them up onto the stage. They all threw a single bronze coin or two.

Since most of them were farmers, in addition to money, most of them also threw some food such as corn cobs or potatoes onto the stage. Some of the wealthier families even threw out some salted fish and preserved meat.

Meanwhile, Luo Juanhua did not decline anything, thanking everyone for their generosity.

Is that their way of asking for payment?

Li Huowang was quite surprised by this.

Meanwhile, Luo Juanhua was humbly kneeling on stage as she carried her crying child and sang, all the while picking up the items and placing them into the basket she was holding. She would even bow down toward the people below as a token of appreciation.

Li Huowang sighed as he saw how hard it was just to survive in this world.

As Luo Juanhua was happily picking up the money and food, a small chunk of silver was thrown up on the stage.

Her eyes lit up, and she inspected the chunk of silver. When she realized that it was worth at least 500 bronze coins, she started performing even better, thanking the fat old man who was wearing silk clothes.

"Great! Your singing is amazing!" The old man raised his head and threw out another piece of silver.

Feeling exhausted, Li Huowang yawned and rolled on the rice stalks. He told Zhao Wu, who was just beside him, "I'm going to sleep now. Help me keep an eye on everyone.”

“No problem, Senior Li.”

By the time Li Huowang opened his eyes again, it was already late in the morning. The others around him were chatting leisurely. It seemed that everyone had made do with the rice stalks and decided to sleep outside for the night.

Further down, the stage had already been disassembled by the Lu family as they kept it in their cart.

“Zhao Wu, how much food do we still have?” Li Huowang suddenly asked.

“Not much. If we ration it, then we would probably last only three days,” replied Zhao Wu.

Li Huowang took out the money he had taken from the guiding drug ingredients before. He counted tens of coins and one small blackened piece of silver and passed it to Zhao Wu. “Go and buy some food. We might need to travel for quite some time.”

There were quite a number of young people among their group, so they would need to eat a lot. They had initially taken quite a large amount of food from the Zephyr Temple, but most of it was already gone.

Zhao Wu perched on Simpleton’s back, and they were just about to enter the village when he thought about something before calling for one of the assistants. He entrusted the money to him and informed him of what to do.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang was staring at the Lu family’s stage from his makeshift bed.

“Old man, when will we depart?” Li Huowang asked Lu Zhuangyuan.

Lu Zhuangyuan replied quickly, feeling anxious, “Young Daoist, please be at ease. My daughter-in-law took her daughter somewhere early this morning. As soon as they return, we can depart.”

“Hmm? They went somewhere? Isn’t that her?” Li Huowang replied, feeling puzzled.

When Lu Zhuangyuan followed Li Huowang's finger that was pointing toward the entrance of the village, he saw his daughter-in-law holding onto some fabric while carrying her daughter and walking toward them with a face full of smiles.

Looking at his daughter-in-law, Lu Zhuangyuan was angry at how carefree she was. He took his smoke pipe and went over to scold her.

In the face of his anger, Luo Juanhua said defensively, "But weren't you the one who asked me to go buy some fabric in the village? You were the one who said that buying fabric in towns would be expensive."

After scolding her a bit, Lu Zhuangyuan turned around and chuckled. "Young Daoist, we can depart anytime now. Let's go."

"Hold up! We can't leave just yet. When I went to buy the fabric, I managed to get a hold of a business opportunity for us!"

Li Huowang and Lu Zhuangyuan asked at the same time. "What business?"

"What else? Of course, it's an opportunity to perform! Our employer would be the old man who gave us a lot of money yesterday! Why don't you go and discuss it with him? He said he wanted to discuss the details with you."

When he heard this, Lu Zhuangyuan didn't move immediately. He slowly turned around, chuckling sheepishly at Li Huowang.

Even though he didn't say anything, Li Huowang knew what he was thinking. "Don't worry. It's more important to earn money. It will just mean delaying our departure for a day."

"Aiya! Thank you so much! I will quickly go and come back." Lu Zhuangyuan happily followed his daughter-in-law into the village while holding his smoke pipe.

Li Huowang once again sat down on the rice stalks and took out the dented bronze bell from his sleeves. Due to his boredom, he decided to examine it closely.

If I can summon the Wandering Gods, I will be able to increase my fighting strength! But... I can't summon them with this bell as it is now. I need to find a way to fix it.

After examining it, Li Huowang didn't see any issues besides the dent.

If I can fix it, does that mean it will become usable once again?

Li Huowang thought about it before picking up a stone from the ground. He placed the bell on a relatively flat piece of rock before starting to pound it with the stone.

A sharp ringing sound rang out, immediately giving him an explosive headache—he could barely continue holding the stone in his hand.

No, I can't do it this way. I need to ask if there's a blacksmith in the village.

Li Huowang thought as he cradled his spinning head.

Just then, Li Huowang saw the assistants exiting the village with two sacks full of food.

He stored the bell and approached them along with Zhao Wu, who was perched on top of Simpleton.

“Senior Li, we were only able to exchange for these,” said the assistants sadly. While they were just children, they were extremely capable. If not, they would've long since been killed by Dan Yangzi.

Li Huowang opened the sack and saw they contained only dried sweet potatoes.

“Senior Li, these lack the nutrients that we need. At the same time, Simpleton would easily end up eating half a kilogram of these for every meal. Additionally, eating too many of these may also result in heartburn,” said Zhao Wu.

Zhao Wu's statement caused Simpleton to lower his head in shame. “I... I... will... eat less. Don't... don't... abandon... me!”

On the other hand, since there wasn't enough food, Li

Huowang was desperately trying to think of a plan.

Lu Zhuangyuan had already told him that there would still be some time before they would arrive at Jianye village. If they were to run out of food halfway through, they might need to chew on tree bark for the rest of their journey.

He rummaged around in his robes and found a red threaded golden anklet.

He thought about it before passing it back to Bai Lingmiao, who had been holding onto him.

“Take this and exchange it for something.” Li Huowang took out the jade pendant that he had stolen from the previous Xuan Yang and passed it to Zhao Wu.

“Senior Li, I don’t think we would be able to exchange it. There’s no pawn shop here, and none of these farmers would be able to give us the change nor would they be able to realize the true worth of this pendant.”

Even the jade pendant can’t be used to exchange for food. Then what should I do?

Just as Li Huowang was trying to figure out what to do about the food crisis, he saw Lu Zhuangyuan bringing his daughter-in-law out of the village and toward him.

“Young Daoist... I might need a favor from you; we will need you to help us with this particular business opportunity. Would you be willing to help us?” Lu Zhuangyuan asked in a sheepish voice.

“Old man, I can’t sing or dance. I’m afraid that I might not be able to help you,” Li Huowang said, feeling bewildered.

Don’t tell me he wants me to go up on stage and perform a sword dance?

“No no! It’s something that you can definitely do.” Lu Zhuangyuan carefully glanced around him before whispering, “Old man Hu wanted us to perform for the dead.”

Chapter 31 - A Wandering God

“A show for the dead?” Li Huowang felt his heart skip a beat. This was definitely something ominous.

“It’s actually nothing much. We just need to perform in front of their ancestors at their ancestral hall.”

“Since it’s just that, why don’t you perform without me?” Li Huowang had a feeling that it wouldn’t be as simple as it sounded.

“This is actually the first time I’m performing for the dead, and so I feel a bit scared. I would love to have someone like you to watch over us so that we can perform in peace.”

“Old man, I’m afraid that this is not something I can help you with.”

Li Huowang already had a hard time just trying to hide and survive. In reality, he wasn’t really strong or talented. Even though Lu Zhuangyuan said that nothing would happen, it was not something that Li Huowang would want to bet on. At most, they were just two groups of people traveling together; Lu Zhuangyuan wasn’t someone who Li Huowang would risk his life to save. If Lu Zhuangyuan decided not to guide them to the next village because of this, then Li Huowang would rather split up with him and find someone in the village to ask for directions. Surely there would be someone else who would know the way.

“Young Daoist, please don’t be rash. I haven’t even finished speaking yet. Let’s split the earnings in half, how about that?” Lu Zhuangyuan became quite excited when he talked about the reward. “Originally, I didn’t really want to accept the job, but Old Hu promised to give us ten pieces of silver! A single piece of silver is worth 1000 coins! Ten pieces of silver are equivalent to 10,000 coins! That is a huge amount of money! Even if you want to ascend to Immortality, you would still need money to eat before you actually manage to become one.”

These words caused Li Huowang to look toward the two bags of dried sweet potatoes. He really needed the money. Not only did he have to take into consideration their food ration, but he also had a feeling that they would need to spend quite a lot of money once they arrived at the Jianye village. It would be hard to complete their objectives without enough money.

“Young Daoist, please, I beg you. I am even willing to split it 60/40 with you. It’s not easy trying to earn money these days!” Lu Zhuangyuan cried as he tried to persuade Li Huowang. If he failed to persuade Li Huowang, then he would have to decline Old Hu. After all, even if he could earn a lot of money, he would need to be alive to be able to spend it.

At that moment, Li Huowang suddenly turned and faced Lu Zhuangyuan. “Is there a blacksmith in the village?”

“Huh?”

Under Lu Zhuangyuan’s guidance, Li Huowang soon arrived at the workshop of the only blacksmith in Wuli Gang.

“What do you need me to make?” A large man with a thick beard looked at Li Huowang’s Daoist robe and huffed. His well-built muscles could be seen quite easily due to him being shirtless.

“No need to make anything. I need you to fix this bell without pounding or melting it. Can you repair it?” Li Huowang took out the bronze bell.

If he could fix it, then he might be able to summon the Wandering Gods. If he could do so, then he would be willing to accept Lu Zhuangyuan’s request. If he still failed to summon them, the money might not really be worth it.

“Without pounding or melting it? What kind of bullshit...” The blacksmith took the bronze bell and inspected it. Then, he took out two pliers and called out to his assistant, "Come and help me."

The pliers were long and easily clasped the bell. He used the two pliers to grip the dented part. They intended to use the gripping force of the pliers to flatten it out.

Both of them used their full strength, but the bell did not budge in the slightest. However, Li Huowang had somehow expected this result.

"What the... What kind of bronze is this? Why is it so hard?" The blacksmith was almost about to ring the bell out of curiosity but was stopped by Li Huowang.

Staring at the two pliers, Li Huowang gave it some thought before taking out a palm-sized gourd. Then, he took out a small pill from within it and ate it.

This was one of the first pills that Dan Yangzi had originally given to him. He had already eaten two of them before: one to save Yang Na, and the other one to kill Dan Yangzi. After eating this one, he would only have two more of them left.

As soon as he ate it, a stream of hot energy exploded in his dantian and spread out all over his body.

Then, he took a deep breath and gripped the pliers, pulling.

"It won't budge even with two people pulling at it together... just what do you think you are doi—" The blacksmith had just said that when the creaking sound of metal being bent was heard—the dented bell was slowly being pulled back to its original shape.

The blacksmith was completely stunned by what he saw. Soon, the bronze bell had been restored to its former glory.

"Hehe, the young Daoist is quite talented." Lu Zhuangyuan chuckled as he bragged a bit in front of the blacksmith. In his heart, Li Huowang was omnipotent; this much was nothing.

After repairing the bell, Li Huowang left the village and entered the forest on his own. However, he didn't enter too deep into the forest.

Looking at the bronze bell, he rang it feeling hopeful.

As the bell rang, he felt the entire world start spinning around him. However, he did not stop and continued to ring the bell.

He felt everything around him turning, their edges starting to blur and twist before congregating into a single spot.

It's working!

Li Huowang's heart started to race.

Under the ear-piercing sound of the bell, a Wandering God soon appeared in front of him. This time, however, there was only one of them, unlike the time Dan Yangzi summoned them.

The Wandering God looked like a bundle of squiggly vibrating lines; its body did not have a distinct shape.

Li Huowang couldn't stare at it for too long; he had a feeling that if he did, the Wandering God would disappear.

He was just about to speak when he suddenly remembered what Dan Yangzi did last time. He scooped up a handful of dirt before placing it in his mouth.

While the dirt was not very appealing, he endured the stench and talked.

A bunch of gibberish came out of his mouth. He was trying to ask if the Wandering God understood him, but instead, his voice was contorted into a strange hum.

Somehow understanding Li Huowang's words, the Wandering God replied with a strange hum of its own.

Strangely enough, Li Huowang also understood its intention when he heard that hum. The Wandering God was saying that it would assist him! This meant that his fighting power would increase from now on!

Li Huowang leaned forward with excitement and asked the most critical question. He once again let out a strange hum.

While the Wandering God remained static, it hummed in a slow and firm tone.

Li Huowang once again confirmed what it meant and got back the same answer causing him to sigh.

There really are no free lunches in this world. Asking for its help requires a sacrifice.

The sacrifice that the Wandering God needed was three months of the summoner's lifespan per order.

However, when Li Huowang asked whether Dan Yangzi had to pay the same price, the Wandering God remained silent.

Soon, the sound of the ringing bell slowly faded as Li Huowang clutched his head and stood in place for a bit as he recovered. After a while, he slowly walked back to Wuli Gang.

"Young Daoist, why is your face..." When Lu Zhuangyuan saw Li Huowang's muddy face, he was confused.

"About your proposal, I will accept it," Li Huowang said as he clenched the bell in his hand tightly.

"Hooray! That's amazing! I need to go and inform Old Hu immediately!" Lu Zhuangyuan was beyond ecstatic.

Chapter 32 - Hu'S Family Ancestral Hall

A normal family wouldn't be able to afford to hire an entire troupe to perform for their ancestors. The Hu family was considered the largest family in Wuli Gang, with a third of the village's population sharing the same surname.

Li Huowang learned from Lu Zhuangyuan that the person who hired them to perform was not only from the richest family in Wuli Gang but also the eldest member of the Hu family, Hu Qinghe.

Currently, Li Huowang was walking with Lu Zhuangyuan toward the Hu family's ancestral hall.

"Old man Hu has already guaranteed that nothing will happen. He has hired some other troupes before, and nothing happened to them either," said Lu Zhuangyuan, trying to calm himself down.

Li Huowang just ignored that statement. As far as he was concerned, it was just something Lu Zhuangyuan was saying to reassure himself. He gingerly touched the bronze bell on his waist and sighed.

I should be fine since I have this. Still, I hope nothing ends up happening. Giving an order to a Wandering God would cost me three months of my lifespan.

They continued their journey through the village and soon arrived at the Hu family's ancestral hall. The place was illuminated by many lanterns.

There were many people in the hall, so much so that Li Huowang was not even able to squeeze through the crowd. He tiptoed to assess the situation and saw a lot of people kneeling on the ground, lighting up incense sticks to pray to the black memorial tablets.

“Hey, that’s old man Hu. He invited us for a meal after we are done with the performance,” Lu Zhuangyuan said as he pointed toward the person standing closest to the altar at the front of the crowd. It was an old man wearing silk clothes.

After a while, the people stopped praying and respectfully took the memorial tablets belonging to their ancestors and placed them on the tables they had prepared beforehand.

Soon, the hall was filled with their ancestral tablets that were placed on the tables.

There was a long table with many delicacies placed in front of all the memorial tablets. Li Huowang saw that they had prepared red candles, incense sticks, gold ingots, and yellow papers, placing them all in plates meant for their ancestors.

As if they were afraid that their offerings to their ancestors were not enough, there were even several paper dolls depicting them serving tea and water on both sides of the wall. They would most likely be placed next to the tables of the ancestors to serve them in the underworld.

“Old man Hu is so generous. To think that he would even hire a troupe to perform a show for his ancestors.”

“Yeah. No wonder old man Hu and those near him did not suffer from sickness and disasters these past few years. Looks like their ancestors are blessing them.”

“Sigh, I wonder if I will ever get such a grand treatment after I die.”

“Pray that your descendants end up earning a lot of money like old man Hu. Hiring a troupe to perform a show for the dead costs a lot of money.”

Listening to their conversations and seeing the grand ceremony in front of him, Li Huowang calmed down a little.

Looks like nothing will happen.

He leaned toward Lu Zhuangyuan and asked. "Old man, you've traveled the land for so many years; compared to the spirit we met in the forest, how much more frequently have you met a ghost?"

"Hm? Aren't they the same?" Lu Zhuangyuan was surprised by his question, his eyes wide with shock.

"What? They are two separate things. One is formed after a person has passed away, while the other..." Li Huowang stopped, not knowing how to explain it.

What Li Huowang understood was that regardless of whether it was the Mountain Grandmas or the Wandering Gods that Dan Yangzi had used to refine pills, or even the girl with tiny legs they had encountered in the forest, they were not ghosts. At least, he did not see them as ghosts.

Just as he was thinking about the difference between ghosts and those things, all of the memorial tablets belonging to the Hu family's ancestors had been placed onto the tables. Then, Hu Qinghe led a group of his family members and approached Lu Zhuangyuan.

"Troupe leader Lu, thank you for accepting my proposal. Jiaolang, please take some people and help him set up the stage."

"Thank you so much, and sorry for the inconvenience! You are much too kind."

"Troupe leader Lu, you should know the rules about performing for the dead, right? Once our ancestors appear to enjoy your show, us, their descendants, will have to leave this place and lock ourselves in the room. Please take care of our ancestral hall in the meantime," Old man Hu instructed patiently.

"Of course. Please rest assured; your ancestral hall is in good hands," said Lu Zhuangyuan, smacking his chest with pride.

Even though none of the Hu family members would be there, Lu Zhuangyuan would never dare to make a mistake. If something were to happen to the ancestral hall of the Hu family, they would bury him and his family alive.

“Oh, and once you start your performance, those in the realm of the living should not speak to the performers; this is because our ancestors should not feel like their show is being interrupted. As for what to perform... just perform something jovial and bubbly. My ancestors had shown me a dream where they said that they were bored by how monotonous everything was down there. Also, you don’t have to perform for the entire night. My son will come and place our ancestor’s memorial tablets back in their respective places during the fifth section of the night. You can rest after that.”

Lu Zhuangyuan was nodding like a chicken pecking grains. “No worries, old man Hu! We will not break the rules.”

With the help of the Hu family, the stage was set up quite quickly. There were only five people on the stage; Luo Juanhua was a girl and was not allowed into the ancestral hall tonight.

Under Hu Qinghe’s direction, the crowd soon dispersed and returned to their homes.

The sound of instruments soon started to echo in the ancestral hall. The Lu family had started their performance while Li Huowang remained backstage.

Time slowly passed, and the entire Wuli Gang soon turned quiet as the villagers went to sleep. The village was completely dark, with the exception of the ancestral hall, which was brightly lit with lanterns.

This was the first time Li Huowang had seen a performance for the dead. He peeked through the curtain to observe the surroundings outside.

It was quite eerie, even for him. The stage was bursting with action, but no sound came from the audience. Not even a single clap. There were only rows of black memorial tablets engraved with the names of the ancestors and the offerings meant for them.

Still, this was nothing compared to the Zephyr Temple.

From the looks of it, the Lu family was still inexperienced when dealing with this situation. In just a few minutes, Lu Juren had forgotten his script numerous times due to his anxiety. Lu Zhuangyuan, who was playing the gong, also made mistakes out of nervousness.

As time passed, they started to adapt to the situation, and the show became smoother and smoother.

Amidst the silence of the night, the sound of their singing resonated loudly within the hall and even outside.

Soon, Li Huowang sat down and closed his eyes to rest. He got bored and started humming along with their singing.

Soon, it was 9 pm. Li Huowang understood now that the people here separated the night into different sections; so, 9 pm–11 pm would be the second section of the night, 11 pm–1 am would be the third section, 1 am–3 am would be the fourth section, and 3 am–5 am would be the fifth section of the night. The rooster would usually start crowing at 5 am.

He yawned. For some reason, he was much sleepier than on other nights. Unfortunately, he couldn't sleep for the night since Lu Zhuangyuan had already hired him. So, he took out the sacred text and slowly started to examine it, trying to combat his sleepiness.

This had been his habit for the past few days; every time he needed to stand guard during the night, he would start examining the sacred text. He examined it again and again, but other than confirming that it was indeed some sort of scripture, he hadn't found anything else about it.

The second section of the night soon passed, and it was now the third section. The ancestral hall continued to remain normal as nothing unusual had happened.

Li Huowang raised his head, staring at Lu Zhuangyuan who was looking into the bronze mirror and doing his makeup.

His heart must be bleeding right now; he will have to pay me 6 pieces of silver for absolutely no reason.

He thought about it and figured that nothing would happen tonight. After all, this was the ancestral hall of the Hu family. The descendants of the Hu family had gone out of their way to invite the troupe to perform for their ancestors; there was no reason for the latter to cause any problems for them.

Just as Li Huowang had thought that tonight would be a peaceful night, something strange happened.

The singing came to a sudden stop without any warning.

Chapter 33 - Continue The Performance!

Sensing something amiss, Li Huowang's face stiffened. He immediately placed the sacred text on his back and opened the curtain to see what was happening.

He found everyone frozen in fear, regardless whether they were on stage or playing the instruments.

He followed their gaze, and was horrified. There, sitting on a stool was that 'thing'—the 'girl' with tiny feet whom they had encountered in the forest a few nights ago. 'It' was enjoying the performance as 'it' sat beside the black memorial tablets.

This damned thing followed us all the way here? Did it possess one of us?

"Keep going! Don't stop the performance!" Li Huowang said as he took one of the wooden stools and sat just below the stage, directly in front of 'it'.

Li Huowang's back gave the members of the Lu family a lot of courage. They took a deep breath and looked at each other with uncertainty. Then, through sheer will, they continued on with their performance.

Meanwhile, the 'thing' gaze concentrated its gaze on the stage. 'It' directly ignored Li Huowang's aggressive actions; it was almost as if it was really here just to enjoy the show.

If it doesn't do anything, then I won't do anything either. I want to see if it is still able to remain here when it's day time.

Li Huowang would only act if necessary; after all, giving even a single command to the Wandering God would mean having to give up three months of his lifespan.

A light fog gently embraced the ancestral hall, making the entire place feel slightly oppressive.

At that moment, 'it' suddenly moved. 'It' raised its plump right hand and took two of the red candles before placing them in 'its' mouth. The sound of candles being eaten rang out.

'It' ate quite quickly. Soon, all of the candles on the tables around it had been eaten by her.

The sound of the performance stopped. Lu Xiucan, who had been performing on stage, was close to fainting from fear. Muffled crying sounds could be heard.

Suddenly, the paper dolls placed by the Hu family started to move. The paper dolls were adorned with black hats and bright red cheeks as they started taking the plates filled with red candles from the other tables before placing them in front of 'it'.

"Hihihi~" At that moment, 'it' suddenly let out an eerily high-pitched laugh.

Everyone from the Lu family was paralyzed with fear, their bodies trembling uncontrollably.

"Don't stop! Keep performing!" At that moment, Li Huowang's angry voice exploded in the silent ancestral hall and dispelled their fears.

"Sing! A~~Yaaaa~" The oldest and the most composed of the group, Lu Zhuangyuan, started singing loudly. Under his lead, the sound of the instruments also resumed, becoming even louder than before.

They sang with all of their power, as if they were trying to drown the fear in their hearts. All of them sang till their veins started to bulge and sweat started dripping down from their foreheads.

'It' stopped laughing, staring blankly at Li Huowang and all of the paper dolls.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang ignored the paper dolls and continued to stare at 'it'.

The third section of the night soon passed and it was the fourth section of the night. The Lu family had been performing all this time, not daring to stop; their voices were hoarse and their throats were in pain, but they continued on.

Shit... It's still trying to drag this on? How long is it going to continue this way?

Li Huowang silently cursed.

Just as he was thinking about summoning a Wandering God to deal with 'it' even at the cost of three months of his lifespan, the situation changed once again. At that moment, the black memorial tablets started shaking and thumping on the tables.

Bata~ Bata~

The memorial tablets started thumping on the tables over and over. It sounded like rain hitting the ground.

At this point, the members of the Lu family almost collapsed from fear. It would already be very scary if one of the memorial tablets started moving, let alone all of them!

Seeing their reactions, 'it' chuckled. Soon, 'it' started roaring with laughter. 'Its' voice was so sharp that even Li Huowang's ears were starting to hurt.

However, when Li Huowang saw 'its' reaction, he suddenly smiled. "I think I understand now. Every single one of your actions were meant to scare them. There are two possibilities. One is that you like to scare others for entertainment; however, I don't think that's the case. The second possibility is that you feed on people's fear. After all, candles shouldn't be your main diet, right?"

When Li Huowang saw that 'thing' standing up in anger and staring daggers at him, he knew that he had guessed correctly.

"Old man, don't stop singing. Didn't old man Hu instruct you to perform something jovial? If you are afraid, just close your eyes and sing."

“Hihihi~ Do I look like a human or a god?” Seeing that ‘its’ plan had been discovered, ‘it’ started snarling and closed in on Li Huowang.

“You look like a bitch!” Li Huowang unsheathed his sword and rushed straight toward ‘it’.

Once he understood what ‘it’ wanted from them, all of his doubts about ‘it’ were dispelled. It seemed that the ‘thing’ wasn’t as strong as he had thought. ‘It’ was just toying with their hearts.

Soon, both of them clashed and Li Huowang swung his sword.

The cold blade of the sword easily split the ‘thing’ in half, and even the candles in ‘its’ stomach were split in half as they fell onto the ground.

At the same time, one half of ‘its’ body continued flying toward Li Huowang’s back.

It was trying to touch him!

But when the pale fingers were mere inches away from his back, ‘it’ suddenly recoiled from a searing pain.

Oh ho?

Li Huowang noticed what had happened; it seemed that the sacred text was capable of repelling such things!

Li Huowang let go of his sword and gripped the block that was engraved with the sacred text. He then swung it hard toward the thing’s face.

The ‘thing’ revealed an expression of fear and tried to dodge as the sacred text swung by it.

The situation had suddenly changed. Now, Li Huowang was the one holding the sacred text and chasing the thing. Li Huowang was the source of its fear now!

Within the ancestral hall, Li Huowang chased the ‘thing’ for quite some time.

Even though ‘it’ had tiny feet, ‘it’ ran at a shockingly fast speed. Li Huowang couldn’t even get close to ‘it’.

Li Huowang was already panting as he stared at the ‘thing’ across the table.

This can't go on any longer. Is there any way to chase it away?

“Fuck off! Don’t let me see your face again!”

The ‘thing’ stared at him angrily before moving to a dark corner of the ancestral hall and disappearing.

Li Huowang took a lantern and inspected the corner, but found nothing.

At that moment, Lu Zhuangyuan took the sword that Li Huowang had thrown away and ran over to give it to Li Huowang.

Just as Li Huowang sheathed the sword, he saw Lu Zhuangyuan’s smiling face sheepishly asking him, “Do I look like a human or a god? Hihhi~”

No wait! The performance hasn't stopped! This one is a fake!

However Li Huowang realized it too late.

Just as he reacted, the fake Lu Zhuangyuan pounced, its pale claws piercing through Li Huowang’s body.

Li Huowang felt a bone-chilling cold spread throughout his body as if he had been plunged into freezing water. His emotions fluctuated as everything around him turned dark.

Chapter 34 - The God Of Happiness

Just as Li Huowang was about to lose consciousness, he quickly grabbed the bronze bell hanging from his waist and swung his arm. The bell's signature piercing sound resounded, causing him to quickly snap back to consciousness.

Bang!

The back of Li Huowang's head hit the ground hard, his head ringing from the impact.

However, he ignored the pain and continued to ring the bell.

I almost got fooled by this thing!

Soon, the edges of the tables, the stage, and even the memorial tablets started wriggling before congregating onto a single spot.

Li Huowang pushed through the intense pain and pointed at the 'thing'. The Wandering God that he had summoned understood his order and pounced on the fake Lu Zhuangyuan.

Seeing that Li Huowang now had a helping hand, the 'thing' wanted to escape, but it was too late; the Wandering God had already arrived beside it.

But instead of attacking the body of the fake Lu Zhuangyuan, it pounced onto the ground and into its shadow.

The Wandering God's body appeared to be made from razor-sharp lines which it used to slice up the shadow into little pieces, causing the 'thing' to howl like a beast in pain and struggle on the floor.

So its real body is the shadow? No wonder it didn't die even though I cut it in half earlier.

Under the Wandering God's assault, the shadow dispersed, causing the fake Lu Zhuangyuan's body to deflate as it ultimately became a pile of black goo.

Just as Li Huowang thought that everything was over, the Wandering God quickly returned and circled around him.

What the? Is it not over?

Li Huowang had been prepared to stop ringing the bell, but seeing how it might not yet be over, he quickly swung it even harder.

Upon realizing that hiding wouldn't work, the 'girl' with the tiny feet appeared from a crack, staring angrily at him.

Oh? So it can split itself in half? It seems that the fake Lu Zhuangyuan was made by its other half.

Just as he had this thought, another 'girl' with tiny feet split from the body of the first one. Then, the 'thing' started splitting itself into more and more bodies!

Soon, they started splitting into numerous bodies, each getting smaller and smaller.

Li Huowang immediately ordered the Wandering God to attack all of them. At this point, the 'thing' was only the size of his palm.

However, it was futile. The Wandering God's attacks were much slower than the rate at which it was splitting. All of 'her' clones circled around Li Huowang as they continued splitting while chanting something, their bloody mouths opening and closing eerily.

"The God of Happiness is happy and laughing. He dresses jovially and greets everyone happily~ The God of Happiness dances and parties. All families change their couplets to greet him~ The God of Happiness is angry and sad. The skull he carries brightens even the seas~ The God of Happiness is hungry and thirsty; with a liver on the left arm and intestines on the right arm, the village elder greets the God of Happiness~!"

Just as 'they' finished chanting, all of them exploded into black goo that showered the entire area. The area around Li Huowang became pitch black.

While he didn't know what that 'thing' had done, he knew that something was definitely off. He stopped swinging the bell and tried to run. However, when he tried moving his feet, he found that he couldn't move them. It was as if his legs had been nailed to the ground.

At that moment, a soft force pushed his chin upward and forced him to stare toward the sky.

The sky was pitch black, but somehow, Li Huowang saw something moving in the darkness—something quite large.

The God of Happiness?

Just as he had that thought, something emerged from the darkness.

Oh shit! It must've detected my thoughts! I must escape!

Li Huowang wanted to escape, but his body refused to move. He strained his body as hard as he could, his breathing turning rapid as his veins began to bulge.

At that moment, his arm suddenly tore off his Daoist robe and was forced upward; it was as if he were greeting the 'thing' in the dark.

Meanwhile, the 'thing' in the darkness became clearer and clearer. Li Huowang could finally identify parts of its face! At the same time, his eyes started bleeding, and blood streamed down his face.

I cannot look at it any longer! I must close my eyes!

Li Huowang used all of his strength to no avail. He could see the head of the God of Happiness—that is, if that big mass of black goo could even be called a head.

Just as the 'thing' was about to emerge completely from the darkness, a peculiar sound rang out from behind it.

Tak tak~

The ‘thing’ in the darkness suddenly stopped and shrunk, almost as if something was pulling it back into the dark.

At the same time, the sudden sound of a rooster crow sounded all around them, and the dark sky shattered like a mirror.

Li Huowang finally regained control of his body as he cracked his bones and crumpled down to the ground. He was panting hard as he stared at the large stone bricks with both of his hands supporting his body.

Shit! What did that ‘girl’ with tiny feet summon? What just happened?

Many questions kept popping up in his mind.

He held onto the edge of a table and slowly sat down before looking back up into the sky; he saw nothing, almost as if everything had been an illusion.

Meanwhile, the sky was starting to grow bright. The fifth section of the night had passed. Soon, the members of the Hu family would come and place the memorial tablets of their ancestors back on the altars.

The stage was still filled with singing and dancing. Lu Zhuangyuan and the rest had performed for the entire night. Even though their voices were shaking and hoarse, they dared not stop.

Looking at the black memorial tablets, Li Huowang suddenly realized that the sound just now had been from them slamming onto the tables.

Li Huowang was shocked.

Did the ancestor’s of the Hu family help me?

He thought about it and felt that it might be a possibility, so he faced the memorial tablets before giving them his respect. “Thank you for the assistance.”

Just as he did so, the tablets once again started shaking and slamming the table lightly.

Seeing the increasingly strong slamming, Li Huowang took a step back, fully alert.

What the? Did I do something wrong? It's almost daytime now, so why aren't all of you going back?

Just as he was wandering about, all of the memorial tablets fell backward.

Then, a familiar voice rang out by his ears, chilling him to the core.

“My dear disciple.”

Chapter 35 - Confused

“Father! Father! Look! There’s braised meat!” Lu Xiucan had a meatball in his mouth but was already staring at the next plate that was coming to their table.

Just as the sizzling braised meat had just been served, six pairs of chopsticks stabbed into the plates. By the time the chopsticks left the plate, even the preserved vegetable under the pork had disappeared.

“Look at all of you! You are all eating as if you were starving ghosts! Eat slower, or people might think that we are a family with no manners,” said Lu Zhuangyuan.

“Dad, stop preaching. We rarely get a chance to eat such good food. And look at the meat on your chopsticks! You ate just as much as us!” The youngest son taunted his father, getting a solid whack on the head in the process.

Seeing his brother getting hit, Lu Juren quickly tried to calm the situation down. “Dad, it’s alright. Let them eat as much as they want. We went through a lot yesterday just so that we could have this one meal.”

The moment he said this, everyone who had performed yesterday revealed a solemn look on their faces.

Last night was way too frightening; it had been so frightening that they had nearly peed their pants out of fear. Luckily, they had such a strong Daoist handling the situation below the stage for them.

All of them turned to stare at Li Huowang, who was sitting outside all by himself.

Their gazes toward him were filled with admiration; if it wasn’t for him, they all might have died. The Daoist was quite young; so young, in fact, that he didn't even have a mustache. And yet, he was so strong.

At that moment, another item was served, once again drawing their attention to the food.

"Chicken! It's roasted chicken!" Their chopsticks once again started attacking the food on their plates.

Seeing how their chopsticks were almost about to shred the chicken, a smoke pipe blocked them and guarded the chicken. "Stop! Don't touch this chicken! I want to invite the young Daoist to come and eat with us."

"But dad... Daoists don't eat meat. Are you going to ask him to break the rules?"

"You stupid shit! Monks are the ones who can't eat meat! If I come back and see that the chicken has been touched by any of you, then be prepared to be whacked by me!" Lu Zhuangyuan stared at his youngest son before wiping his oily mouth with his hands. He then wiped his hands on the table before approaching Li Huowang.

"Young Daoist, hehe. Young Daoist?" His face was filled with wrinkles as he called out toward Li Huowang.

"Young Daoist, you worked quite hard last night. How about you join us to eat? The Hu family has prepared a lot of juicy and nutritious food for us."

Li Huowang was deep in his thoughts and turned to look at him before gingerly asking, "Old man, you saw how the memorial tablets moved on their own, right? I was not hallucinating all that, right?"

"Aiyo, young Daoist, I don't know about any of that. I didn't even dare to take a single glance toward you last night; I just closed my eyes throughout the performance."

Li Huowang sighed, recalling that singular sentence he had heard at the end. Even though it was faint, he could easily recognize the voice. It was the voice of his Master, Dan Yangzi. Only he would call him 'a dear disciple'.

He should be nervous about having heard his Master's voice; however, he was not nervous, just confused. As he was now, he wasn't even able to trust himself.

I know that I suffer from hallucinations. It would be reasonable to hear minor things like that, given that I haven't eaten a Black Taisui in quite a while. But then how should I explain the memorial tablets suddenly moving on their own? Or the God of Happiness that appeared and disappeared so suddenly?

Li Huowang thought back to how Dan Yangzi's body had contorted into that ugly creature.

Don't tell me that he really became an Immortal? No, that can't be it... The so-called method to become an Immortal was just some random garbage I came up with. How could it have been the correct method? Unless... he turned into something else? But then, what did he end up becoming? Why is he still following me?

Li Huowang was growing visibly irritated.

"Young Daoist? What were you thinking about? We are close enough now, aren't we? You can tell me if you have something that is bothering you."

Lu Zhuangyuan's voice pulled him back from his thoughts. He had made a decision.

Regardless of whether it's real or fake, there's nothing I can do about it right now. I need to go to Western Capital City and visit the Monastery first. If it's real, then maybe they will know what to do. I know far too little about the world.

"It's nothing, old man. Let's eat. I was just thinking about some random things."

Hearing that, Lu Zhuangyuan happily nodded. Then, both of them entered the room and went toward the dining table.

However, when they reached the table, Lu Zhuangyuan's face stiffened. Everything on the table, except for the chicken, had been eaten cleanly. The plates had even been licked!

“Aaaah~ That was such a nice meal! I guess this would be how an emperor feasts.” Lu Xiucai stretched his body as he unbuckled his belt, his mouth smeared with oil.

Lu Zhuangyuan could only chuckle, feeling embarrassed; after all, it wouldn’t really be nice to scold his son when there were outsiders around. He could only take the roasted chicken and place it before Li Huowang. “Young Daoist, the chicken is quite juicy. Forgive me for not being able to serve the rest of the dishes for you.”

Li Huowang smiled and started eating a piece of the chicken. “It’s alright. The chicken is plenty delicious.”

Li Huowang had just eaten a few bites when a crowd of people entered the room from the corridor. The man leading the group was Hu Qinghe, the old man who requested Lu Zhuangyuan’s services.

“Not bad. It seems that my ancestors are quite satisfied with your performance. Even the candles on the tables were eaten. This is a joyous sign!”

Listening to the praises, Lu Zhuangyuan chuckled humbly. “It was nothing much. It was something we could do.”

“Troupe leader Lu, if you are passing by again, please come to our house for a cup of tea.” Hu Qinghe said politely.

After he said that, he waved for a man beside him to show a tray covered in red cloth. He took off the red cloth and revealed ten pieces of silver.

“Here is the payment, just as we had agreed. Please receive it.”

“Aiyo! Thank you for your generosity. As long as we are alive, just send a word for us, and we will come as soon as we can!”

After old man Hu left them, the Lu family surrounded the tray, their eyes filled with greed as they stared at the pieces of silver.

Just as Lu Xiucai was about to touch the largest sum of money he had ever seen in his life, a smoke pipe whacked his hand.

Then, Lu Zhuangyuan took four of the pieces of silver and placed them into his clothes. As for the remaining six pieces, his eyes were filled with reluctance.

Still, he smiled and placed the tray containing the rest of the pieces of silver near Li Huowang, who was eating the chicken.

“Hoho, come, Young Daoist. We had agreed on splitting the reward 60-40. This is your portion of the payment.”

Chapter 36 - Donkey Cart

Li Huowang looked at the six pieces of silver and accepted them directly; after all, he needed the money.

“Young Daoist, please take your time eating. We will go and prepare first. We will depart tomorrow.”

After eating until they were full, the members of the Lu family felt groggy. They went back to rest and get some sleep since they hadn't slept at all last night.

After they left, Li Huowang was the only one left in the room. Staring at the roasted chicken that was even larger than his head, he called for the Hu family's servants. “Is there something I can use to store and carry this?”

Soon, Li Huowang exited Wuli Gang with a donkey cart filled with bags of food.

He had to properly budget the six pieces of silver. Even though this amount was not enough to buy a horse, it was still sufficient to buy an old donkey and a cart. At the very least, they would no longer have to carry food by themselves.

When Li Huowang came out of Wuli Gang, he saw that everyone was huddled in the rice field amidst the dried rice stalks; they hadn't entered the village as they were afraid of scaring the villagers.

At that moment, Li Huowang saw that they were roasting some sweet potatoes. He reached into the cart and took out the roasted chicken. “Here, eat this.”

The people in their group had been eating dry rations for so long that upon seeing the chicken, they exploded with happiness and rushed over. A single chicken was then portioned and shared between ten people. While they didn't have much, they ate it carefully, even going so far as to chew the bones as they ate it!

“Senior Li, where did the chicken come from? And the donkey cart? Just where did you go yesterday?” Bai Lingmiao asked while carefully chewing a piece of chicken.

Li Huowang lied down on a stack of dry rice stalks before slowly recounting the incident that happened yesterday.

After hearing how Li Huowang had risked his life to obtain these things, Bai Lingmiao placed down the piece of chicken and slowly approached him; she was worried about him.

“Senior Li, we are so sorry for dragging you down. If it wasn’t for us, there would be no reason for you to fight so hard.”

Li Huowang opened his eyes and looked at the girl wearing a green-colored cloth as a blindfold.

“It’s not your fault. Since that ‘thing’ could appear in the ancestral hall, it means that ‘it’ had been following us all this time. Even if ‘it’ hadn’t appeared yesterday, we would meet ‘it’ again sooner or later,” Li Huowang explained.

“Also,” Li Huowang paused and remembered the times he was stuck in his hallucinations back at the Zephyr Temple, “we still don’t know who will be dragging who in the future.”

He looked at the girl and gently held her hand.

Just as Bai Lingmiao was about to pry her hand off in embarrassment, she stopped.

Li Huowang slowly closed his eyes as he lay down on the dry rice stalks. Then, he gently loosened his grip on her hand.

However, just as he was about to let go of her hand, Bai Lingmiao’s soft hand tightened its grip on his hand.

They rested properly for a single night before the two groups resumed their journey. Their next destination was Jianye town. It would be the first proper town that Li Huowang would visit in this world.

“Young Daoist, the distance between Wuli Gang and Jianye town is not large. Based on our speed, we should be able to reach it in about four to five days,” Lu Zhuangyuan reported to Li Huowang.

Li Huowang turned around and looked at Zhao Wu, who was being carried on Simpleton’s back. “You are going home. Are you happy?”

He had heard before that Zhao Wu’s home was located in Jianye town. After traveling for the past few days, he had come to understand Zhao Wu a bit more. Zhao Wu was smart, but because of his body and the fact that he was illiterate, he was not able to show his full potential.

“Zhao Wu, we are about to reach your home. Shouldn’t you invite us to stay at an inn?” Puppy chuckled.

However, Zhao Wu’s reaction was unlike what everyone had expected. He just smiled bitterly and said, “So what if we are about to reach my home? I’m crippled. I can’t even carry anything. To the people at my home, I’m nothing but a parasite.”

Everyone fell silent the moment he said that; it was a truth that had been eating away at their hearts.

All the people in the Preparation Room, except Li Huowang, were more or less afflicted with some ailment. Even if they were to return back to their hometowns, they would still be shunned by others. While it felt amazing to have escaped from Zephyr Temple and from death, returning to their homes, which were filled with hostility, was not an entirely exciting prospect for them.

Seeing the atmosphere turned sour, Li Huowang turned around and told Zhao Wu, “Who said that you are useless? Since we have nothing to do while we are traveling, I will teach you how to refine some pills. Memorize as much as you can. Selling some of these pills back at home shouldn’t be too bad; at least, you won’t starve.”

Hearing this, Zhao Wu perked up, a deep thirst being reflected in his eyes. “Senior Li, I don’t want to learn how to refine pills. However, can you teach me how to read?”

“Why do you want to learn how to read? Isn’t it better to learn how to refine pills and become half a doctor? At least you can then earn a living.” Li Huowang was puzzled by his train of thought.

While being literate was extremely useful, it takes a normal person up to five years in school to learn how to read. It was an almost impossible task to make someone who couldn’t even write their own name become literate in just a few days. It would take years of effort!

“It’s alright! I will try and learn as much as I can!”

Facing Zhao Wu’s deep thirst for literacy, Li Huowang couldn’t really understand it. However, since Zhao Wu wanted to learn, he was happy to teach.

“Simpleton, place Zhao Wu on the cart. I will teach him.”

Since Zhao Wu didn’t even know any of the basics, Li Huowang could only teach him some common words and force him to memorize them.

He was teaching Zhao Wu quite intently when he realized that it had suddenly gotten quiet. He raised his head and saw that everyone was listening to his lectures, including the people of the Lu family.

Not only were they listening, they were even looking at him with eyes filled with respect; it was as if Li Huowang was doing something sacred.

“Erm... Young Daoist? Hehe~” Lu Zhuangyuan chuckled as he took out two preserved sausages while dragging his youngest son toward Li Huowang.

Just as Li Huowang wanted to see what Lu Zhuangyuan was about to say, a cloud of dust billowed from behind them.

Soon, a horse stopped in front of them before a plump man jumped down.

Lu Zhuangyuan recognized him as someone from Wuli Gang. He paid his respect to the man and said, “Aiyo! Aren’t you the youngest son of the Hu family? Where are you going in such a rush?"

"Nowhere! I just want to follow you! This way I can listen to your performances every day!"

The youngest son of the Hu family was quite excited. Even though he looked like an adult, his tone was still quite child-like.

"Aiyo~ Please don't make such jokes. Quickly go back and don't make your grandfather worry about your safety!"

"Don't worry! I will pay you!" He said as he took out a solid gold chain and forcibly placed it into Lu Zhuangyuan's hand.

Lu Zhuangyuan alternated between looking at the gold chain and the man, feeling quite conflicted.

However, a group of people riding on horseback soon arrived beside them.

"Father! Don't take me back! I refuse to go back! I want to become a performer!" said the Hu family's youngest son.

At that moment, the sound of a slap was heard as the youngest son of the Hu family was slapped by his father. Everyone was shocked to see his face swell up.

"You want to become a performer? Are you stupid?! They are the lowest of the low! If you become one, then I will personally kill you!"

As the man said that, he took the gold chain back and took his son before rushing back to Wuli Gang.

Once they left, Li Huowang stared at Lu Zhuangyuan, waiting to see what he was about to say.

Lu Zhuangyuan stood there in shame. He held the sausages in his hand and wanted to say something, but no words came out. It was the first time that the experienced old man looked just like a lost child.

In the end, he didn't say anything. He forced a smile before nodding. Then, he dragged his son back to his carriage, his back looking even more hunched than before.

Chapter 37 - The Nine Classes

They had left Wuli Gang quite some time ago when the narrow forest path finally became wide. Soon, they were accompanied by other carriages, carts, and even farmers carrying their own luggage.

Soon, the ground around them was covered in many footprints, and as they encountered an increasing amount of animal excrement, Li Huowang knew they were getting closer to Jianye town.

“Zhao Wu, do performers like the members of the Lu family have a very low status in society?” Li Huowang asked Zhao Wu, who was studying diligently.

Zhao Wu, who was using a stick to practice writing, stared at Li Huowang in surprise.

“Yeah, even though a lot of people clapped and cheered them on from below the stage, they are treated just like the prostitutes in run-down brothels. Liking them is one thing, but their status is an entirely different matter. Performers and troupes are considered the lowest among the nine classes,” whispered Zhao Wu while carefully looking toward the members of the Lu family who were in front of them.

“Really? What are the nine classes?” Li Huowang asked, feeling puzzled. If it wasn’t for that incident, he might never have known this.

“The people with the highest status are the emperors, the kings, and the ministers. The second-highest are the officials, the generals, and the soldiers. The third-highest are the nobles and the merchants. The fourth-highest are the people from the various sects. The fifth-highest are the artisans and the craftsmen. The sixth-highest are the doctors and the farmers. The seventh-highest are the shamans, the beggars, and the slaves. The eighth-highest are the robbers, the thieves, and the liars. Below them are the people belonging to the lowest class—the performers and the prostitutes. Not only is their status low, but even the treatment they receive is different. Those belonging to the bottom three classes are not allowed to marry into a wealthy family, are only allowed to wear certain types of clothes, are not allowed to ride horses or sedans, nor are they allowed to wear anything made with silks or brocades. They even have to be thrice as humble as the others in front of other officials.”

When Li Huowang heard how Zhao Wu could recite all that so easily, he was surprised. “To think that you know so much!”

“It’s nothing, really. I’ve lived in a town before, so this much is natural. That said, where were you living before this? All this should be common knowledge known by most of the people.”

Even before this, Zhao Wu had known that something was different about Li Huowang. Now, he finally had a chance to ask about it.

“I come from a very far place.” Li Huowang didn’t bother explaining. Either way, they would never understand.

Seeing how Li Huowang avoided giving him an answer, Zhao Wu did not press it any further.

“We are at least somewhat lucky; at the very least, our Emperor allows everyone to take the official exam regardless of their class or status. I’ve heard that in certain places, those from the bottom three classes are barred from taking it, meaning that their entire family would be forever stuck as members of the lower class—the performers can only continue to perform for their entire lives.”

“Is that so?” Li Huowang managed to learn something new about the world today.

“And what about me? As a Daoist, what class do I belong to?”

Li Huowang asked.

“Daoists are not considered a part of the nine classes. Instead, they are a part of the three religions. Most people would respect Daoists or avoid them altogether if they are afraid of them. After all, no one wants to get involved with the supernatural.”

Zhao Wu’s explanation reassured Li Huowang, causing him to stop thinking about taking off the Daoist robe he was wearing; since they would be traveling the lands, having the conspicuous Daoist robe should give them a lot of benefits.

“Oh right, Zhao Wu, what about someone like Dan Yangzi? Would his position be considered very high?” Li Huowang asked a very important question.

“I will have to be honest about that one; I don’t know about it either. Prior to being kidnapped by him, I had never known anyone as strong as him. I just thought that the things I had heard were exaggerated.”

“Really?” said Li Huowang.

Maybe information is not very fluid here. There should be quite a lot of people as strong as Dan Yangzi, but even Zhao Wu hadn’t heard of him before, and he is a local.

Li Huowang guessed that someone like Dan Yangzi was likely someone who was being suppressed by someone or some sect. If not, then he wouldn’t have had to run deep into the forest and secretly try to become an Immortal.

“Young Daoist! Look, we can see the gate! We will reach Jianye town soon!” shouted Lu Zhuangyuan suddenly.

Hearing Lu Zhuangyuan’s hollering, Li Huowang raised his head and looked forward.

After days of traveling, he finally saw a short wall covered in moss. The wall signified that they had reached their destination, Jianye town.

The Lu family managed to enter the town successfully, but Li

Huowang and the rest were not as lucky. Due to their appearances, the town guards soon came up to confront them.

The head of the guards drew his swords and stared at Li Huowang carefully. “Hold up! Stop! What are you?”

“Headguard Yan! It’s me! These are people I know. They are good people. They came here to send me back to my home.” Zhao Wu greeted the headguard with respect.

Seeing that it was Zhao Wu, the headguard lowered his swords; he knew that they were not enemies.

“Zhao Wu, where have you been? Also, ask your friends to put on something to cover themselves up. Don’t let them scare the people in the town.”

“Thank you, headguard Yan. How is my family? Are they doing well?”

“Yeah, they are doing well. Your second sister even got married to a good family. Go back and find them.”

In order to avoid getting into any more trouble, Li Huowang decided to follow Zhao Wu to a stall that was selling bamboo hats with black veils and buy a few of them.

However, even after wearing those hats, they were still quite conspicuous. Even so, they were not as scary as before.

After confirming with Lu Zhuangyuan about when they would be departing again, Li Huowang asked Zhao Wu, “Where is your house? Let’s go and find your family first.”

As everything around him was familiar to him, Zhao Wu got more and more excited; he didn’t need a bamboo hat since everyone in the village knew about him.

Zhao Wu crawled out of the cart with all his strength and leaped down, his four limbs twisted in different directions.

Puppy was just about to support him when Li Huowang told him not to. Instead, Li Huowang passed his sword to Zhao Wu before taking out the pieces of paper containing the last words of the dead guiding drug ingredients and started sorting them one by one.

Meanwhile, Zhao Wu used the sword to support himself as he stumbled back to his home.

While Jianye town looked quite big with all the people, it wasn't really that big; Zhao Wu managed to arrive at his home quite quickly.

His family managed a small business as grain dealers. Seeing his family working inside the house, Zhao Wu shouted in a tearful voice, "Dad! I'm home!"

At that moment, Zhao Wu's shaking voice attracted the attention of the people inside.

"Fifth brother!" A strong man who had been carrying a bag of rice while shirtless immediately dropped his cargo and ran toward Zhao Wu, hugging him tightly.

Soon after, a girl ran out from inside the house, her braids dangling in the air. She too started circling around Zhao Wu excitedly.

While they were embracing each other emotionally, Li Huowang, who had been observing everything from the sidelines, noticed something; other than the two siblings, the rest of the people in the house were completely calm. This wasn't like a normal house.

"Senior Li, what's wrong?" Bai Lingmiao, who had always been sensitive, immediately sensed that something was wrong with Li Huowang.

However, Li Huowang just patted the back of her hand and said 'nothing' in a small voice.

Chapter 38 - Jianye Town

“Fifth brother, quickly come in! Where have you been all this time? Both I and sixth sister have been so worried about you. We thought that something had happened to you.”

Seeing the topless man carrying Zhao Wu inside, Li Huowang followed them; he had a feeling that the situation was not as simple as it looked.

“Why are you back?”

As soon as Li Huowang heard what the man with the abacus said in such a calm voice, he knew that he was right.

The excited expression on Zhao Wu’s face immediately disappeared, replaced with a moody one. His voice shook as he spoke, “Father, I was kidnapped by someone and brought far away. My friends over there helped me so that I could come back.”

Looking at the group of people standing in front of the entrance with their black veiled bamboo hats, he grunted impatiently. “Go away! Shoo! How am I supposed to run my business when you are all blocking the entrance?”

Li Huowang was quite pissed at that man’s attitude.

Why are you treating us rudely? We are not related to you in the slightest!

At that moment, Li Huowang took the sword that was in Zhao Wu’s hands and unsheathed it before pressing down the sharp blade onto the table, almost splitting it apart.

“What are you trying to do? The head guard is my cousin!” Zhao Wu’s father crawled backward in fear.

Li Huowang took out a piece of silver and shaved a small piece of it before placing it right in front of Zhao Wu’s father. He then pinched the small piece of silver and pushed it toward the man.

“I’m here to buy rice!”

Now in the backyard of the grain shop, Zhao Wu was pouring tea for Li Huowang. “Calm down, Senior Li. That’s just how my father is; however, he has a good heart.”

Li Huowang drank the tea in one go. He couldn’t afford to care too much about this matter. After all, there were other matters to deal with besides sending Zhao Wu home.

“These are the last words of the guiding drug ingredients whose families should be located within the kingdom. Since you know Jianye Town the best, find a reputable escort service and send these to their respective recipients,” Li Huowang said as he took out eight pieces of paper and passed them to Zhao Wu.

Zhao Wu received the pieces of paper with both hands and nodded. “Don’t worry, Senior Li! I will make sure that this is done properly!”

“Sure. You should rest well in your home now. We are leaving.” Li Huowang said as he stood up.

“So soon? How about having lunch at my house? After all, it was thanks to all of you that I could make it back safely.”

Zhao Wu was quite sad about parting ways; it was very likely that this would be their last time meeting each other.

“No need to trouble yourself.” Li Huowang patted Zhao Wu’s shoulders. Based on the attitude of Zhao Wu’s father, it was likely that having lunch here would be way too troublesome.

“Remember to memorize the words that I’ve taught you in these past few days, especially your name. At the very least, you will not be completely illiterate if you are able to at least write your name.”

Just as Li Huowang was saying goodbye, one of the guiding drug ingredients, who had black hair all over her body, whispered to Zhao Wu, “Make sure to find out and confirm if it was your dad who had sold you off; it might not have been just a simple kidnapping.”

These words shocked everyone, leaving them unable to say anything. It was only after Zhao Wu’s third brother brought them their rice that they left.

They were walking on the streets, trying to find an inn to stay in.

“Why do you think that Zhao Wu was sold off by his own father?” Li Huowang turned and asked the girl. The girl was afflicted with hypertrichosis. She usually stayed silent, but her words today had shaken everyone.

“Even a tiger would care for its cub. Maybe he’s not that evil?” Li Huowang continued.

Li Huowang had just said that when the girl trembled. With a voice filled with sadness, she said, “A tiger wouldn’t abandon its cub! But humans are much more evil than tigers! I was sold off by my parents!”

Everyone stopped and stared at her in shock.

“Two pieces of silver! For just two pieces of silver, they sold me off! They didn’t even turn to look back at me!” she continued in a trembling voice.

Sensing the pain in her voice, Bai Lingmiao carefully walked over to her and hugged her, gently patting her back to calm her down.

Li Huowang remained silent for a moment before he said, “Since they already sold you off, do you still want to go back?”

“Yes! Absolutely!” The girl clenched her teeth and growled.

Sensing her agitation and rapid breathing, Li Huowang somehow knew that her reason for going home was different compared to the rest of them.

“Tong Lai Inn. Let’s rest here tonight.” Li Huowang pointed at a signboard on the left and walked in.

“Welcome, my dear guests. Would you like to just rest for a while or stay the night?”

“We are staying the night. How much is it?”

“We have three types of rooms. The deluxe room includes meals and costs 90 coins. The superior room costs 60 coins, but doesn’t include meals. The normal room costs 20 coins, but it’s like a dormitory. I see that you have seven adults and five children. For a group of 12 people, I would recommend choosing four superior rooms. Those rooms would be large enough, allowing three people to sleep in them comfortably. It would also be safer if each child is supervised by two adults.”

“Ok, let’s just go with what you recommend.”

“Alright! Twelve guests! Four superior rooms~ The rooms are upstairs; please watch your step as you climb up the stairs.”

Soon, it was nighttime, and Li Huowang was silently observing the people walking on the streets outside the window. He finally had time to relax after traveling for so long. This was a good opportunity to observe the strange world he was in.

Strong men guiding horses using reins, a scholar holding a folding fan, children with lanterns, and even a hunchbacked man selling food he was carrying on his shoulder pole.

Everything seemed so real yet so awkward; it was as if it just didn’t fit.

The faces of the various strangers soon started to become blurred. Li Huowang continued staring until he saw a familiar face, immediately causing his muscles to tense up in shock.

He had just seen Yang Na!

Her pretty face was wet with tears; she was crying and gasping for breath as she screamed, “Huowang! Wake up!”

“Huh?!” He fell backward from the shock but immediately got up before rushing back to the window and looking outside once again.

Unfortunately, he found out that it wasn’t Yang Na, but just another girl that looked like her.

“Yeah... Even I've aged this much in this world. If Yang Na really existed here, how could she still be a young girl...”

Li Huowang slid down with his back against the wall, his eyes looking soulless as he stared at the wooden beams of the room. “Are my hallucinations coming back?”

Suddenly, there was a knock on his door.

“Come in. The door is unlocked.” Li Huowang thought that it might be Puppy who was supposed to sleep with him, but instead, it was Bai Lingmiao who entered the room.

She smiled as she showed him something wrapped in lotus leaves. Li Huowang opened it and saw that there were several hot buns in it.

“Senior Li, you must be hungry. Please eat some buns,” said Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang ate them one by one. He was indeed hungry.

Meanwhile, Bai Lingmiao was holding the lotus leaf and buns in her hands as she sat beside him and stared at him quietly, passing him another bun every time he finished eating the previous one.

“What a wonderful place. To think that someone is still selling buns so late at night,” Li Huowang said, feeling curious.

“Is that so? I think it's quite normal to sell buns even at night. However, if we are talking about something really special, it would be Simpleton dipping his buns in vinegar before eating them!”

“Haha. Wonder where he is from. To think that he has such weird dining habits.”

At that moment, Li Huowang realized something as he was talking with Bai Lingmiao. “Wait, I didn't give you any money. How did you buy these?”

Bai Lingmiao's eyes flickered, but she still gently placed the food on her legs before taking out a few pieces of silver from her waist and showed them to Li Huowang.

“Senior Li, I sold the golden anklet. You are already working so hard for us. This is the least I could do for you.”

Chapter 39 - Wild

Staring at the pieces of silver in Bai Lingmiao's hands, Li Huowang immediately took out another piece of silver and gave it to her.

However, before he could even say anything, Bai Lingmiao hurriedly told him, "The anklet has already been melted. I saw it with my own two eyes. There is no way to buy it back."

Seeing how shocked Li Huowang was, Bai Lingmiao chuckled as if she had finally won against him. She then placed all the silver in Li Huowang's hands.

"It's fine. The anklet was just something my mom gave me as an accessory. It was not some family heirloom."

Seeing Bai Lingmiao insisting that it was alright, Li Huowang did not ask about it any more. He counted all the pieces of silver before keeping them safely. "Once everything has died down, I will buy you an even bigger one."

"Ok! I'm looking forward to it!" Bai Lingmiao smiled and nodded.

Just then, the door opened, and Puppy entered the room. He saw that the two of them were in a corner of the room and immediately turned around. "Oops, sorry. Wrong room. I will head out now."

Bai Lingmiao blushed before pushing Puppy away and running off.

On the other hand, Puppy just chuckled as he walked into the room once again. "Senior Li, even though Senior Bai is afflicted with albinism, that shouldn't be an issue when it comes to marrying her. Her heart and personality are much more important. Please don't leave her behind."

Li Huowang was too lazy to argue with him. “Stop babbling. Wash up and go to sleep. We finally have the chance to sleep in a bed.”

In his dream, Li Huowang was walking through a forest as he walked in the direction of a light. He used his sword to chop down the bushes and the trees in his way as he approached the light.

When he reached the source of the light, he realized that it was Bai Lingmiao, his mother, and Yang Na. All three of them were roasting sweet potatoes by a campfire.

Looking at the heartwarming scene, he sighed and approached them.

At that moment, however, the sky suddenly turned dark and Li Huowang saw a towering monstrosity—it was Dan Yangzi with his three heads and feathered body!

“Hahaha! My dear disciple! Not bad! You brought all of the guiding drug ingredients.”

The monstrosity that was Dan Yangzi laughed and picked up a stone pillar even larger than his body. Then, he smashed the pillar down toward the campfire.

“No wait!”

At that moment, Li Huowang woke up, completely drenched in cold sweat. He gasped for air and calmed down, realizing that it had all been a nightmare.

“Senior Li, you woke up? I bought some dumplings for you. Eat them while they are still hot.” Puppy, who had been looking at the streets while Li Huowang was sleeping, retracted his head from outside the window.

“What is the time right now?” Li Huowang asked as he clasped the side of his head to soothe his headache while looking at the dumplings on the table.

“It’s just past 9 AM. You could have slept for a while longer; after all, we are not starting our journey today so soon.”

Li Huowang ate the dumplings one by one and even drank the soup placed in the porcelain bowl. He finished eating in no time. “Who said that we don’t have anything to do? Let’s go and buy some of the supplies that we will need for our journey.”

The scene he saw in his nightmare once again flashed through his head. Li Huowang told Puppy, “I will take someone else with me to buy the supplies. Meanwhile, I need you to ask Lu Zhuangyuan and see when we will be starting our journey again. The sooner the better. If they can’t travel again anytime soon, then we will have to leave without him.”

Li Huowang had some silver leftover after he bought the donkey and the cart. Adding in the silver he got from Bai Lingmiao, there would be no issue purchasing some extra supplies. At the very least, they needed to buy some sheets and blankets. It was tough sleeping in the wilderness without them. More often than not, his back would be warm while the front of his body would be chilly as he slept by the campfire.

He also needed to buy a simple pot. Then, at the very least, they would be able to cook something rather than having to munch on dry rations.

Li Huowang bought many things, to the point that their cart had no space left. When he reconvened with Lu Zhuangyuan at the gate of the town, Li Huowang had even purchased another donkey cart.

“Hoho? Young Daoist, you are quite talented. To think that your assets are growing so fast as you travel. Another year and a half, and you might just end up having an entire caravan.” Lu Zhuangyuan didn’t forget to praise Li Huowang as they traveled.

“Old man, is the Western Capital City far from Jianye town?” Li Huowang asked as they traveled on the wide dirt road.

The road was wide, and there were many other travelers—it wasn’t just Lu Zhuangyuan and Li Huowang’s groups. There were many others who were carrying their belongings as they traveled. It seems that everyone was traveling toward the Western Capital City.

“It’s not too far. We should arrive there in another ten days or so.” Lu Zhuangyuan smiled as he recalled something good that happened to him.

Li Huowang nodded. “About the Monastery, other than everyone going there to pray, what else do you know about it?”

“Haiya... It’s a Monastery. They are all the same, with older monks leading the younger monks to be vegetarian and to chant sutras.”

Li Huowang sighed. It seemed like he had no choice but to personally go and check the place; someone like Lu Zhuangyuan, who was busy trying to make ends meet and living as a commoner, would definitely not be an expert on such topics.

“Young Daoist, look, there is a Monk just up ahead. He’s... peeing underneath the tree. Why not ask him? Maybe he’s a Monk from the Monastery.”

“Huh?” Li Huowang turned to look toward the direction that Lu Zhuangyuan was pointing. Sure enough, there was a Monk.

When Li Huowang approached the Monk, the Monk also turned around to face him. The robe that the Monk was wearing was quite filthy.

When Li Huowang saw the Monk’s face, his brows furrowed uncontrollably; rather than a Monk, the other person looked more like a bald beggar. He looked absolutely filthy and ragged. His Monk robe was even riddled with holes.

“Amitabha. Is there a reason you approached me?” The filthy man opened his mouth, showing his yellow teeth. He was even missing one of his front teeth.

“Are you a Monk?” asked Li Huowang.

“Yes, I am a Monk!” The old Monk replied as he held the prayer beads around his neck that were made with fruit seeds.

“May I ask which Monastery you are from?” Li Huowang was quite suspicious about him.

“I’m not from any Monastery. That’s why I’m traveling up north. I heard that there are many Monasteries there, and I want to become a Monk there. I heard that they even feed you for free!”

When he heard such a response, Li Huowang nodded and went back to his group. He had a hunch.

But just when Li Huowang had decided not to bother the fake Monk any further, the Monk approached Li Huowang instead.

“Are you looking for a Monastery as well? But aren’t you a Daoist? Daoists don’t really believe in Buddha, do they?”

Don’t tell me he’s trying to make me lower my guard?

Li Huowang instantly increased his alertness while smacking the rump of his donkeys; he had everyone walk faster and ignore the old Monk.

Unfortunately, Simpleton didn’t know what was wrong and just continued talking to the old Monk.

“You... You didn’t bring... bring any food? You... will...will starve!”

“Why would I? There are many mushrooms, fruits, and vegetables in the forest.”

“I’ve... I’ve eaten wild fruits before too! And...”

“Simpleton, don’t talk to him.” Li Huowang interrupted them.

“Oh.” Simpleton nodded in understanding.

Without anyone talking to him, the old Monk left. At the same time, Li Huowang sighed in relief and released his grip on the bronze bell hidden in his sleeves. He needed to be alert at all times in this weird world—regardless of whether the other person was truly an idiot or not.

After walking for two hours, it was finally mid-day. At this point, many people walked off the path and sat under the trees, munching on their ration. Li Huowang and his group did the same.

Even though he was anxious to continue traveling, it was safer to travel in a large group.

He then passed out the freshly bought buns to everyone; they ate the buns with some pickled vegetables.

He had just drunk some water from the water gourd that Bai Lingmiao had passed on to him when he realized that someone was missing. “Huh? Where’s Simpleton?”

“He went into the forest to pee. However, why is he still not back? Did he go for number two instead? Simpleton! What are you doing there?”

When Puppy shouted into the forest, Simpleton’s large head popped out from behind a tree. He was munching on something.

“What are you eating?” Li Huowang asked, feeling confused.

“Some... Some free... free rice... in the forest! No... No money needed!” Simpleton just said that before once again hiding behind the tree.

Translator's Thoughts

The old monk look like. @格子的乱七八糟

Chapter 40 - Midnight

“Hmm? What is he saying?” Li Huowang went and checked on Simpleton.

As soon as he walked into the forest, he was shocked by what he saw—Simpleton and the old Monk were squatting down in front of a small mound of dirt, eating something. There were a few pieces of yellow paper weighed down by a rock and placed on the mound.

Li Huowang tried suppressing his anger as he kicked Simpleton. “Get up! How dare you eat the food people made to offer to the dead?! Do you have a death wish?! Didn’t I tell you not to talk to him?!”

Simpleton stood up awkwardly. “I... I didn’t... didn’t talk to him.”

“Kneel down and apologize to the grave!” Li Huowang ordered.

After Simpleton had apologized to the grave, Li Huowang pulled Simpleton up with only his hands.

This was a strange world with many supernatural beings. He didn’t dare to risk anything. It would be bad if something were to happen just because he didn’t take care of this properly.

Li Huowang unsheathed his sword and pointed it at the old Monk. “I don’t care what your goal is, but leave me and my people alone, or you will regret it!”

Before the old Monk could even say anything, Li Huowang had pulled Simpleton away.

“I’m just a Monk.” The old man mumbled as he continued eating the food that was meant for the dead.

Everyone soon resumed their journey. Meanwhile, Li Huowang’s face was serious as he started giving orders. “Don’t sleep too soundly these coming few nights. We might have trouble.”

Even though Simpleton had apologized, no one knew what kind of attitude the thing in the grave had; Li Huowang didn't want to risk it.

Hearing what he had said, the rest of them understood and nodded their heads.

As the sun started to set, everyone stopped their journey and went into the forest to find some firewood. Li Huowang made sure that the fire burned extra bright today. He even asked some people to chop some extra firewood today.

There was no moon, and the surroundings were pitch black. The tree branches swayed in the wind, as if there were numerous things hiding in the darkness, watching them.

As more and more time passed, his surroundings got quieter and quieter. Soon, everyone was fast asleep.

However, Li Huowang was still awake, almost as if he was waiting for something.

Not only was he wary of the dark forest, but he was also wary of the old Monk.

If something were to emerge from the grave to haunt them, then it would probably find the old Monk first.

It might actually be good if something were to come. At least I would then have an opportunity to see what the old Monk's true identity is.

The first half of the night soon passed and came into the second half of the night. This was the time when everyone would be the most groggy from sleep.

"Senior Li, that place... I think I just saw a face." Puppy's voice shook as he spoke. He was on guard duty along with Li Huowang.

However, when Li Huowang quickly scanned the darkness, he saw nothing.

"Are you sure?" whispered Li Huowang.

Puppy swallowed his saliva and replied, "I'm not sure... maybe

I just saw something else.”

“Stay quiet, and don’t talk,” Li Huowang said as he pretended to tend to the fire while keeping an eye on that spot.

After some time, under the glow of the fire, he saw an ugly face emerging from the darkness with a cruel smile on its face.

What made Li Huowang shudder was the fact that more and more faces slowly emerged from the darkness. At the same time, a metallic reflection could be seen underneath their faces from time to time.

“Wait, a metallic reflection?” Li Huowang immediately stood up and threw a flaming branch in their direction. “Stop! Who are you people?!”

Li Huowang’s shout shook everyone awake from their sleep.

As the flaming branch landed close to the faces, Li Huowang saw that they had hands and feet. They were humans!

At this point, it was not only Li Huowang who saw them, everyone else did too. At the same time, some of them also saw the blades in their hands and shouted, “Bandits! Run!”

This shout pierced the darkness, and everyone started acting immediately; everyone dispersed as fast as possible.

“Shit! We’ve been spotted! Quickly bring the horses!” The bandits immediately ran after them.

“Run into the forest! Their horses can’t run well there!” shouted the old Monk.

Hearing the old Monk, everyone rushed into the forest.

Li Huowang and the rest ran too, but their donkey cart was not as fast as horses.

Hearing the thundering sound of horse hooves, Li Huowang turned back and saw a bandit on a horse swinging his blade toward an old lady.

“We have to fight!” Li Huowang shouted before immediately taking out a pill and eating it, the warm feeling once again coursing through his body.

Then, Li Huowang leaped toward the bandit.

At the same time, the old Monk suddenly appeared beside the old woman and pushed her down.

The bandit on the horse huffed and pulled on the reins, causing the horse to raise its front feet as it attempted to stomp the people on the ground.

The bandit smiled cruelly, awaiting the bloody mess that would soon come. He loved stealing and toying with women.

But in the next moment, he saw someone rushing toward him and punching his horse.

The horse neighed in pain and changed its direction, causing its hooves to slam heavily on the right of the old Monk.

Meanwhile, the bandit was powerless to do anything as he fell off the horse. At the same time, he saw the head of the horse suddenly explode, shocking him immensely.

Then, with a dull thud, his head exploded as well.

Meanwhile, when they saw that their comrade was in danger, the other bandits whistled to call for reinforcements.

On the other hand, Li Huowang needed to make sure the bandits realized that they had targeted the wrong crowd while Dan Yangzi's pill was still effective.

As the sound of fighting resounded in the dark night, the bandits hurriedly escaped after a few of them died.

"Retreat! He's too strong! He might be someone from the Surveillance Bureau!"

Li Huowang stood there as he gasped for air, his knuckles covered in blood.

Then, he turned around and looked at the old Monk. After this fight, he knew that the old Monk was just a plain old Monk and nothing else.

Under Li Huowang's gaze, the old Monk stood up and approached one of the people who had been cut down by the bandits before kneeling down and chanting something.

Li Huowang walked over and tried to hear what he was chanting.

“Amitabha, Amitabha, Amitabha...”

He was chanting “Amitabha” over and over again with a weird pronunciation.

After chanting it tens of times, the old man walked into the forest and dug a grave for the deceased.

Chapter 41 - Monk

On the pitch-black dirt road, Li Huowang carried a torch and led the others onward. The night was still dark, yet none of them felt sleepy after their previous experience; they were too shaken to even think about going to bed. Now, their donkey cart was loaded with some sliced up horse meat as well. Aside from a few silver pieces they looted from the corpses of the bandits, this too was also a part of Li Huowang's spoils of war.

"We've traveled enough for today; let's rest here till dawn. It's unsafe to continue traveling during the night," Li Huowang ordered before quickly stacking the torches together to form a new bonfire. "Try to get some rest even if you can't fall asleep. After all, we need to continue traveling tomorrow. Conserve your energy. I'll take the first watch duty for now."

Soon, the sound of donkey hooves and footsteps faded, and the dirt road once again became quiet. Sitting by the campfire, Li Huowang turned to look at the road they had just come from; it was pitch-black.

From the looks of it, that old beggar of a Monk will only come over after burying the dead.

As Li Huowang recalled what had just happened, he could not help but feel a sense of awe at the chaos that presided over this place. All sorts of dangers lurked around, yet there was no unity between the members of the same race; rather, mutually killing each other was quite common.

He used his sword to stab the nearly-extinguished campfire before throwing in some firewood from beside him.

As some time passed, some of those people scattered in the forest gradually converged toward Li Huowang's bonfire. Soon, there were quite a few smaller bonfires beside theirs.

Members of the Lu family were not among the figures of the returnees, but Li Huowang was not worried in the least; when the bandits had appeared, they had been the quickest ones to flee the scene. Lu Zhuangyuan could definitely be considered experienced. Even though he was so stingy, he still chose to have horses pull his carts. He must have considered the possibility of encountering such a situation.

Time trickled by, and the sky gradually brightened. When the others woke up, they began to grill the horse meat for breakfast before getting ready for their journey. Horse meat was still meat, even if it was not the most delicious, and was thus quite helpful in replenishing their strength.

As they were eating, a trembling figure walked over from behind them. Li Huowang let his guard down ever so slightly upon seeing the appearance of the person. It was the old Monk from before, and it seemed like he had spent the entire night burying people. The morning dew had soaked his tattered monk robes, causing him to shiver from the cold. He slowly approached a nearby bonfire and crouched down, huddling himself into a ball.

The Monk smiled innocently when he noticed Li Huowang looking at him.

Li Huowang's sense of hostility toward the Monk lessened when he thought about the Monk's self-sacrificial actions to rescue others last night. From the looks of it, this old Monk was one of those kind-hearted people that had a hard time surviving in this dangerous world. Even so, be it Li Huowang or anyone else, everyone enjoyed dealing with such kind-hearted people.

The Monk hurriedly reached out his hand to retrieve the bun that Li Huowang passed to him. As he gnawed on it, he said, "May Buddha bless you."

Li Huowang was curious, "Which Buddha are you referring to?"

“Huh? Isn’t Buddha just Buddha? Are there different Buddhas?” The old Monk asked, slightly perplexed.

“Ah, just eat quickly. It’s rare to find someone like you out in this world. I hope that you’re not lying to me,” said Li Huowang.

“How can I lie to others? I’m a Monk, and Monks do not cheat others.” The old Monk asserted firmly.

“You only know how to chant Amitabha, and don’t even know which Buddha you believe in. Just what kind of Monk are you?”

“Scholar Sun said that Monks are bald, so I shaved my head. Tailor Wang said that Monks are not allowed to get married, so I didn’t! Liu Pukuai said that Monks are not allowed to eat meat, so I don’t eat meat! I saw other Monks chanting Amitabha, so I just followed their example. I’ve done it all, so how come I’m not a Monk?”

Li Huowang chuckled upon hearing all that; from the looks of it, the old Monk was very earnest in his explanations. This Monk was even worse at pretending to be a Monk than he was at pretending to be a Daoist. “But doing all this does not mean that you are a Monk.”

The old beggar was stumped, then raised his half-eaten bun and looked solemnly at Li Huowang. “Then tell me, what should a Monk be like?”

Li Huowang opened his mouth to reply, but could not give an answer; this Monk’s words seemed to hold a hint of truth amidst his ignorance.

For some reason, Li Huowang saw a glimpse of Dan Yangzi in the beggar—both were persistent in their beliefs despite their ignorance.

“I guess you should be illiterate?”

“How did you know? Are all Daoists good at figuring things out?”

“Keke. Why are you so bent on becoming a Monk?”

“Back then, if not for a Monk that saved me, I would have long since departed from this world. Since that day, I swore that I would become a Monk! I will become a good Monk!”

In the midst of their conversation, Li Huowang saw the Lu family members rushing back toward them from a distance. He stood up and patted his bottom before walking in their direction.

There were no more mishaps during the rest of their journey. The old Monk quietly followed along, and even gnawed on wild plants whenever he was hungry. Li Huowang would occasionally spare him a bun or two.

After over ten days like that, a city even more magnificent than Jianye town appeared before them—they had arrived at Western Capital City.

The city walls made of green-colored bricks stood tall and majestic. They all felt a sense of awe when looking up from the city gate entrance.

We’ve finally arrived.

Li Huowang heaved a sigh of relief when he saw the city gates. Fear and uncertainty had plagued them throughout their journey, but at least the scene from his nightmares had not appeared.

“Young Daoist, the inns in Western Capital City are very expensive. I’ll bring you to one that I know; it’s definitely cheaper,” Lu Zhuangyuan said. Just as he was about to walk toward the tall city gates, he was pulled back by Li Huowang.

“Hold on, which Monastery did you mention before?” Li Huowang asked eagerly. This was his most important objective in coming to this place.

Under Lu Zhuangyuan’s guidance, Li Huowang headed to the most prosperous Monastery in Western Capital City—the Righteous Monastery.

Even before he could see the Monastery, Li Huowang could already smell the unique smell of incense burned at Buddhist sites.

The wide alleyways also became more and more crowded with people from all ages and backgrounds.

Upon seeing the incense sticks held by all the people, Li Huowang immediately understood that these people were all here to worship Buddha.

“Has this Monastery’s incense always been so popular?” asked Li Huowang.

A nearby worshiper heard his question toward Lu Zhuangyuan, and interjected, “Of course! Righteous Monastery’s Bodhisattva is very effective! My daughter-in-law conceived after worshiping here just once.”

“And the masters here are very kind. They often distribute porridge among the poor,” interjected another worshiper.

“That’s right. It’s truly a blessing to have such a good Monastery in the Western Capital City,” interjected yet another worshiper.

Translator's Thoughts

And here we see Zhao Wu. Not gonna lie, the artist is really good at this. @格子的乱七八糟

Chapter 42 - Monastery

In Li Huowang's memory, most monasteries were built deep in the mountains. It was much rarer to see one built in the city. However, he couldn't be bothered about all these things; all he cared about right now was the name of the monastery that the worshiper had just mentioned, "Righteous Monastery?"

Li Huowang immediately recalled the conversation that Zheng Kun had with Dan Yangzi before they died. They seemed to have been chased by the monks of this Righteous Monastery previously.

His heart started beating faster when he realized that he had found the right place; after going through so many things on their journey, at least they had finally arrived.

The view before them suddenly changed as they turned another corner. Clean and neat stone slabs paved the way to a wide staircase. A majestic temple stood at the end of the staircase that had hundreds of steps, incense smoke wafting around it.

A black plaque stood above the tall temple doors, with a name written on it in red words—The Righteous Monastery. Right below it was a couplet:

"The seed of virtue blossoms, Buddha's body's grace,
On pure waters, the moon reflects with jade-like embrace."

With the numerous lit-up incense sticks, the entire temple was shrouded in white smoke, giving it a heavenly feeling.

"Young Daoist, I can't accompany you there, so please go on ahead. Right, the Western Capital City is different from Jianye town; here, there's a curfew at night. So, please remember to come back before nightfall," said Lu Zhuangyuan.

Li Huowang took a deep breath, then walked toward the crowded steps.

He followed the worshipers and stepped into the monastery where there were several large halls before him. Here, Li Huowang stood still like a rock amidst the tide of humans and took in his surroundings.

He found the main temple, but what he should do next stumped him. How should he interact with the monks in this place?

Should I directly say that I was Dan Yangzi's disciple? But I am afraid of being instantly swatted to death by them.

However, before he could even come up with a plan, the monks from Righteous Monastery approached him; even in such a massive crowd, Li Huowang's Daoist robes stood out quite a lot.

As he heard the other party speak, he realized that this monk's pure Buddhist behavior and values were not something the old monk from before could compare to. "Amitabha! Jian Dun at your service."

Li Huowang immediately returned the greeting when he saw the well-fed monk bow toward him with clasped hands. "Master, it's an honor to meet you. I am known as Xuan Yang."

"As a disciple of Daoism, you're probably not here to burn incense and worship the Buddha, right? Please come this way."

Li Huowang nodded as he looked at the bustling crowd all around, then followed him through a door at the side. He pondered on what he should say next while observing the scar on the monk's head.

The two of them continuously shuttled through the majestic halls, the clamor of the crowd around them gradually dying down. Finally, they arrived before a row of stone tables and chairs, under a golden ginkgo tree.

"Sir, please." monk Jian Dun sat down, unhurriedly turning the prayer beads in his hands. He did not ask Li Huowang about his sect or origin, thoroughly displaying the calm and composed nature of the disciples of Buddhism.

Li Huowang silently thought for a while, then looked at the monk before him. “Dan Yangzi is dead.”

There was a sudden pattering sound as the yellow-brown Buddhist beads in the monk’s hand scattered in all directions.

Li Huowang just silently nodded when he saw the fat Monk before him stand up. As expected, the monks here had definitely interacted with Dan Yangzi before.

“That bull-headed old Daoist is really dead? This matter is of utmost importance; please recount everything to me in detail.”

Since he wanted answers, Li Huowang had to give enough information to the other party. Apart from hiding the fact that he had taken away the so-called sacred text, Li Huowang described everything that happened in Zephyr Temple to the monk before him.

“Master, can Dan Yangzi really attain Immortality under such circumstances?”

Li Huowang leaned forward slightly before continuing in a solemn voice, “Or rather, is it possible that he has become something else?”

A gentle breeze blew past, rustling the leaves of the golden ginkgo tree beside them.

“Sir, are you sure that you really heard Dan Yangzi speaking into your ear?” Jian Dun was equally serious.

“Yes, definitely. It was not just some hallucination. There was also the abnormal situation with the God of Happiness.” Irritation flashed through his eyes as he recalled the scene. “The God of Happiness could not be seen directly and wanted to come out of the darkness to eat me. But its body, which was hidden in the darkness, seemed like it was getting pulled by something. Though I have no specific reason to believe this, I have a conjecture that it was Dan Yangzi who was pulling on the God of Happiness in the darkness—it was Dan Yangzi who had attained Immortality.”

Jian Dun spent some time pondering with a serious expression before he stood up. "Sir, please wait a while; this matter is of grave importance."

Then, Jian Dun clasped his hands toward Li Huowang and turned to leave in a hurry.

Though the other party did not say anything, his attitude was enough to convey some information. Li Huowang looked up at the clouds in the skies.

Sure enough, Dan Yangzi's matter is not something that would be concluded so easily.

Jian Dun returned quicker than Li Huowang had expected, returning in at most half an incense stick worth of time. This time he was back with a fresh string of Buddhist beads in his hand.

"Sir Xuan Yang, this way please. The abbot wishes to meet you in person," said Jian Dun.

The Righteous Monastery was very large, and they had to walk within the temple for some time before they finally arrived at a grand hall.

Outside the grand hall, Li Huowang peered in through the octagonal door and saw five towering Buddhas that were several meters in height. They were all sitting cross-legged, each striking a different yet equally majestic pose.

Before the five golden statues was a prayer mat with a figure seated on it while wearing a monk's robe. The figure also had a five-Buddha hat on his head, similar to that of Monk Tang.

Li Huowang could hear the monk chanting sutras as soon as he stepped in, the chanting echoing throughout the spacious hall.

Under the gaze of the five huge golden Buddhas, Li Huowang's figure slowed down unconsciously.

Soon, the chanting stopped, and the monk sitting on the prayer mat slowly turned around.

Li Huowang was surprised on seeing his appearance; it was the appearance of an old man with white brows and a beard. However, what surprised him was not the abbot's exceptionally kind appearance, but his eyes. It was a pair of pink eyes. After having spent so much time together with Bai Lingmiao, Li Huowang could tell at just a glance that the abbot also suffered from albinism.

"Amitabha, this humble monk, Xin Hui, pays my respects," Abbot Xin Hui clasped his hands together and spoke calmly.

"I am Xuan Yang. It's good to see you, Abbot." Li Huowang returned the greeting before sitting down as well.

"Abbot, about Dan Yangzi-" Li Huowang was interrupted as the other party raised his hand to stop him.

"Benefactor Xuan Yang, do you recognize these five Buddha statues that you see in this hall? The one in the middle is Vaicorana from Vajradhatu, the Diamond Realm. The one on the East is Akshobhya from Abhirati, the Eastern Pure Land. The one on the South is Ratnasambhava from Śrīmat, the Southern Pure Land. The one on the West is Amitābha from Sukhavati, the Western Pure Land, and the one on the North is Amoghasiddhi from Prakuta, the Northern Pure Land. Together, they are known as the Five Dhyani Buddhas."

Li Huowang started feeling a little anxious.

What does this monk mean to do, talking about all these irrelevant things right now?

"Abbot, let's talk about all these things when we have the time in the future. May I ask what Dan Yangzi has transformed into?"

Xin Hui clasped his hands together and once again looked at Li Huowang calmly. "He has become a Buddha."

Translator's Thoughts

Abbot Xin Hui.@格子的乱七八糟

Chapter 43 - Buddha

“He has become a Buddha.”

Upon hearing the abbot’s calm words, Li Huowang felt a chill run down his spine.

He abruptly shifted his gaze toward the five giant golden Buddhas. Just a moment ago, they had seemed solemn and dignified, yet now, their demeanor seemed to have changed.

Li Huowang was just about to get up when he glanced at the bright sun outside, and then he once again looked at the abbot who was sitting before him. The old abbot was still sitting in the same spot as before, completely calm and composed, almost as though he had not just uttered those horrifying words.

Hold on, don’t scare yourself. It might not be what I am imagining.

After careful consideration, Li Huowang spoke again, “Abbot, did Dan Yangzi have some conflict with the Righteous Monastery before?”

“That’s right; he was going around killing people and causing chaos. I had sent our monastery’s warrior monks to capture him, but he managed to slip away each time. You have done a deed of great merit by coming up with a way to get rid of this person,” replied the abbot.

“Abbot, may I ask then how such an evildoer could become a Buddha? How is that possible?” questioned Li Huowang.

“Amitabha! Whatever he is now is not determined by what he was before. I have Buddha in my heart. Hence, in my heart, he is now a Buddha,” the abbot explained.

Li Huowang felt frustrated; this old monk seemed to be speaking in riddles.

“Dan Yangzi has now left behind the mundane world. It doesn’t matter what I think he is; what matters is what you think he is, since he is whatever you think he is. Moreover, his karma now lies with you, and not with me,” Xin Hui continued in a composed voice.

This time, however, Li Huowang understood the meaning the abbot was trying to convey.

“So you’re saying that Dan Yangzi has become a shapeless, ever-changing entity? Just like the Wandering Gods?” asked Li Huowang.

“Yes,” replied the abbot.

“But why? How could he become something strange like that? After all, I fabricated all those so-called Immortality techniques! And there were so many deadly poisons which should have killed him!” Li Huowang couldn’t figure this out.

“I don’t know,” The abbot replied honestly. “I am not an omniscient Buddha. At the same time, as a monk, I cannot speak falsely. I don’t know.”

Li Huowang pondered for a moment, then asked another crucial question, “Abbot, is there a way to completely get rid of Dan Yangzi? Since he is our common enemy, it’s not good to just leave him like that.”

Li Huowang had spent so much energy coming over here, just to resolve this problem; he had to get rid of Dan Yangzi, regardless of what Dan Yangzi had turned into.

This time, however, Xin Hui did not reply so quickly. He fell into deep thought, then raised his right hand. “Come here. I need to take another look.”

Li Huowang hesitated for a moment while looking at that wrinkled, white hand.

“Benefactor Xuan Yang, if you’re still suspecting that I wish to harm you, then you shouldn’t even have stepped through our temple gates,” said the abbot upon seeing Li Huowang’s hesitation.

Li Huowang paused for a moment, and then placed his forehead onto his palm.

Buzz!

Li Huowang suddenly felt all the colors around him become much more vibrant, and started feeling weightless.

However, this intriguing feeling came and went quickly. When he returned to normal, Li Huowang did not know what had just happened, and even felt a sense of emptiness within his heart.

At that moment, he understood that this abbot must have some Buddhist supernatural abilities.

“Hmm... this matter is of utmost importance. I need to discuss our strategy with the other elders. You can stay in our temple for now, and we’ll give you our reply tomorrow,” said the abbot.

Li Huowang was a little nervous when he heard that he had to stay back. “I’ve got friends on the outside. They won’t feel assured if I don’t return.”

Despite Li Huowang declining the invitation, the abbot’s tone remained unhurried. “It’s up to you whether you choose to stay or to leave. The Righteous Monastery opens at dawn. Benefactor Xuan Yang, please don’t break your promise. You know as well as I do that if we don’t get rid of this trouble, it will be a grave danger to not just you, but to all the lives in this world.”

When Li Huowang stepped outside the temple into the sunlight and looked back inward, he found that the abbot had already turned around and begun to chant toward the giant Buddha statues.

Li Huowang looked up to see the large midday sun, and then looked toward the peaceful temple surroundings.

Just after Li Huowang turned around and took a few steps away from the temple, the back of the abbot’s bald head began to squirm. Not long after, the smooth skin under the five-Buddha hat slowly split apart, revealing a fist-sized giant pupil that wriggled out and stared at Li Huowang’s departing figure.

At that moment, the old abbot's chants suddenly increased in volume. "Form is not me... If it were me, form would not cause illness and troubles. I wish to be this form... I do not wish to be this form... Do as I please... So I should know..."

Meanwhile, Li Huowang took various turns as he retraced his steps back to the temple's main gate, where the worshipers were gathered. Seeing the crowd, he had a feeling that he had returned to the mortal world.

He stood in the middle of the crowd and looked toward the alleyway he had just walked out of. He felt somewhat hesitant.

Should I trust him?

"Hey! Daoist! I'm here!"

Li Huowang turned back to see someone shouting for him; it was the old monk who traveled alongside his group. Li Huowang could see him waving excitedly.

"You came to the Righteous Monastery? They accepted you?" asked Li Huowang.

The old monk nodded eagerly. "Yes, that monk over there took pity on me, and allowed me to stay and work here."

"That's good. Make sure to work hard here; at least it's better than digging around for wild vegetables or eating the offerings made to the dead. I'll take my leave first. Right, I still haven't gotten your name."

"You can just call me Monk. I like being called Monk. Come and visit the temple when you have the time," replied Monk.

"Keke, as you Buddhists like to say, let fate decide," replied Li Huowang. He bid his farewell to Monk and left the Righteous Monastery.

When he arrived at the inn, the others surged forth and surrounded him like a flock of bees.

Li Huowang raised his hand to stop the questioning and said, "I have a task for everyone. Split up and go around to ask about the Righteous Monastery.”

Though his interaction with those monks today had been very normal, he still planned to listen to the opinions of the locals before planning his next move.

After getting this task, the others did not question it; they just nodded and turned to walk out of the inn.

Time trickled by. As the sun set, they all came back one by one, and reported their findings to him.

“They say that the Righteous Monastery is the largest monastery in Western Capital City. Its incense is considered the most marvelous.”

“I heard that their monks are very devout and abide by their rules quite strictly. Once, a monk stole some meat, and was immediately expelled from the temple.”

“I heard that even the Emperor goes to that temple to pray. If you’re lucky and get a good spot, you can even spot the Emperor!”

“I heard similar things as the others. Senior, why do you want us to inquire about the Righteous Monastery?”

Li Huowang did not respond; he did not want to tell them the terrifying truth that Dan Yangzi could still be alive.

After carefully sorting through their findings, he found no reason to refute the abbot’s offer. If he did not trust these monks, then he could only face this “Buddha” Dan Yangzi head-on. However, this choice would unquestionably lead to his death. After weighing the pros and cons, Li Huowang made the decision to return to the Righteous Monastery on the next day.

Chapter 44 - Righteous Monastery

Within the five-Buddha hall, Li Huowang met Abbot Xin Hui once again. However, this time the abbot wasn't alone; there were four more elderly monks sitting in a row behind him.

"Since you've returned, Benefactor Xuan Yang, let's get straight to the point. We need to hold a Great Fast to offer salvation to him," said the abbot.

"Right, abbot, let's start," replied Li Huowang immediately.

"Take it easy, Benefactor. Dan Yangzi's karma is still connected to you. Before we can perform this ritual, we need you to calm your mind."

"Calm my mind?" Li Huowang was puzzled.

"Amitabha! Benefactor, your mind is quite restless and troubled," said the abbot.

Before the abbot could even finish speaking, Li Huowang retorted in a stern and loud voice, "I'm not sick!"

His voice was so loud that Li Huowang even startled himself.

Li Huowang could see the five elderly monks gazing at him thoughtfully. He took a deep breath and clenched his trembling fists. "May I ask, abbot, what it is that I must do in order to calm my mind?"

At that moment, a yellow-covered scripture was presented to him. "Take this Emptiness of the Five Aggregates [\[1\]](#) Sutra, and recite it three times a day."

Li Huowang took it and flipped through the scripture; it was full of obscure Buddhist scriptures that he could not understand in the slightest.

“Just reciting it will do? There’s no specific technique? Or no need to eat anything?” asked Li Huowang. Such a simple step was way beyond his expectations.

When he saw Abbot Xin Hui shake his head, he took the scripture and started heading out. Right as he was about to exit, he turned around to look at the elderly monks sitting cross-legged on their prayer mats.

“Abbot Xin Hui, does the Righteous Monastery have any cultivation techniques?” asked Li Huowang.

“Naturally. As long as Benefactor is willing to shave his head and join our monastery, you may freely access our entire Scripture Repository.”

Upon hearing that, Li Huowang turned and left; it was not possible for him to become a monk.

“Benefactor Xuan Yang, why don’t you stay in the temple during this period? It’s also troublesome for us if you keep coming and going from the monastery like this,” said Abbot Xin Hui just as Li Huowang was about to leave.

Li Huowang did not decline them this time; since he had already chosen to trust them, being overly cautious would only make him seem petty.

A separate room was arranged for him within the Righteous Monastery. Li Huowang sat within the room while silently looking at the scripture that was given to him.

Initially, Li Huowang felt a little nervous. But he soon realized that nobody in this temple minded him, even when he ran to the bustling main hall and watched the monks perform divinations for others. He gradually felt more and more assured.

Late at night, under the light of an oil lamp, Li Huowang carried a scripture book and recited, “My life’s journey is complete, my spiritual path established, my actions accomplished, leaving no room for future existence. As I speak of this Dharma, it reveals the freedom of mental attachments of all phenomena, including the five aggregates. Embrace this teaching with faith, and diligently put it into practice...”

When he initially began reciting this so-called Emptiness of the Five Aggregates Sutra, Li Huowang didn't feel anything. However, as more and more days passed, he felt the quality of his sleep gradually improve, and understood that it really was effective.

Once he finished reciting it, he placed the book down and extinguished the oil lamp, preparing to head to sleep. At the same time, he began to plan for what he had to do next.

After getting rid of Dan Yangzi, I'll go and look for a Black Taisui. If I can stabilize my condition, then I will be able to continue to live in this world in a stable fashion.

But the Black Taisui seems to be rather ferocious. And if I really do manage to capture it, then how should I restrain it such that I can cut some of its flesh to eat every month?

Right, the first thing I need to do is to obtain enough strength for self-preservation. That is also similarly challenging.

Just as Li Huowang was lost in his thoughts, he suddenly saw a figure flash past outside his door, causing his body to tense up.

Is someone within the temple spying on me?

Li Huowang slowly walked up to the door and pulled the latch, yanking the door open.

The courtyard outside was illuminated by the moonlight, with not a single person in sight. Li Huowang carefully peered outside. He caught a glimpse of a yellow-robed monk quickly vanishing into the dark corridor in the distance.

“What's going on within this temple?” After a moment of contemplation, Li Huowang followed the yellow-robed monk at a slow pace.

After a while, Li Huowang saw a bald head under the moonlight. While Li Huowang could not see the face from his angle, judging from the lack of scars, their status in the Righteous Monastery was probably not high.

Just like that, in the silent temple, one person walked ahead, while another followed behind from a distance.

At that moment, however, the monk suddenly disappeared into the partially opened door of a temple hall.

Li Huowang was about to follow him inside as well, but after some thought, he decided to go to the other side of this temple. There, he wet his finger with some saliva before piercing a hole through the paper window.

This hall was quite small compared to the abbot's five-Buddha hall. In fact, it could even be described as tiny. There was a small Bodhisattva statue, with one hand in a meditative gesture and the other hand holding a bottle. Only two candles were lit on the altar, dimly illuminating the entire hall.

There was someone kneeling before the figure of the Bodhisattva; the one who had just entered was not some monk, but a woman.

A woman? In the temple this late at night?

Before Li Huowang could even make sense of what he was seeing, the woman began to silently pray.

“Oh merciful and compassionate Bodhisattva, I beg you, please give me a son. If I don't give birth to a son this time, I'm going to be sold away.”

Just as she was praying, a half-naked monk who had been behind the statue approached her before gently covering her eyes with a red cloth. Her body trembled ever so slightly, but she did not resist. Soon, her breathing started becoming heavier and heavier.

Soon, seven or eight bald-headed monks walked out from the surrounding darkness, each with their hands clasped together as if they were praying. Then, they slowly surrounded her.

This is the truth behind the effective child-bearing prayers?!

Li Huowang was dumbfounded as he watched the scene unfolding in front of him, toppling his previous understanding of the Righteous Monastery.

Suddenly, he sensed something and quickly turned around to see Jian Dun, standing in the courtyard while illuminated by the moonlight.

I've been discovered!

Jian Dun did not say anything as he looked at Li Huowang, only gently beckoning with his hand before turning to leave.

Li Huowang glanced at the chaos within the temple one last time before following Jian Dun quietly.

Jian Dun did not bring Li Huowang anywhere special, but only to his residence. Then, he lit up the oil lamp and sat down on a stool.

“I know what Benefactor must be thinking—that the Righteous Monastery’s monks are impure? But does Benefactor believe all the worshipers to be fools? Why would they come to pray so late at night?” said Jian Dun.

Standing at the door, Li Huowang did not say anything, waiting for him to continue.

“If they want a son, then we’ll give them a son. As monks, we are just that compassionate, and thus we do good deeds,” continued Jian Dun.

Li Huowang could not help but frown. “Then there must be a lot of those ‘good deeds’ of yours roaming around here.”

“The Righteous Monastery’s disciples have never proclaimed that our prayers to the Bodhisattva are effective. All those rumors have just been spread around by the worshipers themselves. We didn’t say anything, and they didn’t ask anything.”

1. The five aggregates are form (or materiality), sensations (or feeling), perception, mental formation, consciousness 🖐️

Chapter 45 - Buddha Statue

“Master, there’s no need to explain so much to a simple guest like me; I won’t bother you guys either. Please leave, I’m about to head to sleep,” said Li Huowang.

Jian Dun clasped both hands together and bowed toward Li Huowang before walking toward the door. As he passed by Li Huowang, he softly whispered, “Don’t underestimate Buddhism. I used to be a Daoist before I became a monk. Daoism is similar; it’s just that you’re unaware of it.”

Jian Dun walked away, leaving Li Huowang alone in the room. Li Huowang turned around to look at the temple that was shrouded in darkness. Now, it no longer seemed to have a sense of majesty or dignity. Li Huowang sighed.

This place is also really dirty. Isn’t there anywhere that is clean and pure?

Ever since the events of that night, Li Huowang tried his best not to leave his room at night to avoid disturbing the monks’ ‘good deeds’ and incurring their resentment.

Days passed one at a time, and Li Huowang’s mental state slowly improved; he no longer had nightmares. Just as he was going to ask the abbot about when they were going to begin the ritual, the abbot sent a messenger over first.

“Benefactor Xuan Yang, the preparation for the Great Fast is about to begin. The event requires a considerable amount of effort. So, please refrain from moving around too much in the coming few days,” said the messenger.

“Got it. You can report back to the abbot,” Li Huowang responded to the young monk.

When the young monk left, a familiar figure came in, looking excited. “Little Daoist, if you had been staying here, why didn’t you inform me?”

It was the old monk from before, but he looked quite different now. He was dressed in brand-new yellow monk robes, while his face and body were free of dirt. He appeared much more spirited than before.

Even though they had only interacted with each other briefly, Li Huowang still felt a sense of kinship with this acquaintance of his in this foreign place.

“Monk, how are you doing here?” asked Li Huowang.

“It’s fine. I have enough to eat and am able to dress well. It’s just that there are no good deeds to do within the temple, which makes me a little uncomfortable,” replied Monk.

Upon hearing the mention of good deeds, Li Huowang immediately thought about the events of that night and sighed. “Don’t think about it too much. Stay well over here. Though this monastery’s a little dirty, at least you won’t go hungry.”

“Come, young Daoist, let me show you the place where I work. It’s quite big there.” Monk enthusiastically pulled Li Huowang toward the door.

“The sun is too bright right now. Maybe another time,” Li Huowang replied half-heartedly. He wasn’t too interested in exploring this monastery.

“Come and see! You won’t regret it; there are many interesting things here!” said Monk as he dragged Li Huowang.

In the end, Monk was successful in dragging Li Huowang with him.

After going through a meandering path, they came to a spacious open courtyard within the Righteous Monastery.

Only now did Li Huowang realize just how big the monastery was.

Clang clang clang!

Dust flew around within the courtyard as some monks with bandaged hands used their chisels and hammers to sculpt Buddha statues. The statues were lined up in two rows that stretched left and right toward the end of the courtyard.

As the monks focused on carving their works of art, they became drenched in sweat, and their bald heads reflected the bright sunlight.

“So you work here? The environment is so-so,” Li Huowang said while frowning slightly and pinching his nose to prevent the dust from entering.

“Yes, I’m in charge of taking away the useless shattered rocks. I play a part in the building process of these statues as well.” Monk seemed to be very proud of his role.

The two of them walked along the road that was in between the two rows of incomplete Buddha statues and observed the different forms of the various sculptures.

Meanwhile, the monks that walked by them did not pay any attention to them, almost as though they did not exist.

These sculptures made by the Righteous Monastery are definitely not for their own use. One look and it’s clear that they are made to be sold to the worshipers. Seems like these monks are quite adept at generating revenue.

Li Huowang was not too surprised after the previous incident that he had witnessed.

“That’s not all! There’s even more up ahead!” Monk exclaimed excitedly, heading into the house before them.

Just as Li Huowang was about to follow, he felt a wave of dizziness suddenly wash over him, causing his body to start swaying.

“Hey, little Daoist, what’s wrong?” Monk asked as he hurried back to support him upon seeing that something was amiss.

“What’s the matter?” asked Monk.

When Li Huowang stabilized himself and shook his head, that strange feeling of dizziness gradually vanished.

“Are you alright? Did you catch a cold or something? Do you want to go back and rest first?” asked Monk, worried.

Li Huowang declined Monk’s kind intentions, “It’s alright. I’m fine. Let’s continue.”

“Alright. If you really have caught a cold, then you should get some more sunlight. Let’s continue,” said Monk.

Li Huowang looked up at the scorching sun.

Did I get a heat stroke? But the New Year was just a little while ago, and I don’t feel hot either.

After feeling that there was nothing unusual with his body, Li Huowang lifted his foot to continue following Monk.

But as soon as he raised his foot, he found that the sounds around him had changed. It was no longer the clanging sound of chisel hitting the stone, but the sound of flesh slapping against flesh.

Eh?

Li Huowang felt puzzled and looked toward the stone statue on his right.

He immediately froze up.

The stone statue beside him had vanished, and what took its place was a mass of white flesh. The stone carvings representing Buddha that had their eyes closed in devotion were all piled together, their bodies wriggling continuously like maggots.

This... this is?

Li Huowang took a step back, his eyes widening in shock.

He slowly looked up to squint at the glaring sun; his eyes were not playing tricks on him.

He slowly turned around to look at the statues behind him. He was not surprised to find that they had all changed into dozens of mountains of flesh as well.

“Hey, little Daoist! Keep up!” Monk shouted in excitement like a kid eager to show off something to his companions.

Trembling, Li Huowang took a deep breath and stepped forward.

Soon, they passed through a huge gate and arrived at another spacious courtyard. This courtyard was also filled with heaps of flesh, just that these heaps were no longer humanoid, but even included other things like pigs.

Those heaps of flesh howled in agony, but then a mountain of flesh depicting a devout monk engulfed them like a sinkhole and buried them within.

“Look at these life-like statues of the qilin^[1] and the stone lion. I wish I had such skills,” exclaimed Monk.

Li Huowang mechanically followed the old monk and continued to observe the ‘artwork’ of the Righteous Monastery’s monks. Along the way, he saw many things, like dogs, horses, cows, and donkeys.

After some examination, he found something even more peculiar—the monks were all intersex!

Li Huowang’s mind was currently buzzing with confusion.

Suddenly, Monk reached out and led him to a spacious hall with quick steps.

However, the sound of flesh slapping against flesh did not vanish and was even getting louder now, echoing inside the spacious hall.

Li Huowang looked inward.

The higher up he looked, the more his pupils shrank.

“Look quickly! Such a massive Buddha statue!” Monk exclaimed, as he pointed upward, marveling at the giant statue with a child-like grin on his face.

1. one-horned beast in Chinese mythology 📖

Chapter 46 - Xin Hui

“Buddha?” Li Huowang asked. When he raised his head, all he saw was a massive heap of flesh that was at least twenty meters tall! Regardless of how Monk saw the Buddha, all Li Huowang could see was a twisted mass of pink flesh. The only way he could describe the thing was that it looked like the back of a toad, covered in veins and flesh. Various reproductive organs circled and shifted around on the mountain of flesh, moving in and out of the bits of skin that covered the mass of flesh.

Even though the mountain of flesh was absolutely disgusting, there were many monks around it. The monks were enthralled as they breathed in the pink mist emanating from it. They had an excited look on their faces as they filled in whatever ‘gaps’ there were on the ‘Buddha’ with their own bodies.

Women, men, and even beasts. The monks of the Righteous Monastery were challenging the limits of their bodies.

“How about it? Isn’t it big? This is the biggest stone Buddha that I’ve ever seen,” Monk praised it in an excited manner.

Li Huowang’s body was stiff. He knew that Dan Yangzi was evil and would be abhorred by the righteous sects of this world. While the Righteous Monastery held a grudge against Dan Yangzi, even though he couldn’t guarantee how righteous they were, at the very least he thought that they would have some rules.

But his hypothesis was wrong! There were no righteous sects, nor were there any evil sects! Maybe the cultivation process in this world was twisted at its very core!

Maybe the grudge between Dan Yangzi and the monks was not based on justice vs. evil! It could even be two evil sects fighting for the sake of territory!

Even if he ignored everything, he knew for certain that Xin Hui was deceiving him and everyone else!

The Great Fast?! That shitty monk must be lying to me! I need to leave this place right now!

He turned and saw that Monk was not at all repulsed by what he was seeing. While Li Huowang didn't know how he had managed to pierce through the veil of deceit, he knew that at the very least he had not been found out. He needed to use this fact to his advantage and leave.

He suppressed his feelings of repulsion and tried to act as naturally as possible as he said, "Not bad. But it's just a stone Buddha. I will take my leave now."

Having said that, Li Huowang walked out and returned to the disgusting courtyard where the monks were 'sculpting' the sculptures.

The wriggling masses of flesh were still moving all around him, but Li Huowang just pretended that he did not see them and continued walking.

"Hey, little Daoist! Don't go yet! Why the rush? It took you quite some time to arrive here," shouted Monk as he chased after Li Huowang. "The food here is really good too. Why not have a meal with me? The fried tofu here is even more delicious than meat."

Li Huowang just acted as if he was irritated and increased his pace while Monk continued to pester him.

However, just when Li Huowang was almost out of the accursed place, a large shadow blocked him. It was an extremely well-built monk with a serious face and was a head taller than Li Huowang. He stared at Li Huowang without saying anything.

"Is there anything I can help you with?" Li Huowang said coldly. All the while, his heart was racing wildly.

The monk leaned forward and silently observed Li Huowang.

What happened next scared Li Huowang to his very core. A slimy black tentacle, complete with suction cups, emerged from the scar on the monk's head. Then, it started stretching longer and longer. The weird tentacle started wriggling in the air like a snake before slowly wrapping around Li Huowang's head, as if it was trying to sense something.

"Amitabha! Dear sir, it seems that your heart is impure," said the well-built monk.

As he said that, all of the wriggling masses of flesh in the area stopped dead. At the same time, the monks that were previously 'working' on them all turned around and stared at Li Huowang.

Shit! He knew that I'm not fooled by their illusion! Time to fight!

Seeing that the situation had taken a turn for the worse, Li Huowang pulled out his sword and slashed it at the monk in front of him.

The sound of metal tearing into flesh was heard as the tentacle and the monk's shirt were cut in half, and a yellow-green goo sprayed in every direction.

At the same time, Li Huowang ate a pill and jumped past the well-built monk, and rushed straight toward the wall closest to him.

His action sparked an avalanche of movements around him; all of the monks working on the wriggling flesh jumped down and started chasing after him.

But that was not all. A sudden earthquake happened, causing almost everyone to fall down to the ground.

Li Huowang, who was now at the top of the wall, turned backward and saw that the massive 'Buddha' had breached the wooden gate and was rolling toward him!

I need to run now! This place is too dangerous! There's no way their illusion could work on everyone in the entire Western Capital City! They wouldn't risk showing the true nature of their 'Buddha' to the people.

Li Huowang ran as fast as he could, the voices behind him growing louder and louder. This was his only chance to escape, so he didn't dare slow down.

Li Huowang ran faster and faster with a horde of people chasing after him. Li Huowang's stamina and strength were almost inexhaustible after he ate the pill. There were a few times when he almost got caught but luckily managed to break free.

Just when he took a turn and was about to exit through the front gate of the Monastery, he saw someone with a familiar face blocking him. It was the Righteous Monastery's very own abbot, Xin Hui.

Seeing him, Li Huowang didn't hesitate and reached for his bronze bell. But when his hands reached into his sleeves, he found that the bell he used to summon the Wandering Gods was missing.

"Amitabha! Benefactor Xuan Yang, are you looking for this?" Xin Hui held the bell as he asked Li Huowang, his face still calm as usual.

Even before Li Huowang could answer him, Xin Hui approached Li Huowang and placed the bell back into his hand. "Benefactor Xuan Yang, this is an ominous object. Use it sparingly."

He did not question Li Huowang any further. He walked past Li Huowang and saw the horde of monks chasing after Li Huowang before chastising them, "You are all monks, so why are you so anxious?"

"Abbot! It's not that we are anxious! That guy suddenly attacked Senior Jian Wei!" said one of the monks.

Upon hearing this, Abbot Xin Hui turned around and questioned Li Huowang. "Benefactor Xuan Yang, is that true? Why did you hurt him? Did he do something to you?"

Li Huowang looked at the crowd and then back at the bronze bell in his hand, feeling confused by what the abbot was trying to do. He was certain that the abbot had seen everything that had unfolded, so why was he acting?

After a while, Li Huowang just decided to come clean. “Abbot Xin Hui, your monastery had a grudge with Dan Yangzi, and I’m the one who killed him. You haven’t even thanked me, but there should be no reason to kill me, right? I will keep my mouth shut about everything that I’ve seen in the monastery. No one will know. Plus, it would be almost impossible to ruin the reputation of your Righteous Monastery with just me alone.”

Hearing what Li Huowang had said, Xin Hui was even more confused. “What did you see? I don’t think I understand.”

Huh? Don’t tell me... the abbot is different from them?

Li Huowang decided to calmly explain what he had seen just now to the abbot.

“Preposterous! A bunch of lies!” shouted the abbot in a fit of rage.

This was the first time Li Huowang had seen Xin Hui get angry. His two strands of white mustache quivered while the other monks behind him lowered their heads in fear.

Chapter 47 - Placing The Incense Sticks

However, immediately after saying those words, Xin Hui realized his mistake and placed his hands together, praying toward the western direction with his eyes closed.

“Amitabha! This disciple is in the wrong. I will write down the sutras a hundred times after this to atone for my wrongdoings,” said Xin Hui.

After that, Xin Hui turned back to calmly look at Li Huowang once again. He thought about it for a moment before lightly nodding his head. “I think I may know why you saw those things. Benefactor Xuan Yang, please follow me.”

Looking at how the other monks were staring at him angrily, Li Huowang had no choice but to sheathe his sword and follow the abbot.

Xin Hui brought him back to the place where he had seen the monks who were sculpting the statues. “Benefactor Xuan Yang, was it here that you saw those filthy things?”

Li Huowang, surrounded by the other monks, was shocked to see that the various masses of flesh had changed back into incomplete statues; it was as if they were mocking him. “Wait...”

“Benefactor, follow me.” Xin Hui started moving once again.

Under Xin Hui’s lead, Li Huowang was brought back to the place where he had seen the livestock and animals.

However, now there were none. The only thing he saw were incomplete statues of the Qilins and lions, all of them aligned neatly, their stone eyes gazing at them lifelessly.

Just then, Xin Hui suddenly took Li Huowang’s sword and slashed the statues, causing one of the stone lion's heads that was the size of Xin Hui's palm to be separated from its body. Then, he grabbed the head of the stone lion and placed it in Li Huowang's hand.

Li Huowang gently touched the head of the lion; the texture and weight of the lion's head told him that it was indeed made of stone!

They then arrived at the large hall, and he saw a giant statue of Buddha sitting in lotus form. Its left hand was holding a bowl meant for receiving alms while its right hand was pointing its index finger directly toward the ground. The Buddha statue appeared to be completely motionless in front of Li Huowang.

"Impossible! I had seen all of it so clearly, so how could it all be fake?" Li Huowang questioned himself.

Hearing his words, Abbot Xin Hui sighed. "Amitabha! Benefactor, it seems that the severity of your illness is not light."

Li Huowang paused and considered a possibility.

Did my hysteria return? Was everything that I saw simply an illusion?

Xin Hui nodded his head lightly, as if he could read Li Huowang's mind. "Benefactor, you are much more aware of what kind of illness you have than us."

"But I ate so much of the Black Taisui flesh. Was all of that only able to last this long? Did my hysteria really return?" Li Huowang mumbled as he placed both hands on his head.

Hearing his words, the monks around him whispered to each other, telling what they had just heard to the others.

"We chased him for so long and it turned out that he was just someone sick," lamented one of the monks.

"If there's no issue, then it would be better to send him out of the monastery. What if his hysteria worsens and he starts cutting people up?" commented another monk.

“Quiet!” Xin Hui shouted out, silencing everyone.

Xin Hui then entered the hall and lit up four incense sticks before offering them to Li Huowang and saying, “I’m fine with you disturbing my disciples, but it’s not good to disturb the Buddha. Please admit your mistakes and offer these incense sticks.”

“Offer these incense sticks?” Li Huowang glanced toward the massive Buddha statue, then toward Xin Hui, and the four incense sticks. His body once again tensed up.

“Benefactor, what are you waiting for? This was your mistake after all,” Xin Hui said as he shook the incense sticks.

However, in Li Huowang’s mind, he could not forget the mass of flesh and the monks around the monster’s body. If all of that was real, wouldn’t it consume him if he went up to offer the incense sticks?

“Benefactor, why are you hesitating?” asked Abbot Xin Hui.

At that moment, Li Huowang saw that Xin Hui’s face was beginning to show signs of impatience.

For a moment, he looked up toward the sun while holding the stone lion’s head. In the end, he threw the stone lion’s head aside and took the incense sticks with both his hands. Then, he walked past the door and slowly approached the gigantic Buddha statue.

He walked quite slowly due to his tense muscles and the fact that his mind was racing. Sweat dripped down his forehead.

Soon, he arrived at the base of the statue.

The statue did not move, nor did it transform into the vile thing he had seen earlier.

Li Huowang held the incense sticks with both his hands while standing in front of the incense burner. He looked up once again, only to see the Buddha’s stony eyes watching him devoid of any emotions. At that moment, Li Huowang felt a sense of respect for the statue.

As he held the incense sticks above his head to pray, the four incense sticks lightly shook as the white smoke slowly drifted from them to the top of the hall.

After praying three times and placing the incense sticks into the incense burner, Li Huowang turned around and walked out of the hall.

Seeing that the conflict had been resolved, the monks slowly dispersed, going back to their work stations before continuing with their work. Soon, the sound of chisel striking against stone echoed throughout the courtyard.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang followed Xin Hui down the brick path and exited.

“Benefactor Xuan Yang, since your illness is so serious, you should just stay here and wait for the Great Fast instead of wandering around the place. Even though your illness is troubling, Dan Yangzi is even more dangerous. We should do the necessary things slowly, taking it step by step, just like how we eat rice one mouthful at a time,” Xin Hui said as he held his prayer beads.

Li Huowang raised his head and stared at the bright sun. He raised his hands and stretched his body as he asked, “Abbot, is there a method to cure my illness in the Righteous Monastery?”

“I will let my disciples know. Maybe they can help, or maybe they can’t. After all, the Righteous Monastery doesn’t specialize in medicine nor do we have the necessary medical knowledge,” replied Xin Hui.

“It’s alright. I was just asking. I’m already used to my illness.” Li Huowang said.

After hesitating for a moment, Li Huowang asked, “Wait, how did you do that just now? How did you take the bell that was on my body?”

“Hoho. It’s just a children’s trick. Nothing much,” replied Xin Hui.

“Abbot, no need to be so humble. If you say that it was nothing much, then it would mean that I'm even less than an insect," said Li Huowang with a wry smile.

"Benefactor Xuan Yang, that's not the case. Even though Dan Yangzi was not as strong as me, he was still very skilled. Nonetheless, was he not eliminated by you?"

"Dan Yangzi was strong? Then how strong are you? How do you categorize the strength of people like him?" asked Li Huowang.

"There is a way to categorize them as Heaven, Earth, Black, and Yellow, but that is just something that was made up by the people. As monks, we are not interested in fame, so I don't know much about it," replied Xin Hui.

As they walked, they talked for a long time, allowing Li Huowang to learn many new things about this world.

When they finally left the courtyard, Li Huowang stopped, bowed, and thanked Xin Hui, "Thank you for helping me, abbot."

"It's nothing. It's just a simple matter. If your body is feeling unwell, then you should head back and rest," replied Xin Hui.

After some pleasantries, Li Huowang left. When he looked around after a while, he didn't see the abbot following him, so he started walking back to his place.

He walked quite slowly, as if he was busy thinking about something. Finally, after one hour, he reached his room. The moment he closed the door, his expression twisted into one filled with anger as he punched the wall of the room. He didn't know what that monk had used to deceive everyone's senses, but Li Huowang was someone who had a lot of experience dealing with illusions due to his illness. This was why he was extremely sensitive to such illusions. He had already felt that the massive stone Buddha had something off about it, just like the hospital in his illusion, but he just didn't know what.

"The statues were all fake! Even the giant Buddha statue was fake! They must've cast an illusion spell! I know what I've seen and those filthy things were not some illusion!”

Chapter 48 - Escape

Creak~

The wooden door slowly creaked open as Li Huowang observed the outside through the small crack. It was already evening, and it was very quiet outside. With the exception of a monk sweeping the floor some distance away, there was nothing unusual.

However, Li Huowang had already seen through the reality of the Righteous Monastery. To him, this was not a peaceful scene in the slightest.

All of this is fake! They can't fool me! Since they are trying so hard to keep me here, they probably want me to go through their Great Fast of my own volition!

Just then, a thought flashed through his mind.

Wait, why are they doing all of this? I'm just a normal human. Since they are so strong, they could just force me to do what they wish. Why go through all this trouble?

He didn't have an answer yet, but he didn't need it now. What he needed right now was to escape this place as soon as possible.

The monks of the Righteous Monastery haven't noticed anything strange about me just yet. I need to use this chance.

Even though there was no one else outside, Li Huowang did not try to escape just yet. He waited patiently. Time slowly passed as Li Huowang's palms started sweating.

Dong~Dong~Dong~

The heavy sound of a bell rang across the entire Righteous Monastery, causing Li Huowang to jump a little. He had learned that this bell being rung meant that it was 5 pm, which was the dinner time for the monks.

At that moment, Li Huowang opened the door and walked out calmly, following the monks toward the canteen. After all, it would be completely reasonable for him to appear there as he had been eating with the monks all this time.

Compared to the place he was currently living in, the canteen was quite a bit closer to the hall where the normal devotees came to pray. Since the opponent made use of illusion spells, it must mean that they do not want the normal devotees and people to see their dark side.

Along the way, Li Huowang noticed that many of the monks were silently staring at him and whispering to each other. It seemed that they were still discussing what had happened earlier. Their eyes, as they looked toward him, were filled with hostility, curiosity, and even jest.

But Li Huowang knew that all this was fake; they were all just putting up an act!

They must have the same goal as Xin Hui! No one here is a good person. They are all trying to harm me!

Li Huowang was certain about this.

He soon arrived at the canteen and saw a sea of bald heads. However, he didn't run away and instead followed them and walked inside. He took a wooden bowl and got his meal before sitting down on the stool and calmly eating the vegetarian meal in front of him. Today's meal consisted of yam soup, stir-fried konjac with fried tofu, stir-fried vegetables, as well as potato and squash stew. While there was no meat, the taste was indeed excellent.

Even so, after the entire incident earlier, Li Huowang no longer had much of an appetite. However, in order to fool them and avoid suspicion, he still didn't dare to make any strange movements and just continued eating his food.

Pa!

At that moment, a hand suddenly patted his shoulder, scaring Li Huowang.

“Little Daoist! You are here too? Why did you run away earlier?” asked Monk.

Hearing the familiar voice, Li Huowang turned around with food still in his mouth. Sure enough, it was the old monk smiling at him while showing off his missing front tooth.

He had met Monk by chance while traveling. If it weren't for him pulling Li Huowang to see those statues, then Li Huowang might've still been clueless about the situation.

Monk took his plate of food and sat beside Li Huowang. “Let's eat together.”

Li Huowang glanced at the other monks and saw that there was nothing suspicious going on. He continued chewing as he said, “Sure.”

“Little Daoist, where are the rest of the people from your group? Why not ask them to come and stay with you? The food here is free. They don't have to stay at the inn anymore,” Monk talked quite loudly, oblivious to the entire situation.

On the other hand, Li Huowang, who was anxiously trying to escape, couldn't be bothered to talk to him. He ate at the same speed as usual and burped before walking out of the canteen.

Soon, he was once again on the brick road, and this time, Monk was chasing after him.

“Hey, don't go just yet. Let's talk for a bit. I'm so bored here,” said Monk.

As he licked the scraps of food stuck in his teeth, Li Huowang looked at him irritably. “Don't follow me and go to bed.”

“What? It's still too early to go to bed. Let me tell you something—” Monk said in a whining tone. However, Monk couldn't even finish what he was about to say when he saw Li Huowang's face turn sour.

At that moment, Li Huowang whispered to Monk aggressively, “Go! Run away from this place as soon as possible! This monastery is an extremely dangerous place!”

The very next second, Li Huowang ran as fast as he could toward the main hall.

The monks around them all noticed that Li Huowang was running away, but Li Huowang just ignored all of them.

He ran faster and faster, his heart beating at a rapid pace, and his attention raised to the limit, searching for traces of that old man Xin Hui.

100 feet! 50 feet! 10 feet!!!

When Li Huowang escaped through the side door and entered the main hall, his surroundings suddenly exploded with sound—the sound of footsteps, conversations, and the wooden fish, all entered his ears. He had returned to the main hall where everyone was burning incense sticks and praying to the Buddha. In fact, there were so many people that he was pushed slightly toward the side.

Standing in the crowd, Li Huowang was stunned as he looked at their oblivious faces.

At that moment, he suddenly realized something and turned back to look at the side door.

No one was there—not one person had chased him.

At the same time, none of the monks turned to look toward Li Huowang, be it the monks who were greeting the devotees or the monks who were divining fortunes.

To Li Huowang, all of this seemed completely normal. Way too normal.

Unless... All of it really had been my illusion? Those filthy things were just a figment of my imagination?

But Li Huowang dismissed that thought quite soon, shaking his head as he ran out of the Monastery.

He couldn't risk it. Not in the slightest!

It was surprisingly easy for him to walk out of the monastery, almost just as easy as it had been to enter.

With his speed, he soon arrived at the inn. When he returned, the guiding drug ingredients and the assistants who hadn't seen him in quite a while crowded around him.

"Senior Li, why are you back? Have you finished the business you had with the monastery?" asked one of them.

"No time to talk! Pack your stuff now! We need to leave, now!" said Li Huowang.

"Alright, let me go and contact troupe leader Lu," said another one of the guiding drug ingredients.

"No. We are not waiting for them. We need to leave right now! Quick!" shouted Li Huowang.

"Senior Li, where are we going?" Bai Lingmiao asked.

"We are leaving this kingdom!" replied Li Huowang.

Chapter 49 - Strayed One

Dak dak dak~

The sound of hooves resonated as the donkeys ran down the road non-stop. At the same time, the others followed the donkey carts as fast as they could, their faces filled with fear. They were walking quite fast but still turned to look back and see if anything was following them.

“Senior Li, why are we leaving this kingdom so soon?” Puppy asked as he wiped the sweat off his face.

“Why do you think the Righteous Monastery could operate for so long and is so popular amongst the people? There’s a reason why we need to leave as soon as possible,” Li Huowang said, his face solemn.

Hearing him say that, the girl with hypertrichosis said, “Since the Righteous Monastery could operate in the same city as the Imperial Palace without any issues for such a long time, it's very likely that they have control over the ministers in the palace. Basically, even the ministers and palace officials here cannot be trusted!”

Li Huowang nodded. It would be normal for such a large sect to fool the common people, but if they were trying to control the ministers and palace officials, it meant that they had something shady going on in the background that couldn’t afford to be brought to light.

“We’ve already stayed here long enough. I’ve even passed on the final words of the guiding drug ingredients to Zhao Wu. No matter what, we were planning to leave the kingdom anyway,” Li Huowang said as he opened up a map while sitting on the donkey cart; even if it was just a rough sketch, he finally managed to buy a map in the Western Capital City.

He pointed at a spot on the map and drew a line representing the proposed path for their journey. They would pass through the kingdoms of Si Qi, Hou Shu, and Qing Qiu before arriving at Bai Lingmiao's home in the Liang Kingdom.

"Yeah, let's all go to my place. There are no scary monks over there; they are all just kind and friendly," said Bai Lingmiao.

Hearing her words, Li Huowang glanced at her before closing the map and storing it. He couldn't really trust anything at this point since he couldn't determine whether the monks that Bai Lingmiao was talking about were truly kind, or were they also using the same type of illusion spell.

He was still too weak. There was nothing he could do against such strong opponents just yet.

They kept walking until the sky was almost dark before they stopped to rest.

At this moment, Li Huowang was staring at the campfire in front of him, feeling restless; their speed was too slow. To be fair, he wasn't really hard-pressed on money. If he needed more, he could just sell the jade pendant. At the very least, they could each have gotten a horse.

But the problem was that none of them could ride one!

No, this won't do. We have to hide within the forest after we finish our dinner. Out here on the road, we are way too exposed.

"Senior Li, I added some extra pork lard into your noodles. We have a long journey ahead of us, so we need to eat better," said Bai Lingmiao.

A steaming hot bowl of noodles with bits of pork meat floating in the broth was passed to Li Huowang.

Bai Lingmiao sat beside Li Huowang as he ate the noodles and placed her head on his knees. "Since the monks of the Righteous Monastery are bad, then what about your requirement? Do you really need to find a monk? What about a nun?”

Li Huowang almost choked on his noodles before barely managing to swallow them. Then, he blew the broth and drank it all in one big gulp.

“Don’t worry. Compared to the monks who are chasing us, my issues are nothing,” said Li Huowang.

Since the monks had lied to him, it meant that everything about his current situation was extremely bizarre. Maybe they couldn’t even get rid of Dan Yangzi, or maybe Dan Yangzi wasn’t even what they claimed him to have become. Dan Yangzi may or may not exist. Thus, it should be fine to delay handling that issue.

“Did you have enough? Do you want me to bring some more noodles for you? There’s still some in the pot,” offered Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang shook his head and passed his bowl back to Bai Lingmiao before patting Simpleton on the head. “Come, stop eating and follow me into the forest.”

“Oh...”

In the forest, Li Huowang and Simpleton stood in a line before giving a small tree some extra fertilizer.

Glancing back at the campfire, Li Huowang whispered something to Simpleton before heading back.

Back at the Righteous Monastery, the night had just arrived, and the monks were closing the entrance to the monastery.

Meanwhile, the rest of the monks were attending night lessons, causing the sound of chanting to fill the entire Righteous Monastery.

Jian Dun was fiddling with his prayer beads in his right hand while clenching his left hand as he walked somewhere deeper into the monastery.

Soon, he entered the Five Buddha Palace and saw Xin Hui, who was threading a new set of prayer beads.

“Abbot, I went and checked on benefactor Xuan Yang, but he was missing. It seems that he has run away,” reported Jian Dun.

Abbot Xin Hui was sitting on a prayer mat as he lifted the prayer beads out of the water and inspected his handiwork. After a moment, he placed the prayer beads onto the floor and picked up a baby from a basket beside him.

“Sigh! Such a poor child. If we had arrived any later, you would’ve been drowned by your own father.” He held the baby girl and gently coaxed her to sleep.

“Abbot, benefactor Xuan Yang is gone,” repeated Jian Dun.

“I’m not deaf yet. No need to talk so loudly; you might startle the child awake. Knock.”

Tatatata~

At that moment, the sound of the wooden fish resonated throughout the hall, giving the palace a much more serious aura.

Xin Hui carefully placed the baby on the floor and gently wrapped the prayer beads around her body.

Under the sound of the wooden fish, Xin Hui started chanting. However, rather than sutras, he was chanting something much more sinister.

“Jade rabbit on the moon~ Golden crow in the sun~ Tortoise and snake are a pair~ Twisted and whole~”

As the sound of chanting continued, the prayer beads wrapped around the baby girl started to come alive and tighten around her.

“Twist and wound, life perseveres, a golden lotus blooms in the fire~”

Xin Hui made a lotus seal with both his hands and pointed it toward the baby.

The sound of the crying baby soon turned into laughter and grew louder and louder. In the end, it became so loud that the five Buddha statues in the palace started grinning.

“Combine the five elements and reverse the flow~ Become a Buddha and live on as an Immortal~”

Soon, the sound of the wooden fish faded as Jian Dun walked forward and placed a flower vase beside Xin Hui.

Xin Hui worked a bit on the baby, and soon the baby was placed in the vase, with just her head at the top; it was identical to the one Dan Yangzi had in his cave. And thus, another girl in a vase was born.

After completing the ritual, Xin Hui sat back down and started threading a new set of prayer beads.

“Since he has escaped, then go and catch him; bring him back,” ordered Xin Hui.

“Yes, I obey,” replied Jian Dun.

“Be careful; even though he knows nothing about the world, his potential is huge. Dan Yangzi might have been a thief, but he was very lucky. I have no idea where he found a rare Strayed One.”

Chapter 50 - Buddha

Li Huowang was wrapped in a blanket as he kept watch while hiding in the thick bushes. It was already late into the night, making it extremely cold without a campfire, despite it already being March.

However, he didn't dare to light up a fire; it would reveal his location to the monks that were chasing him.

Under the weak moonlight, Li Huowang took out the bronze bell and inspected it. He had already eaten most of the pills that Dan Yangzi had given him, and so the bronze bell was the only other card he had.

But whenever he thought back to how easily the abbot had snatched the bronze bell from him, he felt a deep sense of dissatisfaction. The opponent could kill him in so many ways, but all he could do was to try and escape. This fact left a bitter taste in his mouth.

In this bizarre world, only strength reigns supreme. If I want to stay alive, I need to become strong! Even someone like Dan Yangzi could become so strong, so why can't I? So what if everyone has some or the other bizarre method of cultivation? I too need to do it in order to survive. I want to protect myself and the others around me. If I can't get it, then I will steal it. If I can't steal it, then I will frame them!

Li Huowang's expression slowly became more and more twisted.

He had just been thinking about all of these things when he shook himself out of it and touched the back of his neck, suddenly realizing something.

"Namo~He Luo Dan Na~ Duo Luo Ye Ye~" The sound of chanting broke the silence of the forest.

At the same time, Li Huowang stood up reflexively and scanned his surroundings. However, it was so dark that he couldn't see anything. Even the simple traps that he had set up earlier were not triggered.

“Namo~ Ah Li Ye~ Po Lu Jie Di~ Yao Ti Luo Ye~” The chanting continued in the dark, this time being closer than before.

“Quick! Stand up! We need to run now! Ignore the donkey carts! Simpleton, do as I had told you to do earlier!” shouted Li Huowang.

Just as Bai Lingmiao was about to follow Li Huowang's commands and stand up, Simpleton picked her up and started running away.

At the same time, Li Huowang walked out of the bush and back onto the road. He clenched his teeth and decided to face them; the monks' target was him. Even if all of them couldn't escape, there is no reason for every one of them to die.

Li Huowang kept running in the dark, but the sound of chanting became closer and closer. For some reason, Li Huowang could smell the smoke from the incense that he had lit up back at the Monastery.

Li Huowang suddenly stopped as he saw multiple red dots the size of flies wriggling around in the darkness on the road.

“Pu Tai Ye~ Pu Tai Ye~ Mi Di Li Ye~ Na Luo Jin Xi~” The sound of chanting was becoming closer and closer.

Soon Li Huowang could see the thing in the darkness; it was a Buddha with a large hat and tall body, but hilariously skinny legs. The belly of the Buddha was engorged as well. The red dots that Li Huowang had previously seen were incense sticks that were stuck on the body of the Buddha. They shivered and shook with every step that the giant Buddha took.

The giant Buddha was wrapped in the white incense smoke. It was probably supposed to look ethereal, but it just appeared downright horrific in the dark wilderness of this road.

At the same time, Li Huowang noticed that there was not one, but seven such Buddhas lined up and closing in on him.

They walked just like humans, but their expressions were neither smiling nor angry. Their bodies swayed left and right.

Under the moonlight, Li Huowang recognized the face of one of the Buddhas. It was none other than Jian Dun!

“Amitabha! Benefactor, your heart is not calm,” said the Buddha with Jian Dun’s face.

Li Huowang stared at the Buddhas that were at least 4m tall. “So you have finally revealed yourself! Is this your true form, you worshipping freaks?!”

“Benefactor, we have no idea why you are saying this. Please follow me back to the monastery. Dan Yangzi’s karma still lingers on you. If you leave with it, you will be in deep trouble; everyone else will suffer as well,” said Jian Dun.

Just as Jian Dun said this, he brought his palms together and started praying.

At that moment, Li Huowang heard the sound of flesh ripping as numerous skinless arms appeared from Jian Dun’s back and splayed open like a peacock’s tail. Soon, the seven Buddhas had all transformed into seven Thousand-armed Buddhas.

Ring!

Li Huowang immediately shook the bronze bell causing the surroundings to start shifting and twisting. Soon, the edges of everything around them congregated and turned into a Wandering God.

However, the ringing bell did not affect the seven Thousand-armed Buddhas; they were just like rocks in the water.

Li Huowang immediately scooped some dirt into his mouth and commanded the Wandering God to attack. Immediately, the latter launched itself toward the seven Buddhas.

Pak!

One of the Buddhas sent a hard slap toward the Wandering God, sending dust and rocks everywhere.

However, the Wandering God did not have a physical body and thus completely ignored the attack, phasing right through the palm and going straight toward the Buddha's face.

The Wandering God then entered the brain of the Buddha, causing the latter to start flailing around and use its arm to try to swat the Wandering God off his head.

But it was no use.

Soon, the Buddha fell to the ground, its face melting off. Its body, which had not been affected by the bell earlier, also started to twist and turn, just like the surroundings.

Peng peng peng!

At that moment, the remaining six Buddhas formed a circle with their backs facing toward each other. They clapped their hands together and started chanting. "Ru Lai Ah Duo Luo~ San Mo~ San Pu Ti~"

The chanting had just started when Li Huowang realized that something was wrong with the Wandering God; the squiggly lines that made up its body started to move around uncontrollably. He soon saw that something was wrong and shook the bell even harder, shouting toward the Wandering God in an even louder voice.

Upon hearing that Li Huowang had agreed to sacrifice even more of his lifespan, the Wandering God held its body together and rushed toward another Buddha.

Once the second Buddha fell to the ground, the Wandering God had spent the last of its strength; it was approaching its limit.

Amidst the chanting sound all around them, the Wandering God soon fell to the ground.

Seeing that it was of no use, Li Huowang stopped ringing the bell. However, even as the surroundings returned to normal, the Wandering God did not disappear.

Soon, the squiggly lines that made up the Wandering God started to lose their color and turned into a fleshy pink color; the Wandering God that was supposed to be formless had been granted a physical body using the power of the sutras!

The physical body of the Wandering God looked like a clump of earthworms; it slowly wriggled around on the ground.

A palm with a swastika symbol then slapped the Wandering God and crushed it into a pile of mush.

The palm was then raised slowly, flesh and blood still clinging to it. Then, the Buddhas once again brought their hands together and approached Li Huowang slowly. “Amitabha! Benefactor, please follow us back.”

Translator's Thoughts

Jian Dun in his Buddha form. @格子的乱七八糟

Chapter 51 - Negotiation

Li Huowang raised his head, staring at the Buddhas to no avail; they had their backs turned toward the moon, so their faces were shrouded in darkness. All Li Huowang could see were the numerous arms wriggling at the back and their large heads. The air was filled with a weird stench created by the combination of smoke from burning incense and blood.

Li Huowang took a few steps back. After confirming that he was indeed alone, he shook his head.

“No. I will not go back,” Li Huowang steeled his heart as he held the hilt of his sword.

Suddenly, a cracking sound was heard as one of the giant Buddhas leaned down and blocked the moon from Li Huowang’s vision. At the same time, a strong wave of pressure started to push downward upon Li Huowang.

At that moment, Li Huowang felt as if a pair of lantern-sized eyes were staring holes into him.

“Amitabha! Benefactor, please follow us back. We are doing this for your own sake.” Much to Li Huowang’s surprise, Jian Dun did not attack him; he was still trying to negotiate and convince Li Huowang in a peaceful manner.

“If you are really doing all this for my sake, then why not let me leave? Don’t you monks preach about kindness and forgiveness and what-not? So how about letting me go?” asked Li Huowang.

“It’s precisely because we stand for kindness that we cannot let you leave,” replied Jian Dun.

Just as Jian Dun said that, a stone flew over and hit the head of one of the Buddhas. However, the sound that was heard was that of metal ringing rather than flesh being struck.

Li Huowang and Jian Dun turned at the same time. Bai Lingmiao and the rest of them were standing not too far away with glowing rocks in their hands.

“Senior Li! Run!” More stones flew over and hit the Buddha, but there was no effect.

“Amitabha! The sea of torment does not end, so it’s best to turn back.” Jian Dun brought his palms together as he gently crouched before his skinny legs propelled him forward.

Boom!

With a loud pop, Jian Dun’s massive body was sent flying through the sky before it fell down like a giant rock. Numerous trees were broken and blown away as he landed behind Bai Lingmiao and the rest, his massive body blocking their escape.

Seeing how small and powerless Bai Lingmiao and the others were compared to the Buddha, Li Huowang shouted with all his might, “No! Stop!”

As if sensing something, the Buddhas surrounding Li Huowang and even Jian Dun all took a step back.

“Benefactor Xuan Yang, we were not thinking of harming them. Please calm down,” Jian Dun’s voice had a hint of panic; it was as if he didn’t want to trigger Li Huowang.

Hmm?

This was beyond everyone’s expectation; to think that they would actually listen to Li Huowang.

Why are they panicking? There’s no reason for them to panic and to fear someone normal like me.

“We are monks. We do not kill. We just want to make sure that they are safe and do not run away,” Jian Dun said as he used his gigantic hands to uproot several trees with ease. After twisting the trees a bit, he made a simple cage and trapped everyone within it.

Once Jian Dun made sure that no one would disturb them again, he slowly walked back toward Li Huowang.

“Benefactor Xuan Yang, since you do not wish to return with me, then why not negotiate with me?” proposed Jian Dun.

“Negotiate? Are you trying to persuade me to come back?” Li Huowang asked while keeping an eye on the Buddhas’ massive hands that were even bigger than him. He had no idea what they were trying to do.

“Of course. Benefactor Xuan Yang is someone who knows what is important. Naturally, I should be able to persuade you,” replied Jian Dun.

Hearing this, Li Huowang thought back to the incident at the monastery and found something very illogical; regardless of whether it was the Abbot or Jian Dun, despite being stronger than him, they did not attack him or take him back forcefully. Instead, they kept trying to use lies and deceit to trap him.

Wouldn't it be easier for them to just force me using brute strength? Why are they going through so much hassle? Is there something special about me?

Li Huowang checked both his palms but couldn't see anything out of the ordinary.

I'm just someone suffering from hysteria that would fall in and out of illusions from time to time. Is there something special about me that they are being wary of?

Li Huowang tried to piece together all the information, completely ignoring Jian Dun for now. He needed to find out what made them so wary of him. That might end up being the only chance for him to escape.

Wait, let me think about it the other way. What would the consequences be if they used brute force and threatened my life?

Li Huowang tried to remember everything that he had encountered in this world.

He recalled that back when the God of Happiness was dragged away into the darkness, that had been the only time his life had been in danger. It was also the only time when the opponent was surprisingly defeated.

Immediately, Li Huowang's pupils shrank, realizing the crux of the issue.

Dan Yangzi! They do not wish to harm me because whenever my life is in danger, Dan Yangzi, that monster, would appear! Dan Yangzi is protecting me!

Li Huowang instantly realized the intentions behind all of the monks' actions. He had always thought that Dan Yangzi was trying to harm him, but from the looks of it, that was not the case. While Li Huowang himself knew that he was trying to harm Dan Yangzi, from Dan Yangzi's perspective, this disciple of his had not done anything wrong and had even helped him achieve 'Immortality'.

The Righteous Monastery must've known about all this but did not tell me. That is why they have been constantly trying to deceive me and use the Great Fast to try and get rid of Dan Yangzi. Once Dan Yangzi is gone, I will be nothing but a fat slab of meat for the monks!

When Li Huowang thought back to what the monks of the Righteous Monastery were doing, he suddenly felt disgusted and chilled to the bone.

Li Huowang raised his head and once again stared at Jian Dun; this time he was prepared. He smiled. "Are all of you afraid of Dan Yangzi? According to you guys, he has turned into a Buddha, so why are you still afraid of him?"

Jian Dun's expression froze. "Benefactor Xuan Yang, I have no idea what you're saying. Monks do not lie or cheat. I can swear upon the Buddhas that the Great Fast is meant to eliminate Dan Yangzi. It will not harm you."

At that moment, Li Huowang's suspicions were confirmed.

In this world, there was no such thing as helping someone out of the goodwill of one's heart. In the future, he would need to be more careful when trying to gather information. At the same time, he needed to be more critical about his own thinking.

“I suddenly feel that taking Dan Yangzi with me is a good thing; after all, he was my Master. I don’t feel that it’s good to eliminate him just like that.” Once he had figured out their goal, Li Huowang was no longer panicking.

“Amitabha! This is not possible. Dan Yangzi’s matter does not only affect you but also everyone else,” said Jian Dun.

Li Huowang raised his head and stared at Jian Dun again, smirking. “Why don’t you talk to my Master himself?”

“What?” Jian Dun questioned.

At that moment, Li Huowang unsheathed his sword and held it up. The sword was sharp enough to slice through metal like a hot knife through butter.

When Jian Dun saw Li Huowang draw his sword, he smiled. “To try and break the body of my Buddhas with your sword; benefactor Xuan Yang must have a lot of faith in your weapon.”

“Didn’t you hear what I just said? I want you to talk with Dan Yangzi himself,” said Li Huowang. Just as he finished speaking, he used the sword to slit the side of his neck.

His skin was sliced quite easily, causing warm blood to splatter out and drench his Daoist robes in red.

“Hehe.” Li Huowang’s consciousness started to fade away as he applied pressure to his neck. “Do you hear that? It sounds like... thunder.”

Chapter 52 - Dan Yangzi

“Thunder?” Jian Dun and the rest of the Buddhas looked toward the sky, only to see that the moon had disappeared. The entire night sky was covered in dark clouds, rolling and rumbling. The sound of thunder could be heard rumbling from time to time, but it was odd; it didn’t sound like thunder at all.

“Cough-cough...” Li Huowang coughed a few times as his breathing turned ragged, and he fell to the ground. When he turned to look at the sky while lying down, he once again saw his Master amidst the dark clouds.

He was still as ugly as ever.

Black feathers sprouted from his bloody body, while three different faces replaced what had once been his head. In addition to his normal human organs, his burgeoning body was also riddled with many non-human organs. His body was nightmarishly black; his eyes were filled with a mysterious liquid, while his pupils were mere slits. Tentacles covered parts of his body.

Everything about him was vile.

Even so, a mysterious veil made from white smoke hung around his body, as if he was something divine. His body was in a constant state of shifting and turning—his body shifted as his organs moved around and his faces changed position.

Li Huowang had only been staring at Dan Yangzi for a short period of time when his eyes started bleeding, and veins started bulging on his head. He felt like his head was going to explode.

No! I cannot stare at him anymore.

Li Huowang shifted his gaze away, feeling slightly better. His body had weakened considerably in just this short while. However, even if his life was no longer in danger from looking at Dan Yangzi, his blood loss might end up killing him soon.

He weakly patted his waist and fished out some of the Blood Nourishing pills and consumed them with his last remaining strength. The rate at which blood flowed out of his wound gradually slowed down.

But this was not enough.

Li Huowang then took out some pills meant to reinforce the energy of his body before eating them.

At that moment, the sudden sound of muscles being torn caused Li Huowang to look up once again. He saw that his Master, Dan Yangzi, had started attacking and had attached himself to one of the Buddhas' heads like a lizard, his three mouths easily tearing off its ears.

Bellowing in rage, the numerous arms on the Buddha's back tried to claw at and capture Dan Yangzi. But Dan Yangzi shifted all of his organs and forcefully expanded them, using them to block the attacks from the Buddha.

Then, Dan Yangzi used his three mouths to tear an even larger hole on the Buddha's face before shoving his head right in.

"AAAAAH!" The Buddha shouted in despair as its body started deflating. Soon, it fell down onto the ground, blood seeping out from all seven of its orifices.

When the bloodied Dan Yangzi reappeared in front of the other Buddhas, Jian Dun did not dare to look down on him. Jian Dun immediately took out a parchment and started chanting the mantra written on it. Rather than using ink, the words of the mantra were given form by using an uncountable number of moles pulled from the skin of humans.

"An~Ma~Ni~Pa~Mi~Hou~" As Jian Dun sat cross-legged and spoke these six words, the mantra on the parchment flashed red and disappeared before appearing on Dan Yangzi's body.

As soon as Dan Yangzi became covered in the numerous words, his body started trembling and growing wildly. His body grew larger and larger before it started withering. It withered so fast that soon, Dan Yangzi disappeared completely.

Jian Dun's face was drenched in sweat as he let out a relieved sigh. Fortunately, he had prepared that mantra just in case something unexpected happened. Had he not, then he would've died.

Then he chanted the mantra in reverse, causing the words to start reappearing on the parchment in his hand.

After confirming that all the words were there, Jian Dun was just about to close the parchment when it exploded. Then, amidst the "words" that were sent flying everywhere, Dan Yangzi crawled out from the parchment.

This was something that no one had expected. Jian Dun gasped in surprise, allowing Dan Yangzi the chance to shoot himself into Jian Dun's mouth like a drill and travel down his throat.

Soon, the sound of tearing could be heard as Jian Dun's throat started to bulge. However, this was only the beginning.

Soon, the pain became unbearable as Jian Dun started hearing a chewing sound from within his body!

"NOOO!" Jian Dun cried out in despair as Dan Yangzi burst out from his chest.

Meanwhile, the other three Buddhas continued to struggle to no avail. In just a few moments, the sound of bone cracking and flesh being torn resounded through the forest. Within just a few minutes, all seven Buddhas had disappeared, leaving behind only the steaming puddles of blood.

When Li Huowang finally had the chance to once again gaze at Dan Yangzi, he saw his Master turn around and show a horrifying smile on all three of his mouths as he said, "My dear disciple."

Poof!

With a soft sound, Dan Yangzi's body disappeared like smoke in the wind.

Time slowly passed, and soon, the moon reappeared, covering the forest in a soft silver veil. Everything had ended.

Li Huowang grabbed his neck and forced himself to sit up. He saw the others that were still trapped within the crude cage made by Jian Dun. All of them were shocked and didn't even dare to speak.

Li Huowang had an idea as to what they were thinking and weakly explained to them, "No need to be afraid. Dan Yangzi is well and truly dead. He won't use all of you as guiding drug ingredients anymore."

However, Li Huowang's words did not reduce their fear. In fact, some of them even started crying.

It was Bai Lingmiao who broke the silence first, her face even paler than usual. "Senior Li, what Dan Yangzi? We didn't see anything."

Li Huowang struggled to swallow his saliva. "Did you not see Dan Yangzi killing the Buddhas? Was he invisible to all of you?"

Li Huowang thought that it might be a possibility.

But just then, Puppy's entire body started trembling from fear and shock. He didn't dare to look at Li Huowang as he closed his eyes and shouted in a trembling voice, "Senior Li! There is no Dan Yangzi! It was you all along!"

"What?" Li Huowang endured the pain and touched his face; there was some sticky goo covering him.

He continued touching his face and found that both of his cheeks had been torn open, as if he had opened his mouth to an impossibly large size.

But none of that was important.

What was important was that he felt full. Really full.

Chapter 53 - Ponder

Creak, creak~

The horrible grinding sound of the donkey cart's wheels filled the air.

"Puppy, add some oil to the wheels," Li Huowang said with difficulty as he lay in the cart. Bai Lingmiao had just stitched the wound on his neck and then applied medicine on it. He couldn't move for now.

Soon, the sound of squeaking wheels lessened. Li Huowang gazed at the sky and recalled the incident from a few nights ago.

The trouble with the Righteous Monastery had been resolved, but his personal problems had only just begun.

In his view, it was the Immortal Dan Yangzi who had killed the Buddhas.

However, to others, it was Li Huowang himself who had shot into the mouths of the Buddhas and consumed them from the inside out. They told him that his expression became extremely twisted and fierce right before he had done so.

In this world, it wasn't possible for people to observe two different scenarios at the same time. That meant whatever he was seeing had to be false.

Li Huowang turned to his side and saw Bai Lingmiao holding his hand tightly, not letting go for even a single moment. Her eyes were currently covered with a blindfold.

After a while, Li Huowang turned and once again looked toward the skies before smiling bitterly.

When he thought about it, due to his illness, he didn't even trust himself.

Coupled with the fact that he had been covered in blood and his stomach had been full, it implied that he was indeed the one who had killed the Buddhas, not Dan Yangzi.

Is Dan Yangzi truly dead? Was all that just my imagination?

Just as he had that thought, he dismissed it.

It's impossible for me to defeat all those Buddhas with just my illusion. It had to be Dan Yangzi who did it. Regardless of what he has become, he is still here, watching me.

Li Huowang was certain about this.

I had always thought that Dan Yangzi had truly become an Immortal and was just entering the mortal realm. But from the looks of it, he seems to have either possessed me or attached himself to my body. If that really is the case, my assumption that he was protecting me seems to have been correct. But why? He's not the benevolent type, so there must be a reason behind all this.

Thinking back upon that night, he felt quite weird. He had a hunch as he gently held Bai Lingmiao's hands.

"Hey, did my temper become shorter after we left the Zephyr Temple?" asked Li Huowang.

"No. Why do you ask?" replied Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang just circled his index finger on the back of Bai Lingmiao's hands and didn't explain his thoughts to her.

The reason I have to ask such a question is that Dan Yangzi is a truly evil man.

Even though no one had explicitly said it, Li Huowang sensed some subtle changes had occurred within him.

Is Dan Yangzi trying to resurrect himself through my body? If this is true, that means that protecting my body would be the same as protecting himself.

This was a very bold thought that crossed his mind. However, he tried to calm himself down; that was merely a conjecture.

Dan Yangzi had to be removed, but how was he going to go about achieving that? He was grasping at straws here. This world was not like video games, where everything was laid out in a clear cut manner. He had to find bits and pieces of clues within this world itself.

After the incident in the Righteous Monastery, Li Huowang had decided that he would no longer trust any of the other sects here. If a monastery that was supposed to preach kindness and stand by it was already so evil, then the other sects could only be worse.

But still, in order to survive in this world, Li Huowang would have no choice but to confront them.

Just as he was pondering about it, the donkey cart slowed down. The sound of running water could be heard from near them.

“Senior Li, let me wash your clothes,” Bai Lingmiao released his hands and walked to the creek with Li Huowang’s bloodied Daoist robes.

Meanwhile, the rest of them did not stop to rest, instead opting to find firewood to cook their meal.

Currently, Li Huowang couldn’t even sit up. All he could do was listen to his surroundings and guess as to what was happening.

Soon, the fragrant smell of something being cooked wafted over. In response, his stomach started gurgling immediately; his injured body needed the nutrients from the food.

“Senior, let me feed you.”

Then, Li Huowang felt that he was propped up as he felt something soft and furry. He knew that it was the guiding drug ingredient with hypertrichosis that had helped him up. He recalled that her name was Chun Xiaoman.

It was an easy name to understand. She was born on one of the days in the Xiaoman period [1] , so she was named Chun Xiaoman. Farmers usually didn’t put much thought into naming their daughters.

Xiaoman poured some horse meat soup into a wooden bowl before bringing a spoonful to Li Huowang’s lips.

She was silently feeding him, while he was silently eating. Ever since that incident, Li Huowang found that everyone here was afraid of him.

However, Li Huowang could understand their fears. Traveling with a monster-eating man? Who wouldn't be afraid?

After finishing most of the soup, Li Huowang told Xiaoman, "Ask Bai Lingmiao to come back. She doesn't need to worry about washing the robe if the blood can't be washed off."

"Alright," said Xiaoman as she placed Li Huowang down gently, using the stone inscribed with the sacred text as a makeshift pillow.

Soon, Bai Lingmiao returned. The Daoist robe was still red in color instead of its original green color.

"Just put it on the donkey's back to let it dry. Quickly go and eat. The food is almost cold now," said Li Huowang.

"Mm hmm." Bai Lingmiao removed her blindfold and quickly inspected Li Huowang's wound before putting it back on and finding her way to the nearby campfire.

Dak, dak, dak~

At that moment, the sound of horse hooves came from afar. The owners of the horses had yet to arrive, but their voices could already be heard. "Aiyo! Young Daoist! So that's where you were! I thought we were separated forever!"

When Lu Zhuangyuan's wrinkled face appeared in front of him, Li Huowang knew that the entire Lu family troupe had arrived.

"Aiyo~ Look at you!" Lu Zhuangyuan said as he saw Li Huowang's wounded body.

"It's nothing. I just met with some small trouble on the road. What do you need?" asked Li Huowang.

"Young Daoist, how could you leave without a word? Didn't we agree that we would travel together? Luckily you had told us that you intended to cross the border, or we might never have known which direction you had gone off to!” Lu Zhuangyuan chuckled. They had finally found a free bodyguard, so how could he just let Li Huowang leave?

“Sorry, troupe leader Lu. As you can see, I am currently injured. No need to worry about us. You can just leave whenever you please,” said Li Huowang.

“Aiya! Just lie down and rest.” Lu Zhuangyuan did not bother asking what had happened. His experience told him that the more he knew, the more dangerous it would be for him.

Seeing that the sun had almost set, both parties decided not to travel anymore. There was even a small creek near them, making it easy for them to wash up or replenish their water supply.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang stared at the night skies and continued to ponder.

At that moment, he turned to his right and saw someone there. Before he could even react, a small and soft body had already gotten into his embrace.

Recognizing the familiar scent, Li Huowang gently patted her back. “It’s alright. Leave everything to me.”

1. Ancient China split the twelve months into 24-periods, each period lasting two weeks. Xiaoman is one of the periods. 📖

Chapter 54 - Wandering God

Boom!

The sound of the wooden bat hitting the ground heavily could be heard amidst a cloud of dust and dirt. The heavy bat was raised up and then smashed down toward the ground, again and again.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang was being propped up by Bai Lingmiao as they observed Simpleton swinging the club around. Even though the wound on Li Huowang's neck hadn't completely healed, after resting for a few days, he could finally muster enough strength to stand.

"Stronger! Swing it harder!" Li Huowang shouted.

By the campfire, Lu Zhuangyuan took two buns and chuckled as he walked over. "Young Daoist, what are you doing? There's so much noise."

Under Simpleton's attacks, the surrounding forest had been reduced to a mess of leaves and broken tree branches.

"Nothing much. I felt that it was a waste to let him only carry luggage considering how strong he is. So, I'm training him," explained Li Huowang.

"Oh, that's good, that's good," Lu Zhuangyuan nodded and walked away.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang returned his gaze to the shirtless Simpleton, who was drenched in sweat, and he continued training him. Even though he might be a little... lacking in terms of brains, his body was incredible. Li Huowang sighed as he observed Simpleton's massive back and waist.

What a strong body! Sure, he might not be able to fight off the supernatural stuff, but at the very least, he should be able to fend off the bandits quite easily.

This was Li Huowang's plan. He wanted to strengthen their abilities. Relying solely on the Wandering Gods and Dan Yangzi was not possible, as the side effects were far too harsh. Even in a world with many bizarre cultivation techniques and powers, he still knew the value of traditional fighting methods.

It might appear barbaric, but it was still better than nothing.

Even if they were not fighting enemies, at the very least, if Li Huowang started suffering from hallucinations again, they could still protect him.

"Alright! That's one hundred! You can rest now," said Li Huowang.

Hearing this, Simpleton threw his club and walked toward the campfire, panting heavily. Then, he picked up his large bowl and started eating without any restraint.

Soon, half a kilogram of noodles had been devoured by him. Even so, Simpleton was visibly hungry and returned to the black pot to get more noodles.

When Li Huowang saw how Simpleton downed yet another half a kilogram of noodles, he felt somewhat impressed.

So it's true that someone who is weak in the mind would have an extremely strong body. Luckily, I have quite a bit of money or I would go broke just trying to feed him.

At that moment, he thought about something and took out the bronze bell. Looking at it, Li Huowang recalled the Wandering God that had been crushed to bits by Jian Dun and his Buddhas.

Can I still use it?

However, when he thought about it, he realized that there was no such thing as impossible in this bizarre world.

"Come and support me; I need to go into the forest," Li Huowang told Bai Lingmiao.

They walked into the forest far enough away so that they could not hear the sounds coming from around the campfire. Only then did they stop.

“You go back first,” said Li Huwang. However, this time, Bai Lingmiao did not heed his order.

“You can just go to the toilet. I will turn around...” said Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang didn’t know whether he should laugh or cry. “I’m not going to the toilet. You go back first; come back here after 15 minutes.”

He waited until he was the only one remaining in the forest before he leaned against a white birch tree. Then, with one of his hands on his forehead, he shook the bell.

Soon, the edges of the world started twisting and turning. However, this time, they did not congregate back together.

Seeing this, Li Huowang decided to shake the bell even harder.

Don’t tell me it’s unusable now?

Just as he had this thought, the squiggly lines started to congregate before forming a new Wandering God. Then, the new Wandering God hummed curiously.

Li Huowang asked it some questions he had, and in response, the Wandering God hummed emotionlessly, almost as if it was not the one who had been killed by the Buddhas.

Enduring the headache, Li Huowang talked faster and managed to gather some surprising pieces of information.

Firstly, the Wandering Gods had names. It was just that humans couldn’t produce the sounds required to call out their names. Even they didn’t know why they were called the Wandering Gods by the first person that saw them.

Secondly, the Wandering Gods did not have any concept of death, or to be more accurate, they were not living beings. Not only did they not have the concept of death, but they also did not have the concept of numbers.

No concept of numbers?

Li Huowang thought about it as he shook his head, causing the nausea and confusion to become even stronger. Soon, he started seeing double of everything around him, including the Wandering God.

Seeing how the Wandering God in front of him had split into two, Li Huowang seemed to have realized something as he shook the bell even harder. Every time he shook it, the Wandering God in front of him split into more and more bodies, until the confused Li Huowang could see 20-30 of them.

Blegh!

He could not handle the nausea anymore and vomited.

Soon, the sound of the bell faded and everything around him returned to normal. The Wandering Gods had all disappeared.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang vomited the meal he had just eaten until there was nothing left in his stomach. He kept vomiting until he almost started vomiting bile.

Standing up shakily, he wiped his mouth and panted while looking at the bell.

If I had known this beforehand, I wouldn't have needed to mutilate myself to summon Dan Yangzi.

He stored the bell as he pondered.

No, every time I give one of them an order, I need to sacrifice three months of my lifespan. Using so many of them would've probably cost me at least ten years of my life.

Li Huowang slowly walked back to the camp as he supported himself with the help of the trees.

Just as he reached the roadside, he saw everyone, including Lu Zhuangyuan, huddled together.

“Come here, everyone! All of this is good stuff! If anything here is of bad quality, then I, Zu Dexi, swear that I will suffer from endless misfortune and my descendants will all live like livestock!”

Li Huowang went over and saw that it was a merchant and his mule cart. He was advertising his wares.

Bai Lingmiao and Chun Xiaoman were on one side, gazing at some needles.

“This is such a dangerous world, and you are out here selling all this stuff on your own? Aren’t you afraid of being robbed?” asked Li Huowang.

In the face of Li Huowang’s question, the man who had a mole at the edge of his lips smiled and didn’t bother explaining himself.

“Daoist, do you need some cinnabar? I have plenty right here!” said the merchant.

Lu Zhuangyuan approached Li Huowang and whispered to him with disgust in his voice. “The bandits would never rob him! After all, he’s in the same line of business as the bandits. The bandits would rob stuff from people while he would purchase it from them!”

“I see...” Li Huowang nodded. That’s true. The mountain bandits would also need to sell off their items to be able to get money and food. These kinds of merchants that traveled around on their own would be their best option for privacy.

“Daoist, if you don’t want any cinnabar, then how about something else? I have quite a few options!” Zu Dexi didn’t even blink as he continued to peddle his wares.

Li Huowang thought about it and asked, “You have other options? Do you have something that I can use to kill people with?”

Everyone else turned and stared at Li Huowang the moment he said that.

On the other hand, Zu Dexi excitedly clapped his hands and started rummaging around in his mule cart. “Yes! Yes, I do!”

Chapter 55 - Healed

“Come and take a look! Are you satisfied with these?” Zu Dexi asked, pointing at the items laid out on the ground.

A variety of items were displayed before Li Huowang. Most of them were rusted swords, while the rest were stored in vials.

“What the? All of these are rusted. They are nothing but scrap metal,” Puppy said as he knelt down, inspected the items, and started haggling with the man.

“You can still use them after you polish them a little. Do you think I would have the chance to obtain superior quality weapons out here?” the man asked.

On the other hand, Li Huowang did not pay much attention to the swords; instead, his focus was on the vials. He knelt down and inspected them but found that nothing was written on them.

“The Daoist surely knows his goods. To think that you would understand the value of such quality items,” praised Zu Dexi.

While Zu Dexi was kneeling beside Li Huowang, and was somewhat repulsed by the smell of blood and smoke from his robes, he was not afraid. On the contrary, he was excited.

“Daoist, that’s something really nice. It’s a poison called Half-step. Put some of it in a person’s water, and they will die in the time it would take for them to take just a half step. I’m selling it cheap for three pieces of silver per bottle.”

“Oh! You have quite discerning eyes! That’s something really good as well. It’s called the Red Crane. You only need an amount the size of your fingernail to send someone straight to hell. Five pieces of silver per bottle.”

“This is something even more amazing!! You only need to take one of these pills, and you would be able to handle two women in one night! This was something that was custom made for Second Head Liu of Wolf's Head Mountain. However, I can sell it to you for an extra fee."

Hearing Zu Dexi go on and on about his wares, Li Huowang stood up impatiently. "Just about everything seems to be a treasure in your eyes. Fine, I want the first two items. Puppy, bring the money from the cart."

"Daoist, you are quite generous!" Zu Dexi was smiling so hard that his eyes had become thin slits. "Are you sure you don't want this too? I can make it cheaper for you. Even if you don't use it now, you might want to use it when you are older. It's definitely something good to have, considering that it helps you extend your family's bloodline."

Li Huowang didn't bother to give him a reply, instead turning to his group. "You guys, choose some weapons you like. Having one is better than having none."

Hearing his words, everyone except Bai Lingmiao and Xiaoman, the two girls, approached the cart and started checking the wares.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang stored the two vials of poison and turned to Lu Zhuangyuan. "Troupe leader Lu, why don't you buy something to defend yourself?"

Lu Zhuangyuan shook his head. "No need. If we happen to encounter bandits as we are now, we would lose our money at most. However, if we took up weapons to defend ourselves, then we would die if we failed."

"Hoho, it seems that you've thought it out quite well. Looks like everyone has their own plans," Li Huowang said as he lay back down on the donkey cart to rest.

Soon, everyone returned from around the mule cart. Puppy and the rest now had their weapons. Even if they didn't know how to use them, at least they would look much more menacing.

Just as they were swinging their weapons around, Bai Lingmiao approached Li Huowang with a thread and needle in her hands and started fixing Li Huowang's Daoist robes.

"Senior Li, after purchasing all of these things, we have used up over half of our money. We only have five pieces of silver left," said Bai Lingmiao, feeling worried.

"We will be traveling for a very long time. We would have needed to buy something to defend ourselves with anyway," said Li Huowang. He already had the bronze bell and could even summon Dan Yangzi by mutilating himself. He didn't need such mundane weapons. However, he couldn't trust himself. He was worried that he would be stuck in his hallucination once the effects of the Black Taisui wore off. If that were to happen, then no one else would be capable of protecting them—they would be nothing but sheep meant to be slaughtered.

"Senior Li, the weapons would work against bandits, but if we could learn superpowers like the ones that Dan Yangzi had, then we would be unbeatable!" Puppy brought his blade over as he sighed.

"You want to learn superpowers? Even if an expert were here, they might even teach you. Also..." Li Huowang suddenly remembered how Dan Yangzi refined pills, using live humans as ingredients, as well as the bizarre cultivation method used by the monks of the Righteous Monastery. "Also, even if they were to teach you, you might not be able to learn them as a normal human."

Even though he didn't have much experience, Li Huowang had a feeling that the other sects in this world would also be similar to Dan Yangzi and the Righteous Monastery.

Puppy chuckled before bringing one of the guiding drug ingredients who only had one arm with him toward the creek. "Come, let's find some stones to polish the blades of our weapons from the creek."

Just then, Simpleton's massive frame appeared before Li Huowang like a wall. "I... I..."

"No need. You can't use a sword. Just practice using your club. That is the only thing that would be able to complement your strength," said Li Huowang as he lay back down to rest.

Their quick encounter with the merchant ended, and soon the two groups were once again on their way.

Days passed slowly as they passed through several villages. Except for the days when they helped the Lu family set up a stage to perform, they continued traveling.

In the meantime, the wound on Li Huowang's neck slowly healed.

Standing next to a jar of water, Li Huowang checked his neck using the surface of the water as a mirror and saw that there was a visible scar on his neck.

"It's not too bad. If I lower my head, it isn't too obvious," said Li Huowang as he turned and looked toward Bai Lingmiao, who had her white hands massaging her temples.

"Why the long face? Did something unfortunate happen?" asked Li Huowang.

"Senior Li, we just purchased some food for us and the donkeys earlier. Now, we are left with only one piece of silver and 345 coins," said Bai Lingmiao.

"That little? You are kidding." Li Huowang walked out from a temporary farmhouse they were staying in and approached the Lu family's stage.

"All that money was supposed to last longer, but ever since everyone started practicing with their weapons, everyone has been so famished that they have been eating too much. Simpleton even eats an entire kilogram of noodles per meal! That's two kilograms per day if we eat two meals!" explained Bai Lingmiao.

"But that practice is not rubbish. Since we bought those weapons, we must practice using them. At the very least, they must learn how to slash and stab with them,” said Li Huowang.

Even if it was only a simple swing, there was a large difference between someone who practiced every day and someone who just carried it around. At the very least, their chances of victory would increase if they were to lace their swords with poison before fighting an enemy.

Li Huowang stared at the group of people helping the Lu family disassemble the stage.

“We only have enough money for one more month. After that, we will have to starve,” said Bai Lingmiao.

“So the problem is that we don’t have enough money, huh?” remarked Li Huowang.

Li Huowang rubbed his chin and looked at the Lu family.

They probably earned a lot of money throughout this journey. I can just take it from them, and then all our problems would be solved.

Just as he had this thought, he stopped himself. How could he have such thoughts? Lu Zhuangyuan might be cunning, but he was still an honest man trying to make a living. How could he think about taking the money from him?

Li Huowang’s mood instantly dropped.

Translator's Thoughts

Remember a couple of chapters back where the Wandering God was granted a physical body by Jian Dun? Yeah, this was how it looked like @格子的乱七八糟

Chapter 56 - Beyond The Border

“Senior Li, are you okay?” Bai Lingmiao instinctively grabbed Li Huowang’s hand when she saw that his expression seemed off.

Li Huowang smiled and shook his head. “I’m fine, just a little worried about the outside world; after all, we’re about to go outside the border. Let’s go and help the Lu Family tear down the stage so that we can leave.”

However, despite his words, Li Huowang’s expression was quite cold. His temperament seemed to be becoming more and more like Dan Yangzi’s.

This change caused a chill to run down Li Huowang’s spine.

When he recalled how the others saw him devouring the Buddhas from the inside out instead of Dan Yangzi, that conjecture was no longer just a simple assumption; it was gradually becoming a reality.

If it was just his personality, then that would still be alright. However, Li Huowang was more worried that as time passed, he would completely become Dan Yangzi himself.

If that’s the case, then everything before now makes sense. Dan Yangzi is not protecting me, but protecting himself!

Even just the thought of this possibility left Li Huowang feeling restless. That old fogey, Dan Yangzi, was definitely at the top of his list of the people he hated the most in this world. He did not want to become Dan Yangzi; he would rather die!

Li Huowang suddenly felt like returning to the Righteous Monastery, even if he had to face hardships; he wanted to get those monks to conduct the Great Fast and get rid of Dan Yangzi.

But that was just wishful thinking.

There had still been hope for negotiation before, but after he killed those seven Buddhas, those monks would probably seek revenge the moment they laid their eyes on him. Those ‘monks’ were not true monks; they were not vegetarian nor did they chant scriptures.

They were capable of just about anything.

According to what the Abbot had described before, there were many other sects besides the Righteous Monastery. He could only think of getting a solution for his problem through them; whatever the Righteous Monastery could achieve, the other sects could achieve as well.

Li Huowang walked to the front of the donkey cart and opened the map to study it carefully.

Originally, he had planned to not interact with people from sects because of the bad impression left behind by the Righteous Monastery.

But there was no other way now.

Since the Righteous Monastery had a way to get rid of Dan Yangzi, the other sects should be able to do so as well.

While he did not know what they wanted, based on their actions, he could deduce that the Righteous Monastery wanted something from him.

Is it the sacred text left behind by Dan Yangzi?

If he did not want to turn into Dan Yangzi, he had to find a way to get rid of Dan Yangzi using the other sects.

If there's no other choice, then I'll just use the sacred text to exchange with them.

Li Huowang silently came to a decision; at the moment, the sacred text was his only bargaining chip.

By the time they arrived at the small town close to the border pass, he was starting to feel slightly uneasy. The small town was bustling with merchants and people wearing different styles of clothing; they had all come here to engage in trade.

When Li Huowang saw the border pass in the distance, he turned to Lu Zhuangyuan and said, “Old man, looks like we’ll be parting ways here.”

Lu Zhuangyuan expressed his gratitude by shaking Li Huowang’s hand. “Young Daoist, you’ve worked hard. If not for you accompanying us on the way, we would have suffered many hardships.”

The Lu Family troupe naturally could not cross the border. Once they arrived at the border pass, they would return to their village through another route. After making the necessary repairs and recuperating at home, they would repeat their journey, traveling through the empire once again. This was the fate of their theater troupe. If they wanted to break free from this life of wandering, they had to buy a theater building and settle down.

“Have a safe journey. I don’t know what you are up to, Young Daoist, but we wish you great success! Here, take some salted duck eggs for your trip,” said Lu Zhuangyuan.

In response, Lu Xiucan reluctantly placed a jar of salted duck eggs onto the donkey cart.

“Thank you for your well-wishes. If fate allows it, then we’ll come and watch the Lu Family’s performance once again. After this trip, I must say that I’ve become quite addicted to your plays,” said Li Huowang.

After they exchanged their farewells, the donkey cart, now full of the necessary rations, gradually approached the border pass.

Lu Zhuangyuan watched their departing figures and took a puff of smoke from his pipe before tapping it onto the head of his younger son, who had a reluctant look in his eyes.

“Don’t think about that fair-skinned girl. Our family is from a humble background. We’ll get a matchmaker to find a suitable match for you back at home,” said Lu Zhuangyuan.

“Dad, what are you saying? I didn’t have any such thoughts.” Lu Xiucai frantically denied, then turned around and hurried toward the busy street.

“Dad, how could you bear to give him an entire jar of salted duck eggs when you are usually so stingy?” Lu Juren asked while carrying his daughter, feeling curious.

“What nonsense? Don’t think of me as stingy. Remember, we should be generous when necessary. This Daoist is not an average person. If we make good relations with him, then our Lu Family will have made a very valuable connection,” replied Lu Zhuangyuan.

After some twists and turns, they finally exited the border. Li Huowang looked around and felt something was different despite the fact that they were still surrounded by forests.

They were not alone on the road; there were quite a few horse carts, as well as people carrying loads on shoulder poles. It was easy to differentiate where they were from based on the way they wore their clothes. Those from the Qi kingdom had the left lapel of their hanfu over the right, while those from the kingdom of Si Qi were the opposite, having the right lapel of the hanfu over the left.

Li Huowang thought for a while before opening the jar Lu Zhuangyuan had given him; it was filled to the brim with salted duck eggs.

Puppy came over and said with a surprised expression, “Duck eggs and salt are quite valuable nowadays. That old man, Lu Zhuangyan, is really generous.”

Li Huowang closed the jar; his impression of that old man had improved greatly.

“Forget about the useless things. Whoever lives in the Si Qi Country, get ready to go back home,” said Li Huowang.

Everyone looked at each other, and then Xiaoman, who was covered in black hair, raised her hand. Then, she spoke in a trembling voice, “I am from Si Qi.”

As soon as she spoke, the surroundings became quiet; the others knew about the grievances she had with her parents and what she intended to do when she returned home.

“Sister Xiaoman, how about...” Bai Lingmiao wanted to persuade her despite feeling slightly hesitant.

However, she was interrupted by Li Huowang, “Alright, then you should be more familiar with this place. Tell us, what kind of place is the kingdom of Si Qi? Is there a big sect like the Righteous Monastery there too?”

Xiaoman, whose face was covered by a black bamboo hat, took a deep breath. “I don’t know. Though I stayed there, I never left the village in over ten years. However, when I was nine, I saw some God-summoning Shamans at the village entrance.”

“God-summoning Shamans...” Li Huowang was a little taken aback. The God of Happiness had left a deep impact on him.

“Then do Shamans have any places they frequent?” asked Li Huowang.

“No. I have heard that Shamans mostly stay within their own houses, offering sacrifices to their Immortal families,” replied Xiaoman.

“Immortal families? Do they have any specific names?” Li Huowang’s mind flashed as he heard more about the bizarre things belonging to this world.

“Hong, Huang, Bai, Liu, Bei. I’ve heard of five different Immortal families; however, I don’t know what each of them represents.”

Translator's Thoughts

Updated image of how the MC looks like right now! @格子的乱七八糟

Chapter 57 - Shaman

“I don’t know what the Shaman’s five Immortal families of Hong, Huang, Bai, Liu, and Bei represent. It was mentioned by one of the village elders in passing, and so I remembered it. At the time, I encountered one of them for the first time; someone in the village had been possessed and was lying on the ground, barking like a dog. At that time, a Shaman happened to be coincidentally passing through the village, and came in to take a look at the possessed person. I’m not sure about what happened after that, but I recall that the possessed person was okay the day after that and went back to work in the fields,” explained Xiaoman.

Li Huowang silently calculated something in his mind while listening to Xiaoman describe the fragmented information she knew about the Shamans.

“Does this mean that the Shamans of the kingdom of Si Qi are similar to Daoists in terms of what they do—exorcizing evil and avoiding disasters? Do their abilities also come from beings like the Wandering Gods?” questioned Li Huowang.

“Since Shamans often have to interact with people, they should be more welcoming than those monks from the Righteous Monastery, right?” asked Li Huowang.

Currently, he was not afraid of these so-called Shamans being too powerful; rather he was worried about the fact that he was too weak and unable to deal with Dan Yangzi. After all, it’s impossible for him to compete against an entire group as a single person.

The creaking of the donkey cart suddenly disappeared, pulling Li Huowang out of his thoughts. He saw that the others had all gone into the woods to gather firewood and fetch water.

He looked up at the sky and realized that the sun had already set in the west; it was time to rest.

However, he did not idle around; he retrieved the sword on his back and started digging a hole in the ground. The sword was quite sharp, and soon, he had dug out a small pit around the size of a head.

Simpleton, who was standing beside him, was fully prepared. He directly lifted a black pot from the cart and placed it within the hole carved out by Li Huowang.

Now, they would just need to dig openings on either side to create their own earthen stove—one for the firewood and the other for releasing the smoke.

Noodles were more practical compared to rice, as they were easier to store and convenient to cook.

When the water in the pot started boiling, they put in several bundles of noodles they bought at the small border town.

With dandelions picked from the roadside to serve as vegetables, and a salted duck egg as their protein, each of them got a large bowl of noodles.

And thus, dinner was prepared just like that.

Li Huowang used his chopsticks to break open the salted duck egg floating in his soup. The oily egg yolk added a golden layer to his broth, making it look very appetizing. He picked up the softened dandelion stems with his chopsticks and placed them in his mouth, chewing on them slowly. They tasted slightly bitter—somewhat similar to spinach.

Previously, he had not known that dandelions could be eaten. He had only learned about the fact that they were a kind of wild vegetable after seeing that old monk enjoying them.

Li Huowang blew off some of the hot steam and took a big mouthful of the soup. It was very comforting as his stomach was filled with warmth. He could not help but think of the old monk from the Righteous Monastery upon seeing the wild vegetables.

Who knows how he's doing now? He was so simple-minded that he couldn't possibly see through anything. He should be living well in that environment, right?

At that moment, a pair of chopsticks placed an oily egg yolk into Li Huowang's bowl. Bai Lingmiao, sitting beside him, said in a soft voice, "I don't eat egg yolks."

Li Huowang nodded silently and picked up some noodles using his chopsticks before slurping them up in a single mouthful. "Do you remember that bronze Daoist bell I have? I brought it with me from Zephyr Temple."

"Yes," replied Bai Lingmiao.

"I'll teach you how to use it now. If anything happens to me, remember to take it out and use it to protect yourself," said Li Huowang.

"Alright," replied Bai Lingmiao.

"First, you need to shake it. You will feel extremely dizzy when shaking it, but you need to endure it. Next, you will need to grab a handful of dirt from the ground and place it into your mouth..." explained Li Huowang.

The skies gradually darkened, and Li Huowang's meal was finished just as he finished giving the instructions on how to use the bell.

Bai Lingmiao took the bowl and chopsticks from Li Huowang's hands and walked toward the stream in the woods.

Li Huowang gazed at her slender figure from behind; soon, it had suddenly turned into the figure of a high school girl wearing a red uniform.

It was Yang Na's silhouette.

He shook his head vigorously to clear his mind, causing Bai Lingmiao's figure to reappear. Annoyed, Li Huowang lay on the ground to look at the clear starry night sky.

Li Huowang was the one to stay up and keep watch during the first half of the night; he had not been sleeping well recently. Or rather, he had never slept well ever since he got stuck in this world.

Li Huowang used his sword to poke at the bonfire before throwing in some firewood. Using the light of the fire, he examined his weapon.

This weapon that could cut through metal like mud was somewhat wasted in his hands. He only used it as a shovel to dig pits, or as a poker for the fire. Now, the sword tip was charred and looked very unsightly.

The only time he drew blood with it was when he used it to mutilate his own neck.

Senior Chang Ming, if you could see what is happening to your precious sword, would you be so angry that you would come back to life?

Li Huowang mumbled to himself as he sheathed it back into its scabbard.

At that moment, a soft sound rang out from behind him, making Li Huowang stand up in a rush. He immediately grabbed a burning piece of wood from the campfire and threw it over.

The burning piece of wood flashed past a figure and landed before a pair of horrifyingly red embroidered shoes.

“Who’s there?! Show yourself!” Li Huowang shouted loudly, waking up the others as they sat up sleepily.

However, when they saw the pair of feet with the embroidered shoes in the distance, they were frightened and immediately drew their swords.

“Hehe, don’t be alarmed. It’s all a misunderstanding.” A cheerful voice rang out, accompanied by a fifty year old man with white hair, as he emerged from the dark woods.

He was dressed plainly, and the patches on his clothes suggested that he was not wealthy. Aside from a small backpack on his back, he had an old, dirty drum with ribbons of many colors tied around it on his waist.

Facing the weapons held by Li Huowang's group, he stood there and explained, "I was rushing along in the middle of the night, and saw some light, and so I came by for a look. I did not think I would run into your group."

When he noticed that Li Huowang's attention was focused on the pair of red embroidered shoes, he explained, "It's fine, that's my wife. She's somewhat afraid of strangers. Dear, come over here."

That pair of shoes unhurriedly stepped out from the darkness, and she came beside the old man. She had a red veil covering her face. Her clothes were colored in bright red and purple, and there were various colorful fabrics tied around her body, just like the drum on the old man's waist.

She stood there, motionless. Seeing such a sight in the middle of the night was enough to send chills down their spines.

"That's your wife?" Li Huowang confirmed again, his sword still raised. He found it hard to believe that they would be accompanied by such a peculiar companion. Even if he had claimed that she was a zombie, nobody would doubt him.

At that moment, Xiaoman hurried to his side and whispered, "Senior Li, he is a Shaman."

These words immediately caused Li Huowang to raise his guard to the maximum.

"Yes! That's right, we are Shamans. I am the Main Deity, and my wife is the Second Deity," said the old man.

Upon seeing the lack of response from the group, the old man continued, "Why? Don't you guys believe me? Then, how about I show you a demonstration, keke~"

Before Li Huowang could stop him, the old man opened his mouth and shouted, "Summon~ the~ gods~"

His confident shout echoed throughout the dark forest and into the distance.

Chapter 58 - Li Zhi

Ring, ring, ring!

An extremely piercing ringing sound interrupted the old man's shout, causing everyone to cover their ears with agonized expressions. By the time the sound of the bell subsided, Li Huowang's blade was already placed at the man's neck.

"Keke, Daoist, what are you doing?" asked the old man, his expression still calm despite the sharp blade pressed against his neck.

"Why are you asking me what I'm doing? I should be the one asking you what you're doing! What gods are you summoning?!" asked Li Huowang. At the same time, he applied some pressure on the charred blade, drawing a trace of blood. Nothing good would happen, no matter what deities or gods the shaman was summoning; he had not encountered anything good ever since he came to this wretched place.

The man chuckled, realizing that he had been misunderstood. "Daoist, you aren't from the kingdom of Si Qi, right? I didn't summon any gods. I didn't even beat on my drum, so I can't summon them at all. I just wanted to prove to you that I am indeed a Shaman."

Xiaoman whispered, "Hmm, he's right. A shaman does need to beat their drum."

Li Huowang glanced at the colored drum hanging on the man's waist before slowly withdrawing his sword.

"Friend, don't make such jokes late at night. It's easy to be misunderstood. You can leave," said Li Huowang.

The old man eyed the wary Daoist up and down, then nodded reluctantly and turned to leave. "Alright. I am Li Zhi. Until we meet again! Dear, let's go."

He did not say another word, instead bringing the red-veiled woman back toward the pitch-black path within the forest.

As Li Huowang watched them leave his line of sight, he turned back and said to the others, "Don't sleep anymore tonight. Stay on your guard, just in case that fellow hasn't left."

It didn't hurt to be overly cautious. Such a fellow could suddenly jump out in the middle of the night; who knew what his objectives were.

Despite their hesitant responses, the guiding drug ingredients hugged their weapons and gathered around the bonfire. At the same time, Li Huowang grabbed a dried tree branch and tossed it into the fire, causing it to become brighter and illuminate everyone's anxious faces.

Despite the seemingly endless wait, the long night passed. Nothing else happened aside from them looking exhausted.

"Let's rest for the morning, and then catch up. Puppy, you keep watch first," Li Huowang said before closing his eyes.

After some time, Li Huowang was gently awakened from his nap by someone. "Senior Li, that person is back."

"Eh? What?" This news immediately caused him to jolt awake. He turned back to see Li Zhi with his wife, who was wearing a veil, both beaming at him from nearby.

"After thinking all night, I realized that I scared you last night, didn't I? I'm here to offer my apologies," said Li Zhi.

The sunlight peeking through the branches shone upon Li Zhi's somewhat dark face, causing the mole on his face to stand out. If the drum around his waist was taken away, then he would look like just any other common farmer who worked in the fields all year round.

Under the bright sunlight, he now appeared much more approachable than last night.

Some thoughts flashed through Li Huowang's mind as he clasped his hands together and returned the greeting, "Brother Li Zhi is too courteous. I was also reckless yesterday."

No matter his objective, since a Shaman was standing before him, Li Huowang could not miss the chance of getting some information.

"This girl told me that your surname is also Li? That's quite a coincidence; my surname is also Li. Perhaps we were relatives 500 years ago," Li Zhi said cheerfully as he took a few steps forward and approached Li Huowang.

"Brother Li Zhi, where are you headed?" asked Li Huowang.

"Oh, my family's grandmother is going to celebrate her birthday soon, so I'm hurrying over to give her my well-wishes," explained Li Zhi.

Birthday celebration? Shamans seem to be different from those monks and the Daoists; they still have to attend worldly functions and fulfill their worldly obligations.

"Daoist, where are you headed? And with such a big group of helpers, no less." Li Zhi's gaze flickered as he eyed Li Huowang's blood-stained Daoist robes.

"Liang Kingdom," Li Huowang replied concisely.

"That far? It must be quite challenging going such a long way away," commented Li Zhi.

After exchanging some pleasantries, the tension between them had eased to a certain extent; at least they were no longer pointing swords at each other.

The donkey cart's wheels began to turn, and they continued on their journey alongside the new pair.

"Not far from here is the Half-Moon Gorge, and then there's a village where you can rest for a few days. After that, it will take at least another 15 days of walking before you can find another place you can stay at. You should know as well that the border regions are usually sparsely populated,” Li Zhi looked like he was talking to an old friend as he enthusiastically gave pointers to Li Huowang.

“Many thanks. May I ask, Brother Li Zhi, since you’re a Shaman, which Immortal family do you worship?” asked Li Huowang.

Li Huowang’s incisive questioning caused the red-veiled woman to tilt her head in wonder.

“Keke, I’m a disciple of the Bei Family. Since you’ve asked about me, I would also like to know which mountain or sect you belong to,” said Li Zhi.

“Xishan Donghua Sect, Zephyr Temple. I go by the Daoist name, Xuan Yang,” Li Huowang instinctively responded with Dan Yangzi’s old claims. He did not know what the Xishan Donghua Sect was but, in any case, with this, others would believe that he had a genuine lineage and he was not just a fake Daoist.

Li Zhi shook his head. “Keke~ I have never heard of it. But that’s understandable. The world is so vast that nobody would know everything.”

Li Zhi was very talkative, and his face always had a smile. One’s mood would be lifted by just staying in his company.

As they continued walking, it was soon time for lunch; they were still using the makeshift stove to cook noodles. The river by the roadside was gradually becoming wider, making it more convenient for them.

Meanwhile, Li Zhi did not take out anything from his small backpack and just squatted at the roadside, watching them with a smile. This caused Li Huowang’s group to start feeling uneasy.

“Brother Li Zhi, do you want some?” asked Li Huowang.

“Ah! That’s very kind of you; I haven’t eaten anything since yesterday.” Li Zhi eagerly ran across to pick up a bowl before starting to fill it with noodles.

Soon, bowl after bowl was slurped clean by him, causing Bai

Lingmiao to furrow her brows.

“Senior Li, that’s almost 1.5kg... How can he eat so much? Is this guy following us just for this meal?” asked Bai Lingmiao.

Everyone stared blankly as Li Zhi scooped up the last strand of noodles. He was not the slightest bit embarrassed and continued to happily slurp away as he squatted under a tree.

Li Huowang walked to his side and copied him and squatted down. “Was the food enough? Do you want some more?”

“Ah, it’s quite embarrassing, but I really haven’t had enough.” Li Zhi said as he drank a large mouthful of soup.

“Cook one more kilogram of noodles!” Li Huowang shouted toward those around the metal pot.

“How come you’re the only one eating, and not your wife? Isn’t she hungry?” Li Huowang looked toward the woman with the red veil. He found that her fingernails were a little blackened and extremely long.

“I’m the Main Deity while she’s the Second Deity. Just me eating is enough,” Li Zhi said as though that was the natural order of things.

“Oh? Why’s that?” asked Li Huowang, hoping to learn something new.

The slurping sounds stopped as Li Zhi raised his right hand that was holding the chopsticks before wiping his mouth with his elbow. He then turned over and beamed, “Keke, you have so many questions. Are you trying to become a shaman as well?”

Chapter 59 - Chosen Apprentice

Before Li Huowang could respond to Li Zhi, the sound of the noodles being slurped started once again.

“Even if you wished to become an apprentice, that would not be possible; the disciples are all chosen by the Immortal families themselves. The right opportunity is needed if you wish to enter this trade,” Li Zhi explained.

“Oh? If you don’t mind, please elaborate on that,” said Li Huowang. He had talked to this fellow for so long just to get a better understanding of these matters.

After all, the more he understood, the safer he would be in this foreign world.

Li Zhi used his chopsticks to gesture in the air as he explained. “To become an apprentice, you need to become gravely ill; it would be best if you’re on the brink of death. Then, if you’re lucky, the Immortal family will visit you in your dream. They will cure you, and in return, you’ll become their apprentice.”

“What do the members of the Immortal family look like?” Li Huowang continued his questioning.

Li Zhi fell silent, as if trying to recall something. “Hmm, how should I put it? All I can say is that they’re definitely not human.”

Li Zhi attempted to pick up more noodles with his chopsticks but discovered that his bowl was empty, so he excitedly returned to the pot.

Not human, huh.

Li Huowang thought to himself. From what Li Zhi said, he could deduce that these Immortal families could communicate and exchange with people. They were probably beings similar to the Wandering Gods. From the looks of it, the people of the kingdom of Si Qi were actively or passively engaged in transactions with these beings and interacting with them.

At that moment, Li Huowang remembered the writhing pile of flesh that was the "Giant Buddha" back at the Righteous Monastery.

From men to women to animals and finally to the "Giant Buddha"; the monks' cultivation path seemed to follow a progressive process. He could connect Jian Dun's ability and the seven Buddhas that could grant the corporeal flesh bodies to the Wandering Gods or grow thousands of fleshy hands to this cultivation method.

It wasn't hard to deduce that the monks from the Righteous Monastery used such a cultivation method all in order to obtain their flesh-related abilities.

Trading and interacting with different beings can allow one to gain different supernatural abilities, huh. Perhaps... is the origin of the different sects in this world?

Li Huowang started to have a rudimentary understanding of this world.

Meanwhile, Li Zhi came back with more noodles in his bowl. The noodles in his bowl were piled up quite high, with not a single drop of broth mixed in. He squatted down to eat while complaining incessantly, "Let me tell you, being an apprentice isn't a good job; it's best if you can avoid it. It's full of problems, and you even have to face three disasters and calamities. The pay isn't that great either..."

After listening to his long-winded complaints for a while, Li Huowang couldn't help but interrupt, "Then what can you apprentices request the Immortal families to do?"

Li Zhi glanced at Li Huowang and replied, "Anything. Dispelling evil, curing illnesses, changing fortunes, handling weddings and funerals, fortune-telling, feng shui arrangement, etc..."

"So powerful? They can do anything and everything?" exclaimed Li Huowang.

"Each Immortal family has a different set of abilities. If the one you worship cannot solve the troubles you encounter, you can always seek help from the others," explained Li Zhi.

Li Huowang's expression turned serious. "What if someone has something attached to them? Can they deal with that?"

"Something attached to them? That's probably an evil spirit. In that case, they can definitely help," replied Li Zhi.

"Are you sure? It's not just any ordinary thing." Li Huowang thought about Dan Yangzi and then looked at the man before him. No matter how he looked at it, this guy seemed somewhat unreliable.

"Hey, why don't you give it a try to find out if it works. Anyway, it's just 50 coppers. Are you afraid of me running away with your money?" said Li Zhi.

"50 copper coins? That's your remuneration?" This was far lower than the amount that Li Huowang had in mind.

"My payment is just for me. The Immortal family's portion will need to be counted separately," Li Zhi explained as he munched and swallowed the noodles in his mouth before burping. "I will take 50 copper coins, no negotiation. After taking that fee, I will arrange for you to meet the Immortal families. It's been an old rule for over 3 centuries and has never changed. Of course, the coins have to be new ones; don't try to cheat me using old coins picked up from the roadside. As for the Immortals~"

"Do I negotiate their remuneration with them myself?" asked Li Huowang.

"No, there's nothing to negotiate. You have to let the Immortal family choose, and they will take whatever they set their sights upon. However, more often than not, they will not be interested in any material possessions like money,” explained Li Zhi.

They pick and take whatever they want? And they don't want money?

Li Huowang felt somewhat uneasy. If they traded with these Immortals, what would these beings take from them?

"Then, what have the Immortals taken from others before?" asked Li Huowang.

"Hey, don't ask me. Who am I supposed to ask?" Li Zhi continued while carefully licking the bowl. "Anyone who has had something taken from them by the Immortals must not tell others about it. This is taboo, and bad luck will fall upon them."

"Aren't you a Shaman? Even you don't know?" asked Li Huowang.

"Simply put, I'm just an errand boy for the Immortals. I'm only responsible for inviting people. I'm not paid enough to care about those other matters," responded Li Zhi.

Compared to the monks from the Righteous Monastery and Dan Yangzi, Li Zhi had a carefree attitude and was seemingly free of worldly concerns.

"Hey, do you want to give it a try? Who is the one that is being possessed?" Li Zhi asked as he had eaten his fill and was using the chopsticks to pick at his teeth while looking at the others in the distance.

Li Huowang was somewhat hesitant but continued to ask patiently, "Brother Li Zhi, during your travels you must have handled quite a few such matters right? That 'possessed by evil' thing you speak of, just how does it come about?"

Li Zhi's expression was a little impatient as he shook his head. "I can't be bothered to remember such matters. Why would I try so hard when I only get 50 copper coins for an errand? That can hardly buy me enough rice. Now if the price were to be increased to 500 coppers, then I would definitely remember such things clearly.

I can't increase my fees, nor can I change my occupation. It's really frustrating to do this. Right, don't Daoists make good money when performing their rituals? How much is it for one event?"

Li Huowang once again glanced at the red veiled woman who was standing behind them, completely motionless. He stood up and said, "We've rested enough; let's continue our journey."

"Alright! By the way, what time is dinner?" asked Li Zhi.

Li Huowang's group resumed walking. Li Zhi, with his carefree personality, tried to strike up a conversation with them, but their responses weren't very enthusiastic.

This person spoke very normally and did not seem to harbor any malice. However, good intentions can often hide underlying motives. Thus, Li Huowang did not let down his guard completely.

Li Huowang turned slightly to observe the two people on the other side of the road. His attention was entirely focused on the person beside Li Zhi. The red veiled "Second Deity" who did not eat, drink, or talk. The more he watched her, the more uncomfortable he felt.

She was even more peculiar than Li Zhi. Her steps were precise every time she walked forward. She seemed less like a real person and more like a puppet. What was even stranger was that Li Zhi referred to her as his wife.

"Senior Li, should we move separately from them?" Bai Lingmiao asked.

"Not yet, let's wait and observe." Li Huowang still wanted to monitor them.

If this person was not lying, then he may have to rely on the so-called Immortal families to handle the matter of Dan Yangzi.

Chapter 60 - Shaman

As the sun gradually moved westward, a village appeared before them. Within it, houses of varying heights were scattered around.

"You see, this is the village I was talking about," Li Zhi smiled, pointing toward the black tiles ahead before continuing forward in large strides.

"Follow me. A fellow villager of mine lives here. It will be free if we stay there," said Li Zhi.

The two carts pulled by donkeys followed along as Li Huowang gently motioned for them to follow Li Zhi.

As they walked on the yellow dirt path between the various houses, Li Huowang's group looked around at their quiet surroundings; strangely, there was nobody in sight in the fields or the courtyards.

What's going on? Where are all the villagers?

Li Huowang was puzzled.

Just as he was thinking, Li Zhi poked his head out from behind a corner in front of them, his old face full of excitement. "Hey! Come quickly! It's quite lively over here! Looks like a grandpa is climbing the ashes! His face is all scratched up, and it's getting quite interesting!"

"Climbing the ashes? What does that mean?" asked Li Huowang. However, nobody answered Li Huowang's question. When he turned around, he saw that all of them had awkward expressions. Bai Lingmiao was so embarrassed that her head was drooping in shame.

"Senior Li, let's not get involved. That's their family matter," said Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang glanced at her in confusion before moving toward Li Zhi's direction in big steps.

As they turned the corner, it became clear that the entire village was gathered here to watch the commotion. They were all dressed in rural clothing and surrounding a house. Li Zhi was standing at the periphery of the crowd, tiptoeing and leaning on a person's shoulder to get a better look.

"What does 'climbing the ashes' mean?" Li Huowang came beside Li Zhi and asked.

"It refers to a grandpa attempting to steal his son's wife. Do you have another term for it in the region you are from? Actually, where are you from?" Li Zhi looked at Li Huowang, astonished.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang was left speechless after hearing the explanation. No wonder Bai Lingmiao had such an expression.

"Ah!" At that moment, a sharp female scream rang out from the middle of the crowd, causing everyone to step back in shock.

Through the gaps, Li Huowang saw a bizarre scene within the house.

A naked woman was lying on a wooden table, her limbs twisting as she writhed around like a snake, screaming and trembling.

"Oh, that's not right. It's not someone climbing the ashes, but someone being possessed," Li Zhi lamented. At the same time, he placed his hands together and pushed through the crowd.

"Hey, please move aside, I'm a Shaman. Please move aside. Hey, who just stepped on my foot?!" shouted Li Zhi.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang was about to turn away but paused upon seeing this scene. "Is he going to use his shamanic techniques to exorcize the evil spirits?"

Li Zhi exerted much effort to push through the crowd before looking around and waving toward Li Huowang. "Hey! Daoist, come quickly; why are you so far away?"

Li Huowang thought about it for a moment, and then he also began to squeeze through the crowd.

This guy seems a bit out of place. We can use this opportunity to assess his powers. If he's just messing around, then there's no need to enlist his help to resolve my own issues. Otherwise, Dan Yangzi will just eat him up like the Buddhas.

When he reached the center of the crowd, he could see the situation more clearly.

There was something very obviously strange about the behavior of the woman lying on the table. She didn't have the usual black pupils in the center of her good-looking phoenix-like eyes; instead, it seemed like she had five layers of eyelids.

There was an old and a young person standing beside her; they seemed to be the victims of the possessed woman.

"Daoist, will you handle this or should I?" Li Zhi whispered to him. "How about we go at it together, and you can request more money when it's done. Then, we'll split it up later. This way, we won't even have to violate any of the Shaman's rules."

"No need, I'm not really skilled with exorcism. You can go ahead." Li Huowang rejected. In the first place, he did not know anything about exorcism or other Daoist duties.

Li Zhi was astonished when he heard Li Huowang's explanation. "You must be joking with me; you don't know how to exorcize evil spirits? Are you sure you aren't a fake Daoist?"

"Hurry up, the woman is almost going to twist her own bones apart," said Li Huowang, pointing at the woman on the table.

The woman who was previously coiled up was now biting her lips, and blood was dripping down her chin. The joints of her limbs had even started to make creaking noises as they were twisted further.

It seems that ordinary people aren't as disconnected from these things as I had imagined. They just use evil spirits as a universal explanation.

What if Li Zhi wasn't around today? What would they do?

Li Huowang wondered as he watched Li Zhi negotiating with the victims.

Li Huowang glanced at the old agricultural tools in the house, their bare feet covered in yellow mud, and their faces that were full of hardship. All this served to provide a simple yet harsh answer to his question.

It was the same thing that impoverished people do when they get sick—endure the minor ailments, bear with the major ailments, and lie down if it becomes unbearable.

"Cough~!"

The sound silenced the buzzing chatter of the crowd.

Thud~!

Li Zhi used a small stick to lightly tap the old drum hanging from his waist, causing everyone's hearts to tremble.

Thud! Thud! Thud!

"Summon~ the~ gods~!" shouted Li Zhi, his confident and loud voice drowning out all the other sounds around them.

At the same time, Li Huowang turned to look outside the house. The red light in the sky was gradually fading as the silent night approached.

"The sun sets in the west, oh~, the sky turns dark, oh~! Dragons return to the boundless sea, so that they can bring rain~ Tigers return to the mountains~ so they can sleep~ oh~..." Li Zhi began singing to the rhythm of the drum.

As Li Zhi sang lyrics that followed the rhythm of the drum, the mysterious Second Deity that had gone unnoticed so far began to tremble. The red veil on her head and the colorful cloth strips on her body also started to shake.

"Above are the seven-starred glazed tiles, standing on the octagonal purple-gold bricks. Foot on the ground, head into the skies. Stride forward successively to stand firmly in the camp. Offer incense, beat the drums, summon the Immortals~” Li Zhi continued to sing and beat the drums as he fished out a few incense sticks. He lit them and then placed them around the woman lying on the wooden table.

The woman’s hair was disheveled, and she bared her teeth like a beast. She was about to lunge forward, but pulled back and started wailing once she came into contact with the white smoke of the incense.

The white smoke wafting from the incense did not disperse, slowly swirling within the house. Soon, the inside of the house started to turn hazy.

Li Huowang’s eyes began to twitch, and he felt somewhat restless. He looked around to confirm that everything was normal before frowning slightly, pinching the back of his own neck, and taking two steps backward.

Burp~!

That was the first movement from the red-veiled woman. She burped before making a rustling sound from under that veil.

The onlookers were evidently taken aback, and the crowd began to disperse even more quickly than before. Those who were more timid used this opportunity to run home before the darkness of the night completely engulfed them.

On the other hand, when Li Zhi heard the burping sound, he glanced back and continued to sing while beating the drum. “Oh Immortal family~ I know you are coming~ You are mighty and powerful~ Please come quietly without a fuss~ This house is small, easy to crash around. It’s easy to handle when meeting gentlemen, but tongues will wag when meeting villains~ Oh~”

Chapter 61 - Second Deity

Dong~ Dong~ Dong Dong~

The sound of the beating drum and Li Zhi's voice never ceased within the small room.

“Come help me, touch the roof and stand firm on the rafter, hold the drum in the left and the whip in the right, Ai He Ai He Ai Yo~”

Dong Dong Dong!

Meanwhile, Li Huowang could clearly see that as Li Zhi continued chanting, the red veil on the second deity's head started to protrude, almost as if something was growing from inside. Peeking past the red veil, Li Huowang saw an animal's face appearing from behind it.

However, it was very bizarre; rather than looking like a proper animal face, her face was contorted, with only certain parts of it resembling an animal.

The face appeared to be swirling around like water, appearing and disappearing from time to time as it wriggled.

All of this combined with the white smoke made the scene in front of him quite bizarre.

Li Huowang rubbed his eyes, confirming that the Second Deity was moving according to the beat of the drum as it followed Li Zhi to the table that was covered in white smoke.

“Hitting once turns it upside down thrice~ Hitting again turns it upside down nine times~ Three to the front, four to the back, five to the left, six to the right, sixty-eight Aiyai~” Li Zhi continued chanting.

Covered by white smoke, Li Zhi and the Second Deity circled the woman.

Meanwhile, the woman started to grab at her neck as if she was in pain.

“Go! Go away!” screamed the woman, her voice trembling.

“Come help me~ I summon the Overlord of the Yellow Heavens~ I summon the Azure of the Yellow Heavens~ I summon the Black and Red of the Yellow Heavens~ Announce yourselves and show your power. Follow my chant and do your deed~”

Dong! Dong! Dong!

As Li Zhi continued chanting and beating his drum, Li Huowang suddenly started feeling irritated. At the same time, he started to hear some mysterious noises from their surroundings. However, when he tried to focus and listen to what they were saying, the voices had disappeared.

With all this, he could tell that regardless of what type of Immortal Li Zhi was summoning, it was definitely different from the ones that he had encountered before.

It looks like he can summon more than one type of Immortal. I wonder... how many can he summon?

Just as he was thinking about this, the sound of the drumbeat gradually quieted down.

Li Huowang furrowed his brows and swung his sleeves to clear out some of the white smoke before approaching the table.

But before he could even get close, a black shadow shot out from within the white smoke and straight toward his face.

Schwing!

Immediately, a sword that could cut through steel like mud was unsheathed, blocking two sets of teeth from biting off Li Huowang’s face. The sound of teeth grinding against metal was quite horrible.

The naked woman was displaying an unbelievable amount of strength as she tried to claw Li Huowang’s eyes off. The blood vessels in her red eyes almost popped as she emanated an intense killing intent and animosity toward him.

“Li Zhi! What the fuck are you doing?!” Li Huowang shouted toward the white smoke while barely keeping the woman in check.

Dong Dong Dong!

“Immortal~ Family~ Ai~” The sound of chanting started once again as a red veil flew out from within the white smoke and covered the naked woman’s face. The woman struggled to no avail as an animal’s face crawled out from the red veil and into the woman’s mouth.

Whoosh~

As Li Zhi continued chanting, the woman was pulled back into the white smoke by an invincible power. “Immortal Family~ Leave your caves and the mountain, but cover it up with yellow sand~ Ride the clouds if it's cloudy and ride the wind if it's sunny. Come and go as you wish, and leave nothing behind, not a single bit of smoke~”

Meanwhile, Li Huowang still had his guard up as he walked into the white smoke. Once inside the smoke, he saw that the crazy woman was currently lying listlessly on the table and dripping with sweat.

On the other hand, Li Zhi was circling the woman alongside the Second Deity, with the latter burping at regular intervals.

“Leave if you want to, the sovereign has given you the horse’s reins. Undo the restraints and ride the saddle, the Immortal Family will spur the horse forward~ Time to go back~ Ai Hai Yi Hou Hei~”

After the final verse, Li Zhi flipped the way he held the whip and beat the drum three times in a heavy manner.

When the drumbeat stopped, the white smoke around them slowly scattered and the irritating voices disappeared.

“Are you alright? I accidentally let my guard down. Fortunately, it could not escape with you on the outside,” Li Zhi said nonchalantly.

“Let your guard down? In that situation?” Li Huowang could never understand his logic.

“My reward for all this is only 50 coins! Do you know how much a bowl of noodles costs in a city? The ominous thing has been chased away and the victim is still alive. That is already the best I can do. If you want to blame something, then blame that lousy rule. Tch! What a lousy rule! To think that us Shamans are so poor,” complained Li Zhi.

Li Huowang controlled his desire to roll his eyes at him and walked to the table and began to carefully inspect the woman.

He could see that she had suffered mentally; her eyes filled with fear and her body was trembling uncontrollably. However, even after inspecting her for a while, Li Huowang could not see what the Immortals had taken away from her.

They don't want money, nor is there anything missing from her body. Maybe the compensation that the Immortals seek is something more abstract or on the mental level?

Li Huowang could only take a guess.

Just then, the family of the victim rushed in. After seeing that the woman was fine now, they hugged her and cried in happiness.

After a while, Li Zhi walked over and told them, “Your daughter-in-law was possessed by something ominous. I’ve just chased it away and her body is quite frail after going through that ordeal. I see that the Feng Shui in your house is not very good. I fear that the thing may come and find you again. I recommend that you bring in a Household Immortal.”

A Household Immortal?

That phrase attracted Li Huowang’s attention.

“Sure! We will follow your suggestions!” The old man who had almost been frightened to death didn’t dare to reject Li Zhi’s suggestion.

Li Zhi rummaged around in his bag and took out a small clay deity. Then, he took out some red threads and wrapped them around the clay deity as he chanted something.

After finishing the chant, Li Zhi found a ladder and placed the clay deity on the steps.

“Offer a tribute to it on the first day of every month and light up some incense sticks on the fifteenth of every month. Remember this well. Now, the total payment for summoning the Immortals and inviting a Household Immortal comes to 100 coins. Pay up,” demanded Li Zhi.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang ignored Li Zhi who was demanding payment and climbed the ladder to take a closer look at the Household Immortal.

The clay sculpture was small and simple, almost as if it was sculpted lazily using one’s hands. But somehow, the eyes of the sculpture looked quite sharp. Staring at its eyes, Li Huowang felt as if he was staring at something alive.

Just then, Li Huowang saw the Household Immortal move ever so slightly.

What the? Am I seeing things?

“Don’t look...” A quiet voice came from behind him.

Li Huowang turned around and saw the Second Deity looking at him. Thankfully, her face was once again covered by the red veil.

Both of them were so close that the air exhaled by Li Huowang was causing the Second Deity’s red veil to shake.

Li Huowang’s mind raced.

Is this thing alive? Why is she not letting me stare at it?

Li Huowang shifted his gaze from the Second Deity and back down toward Li Zhi, who was counting the coins before whispering, “Is there something you want to say to me?”

Hearing Li Huowang’s question, the Second Deity used its long fingernails and pale hands to slowly pinch a side of her red veil, gradually lifting it up.

Li Huowang was holding onto the bronze bell tightly as he tried to swallow his saliva from the anticipation.

“Dear, let’s go. Time to find our old friend and see if he will lend us a bed to sleep on tonight,” said Li Zhi.

Hearing this, the Second Deity’s red veil fell back down as she quickly followed Li Zhi.

Chapter 62 - Night Visit

“Is anyone there?” Li Huowang shouted into the empty space, his voice echoing.

For a moment, he felt confused as he looked left and right; he was standing on a wooden bridge. Besides the bridge, the only thing around him was darkness.

Li Huowang took a deep breath as he walked forward, the wooden bridge creaking with his every step.

Li Huowang didn’t know how long he had been walking, when he sensed movement in front of him, causing him to straighten up and quickly approach it. However, when he closed in and saw what it was, he stopped dead in his tracks.

It was the Household Immortal that Li Zhi had brought out earlier.

However, the originally palm-sized clay sculpture was now three times the size of Li Huowang’s body. With the sound of grinding stone, the sculpture slowly turned its head, staring at Li Huowang with its completely white eyes.

“This is not some wooden bridge! I’m standing on the steps of the stairs to that possessed victim’s house!” Li Huowang immediately realized.

At that moment, a creaking sound echoed loudly as the red thread on the Household Immortal burst open. Countless clay hands emerged from the sculpture’s body, reaching out toward Li Huowang.

Just as Li Huowang was about to run away, a giant red veil covered him.

“Don’t look,” a shrill, female voice sounded.

“Hoo!” Li Huowang woke up and looked around, sweating all over. Upon seeing neither the red veil nor the Household Immortal around him, he realized that it had all just been a dream.

He glanced down and saw the sleeping Bai Lingmiao before pulling up the sheets to cover her shoulders. Then, he rolled out of the bed and stared out the window.

The moon was still high in the sky. It seemed that he hadn't slept for long.

Staring at the black roof tiles, he recalled what had happened yesterday.

The red-veiled Second Deity was just about to tell him something but was cut off by Li Zhi.

What was she trying to say? Why didn't she want me to stare at the Household Immortal?

Li Huowang seriously considered the question.

The Second Deity didn't talk, didn't eat, nor did she drink. Compared to the eccentric Li Zhi, she was much more mysterious. For someone like her to speak to him directly, there must be a special meaning.

What was she trying to tell me in secret, and why didn't she let Li Zhi know? Is Li Zhi trying to harm me?

He actually wanted to ask Li Zhi to try and perform the ritual on him, but now that something like this had happened, Li Huowang felt hesitant. To begin with, they were not really close.

At the same time, he could technically find other Shamans and ask for their help, but they might not be trustworthy either. He would rather seek help from someone he knew.

I should try and get a chance to ask the Second Deity what she wanted to say in secret.

Li Huowang decided.

Staring at the night sky, Li Huowang put on his bloodied Daoist robe and walked out. The rooms offered to them by Li Zhi's friend were located quite close to each other, so Li Zhi's room was nearby.

Within the dark house, Li Huowang silently approached Li Zhi's room.

Creak~

The door slowly opened, and a small glowing stone was thrown into the room. The door of the room had an upside-down character of the word 'prosperity' hanging on it.

The faint glow illuminated the room as Li Huowang saw Li Zhi snoring soundly on the bed with his limbs splayed open, looking like a starfish. Meanwhile, the red-veiled Second Deity was standing still beside the bed, almost as if she was just a piece of clothing.

Hearing the soft sound of the door, the Second Deity silently turned her head toward Li Huowang; it was as if she was waiting for something.

This scene was downright frightening to witness in the middle of the night.

Do I really want to talk to this thing in the middle of the night, all by myself?

Li Huowang hesitated.

But thinking back to yesterday, Li Huowang steeled his heart and silently gestured for her to come out.

Meanwhile, the Second Deity actually responded and slowly floated toward the door.

Both she and Li Huowang slowly walked out before finally arriving in the courtyard.

The moon in the night sky cast a soft glow on their surroundings, soothing Li Huowang's tense and racing heart.

At that moment, the red-veiled Second Deity slowly approached him, stopping just inches from him; they were so close that Li Huowang's voice even caused the Second Deity's red veil to sway gently.

"What were you trying to say yesterday?" asked Li Huowang.

In response, the Second Deity used her long and black fingernails to pierce one of her fingers, much to Li Huowang's surprise.

Then, using her own blood, she gently wrote something on her red veil.

Careful. You. Are. The. Strayed. Immortal.

“What are you guys doing?!”

At that moment, someone shouted, causing the Second Deity to instantly absorb the black blood on the red veil.

Just as Li Huowang had taken two steps back, Li Zhi ran up to them with a murderous look on his face before hugging the Second Deity's waist. “What are you trying to do? This is my wife!”

Li Huowang could also hear some commotion from the other rooms of the house and quickly explained himself, “Nothing! I was just curious about her face.”

However, Li Zhi did not let his guard down, staring Li Huowang up and down. Then, as if to demonstrate his dominance, Li Zhi lifted a part of the Second Deity's red veil and kissed her intensely.

The red veil fluttered in the night wind, and the weak moonlight allowed Li Huowang to catch a glimpse of something.

Those are... scales?

Li Zhi stopped as quickly as he started, licking the yellowish-green liquid around his mouth.

“Remember this! She is my wife! You damned bachelor, just look at yourself! You are a Daoist; that's why you are single! Go find your own girl!” shouted Li Zhi.

Then, without waiting for Li Huowang's explanation, Li Zhi held the Second Deity's pale hands and walked back into the house.

Scales. Yellowish-green goo. Those two scenes flashed through Li Huowang's restless mind.

What the fuck is the Second Deity?

When Li Huowang returned to his room, still feeling confused, he saw that Bai Lingmiao had woken up from the commotion and was sitting on the bed while rubbing her eyes.

“What’s wrong? Did something happen?” asked Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang blew out the fire from the oil lamp and said, “Nothing; go back to bed.”

I should be careful? I’m the Strayed Immortal?

Back on the bed, Li Huowang silently pondered what the Second Deity had been trying to convey.

What is a Strayed Immortal? Why did she ask me to be careful?

When Li Huowang woke up the next day, he entered the hall and saw Li Zhi eating congee. At the same time, his right hand held onto the Second Deity tightly as he spoke to his friend.

“Old friend, thank you for your care. Why not invite a Household Immortal? I will even make it cheaper for you. How does 30 coins sound?” suggested Li Zhi.

However, as soon as Li Zhi saw Li Huowang, he stopped talking, and his face no longer looked as friendly as before.

Chapter 63 - Red Veil

Seeing the change in Li Zhi's expression, Li Huowang walked over. "Brother Li Zhi, I can explain about yesterday's situation."

Li Zhi raised his hand and stopped Li Huowang from speaking further before speaking in an irritated voice, "No need to explain. I didn't do anything to you anyway, so just let it be."

Having said that, Li Zhi stood up and grabbed his wife, heading straight out of the house.

Seeing their backs, Li Huowang remained silent.

The Second Deity said that I'm the Strayed Immortal. It seems that whatever that is, it is something special. She even told me not to stare at the Household Immortal, almost as if she knew what I was doing. I must pry that information from her mouth.

He finally had some clues, and so Li Huowang was reluctant to give it up.

"Senior Li, what's wrong? Did you have a fight with the Shaman?" asked Puppy.

Hearing what Puppy said, Li Huowang shook his head.

"Nothing, it's just something personal. Go and eat your breakfast. We finally have the chance to sleep on a bed, so rest well these few days. Once we get out of this village, we will only be able to sleep on the roadside."

For the next few days, Li Huowang didn't go and find Li Zhi, nor did he check what the other was doing. He knew that Li Zhi should still be angry about the last time, and so it was not wise to seek out the Second Deity. He decided to bide his time.

Li Huowang had a feeling that this was the best course of action, but while he was waiting, a troublesome situation appeared.

Bai Lingmiao became sick.

It was troublesome indeed. The sickness was both serious and insignificant at the same time. It was serious because this was a poor village where no illness should be taken lightly; it could very well take her life. But it was also insignificant because with the pills that Li Huowang refined in Zephyr Temple, he was more or less on the level of a village doctor. He might not be able to cure the more serious illnesses, but something as light as this was easy to handle.

Li Huowang held Bai Lingmiao's feverish head in his lap and carefully fed her a red pill.

"Senior Li, am I dying? I don't want to die..." The frail Bai Lingmiao held onto Li Huowang's sleeves.

"Don't think of something stupid. It's just a cold. I just gave you medicine, so you should get some sleep. Once you sweat off the fever, you should be healthy once again," said Li Huowang.

Thud thud thud.

At that moment, a knock on the door cut their conversation short. Li Huowang looked up and saw that it was Li Zhi and his wife.

"How is it? I've heard from my friend that your sister is sick. Do you need help?" asked Li Zhi.

"No need, but thanks." Li Huowang carefully covered Bai Lingmiao with a blanket and walked out.

"No need to be so formal with me. You gave me some noodles before, so it's natural for me to help you out. The Immortals from the Bai family are very good at healing people from illnesses. As long as you don't try to steal my wife, we can still be friends and I will help you," said Li Zhi, making it seem like the issue had resolved itself.

"It's just a cold, so there's no need for you to do your thing. Also I'm afraid that we might not be able to 'pay' them," said Li Huowang.

Li Zhi stiffened before chuckling. “Yeah, you are right. Looks like I’m being too meddlesome. The Immortals should not be summoned so willy-nilly. Also, you are quite a weird Daoist. Not only can you not deal with evil beings, you can’t even cure someone from their illness.”

Hearing this, Li Huowang re-evaluated the man grinning in front of him.

“I am already curing her. She already ate the pill, so all we need to do is wait,” explained Li Huowang.

Li Zhi shook his head. “That won’t do. I’ve seen another Daoist burn a yellow talisman for their patient. At that point, no matter what kind of illness they had, the patient would be cured in an instant.”

Li Huowang smiled lightly and felt the situation was just right for his question. “Li Zhi, can we talk? It’s about your wife. She’s different from the other people. Are the Second Deities of the other Shamans the same?”

Li Zhi’s smile froze. “Li Huowang, please don’t ask such things. You are a cultivator, are you not? You also have some secrets that you would never share with me. Tell me, have I ever asked you where all these malformed people come from? I didn’t, right?”

Having said that, Li Zhi patted Li Huowang’s red Daoist robe and left with his wife.

Previously, Li Huowang had seen how talkative Li Zhi was, and how he even dared to curse the Immortal families; knowing all this, he could sense that Li Zhi was currently putting on a facade.

Li Huowang pondered on it for a while before returning back to the room to take care of Bai Lingmiao.

That night, he was awoken by the sound of someone tapping on the window in the middle of the night.

Creak~

The wooden window opened and he could see a pair of red shoes hanging outside, gently dangling in the air.

Li Huowang recognized them—they belonged to the Second Deity. She had come to see him.

Li Huowang thought about it for a moment before silently whispering, “I will meet you in the forest in front of the village.”

Seeing the pair of red shoes slowly disappear, Li Huowang took a deep breath and got out of the bed to dress up.

With the faint moonlight guiding the way, Li Huowang quickly entered the dark forest and saw the Second Deity standing still below one of the trees.

Li Huowang carefully looked around but didn’t find Li Zhi anywhere. “Second Deity, what did you need to tell me?”

The Second Deity once again used one of her nails to pierce her own fingers and used her own blood to write on the red veil.

However, the distance was too far, making it so that Li Huowang couldn’t read it properly. He slowly approached the red veil.

“You...Have...To...Be...Careful...” Li Huowang read the words out loud.

Halfway through reading him it, the Second Deity suddenly raised her hands and her black fingernails stabbed straight into Li Huowang’s neck.

Bam!

Li Huowang reacted quite quickly as he grabbed the red veil and kicked the Second Deity in her stomach.

Even though he was out of danger for now, there were four bloody holes on both sides of his neck.

He fished out some Blood Nourishing Pills and ate them as he stared at the Second Deity.

It had never occurred to him that the Second Deity was going to try and kill him! He had always thought that she was trying to inform him of some danger.

However, when he saw the face of the Second Deity, he froze.

Her face was distorted, covered with green snake scales, porcupine quills, fox ears, and many other animal organs.

But amidst all that, there was still a small part of a human face, and looking at it, he could tell that it was none other than Li Zhi!

No, to be more accurate, it was a female version of Li Zhi, with some makeup powder on the remaining human skin.

At this moment, one half of her mouth had been transformed into a beast maw, but the remaining human lips even had some red lipstick.

Seeing that Li Huowang had seen her real face, ‘Li Zhi’ covered her mouth and laughed like a fox.

“To think that the Strayed One was so inexperienced even after probing for half a day. You must have been quite lucky to have escaped capture for so long.”

“To think that the Strayed One was so inexperienced even after probing for half a day. You must have been quite lucky to have escaped capture for so long.”

Two voices rang out at the same time, one from the front and another one from within the dark forest.

Dong! Dong! Dong!

At the same time, the sound of the drum rang out from somewhere in the forest.

“Summon~ The~ Gods~”

Translator's Thoughts

Li Zhi and his "wife" @格子的乱七八糟

Chapter 64 - Drum

“Summon~ The~ Gods~”

Li Zhi’s clear voice rang out from within the forest, and the peculiar Second Deity followed the rhythm of his singing and drumming as she began to tremble.

“The sun set on the Western mountain, and the skies went dark~ Every house closed its doors while the magpies and crows flew back to their trees~ The sparrows flew to the rafters, and the roads—AAH!” Li Zhi’s chanting was abruptly interrupted, causing the Second Deity to stop in its tracks. She raised her head in shock, only to see Li Huowang smiling.

“You may have been testing me, but that doesn’t mean I was not doing the same with you. I’ve already been deceived by the monks before and have learned my lesson. There’s no way I wouldn’t prepare some defenses for myself,” said Li Huowang.

Just as he finished speaking, footsteps could be heard. Puppy, Simpleton, and the others were approaching him while carrying weapons and holding a bloodied Li Zhi hostage. Xiaoman currently held onto his drum.

Li Huowang took the drum from Xiaoman and threw it onto the ground before using his sword to pierce it right in front of Li Zhi’s face.

Pu Chi!

The taut drum was destroyed easily.

“Looks like this is something extremely important to you. Regardless of which Immortal family you follow, you can’t summon them without this drum, right?” asked Li Huowang.

After probing Li Zhi these few days, Li Huowang had realized that no matter how strong the Immortal families were, a Shaman was still a mortal. Once you managed to subdue them, everything would be fine.

Seeing the blades around him, Li Zhi, who had been beaten by a club, displayed no fear or hatred on his face. He just laughed bitterly, “Unfortunately, that is not something for you to decide.”

Jiang!

A sharp sword blade was pressed against Li Zhi’s neck. “You still want to lie? Tell the Second Deity to stop resisting!”

Li Huowang was staring at the Second Deity with a distorted face. Li Zhi may have been subdued, but that human-beast hybrid was still a problem.

“Hehe. Why do you think she would listen to me?” asked Li Zhi as he let out an eerie chuckle.

Li Zhi had barely spoken when the Second Deity let out a bestial roar from her disfigured mouth before charging into the forest on all fours.

The Second Deity had escaped, leaving Li Zhi all alone.

“Li Huowang, I’m not lying to you. We Shamans are not the same as you. Sometimes, there are things that are beyond our control.” Li Zhi’s face was pale as he tried to explain.

“Do you think, perhaps, that I will let you go out of kindness after just listening to you?” Li Huowang’s sword inched closer.

“Hehe, that’s impossible.” Facing certain death, Li Zhi looked surprisingly calm.

Upon seeing his hostage be so calm, Li Huowang pondered for a moment before asking. “What exactly is a Strayed Immortal? Why are you calling me that?”

This was what he cared about the most. There must be a reason why others were trying to catch him; after all, he had been referred to as such twice now.

Li Zhi sighed. “It looks like you really don’t know. I was fooled by your bloody robes.”

“What is a Strayed Immortal?!” Li Huowang said forcefully, his sword drawing a thin line of blood from Li Zhi’s neck.

Seeing how agitated Li Huowang was, Li Zhi chuckled. “Let me give you a tip. You are quite smart, but you can’t win against the Immortals.”

Immediately after saying that, Li Zhi’s eyebrows started growing longer as porcupine quills started growing from his eyelids. At the same time, his nose extended forward and his entire face morphed to match the Second Deity.

Li Huowang swung his sword toward Li Zhi’s neck, but instead of seeing a spray of blood, he only saw a bunch of hard snake scales underneath Li Zhi’s skin.

“Kill him!!” shouted Li Huowang.

Hearing Li Huowang’s command, Simpleton swung his massive wooden club with such force that the wind was ripped apart as it smashed into Li Zhi’s head.

Blood and flesh sprayed everywhere as the half-transformed Li Zhi fell onto the ground, his head smashed into pieces.

Dong Dong Dong!

However, at that moment, the sound of rapid drum beats rang out from within the dark forest, attracting everyone’s attention.

This situation caused Li Huowang to be caught with his pants down as he looked at the broken drum on the ground.

A drum? How could he still play a drum?! I just destroyed it!

“Summon~ The~ Gods~”

Amidst the sound of the drum beats, Li Zhi started chanting, while a figure stumbled out from within the forest—it was the Second Deity, no, it was Li Zhi.

As the original Li Zhi transformed into the Second Deity, the Second Deity that had previously left the area transformed into Li Zhi—the two of them had easily swapped places.

Dong Dong Dong!

The sound of drum beats continued to ring out, causing everyone to look downward and see the source of the sound. All of them gasped in terror.

Li Zhi's clothes were torn apart. At the same time, one of his hands had torn away a portion of his abdomen and stretched it out while his other hand was beating it with the whip.

Li Zhi had used his own skin and flesh to make a drum to play after his previous one was destroyed!

Dong Dong Dong!

“The sun set on the Western mountain, and the skies went dark~ Every house closed its doors while the magpies and crows flew back to their trees~ The sparrows flew to the rafters, and the roads to the houses were closed~ Ten houses with nine locked~ Only one remains unlocked~ Offer incense, beat the drums, summon the Immortals~” chanted Li Zhi, while beating the “drum”.

Immediately after the chant, despite her smashed head, the fallen Second Deity stood up on her feet.

The sound of flesh being sliced could be heard as Li Huowang and all the people by his side pierced their weapons into the Second Deity.

Li Huowang was certain that he had pierced her heart, but the Second Deity didn't budge.

“First comes red and then comes yellow~ I Invite the the wind and the clouds bringing the Sad King~ Red is the general while yellow is the vanguard~ The wind and clouds standby while the Sad King runs the sect ai~”

As Li Zhi continued chanting, an incredible amount of strength started coursing through the Second Deity as she twisted her body, causing everyone to lose their grip on their weapons.

Shit! I need to stop Li Zhi from playing the drum! He's the linchpin!

The bronze bell appeared in Li Huowang's right hand.

Ding Ding Ding~! Dong Dong Dong~!

As he started to ring the bell, two different sounds reverberated in the forest, clashing with each other.

At the same time, the edges of everything around them converged, taking the form of a Wandering God.

A dizzy Li Huowang shook his head and commanded the Wandering God, causing the latter to split into four before charging straight toward Li Zhi.

Meanwhile, Li Zhi ignored his bloody body and torn skin, chanting even more fervently. His veins started bulging as he started chanting twice as fast.

“The feast had been prepared~ It will be delicious~ Everything is delicious~ Just tell me what you want~ I will prepare everything~ You want beef and mutton~ You want chicken, ducks, or geese~ Even if you want the flesh of the Strayed Ones~ I will get it all for you ai!~”

At that moment, Li Huowang felt a sudden stabbing pain from his neck—somehow the Second Deity had teleported behind him and was biting into his shoulder with her razor sharp teeth.

Chapter 65 - Let'S See How You Beat The Drum Now!

Seeing Li Huowang be injured, the Wandering God instantly flew back, crashing into the body of the Second Deity.

The Wandering Gods had always been incorporeal beings, but this time it had met its match. When it crashed into the Second Deity, instead of entering its body, it was bounced off.

“AAAAA!!!” A savage roar was heard as a thick club swung down, smashing into the Second Deity’s head, just inches away from Li Huowang’s face.

The sound of flesh being torn apart and blood splattering was heard as the Second Deity was launched away, taking with her a big portion of Li Huowang’s torn-off shoulder.

The intense pain almost caused Li Huowang to faint, but he couldn’t care less. He just took out two bottles and stuffed them into Puppy’s hands. “One of these is poison, while the other is a paralyzing agent. Smear both of them on your swords and help me trap that damned thing.”

They couldn’t afford to be attacked from both sides, so they had to ensure that the battlefield continued to remain split.

Seeing the Second Deity, which had just lost half of its head, struggling to get up, Puppy clenched his teeth, his legs almost giving in. “Senior Li, are you sure these will work on that thing?”

Meanwhile, Xiaoman didn’t say anything; she just grabbed the two bottles out of his hands. Then, she clenched her teeth and charged with her blade. “Whether it works or not, it doesn’t matter!

The first thing we need to do is to use it!”

Li Huowang knew that the chances of those poisons working were slim, but he couldn’t care less—if he couldn’t defeat Li Zhi, the latter would summon more and more Immortals.

Meanwhile, three Wandering Gods circled around Li Zhi. But every time they tried to get close, something invisible blocked them.

On the other hand, Li Zhi continued to chant while beating the ‘drum’ made from his own skin even as he saw Li Huowang approaching him. “Don’t forget to bring the three treasures when you come. Yes, the three treasures~ The Immortal Shackles, the Immortal Binding Rope, and the Spirit Vessel~ Throw the three treasures to the disciple~ Kick him if you can’t shackle him~ Stomp him if you can’t tie him ai~”

Just as Li Zhi finished his chant, he made a throwing motion with the hand holding the whip.

Even though nothing could be seen, the Wandering Gods sensed something. Immediately, one of them flew back, using its body to protect Li Huowang.

Moments later, a crisp explosion rang out as the Wandering God exploded into the squiggly lines that composed it.

At the same time, Li Zhi made another throwing gesture. If Li Huowang was hit by the attack, then he would suffer the same fate as the Wandering God.

But at the last moment, Li Huowang reached behind him and used the sacred text to block it.

Clang!

The impact caused Li Huowang’s arms to become numb.

I blocked it! Amazing! The sacred text is so hard!

Just like that, Li Huowang clenched his teeth as he quickly approached Li Zhi, holding a bell and a ‘shield’ in front of him.

At the same time, a shake of his hand caused the number of Wandering Gods around him to double.

Li Huowang gave them a command and the Wandering Gods surrounded Li Zhi, attacking him from different directions.

While Li Zhi's situation was bad, Li Huowang was not in a good spot either.

Due to there being too many Wandering Gods, he felt an overwhelming sense of nausea and an urge to vomit.

Now, it was just a battle of attrition.

Amidst the chaos, Li Huowang realized that in his current state, he could see the Immortals that were helping Li Zhi block the attacks from the Wandering Gods.

The Immortals all had different faces, shapes, and sizes, while their bodies were translucent, almost looking like white smoke. There were humanoids, beasts, and something in between. At the same time, their appearances gradually changed as well. All the organs that made up their bodies trembled ever so slightly to the beat of Li Zhi's drum.

Seeing this scene allowed Li Huowang to instantly understand.

There were many Immortals all around them, but all their bodies were translucent and incorporeal. If they wanted to interact with the physical realm, then they had to do so through a special rhythm, and the key to achieving this was the beat of that drum.

However, as he got closer, the sound of his bronze bell started to overpower the sound of the drum beats, allowing the Wandering Gods to find a crack in their defenses.

Upon noticing that the situation was not in his favor, Li Zhi's expression froze for a moment before he opened his mouth so wide that the sides of his mouth split open before his red tongue slithered out like a snake's tongue.

At the same time, his voice changed into one filled with sadness. "Smoke~ Clouds~ Ai~~~"

The moment he said those words, a strong gust of wind blew around them, allowing the sound of the drum beats to overpower the sound of the bell.

At the same time, Li Huowang heard a bizarre voice carried by the wind; it was as if a woman was softly whispering something to him.

Everything around him started shifting.

Gradually, the sound of the wind, drum beats, and the bell were all replaced by other sounds.

Soon, the sounds of people's conversations, a Rubik's Cube being turned, the sound of leather shoes, and the sounds of mobile phones started to fill his surroundings.

By the time he finally realized what was happening, he noticed that he was already wearing a blue-and-white hospital gown and was being helped by someone as they walked around within the courtyard of the mental hospital.

This is all fake! It's just an illusion!

Li Huowang raised his head and stared at his surroundings. Immediately, he managed to see Old Liu being helped by his own daughter toward the exit of the mental hospital.

Li Huowang could see that the distance between him and Old Liu was roughly the same as the distance between him and Li Zhi.

"Huowang, what's wrong?" asked the person helping him.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang suddenly chuckled coldly, his expression turning fierce. Out of all possible methods Li Zhi could have tried to use to defeat Li Huowang, he chose to use the method that was the least effective—illusions.

He shook off the hand that was holding him and stepped onto the courtyard's stairs with his right foot before running straight toward Old Liu.

Slowly, the sound of people conversing with each other entered Li Huowang's ears.

"Doctor, thank you so much. If it wasn't for you, my father would not have recovered so soon,” said a female voice.

“Hoho. It’s nothing much. This is the responsibility of us doctors. Mr. Liu, don’t forget to take your medications on time when you are home,” advised the doctor

“Alright,” replied Old Liu.

“LI ZHI!” Li Huowang’s shout caused everyone, including Old Liu who had already changed into a nice-looking shirt and was ready to be discharged, to turn their heads to look at him.

Bam!

Li Huowang’s fist landed squarely on Old Liu’s cheek, causing a denture to fly into the air alongside blood.

In the very next second, the illusion was broken and Li Huowang saw Li Zhi’s head being tilted upward due to his punch, giving him a nosebleed.

Meanwhile, the Immortals around them wanted to stop Li Huowang, but they were all intercepted by the six Wandering Gods.

“Let’s see how you beat the drum now!” said Li Huowang as he unsheathed his sword and stabbed it forcefully.

Schwing!

The sharp sword easily managed to chop Li Zhi’s fingers off. Then, he stabbed the sword into the ‘drum’ he had made with his own body, piercing all the way into his abdomen.

With just a single stab, Li Huowang managed to stop the drum beats, and so he also stopped ringing the bronze bell. This caused both the Wandering Gods and the Immortals around them to turn completely silent.

Li Zhi stared at his bleeding abdomen with shock on his face before taking two steps back and slumping onto the ground.

On the other hand, Li Huowang was panting as he stared at the dying Li Zhi. He turned around and saw that the others who were fighting against the Second Deity had also stopped.

“Hoho, Daoist Li, I’m sorry...” said Li Zhi in a weak voice.

Chapter 66 - A Virtuous Person

Upon hearing those words, Li Huowang held his burning shoulder and looked at Li Zhi, who lay on the ground.

Is he... apologizing to... me?

“You are on the verge of death. No need to fake it and try to gain my mercy. After all, it was you, not someone else, who wanted to kill me, right?” asked Li Huowang.

Li Zhi’s face slowly turned pale as he smiled bitterly. “I had no choice. I really didn’t. They forced me to do it. You can run, but I can’t do that. The moment I became a Shaman, it was destined that I would never be able to run away anymore,” said Li Zhi weakly.

Crimson blood continued to flow from Li Zhi’s body, dyeing the ground a deep shade of red. His time was almost up.

Li Huowang stood there with a complicated expression. He wasn’t even sure if the Li Zhi in front of him was real or fake.

“This... This ain’t too bad. At the very least, my mind is finally quiet now,” Li Zhi lamented.

“Just now, did the Immortals force you to do everything?” Li Huowang asked.

“Hoho... It doesn’t matter if you don’t want to believe me. Ever since I became a Shaman, I have been nothing more than their puppet. I tried to fight back, but it was useless. A human could never hope to win against Immortals,” explained Li Zhi.

At this point, Li Huowang had stopped caring about whether it was the truth or not. He walked toward Li Zhi and tried to pull his sword out from Li Zhi’s abdomen. But no matter how hard he pulled, it didn’t come out. He then saw that Li Zhi was tightly holding onto the sword with his hands. Some of his fingers were already sliced off.

Li Zhi flashed a bloody smile. “Daoist Li, if you happen to meet someone like me in the future, do be careful. You are a Strayed One and that quite literally makes you a walking treasure in the eyes of others. The people who don’t have bad intentions toward you will be few and far between.”

Hearing him say that, Li Huowang’s heart skipped a beat. He had never thought that he would get such information from Li Zhi, but now the man himself was telling him all of it.

Looking at the dying man in front of him, Li Huowang spoke slowly, “What exactly is a Strayed One?”

“Strayed Ones. In the beginning, everything starts to take form, and when there is form, there is essence, and yet, it is not complete. That is a Strayed One; one who has both form and essence, but at the same time is still incomplete,” explained Li Zhi.

“What?” Li Huowang did not understand what he was trying to say.

“This was all that the Immortals told me. I am just an uneducated man, and so I do not understand what it means either. But this was the first time I had seen them this happy, and that’s why I thought... I thought that it must be something good.”

Li Huowang raised his hands, staring at them in shock.

When he thought back to what happened with the monks at the Righteous Monastery, he was certain that Li Zhi was not lying to him.

Am I something precious in this world? But I’m no different from the others except for my hallucinations. What does it mean for me to be a Strayed One?

Li Huowang silently memorized what Li Zhi had said. He had a feeling that this was something important.

At the same time, he remembered his dead Master, Dan Yangzi.

Li Huowang realized that there had always been hints ever since the beginning. Dan Yangzi, that cheapskate, would never simply find someone random to be used as a guiding drug ingredient.

Once he realized that the cultivation methods of the others he had met were just as bizarre as Dan Yangzi's, he could deduce that they too would likely need something akin to a guiding drug ingredient on their path of cultivation.

Li Zhi's voice slowly became softer and softer, his eyes starting to glaze over.

"Daoist Li, can you do something for me?" asked Li Zhi.

Li Huowang turned to the dying Li Zhi. "What is it?"

"The 22nd day of the next month happens to be the Qingming Festival. On that day, can you burn some extra money for me? I've been poor throughout my life, but I don't want to die and become a poor ghost," said Li Zhi.

After saying that, Li Zhi smiled as blood flowed out of his mouth.

"If I am to be reincarnated, then I would rather be livestock than become a Shaman. It's way too suffocating and... tiring. It's even worse than becoming the manager of a brothel. Daoist Li, whatever you do, don't ever become a Shaman. This is not something that a normal person should do. It's way too hard and suffocating." Tears streamed down Li Zhi's eyes.

Li Huowang looked at him with complicated feelings. But then, everything that Li Zhi had done before flashed through his mind. Li Huowang might think of himself as virtuous, but in the end, it was not something that he could define himself with.

Li Zhi was just someone unlucky who was controlled by the Immortals.

This cruel world had taught him that those who used supernatural powers might not just be skilled people like Abbot Xin

Hui or Dan Yangzi—they could also be people who were just pawns of supernatural beings.

“Thank you for your reminder, Li Zhi,” thanked Li Huowang.

Li Zhi was on his last breaths. He took one last deep breath as he said his final words, “One more thing. You asked before that you needed help with repelling something evil, right? Go south. Find the nuns in black. They can be... counted... as... nice... people. They... should... be able to help you.”

Li Huowang had never thought that he would be able to get hold of such precious information today. This was closely related to the matter of getting rid of Dan Yangzi, who was somehow possessing him. He quickly asked, “Nuns? What is the name of their sect? Are they specialized in repelling or exorcizing evil beings?”

Li Huowang waited for Li Zhi’s reply, but to no avail.

Soon, he realized that the light in Li Zhi’s eyes was gone. He was dead.

Staring at Li Zhi, who had died with his eyes wide open, Li Huowang felt bitter in his heart.

If Li Zhi hadn’t been a Shaman, they could’ve become friends.

Just then, the rest of them came over. “Senior Li, once the drum beats stopped, that weird thing stopped moving as well. Oh? What happened to him?”

Puppy and the rest looked quite disheveled after fighting the Second Deity for so long. However, at the very least, they had only suffered minor injuries.

Li Huowang sighed as he pulled his sword out from Li Zhi’s body and returned it to the sheath. “Find a place and dig a grave for both of them. We don’t want the animals to nibble on their flesh.”

“Why should we do that, Senior? He’s just a cold-blooded murderer!” Puppy did not understand Li Huowang’s intention.

Li Huowang did not explain, merely gently closing Li Zhi’s eyes.

Li Huowang did not erect a gravestone for Li Zhi. After all, no one would be coming to pay their respects to him anyway. At the same time, if he did erect gravestones for them, there might be even more trouble down the road.

The roosters were already crowing by the time they dealt with the aftermath and returned to the village.

They had just arrived at the door when they saw a thin figure by the well. It was Bai Lingmiao. Previously confined to the bed due to her fatigue, she was now fetching water from the well.

“Senior Li! Where did you go? Why are all of you injured? Is everything ok?” Bai Lingmiao asked anxiously.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang frowned as he grabbed the bucket from her hand and threw it aside, “You have a fever. Why are you out here fetching water from the well? Quickly go back to your room and rest.”

“I’m fine. Here, feel my forehead,” said Bai Lingmiao.

When Li Huowang touched her forehead and realized her fever had dissipated, he was surprised. “The pills I made weren’t that potent. Are you sure you are alright?”

Bai Lingmiao’s looked stunned for a moment before she hurriedly smiled. “Yes, I am fine. My illness is gone. Isn’t that good news?”

“You should still rest even if you are healed. You’ve just recovered from the illness, so don’t touch the water unless necessary!” said Li Huowang.

Chapter 67 - Parcel

Regardless of what had happened, with Li Zhi's death, everything came to an end.

Even though it had been quite dangerous, after his near-death experience, Li Huowang had obtained many benefits.

First, Li Huowang now knew why the monks at Righteous Monastery had tried to trick him.

Strayed Ones. In the beginning, everything starts to take form, and when there is form, there is essence, and yet, it is not complete. That is a Strayed One; one who has both form and essence, but at the same time is still incomplete.

This was what Li Zhi told him right before his death. In this world, he was a precious Strayed One.

Li Huowang had never really understood ancient literature, but he still tried to recall whatever he had learned in school, getting a rough understanding of it.

Based on his understanding, there was a certain primordial substance in the beginning, and that substance formed everything. However, Strayed Ones were formed even before this primordial substance was formed.

He deciphered what Li Zhi's words meant, but instead of getting any answers to his questions, he was left with even more questions.

I'm a human. A mortal with blood and flesh. How could I be something that was formed before 'the substance' but still be incomplete? This makes no sense.

This was something so profound, and yet, it didn't sound like it applied to him.

If something wasn't even complete, then how could it move or think?

Facing this question, Li Huowang failed to comprehend it.

However, no matter what he thought, the actions of the cultivators of this world, including Dan Yangzi, Abbot Xin Hui, and even Li Zhi, told him a completely different story.

Ignoring what it means to be a Strayed One, I am a living treasure, just like Tang Sanzang. Everybody wants a piece of me, per se.

Li Huowang thought about it. At this point, he had lost any and all trust he had for the people of this world—anything said by anyone could be fake.

They could be trying to lie to him.

This made him doubt everyone as if everyone who approached him had some sort of agenda.

Even so, he still needed to survive here. He had no choice but to face his problems one by one.

For now, Li Huowang could tell that Li Zhi hadn't been lying to him. Dying men had better things to do than spout lies, so what Li Zhi had said was most likely the truth.

Li Zhi had even requested Li Huowang to burn some money for him during the Qingming Festival. He couldn't have gained anything from lying to Li Huowang about this.

“Hey! Wait up!”

Hearing this shout, Li Huowang and the rest turned their heads and saw an honest looking man catching up to them while holding something in his hands.

“Where are all of you going? Where is my Shaman friend? The one who was with you guys.” asked the man, panting.

Li Huowang could never tell him how Li Zhi had died. Thus, he lied, “Li Zhi had something to do and left with his wife.”

That man didn't even doubt his words and just passed a heavy parcel to Li Huowang. “Oh. If that's the case, these are his belongings that were in his room. He probably forgot to take them.

Please send them to him for me. Thanks.”

Looking at the color of the parcel, Li Huowang recalled that it was the item that Li Zhi was carrying on his back when they first met.

After entrusting the parcel to Li Zhi, the man left without even waiting for Li Huowang to say anything.

Back on the road filled with many potholes, Li Huowang checked the items in the parcel. After all, the items would never be returned to Li Zhi, since he had died.

Just then, a sudden thought flashed through his head.

Wait, maybe there's something precious in Li Zhi's parcel?

Li Huowang didn't even hesitate before opening it.

However, there was nothing new inside it; everything was old.

The first thing he saw was a piece of white drum leather; most likely a method to repair the drum used to summon the Immortals.

Li Huowang picked it up and threw it to the ground. He had a bad impression of the Shamans and felt that this item was a source of bad luck.

“Hey, don't throw it away. It's still good leather. Maybe we can use it in the future.” Bai Lingmiao picked it up with both her hands.

“What can we do with it? Patching stuff up?” Li Huowang realized that Bai Lingmiao was much more pragmatic than him.

“We don't have any money left. We should save as much as we can,” said Bai Lingmiao.

Seeing Bai Lingmiao carefully placing the leather in the donkey cart, Li Huowang shook his head and continued to rummage through Li Zhi's belongings as he picked up a string of coins. The coins were all new and shiny. It seemed that Li Zhi had been saving it up.

Shaking the coins in his hand, Li Huowang sighed.

He didn't know what Li Zhi had been saving for, but it was clear that he had put in a lot of effort.

“Use it to buy some food.” Li Huowang threw the string of coins into Bai Lingmiao’s arms.

Seeing this, a smile instantly blossomed on the face of Bai Lingmiao who had been worried about their finances.

But her happiness didn’t last long. “Senior Li, we still need to find a way to earn money. These coins won’t last us long.”

“An income stream? What are you thinking of doing? Becoming performers like Lu Zhuangyuan?” Li Huowang asked as he continued to rummage through Li Zhi items.

Bai Lingmiao shook her head vigorously. “My father would kill me if he knew that I had become a performer. I was thinking of something more normal.”

At that moment, Li Huowang took out the jade pendant that was tied to a thread and placed it in her hands. “Don’t worry about money. Let’s find somewhere that’s more developed and sell this. Then, we would be able to buy anything we need.”

“I have something too! Here you go!” At that moment, Puppy took out a stack of red envelopes from within his shirt before passing them over.

Li Huowang was surprised. “Wait a minute, these are the red envelopes that Dan Yangzi had given to the now dead official disciples. When did you get your hands on them?”

“I took them when we were exiting the Zephyr Temple. I saw that no one had touched them so I took them instead, hehe.” Puppy was satisfied with his slyness.

Just then, Li Huowang’s hands stopped moving; he felt something spherical in Li Zhi’s parcel.

He took it out and saw that it was a gourd twice the size of his palm.

This looks like a gourd used to store pills. Do Shamans refine pills too?

Li Huowang wondered as he examined it.

He turned it upside down and shook it, but nothing came out. Li Huowang closed one of his eyes, intending to look inside the gourd.

Just as he was about to see what was inside, the top part of the ‘gourd’ suddenly opened. The mouth of the gourd was lined with rows of backward-facing teeth as it lunged toward Li Huowang.

Kachik!

Thankfully Li Huowang reacted quickly enough, otherwise half of his face would’ve been bitten off.

Even so, Li Huowang was visibly shaken when he saw the gourd reverting back to its original form.

It is a living thing and Li Zhi was using it to store something! Whatever is inside it must be very precious. But what is it?

At that moment, as if sensing something, the bell hanging at Li Huowang’s waist vibrated lightly.

“Wait a moment.” Li Huowang realized something and entered the forest.

Soon, the sound of a bell ringing was heard in the dense forest and a Wandering God was summoned.

Then, Li Huowang raised the gourd and showed it to the Wandering God before asking what was inside.

The Wandering God hummed in return.

Li Huowang was surprised at the answer and stared at the gourd incredulously. “What? Are you sure the item stored inside is... lifespan?”

Chapter 68 - Festival

Lifespan.

The fact that it was limited was a problem that everyone had. And, to think that the answer to that problem was now in the palm of Li Huowang's hand.

Li Huowang completely ignored the question of how it was possible to give lifespan a tangible form. After going through so much in this bizarre world, Li Huowang couldn't be bothered with such questions anymore. Instead, it was more important for him to comprehend what it meant for him to have gotten his hands on this item.

With guidance from the Wandering God, Li Huowang raised the gourd before pointing it toward the sun.

Soon the mouth of the gourd opened up like a flower, revealing six round pills that were rolling slowly in a greenish liquid. At the same time, it was possible to see a golden glimmer on the pills. This golden glimmer was the Chinese character for 'lifespan.'

Li Huowang carefully took out one of the pills from within the fluid, holding it firmly while placing all his attention on it.

The Wandering God had explained to him that the lifespan within the pill would disappear the moment it touched anything composed of the five elements. Basically, it would become useless the moment it fell to the ground.

A single pill contained enough lifespan to grant a normal human an extra year of life.

Under the sunlight, the pill slowly started to dissipate, turning into a yellow smoke.

Then, Li Huowang pinched the pill and it disappeared in his hands.

At that moment, Li Huoawang suddenly felt his body becoming lighter—he had just increased his lifespan by a year.

Wouldn't I be undying if I keep using these things?

However, Li Huowang quickly brushed off the thought.

Thinking back upon what Li Zhi had said, it wasn't hard to determine that this was the 'payment' that the Immortals wanted for their help.

It must've taken Li Zhi many rituals just to collect these few pills. If they were easy to collect, then there was no way Li Zhi would look so old.

For now, the only use he could think of for these lifespan pills was to help him in controlling the Wandering Gods.

Having thought up to this point, Li Huowang decided to take out the remaining five pills to absorb them. After all, he had summoned six Wandering Gods just to fight Li Zhi yesterday. That meant that he had spent eighteen months of his lifespan just last night. He needed to recover his lost lifespan.

However, just as his fingers were about to touch the lifespan pills, he stopped.

What if I can use these as a currency?

As the saying went, time was money. What if he really could trade money for time or vice versa?

The price of these pills would be astronomically high regardless of whether I sell them to cultivators or to normal people. It's quite a waste for me to just absorb them. I need to use them wisely.

Thinking up to this point, he retracted his hands from the gourd before placing it in the shade of a tree. Soon, the mouth of the gourd slowly closed.

Once it was closed, he picked the gourd up and walked back to the cart. Then, he found a string and used it to tie the gourd to his waist before continuing to rummage through the parcel.

But he didn't find anything else that was worth any money.

Old pieces of clothing, two pairs of worn-out shoes, some needles and threads, as well as a few clay sculptures in the form of Household Immortals. This was all that was owned by Li Zhi, his everything.

Looking through the items, Li Huowang sighed pitifully. Not only did the Immortals not allow Li Zhi to live a better life, it was even worse than that of a regular person's.

It would be easy for the Immortals to use their powers to amass immense amounts of wealth, using it to compensate Li Zhi for his work.

But the Immortals never did that.

They only ever wanted a slave that would amass large amounts of lifespan for them; they couldn't care less about how badly their slaves were living.

Li Zhi was right. The work of a Shaman was not something an ordinary person could do.

"Senior Li, can you give these to me?" asked one of the assistants as he stared at the clay sculptures, snout dangling from his nose.

Even though the assistants performed quite well under stress, in the end, they were still children, and all children loved to play.

But, Li Huowang shook his head and threw the clay sculptures on the side of the road. "These things are dirty."

The wheels of the donkey cart once again started to creak as they continued on their journey.

While Li Zhi had lied to them about many things, he did not lie about the fact that the journey ahead would be perilous. The roads were uneven and there was not a single village in sight.

They walked on the muddy road for more than ten days before finally finding a medium-sized town.

Even though it was drizzling, it was unable to stop them from smiling.

“We can finally sleep on beds. It’s been so torturous throughout the journey,” said a man with a single arm. It was not that he had just one arm, but that his other arm was as small as that of a baby.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang raised his head up from his map. “We will rest here for two days. When the rain stops, we will resume our journey.”

The donkey cart slowly rolled into the town.

When they arrived at the entrance of the town, they saw many horse carriages and ox carts exiting the town.

Compared to the carriages, there were even more people walking on foot. They were all wearing raincoats made from straw as they carried baskets full of yellow paper as well as bowls of fish, egg, and meat. All of them had expressions of sadness as they walked out.

“What’s wrong? Did something happen in the town?” Li Huowang asked instinctively.

“Senior Li, today is the Qingming Festival. They are going to clean the gravestones,” explained one of the assistants.

“It’s already Qingming? Time flies quite fast, huh.” Li Huowang mumbled to himself.

Inside the town, there were many stores selling yellow paper, paper gold ingots, paper dolls, and even paper ox. Their business was booming.

At that moment, Li Huowang remembered his promise with Li Zhi. He did not want to dishonor it.

However, after getting his hands on some paper money and candles, he suddenly thought of a problem.

How do I do this? How do I burn paper money for Li Zhi?

“Senior Li, leave this to me. I know what to do.” Puppy patted his skinny chest with pride.

They soon arrived in the town square. Many of the townsfolk were gathered here, burning paper money for their dead relatives who had been buried far away from the town.

Puppy took out his knife and drew a circle on the ground with it, leaving a small opening toward the direction where they had buried Li Zhi. The yellow paper was then placed within the circle and burned, slowly turning into ashes within the circle.

As Puppy was burning the paper, he chanted, "I'm burning this for Li Zhi and his wife! Whoever dares to take his money is a fucking animal! You will be reincarnated as livestock in your next life!"

"Does it work when you shout like this?" asked Li Huowang as he placed a paper gold ingot within the fire.

"Yes! It will definitely work! My third uncle had taught me how to do this. If I shout like this, then the stray ghosts would not dare to come and steal the paper money we are offering to the deceased!" Puppy was confident when he said that.

Li Huowang stared at the smoke that was slowly drifting upward as he slowly said, "Do you think a human would turn into a ghost when they die?"

"Senior Li, what are you saying? If a person doesn't become a ghost when they die, then what do they become?" asked Puppy.

"Maybe that's it. When a person dies, they leave nothing behind, nor do they turn into a ghost. Humans are quite small and insignificant," said Li Huowang. He had seen many bizarre things in this world, but he had never seen a ghost.

Li Huowang's words caused everyone to feel uncomfortable as they looked around. Puppy was even hugging his arms to his chest as he soothed the goosebumps on his skin.

"Aiya, Senior Li, what are you saying? Today is the Qingming Festival so we shouldn't simply say anything without thinking. A person becomes a ghost when they die. Then, they would arrive at Hell and be reincarnated. This is the truth," said Puppy.

"Why are you so sure about it? Have you seen it yourself?"

asked Li Huowang.

“That’s... That’s because my second aunt’s mother told me this. She’s ninety four years old, so she knows everything,” said Puppy.

Chapter 69 - Meal

The yellow paper slowly burned, gradually transforming into black ashes that spiral upward into the hot air, disappearing into the skies.

As he looked at this scene, Li Huowang's expression was quite complicated.

"Li Zhi, I've burnt some paper money for you. Hopefully you'll receive it," muttered Li Huowang.

Just as he finished saying that, Li Huowang saw the black ashes swirling around in the air; it was almost as if Li Zhi was giving him a reply.

At that moment, Li Huowang had a feeling that understood the slightest bit about the mindset of superstitious people.

Compared to a depressing end in which a human being would be reduced to nothing after their death, the belief that they would become a ghost and be reincarnated sounded like a fairy tale.

He threw the last batch of yellow paper in his hands into the fire before standing up and patting the dust off his body.

"Let's go. We should find an inn to rest. All of us are drenched," said Li Huowang.

Just as they were about to leave, Bai Lingmiao's words caused them to stop. "Senior Li, Xiaoman is missing."

Li Huowang observed his group and saw that the girl afflicted with hypertrichosis was indeed missing.

"Oh, I remember her saying that her house is nearby," said Li Huowang.

No one replied to him. After what she had told them last time, all of them knew what she intended to do once she reached home. The depressing atmosphere around them became even worse.

“Uhm Senior Li, should we go find her? Maybe we can still stop her.” Puppy smiled sheepishly, scratching his oily hair beneath his veil.

Li Huowang merely glanced at him for a moment before walking toward an inn marked by a wooden sign.

“Let’s find an inn to rest first. Xiaoman’s home is nearby so she should be familiar with the directions here. She will come and find us after she finishes whatever she needs to do,” said Li Huowang.

Bai Lingmiao was just about to say something but after hearing what Li Huowang had said, she decided against it. She just gripped the hems of her clothes as she followed behind him, quietly.

The skies were gray and it continued drizzling. Due to this, Bai Lingmiao didn’t need to use her blindfold. Sadness was reflected in her pink irises.

They soon found an inn and entered their respective rooms. They were delighted to have a dry place to rest. Some of them washed their hair, while others took a bath. Once all of them finished cleaning themselves, they gathered at the food hall.

They didn’t have much money left so they only ordered some simple dishes. Most of them were vegetables; they only had one source of protein—stir-fried bitter melon with eggs and crispy pork lard with chili.

Everyone happily ate their meals. Even though they didn’t have much choice due to their limited finances, the scent of the pork lard was more than enough to satisfy them. At the very least, they wouldn’t have to stay hungry anymore.

Today was the Qingming Festival so there weren’t many people at the inn. Out of boredom, the waiter was talking with the cashier.

“Hey, did you know that a war will soon be breaking out at the border?” asked the waiter.

“Don’t lie to me. What do you know? You aren’t even qualified to talk about issues of the national level,” replied the cashier with a scoff.

“Hey, don’t judge me like that. I might be a waiter, but I still know the latest information. I’ve heard that this time our kingdom of Si Qi is planning to wage a war toward the East,” said the waiter.

“East?” Li Huowang muttered as he overheard their conversation while eating his meal. They had just come here from the East.

Li Huowang did not know many people there, but there was someone he was worried about—troupe leader Lu and his family.

But thinking back on how cunning Lu Zhuangyuan was, he relaxed.

That old man is very sly, so he should be fine.

The waiter lowered his voice to a whisper as he continued talking. “Let me tell you something else too. Just a couple of days ago, those that went East for business were hurriedly traveling back here. Maybe they know something about it.”

Li Huowang shook his head as he ate his meal.

This damned place is so chaotic. Not only are there evil beings, there are also bandits. The people at the top aren’t even doing their job of maintaining the peace, but they still have the time and energy to wage war. What a bunch of idiots.

The waiter was quite excited as he talked. He was just about to say something when something caught his eye as he hurriedly went to the entrance of the inn.

“Hello young miss! Please come in. Are you here for a meal or will you be staying for the night?” asked the waiter.

Hearing the commotion, Li Huowang and the rest turned around and saw a girl wearing a black veil walking in with a short blade in her hands.

Based on the fact that there were not a lot of people wearing similar outfits and that the girls’s exposed hands were covered in long black hair, Li Huowang easily guessed who it was.

“Waiter, bring us another set of utensils, and give us two more items. This time, something with more meat in it,” said Li Huowang.

“Alright! Just a moment!” replied the waiter.

Then, Li Huowang elbowed Simpleton who was sitting beside him. Simpleton knew what this meant so he helped himself to a few more pieces of vegetables before taking his bowl and squatting down at a corner of the table to eat.

Xiaoman walked over to Li Huowang and sat beside him before taking off the black veil and revealing her face. The black hair on her face was wet from her tears.

Li Huowang took a deep breath and sighed before continuing to eat. He could smell a faint bloody stench coming from Xiaoman.

“Your bowls and chopsticks are here~~ Aiya! Yikes!” The waiter brought the utensils requested by Li Huowang, but shouted out of fright when he saw Xiaoman.

Shooing off the spooked waiter with his hand, Li Huowang placed the bowl and chopsticks in front of Xiaoman. “Eat.”

Xiaoman’s face was filled with pain as she stared at the empty bowl as she recalled something. “He sold my sister as well. He sold her to a fifty-year-old man. She died from birth complications earlier this year.”

Only the sounds of utensils and munching were heard at the table; no one dared to speak.

“He’s trash! I hate him! I hate him so much that I want to eat his flesh and drink his blood!” Xiaoman clenched her teeth as she squeezed out those words.

Hearing that, Bai Lingmiao had a worried expression on her face; she scooted over and gently hugged Xiaoman with her white arms.

“My mom tried to stop me, saying that no matter what, he was still my father. She said that I would suffer Heaven’s wrath for killing my father. But at this point, I would rather accept punishment from the Heavens than not kill my father!" said Xiaoman through her sobs.

Li Huowang scooped up some of the vegetable and tofu soup into his bowl and drank it before saying casually, "Heaven does not have eyes here."

The table grew silent; everyone just sat and silently stared at Xiaoman.

Everyone had a hint of anger and sadness in their eyes. They were all guiding drug ingredients so they could more or less resonate with her feelings. Without reaching back to their homes, none of them could confirm that they hadn't been sold off by their family.

The anger in Xiaoman's eyes was slowly replaced with confusion. "I don't have a home now. I destroyed it with my own hands just now. I have no idea what to do next."

"Stir-fried donkey meat! Braised river fish! Please enjoy!" At that moment, the waiter came in and placed the two dishes down before running away.

Li Huowang took Xiaoman's empty bowl, and filled it with steaming white rice before placing it in front of her. "Eat."

Having said that, Li Huowang used his chopsticks and picked out a fish bone from the braised fish before using it as a toothpick. Then, he got up and slowly walked back up to his room on the second floor.

Soon, everyone else followed suit, silently leaving the table. Only Xiaoman and Bai Lingmiao were left in the food hall.

Tears streamed down from the black hair on Xiaoman's face, dripping onto her rice. She picked up her chopsticks with trembling hands, picked up the bowl of rice, and ate a mouthful of the white rice that was mixed with her tears.

The more she ate, the more she cried. When she finally placed the bowl down, she burst into tears, crying loudly.

Chapter 70 - Lake

“It’s just some poor-quality cracked jade; three silvers is all I can give~” said a man.

“Three silvers?! I’m not pawning it anymore!” Li Huowang was furious as he took the jade pendant back and walked out of the pawn shop.

The jade pendant was worth at least 400,000 in the real world, but to think that he would be offered only three silvers for it here. The pawn shop was being unscrupulous!

He turned around and took another look at the pawn shop’s wooden sign.

What an unscrupulous place. They’ve probably managed to earn a lot of money this way. Should I just break in at night and rob them?

Li Huowang was shocked at his own thoughts. He punched himself in the face before walking back to the inn, feeling frustrated.

Back in his room, Li Huowang opened the map and placed it on the bed before glancing at Bai Lingmiao, who was sewing something using the leather they got from Li Zhi’s items. Then, he asked her to call for Xiaoman.

Li Huowang slowly pointed toward the South on the map. Before Li Zhi died, he told him that there was a group of nuns in black toward the South and that they might be able to handle the matter of Dan Yangzi possessing him.

Right now, Dan Yangzi was constantly influencing him, so finding a method to get rid of him as soon as possible was of the utmost importance. Finding a Black Taisui as well as addressing the other matters could be delayed a bit more.

Li Zhi had told him that the nuns could be considered good people. However, Li Huowang naturally would not trust that after experiencing all the things he had.

At this point, he trusted no one.

If he needed the help of the nuns to deal with Dan Yangzi, then he needed a method to guarantee his safety and at the same time offer the nuns a handsome reward in return.

Li Huowang glanced at the side of the bed, staring at the sacred text and the gourd containing the lifespan pills. These items would be his bargaining chips.

But that was not important. Right now, the most important task was to find the nuns that Li Zhi had mentioned.

“Senior Li, you called for me?” Xiaoman panted as she came into his room. Except for the corners of her eyes being red, her emotions seemed to have stabilized.

“Where did you go just now?” Li Huowang asked.

“I went to the escort service and requested them to deliver the last words of those guiding drug ingredients who belonged to the kingdom of Si Qi,” said Xiaoman.

“Next time, let someone else do these kinds of things. You should keep a low profile; otherwise, the town guard might end up finding you,” Li Huowang reminded her.

Xiaoman’s eyes flickered as she shook her head calmly. “It’s alright... My mother did not report the incident to the authorities.”

“Oh. Then come here and help me with this map. You are a local, so you should know your surroundings, right?” asked Li Huowang.

Xiaoman walked over and stared at the location that Li Huowang was pointing at.

“Do you know if there is a nunnery somewhere around here? The nuns from there are said to wear black clothes,” explained Li Huowang.

“Nunnery? Black clothes?” Xiaoman thought about it for a moment before pointing her hairy fingers at a mountain in the South-West.

“If there is one, then it should be here in the Henghua Mountain. I’ve heard that one of the people from this town went there to pray to a golden Bodhisattva,” said Xiaoman.

“A golden Bodhisattva! How much do you know about this nunnery?” asked Li Huowang. He wanted to gather as much information as possible.

“I don’t know a lot. My family was poor, so we didn’t go to such faraway places to pray. The only thing I’ve heard is that the place gets a lot of pilgrims,” said Xiaoman.

“Hmm...” Li Huowang shook his head in silence. This piece of information wasn’t really useful. After all, the Righteous Monastery also had a lot of pilgrims.

“Is there anything special about that nunnery? Something along the lines of how people’s prayers for bearing a son were always answered back at the Righteous Monastery,” asked Li Huowang.

Xiaoman thought about it for a moment before giving him a reply, “The only thing I’ve heard is that the nuns at that place are fat.”

“Fat? What’s so special about that?” Li Huowang thought about it and rapped his fingers on the map. “Let’s move out. We will travel to the nunnery and check it out.”

The money they got from Li Zhi’s bag was used to exchange for dried rations and noodles along with a big pot of pork lard.

Soon, Li Huowang and the rest started their journey to the next location.

Now, at the very least, they were no longer traveling alone. Many others were on the same path as them.

After listening in on the conversations around them, Li Huowang heard that the war was about to start at the borders—many of these people were escaping inland to avoid getting into any trouble during the war.

They walked during the day and rested at night. As they passed by many forks along their journey, the number of people around them gradually lessened.

Just as Li Huowang thought that they would once again be traveling alone, a huge swathe of water blocked their path.

A light breeze blew over the surface of the water, gently shaking Li Huowang's robes.

"Is this the sea that my second uncle's father used to tell me about?" Puppy was filled with disbelief.

The vast body of water in front of them reflected the skies above like a large mirror. The lake was so enormous that they could not even see the opposite shoreline.

Li Huowang took out his map. "No, this is not the sea. It's just a lake, albeit a very, very big lake."

Si Qi was a kingdom with a lot of bodies of water, so having such a large lake was not very strange.

"Senior Li, why is the water of the lake black?" asked Puppy.

The water within the lake was indeed quite murky and dark. Even standing right at the shoreline, they couldn't see the bottom of the lake. It was quite eerie.

Li Huowang closed the map and looked at the others who were waiting by the lake. "Let's wait a while and see what they do."

After a while, when a small black dot appeared from afar, the people at the shoreline started to move. It was a wooden boat. The people here were planning to use the wooden boat to cross the lake.

The ship was quite large but also quite old.

"Come! Come onto the boat! Seventy coins per person!" The old captain sitting in the boat hollered at the people standing on the shore.

"Seventy?! It was only forty-six coins last year." Someone was instantly dissatisfied with the price increase.

However, the shoeless captain did not even bother to justify himself. Instead, he stared angrily at that man. "Do you want to take the boat or not? If not, then you can just swim across the lake."

When the captain saw the man silently take out the money to pay, he had quite a satisfied expression as he spat into the lake. "We are already on the verge of war, so who cares about rules? What can you do to me even if I raise the price?"

"Let's get on the boat," Li Huowang said as he walked toward the boat. This was an unfamiliar place for them, and so he would rather pay the expensive fee than get involved in some other trouble later on.

Soon, the boat carrying tens of people slowly made its way toward the center of the lake. Some of those who were on a boat for the first time were experiencing motion sickness; however, Li Huowang was more or less fine.

He turned around and faced the captain before asking, "Sir, how long will it be until we reach the opposite shore?"

"Hoho, we should reach in four hours. We will get there before it gets dark," replied the captain.

Li Huowang nodded as he looked forward, fully alert as the boat cut through the dark waters of the lake. The water within the lake was as black as ink and felt somewhat oppressive, almost as if something would emerge from within it.

"I hope there are no man-eating creatures in the lake," muttered Li Huowang.

After experiencing so many incidents, Li Huowang was quite alert about his surroundings.

"What are you saying? Those are just some folk tales. I've been sailing on this lake for over twenty years, and I'm still alive. Just relax, nothing will happen. Since I have already taken your money, I will ensure your safety," said the captain.

Those words were enough to calm Li Huowang down to some extent.

As the boat moved, the sun gradually started moving west. By sunset, the boat had arrived in a large field of reeds.

We should be arriving soon.

Li Huowang thought as he looked at the reeds around him.

Splash!

Just as he had that thought, the sound of someone falling into the lake was heard behind him.

Everyone turned around to see what had happened, only to find that both the captain and the person steering the boat had disappeared!

“Aiya! They were eaten by something in the water!” someone shouted.

No one knew who had shouted those words, but they left the people on the boat terrified.

“Sit down! Do you want the boat to capsize?” Li Huowang shouted at them.

Then, he turned around and looked at his own group. “Who here knows how to steer the boat?”

Everyone shook their heads.

Just as Li Huowang was thinking about what to do, the reeds around them started to move.

Soon, several small wooden boats appeared. The boats carried many people—both young and old, men and women. All of them were equipped with blades.

On one of the wooden boats, Li Huowang saw the captain who had just disappeared.

He was holding a short dagger. When he saw Li Huowang staring at him, he chuckled. “Hehehe~ Young man, do you want to eat sliced noodles or dumpling soup[1]?”

1. Bandit codes: Sliced noodles = Cut apart. Dumpling soup:

drowned. 🤙

Chapter 71 - Water Bandits

“Water bandits,” Li Huowang instantly recognized their identity.

This was a trap! They had gathered everyone in one place with the intention to rob them!

“Hoh, looks like they are all simple people,” Li Huowang mumbled as he observed them. He realized that not only were there young men among the bandits, but also elderly, women, and children. It was apparent that it was a family business.

Siu~

An arrow shot over and landed on the wooden boat, causing the rest of the passengers to start panicking.

“Everyone, throw all your belongings and jewelry toward us, and we will spare you. We are all good people who rob the rich and help the poor, so you have our word that we will not harm you. But if you dare to hide even a single coin, hehe~ We will let you choose whether you want to eat some sliced noodles or dumpling soup,” shouted the captain.

Hearing his threat, the passengers became even more panicked and started moving; many of them threw their belongings into the water.

They might have been able to escape if they had encountered bandits on land, but now that they were in the middle of a lake, there was nothing they could do. Even if they were to jump into the water, they would not be able to outswim them.

Li Huowang stared at the boats that surrounded them and stepped forward before addressing the captain, “My friend, just take us all to the shore, and I will pretend nothing had happened here.”

The captain furrowed his brows as he re-evaluated Li Huowang. Then, he spoke with a haughty attitude, “Shoulders together, throw me a vine? [1]” “Speak properly and take us to the shore,” said Li Huowang, his irritation growing.

“Ai! Look! To think he’s just some amateur! He probably hasn’t even grown hair down there! Hahaha!” laughed the captain.

“Hahaha!” The other bandits joined in as well.

“Brat, do you think you are some hot shit just because you are a Daoist? I’ve killed many of your kind before! Let me tell you something: this lake is the territory of my Yuan family. If you are a dragon, then make sure you are prepared to kneel here! If you are a tiger, then make sure you are prepared to sit! Even if the Heavenly Sovereign were to come here, he too would have to pay us a fee!” said the captain.

Meanwhile, the rest of the bandits clapped and whistled loudly, applauding the captain for his words. Some of them were already discussing how to distribute the riches they would get.

“Dad! I want that white-haired lady as my bride! She looks so pretty!” said one of the young bandits.

“Oh Heavens no! You can play with her, but you cannot marry her. I don’t want my grandchildren to end up looking like her,” said one of the slightly older bandits.

“Then, you can play with her first. After you are done, you can give her to me,” replied the young bandit.

“Hahaha! My son is quite filial!” chuckled the older bandit.

Ding ding ding!~

At that moment, the piercing sound of a bell caused the water around them to ripple strongly.

Li Huowang's eyes were filled with killing intent as he grabbed a fistful of dirt and stuffed it into his mouth before shouting out his orders in a fit of rage.

In response, a Wandering God materialized and swiftly attacked the water bandits on their boat.

Faced with this mysterious entity, the water bandits used their arrows and blades to attack it to no avail. Anyone pierced by the Wandering God was instantly killed as they fell into the water.

In just a short moment, tens of corpses were floating on the surface of the lake.

At that moment, the water bandits finally realized that they had encountered a tough opponent. They decided to dive into the water to escape.

“Senior Li! Water is starting to fill the boat! They are drilling the base of the boat!” shouted one of the assistants.

Hearing this, Li Huowang used his finger to signal the Wandering God, commanding it to dive into the water.

Soon, a few half-naked men floated upward. They were already dead.

Thanks to the distraction, the other water bandits managed to escape, abandoning their boats and the corpses floating on the surface of the lake.

The water bandits were gone, but it was not the end of their troubles.

“Quickly bail the water out! Use your clothes to block the holes!” Li Huowang instructed everyone.

They were in the middle of the lake. If the boat happened to sink, then not even the Wandering God would be able to save them.

After some time, they finally managed to block all of the holes.

Li Huowang was just about to relax when Bai Lingmiao tugged at his sleeves before pointing toward the reeds.

Beneath the red light of the setting sun, many more boats had appeared among the field of reeds. When those on the boats saw the bodies floating on the surface of the water, they began crying, their eyes turning red.

An old hunchbacked man with a white beard was being supported by the captain as they stood at the front. Soon, his trembling but ancient voice spread out across the lake, “Senior! You just took the lives of tens of Yuan family members. If you had just told us your great name, we would not have dared to stop you. Or were you just displeased today and wanted to kill someone?”

Li Huowang didn’t bother paying attention to him. He turned around and asked if anyone from their group could swim; they had to fetch the bamboo pole that was floating further away. After all, they still needed to sail the boat. It was not practical to stop the boat in the middle of the water, especially when it was almost night.

Meanwhile, the old man continued in a voice filled with sadness and anger, “Since it has already come to this, it’s useless to talk anymore. While our lives can be considered cheap and worthless, you won’t be able to leave easily, especially not after killing so many of us!”

The old man’s threat immediately caught Li Huowang’s attention. But the gradually darkening sky made it hard for him to see anything properly.

“Which one of you has good eyesight? Help me see what the fuck they are doing,” ordered Li Huowang. He didn’t dare let his guard down in this damned place and wanted to be cautious.

Just then, the one-armed guy squinted his eyes to see what was happening. After a while, he told them what he saw. “They are... kneeling, almost as if they are praying to something. Looks like it's pretty serious since they are using a pig, a cow, and a goat as sacrifices. Aiya! Heavens above! That old man just threw two babies into the water!”

Hearing that, Li Huowang immediately realized that they were in danger and shook the bell. Regardless of what the water bandits were planning, it would definitely not be something good for Li Huowang's group—he couldn't care about losing three months of his lifespan at this moment.

Following Li Huowang's command, the Wandering God quickly flew toward the water bandits but returned halfway back. Just as it was returning, Li Huowang felt the entire boat shake violently as the wood started creaking dangerously.

“Something is in the water!” exclaimed Li Huowang.

Boom!

A large explosion rang out as a great force launched the entire boat into the air before crashing down onto the lake.

The boat was quite old and couldn't withstand the impact of the landing, causing it to break.

Li Huowang fell into the lake, the cold water around him immediately causing him to tense up as he opened his eyes wide.

Within the dark and muddy waters, something was moving, wriggling around.

Sua!

At that moment, seven eyes opened right in front of Li Huowang, reflecting different colors of light as they constantly changed their form.

1. Jianghu Codeword: Shoulders together = Are you a friend?
Throw me a vine = What's your surname. 🤔

Chapter 72 - Dragon Gate Village

What... What is that?

As he gazed into those eyes, Li Huowang suddenly felt his thoughts turn slower as his surroundings grew bizarre—rather than drowning in the water, he felt as though he was floating in the sky.

Meanwhile, the mud at the bottom of the lake shifted, turning the water even murkier. As the mud rose up, the dark figure with its seven shifting eyes moved as well.

By the time the mud enveloped Li Huowang completely, he saw a decaying maw that was even larger than a mountain. Within that maw, there were an uncountable number of hooks and tentacles.

No... not like this.

Li Huowang used all his strength to unsheathe his sword.

Just as he was about to slit his own neck, the tentacles wrapped around him and the hooks dug into Li Huowang's flesh, dragging him into the bloody maw.

Meanwhile, Yuan Er looked at the bubbling lake as well as the drowning passengers while standing on the small boat before nervously glancing at the old man he was supporting with his arms.

"Great-grandfather, let's go home. Given that we had help from the Lord of the River, they are as good as dead," said Yuan Er.

The old man stared coldly at him before shaking him off. "Return to our village!"

Hearing the anger within his voice, Yuan Er started panicking, but there was nothing he could do. Immediately, he placed two fingers into his mouth and blew the whistle to signal a retreat.

The small boats quickly retreated into the dense field of reeds.

The entire field of reeds was quite massive, forming a natural maze. But given that the Yuan family's people grew up here, they were very familiar with the area.

After taking quite a few twists and turns through the field of reeds, the boats finally docked at a small island made from reeds being woven together. This was the Yuan family's home.

The island was made entirely using reeds, including the small huts built on top of it.

Yuan Er had long since gotten used to the incredible view of this place, and wasn't really affected by it. Instead, he was worried about something else.

When he saw his great-grandfather getting down from the boat with his walking stick and entering one of the huts without a word, Yuan Er could only clench his teeth and follow him inside.

The other members of the Yuan family saw what was happening and quietly followed them as well. The atmosphere was somewhat heavy.

The huts here appeared small from the outside but were surprisingly spacious on the inside; there was even a place dedicated to rear pigs and ducks inside them.

Yuan Er followed his great-grandfather into a large hall with massive fish bones serving as supporting pillars.

Candles lit up the room. In the middle of the hall was a beautiful ink painting depicting a carp swimming up a waterfall. Below the painting were five memorial tablets.

This was the Yuan family's ancestral hall.

"Kneel down to the River Lord and to our ancestors!" shouted the old man.

Yuan Er's expression was serious as his knees buckled and he immediately kneeled down, kowtowing to the memorial tablets three times. Currently, he was not the arrogant captain of the boat, but a simple youngster awaiting punishment from his elders after committing a serious error.

The old man circled him a few times before lifting his cane and whacking it hard on Yuan Er's back and head.

Under the immense force, Yuan Er's head was soon bleeding as bruises appeared all over his body. However, despite the pain, Yuan Er just clenched his teeth hard, not daring to move.

Only after he saw that the old man was tired did Yuan Er make a move. The old man was panting while leaning on his cane. Yuan Er kowtowed to him. "Great-grandfather, I have committed a grave error."

"What did you do wrong?" asked the old man while glaring at him angrily.

"I was too careless. I did not probe their true strength before springing the trap. Because of that, I failed to realize that there was someone strong in there, causing tens of brothers as well as the nephew and niece to die because of me." replied Yuan Er.

"Hmph! So you do know what you did wrong!" The old man's anger dissipated a little.

Yuan Er struggled for a bit before he said reluctantly, "I already said the code word meant to probe who the Daoist was, but that brat did not give the appropriate reply!"

Splat!

Suddenly, the old man's cane was shoved inside Yuan Er's left eye, destroying it.

"AAAAAH!" Yuan Er held the left side of his face in pain as he rolled on the ground. But he recovered soon enough before continuing to kneel and kowtow toward the old man.

Looking at the youth in front of him, the old man sighed, his face filled with worry.

"Junior, don't think that you are suddenly above the Heavens and the Earth when you only conducted a successful raid a few times. While it may seem like we do not have any worries or troubles, it's not easy to do this job for very long. We have to observe carefully and act swiftly! Originally, I had wanted you to take on the mantle and continue our family work. But to think that not only did you make such a big mistake, you are even blaming others for your mistakes. I'm afraid that I may no longer trust you with this important job," said the old man.

Yuan Er panicked when he heard that. Disregarding his pain, he pleaded, "Great-grandfather! I'm sorry! I really regret my mistake! I won't make the same kind of mistake ever again! If I make such a mistake again, then I will personally squish my other eye and blind myself! I promise!"

"You think you could pay for the lives of tens of people with just a single one of your eyeballs? Stop dreaming!" shouted the old man. Then, the old man waved his hands.

There were many people spectating the entire scene from outside the hut, and two of them walked in with a plate as soon as the old man waved his hand. The plate was filled with various bizarre white fish bones.

"You need to be punished for making a mistake. There are rules that everyone below the Heavens must follow, and the Yuan family is no exception. If you can endure and successfully undergo the trial of leaping through the Dragon's Gate, then this matter will be forgiven and you can inherit the household. If you can't, then I will make sure to give you a proper burial," said the old man.

Staring at the bizarre fish bones, Yuan Er started trembling. However, all his desire to escape dispersed when he saw his great-grandfather standing beside him.

The curved bones slowly pierced his skin and tore through his flesh before finally coming into contact with his bones.

Just as Yuan Er clenched his teeth and prepared himself to endure the torture, someone shouted in front of the door. "Great-grandfather! Something is happening! Come, quick! The water in the lake is turning red!”

When everyone reached the edge of the island, they were shocked by the scene in front of them.

The lake water had been dyed a dark crimson color while a bizarre stench filled the air.

At that moment, all the villagers looked at the lynchpin of the village, the great-grandfather.

Meanwhile, the old man’s expression changed quite quickly as he waved his right hand. “Light up the incense!”

Soon, the incense and the sacrifices were ready. A group of people kneeled near the shore of the lake and kowtowed continuously toward the now crimson lake.

Seeing that the color of the lake was not reverting to its original color, the old man steeled his heart as he turned around and walked toward a group of ladies holding their babies.

The babies were wearing new clothes while their hair had been tied into cones with red strings.

The old man took a brush and dipped it in cinnabar before lightly using the brush to make a small red dot on two of the babies.

The two babies were unaware of what was happening and laughed.

The old man gently patted their heads and took a deep breath. He closed his eyes; he couldn’t bear to see what was about to happen next.

“Go,” he said.

Hearing this, two men took the babies that weren’t even three years old from the sobbing ladies and walked to the shore of the lake. Just as they reached the shore and were about to drop the babies into the water, they suddenly stopped.

“Hmm?” The old man squinted as he stared at the crimson lake water. Something was coming up.

Then, under everyone's shocked eyes, a completely soaked Daoist walked onto the shore with his head hung low. Something was stuck in his neck.

The old man took a closer look and saw that there was a sword tied to Li Huowang's neck with a piece of reed!

Chapter 73 - Murder

“Impossible! This is impossible! How could he still be alive?!” Yuan Er shouted uncontrollably upon seeing the man walking out from the water. No one had ever survived against the River Lord, but today they were witnessing the first person ever to do so.

Yuan Er recognized Li Huowang. It was the very same red-robed Daoist who had killed tens of members of his family!

Before they could even figure out what was happening, the strange Daoist slowly walked up the shore toward them, leaving red footprints on the ground.

“Quick! Kill him quickly! Don’t let him ring that bell!” Yuan Er shouted, panicking. Despite the fact that there was only one enemy and that they had hundreds of people, Yuan Er had a strange feeling—he had a feeling that he should run away immediately.

Whoosh whoosh whoosh!

Several arrows shot toward the man, but none of them managed to hit him.

Shriak!

Then, Li Huowang tore a man’s body in half right in front of their very eyes.

The water bandits had originally intended to surround Li Huowang and attack him, but then, the bloody scene unfolding in front of them caused their blood to run cold.

It was Hell.

They felt as if they had been thrown down to the eighteenth layer of Hell as the anger in their eyes was replaced with terror.

Amidst their terror, they forgot everything and started running away, their legs trembling. All of them ignored Yuan Er’s command and ran for their lives. They were utterly terrified.

On the other hand, as soon as they all lost their will to fight and turned their backs toward Li Huowang, a massacre was unleashed on the reed island.

“Great-grandfather! Quick! Think of something!” Yuan Er shouted as he saw his own siblings being torn apart, failing to comprehend what was happening.

It was only at this moment that he understood what a terrifying person he had angered.

Meanwhile, the previously dignified old man was panicking as well. He quickly brought his palms together and started chanting something toward the dark red lake.

He didn’t have to chant for long before he saw a massive chunk of flesh float up to the surface. Seeing that chunk of flesh, the old man’s vision went black, and he almost fell over from shock.

The River Lord that his ancestors had prayed to for so long was killed by the Daoist!

Meanwhile, Yuan Er’s heart shivered as he saw what was happening. He immediately carried his great-grandfather on his back and ran toward one of the huts.

Hearing the screams coming from behind him, Yuan Er ignored them and entered the hut.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang stood in his place as he saw Dan Yangzi killing the water bandits one by one. Every time Dan Yangzi killed someone, his vision turned an even deeper shade of red, until it was so red that he couldn’t even see where he was.

Initially, Li Huowang didn’t want to stop Dan Yangzi, but when he saw that Dan Yangzi did not stop and just picked another person up, Li Huowang finally snapped out of his reverie.

“Stop! Stop the killing!” shouted Li Huowang.

Just as he heard this scream, Dan Yangzi grabbed a man with a dot of cinnabar on his forehead before slowly turning around, his bloodied face revealing a wicked smile. “Why should I, my dear disciple?”

Li Huowang wanted to say something, but when he turned back to look at the lake shrouded in darkness as well as his missing companions, he found that he had no reason to tell him to stop.

The pain in his heart swallowed him as he grasped his head and screamed, “WHY?! Why can they kill the people by my side, but I can’t kill them?!”

By the time Li Huowang snapped back, Dan Yangzi had already disappeared. At the same time, he was now standing where Dan Yangzi had just been.

In front of him was a fat woman who was crying in despair as she held a man with a half-shriveled head; it seemed that he was her husband.

“Kill her! You either don’t kill or kill everyone!” A voice exploded right beside his ear.

Hearing those words, Li Huowang’s eyes twitched as he slowly pulled out the sword stuck in his neck.

With a single swing, the woman became still, her crying stopped.

The moment he killed her, Li Huowang felt a special feeling rush from the base of his spine and into his skull.

That feeling replaced the despair and the pain in his heart.

“He... Hehe...” Li Huowang held onto his sword, failing to suppress his maniacal laughter from leaking out. Then, he slowly walked deeper into the village.

Soon, the entire village was drenched in a rain of blood.

People’s heads were torn off their bodies while the corpses grew cold.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang continued to laugh—the more he killed, the louder he laughed.

The sound of metal tearing into flesh continued as the dark yellow surface of the island was slowly dyed red.

By the time the sun had completely set, the sounds of crying could no longer be heard on the reed island.

Within the ancestral hall, the bloody Li Huowang held his blood-stained sword and slowly walked toward a skinny youth.

There were no other voices. The youth in front of him was probably the last member of the Yuan family on the reed island.

As the youth stared at the man who slaughtered his family, he completely broke down; his pants were stained with urine as he wildly waved his hands in front of himself while mumbling something.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang raised his sword slowly.

However, just as he was about to swing it, he heard a familiar voice.

He woodenly turned his body and saw the drenched Bai Lingmiao. Standing at the door, she was shivering while holding onto a glowing stone.

When he saw her, his murderous intent and the weird feeling in his brain disappeared like a receding tide. He asked, "You are still alive?"

Only when he spoke those words did Li Huowang realize that his usual voice had been replaced by a harsh and gritty tone. His vocal cords had been damaged by the sword.

"I know how to swim. When I was younger, there was a small pond in front of my village where I used to swim," explained Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang walked toward Bai Lingmiao with his sword in his hand, took off his bloody Daoist robe, and covered her with it.

At that moment, Li Huowang felt his senses clear up, as if he had just woken up. He stared at his surroundings blankly, taking in all of the dead bodies.

Regardless of age or gender, everyone had died at his hands.

There were mothers hugging their daughters, and cradles devoid of life.

At that moment, a sense of guilt surged into his heart, almost suffocating him.

Li Huowang picked up a dagger from the floor, clenched his teeth, and stabbed his palm forcefully.

He had never understood why Hu Jie, his neighboring patient in the mental hospital, tried to commit self-mutilation, but he had a feeling that now, he understood Hu Jie's reasons to some extent.

Chapter 74 - Death

“Senior Li! What are you doing!” Bai Lingmiao shouted as she ran over worriedly upon seeing Li Huowang attempting to harm himself. She held his bleeding left hand.

Li Huowang was in pain, but he pushed her away. His eyes were red as he shouted from the depths of his heart, “Why can’t you remain quiet?! Why do all these things happen to me in this shitty place?!”

He pulled out the dagger before stabbing it once again, this time piercing straight through his palm.

Bai Lingmiao was shocked by his behavior. After a few seconds, she rushed over, pulled the dagger out from Li Huowang’s palm, and threw it far away. Then, she extended both her arms and hugged the man in front of her tightly. “Huowang! Please stop it! I beg you!”

Hearing her voice, Li Huowang immediately grew quiet. Then, he gently closed his quivering eyelids and embraced her soft body, slowly calming down.

After a while, he gently let go of her and stared at her, sighing deeply. “Alright, I’m fine now. Where are the rest of our people? Did you see any of them?”

Hearing his words, Bai Lingmiao nodded. Her eyes were slightly red as she led Li Huowang toward the edge of the island.

Soon, they spotted the rest of the guiding drug ingredients and assistants near the shore.

Originally, their group consisted of seven adults and five children, but now, only six adults and four children could be seen on the shore. Also, some of them were already dead by the time they were pulled up onto the shore.

Bai Lingmiao's lips were purple, and she shivered from the cold as she spoke in a chilly voice, "Junior Sun is a better swimmer than me. We pulled out as many people as we could from the lake, but we still lost some of them. Even Simpleton drowned."

Li Huowang looked at the people lying in front of him. Simpleton's face was purple from asphyxiation. He was not the only one who had drowned; another guiding drug ingredient and one of the assistants had the same look on their faces as well.

Two people were still missing within the lake, while three had drowned. In just a single moment, their group of twelve had dwindled to seven.

Li Huowang might not have been very close to them, but they were still his comrades from his time at the Zephyr Temple. Often, while they were all resting on their journey, he would listen to them talk about reuniting with their families if they managed to return to their homes.

But now, all that seemed worthless. They had died.

Li Huowang's face was gloomy when he walked closer to the shoreline. At the same time, looking at his drowned comrades, all the guilt in his heart disappeared.

Bam!

Li Huowang kicked a bloody head out of spite as he shouted, "FUCK!"

He felt like he was crazy! To think that he had just been pitying these murderers!

Now, Li Huowang desperately wanted the water bandits to come back to life just so he could kill them all over again!

These fuckers deserved to die! Their entire lineage should be wiped out!

Just as Li Huowang's emotions were going through a massive upheaval, one of the guiding drug ingredients who usually kept a low profile walked up to him. His voice was filled with guilt as he said, “Senior Li, I wanted to pull Simpleton out, but he was too heavy for me and I couldn’t do it.”

Li Huowang recognized him. It was Sun Baolu, the one Bai Lingmiao had mentioned was a better swimmer.

Looking at his soaked clothes, Li Huowang furrowed his brow and said, “Let’s go inside one of the huts and start a fire. There’s no need to linger around here.”

There was nothing else to be said. They were the only survivors left, and he couldn’t let them die from hypothermia.

Some of them carried the bodies of their fallen companions as they all slowly made their way into the village.

The entire village was covered in blood, flesh, bones, and viscera. Dark red blood flowed everywhere, causing the ground to feel sticky to walk on.

Everyone was looking at their surroundings and had many questions, but Li Huowang had no desire to explain anything.

At that moment, they turned a corner among the huts, and Bai Lingmiao was shocked as she instinctively hid herself behind Li Huowang.

The one in front of them was none other than that of the great-grandfather of the Yuan family, or at least what was left of him. He was impaled on a bamboo rod, his eyes unresigned.

Did I impale him here? When the heck did I do so?

Li Huowang tried to remember but nothing came to mind; there had been far too many deaths here.

After navigating through the village for a while, they stumbled upon a communal kitchen. They removed the pots from the fireplace and threw in some firewood before lighting it up. Then, the remaining survivors huddled near the fire as they tried to ward off the chill inside their bodies.

However, Li Huowang did not go near the fireplace. Instead, he stood in a corner of the communal kitchen and silently stared at the purple faces of those who had drowned, looking at them one by one.

His gaze finally stopped on Simpleton's face. Li Huowang had never imagined that even the loyal Simpleton would end up dead. He was simple and straightforward, to the extent that even the assistants, who were mere children, were more mature than him.

"I shouldn't have called you Simpleton. At the very least, I should've given you a proper name. That way, at least your gravestone would look much better," Li Huowang stared at Simpleton's corpse and mumbled to himself.

However, just as he said that, Simpleton suddenly opened his eyes even though his entire body had already turned purple and rigid.

"The corpse reanimated itself!" Li Huowang was surprised and jumped backward as he drew his sword.

At the same time, everyone else also took out their own weapons when they saw this scene.

Then, Simpleton opened his mouth in a daze, and began to vomit. "Blegh~"

Foul smelling black mud and lake water was being expelled from his lungs and his stomach. Once he had vomited all of it out, he laid sideways and panted heavily, color gradually returning to his face.

"Heavens! Senior Li! You can revive people?! How did you do it?" Puppy was overjoyed as he helped Simpleton up.

However, Li Huowang paid him no mind and focused his attention to try and resuscitate the others who had drowned.

Maybe they are also alive, and are simply unconscious, just like Simpleton!

Unfortunately, Simpleton was the only one who was still alive. Li Huowang worked as hard as he could, but the others continued to remain dead.

Regardless, Simpleton coming back to life after going through all that was excellent news. Everyone huddled around him and asked him if he was alright.

The atmosphere in the communal kitchen was no longer as heavy as it had been.

In the face of everyone's sympathy, Simpleton remained quiet for a long time before spouting out a few words. "I'm... I'm... I'm hungry!"

"Hungry? Hell yeah! Let's eat some meat! When we just entered the village, I saw that they were rearing pigs! Let's go kill one!" Puppy took the meat cleaver and ran out.

After a moment, a metal pot was once again placed on the fireplace. After the water was boiled, large pieces of pork were thrown into the pot. As Xiaoman threw in some salt, the fragrant scent of meat filled the kitchen.

After going through so much, Simpleton was not the only hungry one.

Li Huowang used his sword to pick up a big and fatty piece of meat, munching on it like it was a fruit.

As he ate, Li Huowang was thinking about something.

This is a very large water bandit settlement. There's no way that their riches only include some pigs.

Chapter 75 - Warehouse

Both our donkey carts and the rest of our belongings are now at the bottom of the lake. We have to gather the money needed for our travels from this village.

Li Huowang planned what they had to do next as he observed the meat boiling in the pot.

No matter what had happened, it was all in the past now. He needed to let go of it and plan for the future.

The most important issue he had to deal with right now was to find the things that they needed from the village and leave with his group.

And I need to be fast. We cannot stay here for too long. After all, the only thing worse than a village filled with corpses is a village filled with decomposing corpses. A dead person might not be able to move, but they could end up killing someone in a different manner.

Li Huowang opened his mouth and chomped on a piece of meat at the end of his sword. Then, he looked at his companions who were eating voraciously and said, "Eaten enough yet? We have work to do once you have all eaten your fill."

After they had dried their clothes, they followed Li Huowang out of the communal kitchen as they held the meat and continued eating.

Li Huowang did not wander around the village like a headless fly. Instead, he walked straight to the ancestral hall of the Yuan family. The village was built like a maze, and he needed a guide.

"Don't ... ! Don't kill me!"

The youth that was scared shitless to the point of peeing himself was still hiding inside the hall. Li Huowang pointed his sword and cornered him, the youth's thin face filled with fear.

Li Huowang didn't bother wasting any words on him. "Where do you hide the money you rob from others? Take us there."

"Warehouse! It's all in my great-grandfather's warehouse! We keep all of the money there!" The youth spilled everything he knew instantly. The blood on Li Huowang's robes was still wet. Even the bloody stench coming from Li Huowang was enough to cause the youth to pee himself a little. He was so scared that any and all thoughts of fighting back had evaporated from his mind.

It was already dark, so the group held out their glowing stones to light up the path. They followed the youth as they navigated the village.

Under the dark blue-green glow of the stones, the bloody scene around them looked extremely grotesque. The youth's body trembled at the sight of his surroundings.

At that moment, the youth's body suddenly froze before he kneeled down beside the corpse of a woman and started crying woefully.

Seeing this, Li Huowang walked over and squatted down. He saw that the woman only had half of her face left. She looked young, and her eyes filled with terror and despair.

"Who is she?" Li Huowang asked coldly.

"She... she is my wife!" The youth's voice trembled. "I loved her! But now she's dead! Even my parents are dead!"

He cried even more loudly as he thought about how they had died.

Hearing his shrill cries, Li Huowang's expression became ruthless as he swung his right arm.

Shriak!

"AAAAAH!" One of the youth's ears was cut off in an instant as he cried out in pain and despair.

"Guide us! Did I tell you to stop?" Li Huowang roared aggressively.

At that moment, he sensed someone gently tugging at his sleeves, causing Li Huowang to swing his arms in irritation.

“Do you pity him? Do you think he’s some great romantic? Why don’t you ask him where his wife came from?” asked Li Huowang, irritated.

Sensing everyone’s gazes, the youth said awkwardly, “My father got her for me. All the wives in the village were abducted from the outside. Even my grandmother and mother were captured from outside.”

Bai Lingmiao’s mouth fell open in shock as she looked at the corpses of the women around her.

Meanwhile, when the youth saw Li Huowang once again raise his bloody sword, he shivered in fear and hurriedly got up before continuing to show them the way.

Seeing how shocked Bai Lingmiao was, Xiaoman walked to her side and gently placed her hairy hand on Bai Lingmiao’s shoulder before hugging her. “The women of a bandit camp are the same as the rest of the bandits. Don’t think about it too much.”

“But why did they accompany the rest of them to go and rob people? In the first place, they were also captured by them!” Bai Lingmiao was exasperated. She remembered that some of the bandits they encountered earlier had been women.

“Both humans and dogs can be trained,” said one of the guiding drug ingredients.

Hearing this, Li Huowang turned around; however, he couldn’t find out who had said that, causing him to sigh, “Sigh...”

They followed the youth and walked along the twisting paths for a while before arriving at a house whose door was securely locked with a sturdy padlock.

At the same time, their surroundings were no longer filled with buildings made from reeds. Instead, the houses around them were all made of wood.

This must be the most important area of the village.

Jiang!

Sparks flew as Li Huowang sliced the padlock in half. Then, he kicked the door open before grabbing the youth and using him as a shield as he entered the house.

Rather than a house, it would be more appropriate to call it a warehouse. Wooden shelves lined the wall neatly, and rows of wooden boxes sat upon them.

When the youth opened one of the boxes under Li Huowang's instructions, a brilliant glow enveloped the room. It was a box filled with silver pieces.

They opened the boxes one by one. The more they opened, the more shocked they were.

Aside from the silver pieces, there were even boxes filled with gold jewelry. These were most likely taken from the female victims.

There were other types of valuables as well, such as silk, iron ingots, and books. The warehouse was filled with valuables that the bandits had robbed from others over the years.

"Oh my heavens! I've never seen so much money in my life. Just imagine how many wives I can marry with all this money," Looking at the mountains of silver pieces, Puppy's voice shook, his eyes filling up with greed.

On the other hand, Li Huowang was more interested in the books than the money.

He flipped through some of them and realized that they were books to teach others how to read and write, as well as some Buddhist scriptures.

That damned geezer's method to summon the water monster using a pair of boy and girl infants as sacrifices... It doesn't seem like he learned it from the books. Did he learn it orally from his ancestor?

Li Huowang was rummaging through the books when he was stunned by the final book he saw at the bottom of the pile.

He picked up the book and gazed intently at the words on the cover, trying to recall something. “What does it say?”

“Senior Li, should we move everything in the boxes outside? I don’t think we can carry all this,” Bai Lingmiao asked as she walked over.

Li Huowang showed the book in his hand to Bai Lingmiao. “Look at the words on the cover. Do you recognize them?”

Bai Lingmiao was confused. “Senior Li, I’m illiterate.”

Just as she said that, a stuttering voice came from her back.

“Hua... Hua... Huayan Sutra!”

Li Huowang raised his head and saw Simpleton standing behind Bai Lingmiao.

“Are you sure it says Huayan Sutra?” asked Li Huowang.

“Yes!” confirmed Simpleton.

After confirming it, Li Huowang slowly felt the words with his fingers, his eyes filled with uncertainty.

“Is this the character for ‘Yan’? Why... why can’t I even recognize the character for ‘Yan’ now?”

Chapter 76 - Bamboo Slips

I can't let Dan Yangzi come out again.

This was the conclusion Li Huowang arrived at after carefully pondering the series of events that followed each of Dan Yangzi's appearances.

Li Huowang noticed a clear pattern when comparing Dan Yangzi's first appearance when Li Huowang encountered the God of Happiness, his second appearance when Li Huowang was dealing with the Buddhas, and his third appearance from today.

The first time, he could vaguely hear Dan Yangzi's voice.

The second time, he could clearly see his appearance.

And now, during the third time, not only could he interact with Dan Yangzi, but Dan Yangzi could also use his killing intent to control Li Huowang's emotions, and even cause him to not be able to recognize some common words.

No matter what Dan Yangzi had become, his influence on Li Huowang was growing stronger with each appearance.

One thing was clear—Dan Yangzi had never been kind-hearted. Everything he had done was in order to seize Li Huowang's body. While Li Huowang might not die under his protection, it probably would not take long before Li Huowang turned into him completely.

Li Huowang absolutely could not accept that situation—he would rather die than turn into the person he hated the most.

At that moment, a pair of fair-skinned hands stretched out and gently held his right hand.

Frowning, he looked up to see that pair of pink eyes filled with concern and gently shook his head. He did not explain anything.

Then, Li Huowang picked up the Huayan Sutra, opened it to a random page, and scanned it briefly.

This book is useless.

Once Li Huowang came to this conclusion, he casually tossed the Huayan Sutra back into the wooden box.

After looking through its contents, Li Huowang recalled that back in the Righteous Monastery, this was the book recited by different monks—this was just a widely circulated scripture that was probably available in any random bookstore. By comparison, the gold jewelry and the silver pieces were definitely more valuable.

When Li Huowang looked toward all the valuables once again, he saw Puppy and the others excitedly pulling the box full of valuables out of the house. But it could be seen that it was quite laborious; after all, the valuables were made of metal.

“Don’t take the silver pieces. Just take the gold accessories. All that gold will be enough to cover our expenses on the journey,” advised Li Huowang.

Hearing this, Puppy jumped up anxiously. “Senior Li! These are silver pieces! Shiny silver pieces!”

Li Huowang kicked the heavy box with his foot, then said, “Do you know just how heavy these silver pieces are? We still need to take the boat. If the boat capsizes, do you plan to swim with all these silver pieces? All this gold will be enough to feed us for a lifetime. Don’t be too greedy and let’s hurry.”

But Puppy was still reluctant, and started to stuff silver ingots into his clothes. “Then at least let me take some. This silver will be enough to buy a few wives and cows.”

Li Huowang could not be bothered with him. He just took all the gold then turned around to leave with the others.

Meanwhile, Puppy tried to catch up to them but started panting after taking just a few steps. As he saw the rest of them get further and further away, he stamped his foot in frustration, and hastily threw away some of the silver ingots before once again trying to catch up to them.

Just as Li Huowang stepped out of the warehouse and was about to bring the others outside, he paused, then walked toward the kitchen.

Not long after, he emerged again, this time carrying their two fallen brethren's bodies in his hands.

"Go to the village and find a few jars. When we go out, cremate them and collect their ashes. Even if we can't bring them back to their families alive, we should at least return their remains," instructed Li Huowang.

"Yes, Senior Li," replied one of the guiding drug ingredients.

Just as they were about to move to find jars, a beam of blood-red light streaked from the side, whistling toward them.

"Dodge!" Li Huowang immediately tensed up and instinctively flung himself backward.

The beam of red light streaked past his chest and easily cut the two dead bodies in half.

Seeing this, Li Huowang was drenched in cold sweat. If it hadn't been for their bodies, he would have been the one cut in half.

"Find cover! There are still others inside the stockade!" shouted Li Huowang.

At the same time, Li Huowang took out the bell with one hand, held his sword in his other hand, and cautiously peeked his head out from behind a large vat. He noticed some blood-stained white fragments in the distance.

What was it that just attacked us?

He soon received the answer to that question.

Dull footsteps sounded, and a person slowly walked out from the shadows.

Xiaoman threw a piece of glowing stone at the new arrival's feet, illuminating his face. They all recognized this person; he was the boat captain from earlier.

This guy's not dead?!

This was the only thought going through everyone's minds, including Li Huowang's.

Meanwhile, blood was flowing out of Yuan Er's mouth as he held a peculiar and reddened bamboo slip in one hand and a black iron plier in the other.

When Li Huowang saw Yuan Er bleeding from the mouth, he immediately realized what those white things were.

"Come out! Come out! Daoist! You also have your moments of weakness, huh!" shouted Yuan Er.

Yuan Er's eyes were bloodshot as he reached the pliers into his mouth, clamped down onto his incisor before yanking it out.

Then, he moved his bloody mouth and chanted something toward the blood-red bamboo slip. As he did that, the tooth was rapidly enveloped by a bloody mist before shooting into a room beside him like a shooting star.

Xiaoman's cries rang out from within, making Li Huowang's heart skip a beat.

Ring ring ring!

The clanging sound of the bell rang out, and two Wandering Gods appeared as they flew straight toward Yuan Er while staying close to the ground.

"Pah!" Yuan Er once again spat out a large mouthful of blood toward the ground and raised the pliers in his hand. However, this time, he did not try to yank out his teeth; instead, he stabbed it straight into his one remaining eye.

With a pop, his eyeball burst, and a strange light started to envelope the surroundings, causing the two Wandering Gods to fall to the ground. It was almost as if they were stuck to the ground.

"Die! All of you, die!" After hollering loudly, Yuan Er took out a small knife from his waist and stabbed it into his own throat.

Despite the extreme pain causing his entire body to shudder, he mutilated himself, cutting off pieces of his own flesh.

At that moment, the bell rang out once again, causing a dozen Wandering Gods to converge from all directions as they sped toward Yuan Er.

However, when Yuan Er placed the pieces of his sliced-up flesh onto the bamboo slip in his hand, all the Wandering Gods around them vanished.

At the same time, when Yuan Er's sliced-up flesh was rolled up within the bamboo slip, that inanimate object suddenly came to life.

Then, the bamboo slip began to speak in a duck-like voice using Yuan Er's tongue and vocal cords as its own.

When this strange duck-like voice rang out, there was a sudden change in the surroundings.

"A tongue to turn the wheel of reincarnation! An eyelash for the boundless universe! Words cannot describe the intricacies of the realm! The sinister Heavens reveal what was hidden! My Master, the highest authority! Who dares disturb it?!"

Chapter 77 - Ba-Hui

“A tongue to turn the wheel of reincarnation! An eyelash for the boundless universe! Words cannot describe the intricacies of the realm! The sinister Heavens reveal what was hidden! My Master, the highest authority! Who dares disturb it?!”

As the wooden bamboo slip used Yuan Er’s human tongue to speak these words, everything around them started to distort. Everyone on the island felt their five senses undergo some sort of change simultaneously.

Sight, taste, smell, hearing—they all gradually morphed together into a novel sensation that went beyond ordinary human understanding.

Through this extraordinarily peculiar sensation, Li Huowang and the others transcended the boundaries of human perception.

In the deepest parts of the sky, within an unfathomable expanse of the dark abyss, there were countless realms that were even deeper and darker, their suns revolving. Something could be seen moving within.

At that moment, Li Huowang smelled a gaze being shot from that thing and felt a terrifying aura that made him shudder uncontrollably. He also saw a strange melody being produced when that thing moved even the slightest bit.

Boom~ Boom Boom~ Boom!

Though Li Huowang had a feeling that the thing was extremely far from himself, its melody was so entrancing and clear. He could not find a real-life equivalent of this melody. The only thing that even came close was the sound of thunder that had preceded the appearance of the God of Happiness.

But this thing was way stronger than the God of Happiness. By comparison, the God of Happiness was so weak that it was like comparing a grain of sand to a mountain.

This conclusion came to Li Huowang almost reflexively, as if he did not even need to understand his senses or what that thing was.

Should I attempt to commit suicide to let Dan Yangzi out? No! Dan Yangzi is nothing compared to this thing! The difference between them is too great!

Li Huowang was filled with despair when he thought up to this point.

An ordinary person had no ability to resist before that thing.

Just as Li Huowang had lost all hope and was waiting for his death, his five morphed and distorted senses inexplicably returned to normal.

“Eh?”

Before Li Huowang could understand what was going on, he gathered his strength and decisively grabbed his sword before quickly dashing toward Yuan Er.

Presently, Yuan Er was completely blind in both eyes and was barely breathing. The only movement he made was a turn of his head before it was completely severed by Li Huowang’s sword.

The moment Yuan Er’s severed head landed on the ground, everything around them returned to normal.

Li Huowang stood there, panting with his sword in his hand. Still shaken, he was looking up at the dark sky.

It was gone now, almost as if everything from before had been an illusion.

But Li Huowang knew that it hadn’t been an illusion; that thing truly existed.

He attempted to remember and piece together the things he had experienced and felt, but realized that he couldn’t recall the sensation of that thing with his current senses.

Despite the fact that danger had passed, the island fell into an eerie silence.

Everyone was frozen in their spots, their eyes filled with fear. They too had seen the thing that Li Huowang saw. Their faces were deathly pale, and their bodies began to shake involuntarily. They all felt extremely cold—as if an icy chill had gripped their hearts.

That's it? Yuan Er gave his all just to try and scare us?

As he looked at the others who were unharmed, a trace of doubt arose within Li Huowang's heart. Oddly, the currently safe environment made him feel even more uneasy.

Li Huowang took a deep breath, then used his bloody sword to open the blood-red bamboo slip that had curled up. He found that the pieces of flesh inside it had all withered into black powder.

Li Huowang knelt down cautiously and began to examine the contents of the red bamboo slip.

The black words carved on the red bamboo slip were very small and seemed very strange. He had not seen these words before. But when he focused, he found that he could actually make out what they said.

"White pill... Precious dew... Swallow abdomen... Pluck bones..." muttered Li Huowang.

This was an extremely evil bamboo slip that recorded various methods of using extreme pain and other sacrifices to trade for something with an entity.

The easier methods involved inserting bamboo pieces under one's fingernails and prying them upward, using the leverage to pull out an entire fingernail.

One of the more severe methods involved chewing on a bunch of rusty iron shards and swallowing them.

As he read further, he saw that they even taught the reader how to sacrifice the flesh and bones of one's own blood relatives, using them to make transactions with some entities.

The more he read, the more gruesome and horrifying the methods grew; it was almost to the point that they went beyond Li Huowang's tolerance. By the time he finished reading half the bamboo slip's contents, Li Huowang could not stop himself from vomiting.

All the pork from before was vomited. However, despite his deathly pale face, he endured his nausea, gritted his teeth, and continued reading.

He would not be at ease if he failed to find out what Yuan Er had been trying to do. After all, if he placed some sort of curse on them, there would be quite a lot of trouble.

He continued to read while suppressing his disgust before finally finding the method that Yuan Er had been trying to use.

It was the fourth-to-last method on the bamboo slip.

Yuan Er hadn't just been trying to scare us. He wanted to summon something over but failed.

Ba-Hui.

That was the name of the thing that Yuan Er wanted to summon, and it was said to be the source of all types of suffering mentioned on this bamboo slip.

Yuan Er had failed in summoning it—he could not pay the price of summoning it.

As per the requirements written on the bamboo slip, it could be said that while his body was in extreme pain, his inner suffering was still not enough, even though his entire family had just died.

Summoning Ba-Hui required the utmost physical and mental agony.

Li Huowang turned around to glance at Yuan Er's head, which was missing eyes and teeth. It seemed that he had just recently learned about the usage of this bamboo slip and was not yet proficient with using it.

But this was normal. Each method on the bamboo slip would bring the user closer to death, and one would probably not be able to live long enough to become proficient in it.

Despite the immediate danger having passed, Li Huowang was still not at ease. He did not care where the bandits had obtained this disgusting bamboo slip. What made him more concerned was who had written it.

Could there be another sect similar to the Righteous Monastery?

Unlike the monks who practiced techniques related to the flesh and blood, could it be that this sect cultivates techniques related to the ultimate suffering?

But if they practiced such techniques according to the contents written on the bamboo slip, there probably wouldn't be many survivors left.

Unless... their sect has some method to undergo all the suffering without dying.

Li Huowang began to wildly conjecture as he continued to look at the bamboo slip.

At this point, Li Huowang came to understand that despite his darkest suspicions about this place, he had still been too optimistic.

This place was much more dangerous than he had ever imagined. He already knew about unique existences like the Immortal families and the God of Happiness.

But today's experience was quite an eye-opener for him. He realized that there were some far more terrifying things out there.

Dazed, Li Huowang mumbled to himself. "Ba-Hui..."

Chapter 78 - The Aftermath

Along the shore of the island made of reeds, Li Huowang stood, holding the blood-red, foul-smelling bamboo slip.

Meanwhile, the others stood nearby with pale faces, huddled together as they looked at him. They had not yet recovered from the shock they had just experienced.

Li Huowang's expression was conflicted.

He could simply toss this nauseating bamboo slip into the muddy lake, never allowing it to see the light of day again.

This seemed like an excellent choice. No matter who wrote this bamboo slip, Ba-Hui's powers were not borrowed so easily, and leaving it in this world would only bring endless suffering to others.

However, after pondering for a long time, Li Huowang placed the blood-stained bamboo slip inside his clothes.

While the various methods recorded on the bamboo slip were incredibly gruesome, they were also very effective. If even a common bandit like Yuan Er could use it, then it would probably be possible for himself as well.

There was no harm in being prepared. He might even be able to make use of it in some extreme situation. After all, if he did not want to completely turn into Dan Yangzi, then he had to find another alternative for when he faced danger in the future, even if the price to pay was very high.

Li Huowang turned back to look at the others. "Bring the boat over, load up the gold, and the dead bodies of our two brethren. Let's leave this wretched place."

Their troubles had been unexpectedly resolved, and they had no need to continue staying in this place filled with corpses.

Sun Baolu was quite capable and managed to push the boats used by the bandits for pillaging ashore. Meanwhile, the rest of them carried the bodies of their fallen comrades and the gold jewelry and loaded up the boats.

“Board the boat with us, row the oars, and take us to the other side of this lake,” said Li Huowang, looking menacingly at the youth before him.

“Can... can you spare my life if I bring you out?” The terrified youth stuttered. However, when he saw Li Huowang reaching for the hilt of the sword on his back, the youth scrambled onto the boat in fear.

The youth rowed the oars, turning the boat toward the dense field of reeds. At the same time, the others also began to clumsily row the boat.

It was very quiet within the dense field of reeds. No one made any sound apart from the rhythmic splash of oars in the water. The recent events had left everyone feeling unsettled.

“Lo... Lord, I’m Yuan Fu,” the youth rowing the oars suddenly spoke.

Li Huowang frowned but did not reply. His eagle-like eyes continued scanning the pitch-black surroundings.

“Lord, I know that it’s not a good thing to kill and loot on the waters. I never joined my dad when he engaged in those activities,” the nervous youth tried to explain. “Actually, I want to go to the capital to take the examination and become a government official; I’m already fed up with this place. Lord, where are you going? I’m very familiar with this area and can lead the way for you.”

This finally caught Li Huowang’s attention, and he looked down at the youth rowing the boat. “How much do you know about the Nunnery at Henghua Mountain?”

This was their next destination, and there was a chance that he could learn something about it. After all, Henghua Mountain should not be too far away from this lake.

“Nunnery? I know about it. I met the nuns there once when I was working with my older brother and we were about to finish a deal on the boat. However, at the last moment, my brother decided not to go through with it,” explained the youth. “At that time, he told me this: Based on our great-grandfather’s command, we cannot rob these three groups—black-clothed nuns, bald heads rearing birds, and drum-wielding deities.”

“Is there anything special about how the nuns look?” asked Li Huowang.

“They are very fat. Just one of them is probably three times my weight. Also, they are very lazy. They would rather sit than stand, and would lie down at any given opportunity,” replied Yuan Fu. “Also, they release this extremely dirty and vile stench around them. Once, when one of those nuns took off her shoes, I could smell the stench from the adjacent boat. Lord, are you looking for these nuns? I can show you the way.”

Fat, lazy, smelly. It was quite difficult for him to associate these descriptors with nuns.

Li Zhi said that they could be considered somewhat good people? But does this world even have these so-called good people?

After everything he had been through, Li Huowang had serious doubts about this.

After drifting through the field of reeds for a long time, the vast expanse of the lake once again appeared before them. The small boats reached the shore just as the sun began to rise. They had actually spent an entire night on that island, from dusk till dawn.

When the sunlight illuminated their faces, they were finally able to release the heavy burdens in their hearts. Exhausted from a long night of rowing, they all panted and fell to the ground.

Li Huowang said, “Don’t rest yet. Go to the woods and gather some firewood, and then cremate these three people. Otherwise, they will start to rot.”

The rest of them looked toward their three drowned companions, then mustered their strength to stand up before walking toward the nearby forest.

However, Li Huowang stopped Xiaoman, who was clutching her arm. There was a large region on her right arm that had been torn apart, exposing her bloodied muscles to the air.

“Are you alright?” Li Huowang took out a pill from his waist and handed it to her.

But Xiaoman did not take the pill. “I’m fine. I’m lucky enough just to be able to survive. I’ll just use some wood ash to cover this small wound, and it will be okay.”

Having spent all this time together, Li Huowang had come to understand her unyielding personality and did not push further.

Soon, three large bonfires were built by the shore. Then, Li Huowang carried each of the three corpses and placed them in the flames.

Everyone watched as their companions, who had been alive just yesterday, were gradually engulfed by the flames.

The flames slowly burned out as the sun rose higher in the sky.

Once the flames died out, Li Huowang used his sword to poke through the ashes and broke down some of the larger bones into smaller pieces. Then, he packed the bones together with the ashes inside ceramic urns.

His mood grew more and more depressed as he looked at the ash-filled urns. The events of last night had left his mind in turmoil.

At that moment, Bai Lingmiao, with her eyes already covered, reached out with both hands to gently tug at his sleeves. She had come over upon sensing his unease and was trying to comfort him.

“I’m fine. There’s no need to comfort me,” Li Huowang said as he bent down to pick up the three urns before passing them to Simpleton.

Meanwhile, Yuan Fu was like a loyal dog as he stood beside Li Huowang. “Lord, do you want to rest for a while? If not, I can directly bring you to find the nuns.”

Hearing this, Li Huowang shook off the ashes on his sword, swung it in the direction of the voice, and then resheathed it in a single smooth motion.

“Let’s go,” said Li Huowang.

On the other hand, Yuan Fu’s eyes widened with disbelief as he clutched his bleeding neck. He opened his mouth to try and say something to Li Huowang’s departing figure, but only coughing noises came out.

Finally, he staggered a few steps behind before his body crumbled onto the floor, the life in his eyes slowly dissipating.

Chapter 79 - Market

“From now on, you’ll be called Gao Zhijian,” Li Huowang said to Simpleton, who was carrying a wooden rod.

“I... I... I...”

Li Huowang reached out to press down on Simpleton’s thick finger that was pointing at his own chest. “Don’t go ‘I...’ anymore. Remember, you’re no longer Simpleton. This is your new name. Gao Zhijian. Got it? Aren’t you literate? Break off a tree branch and write it on the floor until you memorize it.”

“Oh...” Simpleton, who had no say in picking his own name, dejectedly turned toward the forest and walked over.

On the other hand, Li Huowang sighed as he looked at that towering figure walking away.

Whatever it is, since I previously said that I will give him a name, then I have to deliver. Let this be his gift for coming back from death’s door.

In fact, Li Huowang had wanted to give Simpleton a name for a long time. After all, calling someone a simpleton and ordering him around like a fool sounded quite bad. It was only that he had not thought of a suitable name until now.

Simpleton was a little lacking in terms of intelligence, so Li Huowang had decided to give him the name, ‘Gao Zhi’ in the hopes that the fellow could find some intelligence from his name. Meanwhile, ‘Jian’ represented Li Huowang’s expectations of him persevering through the difficulties in his difficult life.

“Senior Li! Senior Li! Can you give me a name too? While it doesn’t sound good for him to be called ‘Simpleton’, ‘Puppy’ isn’t much better either,” asked Puppy.

Frowning, Li Huowang turned to look at the shifty-eyed youth beside him. “While he is somewhat slow, are you as well? You’re already so mature, but you still can’t pick a name for yourself?”

Li Huowang turned back toward the bonfire, but Puppy persistently followed behind him. “Ah, Senior Li, you’re literate, so the name you come up with will definitely be better than whatever a cattle-herder like me would be able to come up with. I’m not greedy; just giving me a reputable-sounding name will do. Of course, the greater, the better.”

Li Huowang chuckled, “Ke ke... you want a reputable name? Can you handle ‘Cao Cao’?”

It was evident that Puppy did not understand Li Huowang’s meaning, and excitedly clapped his hands together, leaping with joy. “Alright! Cao Cao is a good name; it sounds quite festive! From now on, I’ll be called Cao Cao!”

Puppy did not wait for Li Huowang to continue, and dashed back toward the crowd, excitedly announcing his new name.

The others naturally did not understand the meaning behind this name either, and just congratulated him.

Witnessing this comical scene, Li Huowang could only shake his head silently.

Li Huowang looked up to see the gradually brightening skies. He said, “Stop dawdling around, and let’s set off. Our aim is to reach the town today. When we get there, we’ll have a good meal. Haven’t you guys had your fill of these wild vegetables these past few days?”

His words made all of them feel invigorated, and they eagerly swallowed their saliva.

Their dry rations and donkey cart had all drowned in the lake. While they had a lot of gold, there was nobody to buy rations from in these remote areas.

Without rations, they could only survive by eating wild vegetables like the old monk from back then. There were quite a few times when the vegetables were not enough for them to even feel full. Due to this, the guiding drug ingredients had become noticeably skinnier. And so, as soon as they heard that they would get proper food, they started moving with renewed vigor. Under the allure of getting to fill their stomachs, they covered a distance which would normally take half a day in just four hours.

A bustling little town sat at the foot of a large mountain peak shrouded within clouds. To a certain extent, it was even a little overly busy. Li Huowang's group went in but could barely find a place to stand.

Li Huowang turned around slightly, sidestepping a shoulder pole, and then quickly raised his right foot to avoid stepping on the chicken droppings on the ground before pressing on toward the sounds of peddling in the distance.

Is this place really so good? Why are there so many people here?

There were many people squatting down on the narrow stone-paved road, both buyers and sellers haggling in loud voices. People were selling things like hand-woven baskets, wild game from the mountains, home-grown vegetables, chickens, dogs, and even tree saplings.

The buyers and sellers were conversing so loudly that Li Huowang felt as though a thousand flies were buzzing around him.

"Senior Li, I, Cao Cao, know the reason! It's the first day of the month, so there's a larger crowd today since everyone from the nearby villages is gathering here," Puppy explained.

Li Huowang nodded. He had forgotten that the people here often gathered at such large markets on the first and fifteenth day of each month, facilitating trade.

Li Huowang suddenly had an urge as he looked at the bustling crowd—he wanted to ring the bronze bell and see how many Wandering Gods there were in this large market.

However, this was just a passing thought. He was not a kid anymore, and he had much more pressing matters to attend to.

Li Huowang gradually moved his gaze from the dense crowd and looked toward the buildings in the distance. Finally, his gaze settled on the towering mountain peak up ahead.

That was Henghua Mountain. The Nunnery at the top of that mountain was Li Huowang's destination. There, he may perhaps be able to get rid of Dan Yangzi, who was gradually eroding away his body.

Li Huowang was just about to set off but saw that the others had stopped before a stall. They were staring intently at the objects displayed. Even the drool hanging from Simpleton's mouth seemed to be hanging longer.

"What's this?" Li Huowang walked over and tapped on the golden-brown round biscuit.

"Senior Li, this is Guokui, a type of flatbread. It can be eaten," said Bai Lingmiao as she tried her best to stop drooling but still failed.

Seeing their eager looks, Li Huowang felt a pang of sadness. At the end of the day, these people were a pitiful and unfortunate group.

Li Huowang took out some of the gold jewelry from Simpleton's bag and used his sharp sword to quickly divide it into small pieces the size of golden beans.

"Buy! Go and buy whatever you want. We have money now, so buy anything you like from this market!" said Li Huowang as he placed the golden beans in the hands of everyone besides Gao Zhijian.

In an instant, everyone's faces became flushed with excitement.

Meanwhile, he watched the nouveau-riche guiding drug ingredients rush to the stalls and buy all sorts of things that they could or couldn't use.

Then, Li Huowang turned to Gao Zhijian who was munching on the flatbread, and said, "Follow me. Since we have money now, we should make some upgrades."

Soon after, there were two brand-new horse carriages beside them. The horses were tall, healthy, and very intelligent. Once he gently tugged on their reins, the horses would follow steadily without struggling or trying to go in other directions. This was completely different from those two old and sickly donkeys they had before.

When the others finished making their purchases and gathered around the carts, Li Huowang noticed that their clothes and shoes had all been replaced by new items. At the same time, they were carrying all sorts of food and treats; even Bai Lingmiao was no exception.

Everyone had extremely joyous expressions on their faces, and one could easily imagine just how happy they were.

Chapter 80 - Nun

Li Huowang shook his head, declining the white-frosted persimmon biscuit placed before him. "Don't eat too much right now; otherwise, when we go to the inn and have a proper meal, you might not have any space left for it."

However, Li Huowang's reminder did not slow them down.

"No problem. I can still eat more after finishing these," said one of the guiding drug ingredients.

"That's right! We will still eat even if we're stuffed! Being hungry is very uncomfortable. Ah, Senior Li, aren't you hungry?" said another one of the guiding drug ingredients.

Li Huowang just silently smiled and continued to lead the horse forward. There was an inn not too far ahead.

"Senior Li, would you like to try these clothes I bought for you?" asked Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang shook his head again, "Forget it. I've grown accustomed to wearing these Daoist robes while just having to change the inner layers. Also, you should cover your eyes up, or you'll start to feel pain soon."

The two horse carts squeezed through the dense crowd for a long time before finally arriving at the inn.

Once there, Puppy excitedly raised the gold beans in his hand and rushed in. "Waiter! Prepare the best private room for Lord Cao Cao! Also, bring me braised pork! Only fatty meat, no lean meat! Four large bowls!"

Li Huowang walked in and pushed him aside, then looked at the townspeople who were eating away and chatting. Then, he told the approaching waiter, "No need for a private room; we'll eat in the main hall. I like the liveliness."

“Senior Li, we have money now. Why are we eating in the main hall? It’s noisy and-” protested Puppy.

However, the jumpy Puppy wilted like an eggplant as soon as Li Huowang glared at him.

They sat down at a wooden table, and Li Huowang started listening in on the surrounding conversations.

“Be careful of people making things hard for you. Your grandmother is really saying these things behind your back,” said a man.

“If you ask me, others not respecting your boundaries calls for a fight! Our kingdom of Si Qi has never feared anyone in battle. Though I’ve retired from the military, I’ll report back without question if orders are sent for me to come back!” said another.

“Kekeke, Zi Qi, forgive me for being late. My wife nagged me for a bit. As a punishment, I’ll down three cups first,” said another.

“Ah! Look there, that Daoist looks quite strange. His robes are red...” said another man, pointing at Li Huowang.

Li Huowang did not hear any information he wanted to hear while waiting for the food to be served. Based on his understanding, this town was quite close to the Nunnery, and there should be some form of influence on the people nearby, be it good or bad.

However, from what he saw, the presence and influence of the Nunnery were quite low among the townspeople.

Since this approach did not work, Li Huowang began to think of other ideas to gather the information he needed.

“Twin Dragons Chasing the Pearl~ Three Suns Prosperity~ Fish Leaping over Dragon Gate~ All the dishes are here~ Esteemed guests, please enjoy!” said the waiter, carrying in all their dishes.

Just as the waiter had finished placing the dishes and was about to leave, Li Huowang grabbed his arm and stopped him.

“Oh, Daoist, you can see how busy it is in this inn, I’m very sorry—” the waiter tried to quickly apologize and leave.

However, before the waiter could even finish his sentence, Li Huowang stuffed a golden bean into his hand.

“Do you know about the Henghua Mountain over there?” asked Li Huowang.

“Yes!” the waiter replied happily.

“There’s a Nunnery at the top of that mountain. I have heard that their incense is very prosperous? Is their Bodhisattva very efficacious?” questioned Li Huowang.

A look of bewilderment crept onto the waiter’s face.

“Prosperous incense? But the Benevolent Nunnery’s incense isn’t even as popular as the local deity.”

“Eh?” Li Huowang looked toward Xiaoman; this was different from what she had told him before.

“My neighbor said that they were very popular,” Xiaoman said, putting down her chopsticks in embarrassment.

“Ah, then your neighbor must be bragging. The Benevolent Nunnery’s Bodhisattva has even started to gather dust. Even if they have an incense burning, it must be haunted there,” said the waiter. “Daoist, I’m not wrong. After all, a widow from the village my elder sister’s nephew lives at went to become a nun at Benevolent Nunnery.”

This got Li Huowang interested. “Oh? Why did she become a nun there? Are there any requirements?”

Hearing this question, the waiter looked around hesitantly.

Li Huowang passed another golden bean into his hand, leading the waiter to lean in and answer in a low voice.

“Her husband died, the rest of her family lived far away, and she couldn’t bear any sons. Thus, she was deemed useless by the people of her village and had no other options. Otherwise, nobody would willingly become a nun,” explained the waiter.

“Oh... So it’s like that.” Li Huowang nodded thoughtfully.

From the information he had gathered so far, these nuns should be quite normal and not too different from what Li Zhi had said before his death.

“Then do you know why the nuns there need to wear black clothes?” Li Huowang asked as he took out yet another golden bean.

“Ah, those aren’t supposed to be black clothes. The nuns are supposed to wear blue robes. But I don’t know if it’s because they have no wells up the mountain, or because they don’t take baths or because they don’t change clothes, their robes turn black over time,” explained the waiter. His face was filled with disgust at this point.

“Some time back, a few nuns came down to sell some pigs, and I saw one of them rub her neck. Guess what?! She rubbed out a black mudball about the size of a jujube!” continued the waiter.

The others nearby had uncomfortable looks on their faces as they placed down their chopsticks.

Smack!

At that moment, a palm smacked the back of the waiter’s head.

“There are guests eating here! What are you talking about?! Are you trying to ruin the reputation of my Penglai Inn?” asked the innkeeper.

“Innkeeper, that was not my intention! I only answered this Daoist’s questions!” defended the waiter.

The fat innkeeper apologized and led the waiter away.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang picked up his chopsticks and began to eat.

“Senior Li, we can help you if you want to ask something,” Puppy said as he picked up a fatty piece of meat and placed it into his mouth.

“Alright, don’t go around frightening the people with your speckled face. Baolu, when you’re done, go to the town and try to gather some information about the Benevolent Nunnery,” said Li Huowang.

Amongst the guiding drug ingredients, this was the only man who was adept in swimming and also had a completely normal appearance, at least on the outside.

Sun Baolu had always maintained a low profile. Hearing Li Huowang's command, while he was momentarily surprised, he quickly nodded in silence.

Li Huowang glanced at him, and then continued to eat his meal. Having a normal outer appearance did not mean that he was normal. This man, Sun Baolu, had never taken off his clothes when they went to sleep and would always avoid people when going to the bathroom, be it male or female.

His clothes definitely hid the reason behind why Dan Yangzi chose him as a guiding drug ingredient.

But Li Huowang did not wish to pry. Similarly, he did not want others to discuss his mental state and hysteria.

Li Huowang decided to stay at this inn for some time.

Meanwhile, he sent some of the assistants and Baolu to gather information about the Benevolent Nunnery.

Li Huowang did not want a repeat of the events that occurred back at the Righteous Monastery. This time, he had even told Baolu to make a trip up the mountain.

After some time, Li Huowang reluctantly concluded that these nuns should not pose too much of a threat to himself. The most common adjectives used by the townsfolk about the nuns were dirty, lazy, and fat.

"If I don't return the next day, then you guys should leave this place immediately. Got it?" Li Huowang was standing at the mountain path as he instructed the rest of the guiding drug ingredients.

"Senior Li, let's go there together," suggested one of them.

"Go there together? To become a burden? Do you think this is just an outing?” reprimanded Li Huowang. However, he regretted his harsh words as soon as he said them. Even so, he did not explain anything to them. He just turned around and started heading up the mountain alone.

As she watched his figure gradually grow distant, Bai Lingmiao bit her lips. Tears welled up in her eyes as she seemed to want to say something. But in the end, she did not speak.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang vanished up the mountain path.

Translator's Thoughts

Simpleton (Gao Zhijian) by @格子的乱七八糟

Chapter 81 - The Benevolent Nunnery

“Ha~ Ha~” Li Huowang’s forehead was beaded with sweat as he placed his hands on his knees and panted for air.

He had already been climbing for four hours but had not yet reached his destination. The Nunnery was much higher up than he had imagined.

Li Huowang struggled to lift his head; the winding dirt path seemed to have no end as it stretched upward endlessly.

Li Huowang gritted his teeth, then grabbed a nearby vine and continued to climb.

By the time his legs had become extremely sore, he finally caught sight of the gate of the Benevolent Nunnery.

He wiped off the sweat on his chin with the back of his hand and then subconsciously glanced at the couplet on the sides of the gate. But what surprised him was that he could not understand the couplet of this Nunnery at all.

It was not because of Dan Yangzi’s influence that he could not recognize these words. Instead, it was due to their appearance—those words looked very strange.

The words seemed to be rhomboidal in shape, with the right-side higher and the left-side lower. The characters were slanted and elongated, and they seemed to be ancient words, yet there were traces of many familiar characters.

“These are... Characters? Or something else?” Puzzled, Li Huowang walked up to and touched them.

After carefully examining them for a while, he continued toward the nunnery.

However, after he entered, the speech that he had prepared beforehand could not be used; there was no one here that he could talk to.

There was not a single person in sight within the square that was covered in overgrown weeds. This formed a stark contrast with the crowds he saw back at the Righteous Monastery.

“Is anybody here?” Li Huowang’s voice reverberated in the square, yet nobody appeared.

Li Huowang glanced both ways before heading toward the main hall before him. There was no incense within, yet it was not dark at all. The ceiling had holes, and the rays of sunlight illuminated everything within.

The Bodhisattva statue in the middle of the large hall was also covered with gray dust and spiderwebs. Li Huowang would have almost not recognized that this was a Bodhisattva statue if not for the lotus seat beneath it.

Is there a mistake? This Nunnery seems to be completely deserted.

Just as Li Huowang was thinking that, a snore caught his attention. He followed the sound to its source and saw a large meatball rising and falling behind the Bodhisattva statue.

Only after approaching it did he realize that it was not a meatball but the exposed belly of a fat nun.

She was sleeping face-up on the icy-cold floor, snoring with her mouth open and releasing a putrid stench toward them.

Black clothes, fat, and dirty. These were all correct. This was a nun from the Benevolent Nunnery.

Frowning, Li Huowang tried to determine whether this was a good or a bad person. Based on Li Zhi’s description, these nuns were good people. However, while he didn’t know the veracity of that claim, given the current state of this nunnery and looking at this nun, he concluded that even bad people would not want to have much interaction with her.

“Venerable master, Xuan Yang from Zephyr Temple has an urgent matter to discuss,” Li Huowang raised his voice and greeted the large meatball.

However, the fat nun’s snoring showed no signs of stopping—she didn’t wake up at all.

Is she pretending to ignore me?

Li Huowang stepped forward and raised his voice more. “Venerable master! Xuan Yang from Zephyr Temple has an urgent matter to discuss!”

Yet, there was still no response.

Li Huowang was about to go up to her and shout into her ear but was repulsed by the strong stench coming from her body. This stench was a combination of smelly socks, durian, and fermented sweat. It was quite unbearable.

Before he could come up with anything else, the fat nun trembled and sat up on her own.

She used her stubby fingers to rub off the yellowed eye boogers. Then, without even opening her eyes, she swayed toward the side door. “Aiya, time for a meal.”

“Venerable master! Xuan Yang from Zephyr Temple has an urgent matter to discuss!” repeated Li Huowang.

This time, Li Huowang was not ignored. The fat nun jumped in fright, and at the same time, her extremely oily chin also trembled with her.

“You scared me. How come you walk so silently?” asked the nun.

Conflicted, Li Huowang remained rooted on the spot. He was now more concerned about whether the nuns here even had the ability to help him deal with Dan Yangzi rather than questioning their intentions.

“Go and burn incense on your own if you want to pay respects to Buddha! Don’t delay my meal!” The fat nun said in an icy tone before continuing to walk inside with her humongous legs.

This time, Li Huowang didn't say anything and just followed behind her.

The entire nunnery was quite large, but also quite dilapidated. If the main hall's Bodhisattva statue was already so shabby, then the other Bodhisattva statues were likely to be even shabbier.

There were some inscriptions beside some of the hall entrances, but they were identical to those from the gate he saw earlier.

"Master, what characters are these?" Li Huowang asked.

"Women's script. You can't understand it. This script is only passed down to women, not men," replied the nun.

Although she answered the question, the nun seemed very impatient and directly walked inside.

As the environment inside became increasingly unfamiliar, Li Huowang continued following her without any hesitation. Everything here seemed real, without the strange feeling he had back at the hospital.

Whether it was due to him having consumed too much Black Taisui or due to him having spent a long time dealing with hallucinations, ordinary illusions had no impact on him. He could easily distinguish them from reality, even if they were effective in fooling his senses.

After wandering around for a while, Li Huowang followed the plump nun to an earthen house that had a chimney. He could hear some commotion from within, indicating that there were people inside. He knew that they were all nuns just based on the heavy stench coming from within.

He saw the fat nun rushing in with excitement, then frowned before taking a deep breath. Then, he pinched his nose and resisted the urge to tear up before following her inside.

As soon as he entered, he could hear sounds of lips smacking, as well as the sound of food being chewed and swallowed.

For a moment, he almost thought that he was at a pigsty.

At this moment, a group of black-clothed fat nuns were gathered around a black pot, chomping away at its contents. They were not even using any chopsticks or bowls, directly using their hands to grab the food from within the pot.

They were enjoying their meal so much that they didn't even respond to Li Huowang, a living person who was standing right there.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang could only blindly guess that they were eating some sort of vegetable fried rice.

Li Huowang was turning red from holding his breath. When he tried to breathe, he felt the stench in the air irritate his throat.

Finally, his actions attracted some attention. A fat nun who had just finished eating got up and gave her seat to him as she sucked her fingers.

"Do you want to have a vegetarian meal? 200 copper coins per person," asked the nun.

Li Huowang was happy upon hearing money being mentioned.

"No need. However, there's something that I need your help with," said Li Huowang as he tossed over a golden bean.

"Gold!" The fat nun excitedly stuffed the golden bean into her mouth and chewed on it with her yellowed teeth. After verifying the authenticity of the gold, she spit it back out, mixed with vegetable leaves and saliva.

"Do you want to buy pigs? How many? Our Nunnery has the fattest pigs," offered the nun.

As Li Huowang saw her approaching him, he took a step back. "No. I heard that the venerable masters of the Benevolent Nunnery are very knowledgeable. Hence, this time I've come to seek help from the Nunnery to exorcize some evil spirits."

"Hahaha~! Aren't you a Daoist? You're asking us nuns to help you exorcize evil spirits? Hahaha~" asked the nun, laughing.

Her laughter seemed to be quite contagious as the other nuns also started laughing.

Finally, even Li Huowang could not hold back anymore.
“Hahah~!!”

Translator's Thoughts

The nuns look like.. @格子的乱七八糟

Chapter 82 - Abbess Jingxin

Li Huowang had to try quite hard to stifle his laughter. He suddenly found it very humorous that he, as a Daoist, was asking for help from these nuns.

“Cough cough, esteemed masters, please don’t laugh anymore. I have an urgent problem, and it might be life-threatening if left unresolved,” Li Huowang explained.

“Follow me; let’s go find the Abbess. Right, it’ll cost two golden beans to show you the way,” declared the nun as an oily hand reached out toward Li Huowang.

On the other hand, the thing that Li Huowang was the least worried about was them wanting money. After all, any matter that could be resolved through money was not really an issue.

He directly passed two golden beans over before following the fat nun outside.

Just as they were about to leave the house, Li Huowang looked back at the other nuns inside with a hint of reluctance. He had a feeling that if he spent his time with these carefree nuns, it would be rather enjoyable. At this point, even the pungent stench in the air didn’t seem so unbearable.

He followed the nun onto the small path outside the house once again. Li Huowang said to the nun guiding him, “I am Xuan Yang from Zephyr Temple. May I ask for your monastic name?”

“Miao Yu,” replied the fat nun as she picked her nose.

“Cough-cough... good name.” Li Huowang had to restrain himself to avoid laughing out loud. The name did not match her appearance in the slightest.

They walked for a while, and arrived at a row of short thatched houses. The fat nun directly walked in. "Wait here, I need to take a dump."

"Sure, take your time," said Li Huowang as he stifled his laughter, clasped his hands, and bowed.

"Ah~ Hehe." Li Huowang stood beside the thatched house and stretched lazily. He felt rather at ease here. Here, Li Huowang wanted to smile at whatever he saw. His surroundings just seemed so cheerful.

Just as he was about to burst into laughter thinking about what had just happened, he suddenly felt everything around him begin to collapse. The white walls of a hospital began replacing everything around him, and some illusory figures started to solidify.

Li Huowang had just been feeling at ease, but now, his expression turned extremely ugly as he clutched his head tightly.

"No, not now! Just for a little while more, shh, shh! Help! Please, be quiet, shh~ shh~"

Almost as if his pleading had an effect, everything around him quietened down.

His expression was now quite pale, and he wiped off the cold sweat from his face as he stood up.

The Black Taisui's effects were fading, and those hallucinations were about to come back after a long time. However, Li Huowang had to push these matters to the back of his mind for now. In the face of life and death, these hallucinations were but a small matter.

Li Huowang's mood grew gloomy as he recalled the recent events; he found it hard to feel cheerful anymore.

"Hai..." Li Huowang sighed.

Just then, he suddenly heard a sound and headed toward the toilet behind.

He was truly shocked when he saw the scene behind.

There was a bamboo fence surrounding the area behind the thatched house, and a few black, long-haired pigs were being raised within.

At this moment, yellow waste was spewing out from within the thatched house, and the black pigs were grunting within it.

This scene instantly caused Li Huowang to feel nauseous.

He had heard previously that the nuns from the Benevolent Nunnery reared pigs, but he hadn't expected that they used something like this to feed them!

As he continued looking at the pigs, Li Huowang's impression of the Benevolent Nunnery as a whole gradually started falling. The nuns here were extremely strange.

The black pigs grunted and scattered, and then Miao Yu stepped out from the thatched house. She saw Li Huowang standing by the pigsty, but did not say anything and continued to lead him onward.

"Let's hurry; I still need to take a nap later," said Miao Yu.

"Do you all eat the pigs that are raised like this?" Li Huowang suddenly asked.

"What are you talking about! Can't you see we're nuns? We believe in Buddhism, and we can't eat meat. You're a Daoist and don't even understand this?" Miao Yu's tone carried a strong sense of disdain, but then she became dejected again as she changed topics. "Ah, actually we didn't want to feed the pigs or raise them either. However, nobody came to burn incense or give offerings, so we had to find some way to make money. After all, people can't survive on thin air."

"Indeed, indeed." Li Huowang nodded in agreement and continued to follow behind her.

After going in circles for a while, Miao Yu brought Li Huowang to a house and stopped before it.

"The Abbess is inside. I'm not going in. Truthfully, I'm a little afraid of her. Oh, right, her monastic name is Jingxin," said Miao Yu. Then, without waiting for Li Huowang's response, she left.

Li Huowang looked at her retreating figure, then chuckled softly and headed in.

It was very dark within the house. There were also sounds of food being swallowed, and an even stronger stench. These peculiarities made Li Huowang subconsciously grab onto the bamboo slip inside his clothes.

Just as Li Huowang placed his right foot down to step toward the darkness, he felt like he had stepped onto something shriveled up, and quickly withdrew his foot.

"You may light a lamp, please. I'm blind, so I usually don't need any light." A frail and aged voice sounded from within the darkness.

"Yes, Abbess." Li Huowang took out a glowing stone and threw it toward the direction he had just stepped in, instantly causing him to be startled by the strange thing he saw.

It was an extremely old and fat woman wearing a nun's cap. Her eye sockets were hollow, her eyes replaced by two black voids. The skin on her face hung loosely, dragged by the fat around her neck, as though it was about to be peeled off at any moment.

Seeing such a sight in the dim room was undoubtedly terrifying.

However, what was more important was her body, rather than her face.

Her fat body almost filled the entire room. Her filthy skin was covered in bloody acne, and there even seemed to be something moving within the acne!

And at this moment, this woman was hugging a large basin, reaching in with both hands to devour the greasy food.

"Keke, this is uncommon. It's rare for a Strayed One to come looking for me." The terrifying, old nun spoke with her toothless mouth before continuing to eat. Though her appearance was extraordinarily scary, her voice was unexpectedly gentle. If there was no light, one would likely mistake her for just an ordinary elderly person.

However, Li Huowang did not have time to think about that. Once he heard this person mention ‘Strayed One’, he instantly went on high alert and prepared to withdraw.

“What are you afraid of? One look and I know that you’re a young child who doesn’t know anything. When would our Benevolent Nunnery need others as ingredients? We’re too lazy to bother with that sort of thing. In fact, my own son is also a Strayed One,” said the Abbess.

“Oh?” Li Huowang perked up. “Then Abbess Jingxin, where is your son now?” This was the first time Li Huowang had heard about other Strayed Ones.

“He went mad. Strayed Ones typically have tragic fates. Going mad is considered a relatively better outcome for them,” explained the Abbess.

Then, Abbess Jingxin started to talk about her son’s story, her voice growing a little depressed.

Translator's Thoughts

This is Abbess Jing Xin, drawn by @格子的乱
七八糟

Chapter 83 - Strayed One

Going mad is considered a relatively better outcome for a Strayed One? Is that going to be my future ending as well?

Li Huowang had always thought that others calling him a Strayed One was because he had some rare gift, something akin to the unique talents he had read about in cultivation novels. However, the Abbess was telling him it wasn't anything good. The name 'Strayed One' itself seemed to carry other problems.

Li Huowang took a moment to calm himself, then took a deep breath and said, "Abbess Jingxin, I have previously eaten Black Taisui to cure my hysteria, and it was rather effective. Have you used it for your son before?"

Li Huowang was hoping to hear that she hadn't used it before, but was immediately disappointed.

"Yes, of course. But Black Taisui cannot be eaten just willy-nilly. Something like that can be eaten quite easily, but it is very difficult to get it out of your body. It will stay in the stomach for a long time, sucking your blood and consuming your flesh. It's manageable if consumed in small amounts. However, if too much is eaten, it will occupy your entire stomach and burrow out from within your body," Abbess Jingxin graphically described the situation, almost as though she had witnessed it firsthand.

Hearing this, Li Huowang touched his stomach, his expression growing even more ugly. There was a mass of tentacle-covered Black Taisui currently nested within his stomach. At the same time, he reaffirmed his understanding of Dan Yangzi—he was always up to no good. Even the medicine given by him was full of such serious side-effects.

But these small matters had to be set aside for now; he had more pressing matters to ask about.

“Abbess Jingxin, could you tell me exactly what being a Strayed One entails? And why is it that the Strayed Ones end up descending into madness?” asked Li Huowang.

Li Huowang’s anxiety drove him into asking this question. He really needed an answer to this, since it concerned his future life and death.

Abbess Jingxin had been scarfing down her food when she heard his voice, and then looked up toward Li Huowang with her hollow eyes.

“What is a Strayed One? You are a Strayed One and you are asking me? Can’t you tell what is different about you compared to others? Then let me ask you, where are you from?” asked Abbess Jingxin.

Li Huowang almost blurted out an answer, but stopped himself warily. The matter of him transmigrating here from the modern era was an extremely confidential affair. He could not just tell about it to this strange old nun without any preparation, especially when he considered that he had just met her. Who knew what thoughts this fat old nun would have after learning this secret.

“Hehe, let me guess, you must think that you’re someone not from here? Someone from a different realm, a world completely different from this one?” asked Abbess Jingxin.

Jingxin’s words shattered Li Huowang’s psychological defense. “You actually know?!”

Unperturbed, Jingxin bent down to eat the sticky, yellow substance in her bowl. “No need to panic. A child really has no composure. Are you questioning how I know about this matter? Didn’t I tell you before? My son is also a Strayed One. He too used to think like that in the beginning.”

This made Li Huowang lean forward subconsciously, his voice trembling as he asked, “Your son is also from the modern world?”

Did he transmigrate here as well?"

Currently, his heart was beating extremely fast. The discovery that there were others like him in this bizarre world filled him with excitement. No matter who they were, male or female, as long as they came from the same world, he was not alone. He would finally be able to share the burden that was weighing down on him heavily with someone else.

More importantly, he couldn't recall how he came to this world. Perhaps they would remember, and perhaps he could return to his original world through them!

Abbess Jingxin didn't answer him immediately, and wiped off the yellow liquid from the corner of her lips. Then, she smiled and "looked" at the youth before her. "No, he didn't. He came from my tummy. That much is certain. Also, young man, dreams may be reality, and reality may be dreams. Don't think that things are all definite, including any matters in your own head."

"What do you mean?" Li Huowang found that he could not understand what she was trying to convey.

"Why are you so certain that you must be from the other world? Why do you not think that you could be someone from this land? Who knows if those fantasy realms are fake, and all imagined by yourself?" asked Abbess Jingxin.

"Impossible! Definitely impossible! I know that some of the situations that happened in Zephyr Temple were hallucinations, but I definitely lived before in the modern world! I transmigrated from there! I am a transmigrator! I'm not some lunatic who concocted an entirely different world in my head!" Li Huowang's eyes were bloodshot as he retorted loudly. His hands were trembling as he clenched them into fists. It was as though a sensitive nerve had been struck.

Jingxin did not dispute anything, and only slanted her face slightly, as though thinking of something. "Hehe, my son had said these words to me before. Like you, he could remain clear-headed at times. However, at other times, he would be confused and spout nonsense. But as his mother, I'm certain about one thing—ever since he came out of my tummy, he never left my side. He didn't go to any other world. That was all made up by his imagination."

Li Huowang became petrified when he heard those words, his breathing becoming erratic. Everything from his past started to rapidly flash through his mind.

Yang Na, my mother, the hospital, my school. Are all these non-existent? Is it possible that that world never even existed? Does a modern world even exist?

In that instant, Li Huowang felt that everything around him was unreal and illusory.

What is real? What is fake?!

Did I not transmigrate here? Was I originally someone from here, and there never was any modern world in the first place? Everything I believed to be true was just something made up by my imagination? No, this is not right. There must be some mistake somewhere!

Li Huowang gradually began to lose control of his emotions. His breathing quickened, and his expression grew more and more menacing.

At this moment, his sense of self was crumbling, and he needed to find an outlet for the massive amount of stress built up within himself.

Suddenly, his gaze hardened, and he glared fiercely at Abbess Jingxin.

However, before he could even say anything, the plump woman pointed her greasy finger at him and mimicked his voice, "No! You're trying to deceive me~! You have sinister motives toward me!! Everything you're saying is fake! You want to harm me, don't you?! It's not going to be that easy!!"

After speaking these words, she looked at Li Huowang, who was frozen in place. A gentle smile was once again plastered on her plump and swollen face. "Hehe, you were just about to say these things to me, right? In fact, my own son said the same things to me before. Ah, thinking back, it feels like it was just yesterday. I really do miss those times."

Chapter 84 - Sense Of Doubt And Confusion

Jingxin was different from anyone he had encountered up until now—she looked very terrifying, but she was very amiable.

But Li Huowang would rather this huge, fat woman just rip off her facade like the others and attack him instead of chuckling as she looked at him, almost as if she knew that everything she said was true. At least, that would make him feel better.

Is all that really true?

Li Huowang started to panic, his thoughts becoming more muddled, and his expression growing more agonized. The air around him seemed to be pressing in on him, almost as though it was heavy, making breathing rather unbearable.

Various images flashed through Li Huowang's mind constantly. When he remembered Yang Na passing him those examination papers, he seemed to have come to a realization.

“No! That's not right! A person may be able to imagine an entire world, but they definitely cannot just imagine knowledge!” muttered Li Huowang.

At that moment, all the knowledge that he had learned in high school quickly flashed through his mind.

A look of pity appeared on Abbess Jingxin's face as she 'looked' at the youth muttering to himself while clutching his head. “Poor thing.”

However, regardless of what she thought, Li Huowang quickly came to his senses. He seemed tired, but his eyes were once again filled with determination.

I am Li Huowang! I transmigrated here, and there's no doubt about that! I am not some lunatic from this world, I am a transmigrator!

Definitely!

“Looks like you’ve thought it through? So do you believe what I said or not?” asked Jingxin.

“Abbess Jingxin, let’s not talk about your son anymore. Let’s get to the point; tell me what a Strayed One is,” asked Li Huowang, trying to regain control of the topic.

A fat finger with a cracked nail trembled as it pointed at Li Huowang’s chest. “You are a Strayed One. The sense of doubt, confusion and the karmic obstacles in your heart, as well as the karma on your body. Based on the scent of those things that are behind you, you must have killed quite a few people before this, right? So you can’t be considered a complete outsider either, and you should know some of the matters about the formless arts of cultivation. Aside from foreign objects, the most important thing in any cultivation sect is your state of mind. The sense of doubt, confusion and the karmic obstacles that Strayed Ones have are much purer and more stable than those of the ordinary folks. In order to stabilize their own state of mind, some sects require a Strayed One’s sense of doubt and confusion. And, even if they don’t need it for themselves, they can sell a Strayed One to those who do need it, and make a big profit.”

State of mind? Emotions?

Li Huowang immediately thought of the intense amounts of pain and suffering needed to use the red bamboo slip, as well as the monks from the Righteous Monastery who had an obsession with beasts, flesh-and-blood creatures, as well as illicit affairs between the same sex.

From the looks of it, they all followed some sort of rules in everything they did. This was the first time that Li Huowang was getting a preliminary understanding of the supernatural powers of this world.

“Some people might capture you for other purposes as well, but the biggest reason will always be the sense of doubt and confusion that you possess. The only ones who always have this sense of doubt and confusion in their hearts are the Strayed Ones—normal people do not have that sense of doubt and confusion,” explained Jingxin.

Through this conversation, Li Huowang came to understand that in this world, human emotions were not intangible. Here, they were objects that could be made tangible and could affect reality.

Human emotions could even be used as a form of currency.

Li Huowang decisively said, “The sense of doubt and confusion, as well as the emotions in my heart can actually be used to help others cultivate? But, at this point I’m no longer confused now—I am sure that that side is a hallucination, and that this is reality. Even if I sink into a hallucination once again, I definitely wouldn’t mistake that side for reality.”

Hearing this, Jingxin looked at Li Huowang, and smiled faintly. “Really? Alright, I will believe it if you say so; I can’t be bothered to argue about it with you. You can take your leave.”

Leave?

Li Huowang immediately realized that he had not yet completed his main objective for visiting here. He hadn’t come here this time to understand what a Strayed One was.

“Abbess Jingxin, I came here this time to ask for your help in exorcizing an evil spirit,” said Li Huowang.

Based on the current situation, Dan Yangzi was a far more dangerous problem, and the reason for his visit this time around had been to get rid of him.

The first thing he had to do was to survive; he could worry about whether or not he would turn mad after that. After all, if his body ended up getting occupied by Dan Yangzi, then there would be no need for him to consider what happens after that.

“Ah? So you’re not here to ask about the way to resolve your situation as a Strayed One? Then why were you babbling about useless things earlier? Don’t you know how to get straight to the point?” Abbess Jingxin was a little displeased.

After apologizing, Li Huowang explained the situation to Jingxin.

“Became Immortal? There are actually still people trying to become Immortal these days?” remarked Jingxin.

Jingxin mumbled to herself, then retrieved two cow-horn shaped hexagrams from under her nun cap and began divining out loud.

After a long time of divining, she started to carefully study Li Huowang’s face with her ‘eyes’.

Just as Li Huowang was starting to feel uncomfortable, Jingxin suddenly spoke, “On the day he attained Immortality, did you eat your Master?”

“Huh?” Li Huowang was puzzled. “How could I eat him? If I had a way to get rid of Dan Yangzi, then I wouldn’t have made a plan that would end with me dying with him.”

“Hmm...” Jingxin did not rebut and only nodded silently.

Then, with a flick of her right hand, Li Huowang suddenly felt something extremely greasy all over his body, making him feel very uncomfortable. At the same time, he felt as though something was moving beneath his skin.

“Don’t rub it; endure that feeling,” said Jingxin.

Finally, after maintaining that posture for two incense sticks worth of time, Jingxin spoke, “I do have a way to deal with your Master, but it would require using quite a few Buddhist artifacts and merits. So, why should I help you?”

Li Huowang was stunned but quickly regained his composure. This was simply about giving some benefits. Since she was being so straightforward about her conditions, he felt that she was way more reliable than the Righteous Monastery.

He took out the sacred text, the gourd storing the lifespan pills, and the red bamboo slip before placing them on the ground. “As long as you are able to get rid of Dan Yangzi, you can choose any of these items.”

However, he hadn’t expected that even after taking out all these items, he would be met with utter contempt from Jingxin.

“What kind of trash is all this? Take them all away! Especially the Profound Records. Bring that thing as far away as you can; don’t taint the the Benevolent Nunnery’s locale!” shouted Jingxin.

She seemed extremely repulsed by the red bamboo slip. It was also at this moment that Li Huowang learnt of its name.

At that moment, there was a look of greed on her old face, “I can smell gold on you.”

Li Huowang immediately understood. “No problem, I will offer gold pieces to the Benevolent Nunnery’s Bodhisattva later.”

As soon as money was mentioned, Jingxin’s attitude seemed to change completely. It was no longer as kindly as before; she seemed a lot more calculative now.

“Right, silver as well. I smell silver on you too. I want that as well. Besides that, I need you to help me find some items,” said Jingxin.

Translator's Thoughts

For those who don't want to think too much, eh it's fine to just cruise through the chapter on autopilot.

Basically in this world everything can be a currency, including intangible and abstract stuffs like emotions, karma, and lifespan. Strayed Ones are just more valuable than regular people because they have a special sense of doubt and confusion, just like how people with O negative blood is very rare and hospitals actually keep track of them

Chapter 85 - Descent

"Find something?" Li Huowang's mind raced when he heard Abbess Jingxin's words.

On the other hand, when she saw that his expression turned more serious, she explained, "Don't think I'm just taking advantage of your problem."

However, this just made Li Huowang's mood even heavier. He thought for a while, then said, "Abbess Jingxin, this should be your final condition, right?"

He saw her nod in agreement, then took a deep breath and said, "Sure! It's a deal. What do you need?"

He wasn't afraid of there being conditions; rather, he was more wary of the other party making empty promises. However, as long as there were conditions set, they were still in the realm of negotiation.

At least, from what he had seen so far, Li Zhi had not lied before he died. In a certain sense, the nuns belonging to the Benevolent Nunnery were indeed good people. It was not easy to find such people in this strange world.

He had no other choice now. Dan Yangzi might end up possessing him first if he continued to look for other methods.

"A pair of eyes. An extremely peculiar pair of sinister eyes. There is a forest about two hundred miles to the east of Henghua Mountain. Head there and bring this sinister thing back," Jingxin stated her final condition.

"Sinister? What sort of sinister? What sort of abilities does it have?" asked Li Huowang. He wanted to know what sort of foe he was about to face.

"It's called the Eighteenth Lunar. That thing is very strange.

Every year, on the 18th day of the twelfth lunar month, it transforms. At that time, its appearance and supernatural abilities change. I don't know what it looks like right now, so just remember that it's red in color. You will have to figure out a method to deal with it yourself. You even carry the Profound Records on you, and you think you can't deal with that thing? Besides, do you think that Master of yours who attained Immortality will let you die?"

Eighteenth Lunar? That's a name?

Li Huowang was troubled. This was it? He wasn't given any hints and he had to go completely unprepared to deal with some kind of sinister being. He was going in completely blind.

He did not want to give Dan Yangzi a chance to make a move again. If he did, then he wasn't sure who this body would belong to at the end.

"Can I enlist the help of the other nuns in the nunnery? Other matters can be negotiated," probed Li Huowang.

"Hehe, they're all very lazy. Feel free to try persuading them. But, I'm guessing you don't even have the money to hire them to come down the mountain, right? Hehe," Abbess Jingxin softly mocked her juniors.

Now that a target was established, Li Huowang did not wish to procrastinate further. He re-confirmed the location of the Eighteenth Lunar with Jingxin, then bowed and turned to leave. "I won't disturb Abbess's meal any further. I will go down now and have others bring the gold up."

"Ah, right. I smell persimmon biscuits as well. I really like them; remember to bring me some," said Jingxin.

"Understood," said Li Huowang. Since he had already handed over all his gold, a little bit of food did not make much difference.

As he left, the room once again fell into darkness. However, this did not affect the blind Jingxin. She reached out with her right hand and used her blackened fingers to rummage through the greasy folds of fat on her body.

After a long while, there was a rippling sound with a foul odor. A bald old man with frail limbs was pulled out from within.

This old person seemed to be on the verge of death. His eyes and mouth appeared slanted, and he seemed to be mumbling from time to time.

After taking him out, Jingxin pulled him into a gentle embrace with her pus-covered arms. Then, she started feeding him from the bowl, mouth to mouth.

“Son, did you hear that? In a few days, you will have some persimmon biscuits to eat. Hehe, are you happy? I still remember that you loved eating them back when you still wore open-crotch pants,” said Jingxin.

However, the old person had no reaction to Jingxin’s voice, and just reflexively spat out the stuff in his mouth.

Jingxin did not seem to notice this, and just continued to repeat her actions. “See, he’s just like you. That kid is also a Strayed One. But he’s going to have a much harder time than you. You have a mother, but he doesn’t. Who knows what sort of fate awaits him. Ah, that kid is so pitiful...”

Meanwhile, back in the Penglai Inn, Bai Lingmiao was completely naked, as she rested her hands on the edge of the wooden tub. She sighed, “I wonder how Senior Li is doing. It would have been good if I could have gone up with him.”

Should I tell him? If I do, won't he worry about me? But he already has enough to worry about for now.

Bai Lingmiao contemplated for a long while, until the water in the tub started getting cold. Then, she stood up from the water filled with floating petals, put on her clothes and walked toward the bedroom.

Forget it. No matter what, if he still hasn't come down after three days, then I'm definitely going up to find him. Who says I'm a burden?

The door creaked as Bai Lingmiao closed it. Once it was fully closed, a strange woman was revealed behind the door. She was wearing a red veil, had colored ribbons on her dress, as well as red embroidered shoes.

Seeing her, Bai Lingmiao pulled back the sheets, and mischievously slid in. Then, her hands firmly embraced the person under the sheets. "I like Sister Xiaoman the most. You're so fluffy. Hugging you is just so comfortable."

Xiaoman turned around and faced the white-haired girl. They were so close that they could even feel each other's soft breathing.

"What's so good about this thing; it's just some black hair. Others treat me like I am some weird creature. Even a man in his sixties won't dare to marry me," said Xiaoman.

"Don't worry, Sister Xiaoman. You will definitely be able to find the man of your dreams," said Bai Lingmiao as she reached out to gently stroke her black hair.

"No need. I hate men. I want to remain unmarried. I can live independently without any man!" declared Xiaoman firmly.

"Why would you want that?" Bai Lingmiao's eyes widened with surprise. She had wanted to ask if it was because of her father, but she couldn't get those words to come out of her mouth.

Meanwhile, Xiaoman turned around, showing her back to Bai Lingmiao who reached out to gently hug her.

"Sister Xiaoman, if you have no place to go to in future, then come to my house. How about being the godmother to my children?" offered Bai Lingmiao.

Xiaoman did not respond directly. There was a look of hesitation in her eyes as she stared at the wall before her. "Are you really planning to marry Senior Li?"

However, Bai Lingmiao did not answer her, only hitting her back shyly.

"Why don't you give it some more thought? This is for your own good. Even though Senior Li has been kind to us, you don't necessarily have to repay him like that. After all... he's that sort of person," Xiaoman tailed off.

Chapter 86 - Departure

“What sort of person? Isn’t Senior Li quite good?” asked Bai Lingmiao. Those words made her feel rather unhappy; she felt as though her own belongings were being defamed.

“He...” Xiaoman hesitated. “Do you really think Senior Li has no issues? If that really was the case, then why would Baldy capture him to be used as a guiding drug ingredient in the first place?”

The room fell silent. They all knew each other quite well after having spent some time together. And so they knew that when compared to their physical issues, Li Huowang suffered from the much more thorny mental problems.

It was just that everyone consciously avoided the topic.

Bai Lingmiao’s expression was gloomy. “So what? If he’s like that, then am I much better? Everyone calls me a White-Haired Goblin back at home. Others are also afraid when they see me. But Senior Li has never looked at me differently, and he even saved me on multiple occasions. Someone like me couldn’t even dream of being able to find someone like Senior Li. I’m already overjoyed that he doesn’t despise me.”

Hearing this, Xiaoman no longer continued on this topic. She just sighed lightly and closed her eyes. “Go to sleep.”

The bedroom gradually became quiet, with the only sound being from the two’s soft breathing.

When Xiaoman heard the breathing behind her getting shallow, she turned around and looked at the delicate girl before her.

Xiaoman looked at her long eyelashes and reached out to caress her cheek. The sensation was like a boiled chicken egg that just had its shell peeled, making her feel infatuated.

“I... know... don’t rush...” Bai Lingmiao mumbled in her sleep.

Hearing this, Xiaoman's brows quivered under her dense hair, as she leaned her cheek over.

Bang!

At that moment, the door was suddenly kicked open, causing Xiaoman to instantly sit up. Then, she pulled out a dagger from under her pillow and stood before Bai Lingmiao.

"Senior Li? You've come down from the mountain?" Xiaoman exclaimed in surprise as she looked at the young man before her. The one who had opened the door was Li Huowang, who had just returned from Henghua Mountain.

"Where's all the gold?" Li Huowang got straight to the point.

"It's all with Simpl... with Gao Zhijian. He's guarding it," replied Xiaoman.

Li Huowang glanced at Bai Lingmiao, who was still half-asleep before turning around and walking off in the direction of the other guest rooms.

"What happened? Was someone here?" Bai Lingmiao sat up drowsily.

Xiaoman gently laid her back down before saying in a soft voice, "It's alright... go back to sleep. We'll talk about it tomorrow."

The next day, Xiaoman pulled Bai Lingmiao's hand and brought her to another guest room where they saw Li Huowang. She immediately noticed the mud on his shoes. From the looks of it, their Senior Li had been outside all night long.

"You are here? Have a seat. Let me tell you about the next steps of our journey," said Li Huowang as he opened a map.

"This is where we're going next; I need to retrieve something from there first. After that, I'll send all of you home," said Li Huowang as he pointed at a spot on the map.

After saying that, Li Huowang didn't wait to hear anyone's opinion. He directly rolled up the map and headed toward the door. "Pack your things. We're leaving at noon today."

"Senior Li! What happened on the mountain? Is it dangerous where we're headed?" asked Bai Lingmiao as she followed after him.

Meanwhile, Xiaoman turned to the others and asked, "What happened? What is Senior Li up to? Why did he come back?"

"How would I know? Senior Li never consults us with anything. It's already unprecedented for him to have given us a heads-up today," Puppy said gloomily.

"Why the long face? We're only leaving, right?" asked Xiaoman.

Tears streamed down Puppy's face upon hearing this question. "Senior Li gave away all the gold! If I had known he would do that, then I wouldn't have gone to the brothel earlier. I should have bought myself a wife first!"

"What?! He gave it all away? Didn't any of you try to stop that from happening? Don't you know that Senior Li has mental problems?" Xiaoman shouted anxiously.

"I did try to stop him! I tried to block him yesterday when he was giving it away! But I could only do so much," replied Puppy.

Xiaoman turned and hurried outside, but her actions were in vain. The gold had already been sent to the Benevolent Nunnery during the last night.

"Don't worry, I kept some for the journey," said Li Huowang.

With heavy hearts, Xiaoman and the others once again set off on a journey; they had little say in this decision.

Li Huowang had killed the water bandits and taken the gold. Thus, none of them had the authority to stop him even if he wanted to give it all away. It was just that the sudden transition from being extremely wealthy to being penniless was truly hard for them to adapt to.

Late at night, Xiaoman opened her eyes to see a statue-like Li Huowang sitting by the campfire as he looked at the red bamboo slip. Then, she gently crawled out from under the blanket and walked toward the mist-covered forest.

In a secluded grassy area, she took out a book and a long knife from her waist. Then, she struck a fighting posture and began to learn from the book.

The blade in her hand danced through the air. Though she was still quite unskilled, her eyes shone with determination as she practiced seriously.

Whoosh~

At that moment, she stopped her blade as she was startled by Li Huowang's sudden appearance.

He was still the same; his neck was full of scars, and he had an exhausted expression on his face.

"Where is this book from?" Li Huowang stepped over and flipped through the book on the ground. There were only a few small figures showing a person wielding swords on it without any words. It looked like a sword-fighting manual.

"Didn't you ask us to buy the things that we wanted previously? I found an escort from the escort service, and used some gold to buy this book from him," Xiaoman replied.

"Anyone who becomes an escort these days has at least some level of skill. I spent quite a bit to buy this. It is genuine," She chuckled softly and continued. "After I killed my dad, I've been thinking; back then, if I had a blade in my hand, would he still have dared to sell my sister and me? And so, I want to become stronger, strong enough to protect myself and others."

Hearing this, Li Huowang nodded silently, then turned back toward the campfire.

Xiaoman hesitated as she looked at his back. Finally, she yelled, "Senior Li, Junior Bai truly cares about you a lot. Please don't let her down!"

Li Huowang did not stop as he took large strides out of the forest. "Show this book to the others as well. Perhaps they may also be able to learn something from it.”

Even with a horse carriage, two hundred miles still took quite some time to cover; they had already been traveling intermittently for several days.

As they approached their destination, Li Huowang had the others wait in a small village close by.

At this moment, the others were bored and were playing card games in the courtyard of a moderately-sized farmhouse.

Puppy sneezed and asked Sun Baolu, who sat in front of him, “Where has Senior Li gone? I haven’t seen him all day long. We’re almost there already, so why are we waiting here? This isn’t his usual style.”

Chapter 87 - Forest

Sun Baolu listened to Puppy as he took out a playing card from his hand and played it. “I saw Senior Li go to the village blacksmith. It seemed like he was preparing something. Right, Puppy, didn’t Senior Li ask you to gather some information? And you’re out here playing cards? Aren’t you afraid that he’ll scold you when he returns?”

“What ‘Puppy’?! Call me Cao Cao!” said Puppy as he played a card. “This small village isn’t all that big, so there’s no need to go through so much trouble. Moreover, I brought back those two kids to question them, and finished it quickly. The village elders all told us that there are man-eating worms in the woods to the west and advised us not to go there.”

“You guys want to go there ? You shouldn’t... You really shouldn’t... Ten years ago, my mom saw flying worms circling the skies in that area!” The host, who had been observing their card game, interjected.

“Ah, don’t worry! Senior Li is very powerful. With him around, those worms or whatnot won’t even be able to approach us. Ah, hold on, who just played this card? Hahaha, I won. Alright, all the eggs in your noodles will belong to me,” said Puppy.

“Come take a look; Senior Li is back,” said one of the guiding drug ingredients.

As soon as they heard those words, the others turned around to see Li Huowang carrying a large leather bag while walking into the courtyard.

Surrounded by the group of curious guiding drug ingredients, Li Huowang placed the leather bag on the table and opened it in front of them. Inside, there were rows of neatly arranged items.

These were brand-new weapons custom-made for him.

There was a pair of large black pliers, sharp awls, small fingernail-sized shovels, and long barbed needles. These strange-looking objects were unsettling to even look at.

At that moment, Puppy picked up a spoon with very sharp edges and played with it. “Senior Li, what are these items for? Rather than weapons, they seem more like torture tools. For example, this. It can’t kill people, but it would definitely be able to gouge out someone’s eyes-”

Puppy abruptly stopped, scared by his own words. He immediately thought of the events that occurred on the island made of reeds. That person had used pliers to pull out his own teeth and burst his own eyes.

At that moment, Li Huowang reached out to retrieve the object in Puppy’s hand as he asked, “How’s the information gathering?”

“It... it’s done. There are said to be man-eating worms there. The people around here avoid going there. The worms are also very quiet and never come out.” Fear was clearly visible in Puppy’s eyes as he looked at the objects on the table.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang picked up a small shovel and gestured a few times with it toward his fingernail. Then, he placed the items on his back and said, “Let’s go.”

“It’s already noon. Why don’t we rest the night before going?” suggested Sun Baolu.

However, this suggestion was met with an ice glare from Li Huowang. “I said let’s go!”

Soon, the wheels of the carriage started to turn and roll toward the forests infested with man-eating creatures.

As the moon rose up, Li Huowang and his group finally arrived at their destination.

There was an extremely dense bamboo forest before them, and fireflies could be seen twinkling in and out of sight. A small path winded through, making it look like a snake that had burrowed into the bamboo forest. The weeds on the path suggested that it hadn't been used in a long time.

Li Huowang didn't rush in recklessly. According to Abbess Jingxin, the Eighteenth Lunar was an evil being that had multiple forms. Nobody knew what form it had right now or what kind of threat it would pose to them.

He stood at the edge of the forest and spent some time observing in silence.

Time passed slowly, and everything appeared to be normal inside the forest—all the creatures within remained unchanged, and Li Huowang even saw some rats gnawing on the bamboo.

It was only at dawn that Li Huowang ceased his observation.

As he ate the noodles in his bowl, Li Huowang told the others, "From the looks of it, the periphery is fine. We will enter the forest after this meal. Once we are inside, don't do anything else. There's only one thing all of you need to do: if... and I mean, if..."

His expression turned serious as he paused. "If my behavior turns abnormal, then keep an eye on me, and don't let me wander around."

Yes, the reason Li Huowang had brought them along this time was this.

As the effects of the Black Taisui were gradually wearing off, Li Huowang felt his surroundings becoming more and more unreal, and he felt like he might be engulfed in hallucinations at any moment.

He needed them to accompany him inside, just in case.

Upon hearing this unusual request, the others exchanged glances and nodded.

"Even if my behavior turns abnormal, it shouldn't be for a long period of time. It'll be fine once I'm back to normal," continued Li Huowang.

Once he finished speaking, he drank a mouthful of soup. At that moment, a delicate white hand reached over and plucked at his hair, causing him to feel pain in his scalp.

"What are you doing?" Li Huowang was displeased with the owner of the hand, Bai Lingmiao.

"My mother once said that white hair has to be plucked. If you leave them be, more white hair will grow on your head," replied Bai Lingmiao.

Hearing this, Li Huowang hastened the pace at which he devoured his noodles.

Meanwhile, Bai Lingmiao sat down cross-legged beside him and reached out toward the red bamboo slip on Li Huowang's back.

"Senior Li, you've been carrying this thing all this time—"

However, Li Huowang suddenly stood up before she could touch it. He finished the soup in one gulp and tossed the bowl into the empty pot. "Let's go into the forest."

Everyone was well-fed, and they followed Li Huowang down the small path. Despite it being early morning, once they stepped into the forest, the surroundings turned dark. The dense bamboo thicket acted as a barrier that tightly blocked out the sunlight coming from above.

Thus, they took out the dark-green glowing stones, using them to brighten their surroundings.

However, when this green-colored light illuminated the bamboo forest, it caused the green bamboo around them to take on a sickly hue, making the onlookers feel unsettled.

Amidst the swaying of the bamboo trees, there seemed to be something hiding in the depths of the dense bamboo forest, watching them.

Li Huowang strained his eyes to make out what it was but could not see anything. Right as he was about to turn around, he felt a prickling sensation on his back.

Is this the power of the Eighteenth Lunar? Is it watching me from within the forest? What form has it taken??

The others could also feel that strange sensation.

The only sounds that could be heard around them were that of shoes stepping on the weeds. Nobody said anything, the atmosphere growing tense.

“Senior Li... do you... feel like the bamboo above is growing closer to us?” said one of the guiding drug ingredients.

Hearing this, everyone slowly looked up. The surrounding bamboo trees were completely bent, with their sickly-colored tips pointing directly at them.

Chapter 88 - Rules

"Don't move! Everyone, stay still!" Li Huowang's voice rang out in the eerie bamboo forest, causing everyone to freeze in place.

They remained motionless while gazing at the row of bamboo tips above them, afraid that those things might pierce straight down.

"Stay still," said Li Huowang as he took a step forward with his right foot.

The others held their breath anxiously as they watched this scene. However, they all heaved a sigh of relief when they saw that there were no changes in the bamboo.

Then, Li Huowang took a few more steps forward and even circled around, but the bamboo remained the same, showing no changes.

"Could it... be that the bamboo in this wretched place just grows in a strange manner?" Puppy wondered out loud.

However, Li Huowang did not dare to gamble on whether that really was the case or not. He immediately shook the bell in his hand to summon a Wandering God and then commanded it to swiftly inspect the surroundings of the forest.

After a while, the Wandering God returned before Li Huowang and indicated that there were no issues. Only after this did Li Huowang's apprehension reduce slightly.

However, he wasn't relieved because of what the Wandering God had told him, but because that strange feeling like he was being watched had vanished.

Li Huowang did not immediately dismiss the Wandering God, choosing to continue deeper into the forest while it was still around. While the ringing of the bell caused everyone to feel dizzy, it was definitely better than being ambushed by the so-called Eighteenth Lunar.

“Stay close; let’s quickly pass through this forest,” said Li Huowang as he continued to shake the bell while walking deeper into the forest. At the same time, he flicked open the clasp of the leather bag, revealing the torture tools within. These objects gleamed with a cold light as they reflected the light given off by the glowing stones.

At this moment, everyone had gripped their weapons and held their breaths. They closely followed one another, scared to fall behind.

As time passed, the bamboo tips above them bent even more, with their tips eventually starting to touch the top of their horse carts. The sound of the bamboo tips scraping against the carriage roof was sharp and grating, making everyone feel even more oppressed. Even so, the Wandering God told them that there was no sign of any enemies.

As they walked through this bizarre bamboo forest, everyone felt as though they were traversing through a large mouth with the bamboo tips acting as the teeth.

Under such conditions, Li Huowang did not know how far they had walked either; the dizziness was causing him to lose the perception of time.

At that moment, he suddenly saw light in the distance.

An exit!

Excited, he swung his sharp sword and cut down an area of bamboo, allowing the sunlight to come in and illuminate the path.

The brightness of the sunlight made everyone squint instinctively due to how blinding it was. Based on the position of the sun, they could tell that it should be afternoon by now.

When they were finally able to see better and turned to look ahead, their eyes widened involuntarily; there was actually a village at the back of this peculiar forest.

In the distance, the rows of blue-tiled houses were scattered around and arranged irregularly. It was not that much different from the other villages that Li Huowang had seen along the way.

There was a clear pond by the entrance of the village. At this time, several young women were washing their clothes and chatting cheerily at the pond.

"Senior Li, are you sure this is the place? Did we make a mistake?" asked Xiaoman as she frowned.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang quickly recalled the location that Abbess Jingxin had given him, then stored the bell before heading toward the village.

"Follow closely, don't let down your guard. Perhaps this is just an illusion created by the Eighteenth Lunar," warned Li Huowang.

"The Eighteenth Lunar... could it be referring to a village?" Bai Lingmiao mumbled.

This thought had also appeared in Li Huowang's mind. After all, the only piece of information he had obtained from the Abbess was that this evil being was red in color.

As they approached the village, the first to notice them were naturally the women washing their clothes. They picked up their clothes and whispered amongst themselves as they walked back toward the village.

Such a large group of people wearing black-veiled bamboo hats would naturally draw the villagers' attention. Soon, groups of burly youngsters carried farming tools on their backs as they approached, watching them vigilantly.

"Outsiders! What brings you to our Wu Family Village? Are you just passing through or are you visiting relatives?" An elderly man with a goatee yelled from a distance.

Li Huowang's gaze swept over the faces of the villagers, but he couldn't find anything abnormal. This seemed to be just like any other village, if judged based on their appearance alone.

Could the Eighteenth Lunar be here?

When the village chief shouted a second time, Li Huowang brought his people over, bowed to them, and opened his map.

"Elder, may I trouble you to check if your village corresponds to the location on this map?"

"What? Asking for directions?" The old man took the map and conversed with the others in hushed tones.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang kept his eyes on their faces, observing their expressions.

After a while, the village chief handed the map back with both hands. "Outsiders, you have found the wrong place. The location on this map is about ten miles away from here."

We found the wrong place? Or have we not arrived yet?

Li Huowang quickly ran a mental calculation of the distance from the Benevolent Nunnery to here. Abbess Jingxin had said that it was about two hundred miles, and he was no machine either. Thus, it would be normal for there to be some human error.

"Haha, my apologies for the mistake, I actually found the wrong place." Li Huowang clasped his hands together and once again bowed to the people before him. "However, the sun is about to set quite soon, Elder. Could you allow us to stay for the night? We have been on the road for half a month, and we are quite exhausted."

"Well..." The chief looked at Li Huowang's group warily.

"Elder, if it's convenient, then please." Li Huowang smiled and leaned over, grabbing the chief's hand underneath his gown.

At that moment, the chief felt something on his palm causing his expression to change as he pinched it with his fingers.

"Alright, our west wing is still vacant. You guys can stay there. Remember, just one night," said the chief.

Soon, the two horse carriages were advancing along the moss-covered stone path toward the village. Puppy leaned over and whispered, "Senior Li, isn't this the wrong place?"

Li Huowang gave the villagers peeking out through their doors a sideways glance. "Perhaps it isn't a mistake? What if this is the place we're looking for?"

The most important lesson Li Huowang had learned after being out for so long was to always take the words of others with a grain of salt.

Since the Eighteenth Lunar could change into any shape, then a village was undoubtedly an extremely convenient place to hide in. He didn't know whether or not it consumed people. If it did, then this village would probably be a suitable feeding point.

As they walked, he started to scan the entire village for any hint of redness. But even as they reached the village entrance, he found no trace of red.

Right as they reached the entrance, the village chief clasped his hands together and looked at them. "First, let me explain something. The Wu Family Village has many rules that are passed down from the previous generations, and they cannot be changed. You guys may stay the night, but you must follow those rules. If not, it would be better for you to leave now."

"Rules?" questioned Li Huowang.

Chapter 89 - Wu Family

After some pondering, Li Huowang nodded. "Elder, could you please tell us what these rules are?"

"First. In our Wu Family Village, you're not allowed to talk back to those older than you, especially me," said the goateed village chief as he raised his index finger.

"That is a rule?" Li Huowang and the others were completely dumbfounded. They had expected there to be some peculiar rules, but they seemed quite ordinary.

"Aren't these only household rules? You want to use your household rules to restrict outsiders?" argued Puppy.

But Li Huowang tapped Puppy's head beside him and then said to the village chief, "Please continue. We're listening."

"Second. Whenever any animals from the nearby forest come out, be it a mouse or an owl, you must not harm them or step on them. If you encounter them on the road, then you must give way. They have done many favors for our Wu Family in the past. Third. You guys are outsiders, and thus your group's men aren't allowed to talk to the females of our village. This rule didn't exist previously. But recently, a peddler took away two wives from here! Ah, my blood boils just thinking about it..."

As the village chief incessantly droned on about the rules, Li Huowang and the others gradually learned about the various rules of the Wu Family Village. Even trivial stuff like how they shouldn't litter had been mentioned.

"Damn, this village has too many rules. We might as well not stay here," muttered one of the guiding drug ingredients.

"Shh, continue listening," whispered Li Huowang.

At this point, the village chief's list was drawing to an end.

“Eleven, don’t light up fires at night, and don’t go outside at night either. And lastly, no matter what time it is, never talk to someone with your back facing them; always turn around, and only answer them once you see their face. Never speak to someone who has their back turned to you.”

Li Huowang frowned slightly upon hearing these rules. The last two made him feel that something was amiss.

“What happens if I end up breaking these rules? What will happen?” asked Li Huowang.

“Break the rules?!” The village chief’s eyes widened fully, and then he confidently continued, “You’ll be fined, of course! A silver piece each time you break the rules! Even more if it’s a repeat offense! You will be fined until you dare not break them anymore! Don’t think that I’m bullying you just because you are outsiders. Even our own villagers are treated the same way.”

Li Huowang felt that he had some sort of misconception. Could it be that he had misunderstood something?

At that moment, Li Huowang felt someone tugging at the hem of his robes, causing him to look back at the goateed elder. He nodded as he said, “Rest assured, Elder. We are reasonable people.”

“That’s good. I wouldn’t have bothered helping all of you if not for the fact that I saw you traveling with two kids. I’m getting old; I can’t bear seeing children suffer,” said the chief. Then, he turned around and walked back to the courtyard.

Meanwhile, the two horse carriages stopped within the courtyard, while Li Huowang’s group brought their bedding into the musty and smelly west wing.

By the time they were done cleaning and arranging everything, the sun was already setting in the west.

At that moment, the chief came in with a smile. “Ah, youngsters, are you going to have dinner here? I’ll get my wife to prepare some extra.”

Have dinner?

Li Huowang's heart tightened. Others' food wasn't usually so delicious to eat.

Li Huowang thought for a moment, then nodded, "Thank you, Elder."

Then, he glanced at Xiaoman as he watched the elder leave with hands behind his back. "Go to the kitchen and help the host family."

"Alright." Xiaoman nodded and left.

The village chief had a large family—six sons, two daughters, and even more grandchildren. Thus, dinner-time was a bustling affair with over a dozen people.

This was also the reason why he dared to take Li Huowang's group in. In the village, nobody dared to provoke those who had a lot of sons.

Even though they stayed in a massive mansion, the Wu Family's dinner was quite simple. They were having plain steamed rice along with their own homegrown vegetables. It seemed rather miserly.

By the time Li Huowang arrived, they had already started eating—they didn't have any notion of a host having to wait for the guests. In fact, many of the plates were already empty.

"The rice is over there, so help yourselves. We don't have too many formalities when we are eating," said the chief.

Li Huowang shook his head. "No problem."

He led his group to the corner where the steamer was placed as he started counting in his head. Just as he had counted to ten, the sound of bowls shattering rang out behind him.

When he turned around, he saw the dozens of people, including the village chief, all lying on the floor, unconscious.

Hehe, that peddler's knockout drugs are quite effective. You truly get what you pay for.

He didn't bother checking whether these people were under the so-called Eighteenth Lunar's manipulation or whether they were plotting against him. After all, whoever struck first held the advantage.

Then, with a wave of his hand, the others quickly rushed toward the east wing of the main house to search for clues.

"Start with anything written, then look for other abnormal objects. Pay extra attention to the strange things, like Buddhist amulets or Deities. I want to see what they are up to!" Li Huowang instructed.

They searched everywhere, even flipping through the entire courtyard as a group, yet they found nothing. There was nothing unusual.

How could there be nothing?

Li Huowang stood in the hall, frowning as he thought about these questions.

After an entire day's work, he hadn't found anything in the bizarre forest besides this village.

Could the Eighteenth Lunar be in the forest we were in previously? No, I checked there already. This village is surrounded by the bamboo forest. If the Eighteenth Lunar is hiding, then it must be here.

"Does finding their silver count for anything?" Puppy carried out some silver pieces. However, he sighed helplessly when he saw Li Huowang merely glance at him, and then dejectedly carried the silver back.

Li Huowang noticed the dusky color of the sky, and then instructed again, "Bring the fire starter and start a fire."

"Senior Li, weren't we told not to light any fires?" Bai Lingmiao was confused.

Hearing this, Li Huowang's eyes narrowed, while his right hand touched the row of torture tools on his waist. "I want to see what happens after I light it."

If there were any other suspicious things about this village, than they would be the rules mentioned by the goateed man.

Whoosh~

The candle lantern found from the search earlier was rapidly lit on fire, illuminating the entire Wu Family courtyard.

In the hall filled with people lying on the floor, Li Huowang sat quietly and waited. The sky was gradually getting darker. There was no moon tonight; it was as though a giant black cloth was covering the sky.

However, the darkness fell just like that, and nothing happened.

“Ha~” Puppy yawned, then leaned against a pillar and started to doze off.

His yawns seemed to be contagious, making the others yawn as well.

At that moment, a trace of doubt appeared in Li Huowang’s heart as he looked at the unconscious Wu Family members lying on the ground.

Could I have really come to the wrong place?

Just as he was starting to have such thoughts, a mischievous giggle sounded from beyond the courtyard wall, “Hehe, you broke the rules.”

Chapter 90 - Girl

“Hehe, you broke the rules,” a soft and somewhat feminine voice rang out.

In that moment, Li Huowang could not help but recall that ‘girl’ with tiny feet who had summoned the God of Happiness. This voice was quite similar to hers.

Li Huowang and the others walked out from inside the house to the courtyard, their faces covered in wariness. Once outside, they saw a small head propped up on top of the wall to the left of the house.

From the looks of it, she was a yellow-haired girl who appeared to be only about five to six years old. She giggled as she looked inside.

Her hair was tied into tall pigtails with the help of a red string.

Red!

Li Huowang’s heart raced when he saw the red string that tied her hair.

Could this child be the Eighteenth Lunar?

Li Huowang pondered for a moment as he watched the giggling girl. Then, he spoke, “I might have broken the rules, but you aren’t doing much better than me. Aren’t you not allowed to go outside during the night? Why are you still out here?”

“I’m a child. You adults aren’t allowed to go out, but us kids can go outside and play.” She didn’t show any hostility toward Li Huowang’s group.

Then, she shifted her head to one side and continued as she grinned, “If you give me some candy, then I won’t report you.”

Meanwhile, the others stared at the child’s head in surprise. The wall of the Wu Family’s courtyard stood quite tall at about six meters. However, this girl's head was moving around on the wall quite effortlessly, meaning that she was not using a ladder and was just standing there!

Li Huowang looked at the small head, as well as the tall, dusty wall beneath it. He couldn't imagine what a child would look like with a regular-sized head and a six-meter-tall body.

She might look like a stick insect?

"Hehe, are you going to give me candy? If not, then I'm going to shout for someone," the girl on the wall continued.

"Yes, of course. But, I don't have the candy on me right now. I have to go and get it first," Li Huowang replied. Then, he turned to Puppy beside him and softly whispered some instructions to him.

Fear appeared on Puppy's face as he listened to Li Huowang's instructions, but he eventually nodded when Li Huowang passed the bronze bell to him. He turned around and headed into the house.

"Alright, he's going in to bring back some candy. Let's wait a while and chat to pass the time," said Li Huowang.

"Sure! I like chatting." The girl seemed very innocent.

Li Huowang kept his tone quite cordial when talking to this questionable being. "Which family are you from? How come we didn't see you at the village entrance earlier?"

"I don't know which family I belong to. They all say I'm the child of the Stove God. But I'm obviously not like that Stove God pasted on the wall," she replied.

"Oh? You aren't like the Stove God? In my eyes, you are rather similar, what with your love for candy. I remember back when we used to offer sacrifices, my grandpa would often smear some pastries onto the portrait's mouth." As Li Huowang spoke, his right hand quietly touched the red bamboo slip on his back.

The pigtails on her head swayed as she shook her head, "You're making things up. The Stove God obviously has four pairs of eyes, five hands, and no legs. Tell me, just how do I look like him?"

Everyone felt a chill run down their spines when they heard her description. This was completely different from the Stove God that they knew of.

“Little girl, are you making things up? How can the Stove God have five hands and no legs? Then, how does he walk?”

Upon seeing Li Huowang’s deliberate questioning, the girl started growing more and more agitated. “How am I making things up? I saw it with my own eyes. Besides, who says you need legs to walk? The Stove God can have red sausages burrow out from its belly button to serve as legs.”

Just as she finished speaking, Puppy’s voice rang out from the other side of the wall. “Senior Li!! This brat doesn’t have a body! She only has a head!”

Swoosh~

The girl’s head quickly withdrew down the wall, causing Puppy to let out a terrified scream.

“Ring the bell!” Li Huowang gritted his teeth and quickly dashed toward the entrance of the Wu Family’s courtyard.

By the time they arrived on the other side of the wall, Puppy was already kneeling on the ground and kowtowing constantly while trembling and wailing loudly. His pants were also soaking wet.

Li Huowang looked at the dark alleys around him, then came to Puppy’s side and pulled him up. Then, he snatched back the bronze bell and shouted, “Stop kowtowing and tell me where it ran off to!”

Hearing this, Puppy shakily pointed toward the east.

Seeing this, Li Huowang threw him aside, then carried his sword in one hand and a lantern in the other as he dashed in that direction.

Amidst the pitch-black surroundings, everything around them seemed to look like man-eating creatures that were brandishing their claws in the space between darkness and light.

Even after chasing for a while, Li Huowang could not catch up to that female head. He came to an unfamiliar area that seemed to be the end of the village. The bamboo forest was visible just in the distance.

Li Huowang cursed under his breath due to his lack of any discoveries before turning back to gather with the others who were just approaching with lanterns in their hands.

No matter what that girl was, he could tell one thing clearly. Even if that wasn't the Eighteenth Lunar, they should be closely related. He had not been mistaken; the Eighteenth Lunar was here.

When Li Huowang walked closer to the group, he was stunned momentarily. These people were indeed his companions, but they were all standing still on the spot, carrying their lanterns, and had their backs uniformly facing him.

"What are you guys doing??" Li Huowang cautiously took a step back as he tightened his grip on the bell.

Right after he spoke, everyone turned around.

Their faces had changed! Every single face was the same as that girl's face!

Then, these identical female faces smiled simultaneously. "Hehehe, you once again broke the rules. If you don't give me any candy, then I'm going to tell the others, and they will come looking for you."

Ring, ring, ring~~!!

At that moment, the piercing sound of the bell rang out loud, immediately causing those figures to be chased away.

The piercing sound of the bell was particularly noticeable in the darkness. Not long after, Li Huowang saw his people gather toward him. This time, their faces were not replaced by that girl's face.

After he carefully verified their identities by asking them about information that only the disciples from the Zephyr Temple would know, he heaved a sigh of relief. These really were his people.

"Senior Li, what's going on? What happened?" asked one of them.

"Nothing, it was just an illusion," Li Huowang shook his head and surveyed the darkness around them. After confirming that nothing was unusual, he led them back on the path they came from.

However, not long after they left, a pair of blood-red eyes appeared within the darkness.

Chapter 91 - Li Huowang

Their surroundings were eerily silent on their way back—there were no sounds besides their footsteps. Unsurprisingly, everyone was tense while walking through such an eerie place.

They had not yet walked far when the sound of footsteps stopped. Li Huowang and the rest had stopped and were scanning their dark surroundings when a pair of glowing green eyes suddenly appeared within the darkness.

No, it was not a pair but an entire group of green eyes. Due to the darkness, they couldn't see what the creatures were. Their green eyes, both large and small, stared at them unblinkingly. Looking at these eyes, Li Huowang and the others felt as if there was a monster with numerous eyes on its body within the darkness.

“Fuck!” Having been tricked by it so many times, Li Huowang snarled in irritation. Then, he pulled out the red bamboo slip from behind his back and unfurled it in front of him.

Li Huowang raised his right index finger and placed it on the edge of the sharp bamboo slip before ripping out one of his fingernails and shooting it outward, blood trailing behind it as it flew into the darkness.

The fingernail managed to find its mark, causing a woeful shriek to be heard—one of the eyes within the darkness was gone.

However, Li Huowang was not satisfied with this. Soon, he used three more fingernails, finally getting rid of all of the eyes within the darkness. At the same time, a repulsive stench filled the air.

When the group walked over to where the eyes had been with their lanterns in hand, they bore witness to a bloody mess.

At that moment, Li Huowang and the rest finally realized what the eyes were. They were not supernatural beings; instead, they were just some random forest critters like a hedgehog, a fox, and a lynx. But now, they were dead and their bodies torn into numerous pieces.

Li Huowang was extremely cautious. He did not think they were dead and so he raised his leg and stomped down hard on the head of the fox beside him.

“What a stupid rule! It’s nothing but bullshit! If that thing was able to fight us fair and square, would it need to resort to such tricks? We can’t fall for its tricks and dance to its own tune. Let’s return!” said Li Huowang.

After walking for fifteen minutes, they finally saw the Wu Family’s courtyard.

“Li Huowang!” At that moment, a faraway voice was heard, causing all of them to stop.

“Who’s there?!” Li Huowang shouted and turned around, staring into the darkness; however, he didn’t see anything.

“Keep playing your tricks! But remember, one of these days you will fail! Eighteenth Lunar, I swear that I will have your eyes!” he shouted.

After shouting his threats, he brought the rest of them into the bright courtyard of the Wu family.

Soon, the goateed village head who was previously unconscious on the ground was tied to a pillar and a bowl of cold soup was splashed on his face.

“Cough cough~!” When Wu Qing gradually opened his eyes groggily and saw the faces that were filled with hostility, he was extremely frightened. “You guys are bandits!!”

“Piak!” A palm slapped across his face, causing half of his face to become inflamed. At the same time, Wu Qing was left stunned by the impact.

“Talk! Where is the Eighteenth Lunar?! What is your relationship with it?”

“What are you guys talking about? Let... Let me be clear about one thing; this is the Wu Family village, and everyone here has the surname Wu! Think wisely before you act!” said Wu Qing.

When he saw Wu Qing still trying to feign ignorance, he smiled, revealing his white teeth. “Old man, I’m trying to be courteous here instead of resorting to violence. The Eighteenth Lunar’s capture is going to quite literally determine my life. If you continue to protect it, don’t blame me when I accidentally hurt you.”

As he said that, he raised his bloody right hand that was missing its fingernails, using it to pat the interrogation tools hanging from his waist. “I don’t intend to just use these on myself. In certain situations, these things might be able to act as keys that open the hearts of those I capture!”

When she heard him say such a thing, Bai Lingmiao took a step forward with a worried expression on her face. However, Xiaoman pulled her back and gently shook her head.

“What... What are you guys saying? What Eighteenth Lunar? The Qingming Festival happened just a while ago, so it’s still quite some time before the twelfth month. Young man, please, spare me. Please take pity on this old man.” Wu Qing’s face was pale from fear.

When he saw Wu Qing continued lying, he whipped out one of the torture tools with his right hand. It was a pikehead with numerous hooks. Then, he smiled viciously as he held the horrifying pikehead and slowly placed it on Wu Qing’s scapula.

Wu Qing was visibly frightened as he started shouting in a panic and thrashed against his restraints. Even so, he did not say anything related to the Eighteenth Lunar.

Just as the sharp edge of the pikehead tore through Wu Qing’s clothes, a large hand pressed down on his wrist. “It’s fine. Looks like he really doesn't know anything."

"How do you know? This man is clearly suspicious. The moment we entered the village, he bombarded us with rules. He must know about the Eighteenth Lunar!"

"Calm down. You weren't so aggressive in the past. You are becoming more and more like Dan Yangzi," commented the owner of the large hand.

Hearing that, he paused. For some reason, he was becoming more and more cruel without him even knowing it; slowly, he was becoming just like the damned Baldy that used to refine living people into pills.

He quickly kept away the pikehead and turned around. "Thank you, Senior Li. If you hadn't said it, then I might not have noticed it."

At that moment, what he saw in front of him was Li Huowang, wearing a Daoist robe stained in blood as he revealed a familiar smile.

"We are in the same boat here. No need for such polite words. What we should do now is to plan out our next steps, since we don't have any clues," said Li Huowang.

Hearing this, he turned around and stared at the old man that had almost fainted.

Even though he knew that it was Dan Yangzi's influence that was causing him to act so rashly, he also knew that he was running out of time.

If he couldn't find the Eighteenth Lunar, then he would never be able to get rid of Dan Yangzi who was possessing him. Then, all he would be able to do was slowly see himself turn into Dan Yangzi. He couldn't afford to wait any more!

"Why don't we ask the other villagers when the day comes? Maybe they know something," Puppy suggested.

"Alright, it's been a long night and everyone is tired. We should stop for today. I will go and ask the villagers once it's daytime," said Li Huowang.

Hearing what Li Huowang had said, he decided not to say anything else as he walked back to his room.

When he woke up the next day, he saw that the rest of his senior brothers and sisters were already up and about.

When he exited the room, he was surprised to see that everyone was acting normally as they ate congee with the Wu family despite how he had treated Wu Qing the night before.

"Come here and eat. I've already told the village head about your situation. The village head is not the type to hold grudges," said Li Huowang as he looked at him.

Chapter 92 - The Eighteenth Lunar

Hearing Li Huowang's words, Wu Qing grunted; his face was still half swollen from the previous night. Then, he pulled out a stool and took his bowl before sitting with his back facing the youth that just exited the room.

"Hoh. He makes it look like I'm the one who holds grudges instead. Senior Li, you must've used a lot of silver just to convince him right?" he asked mockingly before walking into the hall and picking up a yellow steamed cornbread from the bowl and munching on it.

"Hey! You brat, how can you be so disrespectful? Did your mother not teach you to be polite?" demanded Wu Qing. Since he had Li Huowang supporting him, he was not as cowardly as yesterday when he was tied to the pillar.

Hearing the old man disrespecting his mother, the anger in his heart exploded.

Jiang!~

He instantly unsheathed his sharp sword and pointed it at Wu Qing's goatee. "I dare you to say that one more time!"

"What are you doing?!" shouted Wu Qing's six sons and eight grandsons as they placed their bowls down. Then, they stood up, rolled their sleeves, and circled him.

"Fuck! Do you think I'm afraid of you guys? I dare you to take one more step! I've already killed hundreds of people and I don't mind adding a few more to that list. Come closer and try me!" he shouted. Seeing the hostility of the Wu family made him feel extremely irritated as his heart beat faster.

“Put down your sword and stand outside!” A loud voice interjected.

At that moment, when he saw Li Huowang’s hardened face, he knew that Senior Li was really angry. He stared daggers at the Wu family as he sheathed the sword and walked toward the door.

Senior Li’s voice sounded behind him. “Old man, you know how young people are. They don’t even have a mustache but still love to boast. He’s just lying. He has never killed a single person.”

“Hmph! You think I couldn’t see what kind of boy he is? All bark but no bite. Who does he think he is? Nothing but an inexperienced chick. Heck, the amount of salt I’ve eaten throughout my life is probably more than the amount of rice he has eaten in his life,” said Wu Qing.

Hearing the old man say that, he angrily turned around.

So what if I’m young? Just because I’m fourteen, am I not a man? That old man is nothing but hot air either!

At that moment, he saw Li Huowang’s cold gaze trained on him, causing his heart to skip a beat as he hurriedly ran out.

The village was covered in a faint white fog early in the morning. As he stretched, he felt the crisp air around him. Then, he rolled up his sleeves and squatted down to look at the ants on the ground.

“You there. Monk, what are you squatting down there for?” a voice rang out behind him.

He stood up and straightened his yellow monk robes before politely placing his palms together as he talked to the white-haired girl in front of him. “Amitabha. I am doing Vipassana.”

“Hoho, what an interesting monk, just like a child. You are only looking at the ants moving their nest and yet you are still able to say that you are doing Vipassana.”

When he saw the girl’s white eyelashes fluttering, the monk slipped into confusion, as if he was reminded of something. But just as he did, he lowered his head and chanted some sutra, while vowing to never again set his eyes on the girl in front of him who had shaken his heart so easily.

“Then continue on with your Vipassana, goodbye.” said the white haired girl.

Looking at the girl entering into the Wu Family courtyard, he saw that there were many other unfamiliar faces inside. “Did the village head have guests? Why do I not remember him saying anything about that?”

The monk stood there silently as he stared at the weird looking guests. Then, he suddenly slapped his head.

“What am I doing? Why am I acting like the aunties in the village who likes to gossip? I’ve already become a monk and should not be doing this sort of thing. I should just continue chanting my sutras.” The monk swiftly turned around as he thumbed his prayer beads and slowly walked back to his temple.

He walked on and on before encountering a pile of dung on the ground. However, even before he even got close to it, a child with a bamboo basket on his back ran over, picked up the cow dung, and threw it into the bamboo basket. “This dung was made by my family’s cow! It’s mine!”

He panicked when he heard that. “What do you mean it’s your family’s cow?! I can say the same as well! This is my cow dung!”

Hearing this, the child in front of him made a funny face toward him. “Shameless~ You are already so old but you still want to fight with a child over cow dung.”

Hearing this, his old face turned red as he raised his walking stick; he wanted to give that impolite child a good beating.

Looking at the child running away while still making funny faces at him, he chuckled. “Hah! I’m already so old; why am I still fighting with a child?”

With his walking stick, he slowly walked into the small courtyard that he had lived in for his entire life. There, he sat on the rocking chair and watched as the leaves slowly fell from the trees while he reminisced his entire life.

Just then, his old neighbor's voice came from his door. "Old man~ You are already eighty-four this year. The King of Hell might not have called you over just yet, but shouldn't it already be your time? Hahaha~"

"Hey! You silly old thing! All you know how to do is to curse me. It's almost as if you think I can't curse you back too," he shouted.

Just as he was about to stand up from his rocking chair, he felt a strange feeling in his heart.

It was his time.

He had always heard other old folks saying that everyone would know the exact moment their death was approaching. To think that it was true.

He felt everything around him becoming smaller and smaller while he slowly floated up. His body was light and he felt cozy. "Is this what death feels like?"

But then, everything changed. His surroundings became twisted, and even his wrinkled face became twisted as well.

His face continued changing; from a youth, to a monk with a scar on his head, to an old lady.

Finally, after changing a few times, his face returned back to that of a young man.

At that moment, he was stunned by the familiar yet unfamiliar white walls in front of him. Three questions popped up in his mind.

Where am I? Where is this? What am I doing?

Just then, two patients walked past his window as they talked.

"I'm not the same as you guys. I'm not mental, I just have a neurological disorder. This means that my brain and neurons were slightly altered. To be called mental due to just that is downright derogatory! There, look at him. Little Li is a true mental patient. He talks to himself and inflicts self-harm every single day.”

“No need to talk about him. What a poor lad, to be afflicted by such an ailment even though he’s still so young.”

“As if Li Huowang that brat would hop out of his bed and scold me. Wait... that’s actually not bad. I would rather get scolded.”

“Li Huowang?” In an instant, Li Huowang recalled everything. He pieced everything together and immediately realized what had happened.

Instantly, Li Huowang’s confused face was filled with hostility as he bellowed in rage. “I’m not some fucking monk nor am I an old man! I’m Li Huowang! That fucking Eighteenth Lunar stole my identity!”

Chapter 93 - Red

Li Huowang sat on his bed, recalling what had just happened.

He had never expected the Eighteenth Lunar to be even more bizarre than all the other supernatural beings that he had encountered in the past. To think that it could change its victim's sense of self and identity itself, swapping it out with someone else's identity completely.

It could even shift the stolen identity to that of someone else!

When he had been given the identity of the dying old man, he might've truly died.

At that time, even Dan Yangzi, who was possessing his body, wouldn't have realized that he was dying.

But the Eighteenth Lunar could never have expected Li Huowang to be someone with a mental illness. Changing the identity of someone who was constantly battling with their own hallucinations was never going to be easy.

To think that the hallucinations that Li Huowang had been trying so desperately to cure had become the key to escaping the Eighteenth Lunar's control.

The Eighteenth Lunar might be skillful, but the best it could do was change its victims' sense of self. Unfortunately, Li Huowang was a Strayed One, someone who had two different cognitions.

Looking at the patients sunbathing outside, Li Huowang did not act immediately, instead thinking about his next plan of action.

I can't just wait like this. The Eighteenth Lunar might try to change my sense of self once again after the hallucination disappears. I need to somehow affect the reality over there while still being in my hallucination.

Luckily, Li Huowang still had some cards up his sleeves. After his previous encounters with the hallucinations, he knew that whatever happened within the hallucination would happen in real life as well.

At the same time, he had also learned a bit more about the Eighteenth Lunar.

Li Huowang retraced the path he had walked just now. He needed to go back to the Wu Family's courtyard and notify everyone about the fake Li Huowang!

The Eighteenth Lunar had resorted to trickery from the very beginning, never showing itself even once. That meant that it was probably quite weak in direct confrontations.

As long as Li Huowang could deal with its trickery, he would be able to summon the Wandering Gods and easily defeat it. In terms of actual combat ability, the Eighteenth Lunar might be even weaker than the 'girl' with tiny feet that he had encountered before.

After thinking his plan through, he was just about to stand up when he realized that both his hands were tied to the bed.

But this was inconsequential to Li Huowang. He knew everything about the hallucination.

Li Huowang faced the microphone and imitated the previous him, "Which beautiful lady is on duty today? Please come and untie me. I need to use the toilet."

Soon, a chubby nurse burst into the ward and untied Li Huowang. "Oh dear! Little Li, are you finally back to yourself? Why were you trapped in the hallucination for so long? Gosh, you scared me. I thought you would never come back! Wait just a moment. I will go and contact Yang Na. Your little girlfriend will be jumping with joy when she finds out that you are back to normal. Just so you know, she cried so many times while you were trapped in your hallucination."

Li Huowang did not react to her words. No matter how beautiful it was, this was still a hallucination.

Abbess Jingxin had told him that the hearts of the Strayed Ones were filled with a sense of doubt and confusion; however, Li Huowang did not agree. In fact, he was even more aware of everything and would never think that a hallucination was real.

When the nurse went out to call the doctor, Li Huowang jumped down from the bed and retraced his steps, running as fast as he could.

Li Huowang was very familiar with the hospital, so he easily managed to escape to the outside.

He ignored the whistles from the guards in the courtyard, running all the way to the road outside.

This is nothing but a hallucination!

Li Huowang paid the hallucination no mind. Bai Lingmiao and the rest were still under the control of the Eighteenth Lunar. They were in danger.

As he stepped out onto the road, Li Huowang's blue and white hospital gown attracted everyone's attention, causing the bystanders to whip out their phones and start recording him.

"Huh? What's wrong with this guy? He's barefoot as well. Is he not cold?"

"Look, the name of the hospital is stitched onto his gown. Oh no, he ran out from a mental hospital! Should we call the police?"

"Did he truly? Maybe he's an influencer? They would do just about anything to get famous."

Fake! Everything's fake! I've been fooled by everyone here once; I will not get fooled again.

Li Huowang clenched his teeth so hard that his gums started bleeding.

He ran on the road in a specific pattern, taking very specific turns. Soon, he arrived at the location that he remembered as the Wu Family's courtyard. However, in the hallucination, he was in the middle of the road.

Even though there were cars passing by him continuously, Li Huowang was not afraid. He knew that this was only a hallucination, and the cars would never hit him.

At that moment, Li Huowang faced the cars and shouted, “Bai Lingmiao! Quick! Take the bronze bell and ring it! Summon the Wandering Gods! The Li Huowang beside you is a fake! Have the Wandering Gods attack him!”

BEEP BEEP BEEP!

Thanks to Li Huowang, a traffic jam had started to occur on the road.

The cars were honking loudly, but Li Huowang smiled. Bai Lingmiao had followed his instructions. The honking of the cars in the hallucination must mean that someone was ringing the bronze bell back in reality.

Just then, one of the drivers in a red supercar stretched his head out from inside his car window and shouted angrily, “Crazy bastard! Get off the road! Scram, or else I will cripple you!”

Li Huowang whipped his head around and gazed at the red supercar. For some reason, he felt like the car was gazing at him.

He walked over and revealed his white teeth as he lowered his head toward the red supercar. “Hehe, so this is what your real body looks like within my hallucination? Eighteenth Lunar! I have finally found you!”

The Eighteenth Lunar that had never appeared in the village had now appeared in front of Li Huowang in this form. Needless to say, he was ecstatic.

Li Huowang continued shouting to his ‘invisible’ comrades. “Everyone look here! No matter what is in front of me, attack it! This thing is the Eighteenth Lunar!”

Just then, the driver saw the name of the mental hospital stitched to the left side of Li Huowang’s gown. He was terrified as he sat back down and hastily rolled up the window; all of his bravado was gone as he dialed the police with trembling hands.

“Hello? 110? Come quick! There’s an escaped mental patient on the roundabout! Yes, the roundabout beside Fulma. Come quick!” said the driver.

Li Huowang was just about to step onto the hood of the red supercar when he stopped.

Everyone in the hallucination saw Li Huowang turn his head as he stared at a red e-bike a distance away. The feeling of being watched that Li Huowang had felt from the red supercar was now gone, and he could feel it from the e-bike instead.

Oh no! The Eighteenth Lunar is trying to escape after being found out!

“Trying to run? Don’t think you can escape from me! Everyone follow me! That thing must be injured! It’s becoming smaller and smaller!” shouted Li Huowang as he ran toward the red e-bike.

Chapter 94 - Bewilderment

Li Huowang chased after anything red as he ran on the road. He constantly felt the Eighteenth Lunar changing its location as he chased after it. Sometimes it took the form of a red hat, while at other times, it was a red store sign. But no matter how many times it changed, Li Huowang still chased after it fervently and never lost sight of it. He had finally gotten a chance to kill it, so he would never give up so easily. After all, whether or not he would be released from Dan Yangzi's grasp depended on whether or not he could obtain the Eighteenth Lunar's eyes.

He also realized something bizarre while chasing the Eighteenth Lunar. The thing somehow didn't have an eyelid. It had no choice but to look at everything within its field of vision, even itself.

What a weird being. I wonder what it looks like back in reality?

Li Huowang silently thought to himself as he chased after it.

Thanks to him chasing it so intensely, Li Huowang was getting closer and closer to the Eighteenth Lunar. Five meters ... Three meters ... One meter!

Li Huowang suddenly raised his right hand and leapt, pouncing toward the red-colored blob right in front of him.

However, just as he was about to capture it, a hand grabbed his wrist and stopped him. "Li... Li Huowang? Are you Li Huowang from the second year, class four?"

Li Huowang glared at the one holding his wrist. The one who stopped him was a bald man in his fifties.

The man propped his square glasses up and continued talking.

“Have you forgotten me? I’m your class teacher. Where are your shoes?”

Li Huowang gazed at the familiar face and uttered unconsciously. “Teacher Tong?”

“I recall that your mother submitted the notice to terminate your studies due to your disease. Why are you out here, running in a hospital gown? Are you okay?” Teacher Tong was very worried as he tidied up Li Huowang’s collar that was within the hospital gown.

Staring at the teacher who had helped him so much during his school life, Li Huowang felt quite conflicted. But he calmed down soon enough, shaking off his teacher’s hand as he ran toward the red object that had gotten further away.

“Fake! Everything is a hallucination! Don’t think you can fool me! Everything is fake!” shouted Li Huowang.

Staring at Li Huowang running further and further away, Teacher Tong was worried as he whipped out his phone. “Hello, is this Li Huowang’s mother? I’m his math teacher from his high school. Yes, that’s right. Glad to hear from you as well. I just saw your son on Lotus Street; he was running around without any shoes. Yes, that’s right, I’m sure it’s him. I’ve taught for so long, and I never confuse my students. Mm hmm.”

Meanwhile, Li Huowang’s eyes were bloodshot as he scanned left and right on the street, trying to find the Eighteenth Lunar. He was currently holding a broken piece of glass that he had picked up from somewhere. “Goddammit! Where is it?”

He completely ignored the police sirens. He knew that they too were fake.

He was searching for the Eighteenth Lunar in a frenzy when he suddenly stopped in front of a building with the image of a deer drawn on it. Children were doing their morning exercises in the field. When he saw a small streak of red amongst the children’s clothes, Li Huowang laughed like a maniac. “Hahaha! I found you!”

The toy-like metal fence could not stop Li Huowang at all as he leaped over it with ease.

A female teacher ran toward him to try and stop him, but was punched in the face, causing horrified shrieks to ring out all around him.

However, Li Huowang ignored everyone else and just grabbed a girl in his iron grip as he glared intensely at the red sakura hair clip in the girl's hair.

On the other hand, the girl was visibly shaken with her lips trembling and tears welling up in her eyes.

"Still trying to trick me? You will never be able to fool me!" Li Huowang shouted in rage.

Just then the police sirens got closer. The sound of tires screeching soon rang out in front of the building. "Stop! Police, put up your hands!"

Li Huowang turned around and saw two police cars. There were several policemen squatting down with their guns aimed at him!

Li Huowang looked at the Eighteenth Lunar in his hand and then stared at them. He smiled coldly. "Trying to trick me again? This is fake! Everything is fake!"

The girl in Li Huowang's arm started crying even louder.

Just as Li Huowang was about to end the Eighteenth Lunar with his own hands, a figure suddenly ran out from the surrounding crowd and stood between him and the gun. "Stop! Don't shoot! Don't shoot! He's my son! He... He's always been a good son. He turned into this because of an illness. Please... please let me talk to him, alright? He will listen to me... He will listen to me for sure... He's my good son."

Hearing the familiar voice, Li Huowang stopped his hands. Then, he saw the figure with whitening hair slowly turn around. It was none other than his mother, Sun Xiaoqin. But... her face looked very disheveled. Compared to the last time he had seen her, she looked like she had aged quite a lot.

Looking at her son behind the iron fence, Sun Xiaoqin tried to force out a smile but ultimately failed. Her warm tears fell as she pleaded. “My good son, please listen to your mother. Let the little girl down, alright? Let’s go home. You can play video games for as long as you want. I will not stop you.”

Li Huowang once more felt conflicted. He stared at his mother, who looked ever so real, and then gazed back to the Eighteenth Lunar in his hand.

Just as Sun Xiaoqin gingerly walked toward Li Huowang, he took a step back, his face twisting in pain. “No, no this is fake! Everything is fake! All of these things are just hallucinations made by the Eighteenth Lunar! The world over there is real! I will not let the hallucinations control me again!”

Li Huowang tried to persuade himself but he couldn’t move the sharp glass in his hand. His breathing turned rapid as his pupils dilated and shrank over and over.

Meanwhile, Sun Xiaoqin slowly closed in on the fence, to the point that she could almost touch it, and then she slowly kneeled down. “Son, please... Please stop. We sold our house because of you. We don’t have any money left for compensation.”

Her words broke Li Huowang. He hugged the girl in front of him and cried, tears streaking down his face.

“Mom!” Veins started to bulge on his face as he opened his mouth and shouted. Saliva and tears dripped down onto the floor tiles with the image of a kids’ cartoon.

Then, looking at his mother in front of him, he took a deep breath and shouted out everything he had kept in his heart, including his struggle and confusion.

“MOM! I CAN’T! I REALLY CAN’T DETERMINE WHICH SIDE IS REAL!!”

Chapter 95 - Pain

“I really can’t... I really don’t know... I really don’t know which side is real...” Li Huowang knelt down in the field of the kindergarten as he hugged the girl tightly, his eyes filled with confusion.

Was this reality or was this a hallucination? Was this real or was this fake? Li Huowang couldn’t differentiate it at all.

Li Huowang had once argued with Abbess Jingxin when she said that a Strayed One’s heart was filled with a sense of doubt and confusion.

But now, seeing Sun Xiaoqin kneeling on the other side of the fence, he finally understood what Abbess Jingxin meant when she said that.

A Strayed One could never change. No matter which side they chose, they would always be enveloped in their own sense of doubt and confusion.

This was their fate, and none could escape.

Just then, a tiny hand holding a small handkerchief touched his face, gently drying his tears.

Li Huowang trembled as he lowered his head. He saw the cute little girl who was carefully wiping away his tears.

“Don’t cry, uncle,” said the little girl.

Looking at her cute little face, Li Huowang realized that the girl was also a living person.

He had almost killed an innocent little girl. A deep sense of guilt surged from the depths of his heart.

But what if it's the Eighteenth Lunar? Kill her!

When this thought appeared in his head, he started to feel an immense amount of disgust for himself. “Shut up! Shut up! Did you ever consider that this child is a living person! Is your life more precious than hers? She's a normal person! And you? Li Huowang, you are nothing but a mental person! You are useless! How could you even think about exchanging her life for yours?!"

The piece of glass in Li Huowang's hand creaked as he held onto it tightly despite the palm of his hand getting cut open by its sharp edges.

His sudden outburst shocked everyone, causing them all to take a step back.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang visualized two people fighting inside of his mind. The hallucination was tormenting him so badly that he could barely breathe.

He wanted to die. As long as he died, he wouldn't have to live in so much pain.

There was no reason for an insane person like him to be alive. Everyone would benefit from his death in one form or another. His mom would no longer be burdened by him, and Dan Yangzi would not be able to revive through his body.

"Stand down. Put down your guns. Young man, can I talk to you?" Someone's voice came from outside the kindergarten.

It was a middle-aged man talking through a loudspeaker. He was wearing casual clothes with his pot-belly bulging out. Li Huowang didn't know who it was, but seeing how the other police officers slowly lowered their guns, he knew that the man in front of him was someone of high rank.

Just as Li Huowang turned around, the man held the loudspeaker in his left hand as he raised his right. "Uh, young man, you know what they say—"

As he talked halfway, his right index finger curled lightly.

Pew!

A sniper round was fired from a faraway window hidden by a curtain, the bullet flying straight toward Li Huowang's head.

Just then, a profound feeling enveloped Li Huowang as he tensed up and twisted his head.

Bam!

Li Huowang's body trembled as his head flew backward and he fell onto the ground.

"MY SON!!" Sun Xiaoqin cried out in despair.

Li Huowang hit the back of his head hard—he could feel his ears ringing and see stars in front of his eyes.

Am I dead? But if I'm dead, why can I still think?

Just then, everything around him turned dark. At the same time, the buildings and the people around him transformed into a bamboo forest at dusk.

Li Huowang felt a burning sensation on his face. He had been injured.

But Li Huowang didn't have the time to care about that. He heard the familiar voice. The Eighteenth Lunar was still here, staring at him from somewhere within the bamboo forest.

However, when he looked around, he saw only bamboo. He was surrounded by bamboo while his lower body was stuck in the mud alongside decaying bamboo leaves.

"Li Huowang! Li Huowang!!" Different voices cried out from within the bamboo forest. He could hear Bai Lingmiao, Dan Yangzi, and even Li Zhi.

Li Huowang had thought that his comrades had followed his command and attacked the Eighteenth Lunar.

But from the looks of it, it was the other way around. For some reason, he was left behind.

At that moment, a familiar voice rang out from the depths of the bamboo forest. "Old man~ You are already eighty-four this year. The King of Hell might not have called you over just yet, but shouldn't it already be your time?"

The voice of his old neighbor rang out continuously from within the bamboo forest and it got louder and louder over time. Gradually, it started dominating Li Huowang's mind, trying to once again change his sense of self to that of the dying old man.

The sound of crunching leaves was heard from within the bamboo forest. Li Huowang caught glimpses of the little girl he saw yesterday as well as the Stove God that she had described.

The Eighteenth Lunar was not alone. It had helpers.

Li Huowang was still delirious about what had happened. His heart was being torn to ribbons due to his grief. But for some reason, he smiled despite the danger that was right in front of him.

"Did you know? You might think that you've won, but you never should have tried to kill me just now. Do you know just how much grief and pain is in my heart right now?" said Li Huowang.

Then, he curled up his trembling hand gripped at his heart as he shouted in pain, "IT'S SO PAINFUL THAT I WANT TO DIE!"

Immediately after saying that, Li Huowang pulled out the red bamboo slip from behind his back. The moment he opened it, Li Huowang felt the intense pain in his heart come to life as it resonated with the bamboo slip. The pain in his heart that had lessened when he came back to reality slowly started to build back up.

At the same time, the red bamboo slip suddenly started to transform as it sprouted roots. Then, the roots pierced through the ground and the bamboo leaves as they dyed everything around them red.

Li Huowang's mind almost crumbled from the pain. The pain in his heart had once again reached the peak that he experienced just moments ago.

But this was not enough. Since the bamboo slip had sprouted roots, now those roots needed to germinate. The pain in his heart was enough. All that was left was the pain felt by his physical body.

Li Huowang cried as his inner self slowly fell apart. Then, he reached out for his torture tools with both of his hands.

Seeing this, the Eighteenth Lunar's group tried to stop him; however, it was too late.

Chapter 96 - Ba-Hui's Descent

“It hurts.” His heart was in extreme pain, almost as if it were being sliced by a jagged knife. At the same time, the large cavity in Li Huowang’s abdomen was causing his body to tremble uncontrollably.

However, even as he suffered from the most extreme mental and physical pain, he was still smiling.

He smiled at the thing running out from within the bamboo forest. He recognized it. It was a mirror copy of himself. However, it had blood-red eyes.

Ka Ka Ka!

Li Huowang’s teeth clattered uncontrollably as he hooked his own intestines before pulling them out and dangling them in the air, almost like a bridge.

“AAAAAAH!!” Li Huowang raised the pikehead in his hand and shoved it into the red bamboo slip that was glowing with an eerie red light, all the while almost going crazy from the pain.

Jiang Jiang!

At that moment, a sinister black flame exploded out from it and covered the surroundings.

Immediately, Li Huowang’s five senses once again melded together; however, this time around, thanks to the intense pain, he felt that his senses were much more sensitive. This time around, he was able to sense everything even more clearly.

Once again, he could feel the presence of Ba-Hui who was high above in the heavens. He could feel its intoxicating presence.

While Ba-Hui just ignored Li Huowang, through sacrificing the pain he felt from his mental and physical state, he obtained something he needed from Ba-Hui, something profound.

With the descent of Ba-Hui's presence, Li Huowang's extreme pain was transformed into something else.

In the next instant, a surge of power started radiating from Li Huowang. It was an otherworldly power.

Everything around Li Huowang started to crack as even the very space itself was twisted apart and bent.

Then, Li Huowang raised the pikehead in his right hand and swiped it gently.

In that moment, the fabric of space was torn apart. The bamboo, the leaves, and anything living within it were all torn in half.

Meanwhile, the little girl's head was torn apart, revealing the numerous thumb-sized humanoid figures within, all of them having the same face as the little girl.

Those humanoid figures were just about to escape when all of them fell to their deaths in just a few steps.

Even though the Eighteenth Lunar was not in the direction that Li Huowang attacked, he could easily locate it with his melded senses. It was running east. Presently, all five heads of the Eighteenth Lunar were afraid; somehow, Li Huowang was capable of understanding its innermost thoughts.

Hearing the fearful cries emanating from its red eyes, Li Huowang laughed. He raised his arm and then stabbed his own abdomen with the pikehead.

In that instant, everything around him felt his pain; even the bamboo around him and the stones on the ground felt his pain. The inanimate objects started to twist and turn, becoming more and more horrifying to look at with each passing moment; they were all screaming in despair due to the pain they were experiencing.

Naturally, the Eighteenth Lunar was also caught up in this attack.

Originally, the Eighteenth Lunar was a being that didn't have a sense of pain. But thanks to Li Huowang's actions, it was now given the ability to sense pain.

At that moment, it regretted having offended such a person.

Unfortunately, an instant was all it took for it to be engulfed by the extreme pain, causing it to commit suicide from despair caused by the extreme pain.

When everything was over, Li Huowang's body slowly fell to his right side.

Every corner of his body was screaming in pain, but he was laughing—he didn't know why, but he was laughing.

"Surely I will die from such a serious wound, right? Hahaha!" muttered Li Huowang. He could feel his internal organs falling out from the cavity in his abdomen.

However, he didn't do anything about it.

"It's good that I'm dying! At least, there won't be any pain left when I die. I'm so tired... Why me... I... I really don't want to die... I just want to live a normal life like everyone else..." The dying Li Huowang slowly lost consciousness, his thoughts slowly dying down.

At the same time, his five senses slowly split apart and returned back to their normal functions.

Just before his senses were restored to normal, Li Huowang felt Ba-Hui glancing at him from above the heavens.

Then, everything turned dark.

He wasn't sure how long it had been before he heard the faint sound of a beating drum and footsteps. He could even hear the sound of a nurse rearranging the medicine ampules, causing him to feel irritated by all the noise.

"It's so noisy! Be quiet!" muttered Li Huowang.

When he opened his eyes in shock, he saw a cart filled with the glass ampules.

After some time had passed, Li Huowang finally realized that he was not dead; instead, he was within his hallucination.

Looking at the beeping machines around him, Li Huowang recognized that this was the ICU.

Was he happy that he hadn't died? No, rather than being happy, he felt regret.

Why am I not dead?

"Doctor! The patient in room twelve has woken up!" A voice was heard.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang disregarded the nurse's excited voice, trying to understand what was happening in the real world over there.

At that moment, he heard the door open and he closed his eyes, completely sealing away his senses from the world, waiting for the hallucination to pass.

But then, he heard a familiar voice. It was his main attending doctor at the mental hospital, Li Xiangguo. "Little Li, I know you are awake. Open your eyes and let's talk."

However, Li Huowang ignored him; he did not want to interact with anything within this hallucination.

"Yang Na has gotten a new boyfriend," continued Doctor Li.

Immediately, Li Huowang's eyes sprung open in shock. But all he saw was the doctor crossing his arms with a mischievous smile.

Seeing this, Li Huowang wanted to smash that conceited face in; however, it was only then that he realized that his right arm had been cuffed to the bed.

"Don't be rash. Yang Na hasn't gotten a new boyfriend. But you see? You will still react when something important occurs. So, why are you so conflicted?" The doctor, clad in white, took a stool and sat beside Li Huowang. "Let me guess, you thought that the other side was real, right?"

Instantly, Li Huowang's breathing started turning rapid as the machines around him started beeping as a warning. But in the end, he didn't say anything and just closed his eyes.

“Little Li, let's skip the pleasantries. Since you thought that the place over there is real, then let's talk about the world over there, shall we? Let me ask you this, which world is more illogical? Your world over there, or the one we are in right now?” asked Doctor Li.

Chapter 97 - Doctor Li

Li Huowang stared at his attending doctor and thought about it. “Which world is more illogical?”

He used his cuffed right hand to point toward the floor of the hospital, “This world is more illogical. This is fake!”

Doctor Li heard what Li Huowang had told him and was not the least bit surprised. He used his index finger to push his glasses up and continued talking, “Alright, then, why do you think this world is illogical? There must be a reason, right?”

Instead of answering immediately, he looked up at the white ceiling in a daze. After a while, he started speaking, “When I had taken the kid hostage, didn’t the police shoot me in the head? Then why am I still alive? Do I look like I have impenetrable skin? This is enough proof that this world is fake.”

At that moment, Li Huowang suddenly stopped, realizing that there was no value in arguing with someone inside his hallucination.

“Little Li, you were just very lucky. They were off their mark. Is there anyone out there who could always hit their targets with all of their shots?” said Doctor Li.

“Hmph! I was lucky? Do you really believe in such an irrational explanation?” Li Huowang smiled coldly.

“There are people out there who get struck by lightning while there are others who end up winning the lottery. While there are people with good luck, there are also others with bad luck. Why would you think that reality will always be fair? The world was never fair. But do you know why the others do not think that this world is fake just because they encountered some irrational situations? That’s because they are different from you,” said Doctor

Li.

Just then, Doctor Li took out his phone from his white coat and played a video for Li Huowang. “Why are you so adamant that the hallucination you are having is real? Let’s be real here, the things you encounter there must be even more irrational, right?”

“Dan Yangzi is dead!! He’s dead! You guys are free! Come out now!!”

Through the phone screen, Li Huowang saw a video of himself being restrained by a straitjacket while shouting in an empty room.

When Doctor Li saw that he finally managed to get Li Huowang’s attention, the doctor swiped the screen with his fingers and played another video. It too showed Li Huowang restrained within a straitjacket.

“Fake! The statues were all fake! Even the giant Buddha statue was fake! They must’ve cast an illusion spell! I know what I’ve seen and those filthy things were not some illusion! They will not be able to fool me!”

“Didn’t you hear what I just said? I want you to talk with Dan Yangzi himself.”

Various videos were played, each showing Li Huowang the things that he had spoken before.

When he saw the final video, Li Huowang’s pupils shrank. In the video, he was wearing a hospital gown with a crazy expression on his face. He had a wrench in his hand as he ran toward a shopping mall while shouting like a madman.

“Dan Yangzi! Don’t kill the children! You cannot kill the children!”

There was still a large part of the video left out, but the doctor just kept his phone without showing the rest of it.

“Look, compared to the things that you were experiencing on the other side, isn’t the fact that the sniper shot missed you more logical?” asked Doctor Li.

Li Huowang once again started getting confused. His breathing turned rapid. Since he did not want to explain anything, he just closed his eyes. "Lies. This is all fake."

"Alright, since you think this side is fake, then why did you hesitate when your mother pleaded to you? Since it's fake, then you should've just stabbed her with the glass shard!" asked Doctor Li, his tone turning serious, "Since everything is fake anyway, then why are you so worried that Yang Na might've gotten a new boyfriend?"

He poked at Li Huowang's heart with his finger as he continued to speak, "If you keep hallucinating like this, how much longer do you think she will last? Even if her heart is unwavering, can you even bear to watch her being single for the rest of her life just for your sake? Can you give her happiness? At this point, can you even call yourself her boyfriend?"

Li Huowang suddenly opened his eyes and glared at the doctor. "They are all fake! But my feelings for them are real! Even if I know that they are hallucinations, I am not able to abandon my feelings for them! Do you think that I don't want to go back to them? But I can't! I've already transmigrated! It's been a long time since I transmigrated!! Since you say that this world is real, then why does the mental hospital here have a machine for gastric lavage?"

Doctor Li sighed as he waved his hands. "Why are these things suspicious in your eyes? Patients like you always end up swallowing something they are not supposed to. That machine can be found in most of the mental hospitals. It was only thanks to the machine, otherwise you might've really died from that disgusting thing you ate."

"Then why were my hallucinations on this side suppressed after I ate the Black Taisui?" asked Li Huowang.

"You did not eat some Black Taisui, or whatever it was. You ate a mouse! And your symptoms became even worse!" explained

Doctor Li.

“They got worse right around the time I ate the mouse? You really have an answer for everything, don’t you?!”

“Little Li, you have gotten it the other way around. It’s precisely because your symptoms got worse that you have the corresponding scenes in your hallucination. It all changes according to your symptoms. That’s precisely why it’s an illusion.”

Upon hearing up to this point, Li Huowang snarled and gave him the best proof he had. “Fine! If what you said really was true, then tell me, why can I bring something from over there to here? How do you explain that?”

“Oh? Do you have another new symptom? What do you mean by bringing something over? Where is it? Let me see,” asked Doctor Li.

Li Huowang was just about to tell him about the Jade Pendant that he had given to Yang Na but stopped himself at the last moment.

No, I can’t have Yang Na become involved in this, even if it’s just an illusion.

Li Huowang was afraid that he would crumble if he ended up seeing Yang Na in his hallucinations. If that happened, then he would once again think that this side was the real one. He had to cut off everything from this hallucination.

“Fine, just you wait. When I come back next time, I will show you something that only exists in that world! Let me see how you twist the situation at that time, you damned hallucination!” shouted Li Huowang.

Hearing his nonsense, doctor Li sighed. “Little Li, I’m afraid that there will be no next time. You have already caused so much trouble that even the management of the hospital had to get involved. We already got sued quite a few times. The director personally told us to transfer you to a different hospital.”

“Transfer? To where?” Li Huowang was shocked.

Doctor Li patted Li Huowang’s shoulder. “Since you already think this side is a hallucination, why do you care? All I can tell you is that thanks to you, your family’s financial situation is deteriorating rapidly. This is the last time I will be checking on you. I thought that we might be able to save you with one last try, but looks like it’s bound to never happen. Hah... As your attending physician, I feel so down.”

Doctor Li took off his glasses and examined the boy in front of him. Then, he raised his right hand and gently patted Li Huowang’s head, the wrinkles on his face smoothing out by a lot. At that moment, they were no longer a doctor and his patient. “Little Li, you are a good child even if your illness flares up and dies down from time to time. I hope that you will not give up whenever you encounter a problem in the hallucination. Never give up, and especially don’t try cutting open your abdomen. Did you know that you almost died? We had to cut off some of your intestines. It will take you over half a year to recover. Compared to seeing you repeatedly get stuck in a hallucination, the people who love you will definitely hate seeing you dead even more. So don’t die! Live. Live, so that they have hope. Understand?”

Chapter 98 - Backtrack

After saying all that he had to say, the smiling Doctor Li gently patted Li Huowang's head, put on his glasses, and walked out of the ward. When he reached the door, he stopped for a moment. "Right, Little Li, didn't you say that you could bring something belonging to that world back here, and that's why you thought this world was fake? Then, have you tried bringing something from here to there? Maybe you will find an unexpected answer."

After saying those words, Doctor Li left.

On the other hand, Li Huowang was stunned as he contemplated what Doctor Li had said. "Wait, if I could bring something from here to there... Then, which side would be the reality?"

Should I try? What if I succeed? No, I can't do something like that. I can't interact with the hallucinations or I will never be able to snap out of them! But... It's only a test. What am I so afraid of?

Li Huowang was once again filled with a sense of confusion and doubt, feeling conflicted.

Just as he was contemplating the question, he felt the white walls around him slowly fade into darkness along with the beeping machines. At the same time, the bright LED lights transformed into oil lamps.

Li Huowang realized that he was currently lying on an old bed. When he saw the dusty rafters, he realized that he had returned.

After a moment, Li Huowang removed the sheets covering him.

Rather than bringing something from the hallucination, there's another method that I can use right now to determine whether the world there is fake or not.

Li Huowang checked his abdomen and was surprised to see a clean white bandage wrapped around his body. He gently pressed down on the area where he had cut himself open, but there was only a slight numbing pain.

But how was this possible? He was certain that his intestines had fallen out back then!

My intestines should be suffering from sepsis right now, but they have healed up?

Li Huowang was genuinely surprised.

Back then, when he had decided to use the bamboo slip, he had already given up on making it out of there alive. But to think he was still alive!

Wait.

Li Huowang recalled the white ICU that he had seen in the hallucination as well as the beeping machines and the saline solution.

Li Huowang wanted to avoid thinking about all that, but he knew that he was starting to doubt himself once more. He wanted to get rid of all his doubts, but he just couldn't do it.

"Senior Li! You are awake!" Bai Lingmiao ran over excitedly while holding a bowl of chicken soup.

"Where are we?" When he saw Bai Lingmiao, he buried his doubts deep inside his heart.

"We are in the village," said Bai Lingmiao as she carefully placed the bowl filled with chicken soup on the table. Then, she slid her hands under the sheet to check on Li Huowang's injury.

"How were my injuries healed? Why am I not dead?" Li Huowang asked the most pressing question. The doubts that he had barely managed to suppress were once again rearing their head.

"Senior Li, what are you talking about? Why would you be dead? When we found you in the bamboo forest, we fed you some pills that you had refined yourself. Maybe those pills were the reason that you are already healed," replied Bai Lingmiao while lowering her head to the point that it almost touched the sheets. She didn't dare to look him in the eye.

However, Li Huowang was clearer than the rest about what kind of pills he had refined. They were just regular pills and not some kind of divine pills. How could they have treated such serious injuries?

Do you think your hallucination is logical?

At that moment, Doctor Li's words resounded in Li Huowang's mind.

At the same time, a scary thought popped up.

What if... what if this side is fake?

When he thought up to this point, Li Huowang felt a strong sense of panic welling up inside himself; however, even he didn't know why he was panicking like that.

In the next instant, Li Huowang cupped his hands on Bai Lingmiao's face and forced her to look him in the eye. At the same time, his expression grew even more agitated. "Tell me! What happened? What are you hiding? Or are you fake as well?!"

Frightened by his demeanor, tears started to stream down Bai Lingmiao's face.

Li Huowang felt his heart hurt when he saw the crying girl. He raised both arms and hugged her while muttering as he tried to suppress the pain in his heart. "Miaomiao, please don't lie to me alright? This is very important to me. Please... please tell me, how did my injuries get healed?"

After a period of silence, Bai Lingmiao finally relented. "Senior Li, Some time ago, I... I became a Shaman. I summoned Granny Bai to come and treat you. In return, she took all but one of the lifespan pills from within your gourd."

Li Huowang's pupil shrank upon hearing that. At the same time, various scenes flashed through his mind. He was reminded of how Bai Lingmiao had suddenly recovered from her illness, and how she had taken Li Zhi's drum leather. This all pointed to her having become a Shaman a long time ago; it was just that he had never put much thought into it.

After telling him everything, Bai Lingmiao pulled herself out from Li Huowang's embrace and watched him gingerly. "Senior Li, I really didn't want to lie to you. Please don't blame me, ok?"

Li Huowang let out a breath of relief and laughed. "It's fine, it's fine. As long as you are real."

"Real? What do you mean?" Bai Lingmiao still didn't quite understand what just happened.

"Nothing. Bring me the chicken soup, I'm hungry." Li Huowang decided to change the subject. Now, he was feeling much better. No matter what Doctor Li had said, he was certain that this side was real and that side was fake.

After eating the Black Taisui, his hallucinations had stopped appearing for a long time. That was the most important evidence he had.

He resolved not to get trapped in the hallucination or be fooled by them a second time.

Then, Li Huowang devoured the chicken soup; his stomach was telling him that he required nutrients immediately.

Soon, he finished the chicken soup and passed the empty bowl back to Bai Lingmiao while requesting for seconds.

"Wait, I was trapped inside my hallucinations earlier, so how did you feed the chicken soup to me?" asked Li Huowang.

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao did not answer, instead blushing as she ran out with the empty bowl.

"How else could she have fed you? She did it with her own mouth. I told her to just pour the soup down your mouth but she couldn't bring herself to do something so cruel." It was Xiaoman who answered his question as she entered the room.

Xiaoman stood beside his bed and stared at him with a complicated expression. "Senior Li, Junior Bai has done a lot for you. Please cherish her."

Cough-cough!

Li Huowang coughed out of embarrassment and decided to avoid the topic. "What happened to the people in this village after the incident? Did they allow us to stay here?"

Hearing his question, Xiaoman hesitated for a moment before answering. "They all went away."

"Went away? Where to?" Li Huowang was confused.

Wasn't this their village?

"I have no idea either. After the forest around the village started to wither away, all the villagers suddenly had their personalities and memories altered. None of them recognized each other. Even the village head's six sons did not recognize each other. It was... it was almost as if they had never heard of the surname Wu nor were they brothers."

Chapter 99 - Night Visit

Upon hearing Xiaoman's words, Li Huowang scoffed coldly. He knew what the Eighteenth Lunar was and had already guessed as to what had happened. The people here must've had their identities stolen, just like him, and the culprit behind all of it was none other than the Eighteenth Lunar.

The village was made entirely by the Eighteenth Lunar itself. Everyone in the village had just been acting out the roles laid out for them for such a long time without any of them knowing it themselves.

Since it had been controlling so many people at once, it was most likely using them for its own benefit. Rather than saying that it liked playing house, it was more likely that the Eighteenth Lunar was a being that consumed the names and identities of others as food.

"So there's no village at all!" Li Huowang said.

The moment he thought about the Eighteenth Lunar, all his muscles tensed up as he looked at Xiaoman nervously. "Wait! The eyes! Where are the eyes of the Eighteenth Lunar?"

Those eyes were the entire reason they had come all the way here.

"We found them right beside you. Is this what you were looking for?" As if Xiaoman knew what he was going to ask about, she whipped out a black box the size of her palm.

Li Huowang quickly opened the box and saw two red eyes staring at him. They were the eyes of the Eighteenth Lunar.

"I have finally obtained them. Now, I will finally be able to get rid of Dan Yangzi." Li Huowang was ecstatic. He no longer needed to fear getting possessed by Dan Yangzi.

Once he had dealt with Dan Yangzi, he would finally be able to think about finding a way to deal with his hallucination issues.

Kachak.

He closed the box and placed it on the head of his bed. "What about the others? Are they fine? Tell me everything that happened after you found me in detail."

Based on Xiaoman's explanation, Li Huowang learnt that after he was trapped in his hallucination, the Eighteenth Lunar thought that it had managed to kill him and was just about to kill the rest as well; however, at that moment, a faceless man barged in and disrupted its plans by shouting that Li Huowang was a fake. Then, he called for Bai Lingmiao and the rest to attack the fake Li Huowang.

Hearing this, Li Huowang understood that the faceless man was the him who had lost his name and identity. In his hallucination, he had been standing in the middle of the road and shouting at a red car.

"Immediately afterward, the body of the fake Senior Li fell apart, leaving behind only its skin on the ground. The faceless man was somehow able to sense where the Eighteenth Lunar was and ran after it. Meanwhile, when we started chasing it, the bamboo forest around us suddenly moved and blocked us. That was how we lost track of the faceless man," explained Xiaoman.

By the time Xiaoman finished her explanation, Bai Lingmiao walked in with another bowl of chicken soup, this time around with some oily chicken meat inside it.

On the other hand, when everyone else heard that their Senior Li had woken up, they all came to visit him. They were all extremely excited and asked whether he was alright.

When he saw that all of them were alive and well, Li Huowang felt a wave of relief wash over his heart. It was fortunate that none of them had died.

After talking for a bit, Li Huowang was still holding the bowl of soup in his hand when he said, "Since I've woken up, let's not wait anymore. We will head back tomorrow."

But his suggestion was met with unanimous resistance.

"Aiya, Senior Li, even your intestines fell out. Why are you in such a rush? You should just finish healing up before we head back," said one of them.

"Yeah, didn't you already find the thing that you needed?" asked another.

"Let's rest for a few days, Senior Li. None of us is in a rush, so why are you?" asked another.

Li Huowang gently pressed his wound as he got up. "It's fine. I can just sit in the carr—ouch."

A sharp bout of pain caused him to let out a shout as blood started seeping out of the bandages. The pain was so intense that it almost matched the pain he felt from disembowelling himself.

Seeing this, Puppy immediately ran with Gao Zhijian before they pushed Li Huowang back down onto the bed. "Senior Li, please don't push yourself. The carriage is extremely bouncy. Your wounds might end up reopening and cause your intestines to spill out again."

Understanding the situation, Li Huowang could only do as they suggested. "Fine, go back and rest. Let's rest as much as we can over here. We've been constantly traveling ever since we left the Zephyr Temple. You guys must be tired."

After talking for a bit more, everyone started to leave. Only Bai Lingmiao remained in the room; she didn't seem to want to leave.

When Li Huowang extended his right hand and held her hand, she relented, took a stool, and quietly sat beside the bed.

Once she sat down, Li Huowang, who was resting, gently held her right hand. "Is this Granny Bai's power? She only healed me halfway?"

“That was what we agreed on. I felt that as long as she healed you enough to prevent your death, then you could let your natural regeneration take over. Also, there would be no need to waste our resources,” said Bai Lingmiao as she looked at the large hand that was holding her hand. “She could technically heal you completely, but the lifespan pills in the gourd would not be enough. If she were to heal you completely, then not only would she take all of the lifespan pills in the gourd, she would even have taken something from your brain.”

“My brain? Not my lifespan?” Li Huowang was shocked as he stared at Bai Lingmiao.

Seeing her shaking head, Li Huowang finally understood that the Immortal Families were even more greedy compared to the Wandering Gods. When he had seen the gourd full of lifespan pills, he had been convinced that they only took lifespan.

“Did she say what she would take away?” Li Huowang didn’t know of anything precious within his brain.

“I asked her, but she didn’t say. The Shamans have no right to ask what the members of the Immortal Families are thinking. However, I had a feeling that whatever it is in your brain might be something very valuable, and so I didn’t allow her to take it,” replied Bai Lingmiao.

“Hmph! What a bunch of useless ghosts,” snorted Li Huowang.

After having encountered so many supernatural beings, Li Huowang could more or less guess that the God of Happiness as well as the giant ‘Buddha’ in the Righteous Monastery were beings that were much more advanced when compared to the Immortal Families—the Immortal Families could only use some poor sods and force them to live like beggars.

When Li Huowang reopened his eyes, he looked at Bai Lingmiao. “Did they threaten you? Something like you having to hit a quota every month?”

“No they did not. However, every now and then, they will give me a little push to go and find someone to use my Shamanic powers on. It’s very annoying,” replied Bai Lingmiao.

Hearing that, Li Huowang turned serious. “Remember, if and when they become more difficult to interact with, let me know; at that time, I will talk to them myself. You are at most their subordinate, not their slave.”

Li Huowang was not afraid. If he were to fight them himself, then given the fact that he possessed the bamboo slip, he probably wouldn’t lose. Since things had already come to this, there was no reason to try and change the situation. However, Li Huowang would never allow Bai Lingmiao to experience the same suffering that Li Zhi had felt.

Bai Lingmiao was different from Li Zhi; she had Li Huowang to protect her.

Hearing his words, Bai Lingmiao felt a warm feeling in her heart. “Alright.”

“And if we do encounter someone who we can help using your powers, then feel free to do so. But you don’t have to specifically go and find someone that requires your aid. We don’t need those paltry fifty coins.” continued Li Huowang.

“Mm.”

The oil lamp on the table slowly dimmed down as one of them gave out orders and advice while the other continued listening quietly.

“It’s already quite late; let’s sleep.” Li Huowang lifted the sheets on the bed.

Bai Lingmiao nodded and snuffed out the oil lamp before carefully sliding under the warm blanket as she tried her best to not touch Li Huowang’s wound.

Chapter 100 - Yang Xiaohai

Yang Xiaohai groggily opened his eyes when he saw the sunlight coming in from the paper windows. Then he got out of his blankets and started wearing his clothes.

Creak~

He pushed open the door to the kitchen and stared at the water in the water jar. Feeling that it wasn't enough, he picked up a shoulder pole and two buckets before heading out.

"My Senior Brothers and Sisters will need water to wash up after they wake, and I also need to cook congee today, so that amount of water wouldn't have been enough," muttered Yang Xiaohai.

As someone who used to be an assistant within the Zephyr Temple, even though Yang Xiaohai was only ten years old, he could do every household chore, including sewing, washing, cooking, and repairing clothes. He even knew the medicinal properties of some of the ingredients that were used to refine pills.

He was forced to learn all of these things—if he hadn't managed to learn everything fast enough, then he would've been dead.

In that cave where there was no sunlight, he learned one thing and one thing only; he learned that people who were useless were nothing more than useless trash.

If his Senior Brothers and Sisters decided to leave those who were dragging them down, then they would abandon the ones who were still sleeping on the bed.

Yang Xiaohai had a secret that no one knew—the location he had provided as his home was fake. In truth, he had no home. His only wish was that they could continue their travels. Then, at least he would always be able to have something to eat.

He was different compared to the others. Most of those within the Zephyr temple were either sold or abducted; however, he had gone there willingly just because someone told him that he would be provided meals over there.

When he walked out, Yang Xiaohai greeted the Senior Sister practicing the sword in front of him. "Good morning, Senior Sister."

However, Chun Xiaoman ignored him as she continued to study the blade.

Yang Xiaohai did not get offended. He was already used to her demeanor. This Senior Sister of his who was covered in strands of black hair was always busy studying the blade. The only exceptions were when she was eating or sleeping.

Yang Xiaohai walked alone on a path as the morning fog accompanied him. The grass was wet with dew.

I wonder if I can ask Senior Sister to teach me the ways of the sword? Once I master the sword, at the very least, no one would dare bully me when I once again become a beggar. But would she agree to it? She's usually quite indifferent.

He thought about it as he arrived at the village's small pond and took some water.

Just then, a large black shadow appeared from within the fog, startling him.

However, he soon saw that it was a group of people. They were wearing ragged clothes while their faces were black. They were beggars. At one point, he used to be one of them as well.

When he saw them sniveling, Yang Xiaohai deduced that they must've had to sleep without a fire last night.

Meanwhile, the group of beggars was surprised to see Yang Xiaohai as well.

After both parties confirmed that each other to be indeed living people, the group of beggars pushed forward one of the younger beggars to collect some water.

The child was hesitant and didn't dare to speak.

Just when the other child was about to head back after collecting water, one of the older beggars walked over and pushed the child beggar down before bowing toward Yang Xiaohai and asking politely, "Young brother, may I ask if this is the Wu family village?"

"The people you seek are not here. Everything has been abandoned here. There is nothing left," replied Yang Xiaohai.

Yang Xiaohai's words caused them to get even more agitated as their noses became redder. One of the old beggars pointed at the surroundings with his fingers and asked, "The houses and the land here, it's all abandoned?"

However, Yang Xiaohai was no longer interested in talking with them, especially to the beggar that had pushed the child down. He turned and left.

Back in the kitchen, he poured the water from the bucket into the water jar. Then, he wiped the sweat on his forehead, picked up the pole and buckets, and headed back outside; it was a very large water jar so he would need to make multiple trips.

When he came back, he saw the beggars were rummaging through the empty houses.

However, he knew that they wouldn't be finding anything valuable inside. All the valuables had long since been taken away by the people who left. If anything had been left behind by them, then Puppy and the rest would've taken it.

But beggars could not be choosers. They would even celebrate finding torn clothing.

When Yang Xiaohai came out for the third time, he saw that the beggars were fighting amongst each other. He wasn't sure what they were fighting for.

“Don’t live here. It’s an ominous place. Something might happen to you!” Yang Xiaohai shouted toward the beggars, to no avail.

After the fourth trip, Yang Xiaohai was so tired that his face was pale. Still, he pushed on and walked back to the courtyard. Once inside, he placed the pole down and caught his breath. He was waiting for something.

It was only after he heard footsteps that Yang Xiaohai picked up the pole and walked back inside.

Soon, the pole-carrying Yang Xiaohai got into contact with the rest of his Senior Brothers and Sisters. “Good morning, Senior Brother Cao Cao.”

“Hey, why are you the one filling up the water jar? You are good at household chores, so you should leave this kind of physical labor to Simpleton.” Puppy patted Yang Xiaohai’s head and walked out.

“Senior brother Cao Cao, the congee is cooking in the pot. We can eat soon,” Yang Xiaohai shouted toward Puppy’s back.

“Alright, I will go and wake up Simpleton,” said Puppy.

By the time sunlight was shining into the courtyard, everyone had already gathered in the dining hall.

Their breakfast consisted of simple congee with some preserved vegetables that Puppy found within an underground basement in the village. They even ate their own rations and guokui. There were also two eggs in a bowl.

However, none of them began to eat; it was as if they were waiting for something.

Just then, Xiaoman, who had been practicing with the blade in the courtyard, walked in. Puppy asked her playfully, “Senior sister, how was your training? You’ve been training very consistently. Once you master it, you can teach us as well.”

“Not too bad; at the very least, I’m not swinging it blindly anymore. The bodyguard from the courier service told me that there’s no shortcut—only through training can one master the blade. I’ve also made two bamboo swords. After our meal you can come and practice with me,” replied Xiaoman.

Hearing this, Puppy’s face instantly turned bitter.

Meanwhile, Xiaoman hung her sword onto the wall and sat down at the table, joining the others as they waited for something.

Soon, the stench of blood filled the air as footsteps rang out. Yang Xiaohai instinctively lowered his head, not daring to look in the direction of the footsteps.

It was none other than Li Huowang.

He knew that Senior Li would not harm him. In fact, he was taken in by Li Huowang. Even so, he was afraid of Li Huowang, especially after everything that had happened on their journey so far.

Bai Lingmiao carefully supported Li Huowang until he sat at the front of the table. Only after he started eating did everyone else join in.

Even Li Huowang did not know when this rule had come to pass.

Halfway through their meal, the sound of saliva being swallowed was heard. A few beggars were standing outside and staring at them as they ate their meal.

“Why are there still beggars? I thought the village had become empty,” asked Li Huowang.

Hearing this, Yang Xiaohai stood up nervously and told him everything that he knew about the beggars.

“Hoho, looks like their information network is quite efficient, to the point that they even knew that this place had been vacated. But don’t you think staying at the place that the Eighteenth Lunar once used as its feeding ground would be quite unlucky? I’ve eaten enough, you guys can continue on,” said Li Huowang, standing up.

Chapter 101 - War

Once Yang Xiaohai saw Senior Li walk out, he sighed in relief, finally allowing himself to relax. Meanwhile, the rest of them continued eating and talking. However, there wasn't much to talk about and soon, their conversation turned toward the group of beggars outside.

"I don't recall seeing so many beggars along the way. Where did these people come from?" asked Sun Baolu.

Hearing this question, Yang Xiaohai placed a piece of guokui into a bowl of congee before taking it and going outside. "Let me ask them."

Puppy stared at Yang Xiaohai's back and said, "What an understanding child. If it wasn't for the fact that he needs to return home, I would've kept him as my son."

"Son? You mean to say you would use him as a servant, don't you?" commented one of the guiding drug ingredients.

Puppy saw that his ploy had been seen through, but merely chuckled.

Meanwhile, when the beggars saw Yang Xiaohai walk out, all of them focused their attention toward the broken bowl in his hand. Some of them even started singing to gain his attention.

Yang Xiaohai ignored all of them and approached the child beggar that was pushed down earlier. The child was standing in a corner and looked ever so pitiful, just like how he was earlier.

"Let me ask you something; if you can answer me, then this guokui will be yours," said Yang Xiaohai.

Looking at the guokui in Yang Xiaohai's hands, the disheveled child nodded.

"Where did you guys come from?" asked Yang Xiaohai.

“East. We came here from the east! Also, we are not beggars! I followed my parents to run away,” replied the child. “However, halfway through, I was kidnapped by someone else. Somehow, I managed to escape. That was how I ended up as a beggar.”

Hearing this answer, Yang Xiaohai pulled out the guokui that had been softened by the congee and gave it to him.

Immediately, the child scarfed down the entire guokui, ignoring the fact that it was scalding hot.

“Why did you guys run? Was there a disaster?” Yang Xiaohai continued his questions.

As the young boy licked the bits of congee stuck on the guokui and swallowed it, he nodded. “Yeah. But we wouldn’t have left behind our fields if it was just the drought or the floods; we had to run because the soldiers were going to war. All of us had to run away because of the soldiers. There were so many of them. The soldiers ransacked our village and took away everything. Some of the villages were completely destroyed because of that.”

Just as Yang Xiaohai was about to ask something else, a large shadow enveloped him. It was Gao Zhijian. He stuttered, “They... they... they are not soldiers... going... t-to... war... They... they... they are... the defeated soldiers!”

“Senior Gao, does this mean that there is a war going on right now?” Yang Xiaohai raised his head and looked at Gao Zhijian’s wide chin.

When he saw that Yang Xiaohai did not look down on him for his stuttering, Gao Zhijian was pleasantly surprised. He gently patted Yang Xiaohai’s head with his large hands. “Th-that’s... right.”

Yang Xiaohai turned around to the child that had been frightened by the giant Gao Zhijian. “Are they really at war? Why did I not hear anything about it before? Did you say that your house was located in the eastern direction? Can you tell me where the war is happening in detail?"

"I'm sorry but I only know that my house is located in the east," replied the child.

Looking at how the child did not know much about this matter, Yang Xiaohai turned around to look at the older beggars. "What are you guys doing, talking so much with the beggars? Come back and eat first. We have to wash the bowls later on," called out one of the guiding drug ingredients.

Upon hearing those words, Yang Xiaohai became a lot more alert.

"Let me wash the bowls! I will wash them!" said Yang Xiaohai as he turned around and walked inside.

When the child saw Yang Xiaohai's clean shoes and then stared back at his own feet that had turned purple due to the cold weather, he felt quite envious. "I wish I was bought by them."

"Senior brother Cao Cao, the beggars came here to escape the war happening in the east," Yang Xiaohai went back to the table and reported his findings.

"It's fine. The war does not concern us. Sun Baolu was only asking about it out of curiosity. No need to think of his words as some kind of a sacred decree. It's not like he's an emperor," said Puppy.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang was lying down on a white hospital bed, feeling conflicted. Looking at his surroundings, he realized that within his hallucinations, he had been transferred to a normal ward from the ICU.

At this moment, he was holding a round jade pendant. Back on the other side, he had threaded it, wearing it like a necklace.

He could recall that he had given this piece of jade to Yang Na, but now, it had mysteriously appeared here.

As for how it returned back to him, Li Huowang was no longer concerned about that. Currently, he was thinking about what Doctor Li had said to him during their last meeting.

Right, Little Li, didn't you say that you could bring something belonging to that world back here, and that's why you thought this world was fake? Then, have you tried bringing something from here to there? Maybe you will find an unexpected answer.

Looking at the round jade pendant, Li Huowang decided what he had to do and placed the jade pendant back inside his hospital gown.

No harm in trying. What if it actually works?

But when that question appeared in his mind, he paused.

What if it works? What would it mean? Would it mean that Bai Lingmiao and the rest are fakes? Or would it mean that both sides are real?

Li Huowang didn't know, and at this point, he didn't care. He would try it first before coming up with a plan.

Time slowly passed as he waited for the result. He really hated how time seemed to be passing slower and slower, to the point that it almost felt like he had been waiting for an entire year.

Finally, when a nurse changed his medications, he felt the world around him slowly start to crumble.

Back in the old room, Li Huowang touched his chest and found the jade pendant, causing his expression to freeze.

Then, without even bothering to wear his clothes, he rummaged through the bed before pulling out another identical jade pendant. He was perplexed.

Two? How could there be two jade pieces? Why are there two pieces?

Li Huowang felt his mind going into disarray. He had considered the possibility that he might be able to take something from the other side and bring it back here, but to think this would end up being the result.

"Huowang." At that moment, a soft female voice was heard. It belonged to Yang Na.

Hearing the voice, Li Huowang looked at the door, astonished.

How did Yang Na get here? Wasn't she just a part of my hallucination?

“Senior Li” This time it was Bai Lingmiao’s voice.

Then, the door opened with a creak as it was pushed open from the other side .

When he saw the ‘thing’ walking toward him, Li Huowang was extremely terrified.

“NO! NO! STAY AWAY!!” Li Huowang sat up from the bed, covered in cold sweat.

Looking at the old furniture around him, he realized that everything had just been a dream, a result of what he was concerned about during the day.

But just as he was about to lay back down, a sudden thought popped up in his head.

Was that really a dream?

Chapter 102 - Benefits

The thought that had just popped up in his head left him trembling.

After a while, he carefully touched every inch of his body and only sighed in relief only after confirming that there weren't any additional jade pieces on his body.

"I was right; it really was a dream. All of that was just a dream," Li Huowang mumbled.

"What's wrong?" asked Bai Lingmiao groggily as she lit up the oil lamp in the room.

"Nothing. Nothing happened. Go back to sleep," said Li Huowang.

When she saw that Li Huowang did not wish to answer her, Bai Lingmiao just closed her eyes. At the same time, her white hair gently lay on his shoulder as her small hands softly caressed his chest to calm him down.

Meanwhile, he held the hand on his chest and stared at the rafters above them. "Miaomiao ..."

"Hm?" Bai Lingmiao answered, half asleep.

"Do you want to know about my past? And why am I having hallucinations?" asked Li Huowang.

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao's sleepiness was instantly dispelled. Her eyelids fluttered open in shock as she stared at the man beside her. This was the first time he had talked to her about his past.

Since she had spent more time with him than the others had, she knew that he was different from the others.

It wasn't a difference of culture, country, or other things, but a difference that caused him to not be able to fit with them and the society. Something... otherworldly. She was not the only one who thought so—the others had thought about it too. It was just that none of them had said it before.

“I’m actually not from here,” said Li Huowang.

“Yeah, I know that you are not from the kingdom of Si Qi,” replied Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang shook his head. “I meant that I’m not someone from this world. I’m from another world.”

Under the dim light of the oil lamp, Li Huowang slowly talked to Bai Lingmiao about his past and current predicaments. The more he said, the better he felt. It was as if someone was bearing the weight in his heart along with him.

It was only when sunlight started to illuminate the room that he stopped. The room was completely silent.

“Is there anything you would like to ask?” asked Li Huowang.

“Yes.” Bai Lingmiao removed her hands from around him and held his hand, the one that was missing three of its fingernails. Her fingertips trembled as she touched the scab. “What’s the matter with the red bamboo slip?”

“Let me tell you something interesting. A person’s fingernails can regenerate, even after they have been pulled out.” Li Huowang tried to divert the topic while trying to pull his hand out from Bai Lingmiao’s grasp, but she held on to his hand even tighter. At the same time, he saw Bai Lingmiao’s eyes becoming redder and redder as she stared at him.

“I don’t care where you come from nor do I care what happened within your hallucination. All I want to know is whether the injury on your abdomen was related to the bamboo slip,” said Bai Lingmiao firmly.

Li Huowang did not answer her, embracing her instead. He held her head close to his chest and slowly patted her.

“Senior Li, that thing is too dangerous. Please... please throw it away. If you continue on like this then you will eventually get killed by it,” After saying so, Bai Lingmiao stopped and pleaded with him. “If you end up dying, what will happen to me?”

Seeing her like this, Li Huowang sighed. While she looked soft and squishy, she was actually a really tough girl. Soft on the outside, harsh on the inside.

“Let me think about it,” said Li Huowang.

Li Huowang knew that the Profound Records represented a double-edged sword, one that could easily cut him up if he was not careful when using it.

But at the same time, it was a very valuable tool. He had no choice but to rely on it to survive in this bizarre world. If he threw it away and happened to encounter some other entity like the Eighteenth Lunar, then what would he do? After all, he couldn’t just rely on Dan Yangzi at all times.

He wanted to join a sect and grow stronger as well; however, doing so was extremely difficult.

Not only would he have to worry about whether his application would be accepted or not, he would even have to be wary of the others who knew that he was a Strayed One. Even if they accepted him, he might not have the guts to cultivate using whatever method they told him to.

Zephyr Temple, Righteous Monastery, and Benevolent Nunnery.

Ever since he came into contact with these sects, he had already given up on joining most of the sects. Each of them was more vile than the last.

And so, without a substitute weapon, he would never throw away the Profound Records. It was his strongest method of attack, despite the high price he had to pay for using it.

Amidst their conversation, there was some movement from the door; their comrades were preparing for breakfast.

Li Huowang sat up. Just as Bai Lingmiao was about to help him with his clothes, he realized something and said, "Wait."

He carefully pressed down on his abdomen and realized that it didn't hurt as much as before. He opened up the bandages and saw that his wound had almost completely healed up.

"How did I recover so fast?" Even Li Huowang was surprised.

Li Huowang had expected that it would take his body at least half a month to finish healing, but something had changed within his body.

He thought about it long and hard before thinking back to the very last moment when Ba-Hui had glanced at him during the final moments.

"I think this is a good thing?" muttered Li Huowang.

Li Huowang was both happy and worried. He knew far too little about the thing he had summoned by experiencing the peak of both mental and physical pain.

He didn't know what this meant.

Does it want me to mutilate myself even more?

This was the only reason he could think of after half a day.

But compared to dealing with Dan Yangzi, this was a minor incident.

"Based on my speed of recovery, I should be completely healed by tomorrow. We will rest for today and depart tomorrow," Li Huowang told Bai Lingmiao.

Bai Lingmiao wanted to say something, but stopped. In the end she nodded her head.

Hearing that they were about to leave soon, the others started to pack their things and move them up the carriage. At the same time, they took almost everything they found in the courtyard, including the two egg-laying hens.

When it was dinner time, Li Huowang took off his bandages and saw that his wound had practically completely healed up.

Not bad. At the very least there's some kind of reward after going through so much.

Li Huowang was happy with his ability. At the very least, he wouldn't die so easily.

Back in the dining hall, Li Huowang sat down and ate some rice. The table was filled with vegetables that they had picked from the fields.

Even though the meal consisted mostly of vegetables, they had used pork lard to stir-fry it. Thus the taste was quite decent.

Li Huowang picked up a piece of carrot and bit into it before furrowing his brows. "Who cooked today? Why is it still so salty?"

Even though he didn't have high expectations from this food, he was not a livestock that could eat the same meal everyday.

Hearing his question, an assistant with a pale face stood up. "Senior Li, it was me."

Meanwhile, Bai Lingmiao took the piece of carrot that Li Huowang had bitten and tasted it. "Senior Li, it's not really very salty. It's just nicely seasoned."

"Really?" Hearing this, Li Huowang picked up another carrot and bit into it. However, he still felt that it was very salty.

"Nevermind then. Continue eating. I can just pair it with some more rice," said Li Huowang.

Chapter 103 - Marriage

Li Huowang slowly sipped the tea from his cup. He didn't really like drinking tea; it was just that the meal tonight was too salty for him.

Using the cover of the cup to block the tea leaves, he took a light sip as the bitterness of the tea filled his mouth.

"Dammit. I should've known that they wouldn't have any good tea leaves," said Li Huowang as he spat out the tea and placed the teacup down before heading back into his room. Due to the nightmare from last night, he didn't get a proper night of sleep; he needed to recover his strength for tomorrow.

However, even as he walked back to his room, Li Huowang's mind did not stop. He was thinking about his nightmare as well as the two pieces of jade.

If I get sucked into my hallucination once again, should I try taking something from that side and bringing it here?

However, Li Huowang did not hesitate long.

Yeah, I should try it; however, I can't try it with the pendant. I need to take something that doesn't exist on this side, such as a bottle of saline solution or a pair of handcuffs. If I can't bring it over here, then I will know for sure that the world over there is fake. After that, there won't be any reason for me to keep thinking about that place. But... what if I am able to bring something over here?

Amidst his thoughts, Li Huowang arrived at his room.

Creak.

He pushed the door open, but the scene inside instantly caused his thoughts to grind to a halt.

There were red candles lined up on the table and the walls were decorated with the upside down character for 'prosperity'.

Everything was red, from the pillows to the sheets to the... to the red veil on Bai Lingmiao's head.

Staring at the scene in front of him, Li Huowang's heart started racing. For a moment, he stopped right in between the red colored room and the dark night outside.

He felt conflicted.

He knew what it would mean if he walked in. Not only would he have a wife, but he would also have a responsibility and an oath to uphold.

After a moment of hesitation, he took a deep breath and walked inside, locking the door behind him. Then, he approached the bride and asked, "Are you sure about this? You know that I suffer from hallucinations. Are you truly willing to accept marrying an insane person like me?"

"Mm-hmm." A small pair of hands reached out, gently grabbing his large hands. "Senior Li, as they say: you follow the chicken if you get married to one and you follow the dog if you get married to one. No matter what happens, I will live with you for the rest of my life."

Her voice was as soft as usual, but a strong sense of determination could be felt from her voice right now.

Since she had said as such, Li Huowang would not be able to call himself a man if he hesitated anymore.

Just as he extended his arms to raise the red veil, Bai Lingmiao turned away. "Senior Li, it's embarrassing... Could you please extinguish the light?"

Hearing this, Li Huowang waved his sleeves and the red candles were immediately extinguished.

On that night, both of them coiled around on the bed, and Li Huowang finally understood what they meant when they said girls were made from water.

Four hours later, within the completely dark room of the newly-weds, Li Huowang lay on the bed, panting heavily. He gently caressed the head of the girl that was laying on his chest as he recalled the wondrous feeling he had just experienced.

“Husband~”

A single call from her sent a tingle through his entire body.

“You can just continue calling me Senior Li. I’m not used to it.”

“Alright, I will listen to you. You are the man of the house, so I will do whatever you tell me to do,” said Bai Lingmiao as she placed her ear on his chest and listened to his rapid heartbeat.

Li Huowang took a deep breath and hugged the girl even closer. Then, he kissed the top of her head that was covered with her soft hair and hair ornaments.

“Let’s go back once the issue with Dan Yangzi has been dealt with. Then we can officially become husband and wife once we get back to your house,” said Li Huowang.

“But what about your condition? Is there really no way to treat it?” asked Bai Lingmiao.

“I don’t know. I’ve only heard what others have told me. The Abbess from the Benevolent Nunnery probably did not lie to me nor does she have a reason to.” Li Huowang slowly slid his hands down and caressed her smooth skin. “Don’t worry. I have you by my side now. Now that I’ve grown my roots in this world, I won’t ever be deceived by the hallucinations.”

“Hehe.” Bai Lingmiao was very happy. She hugged him with all four of her limbs while pressing her head against his chest.

For some reason, the feeling that Bai Lingmiao gave Li Huowang in the bedroom was different. She said that she was embarrassed, but now she wasn’t.

Are all girls the same?

Li Huowang had no experience in this regard. This was his first time after all.

Sensing that Bai Lingmiao had started to move around, Li

Huowang held her down with his hands. "Wait, I just felt something weird."

"What are you talking about? I did bleed," said Bai Lingmiao nervously.

Li Huowang laughed. "No, I don't mean it that way; the feeling I got was something different."

"Feeling? What kind of feeling?" asked Bai Lingmiao.

"I suddenly felt like my senses are much sharper than they were before. All of them are much sharper," Li Huowang said as he recalled the moment he almost ascended to Heaven last night. Something felt off.

It hadn't been noticeable before, but after his clash with the Eighteenth Lunar, he noticed that not only was his body capable of healing much faster, even his senses were much sharper than before. Regardless of whether it was his sense of touch, smell, taste, sight, or hearing, all of them had become sharper.

Is this Ba-Hui's power?

Li Huowang realized that both the abilities given to him were related to self-mutilation or sacrifice.

Just as he thought about sharing his thoughts with Bai Lingmiao, he suddenly felt a piercing pain from his right index finger. "Yeowch! Why did you bite me?"

"Does it hurt more than before?" asked Bai Lingmiao.

"Yeah! It's even bleeding, how could it not hurt?" asked Li Huowang.

"Then it looks like you are right; your senses have indeed become sharper, and so has your sense of pain," said Bai Lingmiao. In the next second, Li Huowang felt his finger being placed somewhere soft as Bai Lingmiao started to suck on it. The pain instantly faded away.

"Previously, you told me about the Wandering Gods. Then, have you heard of Ba-Hui?" Li Huowang asked.

“Mm-mm” Bai Lingmiao shook her head while continuing to suck on his finger.

“Hmm ...” Li Huowang opened his eyes as he stared at the ceiling. “Why did Ba-Hui grant me these two abilities? What is its true form?”

Li Huowang tried to picture what Ba-Hui looked like in his mind, but failed. He could not do so with his perception as an ordinary human.

Knock knock~

At that moment, there was a sudden knock on his room door in the middle of the night.

Li Huowang hugged Bai Lingmiao close to his chest and covered her up with a blanket. “Who’s there? If it isn’t anything important, then we can talk tomorrow.”

“Senior Li, it’s me, can I enter? For some reason I was laying down on the floor of the firewood room.” The sound that came from beyond the door was extremely familiar. Li Huowang instantly realized that it was Bai Lingmiao’s voice.

However, if Bai Lingmiao was outside, then who was the one currently in his embrace? Li Huowang suddenly felt a chill run down his body.

“Hehehe, husband~”

At that moment, Li Huowang suddenly felt the thing in his embrace suddenly shrink and roll out of the sheets.

Li Huowang threw off the sheets and lit up one of the red candles as fast as he could.

However, there was no one but him inside the room.

“Senior Li, what’s wrong? What happened?” Bai Lingmiao shouted outside.

Li Huowang turned to see his finger, the one that was sucked on just moments ago. It looked extremely pale. Looking at the nasty wound, he was certain that it was not something a human could do with their teeth. It was more like he had gotten bit by a beast with sharp fangs!

Chapter 104 - The Second Deity

The sound of utensils hitting the bowl didn't stop as everyone scarfed down the congee placed in front of them.

Since today was the day they had to resume traveling, they needed to eat a lot. If not, they might end up becoming hungry before lunch, and being hungry was the last thing they needed.

However, amidst all this, Li Huowang was not the slightest bit interested in the food. He glanced at Bai Lingmiao who was sitting beside him.

The girl was miffed ever since she was told to go sleep with Xiaoman last night; last night, he never opened the door for Bai Lingmiao.

After that, in just a short amount of time he disposed of any and all red colored items within the room. He didn't want 'Bai Lingmiao' to find out that she was somehow married to him.

However, even though he destroyed all of the evidence, one question just wouldn't get out of his head.

What was that? What the hell did I sleep with?

Based on the bite wound on his finger, he knew that it was not a normal human.

At the same time, he also realized there were quite a few other suspicious details.

For one, why did that thing ask him to extinguish the candles before removing the red veil? And why was 'she' different from the usual Bai Lingmiao?

He also realized that the 'hair ornaments' were not ornaments at all! They almost looked like they had grown out of her head.

Why did she do it? What's there to gain?

Li Huowang was perplexed. Just in case 'she' appeared again, he didn't sleep throughout the entire night.

But, she did not appear again.

Regarding her identity, Li Huowang more or less had an answer when he remembered the red veil; however, he needed to confirm it himself.

Li Huowang quietly watched as Bai Lingmiao ate her bowl of congee and five pieces of guokui. He had never realized that her appetite had grown so much despite her small body.

Sensing that she had almost eaten her fill, Li Huowang gently kicked her legs to notify her and then turned toward her room.

Immediately, Bai Lingmiao wiped her mouth, placed her bowl down, and followed him. Once inside the room, she saw that Senior Li was staring at her with a serious look on his face, just standing there menacingly.

"Senior Li, what's wrong? Is something the matter?" She suddenly felt that the atmosphere was weird, her voice turning quieter than usual.

"Sit down, I have something to ask you." Li Huowang sat her down on the stool.

After a moment, he finally opened his mouth. "I learnt from Li Zhi that summoning the Immortals from the Immortal Families required two people, one to play the drum while the other who acted as the vessel. Since you summoned the Immortals to heal me, that should mean that you have a Second Deity as well, correct?"

The Second Deity usually wore a red veil, and so Li Huowang was suspicious that it might've been Bai Lingmiao's Second Deity.

"Mm." Bai Lingmiao nodded.

"Then is she alive? Or is she an Immortal? Or is she something else entirely?" asked Li Huowang.

"She's alive, but she's not an Immortal. We have to summon one before an Immortal can appear,” replied Bai Lingmiao.

“When the heck did Li Zhi’s wife crawl out from her grave? Hadn’t Gao Zhijian caved her head in before we buried her together with Li Zhi?” asked Li Huowang.

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao was surprised. “Senior Li, my Second Deity is not Li Zhi’s wife.”

“What? It’s not? There’s different Second Deities?” Li Huowang was surprised as well.

“Yes. They told me that the Main and Second Deity are deeply connected to each other. Usually, we cannot use someone else’s Second Deity,” replied Bai Lingmiao.

Hearing this, Li Huowang remembered Li Zhi’s Second Deity. Other than her heavy make-up and beast-like face, the Second Deity was quite literally a second Li Zhi.

“Don’t tell me...” Thinking about what had happened last night as well as Bai Lingmiao’s familiar voice, Li Huowang instantly realized who he had slept with. “...if we remove the beast-like features from her face, then the Second Deity looks exactly the same as you, right?”

Hearing his words, Bai Lingmiao hesitated for a moment before nodding. “Yes, she looks just like me. The other Second Deities would look just like their Main Deities as well.”

“Then how did she come to be? Did the Immortals from the Immortal Families create a living being just like that?” Li Huowang asked the most important question.

Bai Lingmiao did not answer, struggling visibly; she couldn’t stop her hands from twisting her shirt. “Senior Li, I really wanted to tell you and let you know the details. But I have no idea how to say it. On the night I became a Shaman, the Second Deity directly appeared in my dreams. And then... and then...”

Seeing how Bai Lingmiao was on the verge of breaking down and crying, Li Huowang did not press on. He knew that it was very hard to explain anything in detail in this bizarre world.

“That’s fine. No need to think about it. Now, can you call her out? I wanted to ask her about something.” Li Huowang’s eyes were filled with hostility.

Bai Lingmiao carefully stared into his eyes and then pulled the door open behind them. A woman with a red veil and red shoes was standing right there.

Li Huowang tried to suppress his emotions as he walked over and stared at the Second Deity that was covered in a red veil. At this moment, thanks to his heightened senses, he could sense that this thing was staring right back at him.

After looking at the wrinkles on her clothes as well as her body shape, Li Huowang confirmed that the one on the bed last night was indeed her!

“Senior Li, what’s wrong with her? Did something happen?” asked Bai Lingmiao, worried.

Li Huowang was just about to tell her about what had happened when he stopped. When he saw Bai Lingmiao’s worried face, he decided that he shouldn’t tell her.

He really wanted to ask the Second Deity why it did what it did last night, but he could only keep it quiet in front of Bai Lingmiao.

He really couldn’t bring himself to tell her that he had slept with... this weird thing, “Senior Li, what’s wrong? Why aren’t you talking? What did she do to you?” asked Bai Lingmiao once more.

Bai Lingmiao’s question caused him to suppress his anger as he pointed his fingers at the Second Deity in a threatening gesture. Then, he opened the door and left. “Nevermind, let’s depart.”

Li Huowang had decided that if there was ever a second time, be it under commands from the Immortal Families or the Second Deity acting on its own, he wouldn’t let it go.

On the other hand, Bai Lingmiao was still confused as she asked her Second Deity, "What happened?"

However, the Second Deity did not move, standing unmoving, almost like a corpse.

"That's strange. What happened?" muttered Bai Lingmiao, having been left in the dark.

Soon, two horse-drawn carriages were led out from the courtyard. Their group quickly left the place that was slowly transforming into a den of beggars and followed the road back.

Two hundred miles was neither short nor long. As they traveled at their fastest speed, they soon arrived back at the Henghua Mountain.

Compared to last time, the town at the base of the mountain had quite a lot more people; there were a lot more beggars on the street.

Li Huowang opened a box and checked the blood-red eyes stored within it before slowly making his way toward the mountain.

However, this time, Bai Lingmiao stopped him. "Senior Li, let me accompany you. Now, I can summon the Immortals and so I won't drag you down."

Chapter 105 - Greed

Li Huowang felt hesitant as he looked at Bai Lingmiao; he wasn't sure if he should bring her up the mountain.

While it was true that with her ability to summon the Immortals she could help him, he didn't want to place her in danger.

At the same time, the others started pleading as well.

"Yeah, Senior Li, please let us come with you."

"If we followed you, we might be able to help you. Aren't you afraid that the nuns are dangerous?"

"Yeah, and just in case... just in case your condition flares up again, then we can at least take care of you," said Puppy.

The final sentence from Puppy finally defeated Li Huowang. "Baolu, place the horse carriages at the inn. We will all go up the mountain."

The effect of the Black Taisui to suppress his hallucinations rapidly falling and he could slip into his hallucination at any time, so he definitely needed someone beside him.

Hearing his words, everyone smiled as they followed him; they were happy that they would finally get to help out their Senior Brother.

The road up to the mountain had many twists and turns, but Li Huowang and the rest were used to it.

After a while, they rested halfway up the mountain, only continuing after a while. They finally arrived before the front gate of the Benevolent Nunnery just before nightfall.

They all looked inside and Li Huowang saw that the nunnery was still just as dilapidated as it had been before—grass could be seen growing between the stone tiles while the holes on the roofs hadn't been repaired.

When he finally caught sight of the Women's Script on both sides of the gate, Li Huowang's heart started pounding rapidly.

He had risked his life just for the sake of today.

When he thought that he would finally be able to get rid of his bizarre Master, Li Huowang could not hold back the excitement he felt in his heart.

He took a deep breath and turned around; he needed to let them know what they should expect. "The inside of the nunnery is extremely dirty and unkempt. The nuns are also very fat, so don't be surprised by it, ok?"

After seeing everyone agree, Li Huowang held the box containing the Eighteenth Lunar eyes, took a deep breath, and walked inside.

Before they could even enter the main hall, a wave of putrid stench assaulted them.

What were they doing? It's even more putrid than the last time.

Li Huowang pinched his nose and entered the place, forcing himself to endure the stench.

Meanwhile, the other guiding drug ingredients were already regretting their choice in coming here. While it wasn't dangerous, it was far too smelly.

Soon, they arrived at the first hall of the nunnery. The moment Li Huowang stepped in, he felt something soft at the base of his right foot. When he picked his foot up he saw that it was a piece of peach cookie.

"Careful, they don't like to keep it clean here," warned Li Huowang.

He raised his head and saw that the Buddha statue was still covered in dirt. He walked past it and went out through the back.

Just as he had expected, there was a mountain of flesh lying down just behind the Buddha; it was a fat nun with an extra large guokui on her face. She was sleeping and eating at the same time.

“What the... Is... is she still human?” The rest of them were shocked.

Meanwhile, after what had happened last time, Li Huowang decided not to wake her up; he couldn't do so even if he wanted to.

Soon, they walked past her and entered a side door, arriving at the interior of the nunnery.

They had just taken a few steps in when they realized that there was nowhere for them to walk—everything around them was covered in rotten food, even the floor and the roof were covered with it. There was even a mountain of moldy dumplings to their right, a large swarm of flies hovering over it. At the same time, numerous white maggots could be seen crawling on the mountain of dumplings.

However, the most surprising thing was that everything here was vegetarian—there was not a single piece of meat.

Looking at the mountain of food, Li Huowang realized that all these things were bought using the gold that he had given them the last time. The moment they got the money, they used it to buy various types of food in large quantities.

“Step over it,” said Li Huowang as he sank his legs into the sea of rotten food. It almost felt like he was in a swamp as he slowly walked forward.

Hearing this, everyone, including Bai Lingmiao who loved being clean, were quite unhappy. However, when they saw Li Huowang getting further and further away from them, they could only clench their teeth and trudge through the sea of rotten food.

“Why are they wasting so much food? Such a waste! They are just letting it all rot. This year has been filled with disasters and so many people didn't even have any food to eat!” Having once been a beggar, Yang Xiaohai was particularly angry. This was one of the few times he had spoken up.

Li Huowang glanced at the boy. “That’s because they are greedy.”

Hearing this, Yang Xiaohai pursed his lips, choosing to remain silent.

They trudged onward for half an hour before finally arriving at the place where the nuns usually had their meals. This was where they found the rest of the nuns.

Blegh~

One of the fat nuns vomited right in front of Li Huowang, emptying out what she had eaten. Her head was covered in sweat, but she didn’t even bother to wipe it off before continuing to eat the food on the table.

“Hello Miao Yu. How are you?” Li Huowang greeted the fat nun in front of him.

When Miao Yu opened her mouth to talk, her saliva and scraps of food bombarded Li Huowang’s face. “It’s you. Do you want me to show you the way? The price has increased now. It’s at least one gold coin.”

“No need. Is Abbess Jingxin still in the same house?” asked Li Huowang as he backed off to prevent getting splashed by her saliva.

Seeing how she couldn’t get any gold, the greed on Miao Yu’s face was replaced with disappointment. “Of course. She’s so fat that she can’t even walk. Where else could she be?”

Li Huowang nodded and turned around, walking toward the house where he saw Abbess Jingxin last time.

Meanwhile, the others followed after him as they walked through the swamp of rotten food.

However, Yang Xiaohai who had been standing at the very back, chastised the nuns when he saw how much food they were wasting. “You are all so wasteful! Do you know just how many people are starving outside? Some of them have even died due to starvation! Do you know just how painful it is to have to endure your hunger?”

Miao Yu answered plainly. “Of course we know; isn’t that why we are trying not to let it go to waste? Can’t you see that it has already started rotting? If we don’t eat all of it now, then we won’t be able to eat any of it later.”

After saying all that, she turned around and vomited, once more emptying her stomach in the process. Then, she continued eating, her eyes filled with greed.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang retraced his steps from the last time, walking past the pigsty before arriving at Abbess Jingxin’s house.

Due to the fact that this place was fairly secluded, there wasn’t a lot of rotting food over here. Thus, they felt so much better standing here. Even though the stench was still present, at the very least they had already gotten used to it.

Li Huowang placed a glowing rock in his hand and walked inside. As he walked in, he saw Abbess Jingxin shoving something back into the folds of her skin and flesh.

“Oh, it’s you! How was it? Did you manage to find the Eighteenth Lunar?” asked the Abbess.

Li Huowang nodded and opened the box in his hands.

Even though she didn’t have eyes, Abbess Jingxin somehow managed to feel something, causing her loose face to reveal a greedy grin.

Then, Abbess Jingxin slowly shifted her huge mountain-like body as she began to approach Li Huowang, at the same time causing the entire house to start shaking.

Chapter 106 - Begin

Soon, Jingxin used her crusty nails to reach into the box and took out the pair of red eyes, gently rolling them around in her hands. “Hoho, these are good.”

Then, without any warning, she held the egg-sized pair of eyes with her hands and directly shoved them into her dark and empty eye sockets.

By the time she removed her hands from her face, the pair of blood-red eyes had found a new owner. “Thank you. With this, I can finally see once again.”

That scene was downright horrifying. Imagine a swollen, ugly, and toothless old nun with a pair of blood-red eyes. She didn’t even have her eyelids!

“Senior Li, is she really a good person? I don’t think so...” said Bai Lingmiao as she hid behind Li Huowang’s body.

“Shh, stay quiet.” Unexpectedly, Li Huowang was not surprised by Jingxin’s demeanor. His tolerance for such horrifying scenes had increased substantially after having gone through so many incidents.

Li Huowang’s voice turned serious as he stared at the old nun’s face. “You’ve got what you need. When can we start the process of getting rid of Dan Yangzi?”

“Why the rush? You youngsters are always in such a hurry,” said Jingxin.

She had just finished saying that when Li Huowang detected movement from behind himself. He turned around and saw that it was a row of fat burping nuns.

What are they doing? Are they trying to go back on their word?

Li Huowang instinctively placed his hand on the Profound Records.

However, he was wrong. The nuns' actions revealed that they had no ill intentions. All they wanted to do was to remove the wall.

Abbess Jingxin's body was far too large and the door was far too small; they had to remove the walls for her to exit.

When one of the walls of the house had been removed completely, a wooden plank with numerous wheels was pushed inside. From the looks of it, this seemed to be Abbess Jingxin's method for moving around.

Then, under everyone's watchful gaze, Abbess Jingxin slowly wriggled up the wooden plank like a giant bug. Jingxin tried to get on, but failed. She tried a few more times before exasperatedly turning toward Li Huowang and saying, "Are you guys blind? Don't you want to be free of your Master? Why aren't you in a rush now? Can't you see that I'm slow? Hurry up and come push me!"

Finally, with everyone's help, Abbess Jingxin was pushed onto the plank. Then, the wheels below the plank started to creak heavily under her body weight as the rest of the fat nuns slowly pushed her out.

On the other hand, after he released his grip of her flabby flesh, Li Huowang helped Jingxin scratch an itch that she could not reach for herself.

Taking a few steps back and looking at Abbess Jingxin who was surrounded by a group of fat nuns, Li Huowang suddenly had a feeling—he suddenly felt like he was looking at a Buddha statue.

"A Buddha statue is nothing but a statue. It's not easy to become a Buddha. Follow us, quickly," said Jingxin.

Hearing this, Li Huowang raised his legs and followed her.

However, the nuns did not push Abbess Jingxin toward the exit of the nunnery, instead taking her deeper inside. They were heading to a place that Li Huowang had not been to before.

"Remove your hands from the Profound Records. I will overlook it this one time. In the future, don't bring that thing to the nunnery. It's an extremely unlucky item," said Jingxin.

Even though Jingxin's tone was repulsive, Li Huowang decided to ignore it. In fact, he didn't have any time to care about how rude she was being. He was busy thinking about what he needed to do next.

"What's the method to get rid of Dan Yangzi? Will it work?" asked Li Huowang anxiously.

"Aren't you asking that question far too late? Relax, our Benevolent Nunnery adheres to the values of integrity and trust quite strongly. If you can't trust even us, then there's no other place you could place your trust in," said Abbess Jingxin.

However, Abbess Jingxin's words were not able to calm Li Huowang down. Ever since he realized that Dan Yangzi had possessed him, everything he did and thought about had been for this day. Thinking about the stone in his heart that he would finally be getting rid of, he thought about many things for the first time.

"Don't be too excited. Even if your Master has been dealt with, you are still a Strayed One. That's an even bigger problem," said Abbess Jingxin.

Li Huowang's heart sank upon hearing her. "Abbess Jingxin, you might not have been able to find a method in the past, but that doesn't mean that I have no hope either."

The Abbess laughed at him. "Do you think you are the only one who had such a thought? The rest of the Strayed Ones had the same kinds of thoughts as well, but in the end they all met the same fate."

Li Huowang was just about to refute her when he stopped and took a deep breath. "But we can't give up without even trying, right? I can't just continue to live on like Yu'er, accepting my fate of being trapped inside a hallucination my entire life. You think it's the best scenario? I don't think so."

Abbess Jingxin's face fell. She plunged her hands into the folds of her skin and pulled out her son, staring at his shriveled face with pity as she caressed him gently.

"Sigh~ I really don't have a choice. As his mother, the only thing I could do was keep him alive." Li Huowang stretched his hands and gently patted the old man's white hair. His eyes were filled with pity, just like Abbess Jingxin.

Meanwhile, the rest of the guiding drug ingredients and nuns were also staring at the shriveled up old man.

Li Huowang stared at the old man and said slowly, "I still remember how he leapt into my embrace when he was younger. Ah~ Fun times."

Abbess Jingxin nodded, her face covered in bitterness. "Once we get trapped inside a hallucination, it's really hard to differentiate which side is real and which is fake. I once saw my mother kneeling in front of me inside the hallucination. At that time, my heart was aching so much."

The bitterness on Jingxin's face spread to everyone.

"Sigh." Everyone sighed in unison, the atmosphere around them turning heavy.

The wooden plank continued to creak as it rolled forward. They trudged on with a heavy heart until they encountered a fork in the road. Toward their left, there was another fat old nun the same size as Jingxin. She was being pushed on a wooden plank as well.

Li Huowang stared at the old nun, his face revealing an expression of disgust. "Junior sister Jingyuan, could you please hurry up? Dan Yangzi is constantly trying to take over my body."

"Why are you being so pushy? You've already waited for so long and we are just moments away from succeeding. If you had hurried up in the first place, then we wouldn't have to rush," said Jingyuan as she picked up a piece of moldy cake from the ground and shoved it into her mouth.

Jingyuan was not the last nun they met. Soon, they met a second and a third fat, old nun. All of them were similarly being pushed on wooden planks with wheels. In just a while, including Jingxin, a total of six old nuns were being wheeled toward their destination.

Soon, Li Huowang and the rest arrived at a small basin. In the center was a large, black Buddha statue that was tens of meters tall.

For some reason, the surface of the statue looked like it was wriggling.

When they got closer, they could hear a loud buzzing sound—the wriggling black Buddha statue was composed entirely of flies!

“My stomach hurts. How about waiting for a bit?” Li Huowang pressed his stomach in pain.

“Stop whining and hurry up. You think it’s easy for all of us to come out at once?” said Jingxin as she rummaged through the folds of her skin and took out a set of shining prayer beads before throwing them over to Li Huowang.

When he saw them, Li Huowang snatched them from the air. Then, he started turning the prayer beads in his hands as he started chanting an extremely difficult sutra.

Chapter 107 - Buddha

“The devout followers saw the extraordinary landscape and cheered, happiness coming forth from deep within their hearts~ They sat on the diamond lotus, followed Amitabha, and arrived at the Western Pure Land~ They saw Amitabha’s true form, a boundless goodness containing prosperity, wisdom, and dignity~ They saw the true form of the Bodhisattvas, profound yet dignified~”

Li Huowang’s chanting grew louder and louder. As he recited the sutra, the top of his head started to glow with a holy light.

Initially, only his voice could be heard, but soon, numerous other voices started to chime in. Some were more high pitched while others had a lower pitch. However, all of them cooperated with Li Huowang.

The voices came from the fat nuns surrounding him. All of their faces revealed a humble demeanor, just like Li Huowang’s.

Soon, their chanting was supplemented by the sound of gongs, chimes, the sound of wooden fish, and other Buddhist instruments that rang out from the surrounding temples.

With the aid of these instruments, Li Huowang’s chanting became even more dignified, more... Buddha-like.

Their chanting slowly changed their surroundings, something that should be impossible to do with just sound. The colors around them slowly started to fade, slowly being replaced by a dim yellow color; it was as if they were looking at the world through a dim yellow filter.

As more and more time passed, their chanting grew louder and louder. Soon, Bai Lingmiao, Puppy, Gao Zhijian, and even Abbess Jingxin’s son joined them in singing.

Their voices gradually grew louder and louder, to the point that the Buddha statue made of flies started to vibrate.

As they chanted, the Buddha statue slowly floated toward the top of Li Huowang's head. At the same time, the buzzing sound of the flies slowly started to resonate with the rhythm of their chant.

Finally, when their chant reached the climax, the Buddha statue opened its black eyes and fell downward. The buzzing flies instantly engulfed Li Huowang.

The flies buzzed intensely, their sound overlaying the sound of the chant.

At this moment, everyone, including the millions of flies were all linked with each other spiritually—all of them were inseparable. The humans knew what the flies were thinking, and the opposite was true as well. The flies could understand the intentions of the humans.

At that moment, Abbess Jingxin willed something in her heart, and the flies complied, rearranging themselves around Li Huowang, forming a black Bodhisattva sitting atop a lotus. The Bodhisattva made of flies held a vase in its hand. At the same time, the buzzing sound of the flies took over Li Huowang's voice, leading the others to chant.

However, the grand scene before them did not last long before the sound of thunder boomed throughout the sky. At that moment, everyone stared at the sky at the same time, only to see that a hole was being torn in it.

Dan Yangzi could be seen floating high up in the air. He had three heads and numerous repulsive organs attached to his body. His three eyes were staring at the entire Benevolent Nunnery sadistically as he stood amidst the white clouds.

"My dear disciple, looks like you are way too hung up on the physical realm," said a voice.

As soon as they heard this voice, all of the old nuns, including Abbess Jingxin, stuck their hands within the folds of their skin and took out a set of prayer beads forged entirely with gold. None of them responded to Dan Yangzi verbally.

They wrapped the prayer beads around their palm and formed a Mudra by curling their index finger and thumb toward their palm. In an instant, an air of authority surged out from them and flew upward. “Praise the Buddhas! Praise the Dharma! Praise the Monks! Praise the Prohibitions! Praise the Kindness! Praise the Heavens! The monks cultivate the Six Praises and obtain Dharani!”

At the same time, the buzzing sound exploded as the black flies that constituted the Buddha statue flew up toward the sky like a tsunami. A periodic humming sound akin to someone chanting could be heard from the flies.

Seeing this, all three of Dan Yangzi’s faces smiled sarcastically. He stepped on the white clouds and flew straight toward the flies and swung his arms that were composed of numerous tentacles, revealing a bronze coin sword. The bronze coin sword was still connected to a tentacle that had an eye on it. He swung the sword hard, throwing chunks of flesh toward the flies.

The body of the flies touched by the pieces of flesh twisted abnormally as they formed a miniature version of Dan Yangzi’s head. Then, this twisted Dan Yangzi made of flies started attacking the other flies around it.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang was sitting still with a solemn expression on his face. His chanting grew louder and louder with each passing moment.

Under the guidance of the chant, the white maggots that had previously been wriggling on the food rotting within the entire Benevolent Nunnery turned into flies as they beat their wings and flew toward the chaotic sky.

The battle in the sky was extremely chaotic. As the two sides clashed intensely, countless dead flies rained down from the Heavens.

Jingxin remained calm as she stared at the chaotic battlefield. She had utmost confidence in their abilities, and that was the only reason she had accepted Li Huowang's request to begin with.

At that moment, Li Huowang placed both his palms together, his merciful voice turning low. "The righteous path of justice, the three paths to calmness, all temptations disappear in the boundless universe. May the Bodhisattva protect me."

As soon as this chant rang out, the Buddha statue let out a bright light within the sky. This light enveloped Li Huowang, slowly turning his body into a golden Buddha statue.

At the same time, the same thing also happened to Dan Yangzi as his body was slowly turned into a gold statue. Gradually, Dan Yangzi's grotesque organs started turning into gold as the light continued to affect his body.

As soon as the flies in the air saw this opportunity, they instantly swarmed Dan Yangzi.

Bzz Bzz Bzz

The group of flies expanded and slowly turned into a massive Bodhisattva sitting on a large lotus while holding a vase. Then, the entire statue gently fell toward the ground, growing smaller and smaller as it approached the ground. Even the hole in the sky started to shrink in size, inch by inch.

At the same time, the sound of chanting, the gongs, and the wooden fish slowly died down.

Back on the ground, two fat nuns held a large brush the size of a broom. The tip of the brush was dipped in the ashes contained within an incense burner. The nuns were staring at the flies with expectations in their eyes.

Looking at the scene, a sliver of greed flashed past Abbess Jingxin's heart even though she was still chanting. The ritual would soon be coming to an end, and whatever the flies had acquired would be hers once everything finished.

Ah~ Such a rarity. I wonder what it will taste like.

Just as she thought that everything was going according to the plan, something suddenly went wrong.

The golden Li Huowang suddenly started coughing, his cough worsening with each passing moment.

“Something’s wrong! I can no longer feel his thoughts! That brat broke through our pure heart!” An old nun cried out in surprise.

Just as she said that, Li Huowang expanded his mouth to the extreme. A vomiting sound was heard as he clutched onto his own neck forcefully.

Soon, everyone was greeted with a disgusting scene. A few black and sticky tentacles emerged from within the mouth of the red-robed Daoist!

It was a Black Taisui, albeit an incomplete one. However, at the base of one of the tentacles was half of Dan Yangzi’s face!

“Aiya! The Buddha is not completely dead yet! He hasn’t turned into a true Buddha! The Buddha had just merged with the Black Taisui and hidden itself within Li Huowang’s stomach! We were wrong! The real body was here!”

Chapter 108 - Dan Yangzi

This unexpected turn of events happened so suddenly that not one of them managed to react in time.

The tentacles that burst out from within Li Huowang's mouth instantly shot toward one of the nuns at the front.

The tentacles hardened by tensing themselves up. Then, this hardened tentacle pierced through the abdomen of the fat nun. However, instead of bleeding, the fat nun leaked out pearly-white fat from her injury.

But no matter what leaked out from the nun's body, her painful cries caused the so far regal chanting to become disharmonious. As the sound of the chanting lessened, the Bodhisattva statue composed of flies started to lose its form, slowly losing its grip on Dan Yangzi.

However, this was merely the start.

More and more tentacles that were merged with Dan Yangzi's organs burst forth from inside Li Huowang's mouth as they continued their attacks against the other nuns.

The black tentacles propped Li Huowang up, making him crawl along the ground like an octopus.

The entire place fell into chaos. Just as one of the fat nuns was about to stop him, the Bodhisattva statue composed of flies collapsed.

Soon, with the aid of the corporeal Dan Yangzi who was down on the ground, the incorporeal Dan Yangzi in the air freed himself from his restraints.

The situation had been reversed!

While Jingxin and the rest wanted to fight against Dan Yangzi, they couldn't do so if their Peaceful Heart Link had been broken.

Immediately, the incorporeal Dan Yangzi disappeared from their eyes—all they could see now was a Daoist with numerous tentacles bursting forth from his mouth.

“We need to find a way to once again pull that brat into our Peaceful Heart Link, otherwise we will not even be able to touch Dan Yangzi!” shouted one of the fat nuns.

“It’s no use! Dan Yangzi is inside his stomach. He’s constantly disturbing our Peaceful Heart Link! Junior sister, we have no choice. We need to summon the Bodhisattva or the nunnery will be in jeopardy!” shouted another nun.

Hearing this, Jingxin stared at the upside-down Li Huowang and sighed in her heart. They were just a step away from succeeding. To think they would fail at the final step.

Meanwhile, regardless of what the others were seeing, from Li Huowang’s perspective, the tentacles emerging from his mouth were not moving at all—in his eyes, it was the horrifying Dan Yangzi who was attacking the fat nuns. He had also been able to hear everything that Jingxin and the others had said just now.

Dan Yangzi is not dead? He’s actually alive and was even merged with the Black Taisui that was in my stomach?

Just thinking about it sent a chill down Li Huowang’s spine.

The murderous Dan Yangzi, someone that didn’t bat an eye when he refined living-breathing people into pills, was still alive!

Li Huowang had always thought that Dan Yangzi was only corrupting him mentally, but to think that Dan Yangzi was even corrupting his blood and flesh!

At that moment, Li Huowang’s eyes were filled with boundless hate as he stared at Dan Yangzi.

No! I must do something! I cannot just sit still and wait for my death to arrive. I need to kill him and settle this today!

Immediately, his right hand reached for the Profound Records and his left hand reached for the torture tools on his back. Then, he fished out a sharp pike and forcefully stabbed it into his own palm while gritting his teeth to endure the pain. Thanks to his heightened senses, he nearly passed out from pain; in fact, a normal human would've fainted almost immediately.

While the heightened senses were beneficial when using the Profound Records, Li Huowang had decided not to use them this time around. However, just then, an Immortal sash appeared and wrapped itself around the Profound Records, throwing them away from him.

"My dear disciple, you need to help your Master ascend to Immortality! You can't conspire with outsiders to try and stop me~!" Dan Yangzi's left head spoke out. The left head was an old man with a bald spot.

"Helping others ascend to immortality is a deed of great merit! You will definitely understand once you step on the path of cultivation to become an Immortal yourself," said Dan Yangzi's middle head. This head was a middle-aged man.

"You have no idea what I've seen at the edge of Immortality! I deeply want to enter that realm! No, I need to enter it! I'm just one step away from it, so you need to help me!" said Dan Yangzi's final head that was on the right and looked like a child.

"Fuck off! I will not help you even if I have to die!" Li Huowang gritted his teeth and pulled out the pike stabbed in his palm, leaving behind a massive gash.

Hearing this, Dan Yangzi's mouths twisted into a nasty grin as they laughed. "My dear disciple, you have no say in this matter. You will assist me in killing the Three Corpses. After all, I am your Master."

"Who gives a fuck about killing the Three Corpses? You think that I will trust you ever again? Just tell me about it straight if you want to take over my body! Just because I managed to fool you doesn't mean you can try to fool me! Just so you know, the nasty things that were used in the pills you ate have transformed you into a monster! The entire method of becoming an Immortal was nothing more than a hoax that I came up with on my own!” shouted Li Huowang.

However, Dan Yangzi did not become angry when he heard the truth. Instead, all six of his eyes revealed an intense sense of yearning. “No, I’ve definitely become an Immortal, albeit I am just a Half-Immortal at the moment. I’ve personally seen the Southern Heavenly Gates and also seen other Immortals just like me. There were even female Immortals over there!”

When he heard Dan Yangzi’s ravings, Li Huowang started laughing coldly. “Hehe, the realm of the Immortals? Rather than wasting time talking to me, why don’t you see what’s behind your back?”

Dan Yangzi’s three heads turned at the same time only to see a massive Bodhisattva standing in front of him. The Bodhisattva was made from heaps of fatty flesh and shook its three heads and six arms.

Bam!

The Bodhisattva made from the fatty, rotten flesh slammed down and trapped Dan Yangzi against the ground, burying half of his body.

However, despite having half of his body buried under the fatty flesh, Dan Yangzi turned around with a terrifying look in his eyes as he stared at Li Huowang. “Relax. This is just a minor issue. As long as the nuns aren’t able to connect with your inner heart, they will not be able to see me. They are nothing but a bunch of blind nuns with a little bit of power. As for you, let me straighten out the facts for you. If you listen to me, then you can still be my disciple. However, if you don’t, then you too will be nothing more than a stray dog that I can directly kick to death! There is nothing you can do to me.”

When he heard this, a rush of blood surged into Li Huowang's head. Immediately, he took out a blade and used it to stab his abdomen. Then, he sliced toward the left and started rummaging his innards.

"Stop! What are you doing? Stop!" screamed Dan Yangzi, his faces covered in a terrifying expression. He wanted to personally stop Li Huowang but he was trapped by the fat nuns.

"Didn't you say there's nothing I can do?" Li Huowang shouted at Dan Yangzi, his eyes turning bloodshot.

"THEN HOW ABOUT THIS?!" Li Huowang endured the extreme pain as he shakily raised the blade and stabbed it right into his stomach.

Seeing this, Dan Yangzi's faces were covered in a mix of extreme anger and disbelief.

"You fucking ingrate! You have no idea what you are doing! You think you can fight against me? Dream on! Your fate has been sealed!" shouted Dan Yangzi.

On the other hand, Li Huowang gritted his teeth and stabbed once more, completely puncturing his stomach. "My fate is sealed? I don't fucking believe in such fairy tales! Fucking Baldy! We are not done here!"

Chapter 109 - Injury

Ci Ci~

The sound of flesh being torn apart rang out as black liquid poured from the hole Li Huowang had made in his own abdomen. Soon, Li Huowang collapsed due to the extreme pain caused by cutting open his own stomach.

Even so, he smiled when he saw Dan Yangzi's grotesque body slowly starting to blur. He didn't mind enduring all the pain in the world as long as he could kill Dan Yangzi!

"You ungrateful brat! You would still be stuck inside your hallucinations if I hadn't helped you!" shouted Dan Yangzi as he disappeared.

Hearing this, Li Huowang gritted his teeth while pushing the blade even deeper. "You think I needed your help? It's because of you that I am suffering so much today!"

"You fucking brat!" Dan Yangzi's six eyes revealed ghastly killing intent, which also influenced Li Huowang, making him feel vindictive.

Just as the oppressive atmosphere reached its climax, a large group of flies swooped down from high in the Heavens, covering both Li Huowang and Dan Yangzi in rot and filth.

Jingxin and the other nuns had made their move. They placed their palms together and wrapped them in prayer beads before resuming their chant toward the Buddha statue. "Without pain, we cannot remove pain; without wisdom, we cannot obtain enlightenment. The Bodhisattva must follow the path of Buddha and face everything with a heart that expects nothing. Only then can one's heart be free of obstacles. Without obstacles, there is no fear, and one will be free from all distractions, thus achieving Nirvana. The Buddha of the past, the present, and the future have all achieved Nirvana in this state!”

As their chanting grew louder, their bodies underwent a massive transformation. Everything associated with old age, filth, and fat quickly disappeared from their bodies. Then, the essence of old age, filth, and fat intertwined in the air, flying higher and higher. When it reached a certain height, a crack appeared in the Heavens, revealing a massive eye that could cover the sun.

It was an eye from an angry Arhat and was devoid of all filth and sins.

“HA!” A furious shout rang out for tens of miles as space itself trembled. By the time the sound disappeared, everything unusual within the Benevolent Nunnery, including Dan Yangzi, had disappeared.

...

Bai Lingmiao woke up groggily. She realized that she had been lying face down in front of a large pot of oily fried rice while stuffing her mouth with her own two hands.

“Blegh!” She spat out the oily fried rice in her mouth while scanning her surroundings anxiously. After taking a moment to let everything sink in, she realized that she was in the food hall of the Benevolent Nunnery. Surrounding her were the fat nuns who were busy stuffing their mouths with food. The constant sound of chewing filled her ears.

She turned around and inspected the steel pot only to see that the fried rice was prepared for her and the entire table. Puppy, Xiaoman, Baolu, Yang Xiaohai, Gao Zhijian, and the others were also present as they stuffed their mouths with food, just like the nuns. Luckily, they all snapped out of it one by one before scanning their surroundings in a dazed panic.

“What’s going on? Why are we here?” The rest of them were clearly confused about what had happened.

Bai Lingmiao did the headcount and was relieved to find that everyone was here... except for Li Huowang.

“What happened? Weren’t we helping Senior Li with his exorcism? Why are we here eating rice? Also, there’s not even a single piece of vegetable in this thing. It’s too oily, yuck,” said Puppy as he checked the other tables.

However, the nuns were too lazy to bother with them and just continued stuffing themselves. But, instead of the fried rice, the nuns were eating moldy dumplings and other food.

Bai Lingmiao was visibly worried. She approached one of the nuns and asked, “Master, may I know where our Senior Li is?”

“Senior Li? You mean the Strayed One? He’s with Abbess Jingxin. Find her, and you will also find him,” The nun answered Bai Lingmiao without even turning around; she was busy eating the food in front of her, almost as if she was afraid that her food would be gone if she ate any slower.

Bai Lingmiao and the rest decided to brave through the swamp of moldy food before arriving at Abbess Jingxin’s house.

Just then, they saw Li Huowang talking with a strange nun. The nun didn’t have eyes, and her eye sockets were sunken in. She was quite skinny, but her skin was very loose, to the point that the skin on her chin reached down to her stomach and the skin on her stomach could touch the ground. It was almost as if she was wearing an extremely oversized Daoist robe.

When he heard footsteps, Li Huowang turned around before smiling and waving at them as he called them over.

Bai Lingmiao was shocked. This was the first time she had seen Li Huowang smile.

“Are you guys alright? I hope you were not frightened. The nuns in the Benevolent Nunnery couldn’t put a stop to their abilities in time, so you guys were affected for a period even after the exorcism ended,” Li Huowang calmly explained.

Just as Bai Lingmiao and the others got closer, they were shocked to see the beautiful appearance of the nun. She was simply too gorgeous despite her bizarre appearance.

Bai Lingmiao pulled Li Huowang slightly away from the nun and whispered, "Senior Li, who is she?"

"She's Abbess Jingxin. Don't you recognize her?" asked Li Huowang.

Li Huowang was just explaining the situation when the blind nun with flabby skin nodded.

"Her? Jingxin?! The nun who couldn't even walk because of being too fat?" Everyone's eyes widened with shock. The change in her appearance was just far too massive!

"The abilities of the nuns from the Benevolent Nunnery are somewhat different from the rest of the sects. There's no need for all of you to pry deeper into it. Thanks to the sacrifice made by Abbess Jingxin, my worries had been dealt with. Dan Yangzi will not appear again," explained Li Huowang.

Hearing this, everyone smiled and congratulated Li Huowang for being healed.

After talking for a bit, Li Huowang stopped them from asking further questions; he had something to say.

"I still have to take care of some stuff over here, and so I need to stay here for a few days. You guys should leave first. Once I'm finished with my business, I will catch up with you," said Li Huowang.

"Senior Li, why do you need to stay? Also, can't we just stay and help you?" Bai Lingmiao immediately raised an objection when she heard that they would be separated.

"Sorry, but there's nothing you guys can do to help me in terms of cultivation. You guys leave first, and I will catch up to you in another ten days or so. You guys need to reach your homes soon. Any later and you will be once again stuck having to celebrate the new years away from your homes. We've already delayed our journey for far too long. Relax, it's not as if I won't be traveling anymore. Just follow the path that I've marked on the map and I will be able to catch up with you guys soon enough," persuaded Li Huowang.

In the face of Li Huowang's persuasion, they all finally relented and left the nunnery after saying their goodbyes.

As he stared at them walking away, Li Huowang's smile slowly fell, being replaced by an expression filled with pain.

He removed his red Daoist robes and pulled up his shirt, revealing a large gash on his abdomen. Currently, there was a dense mass of white maggots crawling in the wound.

"Your injury will heal in just a few days within the Benevolent Nunnery. What you need to be concerned about is an entirely different matter. You know what I mean," said Abbess Jingxin.

Chapter 110 - Insane

Hearing her words, Li Huowang gently held his wound and slowly walked into Jingxin's house. Then, he slowly leaned against the wall before sliding down and sitting on the floor.

"So even you guys aren't able to get rid of Dan Yangzi?" Li Huowang asked.

"Of course we can. We will just need to kill you," replied Jingxin.

Hearing this, Li Huowang began to laugh. "Haha, to think that even the Abbess could crack a joke like this."

"I'm not joking with you. Dan Yangzi is deeply rooted within your body—you are a part of his Three Corpses. It will require extreme precision to remove your Master while still keeping you alive; both of you are just way too tangled up, to the point that you can already be considered as half Dan Yangzi. This was also why I did not just remove the Black Taisui from your stomach. Presently, that Black Taisui is both Dan Yangzi and you at the same time," explained Jingxin.

Li Huowang had requested the Benevolent Nunnery's help to get rid of Dan Yangzi, but it ended in failure. Even with Li Huowang co-operating with all the nuns, all they had managed to do was inflict an injury on Dan Yangzi and chase him away. The root of the problem was still there.

Li Huowang huddled in the dark with his back against the cold wall, staring blankly at the mossy tiles of the temple roof outside.

"You can't blame us for this. I had no idea that your Master was only half dead. The Benevolent Nunnery excels in dealing with the spirits, but those rule-breaking bald donkeys from the Righteous Monastery are much better when it comes to dealing in matters of the physical flesh,” said Jingxin.

“Abbess, don’t worry; I don’t blame you. How much longer do I have until I completely turn into Dan Yangzi?” Li Huowang was not disappointed by the failure.

“With your current situation, you should have two more months,” Abbess Jingxin said as she walked into the darkness and gently rocked a bamboo cradle while revealing a lovely smile as she looked at the shriveled old man within.

“Oh...” Li Huowang trailed off.

“So, what do you plan to do?” asked Jingxin.

“I will need you to wait before I can give you an answer to that question. Abbess, may I borrow something from you?” asked Li Huowang.

Then, the dark room turned silent.

After a long time, Li Huowang took a deep breath as his face contorted from discomfort. He suddenly opened his eyes and saw that the darkness around him had been replaced with the color white. He was back inside a hospital.

He inspected his surroundings and saw that this time it was a normal hospital rather than a mental hospital; it seemed that his injury hadn't healed within the hallucination.

He shifted his gaze downward and saw his mother, Sun Xiaoqin, sleeping by his bed as she sat on a little stool.

In Li Huowang’s eyes, his mother was someone who loved cleanliness; however, her hair was now very oily, almost as if she hadn’t washed it in a very long time.

Li Huowang wanted to reach out to her, but realized that all four of his limbs had been tied down and restricted. He had no choice but to gently wake her up. “Mom, it’s me, Huowang.”

Soon, Sun Xiaoqin opened her eyes. When she realized that her son was calling out to her with a normal expression, she hugged him tightly. “Son, you are awake!”

A period of silence followed. After making sure that his mother wasn't that agitated, he asked, "Mom, where's dad?"

"Your father is out earning money. Our finances aren't looking good and we have a lot of debt," replied Sun Xiaoqin.

However, immediately after she said this, her heart fell. She cupped Li Huowang's face as she said in a heartbroken tone, "Huowang, I don't blame you. After all, this is not something you wanted to do. It's all that ailment's fault! That damned ailment! Why was my son the one who got afflicted with it when there are so many other people out there?"

"Mom, can you release one of my hands? I want to stretch a bit," asked Li Huowang.

When she saw that her son was speaking normally, she stopped hesitating and she smiled once more. "Alright, it's good to stretch every once in a while. You've been restrained for so long that your body might just go to waste at this rate."

When his right hand was freed, Li Huowang smiled at his mother. "Thanks mom."

After saying that, he reached into his hospital gown and took out a heavy prayer bead—it was made from gold. Then, Li Huowang placed it in Sun Xiaoqin's hands as she tried to process what it was.

"Mom, go and exchange that for some money. Pay off our family's debt. Then, if there's money leftover, go and buy back our house. I still like this place," said Li Huowang.

Sun Xiaoqin held the heavy golden prayer bead and was confused. "What's going on? Son, where did you get this much gold? Did you go out and take it while I was asleep?"

Li Huowang shook his head as he took off the jade pendant from his neck before placing it in Sun Xiaoqin's hands as well. "Mom, take this as well. It will fetch a good price. Even if this is a hallucination, I don't want to see you suffer."

When she heard this, Sun Xiaoqin threw down both the golden bead and jade pendant before holding his shoulders and shaking them vigorously as tears streamed down her face. “Son, wake up! I am your mother! This is not a hallucination! It really isn’t!”

Li Huowang wiped her tears with his hand and smiled plainly. “You are right, Mom. This is not a hallucination. I was just messing with you.”

When Li Huowang reassured her, Sun Xiaoqin started growing excited; she did a little dance and placed both of her palms together as she praised the Buddha.

She took her phone out excitedly and wanted to let Li Huowang talk to his father who was at work.

On the other hand, while she was calling Li Huowang’s father, Li Huowang secretly plucked out a red button from her shirt and placed it inside his hospital gown.

Maybe it had been because Li Huowang had willingly entered the hallucination this time, but it ended quite quickly. His white-haired father hadn’t even had the chance to talk to him through the video call when everything around him turned dark once more. He was back in the dark room.

When he returned, he saw Abbess Jingxin standing silently while holding onto the golden prayer beads.

Then, Li Huowang raised his hands. His breathing was rapid and his thoughts were jumbled up. He gritted his teeth and touched his chest, and then, his arms froze.

There was nothing there.

Li Huowang laughed when he was faced with this expected scenario. “Hehe, I knew it. How could that side be real? To think that I would believe the words of the people inside the hallucination. I must be crazy.”

Li Huowang's laughter gradually came to a stop. What he had just found out could not be considered good news—the final hopes in his heart had just disappeared.

He took a deep breath and gently spoke to himself, "Mom, I hope I didn't end up scaring you. I'm sorry, but please tie my hands up again. I don't want to hurt you."

Then, the room fell silent.

"Since that side is fake, who were you talking to just now?"

Abbess Jingxin broke the silence after she had quietly observed him for a while.

Li Huowang raised his head and stared at the nun in the dark.

"I was just talking to myself. Can't I do that?"

"What do you plan to do?" asked Jingxin.

Hearing this, Li Huowang took a deep breath, his eyes getting filled with killing intent. "I want Dan Yangzi to die!"

Chapter 111 - Method

Li Huowang sat on the ground with an expression filled with hesitation and struggle. After staying still and pondering for a long time, he finally picked up the brush and began to write on the paper in front of him.

However, he had to take long pauses after every few characters. One reason for this was that he was not used to writing with a brush. But more importantly, Li Huowang had already started to forget how to write a lot of the common characters.

Li Huowang understood what this meant—he was slowly becoming more like Dan Yangzi.

After writing a long passage, Li Huowang ended his letter in large words—Li Huowang’s final work.

After he finished this, he dried the paper and handed it to the plump nun beside him. "If my fellow disciples come looking for me, please pass this letter to the tall one among them. He can read."

Next, he passed the sacred text, the gourd containing the lifespan pills, and the bronze bell to her. "Please pass these three items to them as well. They know how to use the gourd and bell. As for this sacred text, it can be a memento for them."

Miao Yu^[1] glanced at the three items, then looked at the Profound Records hanging from Li Huowang’s waist. "How about that?"

Li Huowang placed his hand on the bamboo slip that had brought him endless agony, and then shook his head. "I’m not passing this to them. This thing is ominous, and I wouldn’t feel good about leaving it behind to them. It’s better for it to go with me."

After he had sorted everything out, Li Huowang turned to look at Jingxin, "Abbess, everything is prepared."

Abbess Jingxin nodded and started walking toward the depths of the Benevolent Nunnery. The loose skin on her body hung low like a skirt as it was dragged along the ground.

She walked ahead, while Li Huowang followed behind her while clutching his abdomen. They remained silent as they continued walking.

They walked through the 'swamp' of rotten food, then went past a few more dilapidated temples. Soon, a short, black pagoda appeared before them.

When she saw that pagoda, Jingxin finally spoke up, "You really want to do this?"

Li Huowang nodded. "What you said earlier reminded me. Actually, the thing that I have always wanted was complete eradication of Dan Yangzi. As for whether or not I would survive..."

Li Huowang chuckled softly before continuing, "...thinking back, I never really cared about my own life."

Li Huowang pressed on his abdominal injury, exhaustion plastered across his face. "Abbess, truthfully speaking, after going through so much, I am already very tired. I don't want to see my mom suffer, nor do I want to constantly endure the feeling of Dan Yangzi slowly taking over my body. All I really, truly want is to rest."

As he had expected, fear did not blossom in his heart when he thought of his imminent death. On the contrary, he felt somewhat relieved, "Ah, I am so worn out."

Hearing all this, Abbess Jingxin nodded and brought him toward the pagoda. "Alright, as you wish."

"Thank you, Abbess. Of all the people I have met in this world, you can be considered to be the only good person," said Li Huowang.

"I am a nun, so it's natural for me to be compassionate," said

Jingxin humbly.

"Abbess, since you're a Buddhist disciple, can I ask you a question?" asked Li Huowang.

"Ah? What is it?"

"Do you believe that in this world people become ghosts after they die?" asked Li Huowang.

"You're about to die shortly. In your opinion, would it be better to become a ghost, or to dissipate completely?" countered Jingxin.

"I feel that living as a human is already tiring enough. We should rest after death and stop causing trouble." Li Huowang replied very calmly.

Hearing this, Jingxin tilted her head slightly and looked at Li Huowang with her sunken eyes. "Are you sure that you have no attachments left? Is there nothing within this mortal world that would cause you to show some reluctance?"

Li Huowang's expression froze as he thought of many things. "I do. But now, me being with them would only bring them harm."

Hearing this, Abbess Jingxin did not say anything else, and continued walking toward the black tower.

As they approached, Li Huowang heard a rustling sound; it was akin to leaves rubbing against one another.

He looked toward the direction of the sounds, and finally managed to identify their source—cockroaches. There were countless black bugs squished together inside the tower.

Jingxin did not stop, and directly brought Li Huowang into the pile of cockroaches. It was very unpleasant to have cockroaches climbing all over one's body. However, right now, Li Huowang did not mind all this; after all, he was determined to meet his death. Thus, he could only push aside the crawling bugs to keep up.

After walking through the cockroach pile for around half an incense stick worth of time, Li Huowang's vision cleared up and what he saw shocked him.

Gray rats of varying sizes were entangled with one another, forming large rat clusters that moved around and nestled against each other, eventually forming a huge mountain composed entirely of rats. The rats in the mountain were staring directly at Li Huowang with their red eyes of varying sizes.

Within the quivering rat mountain was a hole; it was almost as if it was meant for someone to enter.

“Is this it?” asked Li Huowang as he took a deep breath and walked toward the hole within the rat mountain.

When Li Huowang was just a few steps away, he paused and turned toward Abbess Jingxin. “Abbess, are you certain that after I die, you will be able to get rid of Dan Yangzi?”

His own life was insignificant; what mattered the most was making that wretched being suffer for eternity.

Only when he received an affirmation from Jingxin did Li Huowang relax and start walking toward the rat hole once again.

In the final moments before his death, the figures of both Yang Na and Bai Lingmiao flashed through Li Huowang’s mind, gradually merging with each other.

Farewell to this damned place!

Li Huowang thought as he was about to walk into the hole.

However, at that moment, Abbess Jingxin’s voice rang behind him, “Since you aren’t afraid of death, then I can recommend one more option. If that still doesn’t work out, then it won’t be too late for you to choose death after that.”

Li Huowang turned back in astonishment. “There’s another method?”

Hope was re-ignited in his previously hopeless heart upon hearing Abbess Jingxin’s words.

In response, Jingxin nodded and pointed at the Profound Records at his waist. “Seek help from the original owners of that thing.”

“Them? Abbess, I’ve never asked you about this thing previously, but where did this ominous object that requires sacrifices of flesh even come from?” Li Huowang looked at the red bamboo slip in astonishment.

“Ao Jing Sect.” Abbess Jingxin replied with an extremely unfamiliar name.

“Originally, they were two separate sects—the Ao Sect and Jing Sect. Later on, they somehow ended up merged. The Profound Records in your possession come from them,” continued Jingxin.

“Ao Jing Sect?” Li Huowang mumbled to himself. He had known about Buddhism and Daoism, but it was the first time he had heard about Ao Jing Sect.

“Do they have methods to separate Dan Yangzi from my body?” asked Li Huowang.

“You can look for them and find out. If there is still anyone in this world who can resolve your peculiar situation, it can only be them, people who are even stranger than you. Of course, even if they really are able to help you, you may not be able to escape them. But since you aren’t even afraid of death, you shouldn’t be afraid of that either,” said Jingxin.

At that moment, Abbess Jingxin used one of her fingers to slice through some of her loose skin, cutting off a piece of skin. Then, she quickly used her blackened fingernail to trace out a few characters onto the piece of skin using Women’s Script.

After she finished writing on it, she walked over to Li Huowang and placed the piece of skin in his hand. “Bring this to them; that way, they won’t do anything to you as soon as they see you. If even they can’t help you, then you can always return here to die peacefully.”

Li Huowang rubbed the piece of skin in his hand gently. He was still filled with disbelief. There was suddenly a glimmer of hope even though he had already been prepared to die.

“Thank you, Abbess Jingxin! If Dan Yangzi’s matter can really be resolved, then I will repay your kindness in future!” Li Huowang grabbed onto this last trace of hope to live, and walked through the pile of cockroaches and toward the outside. “Abbess, it’s a deal! If they aren’t able to get rid of Dan Yangzi, then I’ll return here in two months for you to kill me.”

Shortly after Li Huowang left, a fat nun stepped out from within the rat mountain and came up to Jingxin. “Abbess, why did you decide to help this young Strayed One like that? You even used your Flesh Book[2] like that. That is a huge favor. In the first place, we aren’t even on good terms with Ao Jing Sect to begin with.”

Abbess Jingxin looked toward the direction that Li Huowang had gone with a complex expression. After a long time, she spoke slowly, “Earlier, this kid held my face and called me ‘mom’. He really resembles Yu’er from his younger days, both in his actions and in his way of speaking.”

1. The author wrote Miao Yin here, which we believe is a typo. The names get jumbled up quite consistently 🤔

2. The skin she wrote on. It is a term made up by the author.

Chapter 112 - On The Way

“The sacred text, the bronze bell, and the gourd,” Li Huowang checked off the items that he had given to the nun for safekeeping. Since he was going to find the Ao Jing Sect, he had a feeling that these objects and the farewell letter may end up being useful on the journey, and shouldn’t be left here.

Even now, Li Huowang still felt like all of this was a dream. There was actually a method of possibly getting rid of Dan Yangzi, albeit, the possibility was very small.

Just as he was about to take his items and leave, Li Huowang noticed some changes to his belongings.

“That’s a... tooth mark?” Li Huowang touched a corner of the sacred text and then glanced doubtfully at Miao Yu[\[1\]](#).

In response, the fat nun who had been stuffing herself until now suddenly looked guiltily toward the ceiling.

“Venerable Miao Yu, you even gnawed on this and left a tooth mark? Do you happen to know what this sacred text is? Truthfully, if you can help me figure it out, then I’ll have to thank you.”

“No, it definitely wasn’t me. In fact, there was already a tooth mark on it to begin with. The Benevolent Nunnery has helped you so much, so don’t go around falsely accusing good people,” defended Miao Yu weakly.

As he listened to Miao Yu’s clumsy lies, Li Huowang just helplessly shook his head.

He picked up the gourd and shook it, only to find that it was actually empty—the last remaining lifespan pill was missing. Li Huowang once again looked at the fat nun.

Currently, she had her head buried in her food and was eating heartily.

Strangely, even though he had been stolen from, Li Huowang did not feel the slightest bit surprised about it. He should have already anticipated this outcome back when he entrusted his belongings to these greedy nuns for the sake of safekeeping.

With a resigned look, Li Huowang carried the three items and walked over before patting the folds of skin on the plump nun's body. "If fate wills it, see you again, Venerable Miao Yu."

Then, he turned and began to walk toward the entrance. However, just as he was about to leave, he turned to look back at the nun behind him.

Meanwhile, Miao Yu was peeking at him as he turned around, but then quickly buried her head in the food once again. When she saw Li Huowang approach her, she took the initiative to speak. "That thing was indeed eaten by me. The taste wasn't all that great. If you want to, then go ahead and complain about me to the Abbess!"

When he saw her pretend like she didn't care, Li Huowang could only chuckle. "I am not that petty. I came back to ask you about something. Have you heard of the Ao Jing Sect?"

Miao Yu looked puzzled as she continued to chew on the food bolus in her mouth. "Didn't I tell you that Ao Jing Sect's Cross Temple is located on the large mountain to the west? I even told you exactly where to go to find them, so can't you look for them yourself?"

Li Huowang shook his head. "I'm not here to ask about its location. I want to know about what the Ao Jing Sect is like. What kind of background do they have? What sort of people are their members?"

Hearing this, the rotund Miao Yu frowned, her facial features scrunching up like a bun. "You even have the Profound Records on you, yet you don't know what they are like? If I had to describe them, then they are basically a bunch of freaks."

"Freaks? Are they even stranger than you guys? Hahaha..." Li Huowang couldn't help himself and burst out laughing.

Miao Yu looked displeased. "I'm not joking! That bunch is very strange. You've used the Profound Records, so you should know a little bit about how their cultivation methods function. They don't meditate or recite chants, and neither do they cultivate like others. Instead, they torment themselves, claiming that it pleases their Sacrificial [2] God."

"Sacrificial God? Isn't it Ba-Hui? Does that thing have two names?" Li Huowang was rather surprised at the unexpectedly different name.

"Who cares what they are called. In any case, the people of that sect like to wear big hats and robes so that they can cover up the injuries on their bodies. Last time, I even saw one of them who did not have any skin left. Even though Abbess has given you a Flesh Book, it's not guaranteed that they will respect it. So, be careful when you deal with them. After all, there have been some grievances between them and us in the past," said Miao Yu.

Li Huowang had only been asking random questions, but he actually managed to receive some details, and so he continued, "What sort of grievances?"

"It was all because of the Abbess' son. Those of the Ao Jing sect like to capture Strayed Ones for who knows what reason. In any case, by the time we finally managed to retrieve him, the Abbess' son had gone completely crazy," explained Miao Yu.

At that moment, Miao Yu paused and looked Li Huowang up and down before clicking her tongue in pity. "Tsk, ts, I nearly forgot that you are also a Strayed One. It's going to be very dangerous for you."

"Sister, do you think I want to place myself in danger? I don't have much of a choice here...” Li Huowang sighed regretfully, then turned around before walking out of the Benevolent Nunnery’s entrance.

After Li Huowang left, Miao Yu continued to sit there as she scarfed down her food while muttering to herself, “When he had been writing his farewell letter, I saw that he seemed determined to meet his death. How come that changed so quickly, and now he’s in such a rush to look for the Ao Jing Sect? Did one of you end up tugging on his heartstrings?”

“I can’t be bothered to tug on the heartstrings of a Strayed One. Don’t drive yourself crazy. I reckon that this change should be from Abbess Jingxin’s intervention,” a voice rang out in Miao Yu’s head.

“Oh~ I see,” replied Miao Yu. Meanwhile, various voices rose and fell inside Miao Yu’s head.

Currently, Lu Zhuangyuan’s face was swollen as he led the Lu Family Troupe on the road. They looked disheveled and ragged in appearance, and all of them had an ugly expression on their face.

Lu Zhuangyuan’s daughter-in-law who was on the carriage was even more distraught as she tightly embraced her daughter and cried bitterly while leaning against a wooden box.

At that moment, a lit tobacco pipe was forcefully swung through the air in an arc.

“Cry! All you know how to do is to cry! How many days of crying has it been? You were the ones who didn’t follow my instructions to rub ash on your faces! And now, all my silver has been plundered by those damned soldiers! Am I crying? What’s the matter? Is your purity more important than my silver, huh?” shouted Lu Zhuangyuan.

“Dad, I’m begging you, please stop!” Lu Juren’s eyes reddened. His sullen face was an indication of his pent-up anger.

When Lu Zhuangyuan saw his son looking like that, he sighed deeply. “Don’t worry, they didn’t manage to take all the money. I may not be good for much, but I can still hide some money. Those soldiers found only two spots; there are at least three others that they didn’t find,” Lu Zhuangyuan said as he took out a copper key and opened the large wooden crate on the carriage.

His callused hands rummaged through the luggage for a while, and then he retrieved several pieces of silver of varying sizes from inside a hidden compartment. He picked out a broken piece of silver that was slightly larger than a soybean, and reluctantly passed it to his daughter-in-law.

“Our Lu family hasn’t treated you well. Take this, and buy whatever you want when we get to the market,” said Lu Zhuangyuan.

Luo Juanhua had previously been sobbing as though she had been wronged. However, once she touched the piece of silver, her face instantly lit up and she carefully tucked it into her small purse. “I won’t be using this; I’m saving it for Cui’er’s[3] dowry.”

Lu Zhuangyuan just watched all this in silence. Every time she felt wronged, she would put on an act to extort him like this. At this point, he had grown accustomed to this.

1. Name changed again to Miao Yu, for consistency 📖

2. Chinese term here used was 牯, which suggests a cow to be sacrificed for a ritual. If it survives, it will be called 牯神, Sacrificial God 📖

3. Likely typo from the author, which was Xiu'er instead of Cui'er. Xiu refers to Lu Xiucui, who is Lu Zhuangyuan's younger son and so it doesn't make sense for there to be a dowry for him. Cui'er is Luo Juanhua's daughter and Lu Zhuangyuan's grand-daughter, so Luo Juanhua saving for her dowry makes sense. 📖

Chapter 113 - Unexpected Meeting

Once he confirmed that his daughter-in-law had stopped crying, Lu Zhaoyuan turned back to look at his terrified-looking younger son who was trailing behind the carriage.

“Son, how are you? Not too scared, I hope?” Lu Zhuangyuan asked as he tried giving a reassuring smile, but could only manage a sickly grimace. “Don’t be afraid, ok? Those smelly soldiers are just paper tigers. If they were truly capable, then they would be sent to battle.”

However, even though Lu Zhuangyuan tried to comfort him, Lu Xiucan’s expression did not improve. It was almost as if the plundering soldiers were right in front of him, and threatening him with knives placed on his throat.

“Dad... why are we crossing the border? Shouldn’t we go home first?” asked Lu Xiucan.

Lu Zhuangyuan lit up his tobacco pipe and started to smoke it, the white smoke released by it puffing up and covering his eyes. “I’ve been thinking that these aren’t ordinary times; the world is going to enter a period of utter chaos. And so, we’re heading out there to find a place to hide for a while.”

“Dad, our emperor lost the war, so does that mean we are going to be slaves to another nation?” asked Lu Xiucan.

Immediately, Lu Zhuangyuan knocked his tobacco pipe onto Lu Xiucan’s head causing the sparks to scatter around.

“Does the identity of the emperor affect us in the slightest? Is that really what you should be thinking about?” asked Lu Zhuangyuan. However, when he saw Lu Xiucan’s aggrieved expression as he massaged his head, Lu Zhuangyuan sighed softly and continued to instruct patiently. “There are so many defeated soldiers, so it’s likely that there will be a change in the regime. There’s likely going to be even more chaos after such huge militaristic movements, so we’re heading out to lay low for now. It doesn’t matter if our money is stolen. As long as we are safe and alive, we can go anywhere.”

“But... I’ve never been to the kingdom of Si Qi. Dad... I’m a little scared...” muttered Lu Xiucan.

Lu Zhuangyuan was frustrated upon seeing his younger son being so cowardly. “What’s there to be afraid of! Don’t the people from the kingdom of Si Qi also have two eyes and one nose, just like us? Can they grow extra features? At most, the kingdom of Si Qi has some more lakes and rivers than us.”

At this point, Lu Juren who had been quietly listening in joined the conversation, “Dad, we aren’t too familiar with this place... I also think it’s better to stay in our hometown. It might not be as severe as you said.”

“You’re still taking this disaster too lightly! Your father has eaten more salt than you’ve eaten rice. Do you think I could be wrong?” Lu Zhuangyuan continued to explain. “Don’t worry; I’ve got it all figured out. Back when the Daoist was looking at his map, I took several glances. They were going to the Liang Kingdom. The journey is quite long, but we’ll definitely be safe as long as we stick by his side. Wherever he goes, that’s where we will follow. He can go on his journey, and we can just host our own play. Nobody will dare to disturb us. Once the emperor is changed, and this disaster has blown over, we will return. Don’t you think it’s a sound plan?”

“We aren’t even related to him; will he let us follow him?” Lu Juren asked, feeling embarrassed.

“Ah~ do you still not see why I gave away that jar of salted duck eggs back then?” Lu Zhuangyuan continued, “Remember what the Daoist said when he crossed the border? We'll meet again if fate allows! It doesn't matter if he was just being polite. Since those were his words, we just need to be humble and pretend to be miserable. With the relationship of that jar of duck eggs, could he bear to drive us away?"

When he saw the look of understanding on his son's face, Lu Zhuangyuan felt rather pleased with himself. "Hehe, the older, the wiser. Learn more from me in the future."

"Dad, I got it. Since we're performers, it doesn't matter where we go. Perhaps the people in the other regions will like our performance even more, and thus we can make more money," said Lu Juren.

The atmosphere improved considerably after Lu Zhuangyuan explained the situation; everyone began to look forward to a brighter future.

The carriage continued on its way, where they suddenly saw several rolling black balls up ahead. Only when they got closer, did Lu Zhuangyuan find out that those rolling black balls were a group of a dozen fat nuns who were traveling with their carriages.

There were six carriages in total, and the wheels left deep marks on the ground, suggesting that they were transporting something heavy.

"These nuns are really smelly. Dad, let's move faster," said Luo Juanhua as she furrowed her brows and took out a handkerchief to cover her daughter's nose.

"What nonsense? Don't you see that even the people from the kingdom of Si Qi are following these nuns? We'll follow them as well," said Lu Zhuangyuan as he looked at the other travelers beside the fat nuns. His wealth of experience told him that there must be a reason behind all these people from the kingdom of Si Qi to be enduring the smell and traveling alongside these nuns.

"But... this smell is too..." Luo Juanhua frowned and muttered under her breath.

Less than an hour later, Lu Zhuangyuan saw that the nuns had stopped and begun to eat their dry rations with big mouthfuls.

Seeing this, Lu Zhuangyuan and his family started to eat as well. After spending some more time with them, the smell was quite a bit more bearable.

While they were eating, Lu Zhuangyuan suddenly stood up. He looked rather excited as he walked toward a man amongst the travelers.

The man was wearing a black-veiled bamboo hat. He seemed to have some difficulty with his legs as he was leaning on an old horse while eating.

When Lu Zhuangyuan approached, the man also seemed to recognize him. "Troupe Leader Lu, what are you doing here?"

Lu Zhuangyuan's eyes lit up upon hearing the familiar voice. "Ah, so it really is you. You're that Daoist's..."

However, before he could finish his sentence, the man removed his black-veiled hat and revealed himself to be Zhao Wu.

Unexpectedly meeting an old acquaintance in a foreign land made both parties feel especially close.

After they finished exchanging pleasantries, Lu Zhuangyuan learned that Zhao Wu was searching for Li Huowang, immediately causing his old face to break into a broad smile.

"Your legs aren't in great shape, and it's dangerous to travel alone. I'll accompany you to find him; it's on the way anyway," offered Lu Zhuangyuan. That Daoist would owe him a favor once he delivered this person to him; it would be rather difficult for him to reject them after that. Also, this person was that Daoist's junior, and may have some supernatural abilities as well. That would mean that he would get another bodyguard for his journey.

Lu Zhuangyuan enthusiastically brought Zhao Wu back to the Lu Family Troupe and introduced them once again. He even had his daughter-in-law get off the carriage to make room for him to be seated.

At that moment, their lively conversation was interrupted by Lu Xiucai. "Zhao Wu, didn't you go back home earlier? Then why did you come out again?"

Those words made the smile on Zhao Wu's face gradually vanish, breaking apart this harmonious scene.

Just as it seemed like he was going to reveal some strong emotions, he managed to control himself before these outsiders. "It's nothing much. Some things... happened at home."

Lu Zhuangyuan sensed that the atmosphere had taken a strange turn, and immediately used his tobacco pipe to knock his younger son's head. "Who asked you to talk so much! I taught you for so many years, but still haven't learned anything, have you? What Zhao Wu? Is that what you should be calling him? To you, it's Master Zhao!"

When he saw the teary-eyed Lu Xiucai, Zhao Wu quickly stepped in to mediate, "Troupe Leader Lu, there's no need for this. Calling me Zhao Wu is fine."

Just at that moment, a gust of wind blew across, causing everyone to close their eyes.

When they opened their eyes again, everyone was stunned. The curtains covering the nuns' carriages had been blown open, revealing a shimmering white sea.

Lu Zhuangyuan's eyes were wide with shock. "My goodness! So much silver!"

Chapter 114 - Cavalry

Silver. Several carts full of silver.

Lu Zhuangyuan had known that the carriages were transporting something heavy when he saw those deep marks left by their wheels, but he could never have thought that the carts were all filled with silver!

How much silver is there in those carts? Just give me a portion of it, and I will be able to open several theaters.

Soon, the curtains, blown off by the wind, fell back down; even so, Lu Zhuangyuan was still staring wide-eyed.

Meanwhile, the nuns noticed the strange looks they had attracted, but they were too lazy to care about all that; they just continued to sit on the floor like measuring weights as they ate.

“Stop staring; hurry up and finish eating. Once we’re done, we’ll start to move again. There’s so much silver here, and it’s bound to lead to some trouble,” instructed Lu Zhuangyuan.

When they heard him, the Lu Family Troupe formed a half-circle with their two carriages and began to eat. Of course, their treatment of Zhao Wu, their distinguished guest, was quite good; there were more than enough white steamed buns and duck eggs to go around, even though Zhao Wu declined.

Just as they were eating, a vile stench filled the air. A relatively thin nun had somehow ended up next to them, salivating as she eyed the salted duck egg in Zhao Wu’s hand.

“How much for this egg?” asked the nun.

“Can nuns eat—” said Lu Xiucan before he was interrupted by a smack of the tobacco pipe.

“Is Master joking? It’s just a few eggs, here, take them,” said Lu Zhuangyuan as he reached his hand into the jar and pulled out two salted duck eggs before passing them across.

Meanwhile, the nun looked rather guilty as she glanced at her companions near the carriage. She reached out to grab a duck egg before directly stuffing it into her mouth without even bothering to peel it.

“I’ll pay,” she said as she threw a few smelly copper coins onto the carriage. Then, the fat nun closed her eyes in enjoyment as she felt the rich yolk burst out in her mouth.

The two duck eggs offered by Lu Zhuangyuan weren’t quite enough with her huge appetite, so she reached her chubby hand directly into the jar of salted duck eggs, thoroughly enjoying herself as she ate one egg with every mouthful. It was almost as if she was not eating eggs, but just grapes.

When he saw this, a question popped up in Zhao Wu’s mind.

Isn’t it too salty the way this nun is eating them?

Tatata~

At that moment, the clattering sound of horse hooves suddenly rang out in the air, causing everyone to look across. A cavalry had appeared in the distance!

“The soldiers are here! Run!!” shouted someone.

As soon as this shout rang out, the other travelers also stood up, carried their luggage, and then ran to hide within the forest around them.

Lu Zhuangyuan wanted to run as well, but he was tied down by his horse-drawn carriages.

When the cavalry finally arrived before them, only the Lu Family Troupe and those nuns were left in the area.

Seeing the situation, Lu Zhuangyuan gritted his teeth, then smiled at Zhao Wu and supported him to the front. “Master Zhao, I have known for a long time that since you have such a powerful senior, then your own abilities must be great too. There’s no need to conceal them any longer.”

“I... I... I’m not...”

However, before he could explain himself, the black-armored cavalry dashed up to them, causing him to eat a mouthful of sand.

The stamping sound of the hoofbeats combined with the collision of their weapons; this group was not just any ordinary cavalry, but an elite unit. Zhao Wu caught sight of a large military banner that was being carried by them—it was marked with a large Si word.

“Stop!” At that moment, a deep shout caused everyone to tremble.

To everyone’s surprise, the cavalry actually came to a sudden stop.

They stood there in a row, like a black city wall. The warmth from the horses’ nostrils caused the moisture in the air to condense into a white fog. In a sense, they were rather remarkable—they could move like the wind, and were also able to stay still like pine trees.

Zhao Wu’s eyes widened with surprise when he saw an officer amongst the cavalry with four blades on his back forcefully step on his horse’s back and leap before the nuns who were a dozen meters away while leaving two deep craters on the ground.

“Sisters from the Benevolent Nunnery, there’s an emergency at the border! The military is in urgent need of funds. We will requisition this silver, and issue a certificate of debt[1] which you can exchange back at the Ministry of Revenue.”

His voice was loud enough for everyone to hear him clearly.

“Dad, what’s happening? Is there a war at Si Qi as well?” asked Lu Xiucai, his voice trembling.

“My ancestors! Will it kill you to stay quiet?” Lu Zhuangyuan whispered and covered his mouth. He had curled his body up and hidden himself behind the carriage, to avoid drawing the attention of these soldiers.

However, You Zixiong was focused completely on the fat nuns, essentially ignoring the troupe's existence. When he saw that the nuns just continued to sit around and eat heartily while completely ignoring him, his brows furrowed together.

"Didn't you hear what I said?!" He exclaimed, while grabbing the hilt of the sword adorned with black tassels hanging from his waist.

Killing intent filled the air in an instant, almost as though this place had become the center of a life-and-death battlefield. This aura also infected the cavalry around them; their bodies heated up and their eyes became bloodshot. Even their horses started to raise their hooves.

"We refuse. We don't want to go so far," said several nuns simultaneously. "Make a move if you dare. But think carefully before you do so."

This refusal immediately intensified the tension. Some of the mounted soldiers were already nocking arrows onto their bows.

Just when Lu Zhuangyuan was ready to flee with his family on the horse carriages, the murderous aura in the air suddenly vanished.

Then, with a serious expression, You Zixiong grabbed the sword adorned with black tassels and threw it across. "This is You Zixiong's sword! Take this sword with you and collect your silver back at the Ministry! They will return what we owe and more!"

You Zixiong burned with anger as he watched the black-clothed nuns gather around with greedy looks on their faces as they used their dirty and chubby hands to handle his weapon. But he also understood that the current situation in the kingdom of Si Qi was unstable, and that he couldn't afford to make more enemies, especially out of these nuns before him.

"Blackpeak Cavalry! Follow my orders! Distribute the silver evenly and carry it on the horses! We must reach Kun City in three days!” shouted You Zixiong.

“We receive your orders!” All the soldiers in the cavalry responded in unison and dismounted from their horses before rushing to the carts. They swiftly unloaded the silver in an orderly manner.

As the sound of the horse hooves gradually faded into the distance, Lu Zhuangyuan and the others seemed to wake up from their dream, each of them panting and sweating profusely, almost as though they had just taken a hot shower.

“Dad, I... I peed my pants,” said Lu Xiucan.

“Rascal! Aren’t you embarrassed?! No sense of shame! Go and quickly change your pants!” shouted Lu Zhuangyuan.

Although he spoke to his son with great confidence, earlier Lu Zhuangyuan’s own legs had also turned weak with fear.

“Aiya, looks like Si Qi is going to be in a mess as well. No, this place is too dangerous. I need to find that Daoist as soon as possible and follow him to leave this damned place,” muttered Lu Zhuangyuan.

1. like an IOU 🤔

Chapter 115 - Dog

It was evening.

Li Huowang walked silently on a meandering forest path. According to the directions he had received from the nuns at the Benevolent Nunnery, this path would lead him to a continuous mountain range. The Ao Jing Sect that he was looking for, was located within these mountains.

Ever since he had fully awakened in the Zephyr Temple, he had been living with others. He wasn't really accustomed to solitude.

"It's so peaceful," Li Huowang mumbled to himself, observing the sparse foliage around him. The further he walked, the more barren the land became. The tranquility of the environment gradually helped calm his restless heart.

Li Huowang raised both hands and stretched lazily. After a sigh, he lifted his right foot and continued walking.

Night fell as he hurried along, forcing him to retrieve a glowing stone to light his way.

However, before long, he decided to put away the glowing stone; the moon had risen, and with no clouds in sight, its bright light was enough to illuminate the forest path clearly.

Under the white moonlight, Li Huowang continued his solitary journey. His legs were beginning to ache from walking all day.

If I manage to survive, then I have to learn how to ride a horse.

By the time the full moon hung high, he was too fatigued to continue. He leaned against a tree and pulled out a hard steamed bun to nibble on. He intended to take just a few bites before sleeping.

At that moment, Li Huowang suddenly stopped chewing and focused his eyes on a point in the darkness; he sensed something there.

Besides his sense of pain and taste, Li Huowang's other senses had also surpassed an ordinary person's. He could clearly feel that he was being watched by something.

"Who's there?" he exclaimed.

At that moment, a yellow figure timidly crawled out from the forest. It was a large dog with a yellow body and pale legs. It did not seem to be in good condition—it had lost quite a bit of its fur, had many ticks clinging to its body, and it was so emaciated that its rib cage was visible.

"A dog?" Li Huowang looked around at the desolate surroundings; this did not seem like a place where one would find a dog.

The dog stared at the cold steamed bun in Li Huowang's hand, its lips quivering and its tail wagging toward him.

"I don't care what you've turned into. Go away!" Li Huowang's brows furrowed as he placed his hand on the Profound Records. Whether it was a real dog or not, he just wanted to continue his journey without any complications.

The dog backed away cautiously, but it did not give up. Instead, it began to wag its tail even more vigorously.

Seeing this, Li Huowang violently shook the bronze bell, frightening the dog and causing it to flee into the forest.

Just as he was about to store the bell, his expression suddenly froze. "Damn! Why now of all times!"

In the pitch-black forest, the dog's ears drooped as it carefully stuck its head out from underneath the leaves, only to witness an inexplicable scene. The person sitting under the tree was smiling cordially, and talking to the bright, round moon in the sky.

"Dad, you're back? Yes, I know. I'm fine."

"Yes, I know that you two are not some hallucination. My brain was just a bit fuzzy earlier. Now... I'm able to tell the difference."

The dog paced around for a long time, and observed that the person did not show any signs of hostility. Then, it turned its gaze to the half-eaten steamed bun that had rolled onto the floor.

Just as it was about to cautiously move toward the bun and bite into it, the person spoke up, making it once again shrink back.

“Mom, I’m not eating the oranges. There’s no need to remove my restraints; it’s good that both my hands are tied up.”

“Right, have you exchanged the gold for money and paid off all our debts? That’s good.”

“Mom, you have a lot more white hair now. Go and dye it. Weren’t you fond of perming your hair?” Li Huowang chuckled and reached out one hand as though trying to touch the moon.

“Ah, don’t ask me any more questions. All I can tell you is that gold was clean. Did you sell the jade pendant as well? No? Why not?”

The dog cautiously circled around Li Huowang. When it noticed that he did not pay any attention to itself, it once again moved forward carefully, then quickly picked up the bun and ran away. It was simply too hungry.

The dog ran into the forest and choked on the bun while eating. After it recovered, it once again came back to the side of the main path and looked over longingly.

Its acute sense of smell allowed it to know that the person still had more food in his bag, and even had meat!

“Sell the jade pendant, and buy back our house; it can only be called home when we own the house.”

“No, don’t leave any money aside for my medical expenses. Just find a place, and then tie me up with an iron chain.”

“Mom, I’m not lying. Ah, please don’t cry. I really haven’t fallen ill again.”

“Woo~” The dog tilted its head at Li Huowang. It could not understand what he was doing. It cautiously crept toward him, then wagged its tail incessantly. “Woo~ woo~”

At that moment, the dog noticed that Li Huowang had finally taken notice of itself, and began to wag its tail even more energetically.

“Hehe, who sent this rag doll? It’s ugly, just like a dog... Dog! Hold on! The dog is still around!”

Li Huowang had been calm until just a moment ago, but suddenly stood up. His expression became twisted as he bellowed at the dog, “I told you to scram! Do you want to die?!”

This sudden outburst caused the dog to be scared out of its wits as it whimpered and ran back into the forest. When it timidly stuck its head out again, it saw the person talking to the moon remorsefully.

“Mom, don’t be afraid; this has nothing to do with you. I’m not having an episode. Just that there are some things I need to settle on that side.”

“Really. Why don’t you guys leave for now, and come back to visit me later. I need to settle some matters on that side.”

“Alright, alright, I know. There’s no ‘that side’. Right, that’s all a hallucination. I will do my best and cooperate with the medical treatment.”

“Woof~” The dog barked at the red-clothed Daoist.

At that moment, Li Huowang suddenly became alert, and his unfocused eyes looked left and right.

Something’s wrong. There’s movement.

He slowly unsheathed his sword and vigilantly scanned his surroundings. Even though his expression was guarded, it soon became irritated.

“I can’t explain! I have no choice! Go first! You guys go first!” Li Huowang’s anxious cries echoed into the distance.

That night, Li Huowang did not sleep a wink. In his hallucination, he tried one method after another to protect himself against the threats in reality.

But when the hallucination gradually faded, he realized that his methods had been ineffective.

He was standing in the center of a small river while hugging that dog he had seen last night. At this moment, it was affectionately licking his chin.

This situation suggested that some things he was not aware of must have happened last night.

Ah... looks like I really can't do without any company.

Li Huowang carried the dog toward the shore.

Chapter 116 - Ao Jing

Sect

“What do you want to be called?” Li Huowang stared at the dog wagging its tail. Even though it was still skinny, at the very least its ears were free from the dense mass of ticks after Li Huowang had taken care of it for a few days. Both of its ears were a bloody mess from being bitten by ticks; it would take some time to heal even with Li Huowang giving it some pills.

“Uuuu~” The dog sat on the ground as it stared at Li Huowang curiously. It stared at its surroundings alertly before lowering its head and gently placing its skinny head underneath Li Huowang’s hand as it attempted to get some headpats.

Seeing this, Li Huowang gently patted the dog’s head and smiled.

He had previously thought that something was wrong with the dog a couple of nights ago. But after he was trapped in the hallucination one too many times, his opinion of the dog had changed.

If the dog had been an enemy, then it would’ve acted when Li Huowang was trapped in the hallucination.

For the time being, even though he didn’t know where it came from, he had concluded that it was just a normal dog.

Li Huowang took out a steamed bun from his bag and threw it on the ground. Seeing this, the dog immediately pounced toward the steamed bun and ate it happily.

“Since you like steamed buns so much, I should just call you Bun.” Li Huowang nonchalantly gave it a name.

“Woof woof!” Bun excitedly leaped into the air, as if it was reacting to Li Huowang's words.

Li Huowang extended his right hand, using his barely grown out fingernails to gently groom the fur on the dog's neck. "Since you don't have a home, you can just follow me. Having you by my side will also be convenient for me. At the very least, you can help me stand watch during the night and talk to me during the day. You can even accompany me when I'm trapped within a hallucination. It's better than nothing. I also want to see if I could accidentally end up hurting someone here while I'm trapped in my hallucination, so I suppose you will be my first test subject."

By the time Li Huowang finished talking, Bun had just finished eating. Then, Bun licked its lips while staring at Li Huowang expectantly.

"I suppose you can't understand what I'm talking about. Let's go, we are almost there." Li Huowang patted Bun on the head and stood up while staring at his destination, the mountain range in the distance. As he stared at the mountain range, the lighthearted atmosphere disappeared. As he thought about what the nuns had told him about the Ao Jing Sect, his face gradually turned gloomy.

The Abbess had told him that they might have a method to get rid of Dan Yangzi. However, it was a dangerous sect, as evidenced by the fact that the Profound Records originated from there.

Li Huowang hated being passive like this, but he had no choice—either he could trust them or choose death.

"Let's go."

A Daoist in red walked alongside a yellow dog toward the mountain range in the distance.

Throughout their journey, Li Huowang truly experienced the meaning of 'easier said than done'; the mountain looked quite close, but it was in fact very far away.

After two days, they finally arrived at the foot of the mountain.

At the foot of the mountain was a town... or at least what used to be a town. The houses were all in ruins, there were a lot of skeletons, and there were cobwebs covering almost everything. All this indicated that the town had experienced a deadly disaster.

Li Huowang felt an intense disgust when he saw a small skeleton that had been sliced in half with only its top part still remaining intact.

Whoever did all this was inhumane! They were even worse than Dan Yangzi!

He slowly walked through the village as a thought popped up in his mind.

Was all this done by the Ao Jing Sect?

Even though he had never met anyone from the Ao Jing sect, Li Huowang's impression of them started to change.

He walked around for half a day and found that everyone in the town was dead. The only living things found in the town were the rats that were hidden in the corners and nibbling on something.

When the rats saw Li Huowang and Bun approaching them, they too scurried away.

There was nothing Li Huowang could do; everyone in the town was already dead and he wasn't even sure if he would be able to protect himself.

Thus, he increased his pace and quickly exited the town.

After exiting the gloomy town, he saw a curved path ahead of him. The path snaked out the mountain. Since it was the only path into the mountains, it was likely that the Ao Jing Sect was located at the end of the path.

Li Huowang looked at Bun with its tongue sticking out and gently used his legs to tap its abdomen before they started climbing up the mountain.

Staring at the sparse foliage on the mountain, Li Huowang became much more alert; there was no saying how the other side would react when they found out that he was a Strayed One.

“Woof woof!” At that moment, Bun started barking toward the right side of the forest.

Seeing this, Li Huowang immediately placed his hand on the Profound Records.

Shruff shruff~

At that moment, a hedgehog ran through the path and in the opposite direction.

Without letting his guard down, Li Huowang cautiously looked toward the direction the hedgehog had run off to. Then, he slowly walked toward the area and found several temples in ruins.

“Is this the Ao Jing Sect’s Cross Temple?” Li Huowang mumbled to himself as he examined a symbol on the temple ruins. It was not the cross he was familiar with. This cross was akin to a skinny, black clover. In fact, it looked more like a dehydrated clover, twisted and dry.

Staring at the overgrown grass in front of the temple, Li Huowang had a bad feeling in his heart.

Ao Jing sect being decimated would be an even worse situation than being attacked by them.

Maybe they aren’t the ones who attacked the town and killed everyone in it? Maybe they were attacked by whoever did it?

Li Huowang looked quite gloomy when he walked further inward.

This time, he concentrated on finding every single hiding place in the surrounding forest. As expected, he found a gathering spot of the Cross Temple. It was an empty space with a statue of the deity worshiped by them.

On the altar was a large black cross. Another statue sat on the black cross, depicting a figure being burned alive. The statue was very detailed and looked very much alive. The shimmering fire, the molten skin and flesh, as well as the curled and singed hair. All the details were quite immaculate.

But the statue did not have a head. Everything above its neck had been obliterated.

Did the Ao Jing Sect offend someone it shouldn't have?

Li Huowang was worried.

The Ao Jing Sect should be quite strong considering that it could offend the Benevolent Nunnery and still survive. He also knew about the prowess of the Profound Records.

What kind of being was capable of destroying the Cross Temple of the Ao Jing Sect?

Just then, Li Huowang found something. He wiped off the cobwebs below the altar, revealing a sentence carved into it. "The Sacrificial God is eternal. The Mother of all Beings, the Gateway of Creation, is the basis of the Heavens and the Earth! From nothing to something, birthing the Heavens and the Earth."

Li Huowang once more raised his head after reading the words and stared at the statue sitting on the black cross. "Is he the Sacrificial God?"

Chapter 117 - Ba-Hui

After thoroughly inspecting all the temples, Li Huowang returned to the mountain path.

He patted Bun's head and continued walking without a word.

The buildings in the Ao Jing Sect's Cross Temple were densely built. Soon, Li Huowang found another building. This temple was intact, or at the very least, the head of the statue of the Sacrificial God here was not destroyed.

However, the head of the Sacrificial God was burnt black, subjected to the wrath of the very same fire.

What was intriguing was that the face of the Sacrificial God was not one of pain, but one of envy and yearning. Its eyes were burnt black, but they still stared longingly at the top of the Temple.

Li Huowang followed the gaze of the statue and saw an abstract image, one composed of various colors and shapes. He deduced that the Sacrificial God yearned for the thing depicted in the image at the top of the temple, but he had no idea what that thing was.

“Uuuu~ Woof! Woof woof woof!”

When he heard Bun barking, Li Huowang tensed up. He swiftly turned around to look toward the direction Bun was snarling.

It was a door at the side of the temple. The light could not penetrate in here through the doorway, making it look pitch black inside. Within the darkness was an oversized gray robe.

Li Huowang had learned from the nuns that the people from Ao Jing Sect often wore large robes to cover up the wounds on their body.

At this moment, Li Huowang only saw the bottom part of the robe; the top part was still hidden in darkness.

Sensing that something was amiss, Li Huowang immediately threw the Flesh Book that the Abbess had given to him into the darkness. “I am Xuan Yang from the Zephyr Temple! I come here seeking help from your honorable sect!”

Li Huowang introduced himself to the robe in the darkness, but there was no response.

Just as Li Huowang thought the thing was not a living person, the robe slowly moved out from the darkness.

Just one look at the figure’s face was enough for Li Huowang to be certain that it was someone from the Ao Jing Sect; the man’s scarred face was devoid of any skin.

Just as the nuns at the Benevolent Nunnery had told him, the people from Ao Jing Sect wore large robes and tall hats. The hat was huge, covering the eyes and nose of the man. Li Huowang only saw a glimpse of the man’s jaw, which was a mess of blood and flesh.

Li Huowang gulped as he stared at the man alertly.

Looks like they can still be talked with. At the very least, they did not attack me the moment they saw that I’m a Strayed One.

Li Huowang glanced at the bulge in the robes where the man’s hands would be and then gently stated his intention once again.

The man did not reply to Li Huowang, but it was clear that he understood Li Huowang’s purpose in coming here. He quietly walked out of the Cross Temple.

Li Huowang took a deep breath and nervously followed after him, both of them slowly entering deeper into the mountain range.

Staring at the large robed man in front of him, Li Huowang felt that something was missing.

Didn’t they say that the Ao Jing Sect uses the Profound Records? Why is he not carrying one? Or has he hidden it in his robe?

Li Huowang ruminated on it as they went deeper into the mountains. Soon, he saw other members of the Ao Jing Sect.

All of them wore the same type of robe. Whenever they saw Li Huowang, they would all fix their gaze on him even though their eyes were hidden by the tall hats.

On the other hand, their strange surroundings caused Bun to be afraid; it lowered its head and tail while staying close to Li Huowang as they continued to walk.

Under their intense gazes, Li Huowang finally arrived at a gourd-shaped cave.

Upon seeing the cave, Li Huowang recalled unpleasant memories. He hated caves.

However, this cave was not as dark as the Zephyr Temple. It was well illuminated. The crackling sound of burning torches illuminated the cave brightly.

The heat from the torches raised the temperature of the cave, causing Li Huowang to feel unreasonably irritated.

Remembering how the Sacrificial God was shrouded in flames, Li Huowang postulated that fire might be an important element in the Ao Jing Sect.

After entering the cave, they walked for another half an hour before they finally saw the Master of the cave.

A man, whose entire body was burnt black, was lying down on the cold floor. Rather than saying that he was a man, it was more like a burnt corpse. But the gaze coming from the body was all it took for Li Huowang to know that it was no corpse.

At the same time, looking at this burnt man also answered Li Huowang's previous question. Another blood-red Profound Records was splayed open on his chest. It had been placed on his chest for so long that the bamboo slip had sprouted roots and ingrained itself into the man's flesh.

The bamboo roots had pierced through his body and burst forth from his back in various directions, their tips bloody.

At that moment, Li Huowang saw the man who had guided him here respectfully pass the Flesh Book to the burnt man. From the looks of it, the man was someone with a high position within the sect.

However, the burnt man did not read the Flesh Book written by Abbess Jingxin. Instead, his gaze remained fixed on Li Huowang.

He stared for a very long time before speaking, "You've been noticed by Ba-Hui?"

Being able to converse was a good start. Li Huowang nodded. "Yes."

"Every Strayed One has excellent potential because they have a much easier time approaching the Abyss of Worldly Suffering. It's a shame that almost all of them turn crazy in the end," the burnt man said with pity.

He then stared at the Profound Records hanging on Li Huowang's waist. "I am Shou San, pleased to make your acquaintance. May I know how you attain Cang-Qiang Ascension? You should know that even we have a hard time doing so. Not everyone is able to pull it off."

Even though he was being complimented, Li Huowang was not happy at all.

Cang-Qiang Ascension? Is that the name of the ritual that requires the highest amount of both physical and mental pain to pull off?

After thinking for a moment, Li Huowang decided to tell Shou San about his use of the Profound Records while hiding some of the details.

"Hoho, using it against the Eighteenth Lunar was an overkill, but at the very least, you obtained something out of it," exclaimed Shou San.

However, Li Huowang was not here to discuss these things. Having confirmed that a proper conversation was possible, he told Shou San about the reason for his visit.

"I accept," said Shou San.

Li Huowang experienced a brief moment of joy until the conditions were laid out before him.

“But there is a condition. I need you to perform the Cang-Qiang Ascension in front of us,” said Shou San.

“Why do you need an outsider to teach you guys?” Li Huowang was confused.

“I have never seen a Strayed One performing a Cang-Qiang Ascension. Also, I want to see if it is possible to rob a part of Ba-Hui’s power,” explained Shou San.

“Rob... Ba-Hui’s power?” Li Huowang thought he had misheard.

“You’ve seen Ba-Hui before, so you should know just how strong it is. Have you ever thought about taking its strength for yourself as soon as you lay your eyes on it?” asked Shou San.

Hearing this, Li Huowang finally realized what the abstract image at the top of the Cross Temple represented. It was Ba-Hui! It was only because they were unable to fully describe what Ba-Hui looked like that they used that image as a placeholder.

At the same time, he realized that while they used pain to obtain power from Ba-Hui, they did not worship it. Instead, they worshiped the Sacrificial God.

And the Sacrificial God they worshiped also yearned to rob Ba-Hui of its strength.

Translator's Thoughts

Skinny Abbess Jingxin! Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 118 - Pain

Because of the Profound Records, he had thought those from the Ao Jing Sect worshiped Ba-Hui.

However, that was not the case. He had been wrong... dead wrong.

After failing to figure it out for a moment, he asked Shou San, "Why do you think you can rob Ba-Hui's power? Don't you realize just how strong it is? You are nothing but ants in front of it."

Even though Li Huowang was incapable of recalling what Ba-Hui looked like, he still remembered just how strong it was. Ba-Hui was not an entity a few mortals could take on.

However, Shou San's eyes were filled with determination when he looked at Li Huowang. "And why not? The Sacrificial God could do it, and so can we."

Li Huowang recalled the statue of the man being burnt at the Cross Temple. "Your deity was once a mortal?"

However, regardless of what Li Huowang said, Shou San continued to talk to himself, "The monks always say that the Buddha was once a man and only a man will eventually become a Buddha. I agree with this viewpoint. Ba-Hui might be strong in the present, but that won't always be the case!"

Li Huowang digested the unexpected information and took a deep breath. "Alright, I don't care what's going on between your sect and Ba-Hui. Let's get back to the topic. Do you really have a method to get rid of Dan Yangzi?"

Shou San nodded. "As long as you perform the Cang-Qiang Ascension once more, we will get rid of your Half-Immortal Master."

Li Huowang remembered the moment he had summoned Ba-

Hui's strength through the Profound Records. His face slightly contorted as he recalled the intense pain he had to go through. Experiencing the highest level of both physical and mental pain at the same time was not something easy. Li Huowang had the urge to commit suicide every time he recalled the experience.

Li Huowang calmed himself down and talked slowly, "I would love to, but it's easier said than done. I can't do it right now."

Summoning Ba-Hui was difficult, especially since it required the resonance of intense physical and mental pain. It was very rare to encounter a situation in which the summoner would experience the necessary levels of pain.

"Hoho." Shou San chuckled as he became more welcoming. "No worries, I will help you on behalf of Abbess Jingxin."

Li Huowang felt chills run down his spine when he saw the smile on that burnt face; Those words were filled with hidden meaning.

Looking at the man he had only just met, Li Huowang finally opened his mouth after considering the proposal, "Senior Shou San, let's not talk about this for now. I need to know how you plan on getting rid of Dan Yangzi? I have the Profound Records too so I know that there's nothing on it that can help someone, much less get rid of a Half-Immortal."

Li Huowang did not trust the Ao Jing Sect, especially after the warnings given to him by Abbess Jingxin.

"Hoho, young man, your thinking is too shallow. The Profound Records require the assistance of other items. In order to approach the Abyss of Worldly Suffering, one must experiment with many things. In the past, we were also doing things as you are doing right now. As they say, suffer from illness for long enough and you can be considered a doctor. In terms of treating people, no one is as good as us," said Shou San.

Hearing the word 'illness', Li Huowang reacted unconsciously.

“Illness? I’m not ill, and this situation is not caused by an illness either. A part of Dan Yangzi is in my stomach and he’s already a Half-Immortal at this point.”

Hearing this, Shou San stared at Li Huowang mockingly. “That is an illness. It’s an illness where the Daoists want to become Immortal so badly that they turn crazy.”

It was not very convincing coming from someone trying to steal Ba-Hui’s power. However, even though Li Huowang was suspicious about their words, he did not question them openly. He was here to request their help in getting rid of Dan Yangzi, not engage in a debate with them. As long as their technique worked, he wouldn’t mind even if they called Dan Yangzi a bitch.

“Have there been cases like this in the past? Have you treated them before?” Li Huowang asked another question.

“Naturally. All branches of the Daoist sects talk about killing the Three Poisons^[1]. The Upper Poison: Peng Ju; the Middle Poison: Peng Zhi; the Lower Poison: Peng Jiao. Those who seek to achieve Immortality must first remove the Three Poisons. Without desires, the mind becomes clear and peaceful. With enough merits, one can become an Immortal,” explained Shou San while shaking his head.

“Of course, I do not believe in any of these shitty explanations myself. I’ve seen many so-called Half-Immortals and possessive spirits in my life, but never a true Immortal,” continued Shou San.

Then, Shou San raised his burnt hands and revealed his bloody fingers while pointing at Li Huowang’s head. “Daoists like you crave Immortality to the point of insanity, cultivating themselves until they become neither human nor monsters. They seek only external strength but fail to realize what true internal strength is.”

Li Huowang decided to ignore that comment. Instead, he patted the torture tools at his waist. “Senior, I can settle the physical pain part, but how will you help me with the mental pain?”

Shou San was overjoyed when he heard him; Li Huowang had agreed to his conditions!

Shou San raised his head and one of the gray-robed sect members understood his signal. The sect member then walked into one of the smaller caves.

Soon, he brought a disheveled girl out of the cave. The girl wore the same type of oversized robe and tall hat as the rest of the people here. The only difference was that her hat didn't cover her eyes.

A girl? Is this related to the technique to induce maximum mental pain?

On the other hand, the girl was even more shocked when she saw Li Huowang as she stared at him intently.

At that moment, a hand pushed her, causing her to fall forward and onto the ground in front of Li Huowang.

The girl lowered her head as she clutched her robes, her body trembling uncontrollably.

Li Huowang looked past the girl's skinny shoulder and asked, "Senior, what is the meaning of this?"

"Take this girl, have sex with her, and let her bear your children. When your child in her womb is almost ready to be delivered, you will slice open her stomach, dig out your child, and then—" Shou San began explaining.

"Stop! Don't talk anymore!" Li Huowang's voice trembled as he interrupted Shou San. In fact, just hearing what Shou San wanted him to do sent sharp pulses of pain through his temples.

He had been conversing so peacefully with them that he had almost forgotten the kind of madness they were capable of.

Now that he knew the method they used for inducing maximum mental and physical pain, he realized that the people from the Ao Jing Sect were no better than Dan Yangzi!

On the other hand, Shou San misunderstood Li Huowang's intention when he told him to stop talking. “Is that so? You think the pain would be too mild? No worries, since you’ve already been noticed by Ba-Hui, then we can heighten the pain even further with the medicines I have in my inventory.”

1. The same as the Three Corpses mentioned by Dan Yangzi 🙋
-

Translator's Thoughts

Dan Yangzi in his 'Buddha' form! Credits to 格子
子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 119 - Yingzi

Li Huowang pulled the girl behind him and carefully enunciated his words one by one, “I will not do such things even if I die!”

“Pft~” One of the Ao Jing Sect members laughed. “Don’t be so confident. You are a Strayed One after all.”

“So what if I’m a Strayed One? I may be crazy, but I’m not someone as heartless as Dan Yangzi! I will never do the type of things he did!” said Li Huowang.

On the other hand, Shou San looked at the sect member with an unfriendly gaze. “Yan Lu, you think this is funny? Can’t you control yourself in front of an outsider?”

Just as the sect member was about to explain himself, his facial features started melding together. Even his fingers and toes started to meld.

He slowly transformed into a wriggling maggot.

“Wrap him up with a cloth and don’t let him feel any pain for a month,” said Shou San.

This proved that Shou San was right; he was indeed skillful with healing arts.

As the ‘man’ was being carried away, Li Huowang stared at Shou San seriously. “Find me a cave for me to live in. I will figure out a way to induce maximum mental pain. Also, I need this girl to serve me.”

“Hmph. You have a lot of demands. I don’t think you will ever be able to find a method better than mine,” said Shou San.

However, even though he said so, Shou San still agreed to Li Huowang’s demand and ordered his underlings to prepare the cave for him.

Soon, Li Huowang was brought into a medium-sized cave. The walls of the cave were uneven and riddled with holes, but at the very least the cave had all the basic necessities, including a toilet.

Meanwhile, the girl silently followed Li Huowang.

On the other hand, Bun, who had been whimpering from fear behind Li Huowang, immediately started running around in the cave while sniffing every corner of it.

Once they had settled in, Li Huowang removed the sword from his back and placed it on the stone table. Even though he had promised Shou San that he would find a way to inflict maximum mental pain on himself, he actually didn't have a clue about how he would go about it. Without inflicting the necessary amount of pain, he would not be able to summon Ba-Hui.

The Ao Jing Sect would never help him get rid of Dan Yangzi if he failed to fulfill their condition. It was a dead end.

Thinking about this, Li Huowang paced around inside the cave for a while before he laid his eyes on the girl. A sudden thought flashed in his mind.

He had an idea, but things might not go as he expected.

"Don't worry, they won't be able to hurt you when you are with me. Come here, let me ask you something," said Li Huowang as he patted the stone stool.

But the girl didn't move from the door. Instead, she started sobbing. She cried louder and louder until she sat on the floor, her body wracked with grief.

When he heard her woeful cries, Li Huowang sighed.

She had originally thought that she was a member of the Ao Jing Sect, but now she knew that she was nothing more than a tool. It was normal to feel sad, especially at a young age like hers.

Li Huowang walked over and carefully propped her up on the stone stool. "They didn't even treat you like a human and yet you still want to stay here? How about helping me? I swear that as long as you help me attain my goals, I will not abandon you while I am alive.”

Hearing his words, the girl's eyes were filled with confusion. “Where can I go even if I escape? My house... it's gone... everything's gone...”

“What happened to your home?” Li Huowang's voice was soft. To some extent, he could resonate with her.

“My home was the town at the foot of the mountain...” said the young girl through her sobs.

When Li Huowang heard her say that, he felt his heart ache a little; she might just be the last survivor of that ghost town.

“My father, mother... my three sisters and two brothers... they are all gone... they are all dead...” The girl lowered her head as her tears dripped down her hands.

“What happened to the town? Did someone or something destroy it?” asked Li Huowang. But just as he asked that, he realized that now was not the time for such questions; asking such things right now was akin to rubbing salt in her wounds.

“It's fine; you can just follow me. I have many brothers and sisters that are also trying their best to survive in this world. Later on, when we regroup, you can join us. My group currently only has two girls, and so there's more yin energy than yang. If you join us, then the energy will be more balanced,” said Li Huowang.

After he had comforted her for a while, her emotions had finally stabilized. When the atmosphere was right, Li Huowang asked her some questions. “How long have you been here?”

While the Ao Jing Sect did not trust Li Huowang, he didn't trust them either.

He already had experience dealing with elaborate schemes from his time at the Righteous Monastery, and so he didn't want to fall for the same trick. This time around, he was not going to go by their rules. All he needed to do was figure out the method that Ao Jing Sect would use to get rid of Dan Yangzi. Then, he wouldn't have to inflict pain on himself and he would be able to get rid of Dan Yangzi with his own hands.

Hearing his suggestion, the girl nodded. "Four years ago..."

When he saw that she was finally willing to talk to him, Li Huowang gently started to coax her so that she would open her heart to him. "Since you've been here for so long, you must know the place well, correct? Can you tell me about this place? Anything is fine."

Her scarred hands didn't stop scrunching up her sleeves as she started talking, "The Ao Jing Sect originally consisted of two different sects. One worshiped the Sacrificial God while the other worshiped Ba-Hui. Later on, the Sacrificial God absorbed a portion of Ba-Hui's power and the two sects merged..."

"Hmm? Was this recorded in the books of the Ao Jing Sect?" asked Li Huowang. He had a feeling that it was nothing but a fairy tale. He didn't believe it.

"I don't know either... That was what the others said... By the time I entered the sect, they had already merged..." She gingerly looked at Li Huowang before lowering her head once more. She didn't dare to maintain eye contact with him.

"It's fine. You can keep talking. Wait, may I know your name first?" said Li Huowang.

"They... They call me Er Jiu..." replied the girl.

Er Jiu, Shou San, and Yan Lu [1] . Do the names of the members of the Ao Jing Sect represent a combination of a body organ and a number?

Li Huowang was somewhat confused. These names didn't feel like the Daoist names given to full fledged Daoists.

"What was your previous name?" asked Li Huowang.

"Jiang Yingzi..." replied the girl.

"Alright, then I will just call you Yingzi. Have you seen the Ao Jing Sect treat anyone in the past four years?” asked Li Huowang.

Yingzi nodded. “Mm-hmm... I’ve seen it a few times.”

“Were all of them cured?” questioned Li Huowang.

“They should have been. All of them left afterward,” replied Yingzi.

Looks like they do have the necessary expertise .

This was good news. At the very least they hadn’t lied to him and he might actually have a chance of getting rid of Dan Yangzi.

“Yingzi, I have another question. Other than the self mutilating rituals recorded within the Profound Records, does the Ao Jing Sect have any other kinds of power or techniques?” Li Huowang finally asked the most important question.

1. Literal translation would be Ear Nine, Hands Three, and Eyes Six. The character for the numbers portion of their name was written differently with the same pronunciation 🙌

Translator's Thoughts

Shou San!. Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 120 - Injury

“Yingzi, I have another question. Other than the self-mutilating rituals recorded within the Profound Records, does the Ao Jing Sect have any other kinds of power or techniques?” Li Huowang finally asked the most important question.

When she heard this question, Yingzi was slightly troubled. “Yes, but I cannot teach them to you right now; you need a specific item to use those techniques, similar to the Profound Records. Senior Shou San would never give it to you.”

Every single ability they have requires the use of a book? This sect is weird.

Li Huowang thought to himself.

“Who wrote these books?” asked Li Huowang.

“I’ve heard that it was the elders within the cave who wrote them. Every single book within the sect originates from them,” replied Yingzi.

Elders?

Noticing Li Huowang’s confused face, Yingxi continued, “Everyone needs a book to use their corresponding powers, but I’ve heard that the elders don’t require them; they are able to use their powers at whim. However, I’ve never seen such a scene with my own eyes.”

“Oh... So that’s how it is.” Li Huowang nodded.

It seems that Shou San is not the leader of the Ao Jing Sect. At most, he’s somewhere on the middle level in the hierarchy.

“Do the elders reveal themselves regularly?” Li Huowang asked another question.

“No, they don’t usually meddle in worldly affairs. They have only ever come out once throughout the four years I have been here,” replied Yingzi.

“Wait, since those Elders don’t need the Profound Records to use their abilities, doesn’t it mean that they are able to use Ba-Hui’s power anytime they need it?” asked Li Huowang.

However, he shook his head when he thought about it. “That can’t be right. Summoning Ba-Hui requires one to pay a heavy price. Ba-Hui is only interested in extreme pain, so it shouldn’t be that easy borrowing its strength.”

Yingzi was concerned as she looked at him. “Sir, why are you asking these questions?”

Li Huowang was startled. He quickly regained his composure and calmly said, “You know that I am making a deal with them. This is the first time I have made contact with the Ao Jing Sect, and so I would like to know more about them. This time around, I don’t want to get fooled.”

Even though Li Huowang wanted to use Yingzi to gain more information about the Ao Jing Sect, he still couldn’t trust her enough to inform her about his actual plans.

She had suffered within the Ao Jing Sect for four years, and this time around, she was even sent as a fodder! Logically speaking she would not align herself with the Ao Jing Sect and would never betray him, but he did not want to bet on it; he would never gamble with his life, even if the chances of her betraying him were slim at best.

There was too great a risk in telling her what he planned to do. If she wanted to save herself, she could sell him out to Shou San and cause everything to fall apart.

“Sir, are you really going to make a deal with them? They... They are not good people,” warned Yingzi.

Li Huowang nodded. “Of course I know they are not good people and that it could be dangerous, but that doesn’t mean that they are useless. The deal they offered was fair enough, and so there's no need for me to refuse it."

Li Huowang did not lie. He had decided to find a method to induce maximum mental pain while searching for the method that the Ao Jing Sect would use to heal him.

He didn't care if he needed to cooperate with them or steal it as long as he could get rid of Dan Yangzi.

Li Huowang continued talking to Yingzi up until midnight. Through his talk, he learned a lot of information about the Ao Jing Sect and now had a rough understanding of it.

The Ao Jing Sect rarely interacted with the outside world. Their highest edict was to steal Ba-Hui's power regardless of the method and ultimately replace Ba-Hui, following in the steps of their Sacrificial God.

Yingzi also told him that while the Ao Jing Sect was bloodthirsty and cruel, they always adhered to their rules strictly.

They would wash their torture tools and arrange them methodically after they used it.

Breaking a rule within the Ao Jing Sect was considered a grave sin, since they are necessary for the order of the sect.

Li Huowang even found out that the Ao Jing Sect was quite a massive sect. Unlike the Righteous Monastery and the Benevolent Nunnery, the Ao Jing Sect in the mountain here was merely one of its branches. There were five more places just like the one Li Huowang was staying at right now.

On the thirteenth day of the sixth month each year, all the branches would gather to share their findings.

Late into the night, Li Huowang was deep in his thoughts. Yingzi's information not only gave him a better understanding of the sect, but also how difficult his current situation was.

"Both the methods are equally hard to use successfully..." Li Huowang mumbled to himself.

"Both methods?" Yingzi was confused.

Compared to how she had been on the verge of breaking down a few hours ago, she was much more emotionally stable now.

“It’s nothing, go to bed.” Li Huowang stood up and walked to a stone bed.

Seeing this, Yingzi silently followed him.

However, Li Huowang had no time to think about such trivial things in this dangerous situation. He could also use this opportunity to test what her true intentions were. As much as he hated Dan Yangzi, Li Huowang could still use his master as a safety net if he encountered dangerous situations.

That night, the intense barking of a dog woke Li Huowang. He quickly lit the oil lamp and saw that Bun was barking toward the bed.

When Bun saw Li Huowang was awake, it quickly stopped and started wagging its tail. “Uuuu~”

At that moment, Yingzi also sat up groggily. “Father, what’s wrong? Why is our dog barking?”

It was only after a moment that she realized her mistake and was embarrassed. “Sorry, I dreamt that I was celebrating the new year with my family.”

Her acting was very good. She made it look like she had indeed just woken up.

Li Huowang took one look at her and scanned the cold cave. Then, he extended his right hand and pinched the back of Bun’s neck before picking it up and placed it on the stone bed.

“It’s alright, go to bed.” Li Huowang hugged the dog as he went back to his bed.

“Mmm ...” Yingzi lied down beside Li Huowang once more.

Soon, the room was once again plunged into darkness as Li Huowang listened to the regular breathing sound coming from Yingzi.

“Is it really okay for a woman like you to lie down on the same bed with me?” asked Li Huowang. He had just finished saying that when he heard the sound of clothes rustling behind him.

“I can’t be considered a little girl anymore. So what if I lie down on the same bed as you? If you want to, then just use me,” Yingzi’s voice rang out. At the same time, the oil lamp was reignited, allowing Li Huowang to see her naked body.

Her breasts were gone. All that was left in their place were two large scars on her chest. Various injuries and scars covered her body, with some of them still leaking pus.

Translator's Thoughts

Yingzi! Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 121 - Yang Na

Li Huowang was shocked when he saw the state her body was in.

“These... Did they do all this to you?” Li Huowang’s voice was trembling; at the same time, his hatred for the Ao Jing Sect became even stronger.

“They only did a part of it in the beginning. Later, I did most of it myself in order to assimilate into the sect and become one of them,” Yingzi calmly wore her robes back before continuing in a voice filled with ridicule, “I’ve already sacrificed so much and had thought that I was already one of them; however, turns out that’s not the case. In their eyes I’m nothing more than a disposable pawn.”

Li Huowang wanted to console her but didn’t know what to say. He could lie back down on the bed.

“Don’t worry. I will take you out of this accursed place. You can start over,” said Li Huowang.

However, Yingzi did not answer him.

Li Huowang knew that his words didn’t have any power; if she didn’t will it herself, her life would never get better.

Splat~

At that moment, a wet tongue started licking Li Huowang’s face—it was Bun who had been lying on his chest.

Li Huowang patted Bun and stared at the dark ceiling.

When he woke up on the second day, someone had already sent in their breakfast which consisted of sweet potato congee paired with multigrain biscuits.

First, Li Huowang fed some of the food to Bun. After he confirmed that it was not poisoned, Li Huowang ushered Yingzi to eat alongside him.

Li Huowang had decided not to ask her anything else today. Her position within the Ao Jing Sect was relatively low, and so she would only know some of the things that would be considered common knowledge anyway. He probably had a higher chance of learning new information if he went out on his own.

He had even thought about an excuse in case Shou San asked what he was doing outside. He would just say that he wanted to learn how the members of the Ao Jing Sect inflicted pain onto themselves.

Under Yingzi's guidance, Li Huowang started roaming around inside the cave system.

Li Huowang was able to roam freely without any sect member intercepting them. All they did was stare at him. He wasn't sure if this was because of their adherence to their rules or the Flesh Book given to him by Abbess Jingxin.

With his heightened senses, Li Huowang was able to detect a sense of alertness and curiosity from the sect members. There were also some unidentified emotions intertwined with that curiosity.

However, Li Huowang soon decided to ignore them; he was more and more repulsed by the things he had seen within the cave system.

If the Eighteen Layers of Hell described in Buddhism truly existed, then this place was precisely it.

Flaying, chopping in half, dismemberment, lopping off body parts, death by thousand cuts, and various other torture methods that he had never seen before.

Li Huowang's stomach started to churn due to the intense stench of blood assaulting his nose.

Soon, he walked out from the area filled with the sound of flesh being torn apart and screams. He had barely caught his breath while leaning onto a wall when he saw a small figure run by with a pinwheel in his hands. The little boy was wearing a pair of shoes and a hat made from tiger skin as he happily raised the pinwheel in his hand.

“Dad, you are so slow,” said the young boy.

Behind the boy was one of the sect members. He raised his scarred hands as he chased after the boy. “Son, you are just a fast runner.”

Seeing the both of them leave, Li Huowang’s face contorted with disgust. “These damned lunatics! Don’t they have any conscience?”

Yingzi, who had been leading the way, took a glance at Li Huowang before continuing on her way. “Sir, you seemed like you were interested in the other books of the Ao Jing Sect. If you want, I can give you my book. How about it?”

Yingzi had expected a reply but there was none. When she turned around, she saw that the Daoist in red robes was holding onto his head with a pained look on his face.

“Damn! It’s here again!” Li Huowang suddenly felt everything around him disappear. He knew that the hallucination was starting once again.

“Sir? Sir, what’s wrong?” Yingzi quickly approached him.

At that moment, Li Huowang saw with his very eyes as Yingzi’s figure turned into that of a nurse.

“Roll your tongue back in. Don’t bite on it,” instructed the nurse.

When the nurse saw how Li Huowang was staring at her in a daze without talking, she sighed and left.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang was looking at the sun high in the sky, blanking out and not knowing what to do.

“Wait! I’m still outside back in reality! It’s extremely dangerous!” Li Huowang blurted out.

Realizing the danger he was in, he spoke urgently, “Yingzi, listen to me; quickly bring me back to the room and tie me up—”

“Huowang,” a voice interrupted Li Huowang.

Hearing this voice, Li Huowang raised his head and saw Yang Na’s crying face. She was still wearing the same simple outfit which consisted of a white sweater and a pair of jeans along with a small satchel on her waist.

“Huowang, can you react to my voice now? Are you awake? Do you recognize me?” Yang Na ran over and grabbed his hands.

Li Huowang was thrown into confusion when he felt the familiar warmth. He instinctively froze up and pretended that he still hadn’t come back to his senses.

Seeing this, the excitement in Yang Na’s eyes soon turned to disappointment; even after calling out his name a few more times, there was no response.

Tears welled up from her eyes and stained her long lashes. Her soft voice was trembling, “Huowang, you big liar. You had said that we will go to university together! I’m already in the first year and yet you haven’t even woken up!”

When he heard this, Li Huowang felt a pang in his heart. Even though he knew that this was a hallucination, he couldn’t help himself from speaking. “Nana, I’m sorry.”

When she heard those words, Yang Na was ecstatic and launched herself into his embrace while crying. “I’m so sorry. I really wanted to visit you earlier, but ever since you appeared on the news, my parents forbade me from coming to meet you. Today, I finally had a chance to come and see you.”

Li Huowang gently hugged her before pushing her away. “Nana, your father is right. Don’t come here anymore. I’m afraid that I...”

The second half of his sentence was something he had previously buried deep in his heart; even so, he still had to say it. “...I am afraid that I might end up thinking that this side is the real one.”

When Yang Na heard what he said, she couldn't believe her ears. She felt like she had been plunged into a frigid lake. She had never thought that when Li Huowang finally became coherent after a long time, these would be the first words out of his mouth.

Amidst her frustration, she took her satchel and swung it at Li Huowang numerous times while crying and screaming, “Did you ever consider my feelings before you said those words? Why do you want me to leave you as well!? My parents, my brother, my friends, and now even you! I'm so tired from trying to persevere for so long, so why did you have to say it as well?! Didn't you say that you loved me and that you never wanted me to give up on you?!”

Chapter 122 - Chocolate

From the sensation of the satchel hitting his face, Li Huowang could feel the pain that caused Yang Na's outburst. He too felt the same pain, and so he raised both his hands and hugged the girl.

"Nana! Please stop. I beg you," said Li Huowang.

Feeling the embrace of the one she had been yearning for, Yang Na gradually calmed down and rested her head on his shoulder while crying.

At that moment, they looked just like they did a few years ago, sitting at the top of their school and staying up all night until sunrise.

Time slowly passed as Yang Na continued to remain in Li Huowang's embrace. She wished for the flow of time to stop at this moment.

But, she soon felt a pair of hands on her waist gradually pushing her away. In response, she hugged Li Huowang even tighter; she didn't want to let him go.

However, her strength was nowhere near his and she was soon pushed away.

The girl's eyes were still red from crying. Li Huowang opened his mouth but no words came out. He felt distraught.

After giving some thought, he calmly said, "Nana, please promise me something; promise me that you will live on even if I were to die one day."

"No!" Yang Na was adamant. "Don't decide that for me! My thoughts are mine alone! My choices are none of your concern. I will continue to wait for you until the day you wake up!"

As soon as she finished saying those words, Yang Na grabbed her satchel and stormed off.

However, she stopped just as she passed by the door. She hesitated for a few seconds before turning back. Then, she took out a small pack of chocolate from her satchel and coldly passed it to Li Huowang.

As he stared at the beautifully wrapped chocolate, Li Huowang asked Yang Na, “What day is it? Why are you giving me chocolate?”

However, Yang Na just continued to cry while ignoring him. Then, she opened up the wrapping around the chocolate before unceremoniously shoving the alcoholic chocolate down Li Huowang’s mouth.

Li Huowang laughed as he tasted the sweet chocolate. “Nana, what are you doing?”

Since this was just a hallucination, he no longer wanted to argue with her. At the same time, since he was inside the hallucination, he had no control over what he was doing on the other side either, and so there wasn’t much he could do.

As Li Huowang smiled, the tense atmosphere within the ward became mellow.

“What are you laughing at? Stop laughing!” Yang Na swung her satchel onto Li Huowang’s shoulder.

“Ouch! Be a little gentle, it hurts!” Li Huowang hissed in pain and held his shoulders.

“Tsk, you are feeling pain from just this? Why weren’t you in pain when you got shot in the face? Look at how you look right now,” Yang Na said as she took out a small mirror from her satchel and placed it in front of Li Huowang.

This was the first time he had seen himself in the hallucination in a long while. He was still a young boy, but his face that was originally filled with hope was now split in half by a scar. The scar ran from the upper left of his face to his lower right and completely disfigured his face. His entire look had been changed due to it.

Li Huowang gingerly touched his own face, feeling the rough sensation of the scar. He knew how he got it—it was from the sniper bullet grazing his face back at the kindergarten.

Looks like the hallucination is quite logical.

Li Huowang silently thought to himself.

After a while, Yang Na took the mirror back and frowned at him. “What are you thinking? Are you thinking that I will abandon you just because your face has been disfigured? I didn’t even do so when you had turned into a psycho, so don’t even think that I will give up on you now. In fact, I don’t care about it in the slightest.”

Hearing this, Li Huowang shook his head and smiled. Then, he took the pack of chocolate sitting atop the white sheets and popped a piece of it into his mouth. He took another one and offered it to Yang Na, “Have one. I remember that you were a massive fan of snacks.”

However, Yang Na shook her head. “You can eat it. Outside, I can buy it anytime I want, but here, it’s almost a delicacy for you.”

Li Huowang nodded and ate another piece, the sweet taste enveloping his tongue. “Yeah, I haven’t tasted this in a long time...”

Li Huowang's eyes were filled with a sense of yearning and nostalgia. Since he could never go back to his old life, he could only use the hallucination to relieve his yearning for his old life.

Yang Na was heartbroken when she heard him. She held his hands gently and said, “If you want to eat it, then I will buy it for you everyday! Now that I’m in university, my father gives me a lot of money to use as living expenses. He gives me 2500 a month! And I take part-time jobs during breaks as well. I can buy any chocolate you want... but I don’t know whether you will even be coherent the next time I bring chocolate for you...”

Yang Na’s words instantly caused the atmosphere to grow cold.

Li Huowang swallowed the chocolate and was about to console her when he suddenly started coughing.

“Aiya, I have been telling you since elementary school to eat slower and to not talk while eating. See, you just choked on the chocolate. Let me pour a glass of water for you,” said Yang Na as she took the cup on the table and walked out.

Cough-cough!

Meanwhile, Li Huowang started coughing even more vigorously. At the same time, he felt a burning pain radiating from his esophagus to his stomach.

This ain't right! Something's happening to the other side!

Li Huowang raised his head and stared coldly at Yang Na's disappearing back. “Who are you? What did you feed me?!”

Soon, an intense pain burst forth from his stomach, causing him to start shouting, “AAAA!”

It was almost as if a living hedgehog was running amok within his body.

Amidst the intense pain, everything around him started to shift back—the warm sunlight and bright hospital ward started to fade. Soon, Li Huowang was back in the Ao Jing Sect's cave. At the same time, he saw blood on the floor in front of him, the very same blood that he had just coughed up.

At this moment, Li Huowang was red-faced and had veins bulging on his head. He grabbed his neck with both hands while kneeling on the ground like a shrimp.

Blegh!

Soon, a massive pile of items were vomited out, consisting of blackened blood, bits and pieces of flesh, small black tentacles, and... rusty nails.

Chapter 123 - Who Was It?

The clump of rusted nails almost resembled an assassination weapon. Seeing what he had vomited, Li Huowang instinctively knew that this was the ‘chocolate’ he had eaten in his hallucination.

After a moment, he raised his right arm only to feel a stinging pain from his shoulder. When he checked, he saw a massive gash, so deep that it revealed his white bones.

That was where Yang Na had hit him with her satchel just now!

“Someone tried to kill me while I was stuck in the hallucination!” Li Huowang instantly realized what was happening.

He endured the pain and scanned his surroundings with bloodshot eyes. Around him, he saw rows upon rows of members of the Ao Jing Sect, all standing still like gravestones, watching him.

Seeing this, Li Huowang growled and unfurled the Profound Records on the ground, his blood dripping from his lips onto the blood-red bamboo slip.

Jiang!

At the same time, Li Huowang unsheathed his sword and pointed it at the sect members surrounding him.

“What is the meaning of this? Is this what you mean by adhering to the rules? Do you think that I’m some pushover?!” Li Huowang roared in anger.

Li Huowang’s voice echoed throughout the cave, but no one answered him. They just stood there motionless, staring at him with eyes filled with curiosity and mocking laughter.

Just as Li Huowang was about to go all out against them,

Yingzi ran out from the crowd and tried her best to take him away.

“Sir, let’s go. Let’s quickly leave this place. Don’t look at them anymore,” Jiang Yingzi’s voice was filled with panic as she tried to haul his bloody body away from the place.

Hearing this, Li Huowang just stared at Yingzi, his gaze as cold as when he had been glaring at the others.

After a moment, he took out a few Blood Nourishing Pills from the gourd on his waist and popped them into his mouth.

After a while, Li Huowang ignored the gazes of everyone in the Ao Jing Sect and returned to their cave with the support of Yingzi.

The pain in his body was still fresh. Li Huowang knew that his stomach was a mess after having eaten a bunch of rusty nails. But there was nothing he could do other than rest on the bed, and wait for his reinforced healing to kick in and help him recover.

After calming down, Li Huowang inspected his body and found that not only had he sustained internal injuries, but there were slash wounds on his body as well.

They were in the same spots that Yang Na had hit him with her satchel.

As Yingzi saw Li Huowang's wounds, she felt conflicted. After thinking for a bit, she took out a wax-covered book from her bag. “Sir, let me heal you; however, you will need to endure some pain.”

Just as she approached him, Li Huowang swung his right arm and threw away the wax-covered book in her hand.

“You were the only one beside me just now. Tell me what happened?” asked Li Huowang.

Yingzi gripped the edge of her robes tightly while panicking. “I... I can’t say... otherwise, they will kill me...”

At that moment, Li Huowang stared at her lowered head and realized that he had never really seen what she looked like.

“Raise your head and look at me,” commanded Li Huowang.

On the other hand, when she heard his command, Yingzi became nervous. She kept lowering her head and averting his gaze, afraid of looking directly into Li Huowang's eyes.

"What are you afraid of? Were you assigned to me just so they could spy on me? Was everything you said yesterday fake? What's your goal, you self-mutilating bastards?" Li Huowang pressed on.

"No, it's not like that. It really isn't..." Yingzi's breathing started becoming erratic; it was as if she was enduring something.

"Since you are not one of them, then who was the one who injured me just now?! Talk! Didn't you say that you always adhere to the rules? Is this one of the rules as well? Will all of you die if you don't do something wicked?!"

By this point, Yingzi was so shaken and conflicted that she started bleeding from how hard she was biting her lips.

Just as she was about to say something, there was a knock on the door.

Li Huowang and Yingzi turned around at the same time. Standing at the door were two members of the Ao Jing Sect, one of them wearing black and the other white. Both of them were at least two meters tall. They just stood there motionlessly without uttering a word.

Yingzi knew what it meant for them to appear here. Her body started trembling intensely as she walked out.

What's going on? They aren't even going to sugarcoat it anymore and just want to capture me?

Seeing the situation, Li Huowang closed his eyes and attempted to recover as much as possible.

If his wounds were to deteriorate any further, then Dan Yangzi would be forced to come out once more.

However, at that moment, he felt a strange sensation on his wounds.

He opened his eyes and saw it was Bun who had secretly walked over with its ears downturned; it was licking the wounds on Li Huowang's body.

"Bun, how about coming with me the next time we go out? No need to guard the room anymore. I really need someone or something to be by my side," Li Huowang patted Bun while mumbling to himself.

At that moment, Bun's skinny body suddenly shrunk a little as it looked toward the door. Seeing that there was no one at the door, Bun continued to lick Li Huowang's wound.

However, Li Huowang had also picked up on what Bun had heard. He had also heard the same scream that Bun did. Li Huowang's heightened sense of hearing had allowed him to hear a minute sound—the sound of a woman screaming in pain.

He knew that the scream belonged to Yingzi; after all, she had been taken away not too long ago.

After considering it for a moment, Li Huowang patted Bun on the head before gritting his teeth to endure the pain as he stood up.

"It's just one thing after another. Can't I get some good rest?" mumbled Li Huowang.

Then, he slowly started hobbling his way out of the cave and toward the source of the sound.

The sound of screaming continued to become louder and louder until Li Huowang arrived at the large cave he had seen just earlier.

At this moment, a naked Yingzi had two massive hooks stabbed in her pectoral girdle as she was hung high up in the cave.

The two sect members in black and white from earlier that had taken her away previously were circling around her, each of them holding a thin blade that they used to slice thin pieces of flesh off her body.

Sou~

At that moment, one of Li Huowang's fingernail flew out and cut the chains that Yingzi was being hung with, causing the bloody girl to fall onto the floor hard.

Then, Li Huowang walked forward and covered her, shielding her from the gazes of the others.

He glared at Shou San with his burnt body and asked angrily, “Does the Ao Jing Sect treat their promises as nothing? Do we still have our deal or not?!”

Shou San was somewhat surprised to see Li Huowang appearing here, but the tone of his reply was one filled with amusement. “Of course. I still have to respect the Abbess’s request. Our deal is still effective, and we will naturally honor our words.”

Chapter 124 - Treatment

Shou San was quite calm when he told Li Huowang they would honor the deal.

“Fine, I will trust you one more time. I hope that an incident like today’s will never happen again! If you push me to the brink of desperation, then I would rather yield my body to Dan Yangzi and have everyone perish with me!” warned Li Huowang.

When he heard Li Huowang’s threats, Shou San was visibly unhappy; however, all he could do was silently stare at the red-robed Daoist with wariness in his eyes.

Then, under the gaze of the members of the Ao Jing Sect, Li Huowang carried Yingzi off the floor and pulled her back to their cave.

Once they left, Shou San turned toward one of the sect members beside him. While the sect member in question didn’t look any different than the rest, Shou San was very respectful to him. He whispered, “Elder Shen Benyou, you’ve seen the child; what do you think we should do?”

At this moment, one of the elders that Yingzi had told Li Huowang about the night before was present at the scene.

The man stared in the direction Li Huowang had disappeared to. “No, this Strayed One is unlike the others we have met before. You’ve seen his powers; he’s a lot more dangerous than the other Strayed Ones. Don’t provoke him; we will decide on what to do with him after we have probed him further.”

“Yes, this underling understands,” replied Shou San.

Back in their cave, Li Huowang fell onto the ground, his energy completely spent.

Meanwhile, Yingzi stood there, hesitant; the only part of her body that remained intact was one of her arms. When she saw that Li Huowang was still bleeding profusely from his wounds, she carefully approached him. “Sir, are you alright?”

“Hehe... No worries. I won’t die from just this,” said Li Huowang.

When she heard those words, Yingzi’s eyes became filled with determination as she walked over and grabbed the wax-covered book from the side. She held the book and kneeled in front of Li Huowang. “Sir, please endure it. I will now help you with treating your injuries.”

After saying that, she started chanting off the book. Her voice as she chanted was extremely bizarre; it was as if she was imitating the crackling sound of flames.

Floof~

After a moment, the wax-covered book in Yingzi’s hand started burning up.

Soon, the flames melted the white wax before it started dripping onto Li Huowang’s wounds.

Sizzle~

The sound of flesh being burnt echoed in the cave and at the same time, Li Huowang recognized a familiar scent.

At that moment, Yingzi raised the book above her head. At the same time, the fiery wax on Li Huowang’s body came alive and started wriggling around on his body like a worm. As it crawled all over his body, white smoke rose from Li Huowang’s body as a trail of burnt flesh was left in the wake of the wax.

The wax cauterized the wounds on his body, and fused together the deep wound that revealed his bones.

Soon, the wax had circled most of Li Huowang’s body, and finished healing most of his external wounds.

The price of the treatment was naturally the pain he had to suffer through, especially since his sense of pain had been heightened. It was so painful that he almost bit off his tongue; his entire body was drenched in sweat, making it look like he had just passed through a heavy downpour.

But it was not over.

The white wax slowly snaked its way to his face. When Li Huowang realized what it was about to do, he took a deep breath. “Fuck, this treatment is definitely psychotic.”

He took a few rapid breaths before opening his mouth, catching the white wax with his hand, and throwing it into his mouth.

At that moment, Li Huowang finally knew what it would feel like to eat magma. He felt the lump of molten wax slowly sliding down his esophagus. At the same time, the sound of sizzling flesh intensified as billowing white smoke flowed out from all his orifices.

The intense burning sensation was so painful that he rolled on the floor while grabbing at his neck.

After a while, he felt the white wax approaching his stomach, causing him to instantly stop Yingzi with his trembling hand. “Stomach... No need! The wax will not be able to defeat the thing inside my stomach!”

Even though Yingzi didn’t know what he meant, she still listened to him. Soon, the fiery wax exited Li Huowang’s mouth and slowly made its way onto Yingzi’s body before it started cauterizing her fleshless hand.

Ka-chak

At that moment, her hand fell off while the white wax continued to cauterize the open wound, slowly healing it in the process.

Once it was done with its mission, the wax crawled back onto the book and enveloped it. At the same time, the flames disappeared and the wax solidified once again, returning to its original form.

Li Huowang stared at Yingzi who was also covered in cold sweat. "Does it hurt?"

"How could it not? But compared to the day that my siblings died, this pain is nothing..." replied Yingzi.

Hearing this, Li Huowang's eyes fell and he nodded. "Yeah, the pain of the flesh is bearable, but the pain of the soul is not."

Yingzi, who was now left with only a single arm, said nothing as she supported him back onto the bed.

Staring at her side profile, Li Huowang had no idea what she was thinking. The things she had done were conflicting.

Not sure how much I can trust them, but since they swore on it, I suppose they won't do anything in the near future?

Li Huowang recalled what Shou San had said.

After a while, both Li Huowang and Yingzi lied down on the stone bed and Li Huowang immediately fell asleep.

While Li Huowang was asleep, he dreamt of many things; however, he didn't remember anything when he woke up.

When he opened his eyes, he saw Bun excitedly circling around Yingzi as it tried to gain her affection.

"How did you suddenly get so friendly with it?" asked Li Huowang as he sat on the stone stool and ate the breakfast placed on the stone table.

Yingzi's face was complicated as she stared at Bun, her hand patting Bun's white paws. "I remembered something. There was a dog living on my street. The old dog had seven puppies and Bun was one of them. I had thought that all of them had died, but to think that it actually survived."

Li Huowang sighed while staring at Bun excitedly licking Yingzi's hand. "Such a big town, and yet the only survivors are a single dog and a human. What a crazy world we live in."

"Sir, why would they want to kill us? Back then, he had supernatural powers and we were nothing but ants in front of him.

Was it just because he just didn't like our looks?" asked Yingzi, her voice trembling as she did her best to suppress her emotions.

Li Huowang sighed. "Who knows. This world often rewards the wicked yet punishes the good."

Li Huowang and Yingzi conversed for some time. After the incident from yesterday, they had gotten slightly closer.

"Right, what is the name of the book you used to treat me?" asked Li Huowang. He could tell that the treatment was very effective. Even though it was very painful and left scars wherever the wax had crawled, Li Huowang saw that his wounds were mostly healed.

Yingzi took out the wax-covered book from her robes and passed it to Li Huowang. "It's called the Fiery Sutra. It's yours if you need it."

Chapter 125 - Why?

“The Fiery Sutra?” Li Huowang grabbed the wax-covered book. Through the translucent wax, he could see the title of the book.

He noticed that a different character had been used to replace the character for the word “Sutra”. Rather than Fiery Sutra, it was more accurate to call it the Fiery Scripture.

Even though the treatment process was immensely painful, Li Huowang knew that it was very effective.

“Why give me the book?” Li Huowang was puzzled.

“I gave it to you because you need it more than me. But it’s not easy to learn how to use it; you need to learn how to read another language in order to use it,” said Yingzi as she opened the wax-covered book and revealed its content.

“This...” Li Huowang furrowed his brow. The words were circular in nature. Larger circles encircled smaller ones while the smaller ones had dots within them. The various sizes and combinations among them were almost endless.

He had no idea what language it was nor had he seen a similar linguistic system.

“If you want to understand the sutra, then you need to learn from scratch. You can only use that book after you’ve learned how to read the Heavenly Fire Mark and its five tones,” explained Yingzi as she passed her notebook to him. “This is a translation of the Heavenly Fire Mark to the common language. You can use it as a reference.”

Li Huowang opened the notes and saw that they were quite detailed. It seemed that Yingzi had written them herself.

Since she had already given him so much, there was no reason for Li Huowang to decline. After all, he needed the Fiery Scripture.

But he didn't have any time to research it right now—he needed to get out of this wretched place before doing anything else.

Li Huowang kept both books and asked, “You gave both these books to me on your own accord. Will you end up getting into trouble if they find out?”

In response, Yingzi lowered her head and shook it.

Li Huowang nodded and stared at her seriously. “I won't pry into your past, but I am a man who definitely pays back the generosity of others. As long as you help me, I will help you escape from this place.”

“Em!” Yingzi nodded excitedly. “Sir, what do you need me to do? I can help you with anything.”

It was clear that Yingzi was desperate.

After staring at his surroundings alertly, Li Huowang whispered. “Yingzi, since you and I have the same goal, I consider you an ally. I actually do need your help quite desperately as well.”

Then, Li Huowang whispered something to her and she nodded.

Fifteen minutes later, both of them exited their cave.

During the next two days, with Yingzi's guidance, Li Huowang scoured the entire cave, not missing even a single spot.

At the same time, Shou San did not go back on his words either; no one tried to find trouble with Li Huowang. The most they did was to stare at him before letting him pass if they encountered Li Huowang.

By the third day, Li Huowang had grasped the entire structure of the cave system and etched it into his memories.

“Sir, now that we have memorized the layout of this place, what do we do?” Yingzi whispered from behind.

Li Huowang stared ahead for a moment before turning back toward their room. “Let's go back first. I'm afraid there might be someone listening in on us over here.”

Hearing this, Yingzi silently followed him like an assistant.

On the other hand, Li Huowang was worried, his expression occasionally turning gnarly as he recalled something.

They were halfway back when they encountered the burnt looking Shou San. He revealed a ghastly smile as bits of burnt skin flaked off his body. "Little Xuan Yang, it is already the third day. Do you have any idea how to do it? Do you need my help? If you thought that the previous method was too harsh, then I have another idea."

However, Li Huowang refused without even hearing his proposal; he was very repulsed by their methods. "No need! I've said that I will deal with it myself!"

After saying that, Li Huowang pulled Yingzi away, bringing them back to their cave.

Shou San did not try to stop them. He just stood there silently, a strange glint in his eyes as he stared at their departing backs.

When the wooden door closed and isolated them from the outside world, Li Huowang finally heaved a sigh of relief. Living in a place that belonged to others was way too stressful; he had no choice but to abide by their rules and cater to their whims.

"Sir, what should we do next?" asked Yingzi.

Hearing Yingzi's question, Li Huowang took a breath. Just as he was about to say something, his expression froze.

"Damn! It's here again!" Li Huowang placed his back against the wooden door and slowly slid down onto the floor.

"Sir? Sir, are you alright?" Yingzi carefully approached him.

However, Li Huowang just stared at the girl blankly, his expression conflicted as he whispered, "Mom? You are here again? No, I don't want to eat oranges. Could you please step outside? I have some business to attend to. I know, I understand that the other side is a hallucination. You don't need to worry about me. I'm a little thirsty, so could you help me get some water? No, I don't want the water in the thermos. I just want some regular water.”

“Sir... ?” Yingzi carefully said as she saw Li Huowang hallucinating.

In the next instant, Li Huowang once again became serious. His eyes were unfocused as they darted around. “Yingzi, quick, tie me up! Tie me up on the bed! I will explain everything to you when I come back to my senses!”

Just as he had said those words, his expression changed again. “Dad, why are you here? Don’t you need to go to work?”

Meanwhile, Yingzi just stood there, motionless as she stared at the red Daoist speaking toward empty space—she did not obey his command about tying him to the bed.

“Thanks, Mom. No need to feed me, I will just drink it on my own.” Li Huowang placed both hands together and made a motion of drinking water.

Staring at Li Huowang’s opened mouth, Yingzi carefully took out a ball of rusted nails that were bound together. Her hands were trembling from nervousness. She hesitated for a while, before placing the ball of nails back into her robes.

“Alright, alright. I will peel the oranges on my own. There’s no need to feed me,” said Li Huowang.

This time around, Yingzi took out a bottle of acid. Then, she threw the ball of nails into the bottle of acid, causing the metal to start sizzling.

Soon, the mixture of corroded nails and the acid was placed in front of Li Huowang, black smoke coming out from it.

“Uuu~” At that moment, Bun slowly approached them, not comprehending what was happening.

BAM!

When she saw Bun, Yingzi kicked it away.

The kick sent Bun flying as it started spitting out blood; it struggled to get up for a while before falling down due to the pain.

“Mom, no need to peel anymore. I’ve eaten too many oranges already,” said Li Huowang. Then, he grabbed the smoking ball of nails.

As this was happening, Yingzi stood there, her body trembling from excitement as she saw Li Huowang about to die.

However, just as the ball of nails reached his mouth, Li Huowang’s hand stopped. By the time he dropped the ball of nails, his fingers were already bloody from the corrosive liquid. The ball of nails barely brushed past his face and fell onto the ground, rolling a few times before stopping.

At this moment, there was no sign of Li Huowang hallucinating, and his eyes were deathly cold and sharp as he stared at her. “Why?”

Chapter 126 - Wicked Person

“Why?!” Li Huowang’s cold voice echoed within the cave. “They’ve already tortured you to the point of having to amputate your own hand, so why are you helping them fight against me? Why? I’ve already told you that I will take you away from this wretched place. Have I not shown you enough kindness? Do you even have a conscience? Or have you also aligned yourself with them after living here for four years?”

“Hehe...” Hearing his words, Yingzi started laughing. She slowly raised her head, her laughter becoming louder and louder.

This was the first time she had met his gaze, her eyes dripping with tears as she laughed.

Hatred filled her soft brown eyes.

The hatred in her eyes was so deep that she could pounce toward Li Huowang and kill him at any time.

It was only now that Li Huowang understood why she did not meet his gaze before this—she was afraid that she would act rashly the moment she met his gaze.

At that moment, two sets of Profound Records were unfurled on the ground.

With the aid of the Profound Records, Li Huowang saw his own flesh and skin expand in the air and pounce toward Yingzi, looking like a massive net.

On the other hand, Yingzi used her little finger to make a bone pike. However, the flesh net created by Li Huowang captured it and both of them fell to the ground.

Looking at the items on the ground, Yingzi realized that both of them were using the Profound Records. If she wanted to kill him, she would need to sacrifice more of herself than he did of himself.

With this realization, she didn't hesitate to instantly place her right foot onto the Profound Records.

As he saw the unique words on the red bamboo slip slowly slither up her legs, Li Huowang instinctively felt that the situation was dangerous.

Shit! This is dangerous!

Immediately, Li Huowang ran out from the cave.

Just as Yingzi followed after him and hobbled out from the cave with her single leg, an ear-piercing sound of a bell rang out. When a Wandering God made of squiggly lines sprung up at her from under the ground, she couldn't react in time; even as she did her best to dodge, the Wandering God managed to phase through half of her exposed body.

Immediately, she fell onto the ground, losing any and all control of the parts of her body that were exposed to the Wandering God. However, she did not give up and instead gritted her teeth as she struggled to stand up.

But at that moment, a sharp blade was placed against her neck, deciding the victor.

Li Huowang did not act immediately, instead staring at her face. Then, he spat out angrily. "Why? I want to know why! Did the Ao Jing Sect take someone close to you as hostage?"

Dak dak dak~

At that moment, Li Huowang heard footsteps coming from everywhere around him; it was clear that the Ao Jing Sect's members had heard all the commotion.

Li Huowang turned around and saw Shou San approaching them.

"You think this is funny? You've already gone back on your words so many times! Why did you ask her to do this? If you can do this, then come face me directly instead!” shouted Li Huowang.

Li Huowang hated the Ao Jing Sect to the core. They kept breaking their promises while trying to harm him over and over.

However, Shou San’s expression threw him off; his burnt face was revealing an expression filled with doubt.

“I’m not sure what you’ve heard, but I never ordered Er Jiu to act. There’s no benefit for us in fighting you, and it’s actually the most dangerous method,” said Shou San.

“Lies! The evidence is right in front of you and yet you are trying to lie to me!” shouted Li Huowang before falling silent.

Li Huowang didn’t trust their words, but then, a girl’s voice broke the silence, causing him to turn around and stare at Yingzi. The girl was still on the ground, her eyes glaring at him with hatred.

“Hehe... Didn’t you want to know why? Then let me tell you the reason!” Yingzi gritted her teeth with disgust as she met Li Huowang’s gaze.

Then, she removed her robes, exposing her mutilated body to everyone around.

“It’s because you killed my family! I’ve suffered so much because of you!” shouted Yingzi.

When he heard those words, Li Huowang thought she had gone crazy; he didn’t believe her. That was such a ridiculous lie!

However, Yingzi pointed at the sect members encircling them and continued, “You said that they were wicked, that they had no conscience. But they can’t even be compared to you!”

Yingzi’s voice was hoarse as she continued to shout, “Four years ago, you massacred everyone in my town! Tens of thousands! All of them are dead! You killed them all. Compared to you, the members of the Ao Jing Sect can be considered Saints!”

Hearing those words, Li Huowang felt like an explosion was going off in his head.

“No, impossible! I am not the same as you crazy bastards! I’m a good guy!” shouted Li Huowang, denying it vehemently.

“HAHAHAHA! You? A good guy? Yeah right!” Yingzi pointed her trembling fingers at him as she laughed hysterically. “The old grandma who used to sell tofu, my neighbor’s baby who was barely a week old, and even my parents! You didn’t even bat an eye when you killed all of them and yet you dare to call yourself a good guy?!”

When he saw just how resolute her hatred of him was, Li Huowang even started to doubt himself. He scoured his memories up until four years ago and knew that he had not yet transmigrated to this world back then, nor did he have the illness... at least not yet.

The only thing he recalled from that time was participating in the sports day and playing with everyone on a crowded field.

“No! I did not! Impossible! I hadn’t transmigrated four years... ago?” Li Huowang suddenly realized something that he should have realized long ago.

Sensing the doubt in his voice, Yingzi snarled as she revealed a thin blade in her hand. Just as she had placed her hand on it, the sword placed against her neck moved, causing her to freeze.

Red blood splattered out from her neck. Her body convulsed for a while before going still.

After a few breaths of time had passed, Li Huowang realized what he had done and immediately checked on her. His hands were trembling as he held her with his arms and covered the wound on her neck while stuffing Blood Nourishing Pills into her mouth.

“Don’t die! You cannot die! You need to tell me what happened!” shouted Li Huowang.

“Cough... Good guy...” Even in the final moments of her life, Yingzi continued to stare at Li Huowang mockingly. “Good guy...”

Soon, her hands went limp and her eyes became unfocused.

As he held onto her corpse, Li Huowang's breathing started becoming erratic. He shouted toward the members of the Ao Jing Sect standing around him. "Haven't you had enough?! What are you guys thinking?! You damned crazy self-mutilating psychopaths! If you want to capture me, a Strayed One, then do it directly! Do you all think it's fun to fool me?!"

When Shou San heard those words, he had a rather amused expression on his face. "It seems that you really have forgotten what happened four years ago. You did in fact massacre a whole town, regardless of their age or gender. Blood flowed through the entire town like a river. Back then, Elder Yan Jianxi could tolerate it no longer and wanted to stop you, but then, you ran to our place and started wreaking havoc, destroying many of our Cross Temples. We had to spend a lot of manpower to chase you away."

Chapter 127 - Who Is It?

“It was me? I massacred an entire town? It was me who killed Yingzi’s entire family?” Trembling, Li Huowang turned to look into the eyes of the dead girl before him.

Her pupils were devoid of any expression, dilated to the maximum. A mocking smile still hung on her face.

“I killed her, a girl who just wanted to seek revenge for the death of her parents? Am I the one who deserves death?” mumbled Li Huowang.

At this point, Li Huowang was starting to feel afraid. It was an extreme type of fear. He pushed Yingzi’s lifeless body and took a big step back before raising his trembling hands which were stained completely red with Yingzi’s blood.

“No! It’s not like that. I hadn’t even transmigrated here four years ago! Even if I had, it’s impossible for me to massacre an entire town! I wouldn’t have had the ability to cause chaos within the Ao Jing Sect. After all, I’m just an ordinary person!” shouted Li Huowang.

“You’re not ordinary; ordinary people wouldn’t have your abilities,” someone interjected.

Meanwhile, Shou San just watched as the red-robed Daoist became more and more terrified before continuing his explanation, “Logically, I wouldn’t want to have too much interaction with you. Who knows whether you will go mad while we are conversing? But since Abbess Jingxin asked us to help you, we are doing her a favor.”

“Shut up! Don’t try to deceive me! Aren’t you all lusting for Strayed Ones? Stop pretending! I’m right here, so come at me!” shouted Li Huowang.

Seeing Li Huowang glaring at him, Shou San backed away. “Little Xuan Yang, calm down. All of us here are trying to help you. You can’t repay our kindness with enmity.”

However, his words did not help. Conversely, they caused the fear within Li Huowang’s heart to deepen; he was starting to slowly feel like they were all telling the truth.

At that moment, Shou San gently waved his hand, gesturing for the others from Ao Jing Sect to withdraw. Then, he turned to Li Huowang. “Little Xuan Yang, while our Ao Jing Sect might not have the best reputation on the outside, we’re at least different from you; we don’t kill people on a whim. There should at least be a justification for a person’s actions.”

Li Huowang glanced down at Yingzi’s corpse, his eyes bloodshot. After a while, he gritted his teeth and dashed out of the tunnel.

Given Li Huowang’s overbearing attitude, nobody from the Ao Jing Sect dared to block his way; they backed up against the walls and gave way to him.

Outside, it was still night time, with the round moon hanging in the sky. The cold wind that blew past helped Li Huowang to clear his head a little. He stumbled beside a tree and leaned against it, covering his face with his hands as he squatted down, his body trembling involuntarily.

Am I really a killing maniac? Someone worse than even Dan Yangzi? Did I really kill Yingzi’s entire family? And then I killed Yingzi, who was just seeking revenge?

The intense pain brought about by this fact weighed down on Li Huowang’s mind like a mountain.

At that moment, Li Huowang suddenly heard footsteps approaching him. But at this point, he just wanted to hide and not care about anything else.

He felt someone gently pat his shoulder and speak in a voice that carried a tinge of worry, “Little Xuan Yang, are you leaving? Then does our agreement from before still stand?”

These words finally managed to break Li Huowang out of his reverie. “Impossible! I’m going to find evidence! I can’t possibly have killed everyone in that entire town!”

Li Huowang stood up and pushed aside Shou San’s hand before directly dashing toward the town at the foot of the mountain.

Shou San watched Li Huowang vanish along the mountain path. Once he had vanished from Shou San’s field of vision, Shou San turned around and respectfully bowed toward a square-faced member of the Ao Jing Sect. “Elder Shen Benyou, please look at this...”

The square-faced man frowned and pondered for a moment, then said, “Follow him and observe; however, don’t get involved with anything yourself.”

Meanwhile, accompanied by the moonlight, Li Huowang once again arrived at the ghost town.

The darkness and deathly silence, as well as the sparse vegetation made the town seem even more horrifying.

However, Li Huowang did not care about all this. He just rushed in and frantically started to search even as he continued to bleed from his injuries.

When he discovered a skeleton on the ground, his eyes lit up. He took out a glowing stone from his pocket and began to examine the body closely.

“The left side of the skull is shattered! This was done by a blunt weapon. That’s not my style, and I don’t like to use blunt weapons anyway,” mumbled Li Huowang, his mood slowly stabilizing as he methodically continued to search through the other skeletons.

“The bones of this corpse are charred, and they crumble easily upon touch. This person died in a fire, something that I couldn’t have done.”

“This one is even more absurd; half its body is exposed outside, and half of it is stuck in the wall. How could I have possibly done this?”

Li Huowang felt more relieved the more corpses he checked. Finally, when he saw a skeleton that had bloomed on the floor like a flower, Li Huowang put down the burden in his heart.

I didn't kill anyone... I'm not a killing maniac! Yingzi was clearly misremembering!

Li Huowang re-confirmed this fact in his mind.

But, another question leapt into his mind.

Why would Yingzi misremember all of it? Could there have been an evil person that looked exactly like me?

Ah... this is troublesome. This fact might cause more trouble in future.

But I can think about this matter at another time. First, I should think of a way to deal with Dan Yangzi.

Li Huowang was about to leave the rotting wooden house when some of the papers on the bedside caught his attention. He calmly picked up those pieces of paper.

There was quite some blood on them, and they seemed like they were penned by someone right before they died.

Li Huowang could not really make out the contents of the paper; he could not recognize a lot of the words.

Hold on, these three characters are quite familiar.

Frowning, Li Huowang touched the last three characters doubtfully. He touched them for a long time, his brows furrowing even more.

Then, he suddenly realized something.

“Li Huowang! These three characters make the words ‘Li Huowang’!” shouted Li Huowang excitedly. However, immediately after that, a realization struck him that caused him to feel like he was being strangled.

He once again surveyed the skeletons around him, his pupils dilating and constricting repeatedly. Fear gradually started to consume his heart.

“No... Impossible! Yingzi must have made a mistake! I didn’t kill her parents! I didn’t kill all these people!” mumbled Li Huowang to himself hysterically, trying to refute his realization. However, his emotions were slowly going out of control.

He could find all sorts of ways to deceive himself, but the three characters on the piece of paper in his hand forced him to face reality.

In that moment, something inside Li Huowang snapped.

“Li Huowang! You killed them! You madman!”

“No! I didn’t! I didn’t! I didn’t! I’m different from Dan Yangzi and the rest!”

Veins started bulging on his forehead as Li Huowang knelt amongst the skeletons of the people that had died due to various causes while shouting hysterically.

Swoosh~

At that moment, a fur-covered pill flew into Li Huowang’s mouth.

In an instant, the guilt and agony that he had been suppressing in his heart were magnified many times over, almost engulfing him completely.

As this was happening, a person slowly walked in. It was Shou San.

His body was completely charred as he walked in while lightly snapping his fingers. Dense flames surrounded his entire body, crackling as they burned him.

Then, he gently waved his hand, and the burning flames quickly extended along the ground, engulfing Li Huowang’s entire body.

Chapter 128 - It'S Not Me

The flames continued to burn around Li Huowang, his appearance gradually turning more and more like that of the charred Shou San.

Everything in his field of vision began to distort; however, it was unknown whether it was due to ingesting the pill or being doused in flames.

At the same time, the skeletons around him that should have been lifeless suddenly started growing like trees, twisting in bizarre ways as they grew.

“Ah... ah... ah!”

As Li Huowang howled, the flames seemed to find an entrance and directly burrowed inside him, burning his inner organs.

“Little Xuan Yang, it’s time.” Shou San walked over and retrieved the Profound Records from Li Huowang’s waist, placing it before him.

At that moment, as Li Huowang peered through the flames, he felt like he was being tortured in hell. In this state, the Profound Records he saw did not look like an arranged row of bamboo slips, but a pile of quivering flesh worms. Strange words were written on them as they arranged themselves neatly into extremely strange-looking slips of flesh.

“This... What the heck is going on!” shouted Li Huowang. He felt like his brain was turning to mush. No, perhaps the scorching heat of the flames had already turned his brain to mush.

Meanwhile, disciples of the Ao Jing Sect had taken off their gowns, and were approaching them from all directions. They sat down around Li Huowang in an orderly fashion with their disfigured bodies.

However, in Li Huowang's view, they had all turned into various sorts of flesh-mangled monsters.

Shou San looked at Li Huowang being burned by the flames, and then took a step backward. "Little friend, don't forget the objective for which you came to our sect. Now, the opportunity is ripe; it's time to open the door to the Abyss of Worldly Suffering and meet Ba-Hui once again."

Li Huowang looked at him through the flames and shouted, "You lied to me?! You've been lying to me about everything?!"

"No, I did not lie to you. It's just that coincidentally this was a very good opportunity and that we leapt onto it as well. Don't you want to get rid of your Master? As long as you summon Ba-Hui, the elders will have a way to get rid of Dan Yangzi who is entangled with your body," replied Shou San.

Hearing this, Li Huowang howled in extreme agony. Then, he raised his charred hands and gently pressed them onto those flesh worms full of inscriptions.

At that moment, both the pain in Li Huowang's body and mind gradually started to morph into something else, just like before. At the same time, an extremely terrifying and desolate aura started to be emitted from Li Huowang's body, causing everyone present to shudder as they felt this other-worldly strength.

Li Huowang was very familiar with this scene; this was the prelude to Ba-Hui's appearance. Soon, his five senses also began to morph, and the cloudless skies suddenly changed colors.

Meanwhile, Shou San saw all this and started becoming excited. His body started to tremble; it was as though he was looking forward to something. "After all that turmoil, it's finally happening."

However, things did not progress as he wished. All the abnormalities that signified Ba-Hui's descent suddenly started returning to normality.

“What’s going on?” Shou San emotionally glanced at Li Huowang. For some reason, he sensed that at this point, the other person had somehow changed.

At that moment, Li Huowang slowly picked up the Profound Records with both hands.

At the same time, his voice rang out; however, this time, it wasn’t a voice filled with agony, but with doubt.

“Why... should I suffer like this? What do their deaths have to do with me? At this point, there’s nothing to restrain me. Who can say anything even if I did kill a few people?”

“It’s the survival of the fittest here. If they are weak, then they deserve to die. If I don’t kill them, then someone else will. It’s quite amusing; why should I feel guilty?”

“Moreover, all of this could have been lies that these self-mutilating lunatics of the Ao Jing Sect crafted!”

As Li Huowang spoke, he felt the mountain-like pressure that had been weighing down on him suddenly vanish.

As he saw Li Huowang transform so abruptly, Shou San asked apprehensively, “Little friend? Have you been influenced too deeply by your Master? Stay firm in your own beliefs. Do you want your Master to take over your body completely?”

At that moment, Shou San saw Li Huowang clutch his head within the flames as he struggled with a pained look on his face, arguing with himself.

“If I die, then so be it! Why should we care? Are you a saint? Look at yourself living like that! Do you have the capacity to care about others?”

“Dan Yangzi! Get out of my head! I will decide my own values! You won’t influence me again!”

The abnormal atmosphere and Ba-Hui’s terrifying aura expanded and contracted along with his shouting.

As time passed, the changes eventually started to stabilize.

At the critical moment, Li Huowang once again felt his surroundings change abruptly. The extreme pain from his body and mind rapidly faded as peace and quiet enveloped him.

When he finally regained consciousness, he found himself under the sun, restrained by a straitjacket while being pushed on a wheelchair by his mom. All the pain and suffering had instantly receded.

Whoa... whoa...

Li Huowang panted, still reeling from the shock.

He finally had a chance to catch his breath amidst all that torment.

At this point, he wanted to do nothing and just rest quietly.

“Son? Are you awake?” Sun Xiaoqin was surprised to see that her son was not in his usual crazed state.

Li Huowang turned to his mom with a complex expression. “Mom, do you know? I really don’t want to go back there. I’m tired of living there.”

Hearing this, Sun Xiaoqin hugged him tenderly, “It’s alright, don’t be afraid. It was all a hallucination. It’s all fake.”

Li Huowang closed his eyes and took a deep breath. Truthfully, he really wanted to escape now; he did not want to suffer anymore. Compared to the peace and quiet here, as well as his own family and Yang Na, the other world was simply hell.

Remembering the events from before, Li Huowang’s expression once again became filled with pain. “Mom... Who do you think I am?”

“You are Li Huowang! My son,” replied Sun Xiaoqin.

“Then, what sort of person is your son?” Li Huowang’s agonized voice carried a trace of confusion.

Sun Xiaoqin stroked her son’s head. “Li Huowang is a good child. He is sincere, responsible, and hardworking at his studies. Do you remember that afternoon in junior high? That day on the bus...”

As he listened to his mother's words, Li Huowang began to recall various things he had done in the past. He had experienced so much after going there, so much so that he had even forgotten what sort of person he had been.

He had changed, and not for the better. It was not just due to Dan Yangzi's influence, but also because of that world.

Slowly, his gaze gradually grew resolute.

That's right... This is me. The real Li Huowang.

That suspicious, foolish, and easily deceived person with no moral values is not me. That is Dan Yangzi. It's not me!

Chapter 129 - Up

"Mom, push me back. I might become a bit noisy later, but be patient; I'll come back and see you when I have the time. Let me know if you run out of money."

At this moment, Li Huowang was engulfed in flames with a strange smile on his charred face, talking to himself.

Seeing this, Shou San frowned and took another step back, "Elder was right. This kid is different from the usual Strayed Ones. This is rather difficult to manage."

Just when he was at a loss, he suddenly felt movement behind him.

As soon as he turned around, his expression tensed up and the flames around his body quickly diminished before burrowing back into his body.

"Elder Yan Jianxi, Elder Er Tingnu, Elder Bi Xiuai, Elder She Changshi, Elder Yi Jianyu, Elder Shen Benyou. Why have the elders come down from the mountain?" asked Shou San as he greeted the elders. [1]

"How is the situation?" asked the square-faced Elder Shen Benyou, looking rather disgruntled.

"The Strayed One is just standing there. As you can see, he doesn't follow our routine," Shou San was rather upset as he pointed his charred finger toward Li Huowang.

Hearing this, the six of them exchanged glances. Then, a tall woman amongst them walked over and said, "He's almost there. We just need to give him another push."

As she said that, the six of them raised their fists into the air, causing the flames that had enveloped Li Huowang to pull him toward the ground.

“Mom, can you push a little faster? I feel like something is wrong. Also, remember to cover my mouth.” Li Huowang continued to mumble to himself as he stared at the moon in the night sky.

“I’ll do it,” Elder Er Tingnu, who was dressed like a courtesan, said. Then, she made a gesture with her finger and reached into her hair before gently pinching and slowly pulling outward.

Gradually, a silver needle that carried a cold light began to be pulled out.

Soon, the needle’s length had reached almost an inch. This went to show just how deeply the needle had been stuck inside the woman’s head.

Once she pulled it out, she gently flicked it, causing the bloodied silver needle to fly out with an afterimage before embedding itself directly into Li Huowang’s charred head.

“What did you inject into him? Don’t administer things carelessly; things can go wrong,” reminded Yan Jianxi.

“Just a piece of the past from four years ago. I’m afraid that his heart wasn’t suffering enough, so I gave him just a bit more, hehe,” replied Er Tingnu as her blood-red lips rose slightly, a smug expression on her face.

At that moment, as soon as the long needle pierced Li Huowang’s head, he returned from the other side. At the same time, various bloody scenes appeared in his mind, causing him to involuntarily clutch his abdomen and start vomiting.

In those scenes, he could clearly see that it was indeed him—he laughed maniacally as he wantonly killed people in that small town.

More accurately, it wasn’t really killing.

While there weren’t any obvious reasons, the people around him had their bodies suddenly explode, burst into flames, or had their heads caved in.

And this was not limited to just dozens of people, but tens of thousands!

Male or female, young or old, everyone in the small town suffered a similar fate.

Only one person remained—Jiang Yingzi. She somewhat resembled Yang Na from when she was younger.

The scenes of tens of thousands of people dying due to him exploded in his mind. This was not something that Li Huowang could endure.

“Did I really kill all those people in this town?” Li Huowang once again began to question himself. However, there was no need to answer this; only he would show mercy to someone who resembled a younger Yang Na.

At that moment, coupled with the effect of the pill, the charred Li Huowang screamed in agony, and the skies were split apart.

Everyone looked up toward the depths of the skies. Deep in the sky, in an unfathomably vast and dark abyss where countless black worlds and suns swirled around, there was something moving.

At the same time, everyone present felt their five senses starting to morph as they melded together. Their senses of sight, taste, smell, and hearing were all melded together into a brand-new perception that ordinary people would never be able to understand.

Only in this way could they truly “see” Ba-Hui.

“Finally!” Shou San shouted excitedly despite the almost materialistic fear that shrouded his body.

“Begin quickly! Everyone, get ready!” shouted Shou San.

Once those words were uttered, the other disciples who were sitting cross-legged around Li Huowang all began to mutilate themselves in various ways. At the same time, they all “looked” toward Ba-Hui in the skies, their eyes filled with a morbid longing.

Soon, red blood dripped down from their skins and began to form complex hook-shaped symbols on the ground. Slowly, the blood symbols coordinated with one another and formed a giant circle.

Just as the symbol circle was about to be completed, Li Huowang, who was in the center of the circle, gently raised his head. At the same time, all the blood symbols on the ground were lifted before slowly revolving around his body.

Ba-Hui had been summoned by Li Huowang, and so at least for now, he had momentarily obtained a portion of Ba-Hui's strength.

Seeing that their plans had been foiled, the six elders simultaneously glared at Li Huowang.

After a moment, Elder Yan Jianxi spoke first, "Young man, what are your intentions?"

Powerless, Li Huowang continued to kneel on the ground, his body swaying as though it could fall at any moment; there was no sign of vitality in his eyes.

Due to having endured extreme mental and physical agony, Li Huowang's heart was filled with the desire for death. At present, even thinking was very difficult for him; even so, he endured it and mumbled, "I've done my part... Now, it's your turn."

"Now? Are you mad? You must know how long we have waited for this moment?" shouted one of the Elders.

"Stop horsing around! Quickly return the blood symbols!" shouted another Elder.

"Who do you think you are?! You dare to threaten us?" shouted yet another Elder.

However, Li Huowang's outburst suppressed all their voices, "It must be now! I didn't get what we agreed on! So, don't even think about getting what you wanted!"

Even in his current state, Li Huowang was keenly aware of the fact that there was no friendship between him and the Ao Jing Sect. He was also a Strayed One. If he didn't take the opportunity to barter right now while he still held the upper hand, then there would be no room for negotiation once he no longer had Ba-Hui's strength.

“You guys can just kill me now! Then all your work this time around would have been for nothing! As long as... Help me get rid of Dan Yangzi! ...I won't care about what you do next!” Li Huowang used his remaining strength to state his conditions.

Then, his body began to tremble as his physical and mental agony started to spread outward in all directions.

At the same time, all the Ao Jing Sect disciples fell to the ground, shrieking miserably. This agony greatly surpassed the intensity of their usual self-mutilation.

When any existence is unable to endure the pain and suffering they are going through, they try to think of a way to escape. And so, all the Ao Jing Sect disciples took out various sorts of sharp weapons before pointing them toward their necks.

“Stop! We will help you get rid of Dan Yangzi now!” shouted one of the Elders.

When he heard this, a smile bloomed on the face of Li Huowang who had been quivering in agony.

At that moment, everyone had their attention focused on Li Huowang; nobody noticed Ba-Hui glancing at Li Huowang.

1. Their names are interestingly made up of sensory organs, senses, and an emotion. Yan Jianxi - Eye sees Joy, Er Tingnu - Ear hears Anger, Bi Xiulai - Nose smells Love, She Changshi - Tongue tastes Thought, Yi Jianyu - mind sees Desire, Shen Benyou - body touches Worry.

Chapter 130 - Death

Li Huowang quivered as he looked at the “six people” in the distance. In his eyes, they were currently undergoing some huge changes.

Their bodies were the same, but their facial organs had changed, becoming completely distorted and elongated as they rearranged themselves to look like fleshy mahjong tiles.

“Stop! We will help you get rid of Dan Yangzi now!” shouted one of the Elders.

When Li Huowang heard those words, he smiled even on the verge of collapse. However, this smile was just an instinctive response; his heart didn’t feel any sense of joy. Even though he should have been happy now, the excruciating pain that was tormenting him made him incapable of experiencing any sense of joy.

All his strength was focused on resisting his strong urge to die.

At that moment, still confused, Li Huowang saw the Elder whose head resembled Three Bamboos speak.

“Xuan Yang, keep your legs crossed! Then, place your hands on your dantian, and guard your heart!”

Hearing this, Li Huowang tried his best to follow the instructions while the blood symbols around him started to sway along.

At the same time, Li Huowang saw the six Elders approach him, and sit down in a circle around him, about three feet away.

As the six people started to speak, unexpectedly, they did not recite some cryptic commands or strange incantations. Instead, they started asking rhetorical questions, their voice reverberating heavily.

“What does it mean to be sitting in oblivion?”

“Abandoning the body, deposing intelligence, detaching from the form, and transcending knowledge; this is what it means to be sitting in oblivion!”

As they conversed, their clothes started to billow in the wind as they floated into the air. At the same time, the colors around them began to distort.

“No!” A voice with an unknown origin rang out, occupying their hearts, and turning everything around them dim and colorless.

“No!” The six Elders responded simultaneously, their voices magnified immensely.

At the same time, the cracked skies began to be covered by some form of dark clouds.

Li Huowang’s merged senses gradually returned to normal, yet something felt a little different than before.

“With sitting comes movement. With forgetting comes remembrance. Without sitting, one ceases to do labor. Without forgetting, one’s mind becomes calm. When labor continues, the spirit is tranquil. When thoughts do not cease, the heart finds peace!”

As the six Elders continued chanting, Li Huowang felt something and looked up. At that moment, he saw Dan Yangzi hidden amongst the black clouds.

This time around, Dan Yangzi had a different appearance from before. There was an umbilical cord-like translucent object extending from his abdomen and connecting him to Li Huowang’s body.

All three of Dan Yangzi’s heads turned toward Li Huowang; his six eyes held extreme hatred within them. “Evil disciple! Once again finding others to deal with your Master? Hmph! Do you think you can hide? Master has already attained Immortality!”

“Immortal... Immortal... Hehe...” Li Huowang was on the verge of collapse as he looked at those sickening tentacles connected to Dan Yangzi's body.

After a moment, Li Huowang took a deep breath and shouted toward Dan Yangzi, "Someone like you can also become an Immortal? Based on what? Does this place even have any justice!"

"Hmph! You are no better than me when it comes to the number of people we have killed! So who are you to say that?!" roared Dan Yangzi.

At that moment, Dan Yangzi's childlike head on his right shook slightly. He was holding a fleshy bronze sword with three tentacles, using that grotesque body to dash toward the six Elders below; he almost looked like an eagle diving down from the black clouds.

However, the six Elders completely ignored Dan Yangzi, pointing their hands toward Li Huowang. "Three flowers blooming is an illusion. Clouds under the feet are not real. One must eventually wake up from a dream, and all things are bound to return to dust."

As soon as those words rang out, Dan Yangzi, who was in the air, seemed like he was struck by a large mountain as he directly fell down while leaving behind an afterimage.

Then, Li Huowang who was bathed in flames, felt something abnormal within his stomach; it was as though something was stirring within him.

He had a feeling that it was very painful, but he could not feel anything.

All his attention was focused on the "umbilical cord" that linked him to Dan Yangzi; it was slowly becoming thicker and more corporeal. He had a feeling that he could even grab it with his own hands. In the end, he decided to reach out, and found that he really could touch it. And since even his own hands were on fire, that "umbilical cord" started to burn with a crisp sound.

"Im... impossible! I'm an Immortal now! Who dares to stop me?!” Dan Yangzi shouted as he struggled to stand up against the force pressing him to the ground.

Meanwhile, the six Elders sighed, and continued their chanting. “Form is adhered to, while the mind is lost. Reasons emerge and emotions cease. The Dao transcends color and taste. True nature is separated from desire. Perceive the subtleties and have faith. Listen without confusion, if someone sits in oblivion...”

Amidst their sometimes loud and sometimes soft chanting, Li Huowang found that everything around him was suddenly in the wrong positions. Originally, he had just been sitting cross-legged in the center of the group of Elders, but he was now suspended in mid-air sideways.

This change was not limited to just him; everyone was the same. Some of them even had half their bodies in the air, with the other half being in the ground.

However, compared to them, the changes that happened to Dan Yangzi were much greater. As the chanting continued, his entire body began to melt. Soon, his celestial belt fell weakly to the ground and was stained by the earthly mud.

“In the ultimate path, there is silence without existence. The divine uses are without form, and so is the heart and the body. From the source...”

As the chanting continued on and on, Li Huowang saw a trail of white smoke float out from the mahjong-patterned heads of each of the six Elders before intertwining and forming a rope that burrowed deep into the ground.

“This... impossible! I am an Immortal...!” These were Dan Yangzi’s final words.

After this last sentence, Dan Yangzi collapsed completely; everything about him turned into puffs of black clouds that floated into the skies. Before long, those black clouds had dissipated completely.

At almost the same time, Li Huowang began to vomit. With a belch, a mass of tentacles that had half a face entangled with it was expelled out.

The half-face that was entangled with the mass of tentacles belonged to Dan Yangzi; currently, it had turned pale and emitted an extremely foul stench. It was clearly lifeless.

As he looked at the half-face in front of him, Li Huowang looked as though he was in a dream.

As the half-face gradually started to turn into ashes, Li Huowang picked it up with trembling hands.

Dan Yangzi was gone. At this moment, the 'thing' that had always been scheming to assimilate with himself was gone.

However, Li Huowang did not feel the slightest bit of happiness. Rather, he felt empty inside his heart. At the same time, the intense physical and mental pain prevented him from thinking about other more complex emotions.

On the other hand, the six Elders around Li Huowang all looked at one another, and then once again pointed their fingers toward Li Huowang again. As they did, the hook-shaped blood symbols around him slowly faded before returning to the ground.

The dark clouds in the skies had dissipated, and with this, the extremely far and high Ba-Hui once again became like the sun that illuminated them all.

At that moment, Li Huowang froze in place, ignoring everything around him. He did not want to know what the six Elders were up to.

At this point, it was already hard for him to resist the urge to seek death.

Li Huowang did not know when he fainted; the last thing he saw was the charred remains of Dan Yangzi.

Chapter 131 - New

Lick~

A large tongue licked Li Huowang's reddened cheek, pulling off a large piece of his newly-grown skin. The intense pain caused by this was akin to being scrubbed by a steel brush, forcing Li Huowang to open his eyes.

Li Huowang looked around in a daze. He realized he was still in the ghost town; however, many of the buildings around him had collapsed. It seemed that a lot had happened after he had passed out last night.

At this moment, it was already daytime, and judging by the position of the sun, he had been lying here for the better part of a day.

“Mm~” Bun circled around Li Huowang and barked. It seemed like it wanted to approach him, yet was afraid to do so at the same time.

It was only at this moment that Li Huowang noticed something unusual about his body. Logically, given that those flames had burned him from the inside out last night, he should be completely and utterly dead. But he was very much alive right now. Not only that, his charred exterior had fallen off, and had been replaced by a thin layer of skin.

From the looks of it, my ability to recover from injuries has increased yet again. No, it's more than just that; it's a qualitative enhancement.

Li Huowang thought as he looked down at his flushed-red body. All the clothes he had been wearing had been burned away.

Fortunately, the Profound Records, his long sword, and those torture tools made of iron had not been damaged by the flames.

After a while, he stood up unsteadily; at this moment, even the gentle wind brushing against his body caused him to feel pain.

Completely bare, Li Huowang led a dog and wandered through the entire ghost town. After circling around a few times, he found some new clothes in an abandoned clothing store that was filled with cobwebs.

After he passed by the counter that was manned by a headless skeleton, he found himself a green Daoist robe to wear. At the same time, he also tore off a large piece of fabric to wrap up the items he was carrying around.

His newly-grown delicate skin was damaged quite easily by the rough fabric, causing “peach blossoms” to start blooming on his robes.

Currently, his flesh and his skin were just stuck together. Every time he moved, it felt like a knife was scraping against his body; it was akin to torture.

He soon found a long bench in the store and sat down on it, still trembling. He had decided to patiently wait for his skin to heal completely.

As time passed, the entire clothing store grew darker. Within this gradually darkening environment, the old clothes hanging from the rafters seemed like rows of hanged ghosts.

At that moment, a gentle breeze seemed to blow past from nowhere, causing those clothes to start swaying gently and give the room an eerie feeling to it.

“Woof! Woof woof!” Bun barked at the swaying clothes before timidly cowering under Li Huowang’s bench.

“Shh, don’t bark. There are no ghosts in this world. When people die, they are gone. Otherwise, they would have come to claim my life a long time ago,” murmured Li Huowang as he stroked Bun’s head.

Bun gradually quieted down and started licking Li Huowang’s palm with its tongue.

Unexpectedly, Li Huowang's skin was once again pulled off by this. Due to this, Bun did not dare lick anymore, and looked at Li Huowang remorsefully.

However, Li Huowang did not bother with his injuries; instead, he began to examine Bun's condition. First, he carefully pressed down at the abdominal region where Bun had been kicked.

The blood stains around Bun's mouth proved that it was indeed injured. However, it had still managed to make its way down from the mountain, and to the town, suggesting that its injuries were not too severe.

If Yingzi had really wanted to kill the dog, it would have been quite easy for her to do so. There was only one explanation for why Bun had not died—she wasn't truly evil. She did not want to kill Bun, even if its owner was her enemy.

"Yingzi..." In the dimly-lit clothing store, Li Huowang stared at the swaying clothes with a blank look.

At this moment, he was thinking of many things.

Suddenly, he ignored the pain from his skin and stood up.

Then, Li Huowang walked over to the headless store owner of the clothing store, picked up his body and carried him outside.

Today, that sharp sword of his was once again used as a shovel to dig a hole.

After he was done, Li Huowang went back into the clothing store to find the skull of the store owner. Then, he arranged the skull and the headless skeleton inside the pit, before covering it up with soil.

He dismantled a door frame with the intent to carve something on it, yet found that he had long since forgotten how to write. In the end, he used the tip of his sword to carve a design that resembled a pair of clothes, and stuck it before the grave.

Next, Li Huowang turned around and walked into another house before carrying out the skeletons of a mother and her daughter.

One by one, he buried the skeletons, and erected makeshift tombstones with designs.

As his skin had not yet healed completely, it was once again torn apart due to the constant friction between the clothes and his skin. With his heightened senses of pain, this level of pain was almost on the level of death by a thousand cuts.

However, Li Huowang did not hesitate at all. The more pain his body felt, the clearer his conscience would feel.

As Li Huowang constantly moved, the robes on his body gradually turned a crimson red once again.

When Li Huowang entered another house, he was momentarily stunned upon encountering a bamboo cradle.

For a moment, he was hesitant, not daring to approach it.

“Hehe... compared to you, am I not a Saint?” At that moment, a familiar voice rang out in his ears almost like thunder.

Immediately, he turned around, only to see the three-headed Dan Yangzi standing atop the rubble of another house.

At that moment, as he looked at the three heads smiling mockingly at him, Li Huowang felt like he had been dropped in a cave of ice.

After just a moment, Li Huowang moved. He completely ignored Dan Yangzi who was standing opposite him, and instead turned to walk toward the mountain in the distance.

He started off with a slow walk, which turned into a jog, and then finally into a full blown sprint as he gritted his teeth. All along the way, a trail of blood dripped down from his body.

“Explain this! What the heck is going on?! Why is Dan Yangzi still around?!” roared Li Huowang.

Within a bright cave, a group of disciples from Ao Jing Sect watched as Li Huowang panted heavily, his face full of blood. At this moment, he was facing a wall with several large caves as shouted loudly.

After a moment, an elderly voice rang out from one of the caves, “Little friend, everything between us is over. Your Master has been expelled, and we can’t see any trace of him on yourself.”

Hearing this, Li Huowang’s pupils shrank, and then he pointed toward a particular direction with a trembling finger. “Then tell me what that is? What is that?! Are all of you blind? What nonsense?! His influence on me is even greater now! He can appear at any moment! That thing had not been eradicated at all!”

Suddenly, Li Huowang paused and seemed to see something else as he sucked in a breath of cold air. “No! Even Jiang Yingzi is here! She is standing right beside Dan Yangzi!”

These words bewildered the members of the Ao Jing Sect. Even Li Huowang himself felt that something was amiss.

Dan Yangzi could exist because of his cultivation to Immortality, but what about Jiang Yingzi? She did not practice cultivation!

Li Huowang continued to stare fixedly at the woman who was covered in mangled flesh and had a few limbs missing, his mind buzzing continuously.

Currently, her eyes were filled with intense hatred as she locked eyes with him.

“Little friend, we had already told you that we would only deal with your Master, and not with those strange illusions of you Strayed Ones; we cannot do anything about them.”

Chapter 132 - True Or False?

“Illusions of the Strayed Ones?” Li Huowang mumbled as he stared at Jiang Yingzi and Dan Yangzi; he could still see them in the distance.

One was a three-headed deformed creature draped in celestial silks, and the other was a naked girl with grotesque scars all over her body. They just stood in place, both of them gazing at him with a mixture of hatred and amusement.

The two of them appeared to be so real that Li Huowang could not tell whether they really existed, or whether they were illusions. Trembling, he lifted his right foot to approach them, but found that he could not do so.

Every time he took a step forward, the two figures would move back accordingly.

However, they were not moving on their own; it was more like they would always remain at this specific distance from Li Huowang.

“Little friend Xuan Yang?” asked a voice.

Only after the voice from the cave echoed a few times did Li Huowang finally come to his senses.

After a while, a voice rang out from the cave; Li Huowang recognised that the voice belonged to the square-faced Elder Shen Benyou and that it carried a hint of complex emotions. “Little friend, you don’t look too well.”

“I’m fine, I’m fine,” Li Huowang replied subconsciously.

However, before he could continue, he fell silent.

He immediately realized that he had misspoken.

How could he possibly be fine? He had a lot more problems now.

This was not just related to Dan Yangzi and Jiang Yingzi appearing in the distance, but also about what he had become now. Nobody could guarantee that there wouldn't be any more of these apparitions appearing before he resolved this issue.

"Little friend, are you alright? Isn't it natural for a Strayed One to always have difficulty distinguishing between reality and illusion?" asked Elder Shen Benyou. "Since you have survived into your adulthood, you should have become used to it by now. Why are you still so surprised?"

Li Huowang swallowed his saliva with difficulty, then took a deep breath to focus and arrange his thoughts. After contemplating for a long time and reluctantly digesting all this information, he spoke again, "Elder, I have heard that Abbess Jingxin's son came here before. He is also a Strayed One. Can you tell me if he also had similar symptoms back then?"

Elder Shen Benyou paused for a long time before he answered. "Ah, it's really hard to guess. In general, Strayed Ones tend to be a bit crazy. I once heard him referring to himself as a ship."

Before Li Huowang could ask another question, a rough voice sounded from another dark cave within the wall. "I know about this matter. That person often woke up in the middle of the night, screaming that the Three Pure Ones were staring at him. Not long after, he turned into a complete lunatic."

"Three Pure Ones? What is that?" Li Huowang questioned.

Beside him, Shou San quickly replied, "Seen but unseen; Colorless. Heard but unheard; Soundless. Can be reached, but is still unreachable; Bodiless. Colorless, Soundless, Bodiless. One becomes three, and three unite as one. This is the Three Pure Ones. Daoists of various sects to the south worship the Three Pure Ones. I've only ever heard of them and never seen them. Something that is even more unheard of is the fact that the Three Pure Ones can watch people.”

Li Huowang was somewhat baffled upon hearing these words. The other party's symptoms did not seem to be similar to his.

After a moment, Elder Shen Benyou's voice once again rang out from within the cave, “That person clearly came here on his own, but Abbess Jingxin from Benevolent Nunnery always assumed that it was us who drove him insane due to there being some past conflicts between us. It was an unjustifiable disaster. Little friend, these few days, you've also seen how we do things. Have we done anything that was against the rules? Under the heavens, breaking the rules is a great taboo.”

However, Li Huowang did not pay attention to what he said; his mind was simply a mess right now. After a while, he said, “Then... is there any solution to my situation?”

“Haha, you must be joking, little friend. It would truly be great if we had a solution. Strayed Ones often have hard lives. After all, they can never be truly understood by anybody. If one day, someone tells you that they have a way to heal you, little friend, then remember to be cautious. It's highly likely that they want to harm you instead. You should know about this yourself, right? Strayed Ones are beings that are very desirable to many. Many seek them out to refine them into pills, or to use them for cultivation techniques to enhance their own cultivation.”

After listening to all this, Li Huowang realized he was still very unfamiliar with his own body.

The name ‘Strayed One’ carried too many meanings.

He stood on the spot for a long time, lost in thought. After a while, he first looked toward the two people in the distance, and then at the silent Ao Jing Sect disciples around him.

At least Dan Yangzi won't try to take over me anymore. That should be a good thing, right?

Li Huowang consoled himself bitterly.

Then, he clasped his hands together and faced the caves, “Thank you, Elders, for enlightening me. We’ll meet again if fate wills it.”

Having said that, Li Huowang reached out and patted Bun’s head. Then, he began to make his way back with Dan Yangzi and Jiang Yingzi following right after him.

After a while, he returned to the desolate town in a daze; there, he stared at the two figures dazedly. At that moment, the two illusions started to speak at the same time.

“Kid, I’ve truly become Immortal now. As long as you continue to help your Master achieve enlightenment, everything that happened in the past can be forgiven.”

“Why aren’t you dead?! Why are you still alive, you murderous devil?!”

However, no matter what they said, or how close they were, they never came in direct contact with Li Huowang.

“Hehe... at least it’s more lively now. I’m no longer alone,” mumbled Li Huowang. He did not know whether his current situation was better than before, or worse; the only thing that he knew was that he had to keep moving forward, no matter what.

Li Huowang picked up the sword that was stuck in the ground, and continued to dig graves for the other skeletons in the town.

Meanwhile, Jiang Yingzi dragged her broken body and came beside Li Huowang, shouting at him with endless hatred, “Do you think that everything you did can be brushed away just because you are giving them a burial? They were all killed by you! If you really want to atone for your sins, then you should take your own life! Otherwise, everything you do will be in vain! Li Huowang, why don’t you go and die! Why pretend to be a Saint? Just hurry up and die!”

Li Huowang continued to remain silent; under Jiang Yingzi’s piercing insults, he just continued to dig one grave after another.

Meanwhile, back in the Ao Jing Sect's cave, Elder Shen Benyou's voice rang out, "Shou San, Tou Qi, you guys can disperse. If he comes back again, then just block him at the mountain gate. We have no further connection with him."

"Yes, Elder Shen Benyou," replied the charred Shou San as he bowed respectfully. Then, he brought the other Ao Jing Sect's members away from the meditation area of the elders.

Not long after, everything turned quiet, leaving only the wall with six caves.

At that moment, a sharp female voice suddenly broke the silence. "Hehe... that Strayed One actually believed it... he believed it all! San Tiao, your method really worked!"

Once this voice rang out, it seemed like a switch had been flipped. The wall filled with black caves suddenly came to life and all kinds of laughter rang out—some sharp, some sinister, some mocking and some light. The joy contained in all those types of laughter soon filled the entire cave.

Chapter 133 - On The Way

Shivering, Lu Xiucan was awakened by the extreme cold. He groggily looked toward the campfire only to discover that it was nearly extinguished. He glanced over at Puppy with a gaze filled with displeasure; Puppy was responsible for keeping watch right now. This fellow with a sharp mouth and puffy cheeks was already nodding off. It seemed like he had been fast asleep for a while already.

However, Lu Xiucan dared not go over and berate him; his father had given him strict instructions previously.

These people were their future escorts. Thus, they couldn't have any confrontation with them if they wanted to continue traveling together; he had to be careful about his interactions with them.

After a moment, Lu Xiucan got up unhappily and added more firewood to the campfire before crawling back into his blanket.

Just as he closed his eyes, he felt his father poking him with his tobacco pipe. "Kid, wake up and go fetch some water from the river. It's getting bright soon."

Hearing this, Lu Xiucan groaned, and covered his head with the blanket.

However, the next moment, the pipe was no longer just poking him, and was instead tapping him. "Hurry up! All you do is laze around! At this rate, you're going to turn into a lazy bum soon enough. Nobody would be interested in marrying a lazy bum!"

The sun gradually rose, as did the surrounding people.

Bai Lingmiao rubbed her eyes and sat up from Chun Xiaoman's warm embrace, looking around. Her face revealed disappointment when she did not find that familiar face.

Next, she looked up into the distance and saw the mountains shrouded in mist.

According to Abbess Jingxin, Li Huowang's destination was there. If they did not find him on the way, they could only head to the mountains to ask around.

She pulled her feet out from the blanket before putting on her shoes. They couldn't afford to remain hungry; they had to continue on their journey. At the same time, they couldn't just use up all their available food, and had to be frugal with its usage. Increasing their complementary food options was one way to save on their rations. And so, she, Xiaoman and Lu Zhuangyuan's daughter-in-law had decided to go into the forest to pick some wild vegetables.

Since this was the transition period between spring and summer, the woods were rather abundant with wild vegetables. In just a short while, Bai Lingmiao's basket was filled with Solomon's seals, wild onions and some wood ear mushrooms.

On their way back, they passed by a patch of mushrooms, but did not pick any.

After the past few days of practice, Bai Lingmiao could identify most of the wild vegetables. However, mushrooms were risky. They could be deadly if handled incorrectly. She didn't dare to pick them, even if they appeared normal and seemingly safe to consume.

By the time she brought the washed wild vegetables back to the bonfire, she saw that the dough was already being cooked by the responsible young boy, Yang Xiaohai. The pieces of dough were rolling in the boiling water like tadpoles.

"Yang Xiaohai, let the adults handle these things," said Bai Lingmiao as she grabbed small handfuls of wild vegetables and placed them into the pot.

"It's alright, Senior Bai. I enjoy cooking, hehe," replied Yang

Xiaohai.

The wild vegetables were cooked quite quickly. After that, a spoonful of lard was melted into the pot, and a hearty bowl of wild vegetables and fish dumplings was ready to be served.

The bunch of them held their bowls and ate heartily.

At the start, when the two groups met, they often prepared their own meals. But after a few days, they found it to be way too troublesome and time-consuming. Finally, Lu Zhuangyuan suggested sharing a communal pot, with each side contributing one meal.

Slurp~

Lu Zhuangyuan inhaled a dumpling into his mouth, then munched on it as he asked, "Miss Bai, did the young Daoist really come this way? I hope we haven't taken a wrong turn."

"It's the correct direction. Abbess Jingxin told us that Senior Li could have only gone through this route. After all, there is no other way to reach his destination," replied Bai Lingmiao confidently.

She was the first to notice something was amiss when Li Huowang had told all of them to leave. When he talked to her, his face was no longer gloomy; it was as though he had come to some sort of realization. It was quite an unsettling feeling, and she felt inexplicably afraid every time she thought about it.

And precisely because of that, she had hurried the others along. Even so, they still couldn't meet him.

That was how they happened to have a chance encounter with the Lu Family Troupe as they rushed in the direction that Li Huowang had departed in.

Senior Li, please be safe.

"As long as he's fine. I'm just asking." Lu Zhuangyuan had a smile on his face.

Though he was smiling, on the inside he felt quite anxious. He had left the Qi Kingdom to escape the calamity brought about by the war with the confidence of relying on Li Huowang. Now, they had bumped into everyone besides him. After being on the journey for so long, he had still not seen his reliable escort, and so he could not help but be worried.

The large pot of vegetables and fish dumplings was quickly emptied, with not even a drop of soup being left behind. It was too wasteful to pour the soup away as there was even some usable grease in it.

After having their fill, they once again resumed their journey.

Traveling on the road was boring, and the days passed uneventfully. Aside from the distant mountains becoming a little clearer, there were no other significant changes.

As the night approached, Bai Lingmiao seemed to notice faint light on the distant mountains.

Have the people on the mountain seen Senior Li? Master said these people are dangerous. Could he be in trouble?

That night, Bai Lingmiao used the light from the fire to mend her shoes. They were on the move every day, and it was normal for their shoes to be worn out.

Apart from Zhao Wu, who was on night watch, everyone else soon fell asleep. Compared to the bustling daytime, everything around them had quieted down.

“Zhijian, your shoes are worn out as well. Take them off and let me mend them,” said Bai Lingmiao to the big guy who was holding an iron rod.

“Uh... uh... Smelly!” Gao Zhijian moved his feet backward.

“It’s alright, take them off. See, your toes are already starting to peek through. If you don’t fix them now, they will soon fall apart,” said Bai Lingmiao.

After some hesitation, he was about to take off his shoes. However, he suddenly grabbed the iron rod with both hands and shouted toward the forest on his right.

This loud shout startled everyone. When they awoke, they immediately understood the reason behind Gao Zhijian's shout.

A certain sound could be heard from the dark woods. It was a crunching and nibbling sound, along with some sort of eerie howling noises.

Everyone was horrified to hear such sounds in the middle of the forests at night.

"This... is this another spiritual possession? How can I be so unlucky this year! Again?" Lu Zhuangyuan grumbled as he put on his clothes.

He then turned toward Bai Lingmiao and clasped his hands together, "You guys are the juniors of that Daoist. You should be able to deal with such a situation, right?"

As he spoke, the sounds seemed to approach even closer, seemingly like they were just coming from the shrubbery next to them.

The atmosphere became tense, and everyone picked up their weapons.

At that moment, the shrubbery beside them suddenly moved and a red-veiled woman stepped out.

"Gosh! A female ghost!" Seeing this, Lu Xiucui was so scared that he directly crawled under the carriage.

"What's going on? What is it?" Bai Lingmiao asked the Second Deity.

However, the Second Deity did not say anything, instead raising her long black nails as she gestured for Bai Lingmiao to come closer.

Translator's Thoughts

Lu Juren! Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 134 - Found

"What's there?" asked Bai Lingmiao, about to head toward the Second Deity. However, she was pulled back by Xiaoman.

"Be careful, don't go there," said Xiaoman.

Bai Lingmiao thought for a moment, glanced at the Second Deity who was at the edge of the forest, and then said, "It's okay. There shouldn't be any danger."

As they saw Bai Lingmiao directly walk over like that, everyone grew worried. They all raised their torches before following along.

When they reached the Second Deity's side, they finally understood where the sounds had been coming from.

In the light of the torches, they saw a person dancing wildly in the forest.

"Mom, I can eat on my own; you don't need to feed me. The IV on my hand is also fine."

Covered in dust, Li Huowang sat on the ground covered in dry leaves while smiling at a spider web on the tree. He held a long piece of stone in his hand, biting it over and over. One could hear a constant cracking sound, and his mouth was flowing with blood.

"Mom, I swallowed it, I really did. I'm not a child, so there's no need for you to worry about me being picky. Hehe," said Li Huowang.

"Woo~ woo~" Bun circled around Li Huowang while constantly wagging its tail. It was the source of the howling sound from earlier.

"Senior Li!" Bai Lingmiao could not help but cry out upon seeing his pitiful state. She unconsciously took a few steps forward, but then forcibly stopped herself. "Quick, get a rope and tie Senior Li up. He'll be fine in a while!"

After some time, Li Huowang opened his eyes to a familiar tear-stained face. He showed an extremely exhausted smile as he asked, "You guys came? How did you even find me?"

Bai Lingmiao was choked with emotion as she held Li Huowang's head tightly in her arms. Even though she didn't say anything, her deep emotions were conveyed through her actions.

Seeing this, Li Huowang felt warmth in his heart while an unfamiliar emotion rose within him.

Is this... joy? I haven't felt this in a long time...

He reached out and patted her back. After some thought, he decided to give a vague explanation, "I... I went to figure some things out, and finished dealing with some trouble. How did you all get here?"

Li Huowang did not want the others to know about what he had been through or what he had done in the past.

After a warm conversation, everyone gradually fell silent.

Beside the campfire on the dark forest path, Li Huowang took a sip of hot soup. It helped to warm his stomach, and also cleared out the taste of blood from his mouth. While the inside of his mouth was all torn up, he knew that these wounds would heal quickly.

After a while, Li Huowang gently squeezed Bai Lingmiao's smooth right arm, and once again reassured her, "It's alright. The trouble is over now. We can continue our journey home."

Li Huowang looked at everyone surrounding him and saw the concern in their eyes. He knew that there were still some people in this world who genuinely cared about him.

He raised his hand as he thanked all of them. "All of you have worked hard. Thank you for your hard work."

He didn't specify what he was thanking them for. Some things were better when kept within; there was no need to say everything out loud.

At that moment, Lu Zhuangyuan, who was sitting on the right side of Dan Yangzi, spoke with a flattering smile, "Oh my, what are you saying? We only did what we should have. Anyway, what happened to you earlier? Were you possessed? How come you were eating stones? Was there some kind of evil spirit?"

Li Huowang already knew why the Lu Family Troupe had come; however, he didn't care about these small matters. He shook his head and pointed to his own head with a bitter smile. "My brain has some problems. Don't worry; it's nothing serious."

At this point, Puppy who had been squatting beside Jiang Yingzi, widened his eyes and asked, "Senior Li, are you really alright? You won't crawl into someone's belly and eat your way out from the inside in the future, right?"

As soon as he uttered those words, the faces of Lu Zhuangyuan and the others turned green with shock.

Zhao Wu punched him on the waist as he quickly tried to defuse the situation. "What the heck are you talking about in front of outsiders? When has our Senior Li eaten others? That was when he was ill, and thought that he had eaten someone."

"Ah~ right, right. I'm so pig-headed; how come I keep remembering things incorrectly," Puppy realized that he had misspoken and tried to cover up.

However, this wasn't quite enough to reassure Lu Zhuangyuan and the others. They all tried to put on a brave facade.

"Enough, stop pretending. Some things have happened, and there's no need to conceal anything," Li Huowang clarified the situation. "Troupe Leader Lu, I'll be honest. I have done many wicked things in the past, which I won't explain further. All I can say is that all that was against my wishes. If you are worried that it might bring harm to your family, then let's part ways amicably. However, if you don't mind it, then you can stay for as long as you want. We are friends, and I will ensure your safety."

"Ah, what are you saying? Is this old man so snobbish? I trust your character. There must be some difficult reasons behind all this,” Lu Zhuangyuan put on a smile before quickly pouring out another bowl of hot soup. This old man will use this as a substitute for wine to compensate you. Who said we’re leaving? Whoever leaves is a bastard!”

Hearing this, Li Huowang raised his own bowl to Lu Zhuangyuan, and then took a sip.

It didn’t really matter to Li Huowang whether they left or not. What he needed to consider now was what his next steps would be.

After some consideration, Li Huowang addressed everyone before him, “Everyone, we’ve been delayed by these matters for far too long. Fortunately, all the problems have been resolved now. And so, we will resume our journey and leave the Kingdom of Si Qi tomorrow.”

As long as he sent all these people back to their homes safely, he would feel much less burdened, and it would also be a lot more convenient to do what he needed to in the future.

“Senior Li, we can’t leave yet. The Abbess told us that if we found you, we had to report to them that you are safe,” explained Bai Lingmiao.

“There’s no need to take a detour merely for this. Just write a letter and send it through a relay station,” said Li Huowang. Since his problem had been resolved, there was no need to make another trip to the Benevolent Nunnery; while it wasn’t very far, it wasn’t that close either.

“No, the Abbess asked for you to come see her in person. It seemed like she had something she wanted to tell you face-to-face,” said Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang furrowed his brow.

Face-to-face? Seems like it’s not something as simple as reporting my safety. Does the Abbess have something else that she needs to tell me about?

After some consideration, Li Huowang handed the bowl in his hands to Bai Lingmiao. "Alright, let's go back to Henghua Mountain. It's also a good opportunity to get an overall picture of what's going on now."

Ever since coming to this wretched place, he had been rushing all along, and had never had time to figure out what was going on.

How many sects there were, how extensive was their influence, and what he should avoid when dealing with them. If they were to continue with their journey, then he had to get a better understanding of these matters.

Translator's Thoughts

Lu Juren's wife, Luo Juanhua! Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 135 - Beneath The Mountain

In the small town at the base of Henghua Mountain.

It seemed to be the first time that Bun had met so many people, and so it didn't leave Li Huowang's side for even a moment.

After a tiring journey, everyone was exhausted and in need of rest.

Even though the Benevolent Nunnery was right before them, unlike before, Li Huowang was no longer in a hurry. Since that oppressive feeling where he felt like he could be replaced by Dan Yangzi at any moment was now gone, he could finally take it easy.

Li Huowang used his somewhat tired eyes to look around. The town at the base of the mountain was the same as before. Even though it wasn't a market day, perhaps due to the fact that it was a transportation hub, there were many people going to and fro.

The only difference was the increase in the number of beggars squatting by the walls. When the ragged-looking beggars saw their horse-drawn carriages, they quickly approached them before raising their broken bowls and starting to sing.

"Come gather 'round, see the poor beggar's plea~ Oh kind sir, won't you lend an ear to me~? Have a heart and let compassion take its toll~ A bun, some soup, may you live a life whole!"

Jiang!

At that moment, a long sword was drawn, causing the beggars to scatter like frightened birds.

"Three bamboos!" said a voice.

Pa!

Hearing the voice and the sound, Li Huowang subconsciously looked toward the source.

“Pong! Six characters~”

“Aiya~ what kind of hand is this, nine dots again.”

“Ah~ Haha! A self-drawn pure suit~ Hahaha, pay up!”

The mahjong parlor was quite lively and bustling with people; almost every seat was occupied, and you could constantly hear the sounds of the dice and mahjong tiles clashing. It could be seen that everyone was having fun.

“Oh, they are playing mahjong,” remarked Li Huowang before continuing onward.

After walking for a while, they arrived at the inn they had previously stayed at.

As Li Huowang stepped into the inn, he said to the oncoming waiter, “We need both accommodation and a meal. Tell your chef to prepare some hearty dishes, but no pork.”

“Ah~ Alright, dear guest, please come in~”

“Senior Li, while we do have ample money, we are spending without an income. Perhaps we should be a little more frugal,” Bai Lingmiao voiced her concern at Li Huowang’s extravagance.

Li Huowang sat at the seat of the host and sipped the tea that was offered to them by the attendant, and then said, “It’s alright, let’s celebrate a little. It’s not like we eat like this every day.”

“You beast! You still have the nerve to eat?! Have you ever thought about the people who died because of you?! Why don’t you go and die?!” shouted Jiang Yingzi.

However, despite Jiang Yingzi’s insults, Li Huowang remained completely unfazed as he continued to address the others, “Wait here after we finish the meal. The Benevolent Nunnery is quite dirty. I’ll be back soon.”

Initially, he had found it hard to accept his new companions.

As time passed, Li Huowang was able to completely adapt to the presence of a long-dead ghost shouting in his ear. After all,

Jiang Yingzi could only resort to incessant cursing, which could really affect Li Huowang.

On the other hand, Dan Yangzi often stood in the distance, watching him creepily.

After a few simple tests, Li Huowang had discovered that they were indeed just illusions, and could not actually affect him.

He did not know how long such a situation would last for, or whether others would appear in the future. But for now, this situation was a lot easier to accept than being taken over by Dan Yangzi.

“Hehe, the dishes are here~ Green Dragon Emerges from the Sea~ Twin Dragons Chasing the Pearl~ Three Suns Prosperity~ Fortune in the Eastern Sea~ Dear guests, please enjoy~ Other delicacies will also arrive shortly~” said the waiter as he brought in their dishes.

Seeing all these dishes, Lu Xiucan started salivating. Just as he was about to pick up his chopsticks, he was tapped by Lu Zhuangyuan’s tobacco pipe.

After stopping his son, Lu Zhuangyuan smiled flatteringly and said, “Young Daoist, please eat first. You’ve had a tough trip, so let this meal be our treat.”

Surprised, Li Huowang glanced at him, and then picked up his chopsticks as he began eating; he couldn’t be bothered with such trivial matters.

At the same time, he had a feeling that in his presence, the Lu Family Troupe was a lot more restrained.

After having traveled for so long, everyone was hungry. Bai Lingmiao and Gao Zhijian both had large appetites, and quickly wiped clean the dishes on the table, as well as two more barrels of rice.

Bun wasn’t left hungry either; it was given all the leftover bones.

After a satisfying meal that included plenty of wine, Li Huowang drank another mouthful of tea and got up. Once he picked up his belongings, he walked out of the inn, "I'm leaving. I should be back before nightfall."

As soon as it heard him, Bun, who had been gnawing on a bone under the table, picked it up and followed after him.

Once Li Huowang left, Lu Juren put down his clean bowl and chopsticks, then stepped before Lu Zhuangyuan and cleared his throat. "Dad, come with me."

After a while, they arrived at the quiet stable behind the inn. Then, Lu Juren leaned against a black horse that was eating some beans before whispering nervously, "Dad! Why aren't we leaving?! Are you really planning to go with them! Did you forget—"

At that moment, he glanced around to check that there was nobody else around before continuing, "Did you forget what they said that night? That's not a person—that's a demon! Those Daoist robes of his are stained red due to blood! Aren't you afraid that someday he'll eat us as well?"

Hearing this, the wrinkled Lu Zhuangyuan retrieved his tobacco pipe before taking a deep puff. "Perhaps... Perhaps the Daoist has some difficulties?"

"What kind of difficulties can there be to explain doing things like that?! Ah, Dad! You've started to become muddle-headed!"

"Hey! Are you asking for a beating?! What do you mean muddle-headed?!" said Lu Zhuangyuan as he raised his tobacco pipe into the air.

Faced with Lu Zhuangyuan's raised pipe, Lu Juren, who had always been honest, did not dodge it like he normally would. Instead, he stared at his father stubbornly. "For a moment, let's forget about ourselves! But what about your granddaughter Cui'er? The storytellers often say that demons like to eat children! Can you bear to place Cui'er in such danger?"

Upon hearing this, Lu Zhuangyuan could no longer retort, which was quite unlike him. After a while, he once again took a deep puff causing the tobacco inside his pipe to start glowing brightly. "Son, I understand what you're saying. But haven't you noticed it? Something has been amiss throughout this journey. I know what's going on. Originally, it just started out with there being more beggars by the roadside. It doesn't seem like much, but it won't be long before people even start selling out their own children. The world is slowly descending into chaos. Right now, we're fleeing on our own, and that makes us easy pickings for anyone who wants to have a tasty morsel. On the other hand, following the Daoist at least gives us some safety against the ordinary outlaws and their schemes. Your dad has lived for a long time, and can judge people quite accurately. The Daoist is not that kind of evil person. Though he may possess formidable powers, his character is not immoral. He cannot commit such heinous acts."

"But..."

"There's no 'buts'. Let's stick with the plan. Earlier, I noticed that your wife didn't really eat much. That's unusual for her, and she even has the urge to vomit quite often. Take her to a physician; I have a feeling that she might be pregnant."

Translator's Thoughts

Yang Xiaohai, Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 136 - Sword

"Hoo~ hoo~" Li Huowang panted heavily as he climbed the mountain. The oil-paper bags he was carrying in his hand swayed with his difficult ascent.

The mountain path leading up Henghua Mountain was incredibly difficult to traverse. It didn't have proper steps, and it was still quite unbearable even after the trips he had made before. His clothes were soaked with sweat, and his tender skin was chafed to the point that it was painful.

"Woof! Woof woof!!" Bun had already reached the mountain gate of Benevolent Nunnery and was wagging its tail at its owner.

When Li Huowang finally arrived at the gate with great effort, he noticed that Bun had been patiently waiting for him. Dogs had much better stamina than humans.

"Why are you following me? Go back!" Li Huowang's words were obviously not understood by Bun. The dog shook its head and wagged its tail before approaching Li Huowang and affectionately licking his fingers.

After taking a break near the couplet written in Women's Script at the mountain gate, Li Huowang caught his breath, covered his nose, and started walking toward the roof-less temple in the distance.

Benevolent Nunnery was still the same as ever—dirty, smelly, and in ruins.

The swamp of half-rotten food in the nunnery had lessened a lot. It was unknown whether it was eaten or had just rotten away.

"Why did you bring your dog up? The feces in the nunnery are used to feed the pigs, not your dog," said Miao Yu warily as she approached Li Huowang.

"Sister, is Abbess Jingxin here?" asked Li Huowang as he patted Bun's head.

Miao Yu was about to speak, but then a greedy expression appeared on her face, "Give me some of the snacks in your hands, and I'll tell you."

"I'm afraid that won't do," Li Huowang smiled and clasped his hands together toward her before turning toward Abbess Jingxin's residence. He made several turns through the dilapidated nunnery, and found his destination.

The wall that had been torn down earlier had been rebuilt. Li Huowang could see Abbess Jingxin inside the room.

At present, she had once again returned to her original state. The only things that had changed were her two dark eye sockets, and her mouth which had receded inward due to being toothless.

"Ah~ Green bean cakes! Are they from the Prosperity Bakery down the mountain? Their green bean cakes are the best. And so are their sweetheart cakes, and their red bean paste mooncakes," exclaimed Jingxin.

Li Huowang just watched as Jingxin lugged her skin folds and crawled over, using her black hands as support. Once she reached him, he handed the snacks over to her.

He could see that Abbess Jingxin didn't have any teeth as she grabbed the bag of snacks. Then, without even peeling off the brown paper packaging, she started chewing on it with her red gums.

Seeing this, Li Huowang reached his hand into her mouth to remove the oil paper, and said, "Abbess, thank you for your guidance before. If not for your help, I would likely be dead already."

However, Abbess Jingxin did not stop at all, focusing all her attention on the snacks as she stuffed her mouth full of food.

Li Huowang continued to wait patiently as he watched Abbess

Jingxin enjoy her snacks. This bag of green bean cakes weighed about 3.5 pounds. Normal people would take a long time to finish it, but it was not at all challenging for the Abbess.

When only a few pieces were left, Abbess Jingxin reluctantly stopped. Then, she used the paper bags to rearrange the green bean cakes as she placed them aside.

“Is your Master gone? Let me take a look,” said Abbess Jingxin as she reached out her hands toward Li Huowang.

After she carefully examined his abdomen, she withdrew her hands. “Ah, looks like you are right; your Master is indeed not around anymore. Those fellows from the Ao Jing Sect can still be considered useful.”

Hearing this, Li Huowang glanced at Dan Yangzi who was nearby and nodded in agreement, “Indeed. Thank you, Abbess, for your help.”

“Since you’re thanking me, how come you didn’t buy more snacks? Was this 3.5 pounds of snacks for me to put in between my teeth?” She said with some displeasure as she picked up the remaining cakes and sniffed them greedily. Then, she directly stuffed them in between the folds of her skin.

“Alright, I’ll bring more on my next visit,” reassured Li Huowang.

“Good! You better keep your word! I’ll remember it. The thing that I hate the most is when people don’t keep their promises, especially when it comes to matters related to food,” said Jingxin.

The tone of their conversation had clearly become much friendlier than before.

“Right, Abbess, you instructed Junior Bai to have me pay you a visit. Do you have any instructions?” Li Huowang asked.

Hearing this question, Jingxin fell silent for a long time before asking, “Where’re you going next?”

“Sending my juniors home.”

“And after that?”

“To look for a way to resolve my issues as a Strayed One,” Li Huowang spoke calmly, his tone brimming with determination.

Jingxin was not the slightest bit surprised at Li Huowang’s reply. “You sure are stubborn. Go on then; maybe you’ll turn around after you end up hitting a dead end.”

“We can speak about that when I hit the dead end. If I’m forever stuck between reality and hallucination, then it’s not much better than being dead.”

“Hmm, spoken well, spoken well...”

Li Huowang’s heart was stirred when he saw her reaction. “Abbess, do you have any guidance on how to break free of the condition of a Strayed One?”

“What guidance can I provide? If I could, then my son wouldn’t have gone crazy. However, I won’t stop you if you want to go down this road. How about this? I’ll sell you a weapon for self-defense during your journey,” offered Jingxin as she pointed toward a dark corner of her room.

“Weapon?” Li Huowang looked toward the dark corner pointed by Jingxin. There, lying in the corner was a longsword.

Li Huowang walked over and extended his arm to grasp the sword, only to find that it was surprisingly heavy.

He held the sword and brought it before Abbess Jingxin before gently waving the sword. In an instant, an intense aura filled the entire house. At the same time, a wave of heat surged through Li Huowang’s mind, turning his eyes red. His body started to tremble uncontrollably, and he felt as though there was something continuously flowing into him from the sword hilt.

Li Huowang used all his strength to sheath the sword, after which, everything returned to normal. He gasped for breath, his heart pounding.

“It’s normal for military items to have some level of ominous aura. Normal people may be easily affected by it, but it's fine since you're a Strayed One. This small amount of ominous aura isn't capable of dispersing your sense of doubt and confusion. This sword can be used for killing people and exorcizing evil spirits. It will be good to defend yourself with during your journey. In the future, don't use the Profound Records; it will bring you much agony," said Jingxin.

Li Huowang looked at the longsword in his hand with shock. Even if he did not know anything about weapons, just based on that single moment, he knew that this sword was extraordinary, and was definitely an item that should be treasured.

"Abbess, you said that you wanted to sell this sword to me, right? However, I don't have the money to afford it."

"No problem, you can just write an IOU. 30,000 taels of yellow gold should be enough, along with interest. In case, mind you, just in case, if you really do find a way to break free from the condition of a Strayed One, you must let me know."

Hearing this, Li Huowang had a complex look on his face. He could tell that the part about the IOU was said in jest, and what she really wanted from him was what she said after that.

Chapter 137 - Sitting Oblivion Dao

Staring at the Abbess, Li Huowang held the sword before kowtowing toward her. “Thank you for giving me this sword, Abbess! As long as I live, I will graciously repay you for this favor!”

Li Huowang was not someone good with words. Compared to using words, he preferred to use his actions to show his intentions.

He knew who had treated him well and who had not.

However, the Abbess was not satisfied with his answer. “Who said that I am gifting it to you? I am selling it. Don’t try to skip out on the payment. 30,000 pieces with interest. You need to return it to me without missing even a single piece. I know that you can’t give me the money right now, and so you should just use the escort service to send over whatever excess money you have in the future, regardless of the amount. We will accept it all, regardless if it’s a thousand pieces of gold or just half a string of copper coins. Now that everything’s over, just leave this place. I won’t ask you to stay for dinner, nor do I think you will be able to eat it. Just bring some more snacks when you come over next time.”

After saying her piece, Abbess Jingxin slowly moved her fat body back into the depths of her house.

However, Li Huowang immediately stopped her. He still had some questions. “Wait, Abbess, I still have some questions.”

“Sigh. Why are you so annoying? Tell me quickly. I need to sleep after I finish eating.” Abbess Jingxin was visibly annoyed.

Li Huowang stood there for a few seconds before asking his question. “Abbess, I’m a newcomer to Jianghu and do not know much about the various factions of the world, much less their strengths and taboos. Could you please describe some of them to me?”

“No need to fret over it.” Abbess Jingzin scratched her stomach, annoyed. “You are a Strayed One. If you encounter another sect, then just run.”

“Wait, that’s it?” Li Huowang was thrown off by her answer.

“Of course, or do you want to go and converse with them? Weren’t you lied to by the monks of the Righteous Monastery? You are a Strayed One. In the eyes of others, you are no different than a piece of gold. Who cares what sect they come from. Fight if you can, run if you can’t. And don’t even think about joining any of them. There are no sects that recruit Strayed Ones as their disciples, not even the Benevolent Nunnery. If they say that they do, then they are lying.”

These words were a kind of wake-up call for Li Huowang. “So I can trust no one besides you?”

“Nope. Who would help you out without a cause?” The Abbess’s triple chin trembled as she shook her head.

Even if he had already expected the answer, hearing the truth from her mouth still caused Li Huowang to feel depressed.

He realized that his journey was destined to be a rocky one.

Li Huowang slowly digested what she had said before asking another question. “Abbess, can I ask about how the nuns of the Benevolent Nunnery obtain their powers?”

Except for the members of the Ao Jing Sect who gained their powers through offering their mental and physical pain to Ba-Hui, Li Huowang had absolutely no idea how the people of this world obtained their powers.

“Yawn~” The Abbess yawned, “Why do you ask this? It’s not like you will even be able to cultivate it. Can’t you see everyone here is a nun?”

“That’s not an issue. I just want to know.”

“Sigh. It’s not like I don’t want to tell you, but we can’t pronounce it with our mouths. We have to write out the method using Women’s Script. And you are a guy...”

Since she had already said so much, Li Huowang knew not to trouble her anymore. “Thank you for your guidance. I hope to meet you again soon.”

After saying that, Li Huowang kowtowed toward her once more before turning toward the door.

Just as he was leaving the house while inspecting the sword in his hands, the Abbess called for him. “Wait a minute, I almost forgot what I needed to say when you interrupted me just now. There is one particular group of people that you need to be extra careful with,” said Jingxin.

As he heard this, Li Huowang’s ears perked up. “Please tell me.”

“Remember their name. They are called the Sitting Oblivion Dao.”

“Sitting Oblivion Dao?” Li Huowang furrowed his brow. He had heard those three words before. He tried to recall where he had heard them, but nothing came up.

“Sigh, why do you keep spacing out? I’m still talking to you. Or do you not need my explanation?” asked the Abbess, exasperated.

“Abbess, please explain to me. Why did you mention them specifically? By any chance, are the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao friendly toward Strayed Ones?”

“Nope. The other sects will try to capture or kill you for their own benefit, but the Sitting Oblivion Dao is a whole different matter. They are a group of liars that love to fool others.”

“Hmm?” Li Huowang was visibly confused.

“The Sitting Oblivion Dao is not a group of bandits that occupies a mountain, nor is it a sect that cultivates. No one knows what they are. All we know about them is that they like to fool others without any limitations. While they do like fooling others for money, more than anything else, they absolutely love fooling people for their own amusement. Here's an example. There was a time when one of them disguised himself as the Emperor's eunuch before proceeding to fool all of the men in a town to castrate themselves. The reason? He was bored and wanted to have some fun."

Li Huowang still had no idea what the Abbess was trying to tell him.

He asked hesitantly. "A group of swindlers who like to fool others? But... Is this somehow related to me?"

Out of all the sects who wanted to capture him, why did the Abbess tell him about this group of people specifically?

"Sigh. Did you forget that you are a Strayed One and that you can't differentiate between hallucination and reality? What do you think will happen if you meet someone from the Sitting Oblivion Dao? If they know that you are a Strayed One, the issue will become complicated."

"Even then, why would you think that I would be fooled by a group of swindlers? Why are you so nervous about this?"

The Abbess shut her eyelids and shook her head. "They are not just a simple group of swindlers. We don't know where they came from nor how they obtained it, but they have some powers that are ridiculously hard to shake off. They are also extremely well versed in illusions. There was even a time when I was fooled by them. At that time, a member of the Sitting Oblivion Dao snuck into our nunnery and wanted to fool us into breaking our taboo. Thankfully we managed to catch on to his plans and forced him into the path of Buddhism. Remember this, the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao do not fear death. Never get entangled with one of them, or you will find yourself dealing with more and more of their members."

“They even tried to fool you?”

“Yeah! Not only did they want to fool me, they even wanted to fool the Gods themselves! I’ve heard that a group of people within the Sitting Oblivion Dao waited thirty years to fool the God of Prosperity.”

“The God of Happiness? The one that appeared above the ancestral hall of the Hu family?” Li Huowang was visibly shaken.

“No, it’s the God of Prosperity, not the God of Happiness.” said Abbess Jingxin as she used her blackened fingernails to write the character on her skin.

Translator's Thoughts

The God of Happiness. Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 138 - The Five Realms Of Buddhism

“The God of Prosperity?” This was the first time Li Huowang had heard of it. “Is there any difference between it and the God of Happiness?”

“How should I say this? If we were to compare them, the God of Happiness’s power would be equivalent to just a single fingernail of the God of Prosperity.”

“Yikes.” Li Huowang recalled the terrible figure of the God of Happiness. It was hard to believe that the God of Happiness was barely strong enough to match one of the God of Prosperity’s fingernails.

“Hold up, I feel like my brain is on the verge of exploding now.” All this information caught him off guard. “So the God of Happiness is not some major evil being?”

“How can the God of Happiness be an evil being? Those are two different things altogether.”

Li Huowang took a deep breath. “In that case, what are they? What is the God of Happiness or the God of Prosperity?”

“What else can they be? They are Gods.”

“Uh... Which God?”

Abbess Jingxin’s face contorted in confusion. “You don’t even know that? How did you even survive up until now? I thought you already knew.”

Li Huowang sighed and explained, “As I’ve mentioned before, I’m not from this world and I was transmigrated here. I have no idea how I ended up in this place.”

“Sigh... here it comes again.” Abbess Jingxin stared at him with pity.

“Abbess, I really did transmigrate here!” Li Huowang shouted, his anxiety increasing; he wanted to believe that it really was the truth.

“Fine, fine. I believe you. Let’s continue talking then. Have you heard of the Five Realms in Buddhism?”

“Five Realms of Buddhism?” Li Huowang recalled the five large Buddha statues he had seen within the Righteous Monastery. “I’ve heard of it. The Abbot of the Righteous Monastery briefly explained to me that there are five different Buddhas in Five Different Realms.”

“The one in the middle is Vaicorana from Vajradhatu, the Diamond Realm. The one on the East is Akshobhya from Abhirati, the Eastern Pure Land. The one on the South is Ratnasambhava from Śrīmat, the Southern Pure Land. The one on the West is Amitābha from Sukhavati, the Western Pure Land, and the one on the North is Amoghasiddhi from Prakuta, the Northern Pure Land,” explained Abbess Jingxin. These were the exact same words that the Abbot had told Li Huowang. “The God of Happiness and the God of Prosperity are both Gods belonging to the Southern Pure Land; however, they are not the only Gods there. There are still many other Buddhas, Bodhisattvas, and Arhats.”

Hearing all this, Li Huowang felt kind of lost; it was the first time he had heard most of it. He knew that this world had many strange things, but it was a lot more than he had anticipated.

To think that there exist five different realms, and each of them contained such unimaginable horrors.

“So the realm of the Immortals that you mentioned before are the Five Realms of Buddhism?” asked Li Huowang as he unconsciously turned to Dan Yangzi who was standing near the wall.

“Hmph! There’s no such thing as the Five Realms of Buddhism.

What do a bunch of stupid bald donkeys know?" said Dan Yangzi, his six eyes filled with contempt. This was the first time Li Huowang's illusion had reacted to his words. "What do they know? They trust just about anything that's written in the book! They haven't even seen the Southern Heavenly Gates!"

Li Huowang ignored the barrage of insults from Dan Yangzi and continued to ask Abbess Jingxin. "Can you tell me where the Five Realms are?"

"How would I know? If I knew that, then I would already have become a Buddha; I wouldn't be here," said Jingxin as she dug her before flicking the snot onto the folds of her own skin.

"Become a Buddha? Do you want to become a Buddha?" asked Li Huowang.

"Nah I'm too lazy. My son may be crazy, but he's still alive. If I were to become a Buddha, who would take care of him?"

Slowly, Li Huowang was starting to piece everything together; he was finally starting to get a vague understanding of this world.

"Which world does Ba-Hui come from?" asked Li Huowang. He recalled that Ba-Hui also came from an extremely mysterious place.

"No clue; after all, I'm not from the Ao Jing Sect."

At that moment, Dan Yangzi's horrifying three-headed self phased out from within Abbess Jingxin's stomach. "She's lying! She knows nothing! You will only know how beautiful the Immortal Realm is once you see it with your own eyes. Once you have laid eyes on it, you will know that nothing else matters!"

Li Huowang's lips twitched as he feigned calmness. "Abbess Jingxin, about the Five Realms of Buddhism, do the other sects have some other explanations about the Immortal Realm?"

"Of course. Some of them are adamant that there's no Five Realms of Buddhism and instead it's a big piece of land called Peng Lai. Some of them also say that no such place exists in the world. Anyway, no one side can persuade the other and I'm too lazy to debate with any of them either.”

At that moment, the Abbess fished out a mung bean cake from the folds of her skin. She was just about to eat it but stopped when she brought it near her mouth. She withheld her desires and forced it back into the folds.

“I think that’s enough explanation for today. There’s no need for you to trust my words completely. Whether the supernatural stuff is true or not, it doesn’t matter to you. If there’s nothing else, then you can leave. It’s already late and I haven’t even taken my nap. Remember to avoid the people of the Sitting Oblivion Dao as much as you can. If you do meet one of them, then you can unravel their scheme by thinking just like them and working your way backward,” said Abbess Jingxin.

After saying all that, she rolled her head backward and let out a thunderous snore.

Li Huowang stared at Abbess Jingxin with a complicated look on his face. After a while, he performed the Daoist salute he had learned back at the Zephyr Temple before leaving with the sword in his hand.

This time around, he had gained a lot and would need some time to sort things through.

Yang Xiaohai sat on a rock as he admired Xiaoman who was practicing with the sword.

With the sound of metal screeching, Chun Xiaoman unsheathed her green sword. The edge of the sword glinted with a cold light and an invisible pressure forced Yang Xiaohai to sit slightly further back.

The sword danced in the air like a swimming dragon, flashing a silvery sheen from time to time.

While Yang Xiaohai didn’t understand the intricacies of the sword dance being performed, he knew that Senior Xiaoman was amazing.

It was only natural, since Xiaoman practiced with the sword anytime she even had a single moment of free time. She practiced day and night, and even read the manual while having her meal.

“If I was as strong as her, then no one would be able to bully me anymore.” Yang Xiaohai yearned for the day he would be able to get stronger.

“Hmph. This is nothing. If you want to become strong, then you need to learn from Senior Li.”

Hearing those words, Yang Xiaohai turned around and saw Puppy leaning against the wall with his arms folded on his chest.

Thinking about how scary Senior Li looked, Yang Xiaohai felt chills running down his spine; instantly, he shook his head vigorously. “No, I don’t want to learn that. It’s far too painful.”

Just then, Yang Xiaohai saw Chun Xiaoman stop her practice and walk toward the outside.

“Senior Xiaoman, where are you going?” asked Yang Xiaohai as he followed her.

“I’m going to the escort service. I’ve trained for so long but there’s no one here that I can spar with. I can’t improve like this,” said Xiaoman.

“Xiaoman, why do you need to find outsiders to spar with you? You can just spar with me, no need to waste your time. After all, I’ve also trained with my blade.” Puppy patted the blade on his waist.

“That doesn’t count. You’ve only learned how to perform a single slash,” refuted Xiaoman.

Chapter 139 - Escort Office

Puppy was upset when he heard Chun Xiaoman's remark. "So what if I only know one move? Haven't you heard of a thing called specialization? I could still kill someone with just a single downward slash!"

Xiaoman scoffed. Then, she stepped forward with her right foot and unsheathed her sword, thrusting it toward Puppy in one fluid motion.

Puppy wasn't able to react in time as the sword stopped just inches away from his nose.

Jiang~

Then, Chun Xiaoman sheathed her sword and left.

Puppy was left embarrassed. He glanced at Yang Xiaohai who had been watching them. "That doesn't count. She launched a sneak attack. If it was a real fight, then she might've lost to me."

Yang Xiaohai stared at Xiaoman who had just left the inn as he nodded and glossed over Puppy's words. "Yeah, yeah. Senior Cao Cao is correct."

After Yang Xiaohai saw Puppy walking away with a happy smile, he decided to follow after Chun Xiaoman. When he finally caught up to her, she was already in front of a gate. The gate had a flag with the character for "escort" on it, while behind the gates was a large courtyard.

He quickly followed her into the place.

Chun Xiaoman glanced at Yang Xiaohai. "Don't run out of the inn by yourself if you don't have any urgent issues. The world is very chaotic right now and there are many people who might want to abduct you for money.”

“Alright! I will remember that. Senior, can I follow you this time? I just want to watch. I swear I will be good.”

Seeing his sincerity, Chun Xiaoman chose to remain silent.

The escort office was quite big yet crowded. There were many ox carts and carriages within the large courtyard.

“There are so many people inside,” exclaimed Yang Xiaohai as he walked over a pile of horse excrement.

“This is normal. The more chaotic the world is, the more money the escort services make. If the land was unified and in peace, then we would no longer need escorts,” remarked Xiaoman.

Just as Xiaoman finished speaking, a man walked over. He was quite tall, at least two heads taller than Xiaoman. His muscles were quite well-toned and rippling with energy as he walked toward Xiaoman menacingly. He quickly inspected the black-veiled girl in front of him and paid his respects. He was surprisingly friendly. “Does the young lady wish to employ an escort?”

“I am a practitioner of the sword. I’ve heard that the reason why the escort services can stay in business is because of the martial prowess of the escorts themselves. As a fellow martial artist, I’m here to request a spar,” replied Xiaoman.

The man was stunned by how frank she was. He had met someone who had requested to spar with them before, but this was his first time seeing a girl requesting a spar as a martial artist.

He thought about it for a moment before cupping his fists respectfully as he declined her request. “Young lady, there is no reason to do so; I don’t think this is appropriate. Besides, the escort office is extremely busy. Almost all our escorts have left for their assigned missions.”

Xiaoman was not surprised to hear this. They are a business after all; why would they grant her request without any rewards?

She stuck her arm into her clothes and took out a piece of silver. “I do not have a master and have only been able to practice on my own. At the very least, please guide me and point out some of my flaws.”

“This...” Seeing how adamant she was, Wang Chengxing finally became suspicious. He wasn’t interested in the silver, but he was trying to guess what her goal was. He was afraid that she was lying, afraid that she might be feigning to be weak to defeat one of them and increase her reputation.

The reason why the Longteng Escort Office had so many branches was because their escorts were amazing martial artists. If rumors were to spread that they were defeated by a young lady, then their reputation would be ruined.

Who is she? Where did she come from? Is she an expert hired by the Guangsheng Escort Office to ruin our reputation? But business is booming so there’s no reason for them to do so.

For a person to act as an escort, one must not only be a talented martial artist, but their thought process must also be clear. Soon, Wang Chengxing came up with a plan to defuse the situation.

He took the piece of silver and said to her, “Since you insist, please follow me.”

They walked past the carriages, past the busy main hall, and into a smaller courtyard at the back.

Faced with his foreign surroundings, Yang Xiaohai felt a little as he walked closer to Chun Xiaoman. “Senior, do you think they will harm us?”

Chun Xiaoman shook her head while observing her surroundings. “This is an escort office, not a bandit camp. They regard their reputation as the most important thing. No one would hire them if their reputation is shit.”

Behind the busy escort office was a courtyard filled with various weapon racks. Youths in black were sparring against each other just like in a dojo. Some of them were training with weapons, while others were doing physical training.

“All of you, come over here!” shouted Wang Chengxing, prompting everyone to stop their training and approach him.

“Good day, Senior Uncle Wang!” greeted one of them.

“Hello!” said another.

“Have you eaten?” asked another.

Wang Chengxing stared at them for a moment before pointing to a silent youth. “Tian Ci, come here and spar with this young lady. Remember, this is a spar. Don’t go overboard.”

After instructing him, Wang Chengxing told another person to guard the entrance, making sure that no one got in.

This was a win-win situation for him. If they lost, then no one would know and it wouldn’t affect their reputation. Additionally, if someone were to spread the rumor, they could also justify it by saying that it was a spar against a youth, especially one who was not yet an official escort. It was normal for him to lose. And this wasn’t a lie either. Tian Ci was someone who was quite talented and had received extensive training, to the point that he was even stronger than some of the escorts; however, in terms of seniority he was still a junior. He had not yet graduated to become an official escort.

Meanwhile, Chun Xiaoman was not someone picky either. She stared at the youth who was sizing her up. She needed a sparring partner to determine her training progress.

She was just about to unsheath her sword when she realized it might not be suitable in this situation. This was nothing but a spar. It would be bad if either of them got hurt.

Luckily there were plenty of training weapons in the courtyard. She went ahead and picked up a polished bamboo sword.

On the other hand, Tian Ci did not pick a blade. Instead, he picked up a wooden shield. It had quite a bizarre design, with an elongated top and tapered bottom. There were even two sharp wooden spikes at the front that were akin to a boar's tusks.

After they had picked their weapons, Tian Ci stood in front of Xiaoman in an odd stance as he held the shield.

Meanwhile, Xiaoman frowned and raised her sword. She wanted to try probing her opponent's strength by lunging forward with a stab.

Tok!

The bamboo sword hit the shield directly, producing a muffled sound.

Immediately after, Tian Ci lowered his shield and charged forward, ramming Xiaoman's sword out of position. The moment he saw an opening, he lunged forward and charged, the spikes of the wooden shield approaching Xiaoman's neck.

Xiaoman had never encountered such a situation before. She hurriedly tried to block with her sword.

However, her sword was only halfway there by the time the wooden spikes had touched her neck.

At that moment, Tian Ci stopped and placed the wooden shield down. Then, he cupped his fists as he said, "Thank you for letting me win."

Chapter 140 - Possessed

Everything happened so fast. Not only was it completely out of Chun Xiaoman's expectations, even Wang Chengxing, who was at the side, was surprised.

Hmm? Her lower body is so unstable. She really doesn't have a master to train her. Looks like I had been looking too much into it.

Chun Xiaoman was not disappointed with her failure. Instead, she picked up the bamboo sword and told the silent youth, "Not bad, one more time!"

Both of them exchanged a few blows and Xiaoman lost once again. This time, her sword was flung out of her hand. Even though the weapon that Tian Ci used was quite weird, it was more than enough to defeat Chun Xiaoman.

Xiaoman fought a few more rounds and lost almost every single time. It was only in the final round that she managed to barely win by exchanging blows brutally, injuring herself in the process.

As he saw her breathing heavily, Wang Chengxing immediately stopped their spar. He was afraid she would cry. "Alright, that's enough young lady. The day will be over soon. Let's just stop here for now."

Chun Xiaoman was both dishevelled and upset. "Was the way I used the sword terrible?"

She was extremely disappointed with the results and with herself. She was afraid that all the practice she had put in for the past few days had been nothing but a joke.

Hearing her question, Wang Chengxing smiled awkwardly. "Young lady, your horizontal swings, vertical swings, jabs, lunges, and even the downward swing are all very good. You could say that you have a very good foundation and I can see that you must've worked hard for it. You should have no problem fighting against your regular brutes.”

That was all he said.

However, Chun Xiaoman understood what he meant to say. She was not even at the level of a normal martial artist.

“How should I improve myself? What is the direction of my growth?” asked Xiaoman.

“Sigh, young lady, it’s not so easy to become a heroine. The stories of the storytellers are all fake. Please return home,” replied Wang Chengxing as he returned her the piece of silver. He was regarding Xiaoman as a young lady from a rich family who was instilled with a sense of justice.

However, Xiaoman didn’t take the piece of silver. “Sir, I do not wish to become a heroine. I just want to protect myself in this chaotic world!”

Maybe it was the determination in Chun Xiaoman’s voice that made Wang Chengxing think she was different. He thought about it and explained. “Young lady, your strength is lacking but your body is quite flexible. It would be better if you learned a sword technique that is more suitable for you. Your lower body is also quite unstable. You need to practice your horse stance and train everyday to reinforce your lower body. One last thing... you should find a sparring partner. It’s almost impossible to train on your own. Naturally, the best thing would be to find a master to train you.”

Xiaoman stared at the youth holding the wooden shield. She was about to ask him what kind of martial art he had learned but she held herself back. Wang Chengxing had already explained so much to her with just a single piece of silver. It was the best outcome. Any more questions and she would be overstepping her boundaries.

Chun Xiaoman knew her limits. She took her sword from Yang Xiaohai before turning around and saying her goodbyes to Wang Chengxing.

“Senior Xiaoman, you are already very amazing! You’ve only practiced for such a short period of time. A few more years and you will definitely be able to defeat him,” said Yang Xiaohai, trying to console her.

As he said this, he stared distastefully at the youths training in the courtyard. “Plus, they are nowhere near as amazing as Senior Li. None of them would be able to withstand a single blow from him!”

“Shut up and let’s go!” said Chun Xiaoman as she started walking faster. Not only did Yang Xiaohai fail to console her, she felt even more useless now.

“Ah!”

At that moment, an old woman suddenly ran out from somewhere before pouncing toward Yang Xiaohai. Her body was filled with the stench of urine and her hair was an absolute mess. Her expression was extremely gnarly, looking no different from an evil spirit.

Just as Xiaoman was about to unsheath her sword, a strong wind blew past her.

It was Wang Chengxing!

The old lady didn’t even get the chance to get close to Yang Xiaohai before she was grabbed by him.

After he had grabbed her, Wang Chengxing smiled apologetically. “Sorry young lady, please forgive us. This is the wife of my master. She had been possessed for many years.”

“Possessed?” Xiaoman stared at the old woman. The old woman was staring intensely at Yang Xiaohai, her teeth chattering and clicking constantly. She looked extremely scary.

“Since she was possessed, why don’t you find someone to chase the spirit away?” asked Xiaoman.

“Sigh~ We did, but neither the nuns on the mountain nor the monks could chase it away. The old woman is still possessed to this day. I pity my master.” Wang Chengxing sighed as he took his master’s wife away.

Wait... Possessed? Master’s wife?

Chun Xiaoman’s eyes lit up. She had thought of an idea.

If they managed to solve the issue, maybe they would not only train her, but even help their group on their journey! There might be some other rewards as well!

“Let’s go,” said Chun Xiaoman as hurried back to the inn while looking for a certain someone.

“Senior Zhao Wu, you are really fast with the abacus. To think you managed to calculate it so quickly and accurately,” said Bai Lingmiao.

“You are too kind. My family runs a grain shop after all. I was naturally exposed to all this from a young age,” explained Zhao Wu humbly.

“Can you teach me how to use the abacus as well? I want to be able to manage our ledgers. I feel like we might run out of money before everyone can reach my house,” asked Bai Lingmiao.

At that moment, Xiaoman opened the door—she had come to find Bai Lingmiao.

She pulled Bai Lingmiao into the corridor. After making sure that no one was around she whispered, “Was everything you said to me that night true? Have you really become a Shaman?”

“Of course, what’s wrong?” asked Bai Lingmiao as she stared at her friend.

“Good, then come with me. I need your help.”

By the time Xiaoman brought Bai Lingmiao to the escort office it was already nighttime.

Staring at the large flag, Bai Lingmiao was slightly scared as she held her drum. “Where is this place? What if we come back tomorrow morning?"

"This cannot wait any longer. Just consider this as doing me a favor." Chun Xiaoman brought her in.

Fifteen minutes later, Chun Xiaoman and Bai Lingmiao were sitting in a room used to welcome important guests as they stared at the serious looking old man in front of them.

"Sir, this is my friend; she might be able to heal your wife," said Xiaoman.

Hearing this, Zhao Qin calmly placed his teacup down before turning to stare at the white girl in front of him. He had tried many methods throughout the years, but his wife remained the same. He had long since given up on her.

After a while, he glanced at Chun Xiaoman and waved his hand. Wang Chengxin walked in and silently placed a piece of silver in front of Chun Xiaoman.

Zhao Qin said, "Young lady, this was the piece of silver you accidentally left here earlier today. We apologize for scaring you. As for the matter of my wife, we will not require your assistance. She is already old and I only wish to live with her for the remainder of our old lives."

Chapter 141 - Shaman

His words shocked both Bai Lingmiao and Chun Xiaoman. His own wife had been tormented for so long, and yet he still doesn't want to treat her?

Bai Lingmiao thought about it for a moment as she held her drum. "Sir, if she really has been possessed, it's better if we try to exorcize whatever is possessing her. It doesn't feel good to be possessed, and her life is in constant danger. I don't need any rewards from this, but let me at least try."

Zhao Qin frowned at her words. He intentionally placed the tea cup on the table. "Chengxing, send them off."

Hearing this, Wang Chengxing stepped forward and blocked the two ladies from his master. He smiled, "It's dangerous at night. Let me personally send you back. Where do both of you live?"

Chun Xiaoman sighed. She knew there was no persuading them at this point. She gently tugged at Bai Lingmiao and approached the door.

"AAAAAH~"

At that moment, a shrill cry pierced through, startling everyone. At the same time, Zhao Qin's face became even more gloomy.

On the other hand, after she heard the pain in the woman's voice, Bai Lingmiao couldn't bear it anymore. She turned around and tried to persuade Zhao Qin one more time. "Master Zhao, at the very least let me try it once. I swear that even if we aren't able to treat her, she will not be harmed. The Immortals aren't heartless."

Chun Xiaoman nodded as she tried to assist Bai Lingmiao. "Since you've tried every other option, why not let us try? What if we manage to exorcize whatever is possessing her?"

She suddenly thought of something causing a sad expression to appear on her face. “Or are you saying that you don’t treat her as a —”

Bam!

Even before Chun Xiaoman could finish her sentence, Zhao Qin’s fist smashed the entire table into smithereens. He was glaring at her angrily, his raging aura suppressing everyone in the room.

“I never lift my hands against girls, but if you continue to be rude, then you will be the first lady I’ve hurt in my life,” warned Zhao Qin.

“Hihi~” At that moment, a smirk sounded from the dark corridor, instantly alerting everyone.

“Who’s there? Formation!” Zhao Qin shouted, causing the two men guarding the door to immediately send a signal.

Within moments, more than ten strong men rushed in with various weapons in their hands. The group consisted of shield bearers at the front and spearmen at the back. It could be seen that their teamwork was impeccable.

Under everyone’s watchful gaze, a pair of blood-red shoes stepped out from the darkness and into the candle light. The owner of the pair of shoes continued to walk in, revealing a red-veiled bride.

As they watched her, everyone had goosebumps. They knew that they were against something abnormal. They were all experienced escorts, and most of them had encountered the supernatural at least once during their missions. This was why they had their own counter measures against them.

“Raise the ink net! Bring in the black dogs!” shouted one of them.

At the same time, the sound of an unswirling thread was heard as various ink-drenched cotton threads sealed came together in the form of a large net and a couple of growling black dogs were brought in.

“Wait a moment, this is a misunderstanding,” said Bai Lingmiao nervously as she walked past the ink net and guided the Second Deity into the room.

The closer Bai Lingmiao got, the further back the escorts retreated, their weapons held high.

“This is my sister. She has no ill will.” Bai Lingmiao tried her best to explain, but it wasn’t much use.

Just then, a mustached escort whispered to Zhao Qin. “Master... Shaman...”

Hearing his disciple, Zhao Qin’s expression slowly began to change.

Sensing the tense atmosphere, Bai Lingmiao sighed. “Xiaoman, why don’t we go back?”

Bai Lingmiao was worried. Not because she was worried about being injured by the escorts, but because she knew that if Senior Li were to catch wind of this, the situation would take a devastating turn.

Senior Li already had so much trouble of his own and she didn’t want to cause any more trouble for him.

Chun Xiaoman was also someone who could read the room quite well. At this point, her original goals were inconsequential. Thus, she too walked out from the ink net, intending to leave the escort office with Bai Lingmiao.

“Young ladies! Wait!”

At that moment, Zhao Qin called for them. His current demeanor had completely changed as he politely asked them to come back. “I do indeed require your assistance to heal my wife. Name your price, as long as she can be cured.”

“Erm...” Both Bai Lingmiao and Chun Xiaoman were shocked at his sudden change in demeanor.

“If that is the case—” began Bai Lingmiao.

However, just as she was about to make her request, she was interrupted by Xiaoman. “Let us discuss with our comrades.”

Xiaoman felt it would be safer if they called in everybody. The sudden change in Zhao Qin’s demeanor was quite weird.

Half an hour later, their entire group was at the escort office. This time around, they were treated much more politely. The entire escort office was brightly lit up while all of the escorts and their disciples stood in rows as they welcomed them.

Zhao Qin asked them to follow him as they walked through the corridors toward a hut. As they walked, Zhao Qin tried to butter them up. “Young lady, what you said is correct. We should at least try or we would never know if your method could work.”

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao could only smile nervously as she nodded. This was partly because of the grand welcome, and partly because this would be her first attempt at exorcism. It would be embarrassing if she couldn’t exorcize whatever it was that was possessing Zhao Qin’s wife.

While the escort office looked big, it was surprisingly modest. To the left of the training grounds was a small hut. This was where Zhao Qin had locked up his wife.

Creak~

The door was opened, giving way to sounds of someone sobbing.

At that moment, one of the escorts lit up a lantern, illuminating the inside of the hut. The interior of the hut caused everyone to be shocked.

The hut wasn’t very big while its walls and floor were padded with thick hay. It looked relatively clean, a sign that it was maintained regularly.

At this moment, a disheveled and dirty old woman with white hair was shuffling inside the hut. The chains that bound her leg looked quite rusty as she dragged them across the floor while sobbing. She completely ignored everyone.

“She has been like this ever since thirty years ago. At this point, I’m completely stumped.” Zhao Qin’s face was filled with bitterness.

“Master Zhao, please relax. I will do what I can,” said Bai Lingmiao nervously as she took a quick glance at the red-veiled Second Deity standing behind her.

After a while, Bai Lingmiao took a deep breath and approached her Second Deity before lifting up her red veil.

The men were all curious to see what was beneath the red veil. However, they were disappointed when they saw that there was another red veil with a mandarin duck embroidered on it.

At that moment, Bai Lingmiao took a deep breath and covered her head with the red veil before passing the drum to the Second Deity.

Meanwhile, Chun Xiaoman used her sword to make some space for Bai Lingmiao. “Everyone, stand back.”

As they sensed the change in the atmosphere, everyone in the escort office held their breath in anticipation.

After a moment, the Second Deity used her black fingernails and rapped the drum as a shrill voice rumbled from under the red veil. “Summon~ The~ Gods~”

Chapter 142 - Master's Wife

As this drawn-out incantation was uttered, the surroundings fell silent.

Next, the Second Deity began to recite the Divine Summons. It was similar to Li Zhi's but different in its delivery, as it was rapid and hurried.

"Dong dong dong! The sun sets on the Western mountain, the skies turn dark, doors all shut tight! Dong dong dong!"

As the drumbeat continued, Bai Lingmiao's body began to tremble. At the same time, the red veil on her head started shaking vigorously like a flowing waterfall. Soon, her body began to contort, and the outline of what seemed to be a beast's skull caused the red veil covering her face to be propped up.

"Today, this disciple calls to Immortals high, Misfortune lurks beneath this roof, can't deny. Southern doctors tried, yet no cure could they bring; monks and nuns from the north, their chants didn't sing. Many attempts, but no answer we found; can only turn to the old Immortal, wise and renowned. Seeking yin-yang's dance in eight characters' art, through the seven apertures, a journey to start; twelve meridians, a map to explore, five organs, six viscera, seek to implore. Oh, old Immortal, bring your guiding light, in wisdom and grace, make our future right..."

Under the rhythm of the drumbeat, Bai Lingmiao started to walk inside the house.

As the woman who had her eyes concealed by her white hair sensed someone approaching, she revealed a fearful expression. However, the very next moment, that fear turned into an intense hatred.

“Give my son back to me!!” She shouted as she opened her arms and lunged forward. But with her body restrained by chains, she made no progress as she remained frozen in place, desperately trying to break the restraints.

At that moment, a slender snout reached out from beneath Bai Lingmiao’s red veil and sniffed at the woman. At the same time, a constant, low beast-like growling sound could be heard coming from underneath the veil.

“My child~!!” The woman's expression shifted from one filled with hatred to pleading, "My child, it's Mother's fault, it's Mother's fault!!”

At that moment, the snout was rapidly retracted beneath the red veil as Bai Lingmiao once again started trembling. Then, a tail extended from beneath the hem of her clothes.

Meanwhile, the Second Deity once again began to chant, “Soul of a human, back to its frame, soul of a horse, not playing the same game. A person true to soul, feasts with delight, a horse true to soul, dances in the light. Eight Immortals' table, on earth it's laid down, Starry flag soaring, up to the crown. Five-colored flags, and banners so bright, In red, white, blue, and green, a splendid sight!”

Following the beat of the drum, Bai Lingmiao started to circle around the woman in a methodical fashion, all the while placing paper flags made with yellow paper into the hay on the ground.

Suddenly, the woman stopped moving and collapsed to the ground, her body trembling incessantly as her face contorted in pain.

As Zhao Qin watched this scene from the outside, he felt pained, but he did not dare interrupt in such a situation.

At that moment, the drumbeat quickened once again, and seven lit purple incense sticks appeared in Bai Lingmiao’s hands. The incense sticks burned, releasing green smoke which went directly into the woman's mouth.

Hiss~

There were many sounds of people inhaling a breath of cold air. The escorts were well versed in martial arts, and they would not even bat an eye at your everyday injuries. However, the scene that was occurring in the hut felt quite unbearable to them.

Bleargh~

The woman wanted to vomit, but her face was covered by a red handkerchief.

Just as everyone was watching what Bai Lingmiao planned to do, a low voice rang out from the distance. "Xiaoman! Bai Lingimao!"

It was Li Huowang.

As this voice rang out, the drumbeat suddenly became a little unstable, and the chanting changed once again. "I'll send you three beats as we part ways, to an ancient cave, where Immortals find their stays! From ridge to ridge, and mountain to mountain high, apprentices, beware, don't let troubles nigh! I will shoo you away if you overstay! Dong dong dong!"

After the three drum beats, Bai Lingmiao's strange appearance instantly returned to normal.

As she returned to normal, Bai Lingmiao also heard Li Huowang's voice. She quickly removed the red veil on her head and stepped out of the house. Then, she snatched the drum in the Second Deity's hands, and once again placed the red veil on her head. After finishing all this, she went over to welcome Li Huowang, who was leading over a large group of people.

"Senior Li, you've come down from the mountain? Have you completed your errands?" asked Bai Lingmiao as she smiled. At the same time, she noticed that Senior Li's back carried two swords now.

"Yes, it's almost done. I heard that you came here to exorcize some evil spirits? How is it? Are you done?” asked Li Huowang as he pulled Bai Lingmiao toward him, and then looked toward the crowd.

“Hmm... Not yet. I thought that she had bumped into something, but there was nothing. I tried several methods, but I still can’t figure out what has happened to her,” said Bai Lingmiao.

When they returned to the house, they saw Zhao Qin was carefully supporting his wife. He softly called out to her a few times, but there was no response, causing him to look toward Bai Lingmiao anxiously, “Miss, what happened to my wife?!”

His tone carried a hint of anger. It was only natural, since he had witnessed his wife being tormented like that without any change in her condition.

At that moment, Li Huowang glanced at the dazed state of the woman, and a trace of fatigue appeared on his face. He turned to Bai Lingmiao, “Since you can’t treat her, then let’s go. We don’t need those fifty coins anyway.”

“Hold it!” Zhao Qin shouted. Along with his shout, all the escorts in the entire escort office surrounded them with unkind looks on their faces.

Seeing this, Li Huowang coldly glanced around him before placing a hand on the hilt of the sword on his back.

Clang!

As the sword was drawn out just an inch, everyone started to feel their blood boil, almost as though they were embroiled in the middle of a raging battlefield.

This abnormal change caused Wang Chengxing’s face to turn pale; he knew that they were in a massive amount of trouble now. He was usually out and about, and had heard that there were some lords with mysterious and unpredictable supernatural abilities out there. It was difficult to distinguish whether they were good or evil. One had to be fully alert when dealing with them. Unfortunately for them, it seemed like they had encountered one of them this time.

“Senior Li! Don’t do this! It’s us who are in the wrong...” Bai Lingmiao hurriedly tugged at Li Huowang’s sleeve.

Hearing this, Li Huowang sheathed his sword as he turned around, ready to leave.

“Child... Mother has let you down...”

It was this voice that caused Li Huowang to stop in his tracks and look back at the woman.

When he saw her current state, he felt a sense of familiarity. Seeing the mangled state of her hand and the iron chains, he inexplicably felt furious.

At that moment, the woman’s expression changed once again as she tightly grabbed Zhao Qin’s neck. “Return my son! Return my son to me!”

Seeing this, Li Huowang rushed over with Yang Xiaohai in tow.

“I will return your son to you!” shouted Li Huowang as he pushed Zhao Qin aside before stuffing the dazed Yang Xiaohai into her embrace.

As she hugged Yang Xiaohai, the old woman finally became silent. She leaned her face over as she stroked her hands through Yang Xiaohai’s hair.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang surveyed the room, and said with a voice filled with dissatisfaction, “Why are there no windows over here? Don’t you think she will feel afraid, being all alone in the dark without any light?”

Zhao Qin could not react in time; everything was happening too quickly. “My wife is already like that. Will she really be afraid of the dark?”

Li Huowang pulled out the other longsword, easily cutting through the chains binding her hands. “Even if she has gone crazy, it doesn’t mean that she can’t feel anything! She can still feel afraid, and also feel pain! Without anyone here to accompany her, she can also feel lonely! Do you think she wanted to become like this? No!

But she really cannot do anything about it!”

Chapter 143 - Treatment

As he heard Li Huowang's words, Zhao Qin was clearly quite confused. He could not understand what Li Huowang was saying.

Just as he clenched his fists tightly and was about to say something, an old voice rang out, making him forget everything.

"Husband, look. Our son is back."

Shocked, Zhao Qin turned back to look at his wife. He was surprised to find that his wife's eyes were filled with clarity for the first time since being possessed in the past thirty years.

"You... recognize me?" Zhao Qin dashed beside her, grabbing her hands excitedly.

"Husband, look at how obedient our son is. He already knows how to be filial despite his young age. He knows that I like to eat freshly fried youtiaos, and so he went out to buy some in the morning," said the old woman as she gnawed on the hem of Yang Xiaohai's clothes.

At that moment, to the astonishment of all the members of the Longteng Escort Office, their usually stern leader burst into tears.

Zhao Qin walked over and hugged his wife, crying uncontrollably, "Feng Xia... I've let you down!"

Seeing this, Wang Chengxing, who had been following his master since childhood, felt saddened. Although his master had a strict personality, he knew that it was just a facade.

Bai Lingmiao approached Li Huowang and quietly tugged at his sleeves, "Senior Li, how did you do that? You're amazing!"

There was a complex look in Li Huowang's eyes as he watched the hugging couple. "Prolonged illness makes one a good doctor. In the past, I've seen similar cases at the hospital. Actually, I'm better at diagnosing mental illnesses than physical symptoms."

“So what was she possessed by?” asked Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang sighed. “She wasn’t possessed. She was just deeply traumatized in the past, and couldn’t recover. Her current state is the result of being locked up for thirty years.”

Just as Li Huowang was about to bring Bai Lingmiao and leave this dimly-lit house, he was stopped by someone.

It was Zhao Qin, who still had tears in his eyes. He placed his palms together emotionally and bowed down to Li Huowang.

“Thank you for your help, Benefactor!”

“Don’t thank me just yet; this matter isn’t over. Bring her out, get her cleaned up and give her a fresh set of clothes,” instructed Li Huowang.

Currently, to Zhao Qin, Li Huowang’s words were akin to an Imperial Decree. He immediately obeyed the instructions given to him.

After changing her clothes, the old woman was sent to a bright and warm room. She was still holding Yang Xiaohai in her arms.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang continued to instruct Zhao Qin. “Let her continue to hug him if she likes to do so. Spend some money and hire a few children to take turns with her. She is trying to find a replacement to compensate for the losses she suffered in the past. Once her emotional state stabilizes after she has finished venting, you can replace the substitute with a dummy. Also, take her out in the sun more often. Sunlight can improve a person’s mood, and is extremely beneficial for their recovery. And, if there’s truly no one who can accompany her, then let her have two dogs by her side; pets can also have the effect of stabilizing a person’s mental state. Thirty years is far too long a period. In such conditions, earlier intervention would have had a much better effect. For now, prioritize stabilizing her condition.”

Li Huowang paused, as he tried to recall what Doctor Li used to tell the families of the other patients. After a moment, he continued to relay the details to Zhao Qin, “I only remember so much. Give these methods a try. It's better than keeping her locked up within a dark room. Remember not to lock her up anymore, and absolutely do not use chains to restrain her. She's already in such a condition, so chaining her up will only make things worse.”

His wife could still recognise him after thirty years—this was something that Zhao Qin couldn't even imagine. In his eyes, Li Huowang was like a legendary doctor come to life!

“That's it for now. If there's nothing else, then we'll take our leave first; we have a long journey ahead of us tomorrow,” said Li Huowang, ready to leave.

However, he was stopped by Zhao Qin's open arms. Zhao Qin's voice trembled as he instructed his disciples, “Yuan Hu, arrange a feast! A huge feast!”

Zhao Qin spared nothing to express his sincerity. The best restaurant in this town was reserved entirely by the Longteng Escort Office, all to entertain Li Huowang and his group.

The restaurant served a top-notch banquet that far surpassed anything that could be found in an average inn's dining hall. There were various delicacies, including roasted meats, braised fish, sophora flower soup, etc...

The central dish on the table was a roasted suckling pig—its tender, succulent meat roasted to crisp golden perfection. Its rich aroma filled the air, and the candlelight danced on its glistening surface, creating an enticing fragrance that wafted through the entire room.

Not just humans, even Bun couldn't resist the temptation of the food as it sat eagerly by Li Huowang's feet, licking its lips in anticipation of leftover bones.

Li Huowang was seated at the head of the table, but he didn't pay much attention to these details. He just listened as Chun Xiaoman explained the story behind the current situation.

“Next time you encounter such a situation, consult with me first. Don't act recklessly on your own, and don't involve Bai Lingmiao either,” said Li Huowang. Handling such matters required careful management. If mishandled, they could lead to troublesome consequences.

Hearing this, Chun Xiaoman paused as if trying to find an excuse, but finally nodded, “Yes, Senior Li.”

As he saw Zhao Qin ascend the wooden stairs of the restaurant, Li Huowang straightened his posture.

At present, Zhao Qin was clothed in formal attire and was accompanied by his disciples behind him.

With fervent eyes, Zhao Qin didn't say anything, simply pouring out three cups of wine for Li Huowang.

“Leader Zhao, you're too courteous. I just couldn't stand what was happening, and hence reached out to help,” said Li Huowang as he picked up a piece of chicken with his chopsticks. He only placed it in his mouth after he saw all the escorts accompanying Zhao Qin start to pick up their chopsticks. Then, he signaled the others with a nod.

The rest, who had been waiting impatiently, immediately picked up their chopsticks. They made use of the opportunity when the escorts were still startled by their sudden movements, causing the dishes on the table to be lessened noticeably in just a short while.

Li Huowang picked up a chicken drumstick, took a bite, and then threw it beneath the table.

“Benefactor, I cannot express how thankful I am. Today, you have saved my wife which is akin to saving me! Tomorrow, there will be generous gifts sent to your residence, and I hope you won't refuse them!” said Zhao Qin whose nose had turned red from all the wine he had drunk. He was much more talkative now.

“Benefactor, if you face any difficulties in the future, then the Longteng Escort Office will definitely lend a hand with all our might!” After announcing that, Zhao Qin raised his cup and drank three more cups in quick succession.

Just as Zhao Qin was about to pour a fourth cup of wine, Li Huowang stopped him with his chopsticks. “Leader Zhao, it’s best not to drink too much wine. Also, I do in fact have something that I need your help with. Since all of you are in the escort business, and your escorts are all quite skilled, do you have any suitable sword techniques?”

This request was not just for Chun Xiaoman, but also for himself. He had just acquired a great sword from the Abbess. However, without any proper sword techniques, even if he had a great sword, its uses would be limited to poking bonfires and dancing around with it.

Since Zhao Qin had offered his help first, Li Huowang decided to make his request known.

Chapter 144 - The Green Forest

“Sword techniques? Yes, of course we do!” Zhao Qin replied decisively. “Though the Escort Office doesn’t use swords as much, since Benefactor has requested, we would have found a way to bring you some sword techniques even if we didn’t have any!”

Hearing this, Li Huowang raised his cup and gave Zhao Qin a toast. “Then, thank you, Leader Zhao.”

As the wine flowed, the atmosphere of the banquet gradually grew warmer. As the cups were refilled and the dishes were replaced, the atmosphere grew quite lively.

However, Li Huowang himself did not enjoy such settings. When he saw that the others were almost done, he planned to get up and leave.

At that moment, he saw Puppy carrying a cup of hot tea while walking toward him.

Puppy glanced at Zhao Qin behind him, then leaned toward Li Huowang and whispered, “Senior Li, didn’t Junior Bai previously say that money was only flowing out but not in? Shouldn’t we try to find a way to make money?”

“Ah, what are you trying to say?” asked Li Huowang, irritated. Bai Lingmiao had indeed complained about this issue on multiple occasions, to the point that his ears had almost fallen off.

Puppy’s brows flew up. “Look, this is a golden opportunity! We can get them to teach us how to be escorts! Since we’re going toward the Liang Kingdom anyway, we can receive escort missions on the way. It’s a win-win! And look, this bunch is capable of treating us to such expensive food. Providing escort service must bring in quite a bit of money!”

Li Huowang was rather surprised by Puppy’s quick thinking, especially when it came to handling money. It was indeed a feasible plan.

They could use the money they made by providing escort service to cover their expenses, and send the excess to Abbess Jingxin.

Though Abbess Jingxin had only brought up those 30,000 pieces of gold casually, it would be rather inexcusable if he did not send anything to repay such a huge gift.

He didn’t want to owe anything to anyone, much less the only person who had helped him ever since he arrived here.

When Li Huowang raised this issue with Zhao Qin, the latter readily agreed. “Sure! Since Brother Li wishes to join us, then I’ll be your guarantor! As long as you take my recommendation letter, you’ll be able to take missions from any escort office!”

However, after making this promise, he started to offer some advice, “But, providing escort service is not so easy. The escorts from our office have a mantra that they call ‘the three points for safety’. These so-called ‘three points for safety’ are to have a friendly demeanor, be accommodating in your dealings, and to keep your drinking at the table moderate. Outsiders often believe that escorts rely solely on their strong martial arts. However, in reality that only covers half of it. The other, more important half relies on networking and connections, which can be very troublesome.”

Zhao Qin’s face was flushed as he once again raised his cup and drained it before waving his hand. “Brother Li, if you are in need of money, just say the word. I’ll give you however much you need!”

His words were spoken with conviction, but Li Huowang knew he couldn’t take them at face value.

Any item had a value attached to it. While Li Huowang had helped his wife, he hadn’t healed her completely; she was just placed on the path to recovery.

He could accept receiving some sword techniques and being introduced into the escort trade, but to cause the other party to become destitute was definitely going way too far.

“Leader Zhao, thank you for the offer. However, I feel it’s better for me to be self-reliant.”

After going back and forth for a while, Zhao Qin sighed. “Alright, since Brother Li is so stubborn. Then, come to the escort office tomorrow. I’ll teach you the necessary code words myself.”

“Code word? What do you mean ‘code word?’” asked Li Huowang.

“Code words refers to the jargon used in the martial world. When you encounter bandits, you must be able to speak their language,” explained Zhao Qin.

“Ah, I see,” Li Huowang suddenly seemed to think of something, “Then, what does ‘shoulders together, throw me a vine’ mean?”

This was the phrase that those water bandits had said to him on the lake. Thinking back, this could have been their attempt at exchanging code words.

“‘Shoulders together’ means ‘brother’, and ‘throw me a vine’ means to report your name.” Zhao Qin explained.

“Then what if we’re unable to answer?” asked Li Huowang.

“If you are unable to answer the code word, then that means you’re an outsider. In such a situation, most that raise the black flag will directly attack,” replied Zhao Qin.

“Ah, I see...” Li Huowang’s chopsticks were raised as he seemed to think about something.

At that moment, Puppy interjected from beside him. “Escort Head, it shouldn’t really matter whether the code words are exchanged or not, right? After all, those insignificant bandits cannot cause any huge waves. Wouldn’t it be fine to just slaughter them all?”

“Insignificant bandits?” Zhao Qin chuckled. “Do you really think that all bandit groups are just a random group of evil people that come together to plunder? The waters run deep, my friend.”

This sentence piqued Li Huowang’s interest. “Leader Zhao, please elaborate.”

Ever since they had come out of Zephyr Temple, they had already encountered two bandit groups in these short few months. This meant that there could be many more encounters in future, and it was definitely beneficial to get a better understanding of this.

An escort office that undertook missions often would also understand this quite well.

“I admit that some of the wandering bandits lack strength. However, they are not the only ones in this huge green forest; among those who raise the black flag, there are many players, both big and small. Not talking about the various bandits on Dongyi Mountain, there’s the Southern Overlord of the Western Wilderness. Basically, any of them that can make a name for themselves are all capable powers. With them, ruling the mountain is not just a saying. They may have thousands of followers under them,” Zhao Qin took a gulp of wine and continued, “There is also a critical saying, which tells one to strategically keep one’s adversaries without taking any action against them. Behind the bandits may well be some official connections. Don’t be fooled by their current status as bandits. If, by any chance, one day they receive an Imperial Edict, they would quickly transition from outlaws to law-abiding citizens. Can you understand the relationships at play in all this? If you don’t follow their protocols such as exchanging code words, can you still do escort missions? Everything in this world has its rules, and this vast green forest is the same.”

Through Zhao Qin’s explanation, Li Huowang slowly began to understand a corner of this mysterious world.

Li Huowang thought back to the scene of the water bandit's ritual. He paused for a moment, then asked, "Among these people, are there any who are skilled practitioners of dark or mystical arts?"

As he was now, he was no longer afraid of ordinary bandits. However, nothing in this world was so simple.

Even that small group of water bandits in the reed river were somehow in possession of the Profound Records and were capable of wreaking havoc. The larger groups of mountain bandits were likely to have even stronger capabilities

When he asked this question, the atmosphere of the dining table suddenly cooled down.

As he saw the nervous looks on the faces of these escorts, Li Huowang already knew the answer to his question.

Zhao Qin hesitated for a moment, then sighed. "Basically, my point still stands. Everything needs to follow rules. Who knows who is really behind these mountain or water bandits. Though the Imperial Guards have a Surveillance Bureau, the current Emperor can't even secure his own throne, let alone manage these matters. Also, there are certain things that us ordinary folks should stay out of."

Chapter 145 - Drunk

Under the influence of alcohol, Zhao Qin shared quite a lot of things with Li Huowang; it was almost as though he was trying to dissuade Li Huowang from becoming an escort.

However, Li Huowang's attention was drawn to a name that Zhao Qin mentioned. "Leader Zhao, what was that Surveillance Bureau that you mentioned?"

Though Li Huowang had been here for a couple of months, it was still the first time he heard of some terms. It was a good opportunity for him to learn more.

"The Surveillance Bureau is supposedly a group of highly-skilled individuals appointed by the Emperor. Whenever there are sinister affairs that the local enforcement cannot manage on their own, they are the ones that are called upon to handle it," explained Zhao Qin.

Li Huowang was not surprised by this. Since the Si Qi dynasty was so stable, there had to be some people who could manage these sorts of strange powers.

However, he did not know if these people were specially trained by the palace, or recruited from outside.

When Zhao Qin saw that Li Huowang did not reply, he continued, "But even then, they are not always reliable. One such example was four years ago; there was a town which was completely slaughtered mysteriously."

"Tsk, tens of thousands of people, gone in just a single night," Zhao Qin lamented, not noticing that the fingers that Li Huowang was using to hold the cup had gone pale.

Wang Chengxing chimed in, "I heard about that incident too. It was rather tragic; some victims weren't even left with complete bodies. How could they do such a thing? Aren't they also birthed by their parents? They're worse than animals."

At this point, Li Huowang saw Jiang Yingzi approach him with a fierce expression. "Do you see how others talk about you?! What right do you have to live?! Why don't you go and die?!"

Li Huowang's chest heaved up and down.

Others may not have noticed this change, but Bai Lingmiao was able to sense that something was amiss. She quietly changed seats with Xiaoman and cupped Li Huowang's trembling hands, "Senior Li, are you alright?"

Li Huowang took a deep breath and smiled at Zhao Qin, "Leader Zhao, let's not discuss state affairs. Such matters are not something that us ordinary folk should be concerned with."

"That's right! Let the important people worry about them. Let's drink! Here's another toast to Brother Li!" said Zhao Qin.

"Cheers!" said Li Huowang as he picked up the pot of wine and poured it directly into his mouth. However, he could not handle alcohol, even more so because this was strong liquor.

That night, Li Huowang didn't even know when he became drunk. That dazed feeling was not bad; there was no need for him to think or worry about anything.

"Li Huowang... Li Huowang!"

He woke up abruptly to a voice. When he opened his eyes, he was staring right at Jiang Yingzi's face that was filled with hatred.

Any normal person would be startled if they woke up to see a blood-stained girl with severed limbs.

However, Li Huowang was already used to it.

After a moment, he looked at Dan Yangzi who was floating on the ceiling, and then propped himself up on the bed.

He was wearing simple clothes when he got up, but immediately sat back down while holding his head in agony.

I really can't handle alcohol...

It was the first time Li Huowang had felt the pain of a hangover; he had a feeling that the extreme pain could perhaps be due to his heightened senses.

At that moment, the door creaked open as Bai Lingmiao carried a basin and walked in. When she saw Li Huowang sitting on the bed while holding his head with an agonized expression, she quickly approached him before placing the basin on the table.

The water splashed around as she wringed the wet handkerchief. Then, she went behind him and used one hand to support Li Huowang's head, while lightly wiping his face.

When she was cleaning his neck, Li Huowang looked up at her face which was barely inches from his own. "Where are we?"

"We are still in the escort office. Leader Zhao told me to tell you that when you wake up, you shouldn't hurry to leave. He has already sent people to look for the sword techniques that you requested," replied Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang glanced at the two swords placed beside his red Daoist robes, and nodded.

Seeing this, Bai Lingmiao seemed to understand what Li Huowang wanted. She walked across and placed that longsword into Li Huowang's hands.

This was the first time he was carefully examining this sword after he had obtained it.

The sword was three feet and two inches long, and about half a finger in width. It was in predominantly darker colors, and a dark-purple silk tassel that was slightly longer than an inch hung on the black hilt. The hilt had a carving of a ferocious beast with bared fangs. When he touched it, it felt as though his fingers were being cut by something sharp.

At first glance, this sword seemed very ordinary. There was nothing that made it seem like a powerful weapon.

Li Huowang thought about it for a moment, but finally decided not to draw the sword. Not because of the noise it would make, but because the feeling he got from it was different.

For some reason, this thing gave him an unsettling feeling, just like the Profound Records.

Abdess said that this sword will not be able to threaten me. Even so, I feel that it's better to not unsheathe it if not necessary.

"Senior Li, can you walk? If not, I'll bring your breakfast here," asked Bai Lingmiao.

"No need, I just needed some rest. Without Dan Yangzi rushing us from behind, we can take our time," said Li Huowang.

Just as he finished speaking, a creepy sound of three people laughing rang out from the ceiling.

Li Huowang looked up to see his Master's three heads staring at him together, their gazes full of ridicule.

"What're you laughing at?!" shouted Li Huowang.

"Senior... Li?" Bai Lingmiao glanced at the empty ceiling, then back toward Li Huowang, feeling uneasy.

"Nothing, let's go eat," said Li Huowang as he placed his right hand on her shoulder while stumbling toward the exit.

When they stepped outside, the sun was already shining brightly.

At this moment, the entire escort office, both in the front and the backyard, was quite lively.

From the looks of it, Zhao Qin had given everyone some instructions; anyone that saw Li Huowang treated him very respectfully.

Li Huowang looked past the wooden pillars on his right, toward the bustling martial arts training ground. He could see Puppy, Gao Zhijian, Chun Xiaoman, Sun Baolu and the others. They seemed to be gesticulating with some escorts.

"What are they doing?" Li Huowang was puzzled.

"Earlier, Puppy requested them to give him some pointers. In the end, the rest came over to join the party, and it became like this,” replied Bai Lingmiao.

“Ah, he really knows how to get the small advantages. Right, go to the inn and let Troupe Leader Lu know about where we are. He may think that we have left him behind if he doesn’t see any of us,” instructed Li Huowang.

“Okay, got it.”

At that moment, Li Huowang glanced toward Dan Yangzi, and then asked, “Is there any trouble with the Immortal families?”

Bai Lingmiao blinked. “No. Why do you ask, Senior Li?”

“That’s good. Let me know if there’s anything. Remember, you’re not Li Zhi. If anything happens, I’ll think of a solution,” said Li Huowang.

“Okay.”

Once the surroundings fell silent, the two of them enjoyed this rare moment of tranquility while walking slowly toward the kitchen.

Given their travels, it was hard to have moments like this.

As they walked, Bai Lingmiao slightly leaned on Li Huowang, a sweet feeling welling up in her heart.

“If there’s anything, don’t hide it from me. Even if it’s very difficult, we can think of a solution together. Moreover, right now... you’re all I have,” said Li Huowang.

“Mm...”

Translator's Thoughts

Bai Lingmiao as a Shaman! Though she technically is something else in this form, but close enough. Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin.

Chapter 146 - Practice

“Eat... eat... eat...”

As he watched Gao Zhijian stutter and struggle to speak, Li Huowang sighed in frustration. Then, he reached out to take the two books from the big chap’s hands. “Alright, that’s enough. You can leave.”

After the disheartened Gao Zhijian went out, Li Huowang turned his attention back to the two books.

One of them was a regular paper book, while the other was encased in a semi-transparent wax cover. The wax-covered book was the Fiery Scripture that Jiang Yingzi had given him, along with her translations.

The Fiery Scripture was a good object. Despite the excruciating pain it caused during the healing process, it would be valuable in saving lives if any of them suffered from any external injuries in future.

It would be quite a waste if he did not learn how to make use of such a good item. However, Li Huowang had become almost completely illiterate. He could not even read the written translations, let alone the strange words written in the Fiery Scripture.

Things can’t go on like this. I can’t remain illiterate my entire life. I must re-learn how to read.

Li Huowang helplessly stuffed the Fiery Scripture back into his pocket.

While it was right to think that way, it would take several years to systematically learn a language from scratch. Even if he hired someone else to help him translate, it would still take several months, and he didn’t have the luxury of time.

It was even more tiring when he had to ask Simpleton to teach him, since he was the only person who was literate in their group. However, he could stutter on two sentences for over ten minutes.

Even so, Li Huowang was unyielding; he re-opened the translated text, “Wood.. mouth... person...”

Currently, he could recognise only the most simple characters on the page.

“Haha, this is really returning all we have learnt to the teacher,” Li Huowang mocked himself. He had assumed that after Dan Yangzi’s death, the knowledge that he had lost would return to him. But from the looks of it, that was clearly not the case.

Just then, someone knocked on the wooden door. “Brother Li, are you there? I’ve found the sword manual you had wanted.”

Li Huowang perked up, and stood up to open the door. The matter about the Fiery Scripture had to be pushed back. He had waited here for so long, just for all these sword techniques.

Soon, Zhao Qin had passed the sword manual to Li Huowang.

There were four large characters written on it, but Li Huowang could not understand them.

“I noticed that Brother Li uses a three-foot long sword, and so I picked this manual that matches it. It is a sword technique from the Duan Clan, so it’s suitable for you. This sword technique was created by the genius, Duan Si. It’s different from the other techniques as it focuses on straightforward strikes rather than finesse,” explained Zhao Qin.

“Duan Clan sword technique?” Li Huowang mumbled to himself, then flipped open the manual. He saw that most of it was illustrations, with only sporadic written annotations. When he saw this, he breathed a sigh of relief.

“No worries, you can have your Leader Zhao instruct you about this. Just memorize the key points and you should be fine,” said Zhao Qin.

Li Huowang turned toward Zhao Qin. “Leader Zhao, I’ve not learnt to use a sword before this. Could you give me some pointers on how to start?”

“Oh? You’ve never used a sword? Not even the basics?” Zhao Qin was puzzled as he looked at the two swords on Li Huowang’s back. But as an experienced escort master, he was quickly able to figure it out.

He placed his hand on Li Huowang’s shoulder and gestured outside, “It’s alright. Sword techniques can be picked up by anyone. I may be no genius, but I will be able to teach Brother Li for a few days.”

As they spoke, they walked toward the martial arts training grounds where Li Huowang saw Xiaoman practicing with Puppy and the others.

At that moment, he shouted toward Xiaoman, “Xiaoman, come here!”

When he saw this, Zhao Qin nodded in approval. “Good choice, Brother Li. It’s best to have a partner to practice with. Otherwise, there won’t be anyone for you to spar against in future.”

Meanwhile, Xiaoman was rather excited as she gripped her own sword. She seemed to understand the reason behind why Li Huowang was calling her over.

In the following days, Li Huowang began his life of training to be a swordsman.

With the guidance of an experienced person like Leader Zhao who taught patiently, the two students learnt eagerly. Both Li Huowang and Chun Xiaoman progressed quite fast.

Clang!

Sparks flew into the air as both Li Huowang and Chun Xiaoman were knocked back a few steps.

Chun Xiaoman gripped her sword tightly, then stepped forward with her right foot before charging ahead.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang twisted his body to dodge her attack. When he saw her wooden sword miss its target, he quickly counter-attacked, launching a series of blows.

Li Huowang's quick movements disrupted Chun Xiaoman's rhythm, causing her to make mistakes. Not long after, her sword was knocked out of her hands, and her defeat was greeted by cheers all around.

Impressed, Zhao Qin approached Li Huowang, "Brother Li, you have remarkable aptitude. In just a short fifteen days, you've already trained to this level. You're a martial arts genius!"

This was not just flattery. As the leader of an escort office, he had seen far too many seedlings before; however, there were few that were like Li Huowang.

"You're too kind, I still have a long way to go," Li Huowang replied modestly. Only he understood why his progress was so much faster than Chun Xiaoman.

Ba-Hui's attention had not just enhanced his sense of pain, but also his other senses. These enhanced senses allowed Li Huowang to learn quite efficiently. While he did not know if they would impact him negatively in the future, they were at least beneficial for him currently.

At that moment, he passed the bamboo sword in his hand to Sun Baolu, then turned back to Zhao Qin. "Leader Zhao, it has been troublesome for you these few days. We've spent too much time here and cannot dawdle further. We ought to set off. I'll visit if I'm back."

The master may be able to help them get a foot into the door, but in the end cultivation was dependent on the individual.

Since he was already on the path of swordsmanship, there was no need for Li Huowang to continue wasting his time here. There wasn't much that Zhao Qin could teach him, since he did not use a sword.

“Alright! Brother Li, please follow me. I want to give you something,” said Zhao Qin.

In Zhao Qin’s office, a bunch of paper and ink were arranged neatly.

He picked up the brush and started to write. Then, he blew dried the letter and placed it within an envelope.

“This is my letter of guarantee. In the escort trade, I do have some influence. Brother Li can go to any escort office and use this letter to receive escort missions,” said Zhao Qin.

Li Huowang accepted the letter and clasped his hands toward Zhao Qin. “Thank you for your guidance these past few days.”

After much consideration, Li Huowang finally felt that they could take on some escort missions.

Puppy was right; since they had to travel, they might as well make a living out of it; it would be killing two birds with one stone.

“Brother Li is too kind. This is nothing. You are my benefactor who finally allowed my wife to recognize me! I won’t ask where you’re going or what you’re doing. If you ever come back to this town, then be sure to come and visit!”

Translator's Thoughts

Bai Lingmiao's second deity looks like! Or at least how she looks like when she summons the Immortals on her body. Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin.

Chapter 147 - Hou Shu

“Benefactor Li, let’s meet again!”

“Safe travels!”

“Take care of yourselves!”

The entire escort office came out to send off Li Huowang and the rest. With this, they had officially left the Longteng Escort Office.

As he saw them traveling further and further away, Wang Chengxing stopped smiling and glanced at his Master. “Master, did you see the sword on that person’s back? It was not something you can see everyday. I could feel dense killing intent from it.”

Zhao Qin frowned and nodded. “Of course I did. I also know whose personal sword it was. It belonged to General Zixiong.”

“What? General Zixiong’s personal sword? Then why did you not do anything for the past half a month?” asked Wang Chengxing.

“And what would you have liked me to do? Steal it? Ask him where he got it? Or report him?”

Wang Chengxing remained silent as Zhao Qin continued to chastise him. “You think I am blind? Do you think I couldn’t tell that there was something wrong with him? The red bamboo slips on his waist, the various torture tools, and that gourd. Heck, even the comrades around him were all malformed in one way or another. This matter is not something I should interfere in. He improved Fengxia’s condition and in return I acknowledged his request to get him a sword training manual. I even gave him a letter of recommendation from me. At the very least, everyone earned something. This was the best case scenario. While we must always make sure to see through everyone’s intention, we mustn’t say it out loud all the time.”

“I understand, Master. It’s my fault for thinking too rashly,” said Wang Chengxing.

Meanwhile, back in the carriage. The horses were already restless from not traveling for half a month. The moment they were out of the city gates, the horses ran joyfully.

“Ho... Hold on!” Zhao Wu handled the reins and calmed the horses down, maintaining a constant speed.

Then, he turned around and asked, “Senior Li, where should we go now?”

“To the border. We’ve done everything we needed to in the kingdom of Si Qi, and so it’s time to leave. The situation here is getting more and more chaotic, so it’s best if we reach the Liang Kingdom soon,” replied Li Huowang.

As he spoke up to this point, Li Huowang felt uneasy; he turned to Bai Lingmiao. “Since even the kingdom of Si Qi is about to get involved in the war, would the Liang Kingdom also be affected? Your house—”

However, even before Bai Lingmiao could answer him, Lu Zhuangyuan overheard his words and approached him. “Hai! Young Daoist, you are thinking too much. The Liang Kingdom is at least four to five times larger than the kingdom of Si Qi. Also, the emperor of the Liang Kingdom is a powerful individual. If there really is a war, then it would be them waging it against another kingdom and not the other way around.”

With this, Li Huowang now knew that the Liang Kingdom was a major kingdom compared to the others. It was clear that Lu Zhuangyuan had done his homework beforehand.

Just then, Li Huowang realized something was different about Lu Zhuangyuan. “Troupe leader Lu, did something good happen to you?”

Compared to aged and wrinkled appearance from before, he looked like he had become a few years younger and there was a constant smile hanging on his mouth.

“Hehe, oh it’s nothing, hehehe.” Lu Zhuangyuan wanted to endure but the smile on his face sold him out.

Then, he climbed up his horse carriage and grabbed a sack. “Here, have some eggs.”

Two red eggs were passed into Li Huowang’s hands. It was not only Li Huowang who got them, everyone else did as well.

Lu Zhuangyuan was not someone who would be generous enough to give everyone eggs for no reason. After a moment, Zhao Wu realized the meaning behind the red eggs.

“Brother Juren! Is your sister-in-law pregnant? Congratulations! May she give birth to a healthy son,” congratulated Zhao Wu.

Faced with his well-wishes, Lu Juren’s smile was unnaturally forced. On the other hand, Lu Zhuangyuan took charge of the situation quite naturally.

“Did you see my daughter-in-law’s stomach? The bulge is sharp and recently, she has been craving sour food. It seems that I’m having a grandson this time around!” said Lu Zhuangyuan, his voice full of joy.

As she heard his words, Luo Juanhua sat on the horse carriage, looking just like a proud general returning victorious from a war.

“Everyone, please join us in the full moon celebration when the time comes.” The more Lu Zhuangyuan spoke, the happier he became, while his eyes became slanted from smiling so much.

Li Huowang munched on his eggs while observing the difference in the father-son duo. He felt that something was amiss, to the point that the egg tasted weird. But he decided to ignore them; he was not interested in gossip and was too lazy to be bothered by it. He just leaped onto the horse carriage and unfurled his map.

“The next kingdom is... The next one...” As Li Huowang stared at the strange blocky character, he felt stunned. He had never really thought about how impaired he would be from becoming illiterate.

He sighed and popped his head out from the carriage. “Troupe leader Lu, what’s the next kingdom on our way to the Liang Kingdom?”

“I think it’s called the Hou Shu Kingdom,” replied Lu Zhuangyuan.

“Hou Shu?” mumbled Li Huowang as he stared at the words on the map.

“Troupe leader Lu, do you know any famous sects in Hou Shu Kingdom? Or maybe dangerous evil beings?” asked Li Huowang.

“Hai~ Young Daoist, you are asking me questions I don’t know the answer to. I’m not that knowledgeable. It’s already very good of me to know that the kingdom next to the kingdom of Si Qi is Hou Shu.”

That’s a fair point. He’s a performer so it’s natural that he wouldn’t know details pertaining to another country.

“Do any of you know anything about Hou Shu?” Li Huowang turned to the rest of his group.

It would be better for him to understand the places they would be arriving at.

However, he was disappointed when everyone shook their heads. From the looks of it, none of them were captured from Hou Shu.

“Senior Li, I remember that one of the assistants was from Hou Shu, but he drowned last time,” said Xiaoman.

Hearing this, Li Huowang sighed.

They could only take one step at a time. At the very least, things were much better off than the last time. He was no longer in danger of being possessed by Dan Yangzi. They also had more methods of self defense compared to when they first walked out of the Zephyr Temple.

As Li Huowang leaped down from the horse carriage, he saw Lu Zhuangyuan smiling sheepishly while approaching him.

“Aiya~ My brain is really getting old. I almost forgot the story of Hou Shu that my blind second uncle used to tell me when I was younger. He told me that the people of Hou Shu do not prefer to watch traveling performers like us. I recall him saying something about them instead preferring to watch Nuo Opera.”

“Nuo Opera?” asked Li Huowang.

“Yeah, Nuo Opera is a weird name. My second uncle even said that they don’t have to put on makeup. When they perform, all they need to do is to cover their heads with a red cloth and wear different wooden masks to perform,” explained Lu Zhuangyuan.

Li Huowang stopped him; he was not interested in listening to the difference in theater performances between different kingdoms. The people of Hou Shu could watch any type of theater performance they liked and it wouldn’t matter to him. He was not like Lu Zhuangyuan, who was trying to steal some of their business.

Translator's Thoughts

Just so you know, sometimes performances in China are also called operas, like Beijing or Sichuan Opera

Chapter 148 - Nuo Opera

Soon, they arrived at the border of the kingdom of Si Qi.

As could be expected, the borders were being controlled by the military in order to prevent spies from entering the kingdom.

The border was being tightly monitored. None of the people here had smiles on their faces.

After a while, the two groups managed to leave the border peacefully with the help of some pieces of silver.

The kingdom of Si Qi was a place filled with rivers and lakes. After exiting the kingdom, everything around them started to become barren; the trees were slowly replaced by sand dunes.

By the tenth night of their travels, there were no more trees in sight.

The further they traveled, the more barren it was. Li Huowang had a feeling that this was Hou Shu's natural terrain.

“Whew~” Zhao Wu sighed, his breath condensing into a white vapor from the cold air. He was the one on night duty tonight. He rubbed his cold palms and continued to breathe into them for some warmth.

Given that it was almost summer solstice, it shouldn't be this cold. But out in the desert, there was not a single object blocking the wind. Additionally they couldn't get any firewood to chop, and so there was no fire. Thus, it was natural for it to be cold.

Zhao Wu turned around and stared at Li Huowang cuddling Bai Lingmiao while sleeping. At this moment, he felt envious of Li Huowang.

He looked down at his fragile and deformed body; he felt inadequate. He wanted a wife, but no one would marry him due to his condition.

After a while, he took another breath of the cold, dry air, feeling sleepy. He tried keeping himself awake by using a small rock to write words onto the sand.

Some of them were taught to him by Li Huowang while others by Gao Zhijian.

I need to learn how to read. I must!

Zhao Wu's eyes were filled with determination. He needed to prove to his father that he was not a waste of resources!

After he learned how to read and write, he would become a fortune teller in a temple and help people write letters to earn money.

If he could read, then he would be able to study a lot and even try his luck on the examination to become a minister!

By then...

Just as he was thinking about his future, he felt someone move behind him, the sudden change sending shivers down his spine.

He started to tremble in fear and was about to shout to wake everyone up when a hand without fingernails covered his mouth.

"Don't shout, it's me!"

Hearing Li Huowang's voice calmed him down. Zhao Wu whispered. "Senior Li, what's wrong?"

Zhao Wu scanned his surroundings but didn't see anything besides the dark sand dunes.

"Shh~ Something is crawling toward us. Let me check and see if it's alive," said Li Huowang.

Then, Li Huowang cleared his throat and shouted in a certain direction. "Three men and four youths walk on the shore, swim out the river and anger the sea serpent. I wonder what method it is today?"

Li Huowang's voice echoed across the sand dune and into the night sky. His voice was so loud that everyone else woke up.

"Is the spring book open?" A hoarse voice asked from further away.

“The spring book is open!” replied Li Huowang.

“Shoulders together, throw me a vine?”

Li Huowang bowed in the direction of the voice. “A golden pagoda facing the green hut with sand at the back! Meat dumpling vine!”

“Oh, so it’s Daoist Li, are you passing or visiting?” asked the voice.

“We are passing, may I know your name?” replied Li Huowang.

However, after Li Huowang asked for their name, there was no reply. It was only after the sky brightened up that Li Huowang felt them leave.

“To think I had to use the codeword so soon after learning them.” Li Huowang mumbled to himself. Even though he had detected someone approaching them last night, Li Huowang wasn’t sure if the owner of the voice was alone or the leader of a group of bandits.

Being able to avoid fighting by just saying a few words was an excellent outcome. After all, Li Huowang didn’t know what kind of fighting methods the bandits would have, especially those of a supernatural source.

When Lu Zhuangyuan heard about what had happened from Li Huowang, he felt quite afraid.

“Yikes. We’ve only been here for a few days and were already intercepted by bandits. It seems that Hou Shu isn’t a safe place to be,” said Lu Zhuangyuan.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang sat down as he continued to practice the codewords a few more times. “Who cares if it’s safe or not? We are just passing by the kingdom. Let’s hurry up and move. If we travel faster, then we can reach the town before nightfall.”

After this incident, their travels were rather peaceful. Even though it was still barren, at the very least they were not intercepted by bandits.

Just as Lu Zhuangyuan was trying to butter up Li Huowang, they encountered a group of people.

“Dad, why does that horse look so weird? It even has two humps on its back.” asked Lu Xiucui.

“Are you stupid? That’s a camel,” replied Lu Zhuangyuan.

Ding ding ding~

The bell hanging on the camel’s neck rang incessantly as they slowly walked on the hardened path. Li Huowang took a glance and saw that the riders had their faces covered to prevent the sand from entering their eyes.

The appearance of the camels was like a signal as more and more groups of people started appearing on the hardened path.

Li Huowang and the rest finally reached the first town in Hou Shu before nightfall.

Just as they had entered the town, they immediately realized the difference between Hou Shu and the kingdom of Si Qi. Both the buildings and the clothing of the people of Hou Shu were a lot more coarse. Many of them also covered their faces, not necessarily to keep the sand out of their eyes.

At the very least, Li Huowang’s group of people in black veils were not that conspicuous.

“Let’s go and find an inn. We’ve been traveling for many days and it’s time to rest,” said Li Huowang.

Hearing this, all their tired faces instantly lit up. It was purely torture to travel without fire and a supply of water.

All of them followed each other closely as they merged into the crowd.

The nearby stalls were selling food. The tantalizing smell of skewers and noodles was good enough to entice all of them.

Soon, they arrived at an empty plaza; this was most likely the center of the town.

At that moment, the sound of drums and cymbals instantly attracted their attention within the crowd.

“Is that a group performing Nuo Opera?” mumbled Li Huowang as he watched the three performers jumping around from within the crowd.

Shaking their heads, twisting their body, squatting, snaking their arms, running around, and jumping. The three performers had their heads covered with red clothes while they donned wooden masks. Their dance was eccentric and non-humanlike; it was as if a monster had come up with the choreography for the dance.

At the same time, the chaotic sound of the musical instrument accompanied their strange dance. Occasionally, there was even the sound of a horn.

The sound of the black horn being played was akin to the sound of a crying ghost.

Drums, cymbals, horns, and their strange dance—all of them made Li Huowang feel uncomfortable.

On the other hand, the rest of the townsfolk were in a trance as they sat there and silently enjoyed the show.

“What is this? Is this a performance?” Lu Zhuangyuan, who worked in the same line of business, said distastefully.

He had just said that when the three performers twisted their bodies even more wildly. As they twisted, sharp white fangs protruded out from the opening in the wooden mask where the mouth was supposed to be. It was like the white fangs had grown like a sprout.

However, there were not two, but sixteen white fangs!

The white fangs trembled and shook, following the beat of the drum.

“This is... Teeth play?”

Their teeth play was amazing. Li Huowang saw the white fangs retracting and extruding from their mouth fluidly, almost giving him the impression that the white fangs were indeed grown in their mouth.

Translator's Thoughts

This is how Teeth Play looks like:

Chapter 149 - Old Friend

Their limbs twisted and danced while the white fangs fluidly protruded and retracted from their mouths, following the rhythm of the musical instruments.

Li Huowang stood there, just watching their performance from afar. At this moment, he didn't feel like a spectator, but a tree watching wild beasts.

After some time, a high pitched voice rang out from behind their wooden masks as they began to sing in an unknown language.

Li Huowang and the rest did not recognize it. However, the singer's tone fluctuated high and low along with the musical instruments; it had its own charm.

After listening to them singing for a little longer, Li Huowang continued walking. Regardless of how weird their performance was, it had nothing to do with him.

He had just taken a few steps when he noticed Lu Zhuangyuan just standing motionlessly.

"No need to worry about us, please go ahead. Hmph! I want to see what's so special about their show," said Lu Zhuangyuan. For some reason, a burning sense of competition had been ignited within Lu Zhuangyuan.

Maybe it's because they are performers as well?

"Dad, why don't we watch their performance next time? We are in foreign lands and it might not be safe," suggested Lu Juren.

Lu Zhuangyuan's eyes widened and he brought his smoke pipe up to hit him. "Are you trying to control your father? There are so many people on the street. Why wouldn't it be safe?"

While they argued, Li Huowang brought the rest of them and departed.

After fifteen minutes, they finally found an inn and booked their rooms.

In an old musty room, Li Huowang placed his belongings on the table and sighed.

Two swords, the Profound Records, the sacred text, and all his torture tools. All of them added up, making it so that his traveling gear was not light at all.

At that moment, he poured some water from the teacup and drank it before frowning.

When Bai Lingmiao, who was arranging the sheets, saw him frown, she asked. "What's wrong?"

"Here, taste this. Do you think the water tastes weird?" Li Huowang passed her the cup of water.

Bai Lingmiao tasted it and was astonished. "You are right. There's an earthy taste to it."

"I thought it was due to my heightened sensitivity, but it seems that the quality of Hou Shu's water is subpar," said Li Huowang as he opened the window. "I need you guys to go out tomorrow and gather some information. It would be best if you can obtain a map so that we don't have to make any unwanted detours."

"Okay. As you wish." Bai Lingmiao finished arranging the bed before taking off Li Huowang's Daoist robes. "When we were tying up the horses, I saw a well nearby. Since we have some time, I will go wash your clothes. Also, I recall that one of the assistants who died used to live in this town. We can send her ashes back home."

Li Huowang suddenly remembered that someone did say that one of the dead assistants was from the Hou Shu Kingdom.

"Who's taking care of the ashes? I will go and send them back home now," asked Li Huowang.

"Now? It's already quite late. Why don't we go tomorrow?" suggested Bai Lingmiao.

But in the end, Li Huowang still took the ashes and exited the inn with Yang Xiaohai and Bun. He was not someone who delayed such small tasks.

He needed Yang Xiaohai to come with him, because the dead assistant was his friend; Yang Xiaohai knew where her house was.

At the same time, Li Huowang's other purpose in bringing Yang Xiaohai with him was to have at least one person beside him in case he got caught up in his hallucination once again. Li Huowang required at least one person by his side. Then, at the very least, that person could run back and call the others.

At this moment, Yang Xiaohai held the ashes as he told Li Huowang about the dead assistant.

“Back in Zephyr Temple, we used to call her Liar Mao because she loved to lie. She kept saying that her house was larger than the Zephyr Temple and that her family had over a hundred goats and cows. She also said that she was the only daughter in their house, and so everyone loved her. Her father would kill as many goats as she wanted and they had unlimited mutton to eat,” explained Yang Xiaohai.

Li Huowang stared at the ash jar. “The assistant was a girl?”

“Yeah. Do you not remember her, Senior Li?” asked Yang Xiaohai.

Li Huowang shook his head. He never remembered any of the assistants' names; he had never paid attention to the hardworking children.

“Sigh... Such a pity. She had already managed to escape the Zephyr Temple and yet, she drowned.” Li Huowang pitied her.

“Do you know how disgusting those words sound when you say them? Do you have any qualifications to say those words? Do you know how just many people you strangled to death with your own hands?”

Jiang Yingzi's words annoyed him, causing Li Huowang to lose his patience. “Shut up!”

Hearing those words, Yang Xiaohai jumped up from surprise. Even though he had seen Senior Li talking to himself so many times, it was still quite unnatural to him.

Li Huowang's face was gloomy as they silently walked toward the dead assistant's house. He tried to ignore the illusions, but it was not so simple this time.

They walked further and further away from the town center until they reached the border of the town.

At this moment, the sun was setting and there were very few people out on the streets. Many of them were hurrying back to their homes.

Just as Li Huowang was about to ask if Yang Xiaohai really knew the way, a joyous shout rang out from behind them.

"Hey! Daoist! Daoist, it's me!"

Hearing the shout, Li Huowang turned around and was surprised to see who it was.

It was the old monk that stayed behind in the Righteous Monastery, Monk!

Compared to his clean and well-groomed look from back then, he was now back to his old disheveled self.

"Monk, how did you get here? Weren't you staying at the Righteous Monastery?"

Monk grumbled and lamented. "Don't talk about it. I was so bored back in the monastery. Not only could I not do anything, they even forced me to read the sutras. I couldn't stand it any longer and just left. Wait, where are you guys going?"

"We... are sending something to someone. Let's go together. By the way, did the Monks from the Righteous Monastery try to stop you from leaving them?" asked Li Huowang.

"No. Not only did they not harass me, but they even gave me some money. The monks were all good guys," said Monk.

"Heh." Li Huowang snorted, too lazy to argue.

Having met an old face, Li Huowang felt happy. It was much more relaxing to be with simple folks.

As they talked, Li Huowang and Monk continued walking. Li Huowang kept talking about the past and Monk was somehow able to keep the conversation going.

Just as they were happily talking to each other, Yang Xiaohai's voice brought them back to reality. "Senior Li... We are here."

Translator's Thoughts

So this is how a Nuo Opera performer look like

...

Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 150 - Trouble

When he heard Yang Xiaohai's voice, Li Huowang snapped back to reality.

At this moment, they were on the outskirts of the town. In front of them were several huts built from stone, along with a massive stable in front of the hut.

The stable housed camels, goats, and even horses in different pens, as evidenced by the unmistakable stench of livestock that assaulted their noses.

When the people inside the huts noticed Li Huowang, they stared at him cautiously. From their outfits, it was clear that these people specialized in rearing livestock.

With that in mind, it was more likely that the assistant who passed away was abducted rather than being sold off like Chun Xiaoman.

Yang Xiaohai carried the jar of ashes while Li Huowang took a deep breath and prepared himself before approaching the huts.

When Li Huowang got closer, a strong man pushed away the horse beside him and greeted Li Huowang. "Are you here to buy some livestock?"

"No, I'm here to send something." Li Huowang judged that the man was the father of the assistant based on his age.

The man was somewhat skeptical due to Li Huowang's sudden visit. It was only after Yang Xiaohai told him the name of the assistant and some details about her that they finally believed Li Huowang.

The death of their daughter was horrible news to them; they all huddled around the jar of ashes, crying.

Li Huowang had thought that he too would cry when bearing witness to the tear-jerking scene, but he didn't. At this point, he had seen too many deaths, to the point that he was desensitized.

On the other hand, Monk, who had been standing beside him, stopped smiling and began to reverently pray to the ash jar in hopes of appeasing the little girl's soul. "Amitabha... Amitabha... Amitabha..."

Due to being questioned by the father of the dead assistant, it was already very late by the time Li Huowang and Yang Xiaohai arrived back at the inn.

"Come stay with us. Considering that fate allowed us to meet once more, I will book a room for you; there's no need to sleep in the toilet like last time," offered Li Huowang.

"I have my own money," said Monk as he shook his robes, causing the sound of coins clinking. "Also, who told you that I slept in the toilet last time?"

Hearing this, Li Huowang sighed in relief. "Where are you going? If we are heading in the same direction, then we can travel together."

It was not easy surviving in this world. It would be best if he had even one more person to help him.

"I don't mind going anywhere as long as I can keep doing kind deeds. Let's talk more tomorrow, otherwise I will end up violating my curfew," said Monk before turning to leave.

Staring at Monk's departing figure, Li Huowang smiled and entered the inn.

Just as he walked in, he saw Lu Zhuangyuan angrily debating with his son.

"Troupe leader Lu, what are you doing?" asked Li Huowang.

Hearing this, Lu Zhuangyuan pushed his son away and gestured angrily at the air. "Those damned performers are so rude! They had the guts to tell me that our performances originated from them, and that the Nuo Opera is the ancestor of our type of shows!"

“Dad, it’s fine. There’s no need to argue with them. This is their territory after all,” said Lu Juren, trying to calm him down.

“It’s fine?! I could’ve ignored any other remarks, but not this one! How can I face my ancestors if I don’t reclaim my honor? We are all performers, so who’s afraid of who? Let me go!”

Li Huowang couldn’t be bothered to care about the fact that Lu Zhuangyuan wanted to go and argue with the performers of the Nuo Opera. He just ignored them and entered his room.

“Miaomiao, do you still remember Monk? He—” Li Huowang stopped talking the moment he entered the room. Bai Lingmiao was visibly tired from their journey; she had already washed up and was fast asleep on the bed.

After a moment, Li Huowang approached the side of the bed and gently caressed her face.

Sensing him, Bai Lingmiao groggily hugged his hand.

Li Huowang chose to remain silent; he could tell her about it tomorrow.

He blew out the oil lamp and lay down on the bed, staring at the rafters as he thought about their journey.

Finally... a few days of peace and rest.

Li Huowang was not a greedy person. He just wanted to be able to live peacefully.

Except... The two of them.

Li Huowang frowned as he looked at the illusions of Jiang Yingzi and Dan Yangzi who were right beside him.

At this moment, the two illusions were staring at him from a corner of the quiet room.

“Hmm?” Li Huowang sat up in surprise. He suddenly realized that he could see in the dark.

“Looks like my senses are becoming more and more sensitive,” mumbled Li Huowang as he pondered whether this was a good thing or bad.

“Senior Li... ?” Bai Lingmiao almost woke up from the commotion.

Li Huowang gently patted her. “Sleep... Go to sleep...”

Perhaps it was due to the long journey, but Li Huowang instantly fell asleep.

Halfway through the night, his body suddenly tensed up; it was as if he sensed something coming closer. In the next instant, a sharp pain from his fingertip caused him to wake up.

He inspected his hand and saw that his fingertip had been bitten.

The bite mark was similar to a beast’s jaw, allowing Li Huowang to instantly know who it was.

It was Bai Lingmiao’s Second Deity!

He looked around, but didn’t see the red-veiled woman.

He suddenly looked down and saw that there were three pairs of shoes by the bed. There was a pair for both him and Bai Lingmiao, as well as a third pair of red shoes.

At that moment, Li Huowang saw the red shoes slowly retreat underneath the bed.

He looked at the sleeping Bai Lingmiao before whispering toward the underneath of the bed. “What are you doing?!”

“Something’s here...” A seductive voice came from beside his ear.

Li Huowang grabbed the sword underneath his pillow and held his breath before carefully checking the room.

Li Huowang’s senses had now become extremely sharp. Normally, he would’ve sensed it if someone approached him.

However, at this moment, he felt nothing.

Just as he thought that the Second Deity was playing a trick on him, a sound rang out from outside the window. It was a clear metallic clicking sound.

Tak~!

At that moment, a shadow suddenly appeared on the wall; it was quite similar to a shadow play.

Li Huowang had a hard time describing what the shadow looked like. It looked like a spider but its face was that of an old man. The shadow had six arms with spines and a lattice-patterned tentacle could be seen retracting and extending from its body.

At that moment, Li Huowang saw the shadow climb further up the window before he could even figure out what it was.

“Hm? A Strayed One? And that too from the Ao Jing Sect? This is rare,” said a voice.

As soon as he heard this voice, Li Huowang immediately rolled off from the bed with his sword in hand.

Chapter 151 - Shadow Play

A horrifying shadow monster skulked near the window in the middle of the night.

It was truly a scary sight, but what scared Li Huowang the most was that the shadow was capable of recognizing him as a Strayed One. Li Huowang knew what it would mean if someone could find out that he was a Strayed One.

“Who are you?” Li Huowang asked the shadow monster.

“Hehe, you came to my territory and yet you don’t even know who I am?” asked the voice.

At that moment, Li Huowang saw the monster slowly phasing through the paper panes of the window and into the room.

Jiang!

Li Huowang immediately unsheathed his sword, filling the entire room with killing intent.

At this moment, a dark red sword was held in Li Huowang’s grasp. This was the first time he unsheathed it.

Something leaked out from the hilt of the sword and spread through his body, causing his blood to start boiling and his vision to be dyed red.

As Li Huowang saw the lattice-patterned black tentacle slowly rise out from the paper pane, he instantly lunged at it with his sword.

“Die!” He shouted unconsciously.

Seeing this, the shadow monster dodged to the right, unwilling to block the attack from the blood-red sword directly. The sword was filled to the brim with murderous intent!

As it moved to the side of the wooden door, the sound of metal clanging rang out.

“Hmm? That sword... What kind of relationship do you have with the You family from the kingdom of Si Qi?” asked the shadow monster. Seeing Li Huowang’s sword, the monster became hesitant. At the same time, its movements also became much more cautious.

Usually, Li Huowang would’ve taken the time to listen to it, but with the murderous intent of the sword assaulting his mind, he couldn’t think rationally.

The monster hadn’t even finished its sentence when the sword reached it once again.

A crimson flash could be seen when the sword sliced through the wooden door along with the shadow monster.

Seeing this, Li Huowang ran out of his room. He saw a figure using some wooden sticks to control the shadow monster from the window at the end of the corridor.

The shadow monster was being controlled by someone all along! The figure was somehow controlling the shadow using a puppet!

As soon as the figure saw Li Huowang, it immediately threw away the puppet before entering one of the vacant rooms.

Li Huowang tried to chase after the figure, but there was nothing left in the empty room, save for the puppet that was slowly turning to ashes in the center of the room.

Li Huowang was only able to catch a glimpse of the assailant and the bronze coin veil that they were wearing.

Jiang~

At that moment, Li Huowang sheathed his sword and took a few deep breaths to calm himself down.

What is their goal? Are they trying to capture me for money?

Even though he had chased them away, he had a feeling that the situation was not so simple.

“Wait... Bai Lingmiao!” Realizing that he had left Bai Lingmiao alone, Li Huowang immediately ran back to his room.

It was only after he saw Bai Lingmiao sleeping soundly on the bed that he heaved a sigh of relief.

He was flustered; she meant a lot to him.

However, thinking back, there shouldn't have been any danger since Bai Lingmiao was a shaman. There was no reason to worry about the enemy luring him away.

At that moment, Li Huowang started inspecting his sword as he sat on his bed.

There was nothing weird about someone attacking them. However, this time was different. This time, it was no longer him trying to escape, but the assailant. The one who escaped was the assailant.

Thinking about this, Li Huowang started to get excited; it meant that he finally had sufficient power to be able to survive in this bizarre world.

At the same time, he decided that he had to thank the Abbess for giving him this sword. One look at the sword was all it took to discourage the assailant from attacking Li Huowang. He could tell that rather than being wary of him, the assailant was wary of the sword.

Not only was the sword powerful, but it also had other uses.

“You family from the kingdom of Si Qi? Is that where the owner of this sword comes from? That doesn't seem like a sect name,” mumbled Li Huowang.

Li Huowang didn't have an answer. The only thing he knew was that the sword belonged to someone famous. Thinking about this, he felt even more indebted to the Abbess.

As Li Huowang was slowly inspecting the sword and its scabbard, he felt something weird. He looked down and saw a pair of pale white hands with black fingernails grabbing his thigh.

This time, Li Huowang didn't pull his legs away and instead whispered to the Second Deity. "Thank you for alerting me. If it wasn't because of you, then I would've been attacked in my sleep."

Regardless of what had happened before, today the Second Deity had indeed helped him out.

But Li Huowang was still confused. He had been able to use his heightened senses to detect the bandits from a faraway distance before. So how was the assailant able to approach him until they were just outside the window? He even needed someone else to alert him.

Did the assailant have something on them that could hide their presence? I wonder if that item will be able to help with hiding the signs of me being a Strayed One? It would be great if I could just grab it from them. Then at the very least I won't be plagued by people trying to hunt me down just because they were able to figure out that I'm a Strayed One.

Just as Li Huowang was lost in his thoughts, he felt a different sensation on his thighs.

He looked down. At this moment, the pale hands had disappeared, replaced by several tentacle-like creatures crawling up his thigh. They were cold to the touch and had the texture of soft snakeskin.

At the same time, a seductive voice rang out beside his ear. "Dear husband~"

Hearing the voice, Li Huowang felt his scalp go numb. "Enough! I told you to stop it!"

Just as Li Huowang was about to unsheathe his sword, the tentacles slowly retreated from his pants.

Li Huowang glanced at the sleeping Bai Lingmiao and then whispered underneath the bed in a harsh tone, "I don't want to talk about what happened last time! Enough is enough! Go to sleep!"

After saying that, Li Huowang lied down on the bed.

The Second Deity also chose to silently remain underneath the bed, causing the room to once more become silent.

After the incident that just happened, Li Huowang dared not sleep, choosing to stay awake until the morning. It was only when he heard the shouts of the stall vendors from outside that he allowed himself to fall asleep.

By the time he woke up, it was already afternoon.

He wore his clothes and walked into the mess hall. As he ate, he thought about what had happened last night.

Based on their methods, they don't seem to be from a sect like the Righteous Monastery or the Benevolent Nunnery. Maybe they are someone cultivating on their own like Dan Yangzi. In that case, there shouldn't be too much of a problem. They said that this was their territory rather than their sect's territory, so it's very likely that they are indeed alone.

Li Huowang did not want to leave this town so quickly. After all, it was much easier to be ambushed in the wilderness than in a busy town.

As Li Huowang was eating some peanuts, he saw Lu Zhuangyuan proudly walking in with his sons.

Thinking back upon yesterday, it was not hard to determine what had happened.

“Troupe leader Lu, did you go and argue with the performers of the Nuo Opera? Looks like you won,” said Li Huowang.

Translator's Thoughts

Shadow Play refers to this particular 'performance' where the performer would use the puppet cutouts and animate the 'shadow' with a light

Chapter 152 - Doubt

When Lu Zhuangyuan saw Li Huowang eating in the mess hall, he decided to be modest while smiling to please him. “Young Daoist, that was just a joke. We didn’t fight. We were merely discussing the differences between our performances. Hehe, one has to learn even if they are old.”

Li Huowang chuckled. “So? Was there any major trouble, since they are the locals?”

Lu Zhuangyuan was so happy about his victory that as soon as Li Huowang asked, he sat down on a stool and started boasting about himself, “Young Daoist, as you know I’ve already been doing performances for more than thirty years. How could I be intimidated by young whelps in their twenties? They tried to intimidate me when I met them, but how would I be fazed from that? Since I am a performer, I am used to such intimidation. That’s when I sat on one of the boxes and shouted back. I told them that their singing tone was inaccurate. Guess what happened next?”

“What happened?” asked Li Huowang.

This question made Lu Zhuangyuan even more prideful as he continued to talk about the situation. “Ha! The three performers were stunned by my words. The youngest one even asked me at which point in time their tone was incorrect. He thought that he could get some free pointers from me, but why would I do that? I didn’t want to teach them, and so I just ignored him. Hmph! They didn’t even serve me tea. Hehe, you should’ve seen how quickly they changed their behavior. All three of them became much more respectful and even addressed me as Senior. Still, their tones were indeed too high and mighty. It wasn’t like I was coming up with some nonsense just to fight with them. As their senior, I have the obligation to look after them. Don't you think this is true?"

As Li Huowang heard how well Lu Zhuangyuan boasted, he realized that Lu Zhuangyuan could've been a really good storyteller.

Li Huowang finished eating at the same time Lu Zhuangyuan finished his story.

By the time he finished his story, Lu Zhuangyuan's face was flushed. Then, he drank a cup of tea and took a deep breath, feeling satisfied.

"Troupe Leader Lu, what kind of performance were they doing? It was very strange," asked Li Huowang as he ate the final mouthful of rice.

"Oh, they were performing an old show called 'Da Nuo Exorcising The Twelve Ghosts'. It seems to be a legend that has been passed on for thousands of years. The reason behind their strange singing tones was probably the fact that it's an old show," explained Lu Zhuangyuan.

"Who's Da Nuo?" asked Li Huowang as he picked his teeth with the chopsticks.

"No idea. But according to the three performers, Da Nuo was an Immortal. They told me that at one point in time Hou Shu used to be a kingdom of ghosts where humans were nothing more than livestock that were destined to be eaten. Then, Da Nuo came and exorcized the twelve most powerful ghosts. He even taught the ancient people to stand, read, write, and even use fire," said Lu Zhuangyuan.

"So it's a mythical legend..." Li Huowang squinted as he recalled the three masked Nuo Opera performers.

Was the one who attacked me last night related to the performers?

Li Huowang felt that they were suspicious. He and his group had just entered the town and already managed to see the strange Nuo Opera and their teeth play.

"Wait, teeth play?" Li Huowang remembered the bronze coin veil worn by the assailant. It would've been perfect to cover up their teeth.

Li Huowang immediately asked Lu Zhuangyuan. "Troupe leader Lu, about the three Nuo Opera performers, did they remove their masks while talking to you?"

"Nope. In fact, they didn't even remove their makeup when they saw me. They were too busy being respectful and pouring me a cup of tea," boasted Lu Zhuangyuan.

Could it be them? But there are three of them... or, maybe they wanted to mislead me by sending only one of them last night.

Thinking up to this point, Li Huowang frowned.

"Daoist! Daoist!" At that moment, a clear voice broke Li Huowang's train of thought.

Li Huowang looked over and saw that it was the disheveled looking Monk standing at the door while waving at him happily.

"Where were you? Why were you up so late? I've been looking for you since morning, but you were not here," asked Monk.

Li Huowang placed his chopsticks down before turning to Monk. "You came looking for me? Is everything alright?"

"Yeah. Come on, I found a great place!" said Monk.

Hearing those words made Li Huowang remember something unpleasant—Monk had similar words when he brought Li Huowang to the place where the Righteous Monastery housed the flesh Buddha.

However, it was only thanks to this that Li Huowang had managed to see through the Righteous Monastery's deception. In a way, Monk was technically half a savior to him.

Staring at the bright sun, Li Huowang walked outside. "Sure, let's go."

Just as he said that, he heard two people laughing at him.

"Hehehe ..."

"Hehehe ..."

Li Huowang turned toward the source of the laughter. It was none other than Dan Yangzi and Jiang Yingzi. Both of them were in a corner of the room, their four faces contorted in a sarcastic smile.

“Daoist, come quick!” shouted Monk who was already on the main street. Enduring the harsh sunlight, he kept waiting for Li Huowang.

“Is he really the Monk I know?” mumbled Li Huowang as he stared at Monk. Even though he had probed Monk multiple times yesterday, it was quite strange for him to suddenly appear here out of nowhere.

Could he also be an illusion? But that doesn't work on me, especially after the recent heightening of my senses. I would've found out if he was fake. Wait, why should I let myself be affected by the two illusions? They are fake.

Li Huowang's mind was a mess from doubting himself.

“Daoist! Come quick, why are you hesitating?” Monk's voice was already hoarse from shouting his name.

After a moment, Li Huowang took a deep breath and followed him. He felt that he needed some more time to determine whether this Monk was real or not.

If he was, then that would be for the best. However, if he wasn't, then it would be a good idea for Li Huowang to keep playing along. He needed to know whether the fake Monk had a motive and whether he had other helpers.

Li Huowang had become a lot more bold after chasing away the assailant from last night.

There were still a lot of people on the street during the afternoon. It was probably because this was a border town, but the number of mule carts, horse carriages, and camels in Li Huowang's field of vision never reduced.

“Monk, where are we going?” asked Li Huowang as he secretly placed one hand on the Profound Records.

“It’s not far. We are almost there. It’s just over there,” said Monk, pointing in a direction.

Li Huowang looked toward the direction that Monk was pointing and saw the three masked Nuo Opera performers.

“Hehe, what do you think? You must’ve never seen them before right?” asked Monk excitedly.

“The Nuo Opera? Was this what you meant when you said you wanted to show me something good?” Li Huowang was speechless.

“You can always choose to watch their performance another time if you’ve already seen it. This performance can only be seen here. We might never get a chance to watch it again once we leave this place. Ah damn it! They are already closing for the day!” said Monk.

While Monk was sighing, Li Huowang was feeling excited; he saw the three performers preparing to remove their masks.

Chapter 153 - Courtyard Houses

At that moment, the three performers removed their masks, allowing Li Huowang to see their heads which were covered in red cloth. But it was not a complete wrap—there was an opening for their nose and mouth.

After removing their masks, they slowly started to remove their red cloth. Soon, three young men appeared in front of Li Huowang. They were almost the same age as him.

The three performers looked quite normal. Their faces were human without any weird appendages or tentacles. Everything was normal.

“Daoist, what are you looking at? They are no longer performing. Let’s just go somewhere else. We might be able to do some good deeds today,” said Monk, pestering Li Huowang to leave.

“No need to rush; let’s just wait a little.” Li Huowang didn’t let his guard down. He still remembered how frightening they looked when they were doing the teeth play.

Li Huowang was not afraid of fighting them, but he was afraid that they would play some tricks or ambush him later on.

At that moment, Li Huowang suddenly saw the three of them hurriedly pack their stuff. They looked cautious and peeked at Li Huowang from time to time.

Looks like something is indeed wrong with them. They’ve hidden it well.

Li Huowang was becoming more and more suspicious of them.

Initially, after having heard Lu Zhuangyuan’s story, Li Huowang hadn’t felt them to be suspicious, but now he was fully alert.

The three performers and the musicians moved all of their items onto their camel before running into a small alley.

“Monk, quick! We need to chase them!” said Li Huowang as he ran to follow them.

“Aiya! Why are you chasing them? Don’t tell me that you want to pay them some silver to perform privately for you?” asked Monk. However, despite his protests, he still followed Li Huowang.

Both of them followed them from a distance as they tailed them all around the town. It was initially fine, but soon, the cargo-carrying camels soon started running as the people riding them started whipping the camels to run faster.

“Shti! They saw us! Quick, chase them!” Li Huowang ran faster as one of his hands clutched his sword. However, even though the town wasn’t big, they weren’t locals; after zig-zagging through a few alleyways, Li Huowang realized that he had lost them.

Li Huowang was quite annoyed as he stared at the gray walls.

“Ha~ Ha~ Daoist, slow down. I almost lost you~” said Monk as he propped himself up on the wall while panting.

Hearing this, Li Huowang glanced toward Monk.

It’s natural for him to not have the stamina at this age...

“If you can’t take it, then go back and rest first. No need to follow me,” suggested Li Huowang as he continued walking.

Even though he didn’t suspect Monk as much, Li Huowang still didn’t trust him completely. He also didn’t want Monk to hold him back if they ended up meeting a strong enemy next time.

“Fine... I will go back and rest first. You can run by yourself.” Monk held his waist and walked into another alley.

“I hope I’m just thinking too much.” Li Huowang shook his head.

Just as he had just taken a few steps, he heard a shout.

“That’s the old monk’s voice!” Li Huowang ran over and leaped a wall before stopping in front of a square-shaped hole in the ground.

It was a hole in the ground. Rather than dirt, the walls of the holes had wooden doors and windows. It was like a courtyard house was buried underground.

Various wooden masks could be seen decorating the wall. These snarling wooden masks were the same ones that the three performers had been wearing.

Staring at the camel that was eating grass in the center of the courtyard, Li Huowang was certain this was the home of the three performers.

“Daoist! Quick, come and pull me up. Ouch! Why did the people here build an underground home? Rather than a house, this looks more like a tomb,” called out a voice.

Li Huowang looked toward the source of the voice and saw Monk who was lying on the ground in pain.

Seeing this, Li Huowang leaped down, landing solidly beside Monk. However, instead of helping Monk, Li Huowang clutched his sword and stared at the closed windows, completely alert. With his heightened senses, he instantly realized that many people were staring at him from behind the windows.

Li Huowang did not wish to fight without knowing the number of enemies.

At the same time, the people staring at him from behind the windows didn’t act either. Both parties just stood there, waiting for the other to act.

Maybe they have the same thoughts as me?

Li Huowang’s mind was racing.

“Daoist, what are you doing?” asked Monk as he slowly stood up in pain.

“Wait for a bit; I don’t have the time to deal with you for now,” said Li Huowang.

Just as he said those words, he felt a few more pairs of eyes being trained on him. However, these gazes originated from the masks decorating the wall rather than the rooms; it was as if they had come alive.

After a moment, Li Huowang decided that even though he hadn't confirmed whether they were related to the assailant from last night, it was best to not linger around any more.

After some consideration, Li Huowang decided to talk to them. "I am junior Xuan Yang. I've accidentally walked into your homes and mean no harm. Please forgive me."

Seeing that there was no reaction, Li Huowang decided to try another method of communication. "Is the spring book open?"

Even so, no one replied to him.

"Let's just forget about what happened yesterday. I do not wish to harm you and I hope you wouldn't harm us either. How about a truce?" suggested Li Huowang.

However, even after he explained his intentions, he didn't receive any replies. Thus, Li Huowang gave up before supporting Monk to a ladder placed at the side. Once the tall ladder was placed upward, Li Huowang let Monk climb up first.

Once Monk was back up on the ground, Li Huowang leaped up the ladder and followed him.

After Monk and Li Huowang left, the people hiding inside the rooms walked out. All of them had tattoos on their ears. There were both men and women, with some of them even carrying infants and children.

At this moment, everyone's faces were filled with hatred and fear.

One of the three performers clenched his fist while talking to an old man with white hair, "Grandpa! That man was right! We can't wait anymore! We need to act now!"

The old man was visibly angry as he forcefully swung his cane down onto the ground. “Go, gather all the youths in our house. We need to kill that red-robed Daoist! They dare think of us as mere pushovers?!”

Meanwhile, Monk still acted clueless as they left the underground courtyard and returned to the busy street.

“What just happened?” asked Monk, confused.

“You don’t know?” asked Li Huowang, carefully scrutinizing Monk.

He had never forgotten how suspicious Monk had always been.

It was only thanks to Monk that Li Huowang had managed to see through the deception of the Righteous Monastery. It was also thanks to his help that Li Huowang managed to find the house of the Nuo Opera performers.

It might’ve been a coincidence the first time, but a second time around? This was too much of a coincidence.

Translator's Thoughts

Here's an example of what courtyard houses look like. Basically rather than the house being surrounded by the yard, the courtyard would be within the house instead.

Chapter 154 - Dunes

Li Huowang may look relaxed, but as he stared at Monk in front of him, he was completely alert. Even though Monk hadn't done anything to harm him, Li Huowang refused to trust someone else with his life.

"Monk, can you tell me who you are?" Li Huowang said jokingly.

Does Monk have an ulterior motive? Or is he a spy acting on the behalf of the Righteous Monastery? Or maybe he's someone from the Sitting Oblivion Dao that the Abbess warned me about? All of these could be true and it would be a problem no matter which of them he is connected to.

"Me? I'm a monk. Why do you ask me this?" said Monk frankly.

Li Huowang observed Monk's expression closely but found nothing unusual. Still, even if there was no evidence, Li Huowang couldn't bring himself to fully trust Monk that easily anymore.

Unable to confirm whether Monk was harmless or not, the best plan that Li Huowang could think of was to distance himself from him, "Fine, since we are done watching the show, let's split up for now. You go do your good deeds while I continue with my travels. I hope that we will meet again."

"Why are you in such a hurry? We haven't seen each other for so long. We can just travel together like the good old days," said Monk happily as he reached for Li Huowang's sleeve. However, his hand was stopped by the scabbard of a sword.

After a moment, Monk retracted his hand. "What are you doing? Aren't we friends?"

"If you are a friend, then tell me who you are! Don't make me guess your identity here! Who are you?!” shouted Li Huowang as he walked back to the inn without waiting for a reply.

Sensing the hostility in Li Huowang’s tone, Monk decided not to follow him. At the same time, he looked a little dejected.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang walked back to the inn without any incident. When he turned around and confirmed that Monk hadn’t followed him, he sighed in relief.

“Senior Li, what’s wrong? Why are you so nervous? Did a ghost chase you?” asked Puppy as he chewed on sunflower seeds while walking down the stairs.

“Where is everyone?” Li Huowang hurriedly asked him.

“They are all outside, following your orders and gathering information about Hou Shu. They are also trying to find a map of the kingdom,” explained Puppy, feeling confused as to why Li Huowang would ask him that.

“There’s no need to do all that now! Call everyone back. We need to leave as soon as possible!”

“Why... Alright, Senior Li, let me go and find them immediately,” Puppy threw away the sunflower seeds and ran out.

“Don’t forget to call for the Lu family!” shouted Li Huowang as he ran to the stables.

Li Huowang’s order was so sudden that none of them had any time to prepare. They all rushed back as soon as they could before hastily preparing for their journey.

Even so, Li Huowang’s orders were absolute. No one dared to fight back.

Thankfully they were able to finish preparations before nightfall. Soon, the horse carriage was well on its way out of town.

“Senior Li, what’s wrong?” Chun Xiaoman clutched her sword, confused by their sudden predicament.

“Someone in the town is targeting us. But don’t worry; this time it’s not the same as last time. If they choose to fight us, they won't have the advantage," said Li Huowang as he felt the sword on his back.

After having rested for an entire day, everyone's stamina was in good condition. They only stopped to rest when the moon was high in the sky.

At that moment, Li Huowang roughly calculated and determined that they were at least ten kilometers away from the town, and so he told all of them to stop and rest.

If they wanted to continue their journey tomorrow, then they needed to sleep for now.

At the same time, Li Huowang personally took the job of night watch in order to prevent any people from suddenly attacking them on the first night of their journey.

Li Huowang gently patted Bun's head while recalling everything that happened today. He was trying to see if he had missed any details.

He had a feeling that something was indeed strange; however, he couldn't figure out why. He felt as though he was being led around by the nose, causing him to feel irritated.

But since they were already out of town, he decided not to think anymore and instead figure out his next steps.

The Nuo Opera performers and the monks from the righteous monastery. Regardless of their origin, none of them wanted to fight me in a town. It means that they are afraid of something.

Li Huowang patted the Profound Records and the sword on his back as he pondered about it.

Everyone I encountered immediately knew that I was a Strayed One. Based on the actions of the Righteous Monastery, it seems that Strayed Ones are indeed valuable. Regardless, since they did not act immediately, it must mean that I have the power threshold to protect myself in this world. At least we should be able to peacefully navigate through the dangers.

At that moment, Dan Yangzi, who had been squatting directly in front of him, suddenly spoke. “Hmph! And to think that I call you my disciple. They are all bullying you and yet you only think about self defense. Instead of running, you should be thinking about how to kill them all!”

Hearing this, Li Huowang smiled coldly and clapped his hands slowly. “Amazing! My Master is such a good teacher! However, I wonder who it was that left his disciples behind to run away from the Righteous Monastery last time.”

“You damned brat!” shouted Dan Yangzi as he stood up, his grotesque muscles and flesh pulsating. Just as he was about to open his three mouths to say something, he turned, staring in the same direction as Li Huowang.

At that moment, a single black dot was slowly approaching them.

“They are chasing us!” Li Huowang's face turned serious. Just as he was about to stand up and inform the rest of the group, he realized that there was another black dot approaching them from the front.

Seeing this, Li Huowang scanned his surroundings and saw black dots approaching them from every direction. They were being surrounded!

“Li Huowang! You’ve been surrounded! This time, you are dead for sure, hahaha!” said Jiang Yingzi as she laughed maniacally while hugging her belly with her remaining arm.

“Wake up! Someone’s here!” Li Huowang’s angry roar broke the silence of the dunes.

Hearing his shout, the sleepy members instantly broke out into cold sweat and brandished their blades.

Regardless of who they were, their enemies wanted them dead. Instantly, the atmosphere became tense.

“Don’t wait for them to complete their encirclement! We need to break through now!” Li Huowang led them, charging toward one of the black dots.

As they got closer, Li Huowang saw who they were.

One of them was wearing the same bronze coin veil. It was the same assailant from last night! At the same time, just like yesterday, the man had several shadow monsters in his hand.

Seeing this, there was no need for any words. Li Huowang just unsheathed his sword and charged forward.

On the other hand, the veiled man threw out the shadow monsters in his hand. With the aid of the moonlight, the shadow monsters quickly gained form and stood up like paper dolls as they floated toward Li Huowang.

Chapter 155 - Nature

“Kill them all!” Li Huowang’s sword slashed upward, a crimson glow flashing on the sword’s body. In the next instant, a shadow monster was sliced in half as it turned to smoke while howling in pain.

At the same time, Li Huowang gritted his teeth and continued running, closing in the distance between him and the veiled man.

Li Huowang slashed until there was only one shadow monster left. Initially, he had thought that this would be easy, but at that moment, the veiled man’s underarm bulged before four more arms extended from underneath it.

Each of these arms held another shadow monster.

After a moment, the veiled man threw the shadow monsters into the air. Illuminated by the moonlight, Li Huowang was instantly surrounded by them.

“Senior Li, we are here to help!” shouted Bai Lingmiao.

“Don’t come any closer! Miaomiao, don’t play the drum! I can handle this myself.” said Li Huowang as he slashed through the horde of shadow monsters while closing in on the veiled man.

Fa la la~

At the same time, the Profound Records was unfurled.

Then, Li Huowang sliced off two of his fingers, causing him to almost faint from the pain.

However, it was worth it.

The two fingers rapidly expanded before they even touched the ground. At the same time, the bones within them grew longer as they shot themselves toward the veiled man.

The veiled man tried to evade, but the fingers homed in on him.

Splurt!

The fingers buried themselves into the man's neck and Li Huowang saw the remaining shadow monsters stop in their tracks. Then, the shadow monsters slowly turned back into ordinary shadows.

"You..." The veiled man fell onto the ground, dead before he could say anything.

Seeing this, Li Huowang hurried over and inspected the dead six-armed man.

"Wait, is that it? This was too easy." Li Huowang was confused. Compared to the previous encounters, this was too easy.

After a moment, Li Huowang carefully used his sword to lift the coin veil; he wanted to see what the man looked like.

Just as he started unveiling the man, Li Huowang was stunned to see a wooden lip. The 'man' was nothing more than a puppet!

"Careful! The dwarf is inside the stomach! It's trying to attack you!"

Li Huowang didn't know who had shouted those words, but he saw a flash of steel approaching his heart from the puppet's abdomen.

Thanks to the warning, Li Huowang managed to block it with his sword.

The very next moment, Li Huowang raised his sword and stabbed it directly into the abdomen of the puppet.

A scream rang out, accompanied by a spray of blood from the abdomen of the puppet.

After a moment, a bald man with saggy skin and asymmetrical eyes crawled out. Blood could be seen leaking out from the dwarf's mouth.

But it was useless. Soon, the dwarf died.

At that moment, Li Huowang felt a dragon's roar coming from his sword, almost causing him to lose control of it. Then, he quickly removed the sword before sheathing it again, finally bringing it back under his control.

However, Li Huowang didn't have any time to inspect his sword. He turned around to see who it was that warned him about the dwarf's attack.

Standing there was none other than Monk.

"You again? Who are you?" asked Li Huowang.

One of Monk's shoes had a hole in it, revealing his toe. He walked forward with his torn shoes, walked past the dead dwarf, and then stored the bronze coin veil in his pocket.

"Let's go. We can talk while we run. Can't you see that they are catching up?" said Monk.

Li Huowang saw the rest of the black dots were becoming larger and started running.

"Everyone, quickly catch up! Don't get left behind!" shouted Li Huowang.

Then, he approached Monk and questioned him once more, "Who are you? Why are you doing this?"

Hearing this, Monk laughed. "No need to be so cautious. Have I ever harmed you when we were together?"

Without waiting for Li Huowang's reply, Monk continued talking, "No, I've never harmed you; in fact, I've been helping you. I helped you discover the Righteous Monastery's plot and I was the one who reminded you of how suspicious the performers of the Nuo Opera were."

Li Huowang sighed as he monitored the black dots chasing them as he tried to calm himself down. "I thank you for your help, but I hate it when someone lies to me."

The originally jovial Monk suddenly turned serious. "There's no need for you to know who I am. What's more important is for me to know whether you are the real Li Huowang or not. Are you the same Li Huowang that I know of?"

“What?!” Li Huowang’s pupils shrank from surprise. He almost wanted to stop Monk from speaking any further.

“The things that I am about to say next may sound preposterous, but seeing how you saved me so many times, you need to trust me. I am not Monk, and you are not Li Huowang. All of these are identities that we’ve borrowed from someone else. Your true name is Peng Zhi and I am Peng Jiao. We are not real people. Our real identity is that of someone else’s Three Corpses!”

“What the fuck are you talking about?!” Li Huowang was confused. “I’m not Li Huowang? And there is someone else called Li Huowang?”

Piu~

An arrow flew toward them. At the last moment, Monk pulled Li Huowang, causing the arrow to narrowly miss.

Sensing the urgency of the situation, Monk sped up his explanation. “Do you not know the Three Corpses of Daoism? Anyone who wants to become an Immortal must kill their Three Corpses! And, we are the Three Corpses! The upper corpse, Peng Ju is Dan Yangzi, the middle corpse Peng Zhi is you, and the lower corpse Peng Jiao is me! Now that Dan Yangzi has been slain, we are the only two left. We need to work together to live!”

“This... How could this be....” Li Huowang wasn’t sure if he could trust those words. His entire perception of the world had been turned upside down in just a few seconds.

“Daoist! Look at me! You need to look at me!”

Hearing this, Li Huowang turned to stare at Monk; he could see how Monk was.

“The upper corpse, Peng Ju resides in the head, turning someone stupid and without wisdom; the middle corpse Peng Zhi resides in the chest, turning someone anxious, someone who can’t calm down; the lower corpse Peng Jiao resides in the abdomen, causing a person to become greedy and lustful. Not everyone can abandon their instincts, but look! I've broken free of my nature. I was destined to be someone evil, but I persevered in doing good deeds! My instincts call on me to be lustful and greedy, but I refuse to follow them, choosing to become a poor and chastised monk! I alone shall control my life, not my instincts! I know that the instinct of Peng Zhi is to be anxious and doubtful, but Daoist, these are merely your instincts. You can fight back against them, just like me! Only then can we win against the one who is trying to kill us! We will finally be free after that!"

Chapter 156 - Peng Zhi

“I am one of the Three Corpses, Peng Zhi?” Li Huowang’s brain was abuzz. His mind was a complete mess.

“How can that be? I was transmigrated here! How can I possibly be something stupid like Peng Zhi?” mumbled Li Huowang.

“It’s no use even if you don’t want to believe it. Currently, I need you to recall as much as you can and see if you are able to find something bizarre in the details that you remember.”

“Details?”

While Li Huowang was reluctant, after thinking for some time, he did find many suspicious points. Dan Yangzi’s idiotic pride and all his various bizarre encounters fit quite well with the hypothesis of the Three Corpses.

“One more thing. If I am correct, then you can’t recall anything from your childhood, correct? This is natural, since we were never children to begin with. We were already adults when we took form!”

Monk’s words made Li Huowang realize that he could indeed not remember anything from his time before Zephyr Temple. In fact, his very first memories were of him being within the Zephyr Temple!

“What’s going on? What is real and what is fake?” mumbled Li Huowang as he felt his head splitting in pain as various pieces of information swirled within his mind.

“Peng Zhi! Don’t think about it! Stop thinking! You have to go against your instincts! I did it and so can you! Don’t think about it and don’t doubt anymore. Only then can we win against that person!” said Monk as he shook both of Li Huowang’s arms rigorously. “Pull yourself together. Do you see the people that are trying to kill us? The cultivator is using them to try and kill us! The moment he kills both of us, the cultivator will become an Immortal! We are in this together and we can never let his plan come to fruition!”

Li Huowang took deep breaths as he tried to calm himself down before turning to question Monk. “Monk, you—”

“Careful!” Monk quickly pulled him down as another arrow flew past Li Huowang’s shoulder, taking off some of his hair.

“Why are you still asking questions at such a crucial time? Let’s talk more once we leave here. Our enemies are quickly approaching!”

Hearing this, Li Huowang turned around and saw that the black dots chasing them had indeed become larger. They were chasing them on camels!

He could see that the assailants all wore wooden masks and had white fangs protruding out from their mouths, wriggling like antennas.

Li Huowang recognized them—they were the Nuo Opera performers!

He would’ve been fine if only the performers were the ones chasing them, but this time around they had brought an entire group of bandits with them!

The bandit had hidden their faces, allowing Li Huowang to only see their eyes that were filled with hostility as they raised their various weapons and hollered.

After a moment, Li Huowang stared into the distance, choosing to continue with his escape.

But just as he had taken a few steps, the sand dunes around him faded away into nothingness.

“Not again! Not when it’s this dangerous!” shouted Li Huowang.

After a moment, he woke up and found himself strapped to a hospital bed.

At this moment, he could see Yang Na and his mother carefully moving a table and placing it near his bed.

“Peng Zhi.” A faint voice rang out.

Hearing the voice, Li Huowang clenched his fist, his arms tied to the bed securely.

He closed his eyes, took a deep breath, and then opened his eyes; however, he was still within the hallucination.

“Huowang, happy birthday! Do you remember my birthday? It is only three days away,” said Yang Na. Currently, she was wearing a white sweater as she carefully placed a paper crown on Li Huowang’s head. She hadn’t noticed the changes in Li Huowang’s expression just yet.

“Peng Zhi... Wake up...” The voice became louder.

Meanwhile, Sun Xiaoqin placed a cake on the table and started lighting up the candles on it.

On the other hand, the voice inside Li Huowang’s ears suddenly became louder. “Peng Zhi, wake up! They are catching up to us!”

At the same time, the lights within the room were turned off. Then, both his mother and Yang Na stood beside him and smiled.

“Peng Zhi! Everything I’ve said is true! Don’t think about the memories stored within Li Huowang’s body! They are not yours! No matter how doubtful you are, they belong to Li Huowang and not you! You are only using his body. Fight against your instincts and forget about them!” said the voice.

“I’m not Li Huowang? The person my mother and Yang Na cared for, the Li Huowang they knew, was someone else?” Li Huowang’s lips trembled as he saw them.

“Happy birthday to you~ Happy birthday to you~” The two of them started singing softly.

Staring at the warm and gentle sight in front of him, Li Huowang’s lips continued to tremble. He bit his lips and swallowed the blood that flowed out from it.

He wanted to take a deep breath to calm himself down but he couldn't—he was afraid of scaring his mother and Yang Na.

Soon, the song came to an end. After that, Li Huowang slowly leaned his body forward and blew out the candles.

Li Huowang's sudden action surprised both his mother and Yang Na. "Huowang! When did you become coherent?"

However, instead of answering, he just smiled at both of them. "I want you to place a piece of cloth in my mouth. I'm afraid that I will get very loud later."

Just as he said those words, he felt an impact on his head causing stars to swim around his head. Slowly, everything around him fell apart.

"Wake up!"

At that moment, Li Huowang was back at the cold sand dunes, his face flat on the sandy ground. He was a bloodied mess.

He could see that their three horse carriages had been positioned in a circle and that everyone was taking refuge in the center. Many among them had taken up arms and were fighting against the assailants. Even so, they were slowly being pushed back.

There were just far too many enemies!

Seeing that the situation was dire, Li Huowang wanted to immediately help them.

But he did not move—he did not move because he saw someone standing on his right.

It was Monk.

Immediately, he turned to his left and saw another person—it was Monk, helping him up.

Seeing this, Li Huowang pushed them away. At this moment, there were two identical Monks!

Splurt!

An arrow pierced through Li Huowang's shoulder. However, neither did he feel any pain nor did he pay any attention to it. He just stared at the two Monks.

"Aiya! Daoist, you have been shot! Are you alright?" asked one of the Monks, about to approach Li Huowang. However, he was stopped by a shout from Li Huowang.

"Both of you! Stay back! I don't trust the two of you!" Li Huowang raised his sword in anger. He was afraid of being stabbed in the back if he didn't settle this right now.

Hearing this, the Monk standing closest to him was left speechless. "Peng Zhi, what do you mean by the two of us? That Monk is nothing more than your illusion. You can ask the others; they can't see the other Monk that you are talking about."

Chapter 157 - Peng Jiao

Li Huowang asked everyone around him and was surprised by what he heard from them.

“Senior Li, what are you talking about? There are no Monks with us at all. Forget that, and come help us; their archers are too strong!”

“Wait... Not even one Monk? Are both Monks part of my illusion? How could this be? There must be at least one of them here! No, this is impossible!” mumbled Li Huowang before staring at Yang Xiaohai. “When we were sending the urn of ashes, we encountered Monk and we even talked to him along the way! How can you possibly say that you didn’t see him?”

The anxious Yang Xiaohai was lying flat on the ground as he stared at the enemies in fear. Hearing Li Huowang’s question, he turned around, “Senior Li, there is no Monk. No one followed us along when we were sending the ashes.”

“Impossible! I was talking to him the entire time. If he had been a fake, then that would have meant that I was talking to nothing but air. Are you blind? Why did you not tell me if I was talking to the air all that time?”

Yang Xiaohai cried from the pressure. “But Senior Li, you often talk with non-existent people. How would I know that this time was different?”

Shocked, Li Huowang fell onto the ground. “I speak to myself all the time? Then... what is real... and what is fake?”

As he mumbled, Li Huowang stared at the people surrounding him, smiling madly.

Bai Lingmiao, Puppy, Sun Baolu, Chun Xiaoman, Yang Xiaohai, Gao Zhijian, Lu Zhuangyuan, Lu Juren, Lu Xiucan, and everyone else. Their faces flashed in front of his eyes.

“Maybe... some of them are fake as well? Is this world the real one? Or is this side fake and the other side real? Which is fake?”

At that moment, the Monk closer to him pulled Li Huowang up from the ground. “See? I was right. You are indeed Peng Zhi, the one who doubts everyone the most. It’s normal for you to always feel like something is off. If you think that the Monk standing there is real, then you can just go and touch him. The illusion of the Monk is over there, come! Let me bring you over to him!”

Li Huowang’s mind was still buzzing when this Monk pulled him toward the other Monk.

Both Monks looked the same and were no different from each other.

“Daoist, are you alright?” asked the other Monk as he came over.

When the illusion of the Monk came over, Li Huowang’s right hand phased through him. The Monk standing beside him was right—the one in front of him was nothing but an illusion, just like Jiang Yingzi.

“That means...” muttered Li Huowang, his face filled with pain.

“See? Didn’t your hand phase right through? That means that I am real and that I am telling you the truth. You are Peng Zhi! You are not Li Huowang. We need to work together to—” said Monk before suddenly stopping halfway as he lowered his head—there was a blade embedded in his abdomen.

“Why?” asked Monk in a weak and trembling voice, feeling shocked as he looked at Li Huowang. “Wasn’t the other Monk fake just like I told you? Why do you choose to ignore my words? Even though I’ve helped you so much throughout your journey, you are still trying to kill me?”

Li Huowang gritted his teeth and thrust his sword deeper into Monk’s abdomen. “You are right, he was indeed fake. But... I am not Peng Zhi... I am Li Huowang!”

“Why? Why do you suddenly think that you are Li Huowang? Earlier, you had even been on the verge of believing me!”

Li Huowang snarled as he stabbed deeper into Monk. “I don’t need any reasons! I am Li Huowang! I don’t need any logic or evidence to prove my identity! Even if there’s evidence showing that I am Peng Zhi, I still believe I am Li Huowang!”

Then, Li Huowang took a few steps forward and pinned Monk against the horse carriage.

Red blood flowed out from Monk’s robes as he stared weakly at Li Huowang, using the last of his strength to question Li Huowang, “You... Have you ever thought that you might kill the wrong person? What if I am right?”

Li Huowang took a deep breath and shouted at Monk, “So what if you are right? So what if I am Peng Jiao?! I don’t care! I am Li Huowang! I AM THE LI HUOWANG THAT MY MOTHER AND YANG NA CARE FOR THE MOST! NO ONE CAN TAKE THEM AWAY FROM ME!”

After Li Huowang’s outburst was finished, Monk lowered his head.

Staring at the dead Monk, Li Huowang’s face twitched as he continued to mumble to himself, “I am Li Huowang, I am Li Huowang, I am Li Huowang ...”

Every time he mentioned his name, killing intent arose within his heart. He kept thinking back to the birthday cake he had seen earlier.

“If the Li Huowang that Yang Na loved existed, then I would just kill him and steal his identity!” muttered Li Huowang.

Hearing this, Dan Yangzi’s three faces turned scornful as he scoffed at him.

“Sigh... why are you such a crazy bastard? I had already been doing such a good job fooling you, so why aren’t you following my plan? Why did you suddenly attack me? Ah! Such a hassle. But, it was so fun just now,” Suddenly, the dead Monk spoke up, his face morphing into a rectangle while his facial organs melted and turned into two large circles.

Seeing this sudden change, Li Huowang was first surprised before becoming extremely angry. “I FUCKING KNEW IT! You are a liar! No, you are not just a liar, you are from the Sitting Oblivion Dao! You are Er Bing[1]!”

Li Huowang instantly realized who it was when he saw the face resembling a mahjong tile. He was a member of the Sitting Oblivion Dao that the Abbess had warned him about.

“Aaaaaaa! This is so annoying! You had already started to believe me, but then why did you suddenly attack me? You are such a crazy bastard!”

Er Bing’s face quickly morphed into that of a beautiful woman. Then, she chuckled and quickly leaped to the top of the horse carriage.

As soon as all of the assailants spotted Er Bing, they stopped.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang ran up to the roof of the carriage and saw that Er Bing had joined their attackers and was getting further away.

Seeing how the Nuo Opera performers and the bandits didn’t attack her, Li Huowang knew that she was the one who had orchestrated all of this!

There are no Three Corpses!

Everything had been a lie created by the Sitting Oblivion Dao!

1. Er Bing refers to the name of the mahjong tile that this fellow's face resembles and that's why Li Huowang calls them that

So here's an explanation on what the Three Corpses are:

The sanshi 三尸 "Three Corpses" or sanchong 三蟲 "Three Worms" are a Daoist physiological belief that demonic creatures live inside the human body, and they seek to hasten the death of their host. These three supernatural parasites allegedly enter the person at birth and reside in the three dantian "energy centers", respectively located within the head, chest, and abdomen.

For a Daoist adept to achieve the longevity of an Immortal, it was necessary to expel the Three Corpses from the body. Since these evil spirits feed upon decaying matter produced by grains being digested in the intestines, the practice of abstinence from grains and cereals is the first step towards expelling them. It weakens them to the point where they can be killed with alchemical drugs and ultimately eliminated through meditation techniques.

There's an entire wikipage with information of it: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Three_Corpses

Chapter 158 - Er Bing

“Look! I’ve forced him to come out! He’s that crazy bastard who joined the Sitting Oblivion Dao! He’s Dan Yangzi, the very same man that used mercury to flay your family before burying them underground! He’s the culprit!” Er Bing pointed at Li Huowang as she shouted in an exaggerated manner.

Upon hearing her words, Li Huowang shouted in anger, “You damn liar!”

Li Huowang was so angry that he almost spat blood.

This damned bastard is lying about me being a part of the Sitting Oblivion Dao!

“That lady is the one from the Sitting Oblivion Dao! She can change her face freely! You guys are being lied to!” shouted Li Huowang.

However, even though Li Huowang told them the truth, none of them listened to him.

One of the Nuo Opera performers wearing the wooden mask glared at Li Huowang with intense hatred. “Not only have you killed my people, but you even sent that old man to probe us and then even rushed into our house to threaten us! Even with death at hand, you still think you can fool us? Dream on! Don’t you dare think that the Lai household can be bullied by you, Dan Yangzi!”

At the same time, the masked bandit standing beside the Nuo Opera performer got excited as he started shouting, “Ptui! Fucking bastard! How dare you kill my sworn brother?! Just you wait, I will personally torture you once we have captured you!”

Li Huowang wanted to explain himself, but no one listened to him. Soon, under Er Bing’s deception, they all took up their weapons and started charging toward the horse carriages.

Bam!

The horse carriages were pushed a few inches back while the carriages themselves started to crack.

Meanwhile, the scared Lu family huddled together in the center of the circle.

At that moment, a familiar scream rang out, causing Li Huowang to turn around amidst all the chaos.

He saw that a barbed arrow had shot past Bai Lingmiao's right shoulder, shearing off a chunk of her flesh.

Seeing that Bai Lingmiao was injured, Li Huowang was enraged; it was as if he was the one that got wounded instead. Immediately, he jumped down from the horse carriage.

"How many times must I tell you that you are all being lied to!" shouted Li Huowang. At the same time, cold steel flashed, and both humans and horses fell apart as they screamed in pain; Li Huowang had cut through them effortlessly.

Li Huowang had only recently learned how to use the sword properly and this was a good chance for him to quickly master it; the best method to do so was real combat.

"Give me back my grandson's life!" shouted an old man.

On the other hand, Li Huowang just took a step back before cutting the old man down.

"AAAAARGH! He was only six! What sin did he commit?! He was the only descendant of our family! Why did you kill him?!" shouted the old man. Even as he bled profusely, he refused to die. He pounced toward Li Huowang's leg before forcefully biting down with his white fangs.

"I've told you so many times that it was not me!" denied Li Huowang.

Bam bam bam!

Li Huowang kicked the old man numerous times, causing his head to become dented.

Then, Li Huowang once again started to mow through the enemies, slicing them in half in almost no time. The more he killed, the more familiar he grew with the sword, and the more his killing intent grew.

Given Li Huowang's heightened senses, he should've already been able to locate Er Bing amongst the crowd. However, for some reason, he was unable to do so. Thus, he concluded that she had a method to hide her presence.

After a while, Li Huowang bit his lips and glared at the crowd of assailants with eyes filled with killing intent. "ER BING!"

Hearing his shout, a woman wearing a coin veil popped out from the crowd. She revealed her mouth and smiled before disappearing behind a burly bandit.

"You crazy bastard from the Sitting Oblivion Dao, your evil-doing days are over!" shouted Li Huowang as he unfurled the Profound Records and took out his pliers.

Then, he ripped out three of his molars, using that to pay the price required by the Profound Records. The molars exploded in the air and pierced through everything in their path, be it leather armor or wooden masks.

Soon, the massive crowd of enemies in front of Li Huowang fell to the ground, allowing him to pinpoint Er Bing's location.

Just as he was about to chase her, the remaining assailants encircled him once again, stopping him from getting closer to Er Bing.

As Li Huowang saw Er Bing getting further away, he gritted his teeth and aimed his sword at his own forearm.

However, just as he was about to slice off his forearm, a tall figure appeared in between him and the enemies.

Gao Zhijian swung his large club mercilessly, causing bits of red and white to splash all over the place.

"Summon~ The~ Gods~"

At the same time, a red-veiled woman rushed forward along the beat of a drum, using her beastly jaws to tear through the enemies' throats.

Chun Xiaoman also arrived beside him with her bloodied sword. She panted while fighting off the enemies. "Senior Li! We are here to help you!"

As he saw his comrades, Li Huowang kept away his swords. "Ok! Follow me and chase after that woman. She's the mastermind who orchestrated all of this!"

After a while, they slowly closed in on Er Bing while fighting off their enemies. All the while, sounds of painful shrieks, cracking bones, and metallic clashes rang out continuously.

Er Bing finally had nowhere else to hide. Forced into a corner, she suddenly started laughing as she ran toward Li Huowang's group. At the same time, she threw something out from her sleeves.

No one had expected such a situation. Instinctively, Li Huowang blocked with his sword.

At that moment, a metallic die covered in flames flew high up into the air, covered by a faint glow that indicated a spell inscription.

Er Bing made a seal with her palms causing the flaming metal die to start spinning before embedding itself into Gao Zhijian's temple.

"Simpleton!"

"Gao Zhijian!"

Slowly, Gao Zhijian's massive body fell to the ground, his eyes growing more and more unfocused.

"Hehe, now this is how it should be. It's much more fun if someone dies~" Er Bing laughed as she produced two black dominoes from her sleeves.

She held both the dominoes in one hand while using the other hand to perform hand seals. "Seven, eight but not nine~ Make it a poisoned hand if nine~ Golden four, silver five and a stool, supports the Heavens and Earth, meeting fleet fully with four, five, and six~”

As she chanted, the two dominoes became soft and long, slowly seeping through her fingers as they started burrowing into the ground.

But at that moment, something unexpected happened—something Er Bing could never have foreseen.

An arm with two fingers burst forth from the ground, grabbing the two dominoes and stabbing into Er Bing’s abdomen at the same time.

Er Bing spat out blood and raised her head. At that moment, she saw Li Huowang slowly stand up from a kneeling position, his left sleeve looking completely empty and billowing in the wind.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang’s severed arm continued to tighten its grip until it managed to snap Er Bing’s waist.

Chapter 159 - Liar

Li Huowang almost passed out from the pain, but somehow endured it as he ran over and sliced off Er Bing's face, revealing the bloody, mahjong tile face hidden underneath.

Li Huowang grabbed Er Bing's neck and raised her into the air. "Stop fighting! Look at this! She's someone from the Sitting Oblivion Dao! Everyone here has been lied to!"

But his only response was an arrow to his abdomen—they were all beyond reasoning.

It might've been a misunderstanding in the beginning, but at this point, too many people had died. There was no turning back.

Li Huowang threw Er Bing down and crushed the bones in all her limbs before charging into the battlefield. "Xiaoman, make sure she doesn't escape!"

As she saw Li Huowang become a demon of bloodshed, Er Bing started chuckling.

Seeing this, Xiaoman placed her sword on Er Bing's neck. "You still have the gall to laugh? You will be crying soon enough."

Hearing this, Er Bing started laughing even more loudly, all while her face underwent numerous transformations before settling on a new face. "When should I be laughing if not now? Risking my own life to fool someone feels especially amazing."

Today, Jiang Yingzi did not glare at Li Huowang like she usually did. Instead, she was looking at Er Bing with a complicated look on her face; among the various faces that Er Bing's face transformed into was the face of Elder Yan Jianxi.

After a while, the assailants finally retreated; not because they had realized that it was all a ploy devised by Er Bing, but because they'd lost too many men.

The sky slowly brightened while the sound of horse hooves and camel bells gradually became distant, leaving an entire battlefield littered with bodies as well as several camels with no owners.

As the sun gradually arose at the horizon, the blood on the ground, as well as everyone's bodies looked a lot more red.

Li Huowang had suffered numerous injuries, yet he still stood tall like a statue amidst a pool of blood.

In this battle, both parties had been innocent, but the Sitting Oblivion Dao's devious plot pushed both sides past the point of no return.

At this moment, Jiang Yingzi was staring at the scene in front of her, panicking; it was as if she was finally starting to piece the puzzle pieces together.

"Hahaha! Not bad! Not bad at all." The limbless Er Bing laughed.

Her voice attracted Li Huowang's attention as he too started to laugh. Then, Li Huowang let go of his sword and stumbled back.

Once he reached Er Bing, he stuffed several Blood Nourishing Pills into her mouth and instructed Xiaoman, "Go and fetch the Golden Wound medication that we bought in town."

"What?" Xiaoman thought she had misheard.

"Did you not hear what I said? Go and bring the Golden Wound medication, NOW!" shouted Li Huowang.

Once she retrieved it, Li Huowang carefully scattered the medication on Er Bing's disembowelled intestines. Then, he unfurled his torture tools in front of her before speaking lightly, "Feel like confessing?"

Er Bing was confused. "Confess? Did I do something that I need to confess?"

Li Huowang positioned Er Bing's listless right arm and carefully used his torture tools to pry out her fingernails, one by one. He didn't stop until all five fingernails on her right arm had been pried out. “Feel like confessing?”

“What do you want me to tell you?” asked Er Bing.

“DO YOU FEEL LIKE CONFESSING OR NOT?!” Li Huowang rammed his remaining hand into one of her eye sockets.

As Li Huowang crushed one of her eyeballs, Er Bing screamed in pain.

“Do you feel like confessing yet?!” asked Li Huowang once again.

“Senior Li, are you alright?” Bai Lingmiao approached carefully.

Li Huowang took a deep breath and gently said to her, “I’m fine. Help me check on the others. Summon the Immortals to heal those who have been heavily injured.”

Just as Bai Lingmiao left to follow his instructions, Li Huowang stomped on Er Bing’s intestines, and shouted in a voice filled with anger and hatred, “JUST TELL ME EVERYTHING!”

However, at this point, he didn’t want her to tell him anything; he just needed an outlet to channel all his rage. He wanted to get his revenge on Er Bing. Everything had happened because of her, so she needed to pay the price.

Li Huowang often used only some of the torture tools, leaving the other tools untouched. However, those tools now had their chance to shine.

As more and more of his torture tools were stained with blood, Er Bing’s once beautiful figure transformed into a bloody human stick.

Throughout the process, the intense pain caused Er Bing to faint and wake up over and over again.

However, Li Huowang didn’t let her go regardless of how painful it was.

After a while, Er Bing stared at him with her one remaining eye and started laughing, her laughter gradually getting louder and louder.

The more she was tortured, the louder she laughed.

Eventually, Er Bing's breathing grew faint. Finally, Li Huowang, who was panting heavily, lost his patience and used his sword to aim for her heart.

"Li Huowang, wait, can you help me and ask her a question?"

This sudden voice caused Li Huowang to stop. He turned around and saw who it was that had spoken to him.

It was Jiang Yingzi's illusion.

At this moment, she looked conflicted, a mix of expectations and fear.

"Can you ask her if the Sitting Oblivion Dao was the one responsible for the massacre of my town four years ago?" asked Jiang Yingzi.

This question immediately caught Li Huowang off-guard, so much so that he didn't even notice how bizarre his illusion was.

At that moment, Li Huowang's pupils shrank, and he had a bold hypothesis. When he asked Er Bing the question, the latter started laughing loudly. "Hehehe~ Didn't you kill them? Be more confident! After all, you are a Strayed One! It's a piece of cake for you to kill those tens of thousands of people!"

As soon as she said those words, her remaining eye was crushed by Li Huowang. "You guys were the ones responsible for it! The massacre from four years ago was done by you guys! And you framed me!"

On the other hand, Jiang Yingzi's body became unstable and she started crying. She dragged her wounded body and approached Li Huowang. "Li Huowang, I was wrong. The Sitting Oblivion Dao was the one who killed my family. We've all been fooled."

Then, without even waiting for his reply, she wiped away her tears. "Li Huowang, I know it's too much for me to ask this, but can you get revenge for my family? If you help me, then I will tell you something important.”

Hearing that, Li Huowang was curious but snapped out of it in an instant. “Why should I listen to an illusion like you?”

“I might be an illusion, and so was Monk, but Dan Yangzi is not! He’s real! The elders of the Ao Jing Sect had all been replaced by the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao! You’ve been fooled by them! They did not help you get rid of Dan Yangzi, but instead hid him further down inside of you! Your personality is still being influenced by Dan Yangzi!”

Just as Yingzi had just finished telling those words to Li Huowang, her body slowly started disappearing. “I’m sorry...”

Translator's Thoughts

Er Bing's true form! Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 160 - Death

At that moment, Jiang Yingzi disappeared without any prior warning.

Li Huowang was left stunned as he thought about what Jiang Yingzi had just told him.

“The elders of the Ao Jing Sect had been replaced by the members of Sitting Oblivion Dao? Dan Yangzi is still alive and is not an illusion?” mumbled Li Huowang. He would normally have just ignored her words since she was an illusion, but he found her words to be reasonable.

The Sitting Oblivion Dao hadn’t just appeared suddenly. They had already been there and had infiltrated the Ao Jing Sect.

“Impossible! How did you find out?!”

At that moment, Li Huowang lowered his head to see Er Bing shouting hysterically. Even though Er Bing had been able to laugh throughout the torture earlier, now she was visibly distressed after knowing that Li Huowang had found out the truth about the Ao Jing Sect.

Li Huowang finally realized what the Abbess meant when she advised him to think like the Sitting Oblivion Dao and work backward to resolve their plots. At the same time, he also realized why they were so dangerous and had to be killed on sight.

These crazy bastards didn’t fear death or pain, and only wanted to entertain themselves. Their perspective was so twisted that to them fooling someone was even more important than their own lives.

Now that Li Huowang knew what they cared about the most, he also knew how to exact his revenge on them.

“Do you want to know how I managed to see through your tricks?” asked Li Huowang as he stabbed his sword into Er Bing’s chest.

“Cough~ Cough~” Blood flowed out from Er Bing’s mouth, the few remaining pieces of flesh on her face twitching. “How ...?”

Li Huowang lowered his body and whispered into her ears, “Hehe... Take a guess.”

As he said those words, he twisted his sword, causing Er Bing’s body to twitch in pain.

Then, Li Huowang withdrew his sword and slashed downward, splitting Er Bing’s head in half.

But that was not enough for him.

Li Huowang continued to slash Er Bing, over and over. Hatred filled his eyes while pieces of flesh were flung into the air until Er Bing’s body was turned into nothing more than a pile of minced meat.

Meanwhile, everyone else stood a distance away as they stared at the enraged Li Huowang, not daring to move a single step closer to him.

Just as Bai Lingmiao was about to approach Li Huowang, Chun Xiaoman stopped her. “Don’t go! What if ... “ “I’m not afraid!” said Bai Lingmiao as she pushed Xiaoman away and hugged Li Huowang.

“Senior Li! Senior Li! Please snap back!” Bai Lingmiao started crying as she hugged Li Huowang’s arm, stopping him from hacking up Er Bing.

Gradually, Li Huowang gradually regained his sanity and sheathed the bloody sword in his hand. Then, he slowly raised his head and stared at Dan Yangzi’s illusion.

Dan Yangzi was floating in the air, his three faces displaying different emotions—one displayed happiness, one anger, and one sadness. All of the faces stared at Li Huowang before creeping into an eerie smile.

After a while, Dan Yangzi slowly drifted downward and into the ground.

“Senior Li, please stop. She’s already dead and we are safe. Everything is over,” said Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang took a deep breath and nodded. “Yeah, everything is over.”

Then, he stared at the minced meat on the ground and asked the others, “Does anyone have a flint? Burn this motherfucker into ashes.”

Li Huowang was wary; he needed to make sure that Er Bing was well and truly dead. Burning her to ashes was one way to do this.

The others immediately followed his orders. They used a part of the broken horse carriage as fuel to burn up the bodies of Er Bing and the rest. As the flames burned brightly, a plume of black smoke could be seen rising atop the dunes.

Li Huowang did not leave. He just stared at the flames, making sure that nothing but ashes remained of Er Bing. Anything could happen in this bizarre world; he didn’t dare to be complacent.

Meanwhile, Lu Zhuangyuan stood at the side hesitantly before making up his mind. “Young Daoist, my daughter-in-law was startled very badly yesterday. Now that she is pregnant, it might not be wise for her to travel. We will go to the town and find a doctor to check on her first.”

However, he was telling only half the truth.

It was not only Luo Juanhua who was frightened yesterday, but the entire Lu family! Lu Zhuangyuan had originally thought that they had gotten a free Daoist bodyguard, but after he witnessed the things that happened yesterday, he realized that he was wrong. If they were traveling alone, then at most they would lose their money or maybe Luo Juanhua would have to suffer. But if they were to travel with Li Huowang, then their very lives could be lost!

The Young Daoist is crazy! To think that he hid it so well.

At that moment, Li Huowang turned around causing Lu Zhuangyuan's face to instantly turn pale as he took a few steps back, ready to explain himself.

"Alright. I hope you have a safe journey. Puppy, give Troupe Leader Lu two of the camels for their journey," said Li Huowang.

"N-n-no, no need for that!" said Lu Zhuangyuan as he instantly turned to leave, bringing his family with him. He was too afraid of Li Huowang.

Li Huowang ignored them and continued to monitor the flames which burned from morning to afternoon before finally dying out. Then, he approached the pile of burnt residue and confirmed that nothing but ashes remained. Only then did he finally let out a sigh of relief.

"Is everything okay?" asked Li Huowang as he inspected the wound on Bai Lingmiao's shoulder.

"Yes, it's just a minor injury." Bai Lingmiao forced a smile when she saw Li Huowang had returned to normal as if nothing had happened.

She extended both her hands and carefully inspected Li Huowang's amputated arm, her eyes revealing deep sorrow.

"No need to worry. It will grow out soon enough." Li Huowang carefully patted her head.

"Really?" Bai Lingmiao's eyes lit up.

"Of course," assured Li Huowang before turning toward the rest.

Everyone else also looked disheveled, but Li Huowang ignored their wounds; he was more concerned about those who had died.

One of the guiding drug ingredients had died. He had only one arm but good eyesight.

The other one who had died was a fat assistant.

At this moment, the two bodies were lying side by side, and Monk's illusion was praying for them.

As he looked at their lifeless faces, Li Huowang felt numb. He doubted himself as a leader; if things had been different, maybe they too would have been able to go back to their homes.

"Burn their bodies. Do we have a jar? If not, then we can use a cloth to store the ashes," instructed Li Huowang.

Once everything was ready, Li Huowang took the rest of them and departed.

"Senior Li, I think we are going the wrong way. This path leads to the kingdom of Si Qi," pointed out one of them.

Li Huowang nodded. "Yes, and we must hurry."

Chapter 161 - Go Back

In a guest room, Li Huowang sat in a wooden tub, completely naked. He held onto a three-barbed spike in his lone arm, breathing deeply as though in preparation for something.

Whoo~ whoo~ whoo~

Li Huowang panted, trying to calm his nerves. Once he was completely composed, he stuffed a piece of cloth into his mouth, and raised the three-barbed spike in his hand, aiming it at his abdomen.

Blood started to flow into the bathwater, staining it a deep red.

The veins on Li Huowang's forehead throbbed as he endured the excruciating pain that almost caused him to pass out. Even as he trembled from the pain, he continued to dig deeper.

Finally, he reached inside his stomach, intending to create an opening to see what was inside.

However, at that moment, Li Huowang realized that he only had one arm left, and thus he could not perform such an action.

Just as he was considering if he should call someone for help from the outside, a hand with long and black fingernails grazed his skin and reached for his waist.

"Thank you," said Li Huowang as he shuddered as he raised the three-barbed spike.

The Second Deity's hand exerted slight pressure, causing the contents of his stomach to be slowly squeezed out. Apart from some half-digested food, there was nothing else—there was no Black Taisui nor Dan Yangzi's half face. He was gone.

Upon seeing this, Li Huowang smiled. He had guessed correctly. That day, in the cave in order to confuse him, those members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao had taken care of the still alive

Dan Yangzi.

Next, to tease him further, they had further hidden the Immortal Dan Yangzi, to an extent that even the Abbess hadn't been able to detect him.

Those liars wanted to see him continue walking down this path and get replaced by Dan Yangzi under unexpected circumstances.

This was all for their amusement.

But this had inadvertently helped him. Back then, the reason Abbess and the nuns hadn't been able to completely get rid of Dan Yangzi was because a part of him was still alive. That portion of Dan Yangzi which had still been alive was now completely dead. He just needed to return to the Benevolent Nunnery and look for Abbess; then, he could be completely rid of Dan Yangzi.

He let the three-barbed spike fall into the water, and picked up the Golden Wound medication before pouring it into his abdominal wound.

At that moment, the hand with the black fingernails quickly spun as the Second Deity held two red threads and inserted them into the flesh around Li Huowang's wound.

The red threads intertwined and swiftly closed up the wound. This process was still quite painful, causing Li Huowang to almost bite through the cloth.

"Thank you," said Li Huowang as he turned to look behind; however, there was nobody in sight.

His expression was somewhat pale, as he stepped out of the bathtub to dress himself.

"Daoist, are you going back this time just to resolve the matter about your Master? What about those liars? You should think about taking care of them, otherwise they will continue to deceive people and cause suffering. Enforcing justice is also a good deed," asked Monk.

Hatred flashed through Li Huowang's eyes as he listened to Monk's ravings. However, he could not be bothered to reply, and continued to put on his clothes.

Of course he hadn't forgotten about those from the Sitting Oblivion Dao pretending to be from the Ao Jing Sect. At the same time, he also thought of his two juniors who had just died because of them, and the many things they had done to his body.

Li Huowang wanted nothing more than to carve out their heart and bones. Even if he ignored Jiang Yingzi's dying wish, he still had unfinished business with them. This matter was almost as important to him as taking care of Dan Yangzi.

"But they are very powerful. Daoist, can you beat them?" asked Monk, still looking worried.

"I have my own ways. Now, can you give me at least some moments of silence?!"

He could not take care of the other five people from the Sitting Oblivion Dao with his own strength. However, during his travels, he had thought about it, and found out that he did not need to fight alone.

Firstly, it was likely that the entire Ao Jing Sect was being fooled and controlled by those from the Sitting Oblivion Dao, just like Jiang Yingzi—with Shou San at the top, those Ao Jing Sect members had all been fooled, just like her. As long as he could make them aware that they were being lied to, then they would become his allies.

Second, Abbess Jingxin's son was also a Strayed One like him. The reason behind his current condition was also likely linked with those from the Sitting Oblivion Dao. As long as the truth was revealed, he trusted that the Abbess would be more than happy to seek revenge for her son.

But first, he had to get rid of Dan Yangzi.

Dressed neatly, Li Huowang took out the translated version of the Fiery Admonishment and struggled to read the text on it. At that moment, he realized that he could recognize even fewer characters than before.

Previously, Li Huowang had thought that his ability to read had been taken away along with Dan Yangzi. But now that he thought about it, he realized that wasn't the case. It was simply because Dan Yangzi had yet to die.

Based on the number of characters I still recognise, I guess I should be able to reach the kingdom of Si Qi before being completely assimilated by Dan Yangzi.

Li Huowang thought to himself before closing the book and stepping out.

Once outside, he noticed that everyone was looking at him with concern.

"I need to go back to the Benevolent Nunnery to ask the Abbess about some matters." Li Huowang explained the reason why they were going back to Si Qi.

They had all visited the Benevolent Nunnery before, and everyone knew that there was something wrong with Li Huowang's words; however, they did not question him. Perhaps some of them had other thoughts in mind, but now, they could only follow him without dissent.

One reason for this was because Li Huowang had saved their lives, but there was also an increasingly intimidating aura starting to emanate from him.

"Gao Zhijian, how's your head?" Li Huowang clutched his stomach as he looked up at the tall figure with his covered head.

"No... no... no..."

"It's good if you have no problems. Rest well, and eat more in this period to heal your body," said Li Huowang.

Li Huowang was very shocked when he learned that Gao Zhijian was still alive. After all, he had personally seen the iron die penetrate Gao Zhijian's temple.

When the others had gone through the battlefield, they found out that he was still breathing. Bai Lingmiao had then requested the assistance of the Immortals from the Bai Family, allowing him to eventually wake up.

Drowning was one thing, and this was another. Li Huowang found it rather hard to believe that this was just a coincidence. After all, he had seen far too many bizarre events here.

However, he stopped asking questions after Gao Zhijian told him that he did not know what was going on either.

No matter what, being alive was preferable to being dead.

Even so, there was still an iron die buried in his head. In that regard, Li Huowang did not dare ask for too much either.

“Has the new carriage been bought? Let me take a look. No need to support me, I can walk by myself,” asked Li Huowang.

As Puppy watched Li Huowang’s figure gradually growing distant, he couldn’t help but shiver. He turned to Zhao Wu and asked cautiously, “Hey, do you guys feel like Senior Li is becoming more and more like that Baldy?”

Chapter 162 - Unexpected Harvest

Li Huowang used his lone hand to stuff a piece of golden-brown bun into his mouth, chewing it slowly. He looked lifelessly at the bonfire before him as he mentally calculated where they should stop for a break after this.

Currently, they were on their way to the kingdom of Si Qi, and had purchased three more second-hand carriages. They were acquired by selling off a few camels and then exchanging the silver. The carriages were indispensable to their long journey ahead.

At that moment, a chopstick carried some cooked meat along with some piping-hot noodles toward Li Huowang's mouth, waiting for him to open it.

Seeing this, Li Huowang frowned slightly and shook his head. "I can eat on my own; there's no need to feed me."

"Senior Li, how can you eat with just one hand? Let me feed you while you wait for your hand to grow back. Right, how much longer will it take?" asked Bai Lingmiao.

Hearing the worried tone of her voice, Li Huowang raised his right arm and looked at that empty sleeve. He smiled bitterly and mumbled, "Soon, very soon."

"But it has already been three days, and yet there don't seem to be any changes." Bai Lingmiao reached out to roll up Li Huowang's sleeve and examine the healed wound.

"It's already been three days?" Li Huowang's pupils contracted as though he had remembered something. He immediately stood up and looked around the barren dunes, as though looking for something.

He found his target quite quickly before heading toward a large rock in the distance.

“Senior Li, where are you going? The noodles will get cold soon!” asked Bai Lingmiao.

“I’m going to pee, don’t follow me!”

Soon, he arrived at the large rock and walked toward the shadow it casted onto the ground.

There was only a patch of barren ground behind the rock—this was exactly what he wanted.

At that moment, he faced the rock and sat down cross-legged. He hesitated for a moment, but pulled out his sword and drew a human figure on the wall.

“Mom, it must have been hard for you in this period,” Li Huowang spoke gently to the human figure. “Mom, I’m finally awake. Can you pass me my phone? It’s her birthday today, and I want to give her a call. Don’t untie me, just help me dial her number. It’s on the second row of the contacts list.”

Then, he took out a small, sharp shovel and gently used it to carve on the human figure’s face. Not long after, a simple but rather familiar face appeared before him. Li Huowang did not know how to draw, causing it to be rather ugly. Even so, in his eyes, there was nothing more beautiful than what he saw on the wall.

“Happy birthday, Nana. Happy birthday to you~ Happy birthday to you~”

All alone, he sat there and smiled at the drawing he had made on the giant rock while gently singing aloud.

The sound didn’t travel too far; it was muffled by the unforgiving winds.

“Sorry, Nana. I can’t be with you for your birthday this year. The only thing I can do is send you my wishes like this. I’ll make it up to you when I have the chance,” said Li Huowang as he reached out with a smile before caressing the face of the wall drawing.

Then he leaned across and kissed it, before standing up by supporting himself with his single hand.

When he turned around, he was faced with a red-veiled person; it was Bai Lingmiao's Second Deity, and she had witnessed the heartwarming yet eerie scene that had taken place.

"Keep your mouth shut," said Li Huowang before leaving her behind, and turning toward the carriages in the distance.

By the time he returned, everyone had eaten their fill, and were chatting to pass time.

Li Huowang reached out to take his bowl of noodles from Bai Lingmiao's arms. Then, he placed it on the ground, picked up his chopsticks and began to slurp them up with his one hand.

After devouring the noodles, a crisp, metallic sound caused his body to instinctively tense up. He seemed to have heard of this sound before.

Li Huowang looked toward the direction where the sound originated from and found that it came from Puppy; he was sitting on the ground, and using his knife as though he was trying to pry something out from the ground.

Li Huowang stood up and walked up to him. "What are you doing?"

Li Huowang's words startled Puppy, causing him to sheepishly look toward Li Huowang. Then, he reached out and picked up the object on the ground.

"Nothing much. Since we're spending so much money, I'm trying to help us save some," said Puppy.

There were rows of blackened bronze coins in front of him—they seemed to have been burned recently. Li Huowang recognized that these were from the bronze-coin veils that the dwarfs performing the shadow play were using. He still remembered that Er Bing had taken it and even worn it on her face.

The burnt bronze coins had many scratches on them.

Obviously, Puppy wanted to pry out these coins to put them to use.

“I feel that it’s such a waste to just leave them in the pile of ashes like that. There are at least a hundred coins here. I’m not planning to keep them for myself. Once I pry them out, I will pass these to Junior Bai for safekeeping. But who knew that even the thin chains passing through the coins would be so hardy, and couldn’t be pried out easily.”

Hearing this, Li Huowang took it and wiped away the black dust on the coins quite easily.

The flames hadn’t been able to harm this object in the slightest. There were thin, old chains that passed through each coin to form a strange coin veil.

These bronze coins seemed ordinary, and were all round with a square hole in the center. Each of them was imprinted with four large words which Li Huowang could not read.

“Dao... dao... dao guang... tong... Ah... tong... Tong bao!” Gao Zhijian translated for Li Huowang.

“Daoguang Tongbao[1]?” Li Huowang did not know which currency this country came from, nor did he care. What mattered was their actual value.

Li Huowang examined the coin veil carefully before calling Bun over, and placing the veil on its head to see if there were any hidden issues.

At that moment, a surprising scene happened—even though Bun was shaking its head and trying to use its front paws to scratch its head, Li Huowang felt like there was no dog in front of him.

Back then, the dwarf had worn this veil while sneak attacking him. If not for the Second Deity warning him in advance, he might have suffered from the sneak attack.

After that, when Er Bing wore this item and hid amongst the crowd, he hadn’t been able to locate her.

From these two points, it seemed that this item could help conceal one's presence.

“This... might actually be useful for me.” Li Huowang looked at the item, his gaze gradually brightening, “It’s actually extremely useful!”

Although he did not understand why, it seemed like anyone in this world with some level of ability could easily tell that he was a Strayed One.

And this object might be able to prevent that from becoming a repeated occurrence—he would no longer be treated like a piece of highly sought after meat!

1. an inscription on the coin that describes itself

Chapter 163 - Arrival

The bronze coins rustled as Li Huowang donned the veil of bronze coins on his face. The distinctive burnt smell emanating from the coin veil gave Li Huowang an unprecedented sense of security.

Once at Benevolent Nunnery, if this thing is even able to conceal me from Abbess, then it would be shockingly valuable.

Wearing the mask, Li Huowang stood up and shouted excitedly to the people behind him, "Let's go! Hurry to the Henghua Mountain!"

With his shout, the carriage wheels started to roll once again, this time toward the kingdom of Si Qi.

As they gradually approached the kingdom of Si Qi, which had a lot more lakes and rivers, the landscape around them also grew more lush, with even the air feeling more moist.

However, their journey was not completely smooth-sailing. The border guard of the kingdom of Si Qi had started to become a lot more strict.

Fortunately, the border between the kingdom of Si Qi and Hou Shu was quite long to begin with. Some of the border troops had already been moved away, leaving gaps in their defenses.

They used the time when the guards changed their shifts to re-enter the kingdom of Si Qi.

One morning, Li Huowang was bound tightly to a tree with chains that were as thick as a bowl.

His fellow disciples silently looked on as he rambled on nonsensically. They had already grown accustomed to this after having experienced it multiple times. Now, they were no longer as surprised as before; they were quite familiar with his illness now.

After a while, Li Huowang's eyes gradually became clear. He looked up to see the bright sunlight, then glanced at the greenery by the roadside. Then, he heaved a sigh of relief.

No matter what they had gone through during their journey, they were finally about to arrive at their destination.

"Let's have lunch, and then we'll leave. We should be able to reach Henghua Mountain before nightfall," Li Huowang said to Bai Lingmiao, who was untying him.

There was a hint of sadness in Bai Lingmiao's eyes as she inspected his empty left sleeve. There were still no signs of improvement even after so many days.

After a moment, she turned around, picked up a wooden bucket, and went to the nearby river to fetch water.

The river water was very clean. The wooden bucket fell into the stream, along with Bai Lingmiao's tears.

"Do you feel sorry for Senior Li?" Chun Xiaoman, who had followed her, asked softly.

"He's disabled now! His hand cannot grow back!" Bai Lingmiao choked up.

Chun Xiaoman seemed to want to comfort her, yet found that she didn't know where to begin.

At the same time, seeing as how she was so sad, it pointed toward the fact that she had already accepted Senior Li as her own man.

"It's just his arm this time, but what if it happens again? Why is it so difficult for us to just go home?" sobbed Bai Lingmiao.

Seeing her closest friend so heartbroken, Chun Xiaoman felt quite sad for her.

Even though Li Huowang did not explain anything to them, in the time they had spent together, Chun Xiaoman had understood that the red bamboo slip on his waist was used to sacrifice a part of his body to exchange for supernatural abilities.

As long as Li Huowang was in possession of that thing, he would eventually have fewer and fewer organs.

Chun Xiaoman watched as Bai Lingmiao grew more and more distressed, causing her heart to waver as she hugged her.

In the end, it was all because their strength was not enough. If they had enough strength to easily resolve such situations, then such outcomes wouldn't happen.

However, it was almost impossible to persuade Senior Li to discard the bamboo slip. Even though the price to use that thing was quite large, it had enormous power.

I should get Senior Li to teach me how to use that bamboo slip.

Since anyone could use that thing, she might as well use it herself.

Be it Bai Lingmiao or Senior Li, they would both feel pained if either of them got injured. And since she had already made the decision to never get married, her appearance didn't matter anymore.

If it was my hand that was cut off...

Chun Xiaoman glanced at the dejected Bai Lingmiao, and then at her hand covered in black hair.

...it's alright!

After Xiaoman consoled Bai Lingmiao for a while, the two of them continued filling the water.

The rest of them were still waiting to eat, and they could not delay their journey further.

After a moment, the wooden bucket was filled with the refreshing river water.

"Hold on," said Chun Xiaoman as she dipped her hairy hand into the water before gently wiping the corners of Bai Lingmiao's eyes. "There's some ash here. Let me clean it off."

"Thank you, Sister Xiaoman," thanked Bai Lingmiao.

"Don't mention it. We're like sisters. I'm going to be your future child's godmother." Chun Xiaoman smiled.

At that moment, she saw Bai Lingmiao's expression suddenly become terrified

"Sister Xiaoman! Look behind you!" shouted Bai Lingmiao.

Xiaoman quickly reached for the hilt of her sword and spun around, only to see several corpses slowly floating down the clear river.

Soon after, everyone gathered by the river bank, silently staring at the corpses.

From their clothing, it could be inferred that these were soldiers belonging to the kingdom of Si Qi—likely casualties from a battle occurring in a region upstream.

Amidst the chaos of war, the commoners couldn't have fared much better either; there were quite a few commoners amongst the corpses, their eyes filled with despair.

"So many bodies... Just how many people must have died?" Puppy sighed as he leaned against a tree trunk.

"The river water is probably no longer fit for drinking. We'll have to look for wells in the future," said Li Huowang. He was busy considering other matters, different from the worries of the other disciples. "Does anyone feel that these bodies seem unusually fresh?"

Li Huowang's words caused everyone to pay closer attention to the corpses. Under normal circumstances, as long as a person had not died that day, their corpse would look a lot more terrifying after a while in the water—they wouldn't look like this.

"Yes, look, these corpses still have color in their faces!" commented one of them.

"If they were not motionless, they could easily be mistaken as being alive."

Li Huowang squinted as he continued to observe. These corpses were causing him to feel a strong sense of unease.

Were they killed with some special ability to become like this? Or did some sect get involved in this war among mortals?

Or maybe I'm overthinking it. In this world, normal wars are probably fought with those strange sects joining in.

Li Huowang stood by the river and pondered for a while before bringing the others away.

Maybe it was because so many had died, but everyone's mood was rather heavy. Nobody really spoke during their journey to the small town at the base of Henghua Mountain. They were only able to relax after seeing the familiar scenery of the small town around them.

"Senior Li, it's already so late. Are you going up the mountain now? How about going tomorrow after breakfast?" suggested Bai Lingmiao.

"Hold on," said Li Huowang as he walked into a pastry shop with fragrant aromas.

When he returned, he had a large stack of snacks on his back. It seemed like he had nearly emptied the entire store.

"I'm leaving. You guys can stay at the same inn as before, and I'll meet you guys there. Right, where's Puppy? I saw him just now," asked Li Huowang.

"He went to the restroom," replied someone.

At that moment, a contented-looking Puppy walked out from a nearby alley. "Ah... this restroom is clean enough. There's not even a single fly or maggot."

Translator's Thoughts

This is how the MC looks like with the bronze coin veil! Looks badass ngl

Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 164 - Goodbye Abbess

At this moment, Li Huowang was carrying a load of pastries on his back, panting heavily as he struggled up the dirt road on Henghua Mountain.

With only one hand now, and the burden of carrying so many snacks, this trip up the mountain was even more arduous than the ones before.

Li Huowang had tried to keep the pastries away from his body to avoid dousing them in his own sweat. However, this only served to tire him out even more.

Finally, after turning a corner, he couldn't continue. He put the pastries down, and leaned against a crooked tree to catch his breath.

Li Huowang had rushed up the mountain immediately after reaching the town below, causing him to start feeling hungry. He gave it some thought, and then reached into the snacks box and took out a green bean pastry before munching on it.

The pastry was crispy on the outside and soft on the inside, and it soothed Li Huowang's empty stomach. He had never eaten such a pastry before, but found it to be unexpectedly delicious. Given its taste and fragrance, he had a feeling that it was freshly made that day. It was even more delectable than those cream cakes and chocolates he used to eat before his transmigration.

Li Huowang didn't think too much about him eating some of the Abbess's snacks. It was not his first time here, and there was no need to be too polite with her. He was certain she wouldn't mind.

There are so many pastries here... they should be enough for the Abbess, right?

Li Huowang thought as he looked at the stack of pastries and chuckled.

Nope... it's not enough. Even if the amount is doubled, it's probably still not enough to feed her.

As he thought up to this point, Li Huowang smiled, before feeling stunned. When did he have such a close relationship with Abbess Jingxin?

When he thought about it, the Abbess was greedy, lazy and dirty. But ever since coming to this world, aside from his fellow disciples, she was the person who had treated him the best.

She had not harmed him because he was a Strayed One, and even tried to help him to dispel Dan Yangzi. Before he left, she even gifted him with a sword to help him deal with danger during his journey.

If not for having to send Bai Lingmiao and the others home, staying in the town at the bottom of this mountain wouldn't be a bad choice. This is the Benevolent Nunnery's territory, and other powers wouldn't cause trouble for me over here.

Lost in these thoughts, he finished more than half of the box of green bean pastries, causing him to immediately stop.

He looked around at the lush surroundings of Henghua Mountain and relaxed. He suddenly thought of something, and reached into his pockets to retrieve the translated version of the Fiery Scripture.

He flipped through it, wanting to see how much influence Dan Yangzi currently had on him. To his astonishment, he found that he couldn't even recognize a single word.

This change caused his heart to drop.

I need to hurry! The speed at which Dan Yangzi is wresting control of my body is increasing! If there are any further delays, then I am going to be completely assimilated by Dan Yangzi!

Li Huowang quickly put the book back into his pocket, then picked up the pastries and continued to climb up the dirt path.

Finally, when the moon had risen high up in the sky, Li Huowang returned to the mountain gate of the Benevolent Nunnery.

When he saw the rhombus-shaped couplet written using Women's Script, Li Huowang felt a sense of familiarity.

"Abbess, I'm back! Look what I brought you guys!" Li Huowang shouted excitedly toward the pitch-black Benevolent Nunnery.

None of the lamps are on? Looks like they are too lazy to even light them up.

As he stepped foot into the dilapidated nunnery, Li Huowang suddenly felt that something was amiss.

How come... It's not smelly anymore?

Li Huowang tossed aside the pastries in his hand, then took a few deep breaths while standing on the spot. He was shocked to find that the smelly stench that was a characteristic of the Benevolent Nunnery had vanished without a trace!

Something's wrong!

Feeling somewhat flustered, Li Huowang couldn't be bothered to care about other things as he dashed toward the depths of the nunnery.

"Abbess Jingxin! Miao Yu! Miao Xin! Where are you guys!!" shouted Li Huowang, his voice reverberating throughout the nunnery. Even so, no one responded, causing him to start panicking.

Suddenly, Li Huowang heard some commotion in the distance. He dashed across, only to find that the commotion was caused by pigs oinking.

When he came to the pigsty located behind the washroom, the scene before him caused him to freeze on the spot.

A fat person about the size of a small house could be seen within the pigsty. The black-haired fat pigs could be seen surrounding her. They seemed like baby pigs that were suckling milk.

However, they were not suckling milk—instead, they were eating human flesh!

Their teeth that were usually used to eat feces were now being used to tear off the fatty flesh of the obese person before they swallowed it into their stomach. Every pig's snout was stained red as they enjoyed their meal.

“Get away!” shouted Li Huowang with bloodshot eyes as he unsheathed his sword and dashed toward them. He directly slashed at them before the pigs could even turn around, slicing one of them in two.

Frightened by the intense killing intent, the other black pigs quickly scattered away.

When Li Huowang arrived before the deceased fatty, he slowly knelt down and lifted the head that had half of its face chewed away.

It was Abbess Jingxin's face.

“Ahh!! Ahh!!”

At that moment, Li Huowang's agonized screams echoed throughout the Benevolent Nunnery. He clutched the Abbess's face as his tears rolled onto the floor.

Abbess Jingxin was dead.

The only person who had been good to him in this world, had departed from this world, and so had the hope in his heart.

“Who did this?!”

The almost-berserk Li Huowang maniacally charged out of the pigsty with his sword raised as he looked for the enemy within the nunnery.

However, aside from the corpses of the other nuns, he did not find anything else.

By the time he found her, Abbess Jingxin had been dead for some time already. The culprit had probably left a long time ago.

Who killed them?!

This was the only thought going through Li Huowang's brain. He dashed out toward the mountain gate, but gradually came to a stop.

With bloodshot eyes, he once again came before Abbess Jingxin and took out his long sword before starting to dig out a pit beside her.

He wanted to bury the Abbess, so that her body wouldn't be nibbled on by the pigs.

The hole required to bury the Abbess was quite large. He continued digging for a long time, all the way until the middle of the next day, before finally completing it.

Just as Li Huowang was about to push the Abbess in, he found something abnormal. Her corpse had been here for an entire night, yet there were no signs of it starting to smell or attracting any flies.

Seeing this, Li Huowang subconsciously thought back to the corpses they had seen floating in the river water. They had similarly not decomposed, and looked quite lifelike.

Could they have been killed by the same people? Those killed by the culprits do not rot? Who are they?!

Something is wrong! Hold on!

Li Huowang suddenly realized that he had overlooked something. He paused, then dashed toward the pigsty to examine the black-haired pig he had killed previously.

After an entire night and a day, the pig he had killed had similarly not attracted any flies or started to smell.

After a moment, Li Huowang stumbled out of the pigsty, looking at his surroundings disbelievingly.

There were no signs of any struggle or battle.

In any world, "decay" was an inevitable part of life.

However, at this moment, it seemed like something was not working properly with the process of decay in this world.

Perhaps... the Abbess wasn't killed by someone.

Li Huowang turned to look toward Abbess Jingxin. By now, her skin should have started decomposing and become filled with pus and maggots. Yet, it still appeared extremely smooth and fair.

The “decay” in this world had vanished.

Chapter 165 - Have Not Won

Veins bulged on Li Huowang's solitary arm as he exerted force to push Abbess Jingxin's corpse into the pit he had just dug out. Next, he knelt down on both knees and began filling the pit with soil to bury the Abbess's body.

Then, he drew some pastries on a wooden board, and placed it before her grave.

With an ashen expression, he took out the pastries that he had brought up the mountain and arranged them as offerings before her grave.

Abbess Jingxin had died, along with the "decay" of this world.

From here on, anything and everything made of flesh and blood would no longer decay or disintegrate; any dead person would remain in the same state that they were in at the time of their death.

Abbess Jingxin's death was definitely related to this. Previously, whenever the nuns used their supernatural abilities, they seemed to be connected to "decay".

The disappearance of "decay" seemed to be the true cause of Abbess Jingxin's and the others' deaths.

No matter the time, "decay" was always repulsive, and yet it was something unavoidable.

In a world where "decay" vanished, there would be a huge amount of problems.

If corpses did not decay, the cycle of life would be broken, and corpses would start accumulating in the world.

However at this point, Li Huowang couldn't be bothered with pondering over what was going on; he himself was about to be a goner.

The Abbess was dead, and there would be nobody else like her that would help him deal with the matter of Dan Yangzi.

There was no one else he could turn to now; he was nearly out of time.

At this point, he had turned completely illiterate, which foreshadowed that he was on the verge of being completely assimilated by Dan Yangzi.

If he did not want Dan Yangzi to succeed in his schemes, then there was only one path he could take.

“Abbess, wait for me at the Bridge of Helplessness. I will come down to join you guys shortly!” said Li Huowang. Then, he kowtowed three times toward the grave before dispiritedly looking toward the rat mountain.

Abbess had previously told him that he could prevent Dan Yangzi from taking over him by being nibbled to death by those rats.

He did not want Dan Yangzi to come back to life, even if that meant that he himself would have to die!

However, when Li Huowang arrived before that black tower again, he was stunned by the black objects that littered the ground.

He walked across and lifted the black objects, slowly prying them open with his fingernails. Cockroaches and flies fell out from in between his fingers, and floated down like black-colored snowflakes.

With the death of the nuns, these flies and cockroaches had followed suit. After all, they were the lowest level of decomposers.

Li Huowang suddenly stood up. His breathing quickened as he dashed toward the black tower.

However, what he saw was a shocking scene. The black rats inside had similarly died, and those dead rats were the same as the others—they showed no signs of decay or foul odor.

“Damn!” Enraged, Li Huowang smashed his fist onto those dead rats, causing their innards to be squeezed out from their mouths and flying everywhere.

“What immoral deeds did I do in my past life?! Why can’t I even die when I want to?!”

“Hehehe... Child...” A low laughter rang beside Li Huowang.

When Li Huowang looked up, he saw that it belonged to Dan Yangzi’s three terrifying faces.

“What did I tell you? At this point, whatever you do is in vain. You can still help me if you turn back now,” said Dan Yangzi.

“Do you think you’ve won?” Li Huowang stood up, his eyes filled with boundless hatred. “As long as this body still belongs to me, you have not won yet!”

Li Huowang suddenly stood up and rushed toward the mountain gate of Benevolent Nunnery before running down the mountain as though in a frenzy.

Once he got down, he collided with Yang Xiaohai, who had two pieces of fried sweet potato in his mouth.

Seeing Li Huowang, Yang Xiaohai said ingratiatingly, “Senior Li, you’ve returned? Have you finished your matters on the mountain? Shall we go back together?”

However, Li Huowang completely ignored his flattery, and continued to dash onto the road. He glanced around and directly seized the horse of a scholar nearby before climbing onto it.

With bloodshot eyes, he quickly turned the horse around, and then jabbed a sharp screwdriver onto the horse’s butt. The horse neighed and screamed in pain before dashing toward the direction of the Ao Jing Sect.

“My horse!! That’s my horse!!” The scholar cried and chased, but Li Huowang soon vanished from his field of vision.

Seeing this scene, Yang Xiaohai panicked. Still holding the oily paper bag, he hurried back toward the inn. "Seniors! Senior Li is having an episode again!"

The mountain range where the Ao Jing Sect resided was over 200 miles away from the Benevolent Nunnery that was located on Henghua Mountain, and thus it required some time to traverse this distance when traveling via carriages.

However, with Li Huowang constantly using his torture instruments to stimulate the horse, they got there within just two days.

Once they returned to the ghost town, the horse finally could not continue any further. It started frothing at the mouth and fell onto the ground, its behind mangled from the repeated stabbing.

Li Huowang passed through the graves he had dug for the residents of the ghost town, and dashed up toward the mountain cave.

By now, it was already his third day without any sleep, and without anything to eat or drink. His current expression looked very bad.

However, Li Huowang had already cast aside all his worries about life and death. He just wanted Dan Yangzi dead! He was willing to do whatever it took, as long as he achieved his objective.

When Li Huowang returned, a few large-robed Ao Jing Sect disciples immediately blocked him without hesitation. "Shou San has orders, you—"

However, before they could even finish, a cold glint flashed through the air, and two heads fell to the ground simultaneously. Their eyes were filled with disbelief; they had never thought that the other party would attack first.

Covered in blood, Li Huowang dashed into the cave and shouted, "Sitting Oblivion Dao! Come out now!"

His voice reverberated within the cave, attracting everyone's attention.

Soon after, Li Huowang was completely surrounded.

But it did not matter to him, since he did not plan to leave this place alive.

At that moment, Shou San stepped out from within the crowd, his body wreathed in flames. “You can’t be reasoned with. Do you really think that we won’t do anything to you?”

Meanwhile, as those words were uttered, Li Huowang looked toward the five elders that stepped out. Seeing the five people from the Sitting Oblivion Dao who were in disguise, he started chuckling, “Come, show me the strength of your Sitting Oblivion Dao!”

After saying this, Li Huowang raised his sword and sliced it across his own neck.

Beside him, Dan Yangzi was filled with anger as black clouds gradually enveloped his terrifying body before he lunged directly at Li Huowang.

However, Li Huowang did not care as he felt his blood pour out along with his life.

Splash~

At that moment, the Profound Records were unfurled onto the ground, and Li Huowang stood directly on it.

After a moment, the blood that flowed down his neck and down his clothes completely soaked the Profound Records.

Chapter 166 - Five Elements Intercalation

“Little brat, you’re pushing your luck too far. Do you really think that just because you could massacre an entire town, you are above everyone else?” Elder “Shen Benyou” said while looking toward Li Huowang with a hint of displeasure on his face.

At that moment, his body trembled slightly, causing the rusty nails embedded within his body to quickly shoot out toward Li Huowang.

But as the long nails were flying toward him, Li Huowang dodged them with surprising agility, all while cutting his own neck.

A sinister smile then appeared on Li Huowang’s extremely haggard face. He stepped onto the Profound Records, and then dashed toward the five elders, with a slight gust behind his back.

“Protect the elders!”

Flames quickly lit up on the bodies of some of the Ao Jing Sect disciples like Shou San and Tou Qi. As they raised their hands together, the blaze seemed to become contagious as it also appeared on Li Huowang’s body, causing his red Daoist robes to start burning as well.

It seemed like “Li Huowang” was in a dire situation. But in the very next moment, he tilted his head and the situation was completely reversed. The flames on “Li Huowang”’s body were extinguished, and at the same time, the charred bodies of the Ao Jing Sect members that were ablaze began to swell up inexplicably. Soon, their charred skin split apart like scorched rice, revealing their grotesque flesh. The blood that spewed out from the gaps quickly caused the flames on their body to be extinguished.

Then, “Li Huowang” held his sword in one hand and slashed down, directly cutting down two of the deformed Ao Jing Sect members; these Ao Jing Sect members were no match for him—for him, dealing with them was as easy as cutting vegetables.

“No! That’s not the brat! He has been possessed by his half-Immortal Master, Dan Yangzi!”

When the five elders of the Sitting Oblivion Dao realized this, they quickly sat down cross-legged, and began to chant. “As for joy, the pinnacle of elegance~ The beginning of the Dao, the fulfillment of accomplishment, the mastery of delight~ One should find joy in all things...”

As he heard them chanting, Li Huowang started laughing. However, it was not just his mouth smiling, but his eyes, fingers, and all the other organs on his body were laughing as well.

As his laughter rang out, his facial features began to loosen.

The very next moment, Dan Yangzi’s counterattack began. Some illusory black clouds appeared out of nowhere and shrouded Dan Yangzi, gradually suppressing his laughter.

At that moment, Li Huowang looked over to where Dan Yangzi was locked in fierce combat with the “Sitting Oblivion Dao”.

Even though his neck was throbbing with immense pain, the smile on his face was even brighter than before. What he wanted was to use himself to incite Dan Yangzi and Sitting Oblivion Dao into killing each other—no matter which side suffered casualties, he would have achieved his objectives.

No, it’s not enough. Just a bit more!

As he thought up to this point, Li Huowang raised a dagger and plunged it half-an-inch deep into the skin on his chest. He trembled as he gripped the hilt tightly, then gritted his teeth before sliding it downward.

Seeing this, the illusory Monk who had been following beside him, took a breath of cold air, and started gesturing frantically.

“Daoist, don’t do this. Let’s think of another way!”

However, Li Huowang did not think so. He did not want to risk giving Dan Yangzi a chance to take over his body after he died, and use it to commit heinous crimes.

With a low growl, Li Huowang pulled the hilt down firmly. Fresh blood splattered out from his chest and onto the Profound Records beneath him, causing the color of the bamboo slip to turn even more vibrant.

At this moment, between his enhanced perception of pain and the near-dissement caused Li Huowang to almost faint.

But he didn’t dare to let himself faint now. If he did, then by the time he woke up, the wounds on his body would have recovered. If Dan Yangzi managed to take over his body during that time, everything he had done before would have been in vain.

Now that Dan Yangzi had come out and shown himself, there would be no second chances for him.

With a clang, the blood-stained dagger fell onto the ground. Then, Li Huowang staggered as he raised his remaining hand and inserted it into the wound he had just cut open.

“Ahh!! Ahh!!!” He cried out as he knelt onto the ground with one knee. At the same time, veins began to bulge on the back of his hand as he forcefully pulled at the edge, causing his innards to be exposed to the cold air just like that.

“Wood Liver!”

Red roots extended from the Profound Records and burrowed in, restoring life to the liver that had lost far too much blood. Then, more roots extended from it, and followed along Li Huowang’s knee before burrowing in once again, going even deeper than before.

“Gold Lungs!”

As so continued, the roots extending from the Profound Records became even thicker.

“Earth Spleen!”

Thunder started echoing, while some sort of aura expanded within the cave. Everything around Li Huowang began to distort.

At this moment, everyone present before Li Huowang had turned into horrifying fleshy monsters, while the Profound Records on the ground had similarly transformed into parallel rows of wriggling worms.

“Water Kidneys!”

As Li Huowang continued, the crowd from Ao Jing Sect dashed toward him to try and stop him. However, as soon as they approached him, the Profound Records hanging on them all flew over and surrounded Li Huowang, forming a protective barrier around him.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang was slowly turning empty from within, and yet he was smiling more happily than ever before.

The entire process was painful, in fact extremely so. But he was truly happy—he was finally about to die. As long as he died, then he would not need to feel any more pain, and Dan Yangzi would not be able to take control of his body.

He took a deep breath, and his voice that was filled with sorrow and hatred spewed out along with fresh blood. “And lastly... Fire Heart!”

At this point, the Profound Records, which had now connected with his five organs burst with vitality.

Li Huowang had completely sacrificed his most important organs to Ba-Hui. With this, his body was almost reduced to an empty shell, and he fell to the ground, his pupils dilated.

However, this was not the end. This was not the Cang-Qiang Ascension that was used to summon Ba-Hui, but a different ritual recorded on the Profound Records—the Five Elements Intercalation.

And now that Li Huowang had completed it, he watched the wriggling worms on the ground that formed the Profound Records. They quickly gathered together and burrowed toward his empty body.

Soon after, his body, which had been nearly completely torn apart, was once again filled up, overflowing with them. Those worms burrowed freely within his body, not leaving any empty spaces.

Li Huowang staggered to his feet while holding his sword, and then looked down at the worms that were wriggling inside his body. At this moment, he could feel these worms wriggling inside his body.

It was an extremely strange feeling; he felt like these worms had already become a part of himself, and he could even feel the peculiar strength that was contained within their bodies.

He was already starting to have trouble distinguishing whether these things were worms or just a part of himself.

Most importantly, Li Huowang no longer felt any pain.

Chapter 167 - Chaotic Battle

When the ritual is over, I should be dead, right?

Li Huowang slowly raised his sword, and the worms in his abdomen climbed along his robes before wriggling toward his broken stub of an arm.

In just a few moments, he had a new left hand that was formed with wriggling worms.

After testing his new hand, Li Huowang nodded in satisfaction. Then, he once again looked into the distance, where Dan Yangzi was locked in battle with the five people from the Sitting Oblivion Dao.

From what he could see, Dan Yangzi still had the same terrifying appearance, while the faces of the other five had morphed into fleshy mahjong tiles.

When he thought about his imminent death, Li Huowang's heart began to calm down. He lifted his sword before walking toward them.

When he got closer, he charged forward and sliced off Dan Yangzi's central head. "Master, don't panic, your disciple is here to assist you!"

Meanwhile, the five from the Sitting Oblivion Dao seized the opportunity created by Li Huowang ambushing Dan Yangzi to quickly start levitating in a sitting position. Then, they began to chant while circling the two of them, "What is sitting in oblivion?"

Their voices continuously reverberated throughout the spacious cavern, becoming louder and louder.

On the other hand, as soon as they said those words, Li

Huowang and Dan Yangzi pushed off each other, and simultaneously leapt toward one of the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao on either side.

At that moment, a black domino flew toward Li Huowang's wrist. Just as he was about to dodge it, Yao Ji[1] put his fingers together and snapped. In an instant, the black shadow beneath the domino and the domino switched their positions—the shadow became the domino, and the domino had turned into the shadow.

This caught Li Huowang off-guard, causing the domino to pierce through Li Huowang's wrist, leaving behind a square gap in its wake.

Without the support of his wrist bones, Li Huowang's hand was about to droop powerlessly. However, that square hole was quickly filled up by those worms, allowing him to once again hold his sword firmly.

Hehe, we get what we pay for. Looks like I gain quite a bit from sacrificing my internal organs.

Li Huowang thought to himself as he dashed toward Qi Wan[2] in the distance.

This time, Li Huowang did not bother with dodging anything the enemy threw at him, using his body to meet it all head-on. Any damage or loss of body parts was quickly filled in by the wriggling worms. With the strength he borrowed from Ba-Hui, for the moment Li Huowang was evenly matched with them.

Li Huowang, Dan Yangzi, and the Sitting Oblivion Dao—these three parties had completely different goals, and were engaged in a chaotic battle.

At times, it was Li Huowang and Dan Yangzi fighting off the Sitting Oblivion Dao, and at others, it was Dan Yangzi and the Sitting Oblivion Dao fighting off Li Huowang.

Dan Yangzi was wielding a fleshy coin sword, and had terrifying strength. He could still suppress the Sitting Oblivion Dao, even though he had lost one head.

On the other hand, it seemed like the Sitting Oblivion Dao was more adept at psychological games, and not as good at direct confrontations. The five of them were even being suppressed by Dan Yangzi.

But this was partly thanks to Li Huowang.

Though Dan Yangzi was slightly stronger, their three sides mutually balanced each other out; none of them wanted to let either of the other parties win.

In this chaotic battle, Li Huowang always chose to help the weaker side, and fight against the stronger side; he was already giving up his life, and so there was no reason to not take down a few more with him. The best outcome would be if both Dan Yangzi and the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao could die with him.

Soon, this intense battle reached a temporary stalemate, with each person calculating their own interests.

Taking advantage of the moment when Dan Yangzi was pressuring the others, Yao Ji quickly approached Li Huowang and said urgently, “Boss! Don’t mess around anymore! Can’t you see how powerful this half-Immortal is? Continuing will only lead to everyone dying!”

“Hehe, do you think calling me ‘Boss’ will make me spare you? Even calling me “ancestor” is not going to help you at all!” said Li Huowang. As he spoke, he reached out toward the edges of the wound on his body, and abruptly pulled them apart.

Immediately, the blood-red worms burst forth from his abdomen and crashed toward Yao Ji.

Currently, these worms were all under Li Huowang’s control. As long as a worm managed to come into contact with someone, it would immediately burrow into their body and pierce through that person’s intestines.

“Boss Hong Zhong! We really have to stop fighting! Feel the skin at the back of your neck! Tell me if I'm lying!" said Yao Ji.

Hearing this, Li Huowang reached behind his neck. Then, the worms burrowed through his flesh before propping up a hard object from within.

It was a mahjong tile—Hong Zhong[3].

This scene left Li Huowang feeling somewhat hesitant.

Yao Ji hurriedly explained, "Your true identity is that of one of the three bosses of the Sitting Oblivion Dao. It was you who felt that you had played through everything possible and felt that everything was boring and meaningless. And so, you sealed up your consciousness for us to play with you. Now, Er Bing is dead because of you. We can't play any further; after all, we're all brothers. Any more will be too much, and we can't lose our lives just to satisfy your desires."

"Are you speaking the truth?" Li Huowang looked very confused as he stared at the Hong Zhong mahjong tile.

"Ah! Didn't you see that this mahjong tile was dug up from within your flesh! Could there still be—" said Yao Ji before coming to an abrupt stop. He suddenly felt that something was amiss as he spoke. At that moment, he looked down, only to see that several worms had already burrowed into his leg.

Just as Yao Ji's attention shifted onto his leg, there was a cold flash in front of him, and then Li Huowang's sword had directly pierced through his neck.

Li Huowang smiled mockingly at Yao Ji before continuing to act in accordance with his lies. "Yes, I recall now. I'm one of the three leaders of the Sitting Oblivion Dao, Hong Zhong. I even recall that back in the day, you stole my woman, and so I'm publicly seeking revenge now."

As long as he could ascertain the identity of a member of the Sitting Oblivion Dao, it was very simple to deal with them—treat anything and everything they said as worthless.

“Boss, I’m speaking the truth!” shouted Yao Ji as he desperately clutched onto Li Huowang’s sword.

“I believe you!” said Li Huowang as he exerted force with one hand, slicing off Yao Ji’s fingers and his square-shaped head.

After that, the worms within Yao Ji’s body burrowed back into Li Huowang’s chest before he turned around and dashed toward the distant battlefield.

One of the liars from Sitting Oblivion Dao had died, and it was time to handicap Dan Yangzi a little.

“Master! Xuan Yang is here to help you!” shouted Li Huowang as he dashed toward Dan Yangzi.

Splloosh!

With the combined efforts of the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao and Li Huowang, Dan Yangzi’s child-like head was cut off quickly.

However, even before Li Huowang could catch his breath, an indistinct fleshy and immature infant head had started to grow out from the wound on Dan Yangzi’s neck.

When Yi Wan saw this happen, he quickly turned toward Li Huowang. “Your Master is semi-Immortal, so it’s completely futile to keep going on like this! Help us fend him off for a moment, and we’ll help you take care of him!”

But all he got in response was Li Huowang spitting a mouthful of blood at him.

“Alright, fine! We did fool you before, but you have already killed Er Bing and Yao Ji. Shouldn’t two lives be enough to soothe some of your anger? And besides, compared to us outsiders, shouldn’t you hate your Master even more?” asked Yi Wan.

1. one bamboo in mahjong 🖐

2. seven characters in mahjong 🖐

3. Hong Zhong is also known as the Red Dragon in mahjong 🖐

Chapter 168 - Cooperation

Swoosh!

Dan Yangzi swung his coin sword, forcing Li Huowang and Yi Wan to step back and dodge it.

At the same time, the other three from the Sitting Oblivion Dao quickly stepped forward to intercept Dan Yangzi.

Taking advantage of this rare moment of respite, Yi Wan looked at Li Huowang, “How about it? Help us deal with Dan Yangzi, and then we can part ways peacefully after that.”

However, Li Huowang simply ignored his words, all while steadying himself on the ground, preparing to help the other three Sitting Oblivion Dao members against Dan Yangzi.

Seeing this, Yi Wan spoke once again, this time, his words making Li Huowang grind to a halt, “You still think it’s not enough? Then let me give you a final offer! Li Huowang, you are a Strayed One, aren’t you? It must not be very pleasant to occasionally end up in a state of bewilderment, right? As long as you help us, then we will tell you the method to free yourself from a Strayed One’s bewilderment and help you become a regular person!”

Looking at the surprise on Li Huowang’s face, Yi Wan continued to explain, “That’s right, Strayed Ones can indeed free themselves from their bewilderment. It’s just that the method to do so is extremely difficult! Ordinary people simply cannot hope to find it!”

“Quit lying! Even Abbess Jingxin couldn’t find it, and you think you can?” Li Huowang spoke firmly. However, he still did not leave.

As Yi Wan saw his comrades struggling, he spoke rapidly,

“Chen Hongxiu, that old nun, knew nothing! I’ll tell you the truth! One of the four Joys of the Sitting Oblivion Dao, Bei Feng[1], is also a Strayed One! He has managed to live to a ripe old age of 190, and he’s still doing well! None of a Strayed One’s bewilderment or confusion bothers him!”

As Li Huowang was deep in thought, the other three Sitting Oblivion Dao members could no longer hold out. At that moment, Dan Yangzi’s bronze coin sword pierced one of their chests, and his chest immediately started to swell up.

The very next moment, his body exploded, turning into a huge pile of bloody, grotesque flesh that splattered everywhere.

“Look! Now three of us are dead! If you don’t completely restrain Dan Yangzi, then after our deaths, he’ll be the one to reap all the benefits! Will you be happy then? Let’s be honest, even if I openly admit that I deceived you, so what? Do you hate him more or us? Three of us are already dead, while your Master Dan Yangzi has yet to lose even a single strand of hair! Think it through!” shouted Yi Wan.

This speech finally seemed to convince Li Huowang. If he had to choose who he hated more, it was very easy for him to select between Dan Yangzi and the Sitting Oblivion Dao.

Once he made his decision, Li Huowang looked at Dan Yangzi who was chasing after the two remaining members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao, and then nodded. “Hurry! I’ll hold him off for now!”

Just as Dan Yangzi opened his enormous mouth and was about to bite off the square head of one of the members of Sitting Oblivion Dao, Li Huowang arrived in front of him.

At this moment, Li Huowang didn’t bother dodging, instead choosing to directly stomp his feet toward Dan Yangzi’s open mouth.

The wriggling worms that formed the Profound Records were like bloodthirsty leeches. They directly burrowed out of Li Huowang's chest as they flashed their fangs while heading toward Dan Yangzi.

Clang!

However, Dan Yangzi's mouth closed down before Li Huowang could reach him.

At that moment, with his entire body filled with wriggling worms, Li Huowang crashed heavily onto Dan Yangzi's terrifying face.

Immediately all the worms opened their mouths, ready to burrow into Dan Yangzi's flesh.

But unexpectedly, all Dan Yangzi did was just pinch his fingers, which were made of wriggling tentacles, together.

In an instant, Dan Yangzi's flesh and blood twisted in reverse before directly leaping onto Li Huowang's body, attempting to swallow him.

Flesh, blood, bones, organs, and worms—all these objects were confined together in a very limited space as they tried to tear and devour each other.

Dan Yangzi could see that Li Huowang was hard to deal with, and thus he wanted to take care of the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao first;

However, Li Huowang did not allow that.

Gradually, both sides began to intertwine with one another.

While it seemed that Dan Yangzi was stronger than Li Huowang, it was not so easy for him to just swallow Li Huowang like that. After all, Li Huowang had sacrificed his body's five elements and organs. The thing he had received from Ba-Hui in exchange was not something that could be dealt with so easily.

Those worms were not affected by Dan Yangzi's abnormal body; they just held onto Li Huowang's flesh firmly, preventing themselves from being swallowed.

From the perspective of Yi Wan and the others, Dan Yangzi and Li Huowang who were fighting in the distance, looked like they had morphed into a mass of constantly wriggling flesh.

“Master, hope you’re doing well!” Li Huowang smiled and greeted the head that was now about the size of an orange, and seemed to have had its skin peeled. Even though he was smiling, Li Huowang actually really wanted to eat Dan Yangzi’s flesh and drink his blood!

Hearing this greeting, Dan Yangzi revealed a mocking smile on his face. “Evil disciple, do you really think that you can beat me? I’m a half-Immortal now. So, what can you, a mere mortal, do?”

“Then why are you still unable to beat a mere mortal like me? Seems like your status as a half-Immortal is quite lousy!” retorted Li Huowang.

Just as both of them were entangled with each other, the remaining three Sitting Oblivion Dao members began to move. They quickly surrounded the master and disciple pair and sat down cross-legged, then closed their eyes and started to chant. “Embark on the path of cultivation! Practice until it turns natural! Cast away the confusion! Sit in oblivion! Unmoved by silence! Explore the subtle brilliance! Follow a unique path! Find virtue with no bounds! Expect the marvels that lie ahead! Look for efficiency! Marvelous! Hahaha!”

As they chanted, patterns of mahjong tiles flowed down from their clothes like water before quickly spreading out onto the ground.

These patterns and lines then swiftly formed strange symbols. The strokes between them began to tremble, emitting high and low sounds of laughter.

Gradually, the laughter grew louder and louder, infecting the onlookers from among the Ao Jing Sect members, as well as Dan Yangzi and Li Huowang in the distance. Soon, everyone’s voices began to echo within the cave as they grew increasingly louder.

At that moment, Li Huowang's ears finally picked up on something hidden within the laughter.

It was something that felt dark and obscure, something that the senses of normal people could not understand. Though Li Huowang could not understand what it was, he felt a sense of familiarity from it.

“This is the God of Happiness! I remember now! This is the same God of Happiness from back at the Hu Family's ancestral hall! The members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao are summoning the God of Happiness!” said Li Huowang.

However, beside him, Dan Yangzi sensed something that Li Huowang couldn't. “No, kid, you're wrong! They're not summoning! They are deceiving it! Not only have they managed to deceive Ba-Hui, they have even deceived their own God of Prosperity! None of their supernatural abilities are their own, and they were all acquired by deceiving others!”

Li Huowang felt like something was drawing him toward the laughter, toward where that thing in the walls was staring at himself. It was the God of Happiness.

The laughter by his ears grew louder and louder, and Li Huowang understood that no matter what they were doing, now was a critical moment.

Just as the laughter reached its peak, Li Huowang's lips curled up as he glanced at the three members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao, his body suddenly shrinking back.

At the same time, all the worms that had been entangled with Dan Yangzi's flesh withdrew from his body before flying back to Li Huowang.

Chapter 169 - Made It

This sudden situation caused everyone present to be caught off guard.

Dan Yangzi, who had now regained his freedom, did not hesitate. He immediately stepped onto the dark clouds and pounced toward the three people in the distance, looking like a ferocious tiger descending down a mountain.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang just remained standing on the spot, watching everything happening in the distance as though it was all just a play. When he saw Yi Wan staring at him in disbelief, he suddenly slapped his head in frustration with both hands. “Oh no, look at what I’ve done! How could I let Dan Yangzi escape so easily? I’m quite inexperienced, so please forgive me, Senior.”

“You actually dare to deceive me!” shouted Yi Wan.

Hearing these words, Li Huowang chuckled, “Now I can somewhat understand why you guys from the Sitting Oblivion Dao like to do this. It’s really quite fun to deceive others, hahaha!”

No matter what the others thought, the situation was now spiraling out of control.

Just as one of the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao had their head sliced into half by Dan Yangzi’s sword, three figures representing the Gods of Happiness burrowed out from within the smooth walls of the cave.

The three masses were sticky and chaotic, and semi-transparent, resembling a bunch of rotten grapes.

The moment they appeared, the onlookers from Ao Jing Sect were no longer able to escape. Everyone present started rolling on the ground as they burst out laughing, their laughter growing more and more terrifying. Eventually, blood started to flow out of their seven orifices, leading them to their deaths.

After the newly emerged figures had gotten used to their surroundings, they locked onto their targets and flew straight toward Dan Yangzi and Li Huowang.

At the same time, with the addition of another faction, the battlefield once more became chaotic.

However, Li Huowang couldn't be bothered to move, as he watched Dan Yangzi dismember yet another one of the members from the Sitting Oblivion Dao. With that, he felt that he had achieved what he had wanted, and it was time for things to come to an end.

Suddenly, darkness enveloped him from above—Li Huowang had been enveloped by one of the figures of the God of Happiness.

As the layers of the God of Happiness' body brushed past Li Huowang, he suddenly felt like many things had been taken from him.

The emotions in his heart, his will to die, as well as a trace of reluctance. A great portion of these things had been taken from him.

At that moment, a splattering sound rang out, and some lifeless worms helplessly fell out from inside Li Huowang's chest.

Li Huowang sluggishly looked down at the dead worms. He understood that the duration of the Five Elements Intercalation was almost over.

At the same time, a chattering sound came from above his head; one of the God of Happiness' figures was about to attack again, an attack that would likely spell his doom.

But Li Huowang did not plan to hide anymore. Without those worms, and with his internal organs gone, he was destined to die sooner or later.

But it was alright as well, since, at this point, Dan Yangzi's plan to take over his body had completely failed.

“Ah, I’m exhausted. I can finally rest,” muttered Li Huowang, his robes fluttering in the wind as he closed his eyes and waited for his end.

“Get lost!”

At that moment, a thunderous sound rang out, causing Li Huowang to look up in confusion. There, he saw Dan Yangzi’s figure, still covered with his peculiar flesh.

He was shrouded within the dark clouds and firmly holding off the God of Happiness; he had actually managed to save Li Huowang this time.

As he saw this, Li Huowang scratched at his chest, causing some more dead worms to slip out and onto the ground. At this point, his missing sense of pain was gradually starting to return.

“Why try to save me? Do you think I won’t die just because you saved me?” Li Huowang said as he stood on the spot and watched the scene above him unfold.

At this point, given that he could see the other two Gods of Happiness swim over as well, it was likely that Dan Yangzi wouldn’t have a good ending either.

Before his death, Li Huowang stood on the spot, planning to watch Dan Yangzi suffer. However, he suddenly thought of something, and turned to look toward the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao.

There, he saw bodies scattered all over the ground—all of them except for one was dead.

At this moment, one of the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao was clutching at his stomach as he stumbled out of the cave.

“Damn! One of them got away!” muttered Li Huowang.

Letting the member of Sitting Oblivion Dao escape alive was even more unbearable for Li Huowang than death itself.

Just a moment ago, he had been ready to die. But now, it seemed like he suddenly saw a ray of hope as he dashed toward the last member of the Sitting Oblivion Dao.

From the looks of it, that person had been injured during his battle with Dan Yangzi, and was not able to move fast.

On the other hand, Li Huowang was not particularly fast either; after all, his sense of pain had started to return. Every step he took at this moment was excruciatingly painful, almost as though countless needles were piercing him. His body was slowly collapsing.

One chased, while the other hurried away. Then, the member of the Sitting Oblivion Dao suddenly turned a corner, and vanished from Li Huowang's field of vision just like that.

With his sword in hand, Li Huowang dragged his collapsing body around the corner, only to be stunned by what lay before him.

It turned out to be a dead end. At this moment, some women were hiding here, huddled together while holding their children, as they trembled in fear.

These people were likely the family members of the Ao Jing Sect's disciples, and were hiding here to seek refuge.

That member of the Sitting Oblivion Dao seemed to have changed his appearance before hiding among them.

After a moment, Li Huowang bent his aching back before staggering toward them, the sharp sword tip scraping against the ground and causing a piercing friction noise.

To the women hiding here, this noise seemed like a death knell, causing them to cry out in terror.

For a moment, Li Huowang looked through these people as he tried to search for the member of the Sitting Oblivion Dao hiding among them.

However, this was no easy feat, since there were far too many people here.

Splloosh~

At that moment, Li Huowang's left hand crumbled and fell to the ground, turning into a broken red bamboo slip.

There's not much time left for me to find the bastard! Since he won't come out, then I'll just kill them all!

As Li Huowang's thought reached this point, he gritted his teeth and raised the blade in his hand toward the elderly, women and children.

"Hold on! Daoist, what are you doing?! They are innocent! They haven't done anything wrong!" shouted the Monk from his hallucination as he suddenly tried to persuade him.

Upon hearing this, Li Huowang's eyes showed some hesitation, but then he tightened his grip on the hilt of his sword and swung it down forcefully.

In an instant, blood splashed, and screams filled the air. At the same time, Li Huowang's robes were stained with an even deeper shade of red.

Witnessing this horrifying scene, Monk cried out. He started jumping around frantically as he tried to go over and stop all this, but couldn't touch Li Huowang at all.

Amidst the bloodbath, one of the women's bodies suddenly twisted, and her face quickly morphed into a new one as she tried to use the chaos to escape.

However, just as she had taken a few steps, some worms flew out from the blood on the ground and entered her body.

She fell to the ground and started howling in agony, while something started to slowly prop up her flesh.

As her struggling ceased, some spluttering sounds rang out as distorted red bamboo slips burrowed out from her face like a screw.

With this, the final member of the Sitting Oblivion Dao had died—all six of the Sitting Oblivion Dao members who had deceived Li Huowang were now dead.

Monk furiously watched as Li Huowang stopped his massacre, and then tore off the cloth from his sleeve before throwing it on the ground. Then, he pointed at Li Huowang with trembling fingers and shouted, "Daoist! It seems that I've misjudged you! We're no longer related! The Li Huowang I knew would never have done such a thing!"

Hearing this, Li Huowang, who was almost completely exhausted, slowly looked up slowly at him; it was as if he was coming to a slow realization. He lowered his head to look at his own battered body, his expression suddenly becoming ecstatic as he shouted, "That's right! Li Huowang would definitely not have done something like this. But I, Dan Yangzi, definitely would! Hahaha! I've made it!"

Chapter 170 - Dan Yangzi

“Hahaha! This is it!”

Dan Yangzi, who was standing amidst a scene of carnage, now grinned wildly. At this point, he had finally come to an understanding.

He had finally understood what that Senior in the heavens had said to him about killing the Three Corpses. He had always assumed that he had to turn Li Huowang into the Three Corpses, and then kill him. But his understanding had been incorrect.

Those seeking Immortality had to first eliminate the Three Corpses, be calm and without any desires, and possess a serene spirit.

As it turned out, there was no Li Huowang in this entire process—Li Huowang was just a part of his past, an inner demon, and a part of his Three Corpses.

It was because he was filled with mortal energy that he had prevented himself from becoming an Immortal. Now, he had completely become himself, meaning that one of the three corpses had been killed.

Back when he had taken the medicine was the moment that another corpse had been killed. That was precisely why he had become a half-Immortal.

Overjoyed, he laughed while using his blade to slaughter the remaining people; whenever he was happy, he wanted nothing more than to kill people.

While he did not know where the final corpse of his three corpses was, Dan Yangzi had a premonition that at this point was already capable of passing through the Southern Heavenly Gate.

The others in the cave were no match for Dan Yangzi. Soon, he was the only one still alive within the cave.

Dan Yangzi stopped and once again looked down at his youthful body before laughing out triumphantly, “Haha! I’m finally going to become a true Immortal!”

On the other hand, Monk watched him with an astonished expression on his face before gradually vanishing.

However, not long after, Dan Yangzi suppressed his joy; it was not yet time for him to be happy.

Without the support of the Five Elements Intercalation, this battered body without its five internal organs was about to collapse.

He could not afford to die now; first, he had to merge with his true body.

“Hmph! A mere inner demon wanted to ruin my path to Immortality? Now, I am an Immortal!” muttered Dan Yangzi.

Then, he took out the bronze bell in his possession and shook it quickly. Soon, the surroundings morphed into chaos and a few Wandering Gods appeared before him.

Dan Yangzi hummed his orders to them, and then they quickly flew away.

When they returned, they brought along a cinnabar brush, some yellow paper, a piece of wood, a lump of soil, a torch, a jug of water, and a golden ingot.

Dan Yangzi staggered over to the lifeless bodies on the ground and picked one of them for each of the elements—water, fire, earth, wood, and gold. Then, he lifted his sword and beheaded them.

After that, he opened the mouths of one of the dismembered heads before stuffing the golden ingot within. Then, he used some of the yellow paper to seal the mouth. Next, he held the cinnabar brush in his hand and quickly drew something on the yellow paper.

As soon as he finished the last stroke, the head suddenly emitted a creaking sound and began to shrink. Soon, its skin, hair, and facial features all fell away, until the head shrank down to less than half its original size.

At that point, Dan Yangzi picked up the head and stuffed it into his own chest.

Following the same procedure, the other four heads were also stuffed into Li Huowang's empty chest, replacing the positions of the five organs.

When the last head occupied the position of the heart, Dan Yangzi nodded with satisfaction. While this sinister method that he had stolen from the Lion Dance Palace would not last long, it would suffice for now.

Satisfied, he took out the sacred text and gazed at it with mixed emotions. Even if he did not understand a single character on it, it was what had led him down the path of Immortality.

I wonder if I'll still be able to meet that Immortal after passing through the Southern Heavenly Gate. If I do meet them, then I must sincerely express my gratitude.

After all, it was only because of his help that he would be able to enter the Southern Heavenly Gates and live as long as the heavens and earth.

“Fucking useless!”

This unexpected sound of someone cursing caused Dan Yangzi's expression to freeze. He quickly turned toward the source of the voice, yet there was nobody there; everything continued to remain motionless.

“Who's there?! Show yourself now, and I'll leave your corpse intact if I'm feeling good!” Dan Yangzi's enraged voice echoed through the large cave, but there was no response.

With a furious expression, Dan Yangzi snorted, picked up the sacred text and walked out of the cave.

The situation within the cave was very strange. The God of Happiness was not a friendly entity either, and it was best for him to leave this area first, and then find a quiet place to wait for his own body to return to him.

As long as he became a true Immortal at the end, everyone in this mortal world would be nothing more than an ant to him!

When Dan Yangzi came back to the battlefield, he found that the surroundings outside were extremely quiet.

He was the only person in the entire cave who was alive—the rest of them were all dead. Ao Jing Sect's entire stronghold within these mountains had been completely wiped out.

“Baldy! Do you really think you can become an Immortal? How can a despicable wretch like you do it?”

Swish!

Hearing the voice, Dan Yangzi threw out his sword which stabbed firmly into the solid cave wall while trembling with a low hum.

Ring ring ring!

At this point, Dan Yangzi could no longer sit still, and decided to once again ring the bronze bell. Immediately, Wandering Gods appeared all around Dan Yangzi.

At his command, they all began to frantically search around for the person who had spoken previously.

But even after searching for fifteen minutes, the Wandering Gods, entities that could fly up high and through the ground, had still not found anyone. Even their search underground and within the walls didn't yield any results.

“What's going on? Could it be an ambush set by the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao?” Dan Yangzi was rather unsettled as he mumbled to himself while looking at his unfamiliar surroundings.

After two times, Dan Yangzi dared not let down his guard anymore. He pointed with the bell in his hand, and the Wandering Gods quickly flew out of the cave to find his true body.

Then, he raised his sword and waited on the spot.

After about thirty minutes, Dan Yangzi heard some commotion from outside. His heart leaped with joy as he quickly turned over to look.

However, he found that it was not his true body that had walked into the cave, but a strangely dressed woman. He had traveled extensively for many years and had seen all kinds of things, but he had never seen a woman dressed like this. Her clothes looked like they were made of silk, and she carried a peculiar rectangular box under her arm. Her hair was tied up in a bun.

She seemed to be around forty odd years of age, and had a round face, large eyes, short hair, and seemed a little tired.

Where is this person from? Was the person who cursed me just now her? Why did she come here at such a critical juncture? Is she one of my old enemies?

Just as Dan Yangzi was racking his brain, he saw the woman smile apologetically at him. “Son, we’re late because the hospital had to handle some paperwork. Your external injuries have almost completely healed, so your dad and I have found a new hospital for you.”

Right after she started speaking, Dan Yangzi noticed the bright cave around him collapsing rapidly and changing. Soon, the bright cave around him had turned completely white.

At the same time, he noticed that while he should have been standing inside the cave, objects were quickly piling up on his own body.

Chapter 171 - Strayed One

When Dan Yangzi came back to his senses, he saw that his left arm had regrown.

He tried to move, but found himself strapped to a metallic bed. His limbs were being tied down by leather straps. He couldn't move an inch.

Seeing this, he tried muttering some chants to use his supernatural powers, but none of them worked.

Given the situation, he was no different from a fish on a chopping board, waiting to be slaughtered.

Dan Yangzi felt humiliated.

Ever since he started murdering people at the age of ten, he had never found himself in such a situation.

"Who's there?! Who is trying to use illusory tricks on me?!" Dan Yangzi howled at the woman in front of him. He was unfamiliar with the place.

"I don't care who you are, just you wait! Once my main body arrives, all of you will die!" Dan Yangzi growled.

His outburst visibly shook the woman in front of him, causing her to run out while shouting, "Doctor! Doctor, come quick! Something's wrong with my son!"

While she was gone, Dan Yangzi tried to escape his restraints, but it was no use. After a while, he calmed down and surveyed his surroundings.

"The Sitting Oblivion Dao! Maybe it's them! There might have been more than six of them and now they are attacking me from the dark!"

After some time, Dan Yangzi saw the woman walking in with two men in white.

Three people? They have restrained me and yet haven't done anything to me. What is their goal?

While he was thinking, one of the doctors asked 'Li Huowang'.

"Xiao Li, look carefully. Who is she?" asked the doctor wearing a pair of round frame glasses while pointing at Sun Xiaoqin.

Dan Yangzi calmed down. "Talk. Who sent you over? Since when did you start following me just so you can stop me from achieving Immortality?"

The doctor was not surprised by this response and just nodded calmly before writing something down on his tablet.

"Do you still remember your name?" asked the doctor.

At this point, Dan Yangzi decided to change his strategy a little and said seriously, "Zephyr Temple, Temple Master Dan Yangzi. You tied me up when you don't even know who I am? Which sect are you from? I've lived for almost half a century and traveled across the lands. I've met many people. It's even possible that your elders were my friends at some point in time. Let me go and help me achieve Immortality. If you do, then I will reward all of you handsomely."

Hearing his response, Sun Xiaoqin panicked. "Son, what are you talking about? You are not Dan Yangzi. You are Li Huowang!"

"Li Huowang?" Dan Yangzi's eyes were filled with doubt before he shook his head. "No! There's no Li Huowang! There's only Dan Yangzi! Li Huowang was nothing more than a part of my Three Corpses!"

Sun Xiaoqin wanted to say something but was stopped by the doctor. "Madam Sun, please calm down. Let us finish questioning him first."

Sun Xiaoqin gripped her bag and nodded before retreating to a corner of the room, her heart burdened with anxiety.

On the other hand, the two doctors talked to each other and discussed a strategy. Once done, they decided that one of them would question Li Huowang while the other would note down his responses.

The doctor asking the questions sat on a stool beside Li Huowang. “Dan Yangzi, let me ask you a question? What is one plus one?”

Dan Yangzi was confused by the purpose of the question. What was this man in white trying to do? But he was more than happy to entertain him. After all, as long as his main body returned, it would be his win.

And so, both of them began to probe the other, neither of them getting the answer they wanted.

As he watched this interaction, the doctor recording their exchange was confused. “That’s strange. Why is he suddenly exhibiting a new symptom after his illness had been stable for so long? Madam Sun, did your son receive any stimulus from the outside world?”

“No! My son is still very good! He even talked to us during his birthday,” replied Sun Xiaoqin truthfully.

The doctor thought about it and suggested, “We should transfer him. Your son’s internal fistula has been resolved and he can now defecate normally. We can transfer him to a normal psychiatric hospital. The doctors there are much more skilled in treating cases like this. Don’t worry, we will record all his symptoms in his medical history and will not delay his treatment in the slightest.”

“But how can we transfer him when he’s like this?” worried Sun Xiaoqin.

“Don’t worry. It’s not unheard of for an illness to rebound. Please give your son some time. I will give your son some Risperidone and Olanzapine. Nothing will happen to him while we are transferring him,” explained the doctor.

Soon, Dan Yangzi saw two burly men approach his bed before wheeling him outside.

“Where are you taking me? Put me down! I will kill all of you when I become an Immortal!” shouted Dan Yangzi.

Hearing this, the nurses scoffed at him, causing Sun Xiaoqin to be upset.

“What are you laughing at?! My son is a patient! Do you think it’s funny to laugh at a patient?” shouted Sun Xiaoqin.

Then, she placed her hand on Li Huowang’s face and gently caressed it. “Don’t be afraid, son. I am here. No one can bully you while I am here.”

At that moment, Dan Yangzi was stunned. The soft feeling on his face and the earnest gaze of the woman in front of him unlocked a distant memory within him. Gradually, Sun Xiaoqin’s face grew hazy before being superimposed on an unfamiliar face.

Dan Yangzi trembled. “Mother?”

Just as he uttered that word, his surroundings crumbled. The white walls all around him quickly disappeared and he was once again in the cave filled with the stench of blood.

“This... This... What is happening?” Dan Yangzi stared at his surroundings warily. He had seen many bizarre things in his life, but nothing as crazy as today!

After a moment, Dan Yangzi took his sword and carefully inspected everything around him.

“Where is my main body? Why is it not here yet?”

At this point, Dan Yangzi started panicking. Even though everything looked normal right now, the hallucination from just now was definitely not something a normal human could induce!

The one who had trapped him in that hallucination was definitely someone very strong!

“Master...”

At that moment, a familiar voice rang out from behind him, causing all the hair on his body to stand on end.

Chapter 172 - Disciple

“Master...”

Dan Yangzi immediately turned around and saw a familiar face.

It was Zheng Kun, the disciple he had cared about the most. Currently, Zheng Kun was wearing a green Daoist robe as he stood there without any hatred in his eyes.

Zheng Kun looked extremely real; it was as if he was actually alive.

But Dan Yangzi remembered that he was the very person who had crushed Zheng Kun’s head, and so it was impossible for him to still be alive!

After a moment, Dan Yangzi finally snapped out of it and roared in anger, “Who dares to try and trick me?! You are courting death!”

As he spoke, Dan Yangzi threw his sword high into the air. Then, he bit his fingers and drew a bloody rune onto the falling sword.

“The Seven Stars of the Heavens! Ruler of the skies! Pierce through all illusions and heed my words! Cut down all evil and chase them back up the mountains! Heed my orders and treat them as the supreme law!”

As he chanted, the sword turned black from the bits of talismans that stuck themselves to it from the Heavens and Earth.

Dan Yangzi held the blackened sword and stabbed it toward Zheng Kun.

On the other hand, Zheng Kun didn’t try to hide from his Master’s attack. Instead, he just stood there as he tried to say something.

But the moment Dan Yangzi's enchanted sword slashed across Zheng Kun's body, he smiled and disappeared.

After that, Dan Yangzi stood around in the cave warily. Everything had turned quiet.

Nothing happened even after he had waited for half an hour.

"Hmph! Looks like you know when to back off! I don't care who you are, but if you cross me, then I will kill you!" shouted Dan Yangzi.

However, while Dan Yangzi was speaking fierce words, he was merely bluffing.

Dan Yangzi did not lower his guard and continued to monitor his surroundings as he slowly walked outside.

Once out of the cave, he immediately ran down the mountain.

He kept running and running until he arrived at the ghost town located at the bottom of the mountain; Dan Yangzi did not want to run too far away. He was afraid that his main body might not be able to find him.

He just needed to wait at a quiet place.

After choosing a location, Dan Yangzi started to use the items brought to him by the Wandering Gods to set up a formation.

"Blazing sun, flashing thunder~ Kill those who are cursed or try to change this formation~ Protect the righteous and kill the evil~ All evils shall perish~ Nothing is unstoppable, for everything can drown in water and burn in fire~ Heed my words and treat them as the supreme orders!"

Just as he finished chanting, the yellow flags planted on the various graves shook at the same time. Then, an invisible line connected all of the yellow flags and formed a massive formation.

Dan Yangzi sat in the middle of the formation and waited.

"Hmph! I have all night, so let's see you try and trick me again!"

Then, Dan Yangzi knocked over one of the gravestones before sitting on it and waiting.

He looked at the various mounds around him while worrying about his main body. "It might be annoying to deal with those three figures of the God of Happiness, but the main body should be strong enough to fight against them. Even if it can't fight them, it should still be able to escape. Why is it still not here?"

As Dan Yangzi sat there and waited, he felt anxious; after a while, he used his sword and started drawing something on the ground.

"Master, what is this formation?"

When Dan Yangzi heard someone trying to butter him up, he scoffed. "Just sit there and watch. It is not yet time to teach you—"

However, he suddenly stopped speaking and slowly raised his head.

He was surprised to see Zheng Kun standing in front of him.

Zheng Kun was currently standing in the middle of the formation! Even though he had used so much time to set up this formation, it turned out to be useless!

"Impossible! Even if it can't block you from entering it, it should alert me about your presence!" shouted Dan Yangzi as he swung his sword, which once more phased through Zheng Kun's chest, leaving him completely unharmed.

As Dan Yangzi tried to figure out how to deal with his disciple, he suddenly heard the mound on his left move.

When he turned around, he saw his other disciple, Xuan Yin, standing there.

"Master, long time no see. I've missed you somewhat," said Xuan Yin.

Just as Dan Yangzi took a step back in fear, two more men walked up to him and made a seal with their hands. Both of them had swords strapped to their back.

"Disciples Chang Ming and Chang Ren greet Master. Congratulations on becoming an Immortal!" said the two men.

But this was merely the start. More and more people started appearing from the surrounding mounds and started talking to Dan Yangzi.

Some of these people were not from the Zephyr Temple. Instead, they were people that he knew in the past.

“Dan Yangzi you thief! To think you would refine pills using live humans! I should’ve slapped you to death!”

“Baldy! To think that you would betray your own sworn brother!”

“Why did you sell our daughter? She was your wife! You fucking ingrate!”

“Why did you kill our father? Why?! My father even fed you the white noodles that we ourselves couldn’t afford to eat! How could you kill him?!”

As more and more people appeared within the formation, the voices became more and more chaotic. At this point, Dan Yangzi started panicking.

“What is this?” Fear welled up from the depths of his eyes as he lowered his head and took a deep breath. He recognized all of these people!

Finally, the fear in his heart exploded when he saw a big fat man appearing.

“ENOUGH!” shouted Dan Yangzi as he stomped and started waving his sword around.

Soon, the lines that formed the formation became white smoke that ascended to the Heavens.

At the same time, thunder clouds covered the skies and Dan Yangzi stabbed the sword into the ground.

Crack!

A huge amount of purple lightning illuminated his surroundings.

The purple lightning shot toward the formation before radiating toward the surroundings, turning everything it passed through, including the gravestones and the houses, black.

However, when Dan Yangzi raised his head, he was surprised to see that none of the people around him were harmed.

“What is this? Who are you guys? The Sitting Oblivion Dao?! You guys dare to go against an Immortal?!” Dan Yangzi howled at them.

Dan Yangzi was shaking with anger, when someone suddenly started laughing at him.

It was none other than the big fat man.

“Aiyo~ Isn’t this Yang Danzi[1]? You are already so old? Haha! I still remember how you used to kiss my ass and grovel on the ground just so you could learn from me!” said the big fat man.

The fat man's words made everyone else laugh.

All of them started laughing at Dan Yangzi.

“Mere mortals like you dare to mock me?! I am an Immortal! You need to respect me!” shouted Dan Yangzi.

At the same time, he started using all his techniques to try and kill the people surrounding him.

But it was no use. None of his methods worked.

After a while, Dan Yangzi sat on the ground, tired from using all the methods that he could think of.

After a while, he took a long piece of wood before stabbing it into his right and then his left ear; he intended to pierce his eardrums to stop the voices.

However, the sound of laughter just became even louder.

“AAAA!” screamed Dan Yangzi as he picked up a piece of stone and started whacking his head with it.

Just then, someone pushed through the crowd to come closer.

He was the only one who didn’t laugh.

Dan Yangzi recognized him. It was none other than Li Huowang.

Li Huowang approached the sorry-looking Dan Yangzi and chuckled. “Master, how does it feel occupying my body?”

1. also known as goat testicles, after his name is moved around

Chapter 173 - The Southern Heavenly Gates

“Master, how does it feel to inhabit my body?”

Hearing this, Dan Yangzi glared at Li Huowang. “You! It’s you! You cheated me before, so this must be your doing!”

As he roared, Dan Yangzi tried to stand up and cut Li Huowang down with his sword.

But all he managed to do was pass right through Li Huowang.

Dan Yangzi was shocked and stared at Li Huowang as the latter smiled and explained calmly, “Oh, please forgive me, Master. I forgot to tell you that I am an illusion, and so you can’t kill me.”

Then, Li Huowang pointed toward the rest of the illusions. “Not only can you not kill me, but you can’t kill any of them either. They are all illusions that will follow you to the edge of the world.”

At that moment, Dan Yangzi saw as the illusions closed in on him, causing his heart to start pounding in fear.

Their faces slowly melted and became a wall that surrounded him from all sides. He realized that he would never be able to run, and that he would never be able to hide.

He realized that he would have to suffer for an eternity.

“This... What is this?!” Dan Yangzi shouted as he slashed at his surroundings in a frenzy.

He had always resorted to using violence to settle things. He would steal, rob, lie, and even kill to get what he wanted. But now, all of these methods were useless.

Everything he had learned throughout his life was now completely useless.

“Master, that is the body of a Strayed One. Enjoy it as much as you want,” Li Huowang laughed, his laughter joining the rest as all of them laughed at Dan Yangzi scornfully.

When Dan Yangzi saw Li Huowang acting so haughty, he gritted his teeth with envy. He threw his sword in anger and shouted, “You think you’ve won? Stop dreaming! I will spare you for now. Just wait until my main body comes back!”

As soon as he said this, the laughter stopped. All of the illusions stared at him at the same time.

At that moment, Dan Yangzi raised his right hand and slapped himself. “I am not Dan Yangzi, I am Li Huowang!”

As soon as he did this, the illusions around him started disappearing one by one, causing doubt to blossom within Dan Yangzi’s heart.

“Who am I?”

“Am I Dan Yangzi or Li Huowang? No, I am not Li Huowang, so I must be Dan Yangzi! Scram, get out of here! I am Dan Yangzi, not Li Huowang! No, you scram! I am Li Huowang, not Dan Yangzi!”

The youth continued struggling.

In the meantime, the illusions around him disappeared one by one, until there was only an old Monk left. However, in a bit, he too disappeared.

As the youth fell onto the ground while struggling like a maggot, a dark cloud appeared in the sky. This black cloud was none other than the monstrous Dan Yangzi.

The current Dan Yangzi looked injured, and was missing many of his organs. His body was dark and without color. He had used a majority of his strength just to escape.

Dan Yangzi slowly floated downward and approached the youth, his long tentacles easily lifting the youth into the air.

“Which one are you?” Dan Yangzi asked.

The youth struggled for a long time before calming down. Then, he opened his eyes and calmly said, “I am Dan Yangzi. The Three Corpses have been slain.”

Hearing those words, the monstrous Dan Yangzi revealed a satisfied smile before hugging the youth with his hideous body and sucking on the youth’s face. As he did this, something flowed out from the youth’s seven orifices and into Dan Yangzi’s body.

Soon, the youth’s body stiffened, becoming lifeless.

At that moment, Dan Yangzi finally revealed a satisfied smile—the last remaining essence had once again entered his body.

“I can finally become an Immortal!” Dan Yangzi laughed maniacally and flew into the dark cloud above.

He flew higher and higher, his heart pounding from excitement. Seventy-four years! That was how long he had lived for, and he had never been as excited as today!

He passed through the layer of clouds and continued flying upward into the starry skies.

As he went up, he flew past the stars and saw many monstrous beings.

Some of them were nothing more than a gray gloop, their bodies stabbed with numerous incense that burned forever as they expanded and contracted rhythmically.

There was also a blind golden Bodhisattva with a pink tentacle extending from its crotch. The tentacle rummaged around as if it was sucking on something. Dan Yangzi even caught a glimpse of the wishes of the devotees.

There was also a blob of shimmering light that was encircled by numerous black cranes. Everytime they touched each other, a hoarse cry could be heard.

But this was not all.

Dan Yangzi also saw the God of Happiness, the Immortal Households, and even his Senior who had taught him how to slay the Three Corpses.

All of them were Half-Immortals!

As he saw all of them, Dan Yangzi scoffed. They were beings destined to be stuck here until the end of time. They no longer had a way of ascending.

But he was different—he was now an Immortal.

He flew faster and faster as he passed through the sea of stars until he arrived at a colorless jade plate in the middle of nowhere.

The jade plate was being hung from something hidden within the darkness. As the formless darkness moved, the jade plate bobbed up and down.

There were three large characters written on it. While Dan Yangzi was illiterate, he was certain that these characters spelled out the words, ‘Southern Heavenly Gate’. This was because he recognized the final character that was shaped like a gate. Three characters that ended with the character for ‘gate’? Due to this, he was certain that this was the Southern Heavenly Gate.

At this moment, there were various monstrosities surrounding the jade plate as they tried to make their way inside.

“Scram! Get away! Don’t stop me from becoming an Immortal!” shouted Dan Yangzi as he blasted everything in front of him away and monopolized the area in front of the jade plate.

Through the jade plate, he saw the hazy-looking Immortals.

There were Immortals, Bodhisattvas, and Arhats inside the jade plate!

Compared to their previous unmoving selves, they were all happily eating something and were almost done with it.

However, the dense mist that covered the interior of the jade plate made it so Dan Yangzi couldn’t see the situation inside clearly.

“What are they eating? Are those the Immortal Peaches and Pills?”

Fearing that he might not even get a bite, Dan Yangzi panicked, choosing to immediately charge toward the jade plate.

But just as he was about to pass through the jade plate, he felt an invisible wall blocking him from entering. It was as if the jade plate was denying him entrance.

“Let me in! I’ve become an Immortal! Let me into the Immortal Realm!” Dan Yangzi shouted into the darkness as he floated near the jade plate.

At that moment, up in the formless darkness, Dan Yangzi saw the two massive snakes that were holding up the jade plate. The snakes had no tails or heads, but somehow took a ‘look’ at Dan Yangzi before ignoring him.

“I’ve killed my Three Corpses and become an Immortal! Let me in! What right do you have to keep me outside?!” Dan Yangzi howled at the darkness above and at the jade plate.

But then, Dan Yangzi suddenly recognized the three words etched onto the jade plate.

“Ox Tail Gate.”

Chapter 174 - Opening The Gates

“Ox Tail Gate?” Dan Yangzi was shocked at being able to recognize the characters on the jade plate. He felt his brain buzzing from shock. The three characters had revealed themselves to him just like that.

How could this be the Ox Tail Gate? Wasn't this the Southern Heavenly Gate? Is the Immortal Realm not behind it? Weren't those Immortals?

He looked down at the stars and then looked up into the darkness. He wasn't sure what to do now. It was as if everything had lost its meaning.

“You are still clueless? There's no such thing as the Immortal Realm! You've been fooled and your entire life has been nothing more than a joke!”

A familiar voice rang out, causing Dan Yangzi to turn around. However, there was nothing there.

Just as he thought that the illusions from earlier were about to appear once again, he found the source of the voice.

It was one of his three heads!

Currently, his left-most head had been replaced by Li Huowang's head!

“Impossible! I've already slain my Three Corpses! Who are you?” shouted Dan Yangzi as he raised the coin sword in his hand and placed it on Li Huowang's neck, threatening to cut him off.

However, Li Huowang was unfazed. “Hehe, why don't you take a guess?”

“You fucking ungrateful disciple!” raged Dan Yangzi as he tried to slash downward, but couldn't. He noticed that a mysterious force was stopping him.

Suddenly, Dan Yangzi raised his other arm and slapped his own face.

On the other hand, as he saw Dan Yangzi growing more and more infuriated, Li Huowang laughed even harder.

Back when Dan Yangzi had sucked out his essence from Li Huowang's body, the latter had barely managed to regain consciousness. At the time, the first decision he made was to never let Dan Yangzi live peacefully!

And so, he followed the other Dan Yangzi and allowed himself to get sucked into Dan Yangzi's main body. Now that he was in here, he had some degree of control over Dan Yangzi's body.

"You dare to hit me?" Dan Yangzi was angered and tried to cut off Li Huowang.

Unfortunately, since this was Dan Yangzi's main body, he was the one who had more control over it. Soon, Li Huowang lost control and the coin sword started to cut into his neck.

However, Li Huowang was not the slightest bit afraid. Instead, he started laughing like a maniac.

"Baldy! Did you know, I've tried so many methods to kill and get rid of you, but none of them worked. Then I had a thought... Why should I kill you? All I have to do is to torture you until death seemed like a paradise! And to think that the torture that I've endured all these years will become useful now," said Li Huowang.

Before Dan Yangzi could even figure out what was happening, numerous voices suddenly appeared all around him.

"Yang Danzi! You stupid brat, you deserve to die! Li Huowang, kill him! Take revenge for me!"

"You filthy ass-kisser, why don't you just die?!"

"Daoist, kill him quickly! Take the place of the Heavens and exact revenge for us!"

Gradually, illusions belonging to both Li Huowang and Dan Yangzi started appearing one by one.

At this moment, Li Huowang's bewilderment and sense of doubt had appeared within Dan Yangzi.

Soon, the illusions elongated in the darkness and became like seagrass, twisting and encircling both of them.

Following Li Huowang's will, his properties as a Strayed One had started manifesting themselves within Dan Yangzi.

As he saw Dan Yangzi start panicking, Li Huowang chuckled. "How is it, Master? Do you like it? This is how I will show my respect for you. Even though you've managed to kill me, you will continue to suffer as a Strayed One!"

"YOU CRAZY LUNATIC!" Dan Yangzi dared not attack him anymore as fear gripped his heart.

"I'm a lunatic? It's all thanks to your guidance!" said Li Huowang.

As the two of them continued arguing, something massive started to move within the jade plate.

Originally, the monstrous beings within the jade plate had all been eating something, but now, all of them were staring at Dan Yangzi and Li Huowang through the jade plate.

Without any warning, the jade plate disappeared into the darkness. At the same time, a wondrous phenomenon manifested itself at the location where the jade plate disappeared from.

With this, both Li Huowang and Dan Yangzi caught a glimpse of the inside. Instantly, a primal fear gripped both of their hearts; the evil beings within far exceeded anything they could comprehend.

At that moment, a gentle breeze floated out along with a sigh, slowly approaching Li Huowang and Dan Yangzi.

"The Baiyu Capital resides in the heavens, with twelve pavilions and five cities. The Immortals caress our heads and we shall become Immortals'. Is this the legendary Baiyu Capital?!" shouted one of the illusions, a divine-looking Daoist. He was clearly very excited.

When Dan Yangzi heard those words, he immediately took action. He completely ignored Li Huowang and rushed straight toward the Baiyu Capital!

"I want to go to the Baiyu Capital! I want to become an Immortal! I've become an Immortal!" shouted Dan Yangzi as he rushed toward the 'Baiyu Capital'.

On the other hand, Li Huowang tried his best to pull him backward.

"Don't stop me from becoming an Immortal! You can't stop me!" Dan Yangzi struggled against Li Huowang's control, using all his energy to run inside.

As the two of them struggled over controlling the main body, they gradually closed in on the bizarre phenomenon. All the while, the 'Immortals' were patiently waiting for them.

The being closest to them within the Baiyu Capital was a Bodhisattva. Her movements were fluid and elegant, and her floating shawl gave everyone the impression that they were underwater. A pale halo of light could be seen resting at the back of her head.

Both Li Huowang and Dan Yangzi failed to see her appearance until they were very close to her; the light emitted by the halo wasn't just regular light. Instead, it was a halo made from numerous white eyes!

However, this was the most normal thing within the entire Baiyu Capital. Soon, they saw more and more monstrosities, each worse than the last.

As he stared at the Bodhisattva in front of him, Dan Yangzi's heart was instantly gripped with fear. His instincts were telling him that this was a dangerous place, one that he must avoid entering at all costs!

No! This is not the Southern Heavenly Gate! This is the Ox Tail Gate! These are not Immortals!

At that moment, Dan Yangzi finally snapped out of his obsession with becoming an Immortal.

However, at that moment, just as Dan Yangzi was trying to pull back, Li Huowang's voice suddenly rang out. "Master! Are you ready? Then let me help you become an Immortal!"

At the same time, Li Huowang suddenly stopped pulling Dan Yangzi back and instead pushed him forward. Failing to react, Dan Yangzi was propelled straight toward the face of the Bodhisattva.

Chapter 175 - Crazy

“Stop! You will also die with me!”

As they got closer and closer to the Bodhisattva, Dan Yangzi’s voice was filled with fear for the first time in forever.

However, Li Huowang just grew excited! “Who the heck cares?! The life of a disciple is nothing compared to helping his Master achieve Immortality!”

Between the force of Li Huowang’s push and the slight tug of the gentle breeze, all of Dan Yangzi’s struggles were rendered useless as they slowly approached the open Ox Tail Gate.

As they got closer, the pale white light coming from behind the Bodhisattva enveloped both of them.

At that moment, all of Dan Yangzi’s feathers started transforming into a white shawl similar to the one on the Bodhisattva’s body. Dan Yangzi’s body, regardless of whether it was the wriggling flesh or his organs, died the moment they were enveloped by the white shawl.

As Dan Yangzi felt his body slowly dying, his survival instincts kicked in. He refused to die just like this. “Huowang! You don’t have to do this! Your physical body can still be used! We just need to go back down and then you can go! After that, I will leave you alone and we won’t meet each other ever again!”

While Li Huowang ignored Dan Yangzi’s word, one of the bandit-like illusions spoke out, “Young man, don’t listen to him! He has never spoken the truth! He’s still thinking about how to get rid of you!”

Just as Dan Yangzi glared at the illusion, a portion of the white shawl enveloped one of his heads causing it to die.

When Dan Yangzi’s other head witnessed this, he was extremely shocked. Immediately, he threw aside his dignity and started pleading with Li Huowang, “Huowang! You’ve won! Please, let’s just run away! Otherwise, both of us will die and who knows what kind of fate awaits us after that! We might even suffer from a fate worse than death! Please! I am even willing to kowtow to you and call you Master! Just let me go!”

At that moment, the white shawl covered Li Huowang’s eyes, but he was still smiling happily. “That won’t do, Master. You promised me that we will become Immortals together.”

Just as he finished saying that, Dan Yangzi’s body was completely covered by the white shawl and brought into the Ox Tail Gate.

The moment they passed through the gate, Dan Yangzi’s body was separated from Li Huowang’s head.

Staring at Li Huowang’s translucent head, Dan Yangzi barely managed to say something before his body popped like a bubble.

At that moment, Dan Yangzi, who had tormented Li Huowang for so long, disappeared just like that. His death was swift and quiet.

In the spot where Dan Yangzi had died, numerous different colored types of energy spread out before floating into the depths of the gate.

Li Huowang recognized what that was and yet he couldn’t find words to accurately describe it. If he tried, the only thing he would be able to come up with was that it was the energy representing desire, greed, persistence, hate, and killing intent.

While Li Huowang did not die like Dan Yangzi, his current condition wasn’t much better.

At that moment, the massive Bodhisattva used one of her rotting skeletal hands to reach out for Li Huowang.

Just as the massive shadow enveloped Li Huowang, a voice rang out from the depths. The voice was quite similar to that of a Suona[1].

As soon as he heard the voice, Li Huowang felt his five senses morphing and melding together. He had instantly obtained five different ways to ‘see’ the world.

At that moment, he saw that the Bodhisattva was composed of a mountain of corpses, and that she had an umbilical cord dangling from her abdomen.

In fact, pretty much everything within the Ox Tail Gate had an umbilical cord dangling from its abdomen.

However, it was not only his sense of sight that had changed. At present, he could sense so many different things that a mortal should never be able to sense. A mass of foreign senses were worming their way into him.

Amidst all this, Li Huowang started moving deeper and deeper into the Baiyu Capital.

The deeper he got, the more he sensed.

“No... No, No, NO NO NO!”

As he went deeper, Li Huowang learned more and more about Baiyu Capital, but at the same time, his mind almost crumbled from the overwhelming amount of knowledge.

Li Huowang shouted in despair. The deeper he flew, the more he learned.

Then, he stopped and slowly flew back the same way he came from.

At this point, Li Huowang had learned everything about the world, and he finally knew what had been worming into his very senses.

It was a bundle of pain and suffering—it was Ba-Hui!

Back within the kingdom of Si Qi, on a beautiful mountain, a group of people were standing around a newly constructed grave while wearing funeral clothes. At this moment, they were scattering a bunch of bronze coins and paper ingots while grieving.

“Senior Li! Boo-hoooo~ Why did you die? What’s going to happen to us now that you are dead?” Puppy bawled, his eyes red with tears. However, halfway through he quieted down and stared at Bai Lingmiao.

Compared to his somewhat extreme display, Bai Lingmiao was eerily calm. She did not cry, and instead just silently burned the pieces of offering paper one at a time.

Seeing her current state, Puppy sighed and started sniffing. Then, he laid his body onto the grave and started bawling his eyes out. “Senior Li! How did you die without any illness or accidents? Now that we are without you, we will end up being bullied by everyone else!”

Just as he was doing his best to grieve, the dirt on the grave moved.

“Hm?” Puppy thought he was seeing things. He rubbed his eyes, only to see a hand explode out from within the grave.

“AAAAAAAHAH! HIS BODY IS MOVING!” Puppy cried out and fell onto the ground.

On the other hand, Bai Lingmiao reacted immediately. The walls surrounding her heart crumbled away as she started crying while clawing at the dirt, trying to remove as much of it as she could.

After a moment, the others reacted as well, and moved to help her.

However, before they even finished digging away the dirt, Li Huowang suddenly appeared from within the grave, wearing his graveclothes.

He held his head with a twisted expression, his face twitching as he mumbled something, causing most of them to be scared away.

“Senior Li!”

Bai Lingmiao ran over to him tearfully, but was caught by him.

As he looked at Bai Lingmiao, his eyes were bloodshot. “Alive! You are alive! This world is alive!”

At that moment, Chun Xiaoman sighed in relief and sheathed his sword. “That’s good; looks like he’s alive. His body did not just reanimate by itself.”

On the other hand, as she faced Li Huowang who was behaving strangely, Bai Lingmiao did not feel afraid. Instead, she was concerned. “Senior Li, what’s wrong?”

“Listen to me! I know what’s wrong with this world!” Li Huowang’s shout dampened all the noises around him. “This world is alive! That means that anything that could happen to a human could happen to the entire world as well! I’m not the crazy one! This world is crazy! IT’S TRULY LUNATIC!”

As he spoke, Li Huowang pushed Bai Lingmiao away before pointing one of his fingers toward the Heavens and the other toward his chest as he tried his best to reassure himself as much as he could. “THE ENTIRE WORLD IS CRAZY, IT’S EVEN CRAZIER THAN ME!”

After repeating those words tens of times, his body finally gave way and he crashed onto the ground.

1. a musical instrument 📖

Translator's Thoughts

The artist drew a very good rendition of that eldritch being! Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Also this is a Suona

Chapter 176 - Talk

Dak dak dak~

The sound of horse hooves rang out non-stop as the horses trodded along rhythmically.

The wheels of the horse carriage trailed the hoof prints before their marks were replaced by Gao Zhijian's massive footprints.

A group of people could be seen following a carriage along a small path.

All of them were deep in thought, with some of them taking glances at their leader, Li Huowang.

They had been sure that Li Huowang was dead. Even if his body hadn't attracted any flies, after checking many times, they had been certain that he was dead.

However, now he was back just like that. It was too bizarre.

But that was not all. Not only did he rise out of his grave just like that, he was shouting about the world being the crazy one before passing out.

Everything had happened so fast that they still hadn't managed to react to it all.

Were it not for the fact that Li Huowang still looked the same as ever, they would've thought that something was possessing his body.

But they were glad that he returned to normal after he woke up.

Whenever they asked him about what happened, the only answer he gave them was 'Everything is over.'

Since he just said that it was over, everyone stopped asking. They were just glad that he was still alive.

"Let's rest here and have dinner," said Li Huowang.

Immediately, the carriage came to a stop and everyone started doing their job. Some went and fetched water, some others collected firewood, while a few of them went and collected wild vegetables to eat. After having traveled together for so long, they worked together quite well.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang didn't do anything. He just sat there and used the remaining sunlight offered by dusk as he studied the Fiery Scripture.

He could recognize the characters written in Yingzi's notes—after Dan Yangzi had died, Li Huowang's literacy had returned. He could now read perfectly.

Since he was literate once more, he was certain that this time around, Dan Yangzi was well and truly dead.

The characters used in the Fiery Scripture had been translated by Yingzi and Li Huowang gradually learned how to use them by comparing them with her notes.

But it was not that simple.

One crucial element that he needed to use the Fiery Scripture was a heart of compassion.

Li Huowang had never expected that he would need to focus on one particular feeling to be able to use it.

As he chanted in a voice filled with uncertainty, the white wax on the book gradually melted, trying its best to form a shape.

However, Li Huowang's practice was soon cut short.

"Senior Li, hehe~ Senior Li? Are you busy?" Puppy approached Li Huowang with a smile while carrying some firewood. He looked around and after making sure that Bai Lingmiao had yet to return, he whispered, "Senior Li, to show my sincerity, I burned two female paper dolls on your grave when senior Bai was not around."

"Hmm?" Li Huowang raised his eyebrow.

Puppy checked his surroundings once more and whispered. "Senior Li, did you receive the two women on the other side?"

Li Huowang was speechless. “But... I didn’t die?”

“I know that you are alive right now, but weren’t you dead before? If you really managed to receive two women on the other side, then I have thought of burning some female paper dolls for myself when I die.”

“But since I never died, I didn’t receive them,” said Li Huowang with a straight face.

“But you were not breathing! We even made sure to bury you only after three days just to confirm you were indeed dead. Did you not follow Ox-head and Horse-face and report yourself in Hell? Wait, what did the place look like?” Puppy questions came in like a tide.

Being annoyed, and wanting to end the conversation quickly, Li Huowang just said, “Yes, yes, yes. I did receive them.”

“Hooray! That is good news!” Puppy was overjoyed. He slapped his hands and danced around before thinking about his ‘future’.

“What did you receive?”

Hearing the voice of a woman behind him, Puppy was frightened. He turned around and saw that Bai Lingmiao and Chun Xiaoman had come back from picking wild vegetables. Flustered, he quickly changed the topic. “Nothing, I was just talking with Senior Li.”

Tonight’s dinner consisted of gnocchi. It was a meal that was simple to make and eat.

Mix flour with cold water, knead it, and then squeeze out the irregularly-sized orb-shaped pieces of dough into boiling water.

Once the clumps of gnocchi floated to the surface, Bai Lingmiao mixed in a large scoop of lard into the pot, followed by the wild vegetables.

Soon, the wild vegetable soup and the gnocchi started boiling.

Taking in the fragrant aroma, everyone swallowed their saliva.

Their journey was long and now, they needed to replenish their stamina.

“Haha, to think that there would come a time when I, Cao Cao, would be eating white flour every day,” exclaimed Puppy happily as he took his bowl.

The first bowl out from the steaming pot was naturally Li Huowang’s.

As Bai Lingmiao gave him the first bowl of gnocchi and saw him accept it with his own two hands, she smiled happily; Senior Li hadn’t lied to her. His arm really had grown back!

“Why are you staring at me? Are you not going to eat?” asked Li Huowang.

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao nodded and took her bowl. Then, she sat quietly beside Li Huowang and started eating.

They didn’t have that many people, but with both Gao Zhijian and Bai Lingmiao eating a large amount of food, the large pot of gnocchi was finished in no time.

As they washed their utensils, the night descended upon them. Since there was nothing to do at night, they just lit up a bonfire and went to bed.

Gao Zhijian was the one on watch tonight.

At the same time, with Bun’s keen sense of smell, Li Huowang had nothing to be worried about. And so, he washed up beside the river and soon fell asleep inside the horse carriage.

Just as he had closed his eyes, he felt something soft entering his blanket. Li Huowang just kept his eyes closed and hugged her as he went to sleep.

However, after some time, Li Huowang felt her hugging him tighter and tighter, to the point that she almost buried her entire body into his. At the same time, she started sobbing, her tears making his shirt wet.

“Why are you crying?” Li Huowang gently caressed Bai

Lingmiao's hair.

“My mother used to teach me that a good wife must be hardworking, good at maintaining the household, be kind, good at communication, and never bother with her man's business. But I'm very scared... scared that you will just be gone just like that day, and that this time around, you may never wake up...”

Within the silent horse carriage, Li Huowang the sincere emotions contained within her sobs.

Her sobbing did not stop as she continued, “Senior Li, why do you always try to endure everything on your own? Why can't you tell me? Am I nothing to you in your heart?”

“That's because I don't want to hurt you. Since everything is already over, then let me tell you everything,” said Li Huowang as he kissed the top of her head and sighed. Then, he started telling her about the things that had happened, one thing at a time.

He told her everything, from the Zephyr Temple up to the Ox Tail Gate.

And then... he stopped.

“And then... what happened? Did Dan Yangzi die? How did you come back?” Sensing that this was an important event, Bai Lingmiao started pressing for details.

But Li Huowang was visibly struggling, veins bulging on his face as he grabbed the sides of his head. “Those... those... things! I... I can't describe them! I can't describe them!!!”

Translator's Thoughts

The artist also did some renditions of the ox-tail gate. Here's version 1 Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 177 - Horse Carriage

“Senior Li, what’s wrong?” Bai Lingmiao was frightened by his suddenly bizarre behavior. She tried holding him down but was surprised to find that his skin was burning hot.

“Senior Li, stop! Don’t think about it anymore! I won’t ask you again!” Bai Lingmiao started sobbing as she hugged him despite the heat.

Hearing her voice, Li Huowang closed his eyes, trying his best to think about other things.

But it was futile. The broken pieces of memory within him soon joined together.

A suffocating image popped up in his mind, one that he was supposed to forget.

The image was both still yet moving at the same time. He tried his best to describe it.

“Behind the jade plate was a place called the Baiyu Capital. I’ve seen things, things that I cannot describe! They are massive and cold!”

Li Huowang’s voice was hoarse and deep, but he stammered a lot. His body trembled uncontrollably as he continued, “Mortals must never set foot there! If they do, they get taken away and decomposed into bits and pieces of abstract items! Humans were all made by them! If everything that constitutes us is taken away, then we would disappear as well, just like Dan Yangzi! But then something within the depths of the Baiyu Capital pulled me in! It sucked me into the depths where I saw the entire world! And then, I felt it! I felt what it was thinking!”

At that moment, another pair of hands pushed down on Li Huowang's forehead. The hands pushed down stronger and stronger, the pain from the pressure alleviating Li Huowang's headache a little.

Li Huowang didn't know who it was but continued talking, "I could understand it and what it was thinking! Only I could do it and no one else! It had gone mad!"

Li Huowang felt the image within his mind slowly escape his grasp. The beings within the image stared back at Li Huowang.

"I saw the past... In the past, it was not like this! It was perfect... But now... it's crying! IT IS CRYING!"

"Who is 'it'?" A cold female voice came from behind Li Huowang.

The veins on Li Huowang's forehead bulged to the point of rupturing but he somehow held it in as he used all his remaining strength and shouted, "Da Nuo! It is Da Nuo!"

The moment he said it, the atmosphere within the horse carriage became bizarre and cold winds seeped into him despite the fact that he was covered by a warm blanket.

At the same time, a blurry voice mumbled within everyone's ears, causing the horses to start panicking and Bun to bark out loud.

Li Huowang knew that this voice did not belong to Da Nuo; it had gone mad and would never pay attention to him. The one causing the animals to start panicking was something else entirely.

"Scram!" Li Huowang shouted, and everything around him became quiet once more.

Li Huowang sat on the floor and panted.

Bai Lingmiao's sobbing voice rang out from beside him, "Senior Li, I'm sorry. Please stop thinking about it. I'm already very grateful that you can be beside me. I won't ask you again!"

After she said those words, two hands propped him up within the dark carriage while another hand carefully used a towel to wipe his forehead. A bowl of water was given to him and he carefully drank it.

With the four hands working in tandem to calm him down, Li Huowang's breathing soon became normal. The buzzing in his mind and the sharp noise disappeared as well.

Li Huowang looked at the girl in front of him weakly. "That's... What happened..."

That night, Li Huowang didn't know when he fell asleep. By the time he woke up once again, it was already bright outside. He looked down and found that his clothes had been changed as well.

Staring at the top of the horse carriage and the space beside his blanket, Li Huowang sighed and massaged his temples.

At this point, everything that he had tried to remember yesterday had been forgotten once again. Some of his memories had also become very hazy.

Still, Li Huowang learned something from it.

Those who worshipped the Flesh Buddha in the Righteous Monastery, the dirty, slothful, and greedy nuns of the Benevolent Nunnery, the liars and swindlers of the Sitting Oblivion Dao, and even the Shamans who summoned the Immortal families using someone's lifespan.

All their powers were supernatural and bizarre.

Especially evil beings such as the Eighteenth Lunar, the Wandering Gods, the Mountain Grandma, and the God of Happiness.

He had originally thought that he had transmigrated into a bizarre and crazy world.

But from the looks of it, this was not the case.

There was something wrong with this world, something extremely wrong.

It was as if the whole world was sick just like him. However, this was not how it was supposed to be. Instead, it was supposed to be a more... normal world.

“What’s wrong with this world?” Li Huowang mumbled. “And that being... It’s called Da Nuo? Is it related to the Nuo Opera? According to Lu Zhuangyuan, the Nuo Opera was an ancient show, possibly the ancestor of all the other shows. Looks like the Nuo Opera performers worship Da Nuo but...”

Li Huowang recalled the performers who got duped by the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao. They were neither strong nor influential—they were even weaker than the bandits.

“Ai~,” Li Huowang sighed, too lazy to be bothered by such details.

Regardless of what happened to Da Nuo, it didn’t matter to him.

He was just a normal man, so he should be thinking about his next step.

How should he live here? That was his next question.

Not only had he traveled to the depths of Baiyu Capital, but he hadn’t disappeared like Dan Yangzi. In fact, he was still alive!

Is this the power of a Strayed One? Or was it because Ba-Hui saved me?

Li Huowang made some random guesses, but it was not easy to come up with a satisfying answer. It was great to be alive, but he was afraid that there might be consequences.

After a moment, Li Huowang sat up and put on his clothes.

He stared out from the horse carriage and gazed at the river, only to see Bai Lingmiao’s hair swaying gently with the wind.

At this moment, she was concentrating on washing clothes. The morning sunlight lit up a part of her face and made her look like an ethereal beauty.

Staring at the girl who was willing to go through Heaven and Hell together with him, he felt touched. “Since she is willing to stay by my side, then no matter how I came back to life, I will have to continue living. Thankfully everything has ended now.”

Translator's Thoughts

This is the second rendition of the Ox-tail gate.

Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 178 - Village

As they traveled, Bai Lingmiao followed Li Huowang closely, occasionally taking out her handkerchief to wipe off his sweat.

The hottest days of the year were upon them, and the weather had become extremely harsh and hot. Even though they were traveling when the sun was still low in the morning, sweat continued to pour out from their bodies.

After wiping off Li Huowang's sweat, Bai Lingmiao proposed, "Senior Li, it's too hot to travel in the afternoon and evening. We should probably rest now and travel earlier tomorrow."

Li Huowang nodded and took out the map from within the horse carriage before examining it carefully.

They were still within the borders of the kingdom of Si Qi. Thankfully, they had not thrown away this map.

"How about we skip lunch for today? There's a village not too far from here. If we don't stop and increase our pace, then we can reach there and stay for the night."

Everyone perked up when they heard they might be able to sleep on a bed tonight.

After traveling for two whole hours, they finally saw some fields in the distance. By now, their throats were completely parched. Behind the fields were houses with black roof tiles. They had finally arrived at the village.

"Look, there's even flowers beside the fields. Such a pretty red flower," said Bai Lingmiao.

Just as she was about to pick some of them, Li Huowang stopped her. "Wait, those flowers don't look right."

Li Huowang carefully inspected the red flowers. The flowers had curled petals that splay outwards.

“These are spider lilies,” said Li Huowang.

Even though he no longer remembered who told him about them, he recalled that these flowers were ominous in nature.

Hearing his words, everyone was speechless. It was clear no one knew what Li Huowang was talking about.

“Haha, you are even worse than me at recognizing flowers.”

At that moment, a cheerful laughter came from the distance.

Everyone turned and saw a bare-footed young boy was walking around with a bamboo basket on his back. He looked roughly seven or eight years old.

“These aren’t spider lilies. These are crab flowers. My mother told me that we can’t feed these flowers to the pigs or they would end up getting diarrhea,” said the young boy. Then, he took out a sickle from his bamboo basket and cut away some of the crab flowers.

It was clear that the boy had seen the flowers many times. He was most likely someone staying at the village.

Li Huowang pondered his options and approached the boy.

“Boy, what are you doing?”

“I’m harvesting some grass for our pigs. We have two pigs at our home, and I have to collect food for them everyday! How many pigs does your home have?” asked the boy.

When he heard that Li Huowang didn’t own any pigs, he laughed, “Haha! Your house is so poor! To think that you are even poorer than our family!”

“Yeah, my house is very poor. Are you staying in the village? Can you show us the way?” asked Li Huowang.

“Of course!” The young boy didn’t suspect them and brought them into the village.

“Are you guys still at war?” asked Li Huowang.

“War? There’s no war here. My third uncle was drafted but he recently came back.”

“Oh, that’s good. It’s good that there’s no war.” Li Huowang easily obtained the information he needed from the innocent young child.

This village was called Qianjia Village. There were barely over a hundred people living here. To survive, the villagers often tended to the fields during summer and went into the forest to forage during winter. There were plenty of such mountain villages in the kingdom of Si Qi, and so it was not a weird sight.

Villages like these often shunned outsiders, but under the ‘strength’ of money, Li Huowang and the rest managed to get a place to sleep within the child’s house.

Li Huowang placed his two heavy swords onto the table in the guest house, his body instantly feeling much lighter.

Just as he moved to remove Profound Records hanging from his waist, all he felt was empty space.

The Profound Records had been lost during the previous battle.
“Sigh.”

Li Huowang was somewhat sad about losing the Profound Records. Even though the price to use it was steep, it didn’t require him to cultivate or practice to be able to use supernatural powers. As long as he was willing to pay the necessary price, he would be able to obtain an equivalent amount of power.

Without it, he could only rely on the sword that the Abbess had gifted him.

“Oh, and this too.” Li Huowang took out the Fiery Scripture that was covered in white wax and slowly started studying his notes.

Now that he had lost the Profound Records, he needed to learn more methods to preserve his life. At the very least, the Fiery Scripture would allow him to heal his wounds.

Bai Lingmiao had just brought in a bowl of roasted sweet potatoes, but she tiptoed out of the room when she saw Li Huowang was studying seriously.

She thought about it for a moment and chuckled before walking to Xiaoman's room. "Xiaoman, do you want to eat some roasted sweet potatoes?"

However, Bai Lingmiao had just entered Xiaoman's room when she saw that the latter was vomiting profusely.

Seeing this, Bai Lingmiao was shocked. She placed down the bowl and quickly started patting Chun Xiaoman on the back.

After a while, Chun Xiaoman finally stopped vomiting and sat on the edge of her bed as she tried to catch her breath.

"Did you eat something spoiled? That can't be right. Everyone ate from the same pot, so why are you the only one vomiting?" asked Bai Lingmiao.

Xiaoman shook her head. "It's fine. I probably kicked off the blanket last night and just got sick."

"But you don't kick off your blankets when you sleep..."

Chun Xiaoman averted her gaze and made a request, "Could you just help me boil some ginger soup? It would help me a lot."

"Then... Alright."

After hesitating for a moment, Bai Lingmiao went out of the room.

When Chun Xiaoman saw Bai Lingmiao leave, she finally sighed in relief. She lifted her blanket, revealing a blood-red bamboo slip.

Back in the cave, Chun Xiaoman had found a copy of the Profound Records and hid it.

She had seen Senior Li use it a few times before and knew what the associated risks were. But she had overestimated her own tolerance. When she recalled the cruel sacrifices written on the Profound Records, she almost ended up vomiting once again.

She finally knew just how much Li Huowang had sacrificed for all of them, and just how painful all of it had been .

After she vomited once more, she steeled herself to read through the Profound Records once more.

Compared to her suffering, she was more concerned about just how indebted she was to someone else.

She hated how Senior Li was the one who fought for them every time something happened—she hated how weak she felt.

After she had killed her own father, she had sworn to herself that she would no longer continue to be a weakling.

“If Senior Li could withstand it, then I can withstand it too!” Chun Xiaoman gritted her teeth and read through the Profound Records once again.

Meanwhile, Bai Lingmiao was cooking some ginger tea in the kitchen. As she stared at the flames, she suddenly felt worried.

She was vomiting so much and her behavior seemed odd. Is she pregnant? Then... who's the father? It's impossible for Senior Li to be the father, since I sleep with him every night. Could it be Puppy? Gao Zhijian? Sun Baolu? But when did Xiaoman get so close...

When she thought up to this point, Bai Lingmiao blushed. Still, she was worried about Chun Xiaoman. The journey ahead was still long and it would be quite hard for her if she really had gotten pregnant.

Just as Bai Lingmiao was worrying about Xiaoman, she suddenly felt a presence behind her. Smelling the same scent as her own, Bai Lingmiao frowned. “What’s wrong?”

The Second Deity’s voice rang out from behind. “Bring the drum. There’s work in this village.”

Chapter 179 - I'M Back

The multicolored ribbons adorning the drum trailed behind Bai Lingmiao as she gingerly walked past the old houses. At times, an old farmer guiding a cow or a woman holding a baby passed by as they stared at her.

They had never seen a girl like Bai Lingmiao before.

Bai Lingmiao was nervous. Even so, she kept walking toward the location pointed out by the Second Deity.

Soon, she arrived at a short house. The house had a smaller house attached to its side. She took a deep breath and walked into the courtyard.

Woof! Woof woof!

Hearing the sudden barking sounds, Bai Lingmiao was shocked. Thankfully the dog was securely leashed.

However, she felt quite embarrassed by how surprised she was.

At that moment, the door opened and a heavy voice rang out.

“Who are you looking for?” asked the farmer as he stared at her warily.

Bai Lingmiao didn't know what to say. After all, she was still quite new as a shaman. She thought about it and then carefully asked, “Is someone in your house possessed?”

Bam!

The door slammed shut.

“Eek!” Bai Lingmiao jumped in surprise as she stood there without knowing what to do. She turned around and used telepathy to communicate with the Second Deity, “See, they closed the door on us. Maybe they are fine.”

However, Bai Lingmiao was disappointed by the Second Deity's answer.

"I know that the Immortal families are urging me to work, or they will punish me. But this family... Alright, fine. I will try again," said Bai Lingmiao.

She approached the door and knocked once again, "Please open the door! I am a Shaman that can exorcize evil spirits. If you are troubled by them, then I can help."

She kept knocking at the door for a while. Just as she was about to give up, the door slowly creaked open. A yellow eye stared at her from within the darkness.

"How did you know that we have someone who was possessed?" asked a voice.

On the other hand, Bai Lingmiao was relieved that the eye belonged to a human.

"Uuh ..." Bai Lingmiao couldn't think of a good excuse. "Old man, please don't worry about how I got to know. All you need to know is that I can help you. Evil beings cannot be allowed to remain on a person's body for too long or there might be trouble."

"How much money will you charge?"

"Fifty coins. No matter how strong the evil spirit is, it will be fifty coins." Bai Lingmiao told him the price for a Shaman's aid.

The moment she gave them the price, Bai Lingmiao heard a young man's voice from behind the door. "Father, let's just ask for her help instead. A shaman will be much cheaper than a medium!"

At that moment, the door closed once again. Bai Lingmiao didn't know what the father and son duo were discussing, but she decided to wait patiently.

Soon, the door opened once more.

A burly farmer appeared in front of Bai Lingmiao. He was short, but looked strong for his old age. He was carrying a pole while walking out of his home.

He reevaluated Bai Lingmiao and reconfirmed the price. "Fifty copper coins, that was the price you told. Don't you dare change it afterward.”

Bai Lingmiao sighed and nodded before entering the house. She was surprised by what she saw inside.

The entire room was decorated like a mourning hall, but the coffin was nowhere to be seen.

“Old man, why is the memorial tablet placed here instead of the ancestral hall?” asked Bai Lingmiao.

The old farmer sighed. “I would if I could. Come, let's go sit down and I will explain the situation.”

They walked past the back of the house into a small courtyard where several chickens were being raised.

The father and son duo were nervous as they brought Bai Lingmiao into the courtyard. Once there, they gave her a bamboo stool to sit on while they squatted down on the floor and explained their circumstances.

“My wife passed away eight days ago at the age of seventy-one. She had led a good life, free of sins and vices. It was supposed to be a normal burial service, but on the seventh day, our nephew heard someone knocking the coffin,” explained the old farmer.

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao was frightened and scanned her surroundings; however, everything looked normal.

“At that point, we were quite afraid, and so we decided to quickly bury her. But then, on the second night after the burial, she came back!” continued the old farmer.

Even though the old farmer tried his best to make the story sound as normal as possible, Bai Lingmiao was already sweating from fear. This was different from what had happened to Senior Li.

“My supposedly dead wife opened the door and asked for meat. That night, both me and my son were scared out of our minds. We were afraid that if we didn't give her any meat to eat, then she would just eat us. We had to take down the ham that we hung up on the rafters to save for the upcoming New Year. The piece of ham consisted of half a pig's leg that had been cured, but my wife ate it just like that! After she ate the entire ham, she walked away and said that she would come back again tomorrow," said the old farmer, his voice filled with worry. "It's not that we don't want to feed her, but at this point, she's no longer my wife. The manner in which she ate that piece of ham was akin to that of a beast! Her teeth had transformed into sharp fangs that could tear through even the tough ham meat! Now, we are terrified and we have no idea what to do. We already had to sell off two of our pigs for her burial service. If she comes back again, then she might just eat us if we don't have enough meat to feed her. If you can return her to the cycle of reincarnation, then you will truly be our Bodhisattva!"

After saying all this, the old farmer lowered his head as he wallowed in the pain of his wife's death and her transformation afterward.

Did the corpse get reanimated and the body possessed?

Bai Lingmiao carefully analyzed the situation to get a rough idea of how dangerous this task could be.

After discussing it with the Second Deity and being reassured that it wouldn't be too dangerous, Bai Lingmiao accepted the job. "Old man, the sun is setting soon. Since I am here now, let me stay for the night. What do you think?"

Since she was here, it would be best if she dealt with it tonight instead of waiting for another day. After traveling with Senior Li for so long, she was confident in dealing with a small issue like this.

"Really? You will help us?" asked the old farmer excitedly. He had originally thought that the girl was too young and inexperienced, and hadn't held much hope.

Bai Lingmiao nodded.

In response, the old farmer stood up and caught one of the chickens. "Alright! As thanks, please come eat dinner with us! There's no need to be shy!"

Soon, an entire chicken was placed in front of Bai Lingmiao; however, she didn't get to savor it in peace. She was nervously waiting for nighttime.

When the time came, both the father and the son went to sleep.

On the other hand, Bai Lingmiao waited patiently in the hall.

She could see that the farmer was indeed poor. They only had a single oil lamp that flickered occasionally, causing the shadows around them to dance. The atmosphere within the hall was quite ominous...

Chapter 180 - Strange

Bai Lingmiao hugged her drum as she waited nervously.

At that moment, the Second Deity suddenly appeared behind her silently and stared at the bolted door.

"I know that I can't always rely on Senior Li, and so I don't intend to do so this time. No need to remind me," Bai Lingmiao whispered. "Really, it's fine. Plus, what does Senior Li have to do with you?"

Hearing those words, the Second Deity placed her sharp fingernails on Bai Lingmiao's neck. "You know very well just how much Senior Li has to do with me, with us..."

Bai Lingmiao was visibly upset when she heard those words, but said nothing.

As the hall was once again plunged into silence, Bai Lingmiao started feeling scared. "What if I don't help the Immortal families do their bidding? Just what would they do to me? I'm not saying that I don't want to help, but what if I was so busy that I couldn't do it?"

When she heard the answer in her mind, she became even more upset. "Is that so... I wonder how we can stop them..."

At that moment, a knock came from the front door, surprising Bai Lingmiao.

Bam!

Something crashed into the door causing a crack to appear on the wooden door.

Bai Lingmiao peeked through the crack and saw a pair of eyes, ones that did not belong to the living.

"It's here!"

Instantly, Bai Lingmiao passed her drum to the Second Deity and covered her face with a red veil.

At the same time, a shrill female voice rang through the night.
“Summon~ The~ Gods~”

Bam!

The door was knocked down, and an old lady with white hair stood in front of Bai Lingmiao. The old lady was still wearing the red graveclothes.

There were bloodstains on the old lady’s mouth while her eyes looked completely soulless. She just stood there like a zombie in the night, striking fear into everyone who saw her.

Bam!

The old lady passed through the doorway and leaped into the house. Her feet were tied together with black ropes, and so she could only resort to jumping.

“The sun set on the Western Mountain, and the skies went dark~ Nine of the ten families had locked their doors, and only one remains~”

The chant was fast but the old woman paid no heed to the Second Deity. Instead, she was searching for something within the house.

When she didn’t find what she wanted, the old woman stared at Bai Lingmiao before approaching her slowly.

“The East and West Dipper come together, the Big Dipper examines the cosmic dust~ The grass grows in Spring, and dies in Autumn~ The pines remain eternal and persevere through the Summer and Winter~ A faint star in the Heavens fell onto Earth and brought about life!” chanted the Second Deity.

As the chanting continued, four incense sticks appeared in Bai Lingmiao’s hand. She swung her hand and the incense sticks instantly lit up without a fire.

“The Heavens have their rules and Hell has its own laws~ You’ve lived your life in the past, so begone and let go of the present!”

Following the rhythm of the chant, the white smoke emanating from Bai Lingmiao’s incense sticks billowed toward the old lady.

But something was wrong.

As if entering a body of water, the smoke disappeared the moment it came into contact with the old lady’s clothes.

At that moment, the old lady opened her mouth and bit into Bai Lingmiao’s arm; however, rather than flesh, the old lady was met with a mouthful of black porcupine quills. The quills pierced through her mouth and her jaw.

“Dong dong dong~ Master Red, send your infantry~ Dong dong dong~ The first drum means the soldiers have eaten~ Dong dong dong~ The second drum means that the soldiers have donned their armors~ Dong dong dong~ The third drum means the soldiers have brandished their swords~ Dong dong dong~ The fourth drum means that the soldiers have started clashing with the enemies~”

As the drum continued beating, clumps of white fur flew out from within Bai Lingmiao’s sleeves and extended from beneath her red veil. At the same time, a fox tail slowly grew from underneath her skirt.

The fur was akin to a living animal as it flew into the old lady’s orifices.

The old lady wanted to struggle against the attack, but it was no use. She gradually became weaker and slower.

After a while, the old lady suddenly collapsed. Then, something soft and black came out from beneath her graveclothes and immediately ran out into the night.

“Dong dong dong~ Leave if you want to; The sovereign has given you the horse’s reins~ Undo the restraints and ride the saddle, the Immortal Family will spur the horse forward~ Time to go back~ Ai Hai Yi Hou Hei~ Dong dong dong!”

After the chant finished, Bai Lingmiao returned to normal and removed the red veil. Then, she sighed in relief before letting out a happy laugh.

This was her first solo exorcism and she had done it perfectly!

She was very confident now. At the very least, she would be able to help Senior Li whenever he was in trouble.

As the saying went, the wife should always follow the husband. Bai Lingmiao would never complain about Senior Li's matters, and she would always help him if she could.

"How should I go about becoming stronger as a Shaman? I feel like my strength is still inadequate... Hm? You want me to learn how to sing and chant instead? But you are the one doing it... Oh, ok. I will try," said Bai Lingmiao.

After that, Bai Lingmiao carefully tidied up the old lady's graveclothes. The old lady was no longer moving.

"Looks like I was right. Something was indeed possessing her corpse, but I don't know what it was since it ran off so quickly."

After making sure that the old lady's graveclothes looked presentable, she called for the father and son duo. They gave her fifty coins before sending her off.

Bai Lingmiao had just walked out of the house when she was surprised by a black shadow sitting beside the door. "Who is it?!"

The shadow approached her and grabbed her hand. "At least let me know if you are doing something like this next time. Then, I can at least keep watch."

It was Li Huowang. He was worried about her and had been sitting outside for quite some time.

Bai Lingmiao was surprised by his actions and felt loved. Feeling shy, she hugged his arm. "Ok..."

Both of them walked on the muddy path back to their house, enjoying the silence; they didn't talk at all.

But the silence was soon broken.

A hunchbacked old lady was carrying a basket while holding a bamboo in her hand as she approached them.

Tok tok tok~

They saw her sweeping the bamboo stick left and right—she was blind!

When she heard their footsteps, the blind woman stopped and asked them. “Do you know the way to Qian Niusheng’s house? Someone in their house was possessed and I am here to help them exorcize the evil spirit.”

“Ah? Grandma, I think you are too late. The evil spirit has already been exorcized,” said Bai Lingmiao.

“What? How dare they fool a blind woman like me!” raged the old lady.

The blind old woman was so mad that she shouted out profanities that neither Li Huowang nor Bai Lingmiao had ever heard of. She was cursing all of Qian Niusheng’s ancestors.

At this point, even the dogs around them had started barking.

Seeing this, Li Huowang stared at the fierce old lady with interest. “You are already so old and yet you can still exorcize spirits? May I know your name and which sect you belong to?”

Hearing his question, the old lady calmed down. “My surname is Cui; you can just call me Lady Cui. Do you need my help?”

As she spoke, she suddenly felt that something was off, prompting her to place her bamboo stick under her armpit and carefully feel her way toward Li Huowang.

Li Huowang wanted to dodge but the old lady homed in on him accurately. In the end, her skinny fingers gripped Li Huowang’s face like an eagle.

“Holy shit. Just what kind of sin did you commit in your previous life? This is so strange! Most people would be missing one of the five elements in their life, either fire or water. Worst case scenario, I’ve seen extremely unfortunate people who were missing two elements in their lives. But you are missing all five of your elements!”

Chapter 181 - Asking Rice

“Five elements... Missing the five elements?”

Upon hearing that, Li Huowang used his hand to touch his own abdomen, touching the positions where the five organs should be.

He subconsciously thought back to his actions from that day, when he had gone to seek revenge from the Sitting Oblivion Dao while intentionally seeking death.

Back then, he had used the Five Elements Intercalation recorded in the Profound Records, and offered his five organs up to Ba-Hui.

If his five elements had disappeared from his body, then it should be related to that.

However, despite missing his five elements, Li Huowang did not feel like there was anything amiss.

As he was thinking, Li Huowang reached within his blood-colored Daoist robes to touch the gruesome scar that he had carved out on himself.

Unexpectedly, the skin there was now smooth, with not a single scar remaining.

Li Huowang tried hard to think back on what had happened, but found that he had no recollection at all.

What's going on with my body? How come it's completely alright?

Puzzled, he looked up at the blind lady before him. “Lady Cui, if a person was missing their five organs and five elements, could they still survive?”

The blind woman was shocked. “Missing their five organs and five elements? At that point, how could they even be considered a person? At most, they would be a dead person.”

At that moment, Li Huowang felt as though something within his mind snapped. A sharp pain started spreading from his chest and gradually grew more and more intense, making it difficult for him to breathe!

What's happening? Did she do something? Is this some sort of supernatural ability used with words? Did she see through the fact that I'm a Strayed One? Is she trying to harm me or scheme something?

Li Huowang endured the sharp pain as he stared at her, who was dressed just like a common grandmother.

Just as Li Huowang was about to stagger and fall to the ground with an ashen look, she spoke again, "However, you lack the five elements and are still able to survive. So, it may not be the best to speak in such absolute terms."

This time, the sensation of pain in Li Huowang's body vanished immediately. He clutched his chest and looked at the old woman doubtfully.

He was no longer certain about Lady Cui's intentions. If she had been the one to cause the intense pain earlier, then why had it suddenly disappeared?

If she didn't cause it, then what's wrong with my body?

The intense bout of pain he had felt was definitely not something simple; it had almost felt like he was about to die.

"However, I advise you to recover your five elements as soon as possible. If not, you will run into trouble sooner or later," advised the old lady.

Li Huowang stretched out his hand to block Bai Lingmiao behind him, and then asked with a mix of curiosity and probing, "Then, Lady Cui, do you have any solutions for someone like me?"

"I don't, but others may. If you want to find out, then I can inquire for you. You should hurry up and recover your five elements. Otherwise, even if you survive, things won't go well for you," said the old lady.

"Ask who?"

"I am a medium, so who else can I ask but rice," said the old lady in a matter-of-fact manner.

Asking rice? Something new again?

Soon after, Li Huowang and Bai Lingmiao brought this so-called Lady Cui back to their residence.

Once there, they borrowed a few kilograms of rice from their host, and then Lady Cui began the so-called process of asking rice.

First, she took out various items from her basket.

A small bronze mirror was placed on the center of the table.

Before the mirror was a palm-sized clay cauldron, along with thirteen short yellow incense sticks.

Next, the borrowed rice was placed into the basket, followed by thirteen chicken eggs that were placed atop the rice.

Once done, Lady Cui faced the basket filled with rice and eggs, and then poured a cup of wine, a cup of tea, and a bowl of rice.

Then, Lady Cui closed her eyes and placed both her hands on the eggs. With this, the process of asking rice had begun.

"Observe the moon with great respect as it protects our homes. Masters and ancestors, please come forth, Spirits and Immortals from all directions, all come together to bless us..."

As she continued to use her slang while muttering incomprehensible words, she grabbed the rice from the basket and threw it onto Li Huowang's head.

"What's this ritual?" asked Li Huowang, his guard fully raised. After going through so much, he was wary of everything, and carried a trace of doubt when looking at things.

After a while, Lady Cui suddenly stopped and reached out her right hand toward Li Huowang, her fingers trembling.

Li Huowang did not quite understand her meaning as he looked at the old hand. Fortunately, Bai Lingmiao explained it to him as she took out some pieces of silver and placed them in Lady Cui's hand.

With eyes closed, Lady Cui picked up the pieces of silver and put them in her mouth to bite them, prompting a satisfied look to appear on her face.

“Young man, don’t be distracted. Report the eight characters [1] of your date of birth.”

“What? Eight characters? I don’t have them,” responded Li Huowang.

Lady Cui sighed, then pinched her fingers toward Li Huowang before continuing to sing. Even now, Li Huowang could not understand the lyrics; however, this time was different from before.

Not long after, Li Huowang’s body tensed up. With his heightened senses, he subconsciously looked toward the dark doorway, and then toward the empty rafters atop.

Some things were coming over.

Burp~

This sudden sound made Li Huowang turn toward the front to look at the medium that had begun to shake her head. He could sense that the Lady Cui standing in front of him was now completely different, as though something else was occupying her body.

Why does this feel similar to the methods used by the Shamans? Since they summon the Immortal families, then what does one summon when asking rice?

As he thought up to this point, Li Huowang vigilantly distanced himself a little.

“Who is there~ What questions~ do you have~ burp.”

At that moment, an aged male voice rang out from Lady Cui’s mouth with a noticeable theatrical tone.

Initially, Li Huowang had wanted to ask about his missing five organs, but decided not to. If he had indeed been lacking his five organs, then he would have already died. Though he did not know what method Dan Yangzi use to restore his five organs, he put that concern aside for now. The urgent matter at hand was to recover his missing five elements.

“Do you have any way to restore my missing five elements?” asked Li Huowang.

“Hmm~? Who is there~? Burp, Report~ your~ name!” asked ‘Lady Cui’ as she took a deep breath, her nostrils drawing in the white smoke from the nearby incense.

“Li Huowang. Who are you? Or should I say... What are you?” Li Huowang replied cautiously, instinctively grabbing the hilt of his sword.

“Hmph~! I am the~ Imperial Palace~ Ruler of Nine Heavens,~ the Supreme celestial being, and the Pardoner of Sins~ Little~ Strayed One~ How amusing~ Burp,” said the voice.

Li Huowang’s eyes shrank. The other party could tell he was a Strayed One!

“Don’t be afraid~ Hahaha~ burp,” said the voice, their laughter causing an eerie wind to blow through the entire house.

Clang!

Instantly, Li Huowang unsheathed the sword causing a strong aura to disperse the chilliness in the house.

At the same time, the incense sticks inside the black cauldron were also instantly extinguished.

1. basically year, month, day, and time of birth. It's used to predict your life and personality 🤔

Chapter 182 - Great Deity

The commotion caused by Li Huowang unsheathing his sword startled Lady Cui, instantly jolting her awake.

“Ah, what’s happening? Weren’t you asking rice? Why are you so worked up?” She asked in a flustered voice, as though genuinely unaware of what had just transpired.

Li Huowang had been ready to strike, but paused and looked at the bewildered Lady Cui with an uncertain expression. He couldn’t determine whether she was pretending or whether she was truly perplexed. Logically, if they were interested in him as a Strayed One, then they shouldn’t be acting this way.

“Are you going to ask or not? If not, I’m leaving,” Lady Cui said as she lifted her basket and prepared to leave.

After a moment, Li Huowang decided that he did not want her to leave. He dragged over a nearby wooden stool and sat down with his sword. “I want to continue asking questions. Summon that supreme being back.”

Hearing this, Lady Cui hesitated for a few moments, then placed down her basket and re-lit the incense sticks.

The same sequence of actions as earlier were repeated, and then the male voice reappeared.

After learning that Li Huowang lacked his five elements, the voice gave a very strange answer. “Change your name and surname! Lack five elements~ Fill five elements!”

Then, ‘Lady Cui’ reached into the basket and grabbed a handful of rice, scattering it onto the ground before Li Huowang.

Jin Zaomu[1]. These words appeared before Li Huowang.

Change my name?

Li Huowang looked at the name on the floor and was rather puzzled.

Could having the five elements in my name really compensate for the missing elements? Is this person just trying to deceive me?

After pondering for a while, Li Huowang decided to once again test the ability of this entity. He faced Lady Cui who was drinking the tea and wine, and then asked, “Thank you for the clarifications. I have another question I wish to ask; could you help provide an answer for it?”

“Ask~!”

“Why has the process of ‘decay’ stopped in this world recently?” asked Li Huowang. If this unknown entity could provide a real answer, then Li Huowang would immediately change his name.

The disappearance of ‘decay’ had to be related to the Abbess. He was deeply troubled by her death, and wanted to know what was going on.

“The Bodhisattva, out of compassion, sympathizes with all living beings in the world, who endure the suffering of decay,” said the voice.

“You liar! You are exposed! There is no Bodhisattva or Buddha! Beyond the heavens, there are only those... those...” said Li Huowang before trailing off. Soon, fear was revealed in his eyes, and he could not continue anymore. He did not know how to describe those entities, those things that he had intentionally avoided thinking about ever since waking up.

He had believed that by not thinking about them, he could just pretend that they did not exist. Those beings were immensely more powerful than ordinary humans, and had the ability to easily annihilate anyone and everyone if they so desired.

However, when he thought about them again, Li Huowang could no longer ignore them. Instantly, his expression grew agonized and his breathing became more rapid. At the same time, some indistinct voices started echoing in his ears.

“Senior! Stop thinking about it!” Bai Lingmiao’s anxious voice pulled Li Huowang’s attention back.

As Li Huowang looked at the worried, delicate face before him, he took a deep breath and nodded. “You’re right, I won’t think about it. I won’t think...”

Yes, that’s right. Regardless of what those things truly are, or no matter whether what she said is true or false, this world has gone mad. Since I can’t do anything about it, I just need to live my life peacefully.

With constant reassurance from Bai Lingmiao, Li Huowang gradually calmed down as he placed the things he should not be thinking about aside.

With renewed composure, Li Huowang once again looked toward Lady Cui. At this point, his trust in her words had significantly diminished.

“I have another question for you. What exactly is the Strayed One?” asked Li Huowang.

This question caused her to pause. She looked over with her blank eyes. At that moment, Li Huowang could instantly feel eight gazes examining him.

“As a deity, I of course know. But if I were to tell you, then you would die on the spot,” said the voice.

This reply caused Bai Lingmiao to grab onto the hem of Li Huowang’s clothes tightly.

“Hmph!” Li Huowang sneered, his trust in Lady Cui vaporizing completely. “Playing tricks with me, huh? The Sitting Oblivion Dao has taught me one thing—not to follow the path of someone else.”

Then, he raised his sword that radiated killing intent, and pointed it toward Lady Cui’s head. “Get lost! No matter what you are or what intentions you have. Scram! Do you hear me?”

“Little~ Strayed One~ Amusing~ Very amusing~ Since it’s like this, then I shall inform you~ what a Strayed One is~ burp,” said the voice.

However, before they could say anything more, a sharp crack echoed through the room. The black cauldron, the basket filled with rice, and the bronze mirror had all been sliced into two halves. The sword's edge was already on Lady Cui's neck.

"Oh my~ What's going on?!" asked Lady Cui, her voice returning to normal.

"This again? You're quite skilled at pretend acting! I'll repeat this one last time! Get lost!" shouted Li Huowang.

At this point, it was evident that Lady Cui was quite frightened by Li Huowang's killing intent. In a panicked state, she picked up her belongings from the ground and stumbled outside.

Clang!

Once she left, Li Huowang sheathed his sword, and the room gradually returned to normal.

"Let's go get some sleep. We should have a good rest while we still have a bed," Li Huowang said. As he stepped into the inner room, he put on the bronze-coin mask.

Feeling the weight of the mask, he let out a sigh of relief. "I'll need to bring this thing with me from now on. My identity as a Strayed One is too enticing to some people."

"Master~ What if... What she said was true?" asked Bai Lingmiao.

"That was the only reason I didn't strike her body. Otherwise, I wouldn't have let her leave through the door. Also, don't call me Master!" said Li Huowang.

That night, Li Huowang hardly slept, fearing a night-time ambush by the other party.

Next day, even though nothing had happened, Li Huowang had everyone hastily pack their luggage and leave this troubled area.

It was only after they arrived at the bustling streets of the border town of the kingdom of Si Qi that Li Huowang finally relaxed.

Compared to before, there was much less tension over here, suggesting that they might no longer be at war.

Li Huowang and the others took some time to rest in the town, and then prepared to re-enter Hou Shu. But before that, there was something that they needed to do.

At the Hutou Escort Office, the burly Chief Escort read the recommendation letter in his hand, while scrutinizing the peculiar red-robed Daoist with a mask of bronze coins on his face.

After much consideration, he placed the letter back. "Alright, since Leader Zhao is taking your guarantee, then I'll trust you! However, let's make it clear beforehand. If you're escorting goods, then we'll take a twenty percent cut from each deal. After all, we're the ones signing the contracts. Is this agreeable?"

"Yes," Li Huowang readily agreed. Escorting cargo was quite convenient for his group, and the earnings were essentially free money.

"If the goods are lost, I won't hold you accountable. We have our own guarantors too. Since you said Leader Zhao is your friend, don't disappoint him," said the Chief Escort.

1. the three characters of the name Jin Zaomu has the radicals of the five elements, 金灶沐 🌊

Chapter 183 - Village Protector

Since the Chief Escort had agreed, their next steps were quite simple—accept the contract, take the deposit, and place their handprints.

Li Huowang turned around as he observed the items being loaded onto his carriage, and then turned to the Chief Escort. “By the way, Chief Escort, I’d like to ask. Wasn’t there a war recently? Did it also affect your business?”

“Why wouldn’t we be affected? The escort business does make more money when the world is in chaos. But if the entire world is in total chaos, then we wouldn’t be able to make any money either. You should know that once military troops are involved, those high-ranking officials won’t follow any rules. Thankfully, the war has ended.”

Hearing this, Li Huowang was surprised. “Chief, do you know what happened? Why did the war suddenly stop?”

He recalled that a significant number of people had died during the battles; it hadn’t just been any normal skirmish.

According to normal procedures, it shouldn’t have ended like this.

There must have been some reason that caused both sides to reign in their hostility so abruptly. No, not just both sides, as there seemed to have been more than two countries involved in the war.

Yet now, they had all stopped so abruptly, almost as if they had all agreed upon it beforehand; due to this, it was very strange.

“How would I know? If I did, wouldn’t I be sitting on the throne of the kingdom of Si Qi right now? However, I’ve heard from the conscripts that while everything was normal in the beginning, one day, out of the blue, the dead suddenly stopped rotting, and no longer even attracted any flies,” explained the Chief Escort.

Hearing this, Li Huowang’s expression stiffened. It all related back to the Abbess’s body. This unexpected ceasefire was related to the sudden disappearance of ‘decay’.

Could it be that those in power feel that the disappearance of ‘decay’ is more important than conquering cities and seizing more land? So the emperors and the kings stopped the war to join forces and deal with this issue?

Perhaps the disappearance of ‘decay’ would lead to major changes in the world.

Li Huowang speculated aimlessly as he looked toward the other side of the street. The border town was very lively, with horse-drawn carriages, ox carts, and even camels passing by.

They all seemed to be completely unaffected by the disappearance of ‘decay’.

From the looks of it, there were many significant events happening in this world, but they were unrelated to him. Currently, he was no different from these commoners; he was just another one of them.

There will always be someone dependable when calamity strikes.

Perhaps the disappearance of ‘decay’ was something very important. But ever since the Abbess’s death, he no longer had any further connections with this matter.

Unknowingly, they finished loading the goods they were meant to escort. Since their two carriages were now full, they would have no choice but to sleep underneath the carriages at night.

“Young man, as long as you deliver these goods to the Fengteng Escort Office in Ji City of Hou Shu, you will receive a reward of seventy taels.” [1]

Seventy taels!

Li Huowang was stunned by the reward. He remembered that back then, the Lu Family Troupe only managed to earn ten taels back when they performed for the dead.

It seems that the escort business is very profitable in these chaotic times.

“Don’t think it’s too little; it’s your first time, after all. As long as you do a good job, your business will naturally become more lucrative. This is the escort contract, keep it safe,” continued the Chief Escort.

Hearing this, Li Huowang reached out for the contract and bowed courteously. “Chief Escort, till we meet again.”

“Take care, and have a smooth journey,” said the Chief Escort.

After leaving the Escort Office, Li Huowang took another look at this small town that they had visited several times now and sighed with mixed feelings. He had no more attachments to the kingdom of Si Qi, and this was likely the last time he would come to this place.

Where is my home in this vast world?

Once everything was prepared, the carriage wheels began to roll again as he led his group toward the barren land of Hou Shu.

Now that they were acting as escorts, they were moving much slower than before. After all, they were carrying more goods causing the horses pulling the carts to be tired out much quicker.

To avoid facing the revenge of the relatives of the Nuo Opera performers, Li Huowang deliberately took a longer route and went around the previous town.

Due to this, they only saw another village after about half a month of travel. Worn out by their long time on the road they had cracked lips, and wanted to go in for a rest.

Not having enough water for washing up hadn’t been the biggest issue for them. The real problem was having to eat dry rations every day, causing all of them to grow more and more irritable.

Li Huowang had also developed a large ulcer on the corner of his lips.

“Wooo~” Bun howled out.

Seeing this, Li Huowang patted its smooth, yellow head and said, “Keep quiet, this is someone else’s place.”

While enjoying being licked by Bun, Li Huowang looked at the small village.

All the houses here were painted a conspicuous red, as though to contrast them from the desolation outside. However, there was nothing else remarkable about this place.

When Li Huowang saw a man in ragged clothing step out of one of the houses, he immediately led his group forward.

“Excuse me—” Li Huowang had just begun to speak, but stopped. There was a trail of green mucus hanging from the face of the man, and it extended all the way to his chest. Its thickness showed that it had accumulated due to the air drying it over time.

“Huh? Outsiders?” The person just stood there with his legs bowed inward, smiling foolishly at Li Huowang.

Li Huowang raised his hand to adjust his bronze coin mask as he watched the man warily; he was uncertain whether this man was genuinely foolish or just pretending.

“Fool, the Wu Family is having a celebration! Come over and help! There will even be baked buns afterwards!”

When he heard the shout from an old person in the distance, this man’s eyes brightened, and he turned to rush toward the source of the voice.

What sort of person is this?

Just as Li Huowang was feeling puzzled, Gao Zhijian, who was standing beside him stuttered, “Vill-Village... Protector!”

“What?” Li Huowang turned to look at him as he came to understand what that term meant through Gao Zhijian's stuttering explanation. Some of the villages had a fool, and they were usually called Village Protectors. It was claimed that they were lacking in mental faculties, but they were destined to help ward off disasters for the village.

However, this was just a nice way of putting it. The majority of Village Protectors lived difficult lives, and often went hungry. The only time they enjoyed decent meals was when they helped out during village celebrations.

Li Huowang nodded in understanding, "I see. I've never encountered them before, and so it's my first time learning about this."

When he thought up to this point, Li Huowang was suddenly startled as he looked up at Gao Zhijian's honest face. "You are slow with almost everything else, so how did you know about this so clearly? Were you... also a Village Protector before?"

Gao Zhijian shook his head vigorously, "N-n-no! I... I... I am not!"

Li Huowang nodded upon seeing his anxious expression. "Alright, you don't need to explain. I know that you're not."

At that moment, Puppy chimed in as well, "Yes, yes. You are not."

"I... really... am not!" Gao Zhijian turned red with embarrassment.

1. Interesting note: A Tael is a unit of weight and equal to 1.3 Ounces and when associated with silver in this context, it means that they will be paid 91 Ounces of silver 📖

Chapter 184 - Getting Married

Seeing Gao Zhijian getting so anxious, Zhao Wu, who was driving the horse carriage, spoke up, “Puppy, don’t tease him too much. If you end up making him lose his temper, then I’ll smack you.”

“Senior Li, seems like there’s a celebration going on inside the village. Should we go over to take a look? Most of the village people should be there,” suggested one of them.

Li Huowang looked up at the fiery sunset, then nodded and led his group toward the village. “The customs in Hou Shu are a little strange, huh. They hold their weddings at dusk.”

“Senior Li, we also have weddings at this time back home.”

“Is that so? Why’s that?” asked Li Huowang.

“No particular reason. It has always been tradition.”

As they chatted along the way, Li Huowang gradually made his way into the village. Locating the family hosting the wedding was not difficult; some of the villagers carrying buckets filled with rice and eggs directly pointed out the direction for Li Huowang.

They were not just carrying plain rice and eggs; some of them also carried baskets filled with other lavish offerings such as live chicken and lambs.

The villagers here seemed like their faces shining more and more brightly as they deliberately walked slower while swaying their shoulder poles flamboyantly; it was as though they were boasting to the others.

Li Huowang followed these people and quickly found the wedding house. The two stone lions at the entrance suggested that this family was different from the others in the village.

Two ushers at the entrance wore warm smiles as they rushed to welcome Li Huowang's group. "You can leave your carriages at the door, and we'll keep an eye on them."

After finding out that Li Huowang's group were escorts, and after verifying the escort contract, they were surprisingly no longer wary of them, and even passionately invited them in.

It seemed that having more guests during a wedding would add to their social prestige.

With this, Li Huowang was even more convinced that his choice to become an escort was correct.

However, there was also a possibility that their attitude might have been influenced by their attire.

Most people here wore bamboo hats and veils to protect themselves from the sandstorms. If this were within the kingdom of Si Qi, the people would not readily invite a group of veiled strangers in.

After going in, they sat around a small table. Li Huowang picked up his chopsticks and took a small portion of each dish, then discreetly passed it to Bun who was under the table.

Though it may look unsightly, Li Huowang did not care. He was more concerned about the possibility of the village being a bandit lair, and that their food might have been drugged.

They had endured through many chaotic things, and it would be quite interesting if something went wrong here.

After a while, Bun licked its face and wagged its tail, clearly wanting more food.

Seeing this, Li Huowang nodded to the others. "Eat."

After their long journey, everyone seemed to have forgotten their manners; they could not resist the delicious dishes on the table.

However, Li Huowang did not start eating. Instead, he picked up the cup of strong tea and drank it.

Given his heightened senses, the ulcer on his lips felt like constant torture to him. He had to find a way to quickly relieve himself of the heatiness.[\[1\]](#)

Hou Shu's cuisine was quite different from that of the kingdom of Si Qi; there were very few vegetable dishes. The majority of the food items were meat and dairy products, as well as baked buns and date cakes.

The only other options were the dried fruits that were arranged on the beautiful plates, and the tea water. Thus, Li Huowang's choices were very limited.

"Zhao Wu, try these baked buns! They are really good; crispy on the outside and fragrant on the inside. Very delicious!" said one of them.

However, not everyone just cared about the food. Bai Lingmiao stretched her white neck and curiously looked toward the entrance. There, she saw the bride, covered in a red veil, and being helped down from the wedding sedan.

At this point, a handsome young man with sharp brows who held a gong in his hands struck it and announced in a loud voice, "The bride enters! May wealth follow abundantly!"

"Good!"

The others stood up to applaud, prompting Li Huowang to nudge Gao Zhijian who was just wolfing down his food. After that, they stood up as well.

Bong~

The gong rang again. "The bride crosses the brazier~![\[2\]](#) Red and fiery~!"

"Alright! Well-spoken!" The entire courtyard erupted in cheers.

Bong~!!

"The bride crosses the saddle~![\[3\]](#) Peace and prosperity~!"

As he looked at the joyous expressions of the people around him, Li Huowang's mood involuntarily improved.

At the same time, he also noticed the strong look of envy in Bai Lingmiao's eyes.

He reached out and pinched her soft hand, causing her to turn around and give him a reassuring smile.

"Senior Li, everyone is giving them gifts. Shouldn't we give one as well? It's only right to do so," suggested Bai Lingmiao.

"Alright."

"We can give them some candied fruits produced in the kingdom of Si Qi, since they can't be found here. This will be enough to represent our goodwill, and wouldn't cost us much," said Bai Lingmiao.

Just as she said this, a fourth gong sounded. "Worship~ the~ God of Prosperity~!"

"What?!" Li Huowang could hardly believe his ears, "What did he say to worship?"

From his perspective, the warm and merry atmosphere instantly vanished, and a bone-piercing chill enveloped him.

"Senior Li, they said to worship the God of Prosperity," said Sun Baolu, his mouth filled to the brim with lamb meat.

Li Huowang watched on with shock as the newlyweds were led into the hall by their cheerful relatives. Then, they knelt in front of a red and round character that represented Prosperity[4].

Just as the smiling youth was about to strike the gong once again, he saw Li Huowang in the crowd, causing his expression to turn unpleasant.

"Brother! What are you looking at?! Strike the gong!"

As soon as the youth heard the groom's soft reminder, he struck the red-clothed mallet onto the gong.

Bong~

The jarring sound of the gong rang out once again.

"Congratulations to the eldest son of the Hou Family, Hou Qiao on marrying Luo Tian as the bride! The bride is virtuous and dignified, and we pray to the God of Prosperity to bless their family to bear many children and descendants!”

“Hehe! Good!”

At that moment, the atmosphere reached its peak with everyone smiling and cheering.

After the newlyweds left through a side door, the others gradually sat down and continued to eat and chat.

This just made Li Huowang who was standing there on his own seem even more conspicuous. When he felt someone tug on his sleeves, Li Huowang sat back down, albeit looking rather displeased.

According to the information he had received before, the God of Prosperity was an existence even more terrifying than the God of Happiness. Perhaps it was one of the things behind Baiyu Capital.

And now, such an existence had become the god of blessings for weddings; it was undoubtedly ironic.

Though he did not know how this custom came about, he was certain that the people offering their worship had no idea what the thing they were actually worshiping was!

“Senior Li, what’s the matter? There’s nothing wrong here, so why the displeased expression? Are you... having an episode again?” asked Puppy.

Li Huowang glanced at Puppy and then pointed at the red, giant, round character on the wall. “Do they have to worship that thing at weddings in other places too?”

An example of the Double Happiness character (not sure if copyright rules apply)

1. a traditional chinese medicine concept that is believed to be related to causing blisters or ulcers

2. a Chinese custom to step past a brazier, believed to help dispel evil spirits with the fire, and hope for a prosperous life 🙌

3. I can't find any relevant info about this online, perhaps a wedding custom unique to this story. 🙌

4. the term used is actually Double Happiness, commonly used as a symbol for marriage 🙌

Translator's Thoughts

This is how the character for double happiness looks like.

Chapter 185 - Toast

“Worship... the God of Prosperity? No, at least not in our Liang Kingdom. I remember that when my second brother got married, they had to first pay their respects to Heaven and Earth, and then to her parents. But in marriages, we also have the same circular character pasted on the doors and windows,” said Puppy while holding onto a lamb hoof and pointing toward the red-colored double happiness character in the banquet hall.

However, this reply didn’t manage to improve Li Huowang’s expression by much.

He just stood in place for a while, and only sat down after seeing that there were no peculiarities with the red-colored round character for double happiness.

“Let’s eat quickly and find a place to rest afterwards,” said Li Huowang, prompting the others to speed up their pace.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang took a dried date from the date cake and began to slowly munch on it, all while looking around warily. He couldn’t let his guard down completely.

However, he couldn’t be blamed for being overly cautious. Being too careful was never a bad thing in this crazy world.

Moreover, he had accumulated many bitter experiences.

Li Huowang did not want to know the reason behind these things. The only thing he wanted was to live on safely with the people around him.

As the evening grew darker, the torches on the walls were lit up, and the entire banquet hall grew even more lively.

The host family had been busy toasting with those seated at the other tables, and Li Huowang had assumed that they would not come and raise a toast with their group of outsiders. Who knew that one of them would actually be dispatched to their table.

The youth who had been striking the gong to welcome the bride now walked toward Li Huowang with a smile. He held a cup of wine in one hand, and a wine jug in the other.

He came to their table and filled up his wine cup first, and then held it up to Li Huowang. "Thank you everyone for rushing here for my brother's wedding! I am Hou Wen, and I would like to raise a toast to you escort masters. May everything go smoothly for you!"

Given the situation, the others could not remain seated, and raised their cups in return. Even Li Huowang did the same, using tea as a replacement for wine. After all, it was very good for them to receive such treatment as outsiders.

Hou Wen held his cup with both hands and emptied it down his throat, and then immediately filled it up once again before facing Li Huowang. "Daoist, I offer a separate toast to you. Here's to hoping that you attain the Dao and ascend to Immortality soon!"

These were kind words, but to Li Huowang, a fake Daoist, they sounded quite uncomfortable.

"You're too courteous," said Li Huowang as he raised his cup of tea and drank it, the cup obscuring his view.

Li Huowang could acutely sense that the man before him was staring at himself.

No, more accurately, it was not at himself, but at the sword on his back, the one gifted to him by the Abbess.

When Li Huowang put down the cup of tea, that gaze quickly vanished, and he was once again faced with the young man's smile. If not for his heightened senses, it was likely that he too would have missed it.

Why is this person staring at my sword? Does he recognize its power?

No matter what Li Huowang thought, the youth didn't do much after the toast. He just picked up his pot of wine and turned toward the other tables.

From the looks of it, the purpose of his visit had just been to raise a toast.

“Enjoy your meal, and leave only after you are happy!” said the departing young man.

Li Huowang had a complex look on his face as he watched the youth depart. He turned to the others and said, “We should be done. Let’s go.”

Hearing this, the others looked reluctantly at the unfinished dishes. But since Li Huowang had spoken, they could only stand up and follow him.

After the feast, not only had they had their fill, it was also easier for them to find a place to rest. A landlord saw that they were the escorts who had eaten at the same feast as him, and agreed to shelter them temporarily. He even had to pretend to decline Bai Lingmiao’s offer to pay rent.

“Since you came to dine at the banquet, you are our guests. There’s no need for any money here,” said the old man. But in the end, the elderly man with the loud voice still accepted their coins happily.

Money was indeed quite handy, and he quickly cleared out an old two-story clay building for Li Huowang’s group to stay in. Even though it was old, it was a standalone structure with its own courtyard, which suited Li Huowang’s preferences quite a bit.

As the night grew darker, the lively village also gradually grew quiet.

At this moment, Li Huowang stood at the window by the second floor as he gazed at the red lanterns of the house where the wedding had taken place.

Bai Lingmiao was sitting on the side of the bed as she wet a thread with her mouth. Then, under the illumination of the candlelight, she carefully threaded it through the eye of a needle before starting to sew some useless cloth onto the chains on a nearby stool.

She continued sewing until her eyes grew tired, and then looked up toward Li Huowang's broad figure. "Senior Li, perhaps he was just casually glancing at your sword. He may not necessarily be scheming against you."

"I have two swords on my back, so why did he focus on this one? It's better to be safe than sorry. When you go down later, inform the others in the house to take turns keeping watch throughout the night," said Li Huowang.

Bai Lingmiao obediently nodded before spreading open her blanket.

"Li... Li..."

"What's the matter?" Li Huowang looked down at the courtyard, to see Gao Zhijian looking up toward himself.

"I... I'm really not... a village protector," said Gao Zhijian, clearly concerned about this matter.

"Alright, I know that you're not a village protector. But then, where are you from? You couldn't have popped out from a rock, right?" asked Li Huowang.

Due to Gao Zhijian's limited intelligence and stutter, Li Huowang and the others were not keen about engaging in a conversation with him, since he often tended to be long-winded.

Due to this, aside from knowing that he was literate, Li Huowang did not know much else about Gao Zhijian.

Gao Zhijian appeared conflicted as he paused for a while, and then said, "Senior... Senior Li! Trust... trust me..."

"I trust you. Now hurry up and speak. If you keep dawdling, it's going to be dawn soon."

"You! Don't... Don't interrupt! Don't interrupt... me!" shouted Gao Zhijian. This was the first time he had used this tone to speak to Li Huowang. "I... I hate... hate it the most! When... others..."

Interrupt... me!"

Li Huowang looked at Gao Zhijian, whose face was turning red from agitation, and also at his tightly clenched fists, and nodded.

"Alright, you can speak."

"Senior... Senior Li! Will... you be... able to believe me? No matter... how... shocking... my words are?!"

"I will believe you. Say it."

Hearing this, Gao Zhijian stomped his feet angrily and said, "I... I... I'll come up to tell you!"

Hearing this, Li Huowang glanced at Bai Lingmiao behind him, and then stopped the agitated Gao Zhijian, "Don't come up, just speak from there, and then go to bed."

Chapter 186 - Beauty

When he heard Li Huowang tell him to just stand in the courtyard and talk to him, Gao Zhijian hesitated. He looked around warily and then began to speak, "I... I... I might... I might be an emp..."

As he spoke, Gao Zhijian's voice gradually became softer and softer, turning into something akin to a mosquito's buzzing.

"Hm? An emp? What are you talking about? Speak up," asked Li Huowang.

Gao Zhijian was ashamed when Li Huowang talked to him like that and just returned to his room.

"Why did he stop talking? What was he trying to say? An emp?" wondered Li Huowang. He was about to head down and ask but decided against it. He closed the window and approached his bed.

He had many other things to do and had no time to meddle in the private affairs of others.

Plus, he was a Strayed One. He was not suited to be a counselor, lest he dragged the others into his troubles as well.

And so, Li Huowang was not interested in what Gao Zhijian was trying to tell him.

Gao Zhijian was not stupid. His mind just worked slower than the others. Gao Zhijian must've his own issues to deal with. He knew that there would come a day when Gao Zhijian would naturally tell him everything.

After Li Huowang waited and confirmed that Gao Zhijian never came up, he blew out the candle and went to sleep. As he lay on the bed, Li Huowang stared at the roof.

"Do you still remember where Simpleton wanted to go?" asked

Li Huowang.

Bai Lingmiao hugged Li Huowang even while her eyes were closed. “I asked him a couple of days ago and found that he wasn’t sure either. He had said the Liang Kingdom the last time but then he answered with Qing Qiu a few days back.”

“Qing Qiu...” mumbled Li Huowang as the map surfaced within his mind. Qing Qiu was the next kingdom after Hou Shu, and beyond it was the Liang Kingdom.

Their journey would end once Bai Lingmiao arrived back at her village at the base of Cowheart Mountain. At that time, he would finally be able to settle down there too.

What should I do once I’m there? Should I arrange for a wedding ceremony and marry her? But since I will be staying at her house, technically she’s marrying me, right?[\[1\]](#)

Amidst his thoughts, Li Huowang placed his jaw on the top of her head and snuggled with Bai Lingmiao.

Neither of them had fallen into love at first sight, nor had they sworn to love each other. Li Huowang didn’t know how to pamper her, and Bai Lingmiao had never flirted with him. Both of them were akin to a small stream; they went on and on until they reached a lake.

To Li Huowang, nothing about it felt particularly special. It was just that he felt comfortable staying by her side and wanted to do so for his life.

But he was still worried about the one remaining issue he had. His hallucinations.

“Is there nothing that can cure the symptoms of a Strayed One?” Li Huowang wondered aloud. This was not only a question of responsibility, but also a future threat.

Li Huowang was still unconvinced. He was afraid that he would end up treating the hallucination as the real world once more and abandon Bai Lingmiao.

For a period of time, Li Huowang was very certain that the other side was fake and that he would never doubt himself again.

But now, the reality hit him hard. Everything was possible. He would never be so sure anymore.

Li Huowang recalled the final words spoken by one of the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao. “Chen Hongxiu, that old nun, knew nothing! I’ll tell you the truth! One of the four Joys of the Sitting Oblivion Dao, Bei Feng, is also a Strayed One! He has managed to live to a ripe old age of 190, and he’s still doing well! None of a Strayed One’s bewilderment or confusion bothers him!”

As he thought about it, he got more and more annoyed.

At that moment, Li Huowang suddenly realized that he had played right into that person’s trap and cursed.

Fuck! That bunch of crazy lunatics are still trying to swindle me even after their death!

“Senior Li, what’s wrong?” asked Bai Lingmiao.

Staring at the sleepy Bai Lingmiao, Li Huowang was about to say something when he suddenly felt his hallucination coming back. “Quick! Bring the chains!”

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao didn’t even question him. She immediately found the chain from under the bag and tied up Li Huowang.

“Tie harder! Don’t ever let me go!” said Li Huowang.

When he saw Bai Lingmiao reassuring him even as she was busy tying him up, Li Huowang sighed and tilted his head back.

At that moment, the pillow filled with grain transformed into a soft pillow filled with cotton.

Li Huowang gradually raised his head and stared at the white environment. The ward looked quite different compared to the last time.

Li Huowang knew where he was. After staying in the psychiatric hospital for so long, he knew that this was the ward where they kept the patients that had to be strapped in. A normal hospital would never have such a ward.

He thought about it for a moment, and came to a logical conclusion. “I was transferred?”

Li Huowang smiled bitterly and shook his head. After all, it was a hallucination and just about anything could happen here.

Li Huowang stared at the clean white ceiling and didn’t know what to do next.

He stared at the straps on his arms. After a moment, he raised his head and spoke into the microphone. “Is there a nurse? This is the thirteenth ward. Could you please bring my phone? I would like to make a call.”

After some static, a male voice answered him, “You are Li Huowang, correct? I’ve read your report. My surname is Wang, and so you can call me Nurse Wang. Who would you like to call? I can connect them to the microphone and the speaker by your bed.”

A male nurse?

Li Huowang pondered for a moment, and asked, “Nurse Wang, could you call Yang Na—”

However, as soon as he mentioned Yang Na’s name, Bai Lingmiao’s face popped up in his mind.

What am I doing? Why am I interacting with a hallucination? Yang Na is fake and Bai Lingmiao is real.

“Aa! Who is it? So annoying! Who’s calling me so early in the morning?” At that moment, a familiar voice came from the speaker.

When he heard her familiar voice, Li Huowang stopped hesitating. “Nana.”

“Huowang!” Yang Na cried out in surprise and happiness.

“Why are you still in bed? Where did you go last night and just how crazy was the night?” asked Li Huowang.

Hearing his question, Yang Na started letting out all her complains, “I didn’t go anywhere to play last night. The first year of university is more or less like another advanced year in high school. I'm so busy I could die."

"You no longer have to study late into the night and you don't even have classes all day long. How could you be busy?"

"Who said that? You can only say that because you have never gone to university before! Once you are in, you will realize that all those teachers in high school lied to us about how carefree being a university student was!" said Yang Na.

After she said those words, she suddenly became quiet. After a while, she carefully probed Li Huowang. "Huowang, I'm sorry. I don't mean to trigger you."

Hearing this, Li Huowang stared at the black microphone and chuckled, "You think you can trigger me just like that? I'm pretty much unfazed. By the way, did you hear me sing Happy Birthday to you that day?"

"Yes, I did. Thank you. But... I'm still waiting for my birthday gift."

1. Usually in Chinese culture the girl would go to the boy's family after marriage, but on rare occasions where the boy lives with the girl's family instead, they will use a different Chinese character to describe it. 🤔

Chapter 187 - Confrontation

“A birthday gift? Sure, what do you want?” Li Huowang smiled as he talked to the microphone. He did remember promising Yang Na that he would give her something.

Yang Na's voice turned quiet. “Huowang, I wish for you to come and fetch me from the university whenever you are healed. I told everyone there that I had a cool boyfriend, but none of my hostel mates believed me. I even showed them our pictures, but they thought that they were photoshopped! Those three crazy women!”

Healed?

Li Huowang smiled bitterly.

While the hallucination was extremely logical, to the point where it was almost indistinguishable from reality, in the end, it was just that... a hallucination.

“Alright,” Li Huowang lied. This was one of those rare cases where he had to lie.

“Yay! And then we can make sure that they die from jealousy!” said Yang Na in a cheerful voice.

Soon, both of them started to calm down.

“How are you in there?” asked Yang Na.

This question immediately made Li Huowang uncomfortable; he didn't know what to say. He thought about the various experiences he had so far. None of them were good.

“Not too bad,” said Li Huowang after a pause.

Yang Na's voice grew even quieter. When she spoke again, her voice was filled with sadness. “Huowang, I love you, I really, really do... But, we need to maintain it together. I'm afraid that I can't maintain it on my own. I don't want to be like my parents. They loved each other when I was younger, but that love slowly transformed into hatred."

Li Huowang took a deep breath and reassured her.

However, Yang Na did not accept it. "Li Huowang! Be serious! You always said you would do it, so show me! Your mom told me that you hated seeing the doctors! You can't do that! Do you think I don't understand you? You kept everything within your heart! Where are you trying to escape to? You've always been so stubborn and headstrong ever since you were young. I know it's hard for you to be riddled with this illness, but you need to go and let yourself get treated. I need you to do it so that I can also see that you are trying. If not, I won't feel safe anymore. I keep thinking whether you are trying to abandon me."

Hearing all this, Li Huowang clenched both of his fists. "Nana, I swear that I will never abandon you, even if..."

"Even if?"

Even if you are an illusion...

Li Huowang buried those words deep inside his heart.

"...even if I can't be treated, as long as you are able to endure, then I will never give up either," said Li Huowang.

After obtaining his answer, Yang Na's voice returned to her jolly self. Then, she began to talk about her university life.

They talked for another half an hour before Nurse Wang reminded them that their time was up. And so, Yang Na reluctantly hung up.

Li Huowang sighed while lying on the bed. He knew that the hallucination was logical, but he really didn't know what to do about Yang Na's birthday wish.

After what had happened the last time, the hospital would never let him out. He would even be subjected to numerous rounds of assessment just for them to release the straps binding him.

Going to Yang Na's university? Forget it. He couldn't even leave his room.

"You were able to converse quite naturally with her today. Want to try talking with a doctor?" asked Nurse Wang.

However, due to being annoyed, Li Huowang decided to ignore Nurse Wang.

"Young man, even I was touched by the relationship between you two. You can't disappoint such a girl now, can you? Don't give up on your treatment," advised Nurse Wang.

"This is a private matter. You and I are nowhere near close enough to be discussing this," said Li Huowang, feeling extremely irritated.

"You don't know me, but I know you. I did everything to take care of you while you were strapped in, including bathing you, changing the catheter, and even changing the poop bucket. Heck, I never even treated my own mother that nicely. But at least we haven't had to flip you over. Your body is still strong and never developed any pressure ulcers. On the other hand, the patient on bed number nineteen needs to be flipped every few hours or so."

Nurse Wang happily continued to talk to him whether Li Huowang liked it or not.

But this only further irritated Li Huowang..

"I'm tired, let me rest," said Li Huowang.

"Young man, you are almost one with the bed by now. How could you still be tired? Just talk to me for a couple of minutes. This hospital is very unfriendly to us. They don't even allow us to look at our phones during our shifts. If it weren't for the pay and the benefits, I would've long since changed jobs. Are you sure you don't want to see a doctor today? What do you think Yang Na would say if she knew about it?" said Nurse Wang.

Li Huowang finally relented when he thought about how Yang

Na would feel. “Fine, bring the doctor in.”

Even if this was just a hallucination, he didn’t want Yang Na to be sad.

“Oops, I forgot that today is a Sunday. The doctor is on break today. Would you be free tomorrow?” said Nurse Wang.

“Are you fucking with me?” At this point, Li Huowang was starting to hate the nurse.

“I wouldn’t dare. After all, your mother is very fierce. I don’t want her to complain about me to my supervisors. The doctor really is on break today; but, I will let them know tomorrow. Will you be fine with that? I’ve heard the doctor say that your illness is quite unique. They even wanted to name it after you.”

At this point, Li Huowang closed his eyes and just tuned Nurse Wang out. He was done with Nurse Wang.

Amidst Nurse Wang’s voice, Li Huowang soon fell asleep.

When he woke up, he once again found himself on the wooden bed, his body tied up with chains and covered with a blanket. Seeing this, he sighed in relief.

Then, Li Huowang turned to stare at Bai Lingmiao. At this moment, she was sleeping on the side. For some reason, he suddenly felt like Bai Lingmiao’s face was being superimposed with Yang Na’s.

But then he reminded himself that the hallucination was nothing but a fake. Now, he needed to treasure Bai Lingmiao.

This was his reality.

Numerous thoughts ran through Li Huowang’s mind.

Bai Lingmiao wants the same thing that Yang Na wished for.

At that moment, Bai Lingmiao’s eyes gently fluttered as she woke up. When she saw that Li Huowang’s eyes were clear once more, Bai Lingmiao smiled. “Senior Li, it’s only the fourth section of the night. Let me remove your chains and then we can continue sleeping.”

Having said that, she removed the blanket on his body before quickly untying Li Huowang.

When her face came close to his, Li Huowang suddenly asked her. “Were you envious of the bride today?”

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao blushed but didn’t deny it. “Yeah, I was very envious. Senior Li, will you... marry me when we reach my home? You do not dislike me right?”

Li Huowang just gave her a gentle kiss as an answer.

On the other hand, Bai Lingmiao was clearly surprised by his actions and froze up.

Then, Li Huowang sat up and pulled her into the warm blanket. The next day, both of them woke up very late.

Chapter 188 - Soldiers

There was a well within the village. There was even a fireplace close to the guest house. Thus, all they needed to do was to place their pot onto the fireplace and they could easily cook a meal.

As he drank the wild vegetable soup and ate the grain bun, Li Huowang felt the ulcer on his lips slowly receding.

At that moment, Li Huowang asked Gao Zhijian about the previous night. "Did anything come close to us last night?"

"N-no. No one was here," replied Gao Zhijian.

Li Huowang glanced at Bun and saw that the dog was fine as well. He recalled the strange wedding from yesterday.

Even though everything seemed normal, Li Huowang felt that the gaze of the man was off. He wasn't sure when he had obtained the power to determine one's emotions through their gaze, but he could tell that the man who was staring at him yesterday was doing so not out of curiosity, but out of wariness.

"We will rest for today and depart tomorrow morning. Puppy, since we don't have enough food for our travels, go and gather some rations for our trip today. Gao Zhijian and Chun Xiaoman, both of you can go with him as well. Don't be careless," instructed Li Huowang.

"Sure, leave this to me, the great Cao Cao!" answered Puppy.

Li Huowang glanced at Bai Lingmiao, who was whispering something to Chun Xiaoman, before continuing with his meal.

Given that this was one of their rare rest days, Li Huowang took the chance to practice the Fiery Scripture.

However, even now he had no idea how to gather or invoke the feeling of compassion within his heart.

Just as he had barely managed to gather the white wax into a pile, he suddenly detected someone staring at him.

Li Huowang quickly stowed away the Fiery Scripture and opened the window, only to find the Village Protector sniffing and smiling at him.

Is it him? Maybe I can get some information from him.

Li Huowang immediately ran down and took some of the grain buns from the kitchen before approaching the Village Protector.

Li Huowang shook the grain buns in front of him and saw the man was staring intensely at the buns. “I will give you a bun for every question you answer. Deal?”

“Alright!” The stupid Village Protector nodded.

“What’s your name?” asked Li Huowang.

“I have no idea, but my mother said my surname is Hua,” replied the Village Protector.

“Alright, here’s your bun.”

The Village Protector was so happy about receiving a bun that his snot flew out.

“Here’s another question. Who was the man hitting the gong yesterday? What is his job?” asked Li Huowang.

“That’s Hou Laoer. He’s a soldier. His brother, Hou Laoda, was the one getting married so he recently came back here,” replied the Village Protector.

“A soldier? For the kingdom of Hou Shu?” mumbled Li Huowang.

That means he’s working with the kingdom!

Li Huowang had been here for quite a while, but other than the soldiers guarding the borders, he had never met an official or a representative of the kingdom.

Now he was quite curious. How did the officials govern their countries that were riddled with evil beings in this bizarre world?

The Village Protector did not answer him but stared at the grain bun.

Seeing this, Li Huowang gave him another bun and the Village Protector once again started talking, "I don't know what kind of soldier he is nor his rank. All I know is that he's a soldier and that he wields a large spear. The spear is so heavy that I can't even lift it."

Hearing this, Li Huowang frowned and glanced in the direction of the Hou family's house. It was just further up the path, with the stone lions protecting the gates.

"Where is he now?" asked Li Huowang.

"He left. After Hou Laoda's wedding ceremony was over, he directly left," replied the Village Protector.

Hearing that Hou Laoer had already left, Li Huowang sighed in relief. Still, he would rather face a human than some evil being.

Li Huowang didn't know if he would cross paths with that man again, but if his hunch was right, then the state officials were probably very busy with the disappearance of 'decay' from the world.

Just then, an old voice came from behind, "Village Protector, did that man give you food?"

Li Huowang recognized the old man; it was the father of the groom from yesterday's wedding. The old man was still wearing his hat and coat from yesterday.

"Greetings, good sir," greeted Li Huowang.

"Aiya, you were already our guest yesterday. There's no need to be so polite," said the old man.

While the two were talking, the Village Protector saw that there were no more grain buns to be had and left.

Staring at the Village Protector's dirty back, Li Huowang asked the old man, "Sir, I've heard that the Village Protectors can protect a village from disasters. Is this true? Did he help this village before?"

Even though Gao Zhijian had just mentioned it in a passing remark, it was something entirely possible within this bizarre world.

“It’s just a story that we came up with so that a mentally retarded person without any family wouldn’t die from hunger. Anyone smart enough would be able to tell,” said the old man.

“I see. You must be quite kind then.”

“I’m afraid not. Our ancestors have told us that a single village can only contain a single Village Protector. After all, we can’t feed too many people for free. That said, will you be passing by Ji City? I recall that you are offering escort services, correct?” asked the old man.

Li Huowang was surprised. From the looks of it, the old man hadn’t just found him by chance, and had been actively searching for him.

“My eldest daughter is staying there. Could you pass a message to her? I need you to tell her that her brother just got married and so we will be expecting a new addition to our family. How much silver would that require?” inquired the old man.

“No need for payment. You already invited us to dinner last night. There’s no reason for us to request payment just to pass on a message.”

After hearing Li Huowang’s words, the old man did not continue insisting. He then told Li Huowang the address of his eldest daughter.

After remembering the address, Li Huowang suddenly recalled about Hou Laoer. “I thought your second son just left? Why did you not ask him to pass the message instead? He should arrive faster while traveling on his horse compared to my carriage.”

“My second son is rushing back to his camp. How could he possibly go to Ji City? In fact, it took him such a long time just to appeal to leave his post for two days. Sigh, I hope they are not going to war again,” lamented the old man.

“Old man, what is the rank of your second son within the camp? He must be someone of a high rank,” asked Li Huowang.

Li Huowang’s question was something that the old man loved to hear. He purposely spoke in a louder voice as he started boasting, “Of course! He’s a Small-arms soldier.”

“A Small-arms soldier? What is that?” asked Li Huowang.

“Oh, you don’t know? Well, I didn’t know in the beginning either. But he told me that the Small-arms soldiers are essentially the guards that stand beside the general. How could a soldier guarding the general not be someone of high-ranking? Look at my house, my ox-carriage, and the two stone lions by the door of my house. All of those were gifts from my second son,” boasted the old man.

Chapter 189 - On Their Journey

As he heard a father brag about his own son, Li Huowang gradually learned more and more about the life of Hou Laoer.

It was quite inspirational. The Hou family hadn't really been that rich in the past. They were just as poor as the others. Since the few acres of land they owned wasn't enough to feed their entire family, the second son was forced to leave the family in search of a job.

Li Huowang was suspicious about the 'general' that the old man kept talking about; from the looks of it, the old man thought that a general was the only high-ranking official within a camp.

"Sigh. It was even worse in the past. We didn't even have enough food to feed ourselves, and only had a single pair of pants. Back then, whoever wanted to head out got to wear that single pair," said the old man.

As he heard the old man's words, Li Huowang nodded.

After talking for a period of time, the old man was finally satisfied with his boasting and slowly walked back to his home.

Seeing this, Li Huowang sighed and turned back. He was glad that the old man took his leave.

After having learned so much, Li Huowang was no longer as cautious about Hou Laoer as before.

It wasn't because of his rank and identity, but because of the fact that Hou Laoer had really left the place. There was no way he could come and disturb Li Huowang anymore.

Just then, Li Huowang saw Puppy who was on his way back from purchasing some rations.

“Senior Li, look what I bought! It’s a map drawn on leather!” said Puppy.

That night also passed by peacefully. At dawn, all of them departed with full spirits.

As the wheels of the carriage rolled slowly along the path, the dunes around them slowly disappeared. Gradually the path became uneven and stones started replacing the sand.

Soon, smaller mountains made of stones and rock started to appear here and there. Thanks to them blocking the wind, Li Huowang and the rest were no longer buffeted by the sand. There was even some short brown grass growing near the sides of the path.

“We will walk through here before taking a turn here,” said Li Huowang as he pointed at the map and stopped at an icon representing a town. “If we do not get lost, then we will arrive at Ji City over here. As long as we reach there, we will be able to fulfill our escort mission, and we would have traveled halfway through Hou Shu. It looks like Hou Shu really is a much smaller kingdom, at least compared to the previous two.”

As Li Huowang was explaining all this, he felt someone tugging on his sleeves. “Senior Li, someone is in front of us.”

Hearing this, Li Huowang raised his head and saw that there was indeed someone.

As they got closer, they saw that it was an old man who was walking with a bamboo cane. He looked like a scholar. Even though he was old, his body was still fit and energetic. He showed no signs of tiredness despite the old bamboo basket he was carrying on his back.

At that moment, hearing the sound of horse hooves, Jin Shanzhao turned around. When he saw a group of people wearing black veils, he immediately stepped aside.

Who are these guys? Especially that young man in the red Daoist robes; he's even going so far as to cover half of his face with a coin veil. Looks like these are people I shouldn't mess around with. I guess I should hide then?

Jin Shanzhao analyzed the situation quickly and calmly. He wanted to slow down and let the group pass by first.

However, he had never expected the young Daoist to be the one to approach him and start talking.

"Old man, could you please lend us your map so that we can verify our map is correct?" asked the red-robed Daoist.

Hearing this, Jin Shanzhao rummaged through his bamboo basket and took out a paper map. "This map is hand drawn by me. I've been traveling around for many years and I'm quite confident that my map is accurate. You can have it if you want."

"Thanks, but there's no need for that. I just want to compare it with my own map. Once we are done, I will return it to you," replied the red-robed Daoist.

Jin Shanzhao was slightly relieved to hear how friendly the young man was. The young Daoist was by no means rude either.

"Daoist, where are you going? I'm just asking out of curiosity, maybe you are heading in the same direction as me," asked Jin Shanzhao.

"We are on an escort mission to Ji City," replied the red-robed Daoist.

However, Jin Shanzhao did not believe them. How could an escort not even know their own route? It was a blatant lie.

"Oh? You are on an escort mission? That's rare to hear. I've heard Daoists usually don't bother with mundane tasks like these," probed Jin Shanzhao.

"Even I have to eat, so I might as well earn some money along the way. Old man, why are you out here in the mountains, all by yourself? Isn't it dangerous?" asked the red-robed Daoist.

Jin Shanzhao chuckled when he saw how the Daoist was trying to probe him. Just as he was thinking about what lie to tell them, a massive rock suddenly rolled down from the mountain and crashed into the path. At the same time, the sound of horse hooves suddenly rang out from all around them!

Jin Shanzhao was shocked to see that they were being surrounded by bandits riding on horses. “Oh no! We have been trapped by the bandits!”

But when he turned around, he was surprised to see that the young Daoist was completely calm.

He must have a plan if he's able to remain this calm.

Thinking about this, Jin Shanzhao immediately hid behind the young Daoist while the bandits approached them from all directions.

Tak tak tak~

As the sound of horse hooves got closer, they saw an imposing bandit appear in front of them.

“Shoulders together; I’m not an outlier. Is the spring book open?” spoke the red-robed Daoist.

Hm?

Jin Shanzhao was once more surprised by Li Huowang.

To think that he knew the codewords used by those belonging to the Jianghu. He must be someone extraordinary.

But just when Jin Shanzhao had thought that the bandits would reply to the codeword, the one-eyed bandit at the front brandished his blade and shouted, “Go! Kill them all!”

Immediately, the horses all around them resumed their charge. Unexpectedly, the bandits did not even bother with the codewords and directly attacked them.

Seeing this, instead of thinking about what had just happened, Jin Shanzhao immediately ran up the boulder as he tried to climb past it; he wanted to try and escape while the two forces clashed with each other.

However, just as Jin Shanzhao managed to climb up the boulder, he heard the sound of fighting slowly dying down behind him.

When he turned around, Jin Shanzhao got one last surprise for the day. He saw that the bandits had all been defeated!

At this moment, the ground was littered with the corpses of the bandits and their horses. On the other hand, the group by the young Daoist was completely unharmed besides some dents on the carriage!

What the... What did I miss?

Li Huowang ignored the old man as he placed his sword on the neck of one of the last surviving bandits. The bandit had already lost one of its arms.

“Do you not know the rules? Why didn’t you even answer the codeword?” demanded Li Huowang.

“Fucker! You dare to kill my brothers?! You are dead!”

Splurt!

One of the bandit’s ears was cut off just like that.

Meanwhile, Jin Shanzhao was horrified.

Yikes! So he had just been feigning to be a kind man before this. He didn’t even bat an eye when killing all those bandits!

Chapter 190 - Bandits

The bandit held his wound and howled in pain.

Seeing this, Li Huowang was tired and couldn't be bothered to question him any more.

Just as he was about to kill the bandit, someone shouted, "Senior Li! Look at what this is!"

Sun Baolu revealed something. Li Huowang glanced at the item and saw that it was a well-polished tobacco pipe.

The smoke pipe and the bag of tobacco looked quite familiar.

"Senior Li, this smoke pipe and tobacco bag belong to Troupe Leader Lu! They are definitely his. I remember him lending them to me a few times while we were traveling together," said Sun Baolu.

Hearing this, Li Huowang checked the smoke pipe and his face immediately became gloomy.

It was very likely that the Lu family had been captured by these bandits.

He showed the smoke pipe to the bandit in front of him and asked in a voice that grew increasingly cold, "Where did you get this? Did you recently rob a group of performers?"

"Kill me if you can! I am a man and I will never sell out my brothers!" The bandit roared defiantly.

Li Huowang was infuriated, but instead of becoming angry, he smiled. He released the clasp on the goatskin pouch on his waist.

Kling~

At that moment, the sound of metal clanking together was heard as various torture tools revealed themselves. Li Huowang had been taking such good care of them that they were shining brightly from being polished regularly.

"You must be dreaming if you want me to kill you," said Li

Huowang.

For the next few minutes, Li Huowang slowly ground the bandit's fingers, causing the latter to howl and sob in pain. His voice echoed throughout the stony mountains.

As this was happening, the rest of them all turned around; they couldn't bear to continue watching.

Finally, when the bandit had his entire left hand ground down to the stump of his wrist, he relented. "I will speak! Our leader's mother recently celebrated her 70th birthday, and so he purposefully caught a group of performers to perform for her. They are still up on the mountain!"

Hearing this, Li Huowang threw the bloody torture tools in front of the bandit, causing the latter to shrink back in fear.

"Get up. If you don't want to be tortured again, then bring us to your camp," said Li Huowang.

The bandit no longer dared to act so tough. He just stood up and led them to their camp, just like a defeated dog.

Just then, Sun Baolu, who was rubbing the blood off his sword using a corpse spoke out in a voice filled with hesitation, "Senior Li, maybe we should just leave. We have no relationship with the Lu family and it would be better for us to not get into any more trouble..."

Hearing those words, Li Huowang gave a stern glare to Sun Baolu, causing the latter to avert his gaze.

"I am Li Huowang, not Dan Yangzi. It would've been fine if we hadn't found out about it, but now that we know that they were kidnapped, we will go and save them. Plus, I hate people who attack us out of nowhere. I'm gonna go and give them a piece of my mind," declared Li Huowang. He was pissed that a group of bandits dared to attack them. At this point, he no longer wanted to live within the shadows.

There were definitely monsters out there that he shouldn't offend, but not just anyone had the ability to command his respect. He was more than happy to kill those who tried to kill them for no reason.

At that moment, they turned their horse carriage around and followed the bandit back to their camp.

“Safe travels. I hope we will meet again,” said a voice behind them.

Li Huowang turned around and saw that it was the old man who had already crawled past the boulder and was on the other side of the path. After a moment, he waved his arm before continuing with their journey.

After forgetting the old man, Li Huowang focused on what he should do next.

The name of the bandit they were following was Liu Waizui. Thanks to him, Li Huowang quickly learned about how their organization operated as well as what their organizational structure was.

Their leader was called Da Jinlong, and he controlled the area around here. They weren’t bandits who wandered the lands, but instead had a nearby camp with a proper structure.

“What does your organizational structure look like?” Li Huowang asked.

According to Liu Waizui, there were various roles and names for all of them .

Those in charge of robbing others were called “knife heads” and those in charge of managing their resources were called “grain stations”.

The guards within their camp were called “fragrant water”, and those in charge of strategy were called “stack turners.”

Those who kidnapped rich people were called “granaries,” while those who blackmailed people to pay money were called “flower tongues.”

Those masquerading as normal villagers to collect information were called “planted sticks.”

And finally, those who were in charge of writing blackmail letters and other documents were called “wordsmiths”.

Their chain of command was also quite simple. The leader was at the top, followed by the second-in-command, the third-in-command, the various department heads, and finally the ones who did the odd jobs.

The organizational structure of the entire bandit camp was quite rigid and clear.

“You guys are nothing but bandits. Why do you have such a structure? How many people do you have in your camp?” asked Li Huowang.

“I never counted, but probably a few hundred people,” replied Liu Waizui. At this point, he had given up on fighting back as he told Li Huowang everything the latter wanted to know.

“How strong is your leader? What kind of powers does he have?” asked Li Huowang.

“He doesn’t have any supernatural powers; he’s just big and strong. He uses the hammer as a weapon,” responded Liu Waizui.

A few hundred people, and no supernatural powers. So just normal bandits...

Li Huowang carefully gauged the difference in strength between his group and the bandits.

Since the bandits had initially surrounded them while on horsebacks, and Li Huowang’s group was walking on foot, it was almost night time by the time they finally arrived near the bandit camp.

Soon, they were already halfway up the mountain. There were several torches lit up on the mountain, indicating the location of the camp.

Ji ji~ Ji~

At that moment, the sudden sound of a bird rang out from the side of the forest.

Then, Li Huowang kicked Liu Waizui. “Tell them that we are here to talk. It would be best if we can talk this out peacefully or there will definitely be blood. You’ve seen how we fight, so just think about how many more of your brothers will die by our hands.”

Hearing this, Liu Waizui nodded in defeat and whistled, his whistle resembling the sound of a bird.

Soon, the forest came alive with the chirping sounds.

And so, none of the bandits stopped them during the rest of their trip.

They soon arrived at a cave on the mountain with several fierce-looking bandits glaring at Li Huowang.

“Brat, you got guts! You dare to come and find us even after killing our brothers?” roared one of them.

However, Li Huowang just ignored the normal bandits and directly walked inside.

Soon, they arrived in a large hall. Here, Li Huowang saw three big burly men eating meat and drinking wine as they cursed and laughed. When the sound surrounding them slowly died down, all three of them sized up Li Huowang.

“A sharp target? Or a stinky target?”[\[1\]](#) asked the bald man first.

However, Li Huowang was too tired to bother with the codewords at this point. “Since I can come up here unharmed, you should know just how strong I am. Hand over the group of performers and I will overlook your sins.”

“Hahahaha!” The three men laughed.

Jiang!

Seeing this, Li Huowang unsheathed his sword and a dense killing intent filled up the entire hall.

1. A real Daoist or a fake one? 📖

Chapter 191 - Military Family

Li Huowang pulled out his sword, and a dense murderous intent filled the entire hall, making everyone present feel as if they were suddenly at the heart of a battlefield.

The sound of swords being drawn echoed continuously. The bandits wielded various weapons, struggling to charge forward from all directions while resisting the murderous intent.

However, some of the bandits amongst them could not bear it any longer, and fear crept up within their eyes.

When the sword was sheathed again, the surroundings quickly became calm.

By now, the laughter of the bandit leader had vanished completely. The three men who had been drinking and eating, were now staring at Li Huowang.

Amidst this tension, the bald man, who sat at the head of the table, picked up a fried peanut and popped it into his mouth.

On the other hand, a broad-faced bandit with a smile on his face immediately stepped forward to mediate. “Esteemed Daoist, please don’t be hasty. Things can be discussed calmly. Being able to meet like this can be considered fate, and we can all sit down together to have a drink.”

Li Huowang was not intimidated by them, and so he went over to have a seat, and then started to pick up and eat the meat that they had been eating.

On the other hand, the round-faced man acting as a mediator now stood beside Li Huowang, acting as though Li Huowang was one of his associates. He took out a paper fan with a landscape painting on it, and then gently fanned Li Huowang several times. Then, he closed the fan and pointed it toward a bald man sitting at the Eight Immortals table.

“This is our leader, Da Jinlong,” said the round-faced man.

“This is our second-in-command, Xia Shanhu,” continued the round-faced man as he pointed at the bandit wearing a tiger-skin coat, causing the latter to snort coldly.

However, he did not introduce the final person.

The last man at the table had a gloomy expression as he lifted his bowl and took a big gulp. Apart from his fierce appearance, he had a distinctive look; there was the word “Qiu” tattooed on the left side of his forehead.

All three men had frames that were significantly larger than the rest of the bandits.

Then, the round-faced man tapped his nose with his fan and said, “I am Liu Xiang, the village calligrapher. It’s a pleasure to meet you, Daoist.”

“Is the play troupe still around? How many of them have died?” asked Li Huowang directly.

Just as the bandit wearing the tiger-skin coat was about to speak in an agitated voice, he was silenced by a look from Da Jinlong. Then, with the wave of his hand, a few disheveled-looking people were brought out.

These individuals were the Lu Family Troupe, who they hadn’t seen in a while.

Upon seeing Li Huowang sitting together with the bandit leaders, Lu Zhuangyuan immediately knelt down and started kowtowing repeatedly. He cried pitifully, “Daoist! Save us, Daoist!”

Li Huowang used his tongue to push out the shreds of meat from between his teeth, and glanced across the bandits’ faces. Then, he stood up as he prepared to head out of the cave.

Seeing this, Lu Zhuangyuan was overjoyed and had tears rolling down his eyes, and even wanted his son to join him in kowtowing.

“Hold on~ Did I say that you can leave?” An arrogant voice sounded, causing the bandits around them to immediately block off Li Huowang’s path.

When Li Huowang turned back, he saw that the person who had spoken was not the so-called leader Da Jinlong, but the gloomy-looking man with the “Qiu” character tattooed on his forehead.

He tapped the table with his thick knuckles as he spoke, “Come and drink with us. Let’s put aside the family troupe for now. What relationship do you have with the You Family of Si Qi?”

“You Family of Si Qi?” questioned Li Huowang.

The man chuckled upon seeing Li Huowang’s confusion. He bit on a soybean and drank a mouthful of wine. “Stop pretending. That sword belongs to You Zixiong, right? He wouldn’t have given you that sword for no reason.”

At that moment, Li Huowang noticed the man eyeing the sword on his back, and slowly started to piece things together. It seemed that this sword held more secrets than he had initially thought.

After observing the faces of the trio, Li Huowang felt something was amiss. This person spoke haughtily, and did not seem to show any respect to the bandit leaders of this village.

“And who are you? The third leader of this village?” asked Li Huowang.

“Third leader, my ass! I am Wang Deqiu!” That person suddenly exploded before directly smacking a palm onto Li Huowang’s chest, sending him flying.

The force of this blow was tremendous; it nearly sent Li Huowang flying outside.

As he saw this, Gao Zhijian, with his tall and wide stature, quickly rushed up and firmly caught Li Huowang.

At that moment, Li Huowang clutched his chest due to the excruciating pain. He was instantly filled with anger, and directly drew his sword and charged at that person.

On the other hand, Wang Deqiu just stood there with an astonished look on his face as he watched Li Huowang charging toward him.

This person took one of my strikes, and his heart hasn't shattered? He must be rather skilled.

“This is ridiculous! You are messing with the wrong people!” shouted Da Jinlong as he kicked aside the Eight Immortals table, and then pulled out a mace to meet Li Huowang head-on.

With this confrontation, chaos erupted all around them as the bandits all rushed in as well.

Originally, it seemed like there was a wide disparity in the strengths of the two groups, and that Li Huowang's side would definitely lose.

However, things didn't turn out like that.

Gao Zhijian roared and swung his rod forcefully, sending three people flying away.

Just as two bandits with daggers were about to flank him, a pair of hands with long black fingernails embedded themselves into their necks.

Seeing this, a few of the bandits who were standing further away raised their crossbows. In response, Chun Xiaoman opened the Profound Records and sliced off two of her fingernails along with the skin and flesh around them.

As she cried out loud, the fingernails were sent flying toward the bandits who were holding the crossbows. Everyone who stood between them was decapitated.

Li Huowang did not pay attention to what was happening behind him. His focus was entirely on the three people before him; they were the core of this bandit hideout.

Clang!

Xia Shanhu's huge ring knife clashed against Li Huowang's longsword, the huge force behind the clash pushing Li Huowang a few steps back. However, this was the limit of what Xia Shanhu could do.

Whoosh!

At that moment, Li Huowang's sharp blade easily sliced through the large ring knife, before continuing toward Xia Shanhu's face.

"Deputy!" Da Jinlong roared as he rushed in to help out his brother, but Wang Deqiu was already one step ahead of him.

Wang Deqiu wielded a pitch-black straight sword, and left behind a phantom image as he sliced it toward Li Huowang's hand.

Clang!

A clear and metallic sound rang out, and then a dent appeared on the edge of the straight sword.

As he saw this, Li Huowang retreated and changed targets.

These three individuals were clearly more skilled than Li Huowang; however, their weakness lay in their weapons. Before long, they all broke in the face of Li Huowang's assault.

In response, the three of them started to find ways to restrict him; they did not want to engage in direct combat against Li Huowang.

When the pressure on them finally reduced, a woman wearing a red veil came out to help them.

"Dong dong dong~ When the whip cracks, the drum sounds. The Immortals are welcomed, and one's inner spirituality must first be connected. Three wolf masters and three hurdles..."

As the chanting rang out, three wolf heads quickly rose from under the red veil, and bit onto Da Jinlong's neck, causing the latter to angrily raise his mace and strike down the wolf heads underneath the red veil.

The wolf heads were beaten and shrank in size, but they rapidly reformed and bit down once again, biting so fiercely that they even exposed the bones. The spray of blood that stained the red veil gave it an even deeper crimson color.

On the other hand, Li Huowang used this moment of respite to slice off Xia Shanhu's head, and then looked toward Wang Deqiu as blood trickled down his sword.

"They say that there are rules in this green forest, but I've realized that it's all nonsense. The only rule in this world is the sword in your hands!" said Li Huowang.

Wang Deqiu smiled despite this dire situation. "Yes, there are rules, but it depends on the person to follow them. People from Hou Shu won't follow the rules when facing the You Family."

"What do you mean?" asked Li Huowang.

"You Family of Si Qi is a military family. How many people from Hou Shu have they killed? So do you really think that we will let you stroll through here so casually?" asked Wang Deqiu.

"Huh, when did bandits start being concerned with politics? If you're talking about that, then why did you rebel in the first place?" mocked Li Huowang.

Hearing the disdain contained in Li Huowang's words, Wang Deqiu smiled but did not reply.

As he looked at that smiling face, Li Huowang's expression gradually turned . He had realized the identity of the other party. "Hold on, you are not bandits! You are soldiers!"

"Hehe, bandits and soldiers, is there a need for such clear distinctions? Isn't it all about the business of killing people?"

Chapter 192 - Clean Up

Having said that, Wang Deqiu used his right heel to fling a knife lying on the floor into his hand before charging toward Li Huowang without the slightest bit of hesitation.

Clang!

The sword and knife clashed, producing crisp sounds of collision.

As they continued to fight, Li Huowang felt pulse after pulse enter his body from the You Family sword, allowing him to slowly overpower Wang Deqiu. However, the latter's reckless fighting style also posed a great challenge to Li Huowang.

With another resounding clang, the noises stopped abruptly. At this moment, the knife had fractured, its pieces rolling on the ground.

Originally, Li Huowang had planned to spare him so that he could ask the man some questions. However, the sword in his hand caused him to be filled with an insatiable amount of bloodlust causing him to not be able to stop himself.

As Wang Deqiu raised his broken knife to stab it toward Li Huowang's abdomen, Li Huowang also pierced his sword into Wang Deqiu's chest.

"Just who are you?!" Li Huowang gritted his teeth and stared at the person before him.

Wang Deqiu didn't seem to be the slightest bit troubled when faced with death. He tried his best to gather some saliva and spit it at Li Huowang's face, but the bloody spittle simply slid down his chin weakly.

At that moment, Wang Deqiu mustered all his strength and shouted in a hoarse voice, "Bastard of the You Family, you will never get your hands on Hou Shu! As long as we are around, not an inch of Hou Shu will be lost!”

“How many times must I repeat myself? I am not from the You Family of Si Qi! This sword was given to me by someone else!” roared Li Huowang.

However, at this point, Wang Deqiu could not hear anything as warm blood flowed out from his chest, and his body gradually slumped onto the ground.

Panting heavily, Li Huowang gritted his teeth and pulled out the broken knife embedded in his abdomen.

Next, he pressed his hand onto the wound, and looked at Wang Deqiu’s body again. He cursed silently under his breath, and then went to help the others.

At that moment, the entire village was in chaos. But since the leader of the bandits had already died, the remaining brats didn’t last long. They were eventually defeated by Li Huowang’s group, and ran back toward the depths of their cave in a panicked state.

Just as Li Huowang and the others were slaughtering the remaining few bandits, a rumbling sound rang out. Immediately, an area of the cave crumbled, and then a stone wall appeared between the two groups.

Bang bang!

Gao Zhijian whacked his iron rod onto the wall forcefully, causing sparks to appear with each strike.

“Alright, stop knocking on it. It’s obvious that they were prepared and have now sealed this way,” said Li Huowang.

Hearing this, Gao Zhijian sheepishly put down his hands.

On the other hand, Li Huowang sheathed his sword, and instantly felt his mind grow clearer. He let out a deep breath slowly, then shook his head. When he looked back toward the hall, he felt rather vexed upon seeing the corpses that littered the ground. So many people had died once again.

Truthfully speaking, he did not want to kill anyone. Yet, more and more people were dying at his hands.

Li Huowang glanced down at Wang Deqiu's body, then reached out and tore a large piece of clothing from one of the nearby corpses and used it to rewrap the You Family's sword.

In the end, all of this had happened because of this sword. Li Huowang had finally understood this.

It was same during the marriage function where Hou Laoer had recognized this sword, and mistakenly believed him to be someone from the military family of Si Qi.

And now, he had provoked someone like Wang Deqiu over, leading to all this trouble.

In Hou Shu, there are definitely many people with grievances against the You Family. I should be careful not to expose this sword casually.

Also, we must up our pace in the upcoming period. When the military families of Hou Shu learn that Wang Deqiu is dead, they will definitely not let this matter slide easily. At that time, even more people will be sent over; I can't let them find me.

Even though Li Huowang had won quite easily this time around, he dared not face off against the entirety of Hou Shu; that would undoubtedly be a disaster.

Meanwhile, Chun Xiaoman held her sword as she walked around the cave. Though her chest was still heaving, she was inflicting a finishing blow to anyone still gasping for breath, preventing any of them from launching any surprise attacks.

As she walked by Li Huowang, a hand reached out. "Give it to me."

"Senior Li, give you... What?" Chun Xiaoman pretended to be puzzled.

"Stop pretending. Pass me the Profound Records. That is not something that you can handle," said Li Huowang.

Li Huowang obviously knew what she had been using when he saw her profusely bleeding finger.

Hearing this, Chun Xiaoman eyed Bai Lingmiao, then covered her bosom and took a few steps back, her eyes unusually determined. "Senior Li, this is not the one you had before. I found this on someone else, and it belongs to me."

As she saw Li Huowang approach her, she slowly retreated.

"You don't understand what you are dealing with. You cannot handle it!" said Li Huowang, his tone becoming stern.

Backed up against the wall with no room to retreat, Xiaoman instinctively drew her sword.

Seeing this, Li Huowang couldn't help but chuckle. "We've been through so many life and death situations together, and now you're drawing your sword against me?"

These words caused Chun Xiaoman's eyes to show some hesitation, but determination quickly replaced it. "Sorry, Senior Li, but I must have my own weapon."

"Alright! Since you're so capable, then you can go out on your own! Why are you still in our group!" roared Li Huowang.

Chun Xiaoman's body trembled slightly, and tears started to well up in her eyes. To her currently, this was the most important thing.

Bai Lingmiao quickly appeared between the two, her expression worried. "Senior Li, don't be like that. We're all one family; let's talk it out."

"I'll repeat myself. Pass me the Profound Records!" said Li Huowang.

With reddened eyes, Chun Xiaoman gritted her teeth and took out the Profound Records.

When Bai Lingmiao saw that Li Huowang focused on the red bamboo slip, she quickly pulled Chun Xiaoman to a corner. "Sister Xiaoman, Senior Li is right. That thing is very dangerous, and it will hurt you each time you use it. You shouldn't have it with you."

This statement caused a burst of anger to appear inside her, and she said indignantly, "You know that it's dangerous, and yet you still support him? Are you out of your mind? Can't you distinguish right from wrong yourself?"

"But Sister Xiaoman, Senior Li is different from you. Even if his hand is cut off, it can regrow, but yours can't," argued Bai Lingmiao.

Hearing this, Chun Xiaoman looked at Bai Lingmiao disappointedly, and then walked away with her sword.

Bai Lingmiao anxiously followed her. "Sister Xiaoman, we are still good sisters, right? You won't ignore me, will you?"

Chun Xiaoman just lowered her head and directly walked out of the cave. She didn't want to be entangled with Bai Lingmiao right now.

However, under Bai Lingmiao's constant pleading, her heart gradually softened.

"I know you like him, but there are some things for which you can't always depend on him. That will only lead him further astray, ultimately causing him harm," said Chun Xiaoman.

Just as Xiaoman was about to continue speaking, some choked sobs rang out faintly, causing Chun Xiaoman to instantly draw her sword and stand before Bai Lingmiao.

Chapter 193 - Sympathy

In the hall, Li Huowang examined the Profound Records and gently ran his fingers across it. Only when this item returned to his waist again did he finally feel a sense of relief.

Even though each use of the Profound Records required one to pay a substantial cost, it always proved itself to be invaluable in critical moments.

After all, enduring some torture was better than death.

“Daoist! Daoist! You are the living protector of our Lu Family! Without your help, our whole family would have perished! And I... I on the other hand acted like I was possessed and actually ran away! I... deserve to be punished!” said Lu Zhuangyuan. As he spoke, Lu Zhuangyuan raised his dirty hand and prepared to slap himself across the face.

“Alright, alright. Are your people okay?” asked Li Huowang, stopping him.

Lu Zhuangyuan stopped reluctantly upon hearing Li Huowang’s intervention. “That bandit, Da Jinlong enjoys theater, and so we are not dead... But... my daughter-in-law has suffered quite a lot...”

At that moment, as if suddenly realizing something, Lu Zhuangyuan’s body quivered, and he said resolutely, “Daoist, from now on, we won’t go anywhere but follow you! We will never forget the debt of gratitude we owe you for saving us! From now, our Lu Family Troupe will become your personal theater troupe!”

“What do I need a theater troupe for? I can’t understand any of it,” said Li Huowang. However, even before he could finish his words, Lu Zhuangyuan knelt down emotionally, and started kowtowing repeatedly.

“Alright, follow us if you want. But we can’t stay here any longer. Do you still have your theater props? Pack everything up and prepare to leave,” said Li Huowang. After having spent so much time together, Li Huowang had long since figured out their intentions—they wanted to have him as their bodyguard. However, he had a feeling that they would be useful later.

Upon hearing this, Lu Zhuangyuan immediately got up from the ground. “They are still around. Ooo! I also know where they keep their horses! I’ll bring all of them here now!”

To show his value to Li Huowang, Lu Zhuangyuan moved quite quickly and led his family members toward the nearby entrance.

After dealing with Lu Zhuangyuan, Li Huowang looked toward the direction of the tunnel that Xiaoman had just entered with a complex look on his face.

After a moment, he turned toward Gao Zhijian and said, “Go inside and hurry them. It’s not safe to stay in this bandit hideout. Tell them to hurry; we’re going to leave.”

Gao Zhijian nodded and tossed aside the iron rod in his hands. He then picked up the mace dropped by one of the bandits and carried it on his shoulder as he walked toward the tunnel.

However, before he could enter, Chun Xiaoman and Bai Lingmiao walked out with reddened eyes. It seemed like they had been crying not too long ago.

“What’s the matter?” Li Huowang frowned.

Chun Xiaoman bent down to pull at the clothes of a fallen bandit. “Come in and see... These... bandits are complete savages! Just like animals!”

After glancing at Bai Lingmiao, who was also bending down to remove the clothes on the bandits’ bodies, Li Huowang headed for the tunnel.

At the end of the cave, Li Huowang saw several naked women. All of their gazes were listless as they lay there, shivering on the floor. There were several X-shaped wooden frames around them with ropes hanging from them. From the bruises he saw on women's wrists and ankles, it was clear they were released by Bai Lingmiao and the others not too long ago.

Assisted by the others, the women put on the bandits' clothes before gathering at the bright hall.

If the women captured by the water bandits from the reed island could be considered to still have some status, then these women inside the bandit's den were nothing more than tools for these bandits to vent their desires.

While this was already bad enough, Lu Zhuangyuan mentioned that since it was quite boring within the hideout, the bandits would often treat these women as their playthings.

Thus, their fate was even more tragic. Once the bandits were tired of them, they were discarded and replaced by others. After all, there was no shortage of women as long as they could be captured.

As Li Huowang heard these disgusting descriptions, he turned around to look toward the collapsed rocks, a strong killing intent glinting in his eyes.

Instantly, a bronze bell appeared in his hand.

Ring ring ring!

As the piercing sound of the bell rang out, the edges of the world congregated and gave form to a Wandering God.

Then, Li Huowang pointed toward the rock wall.

The Wandering God nodded, and then disappeared into the wall.

Not long after, Li Huowang keenly heard some faint cries from within the wall.

After about fifteen minutes had passed, the Wandering God re-emerged from within the wall, nodded toward Li Huowang and then dissipated.

The ringing sound of the bell gradually faded. Then, Li Huowang turned toward the women behind him and said, "Don't worry, all the bandits are dead. Not a single one remains.”

However, there was no emotion on their faces—no excitement, sadness, or joy. They just appeared to be listless.

Li Huowang looked at them with sympathy. They had suffered so much, and now, they had been mentally broken.

Wait, is this feeling... Sympathy?

As he thought up to this point, Li Huowang paused, and then took out the Fiery Scripture.

Then, with the emotions he felt now, he began reciting the cryptic incantations. Immediately, the white wax condensed into a fiery centipede which then crawled up his pants, and toward his abdominal wound.

Then, with a sizzling sound, the gruesome wound was quickly sealed.

With this, the missing portion of the Fiery Scripture was finally restored; This item that Jiang Yingzi had left for him could finally be used.

This should have been a joyous matter, but now was not an appropriate time to be happy.

As Li Huowang looked at these muddle-headed women, so as to not forget the feelings he had felt just now, he engraved them deep in his heart.

After thoroughly searching the entire hideout, the group left this place that reeked of death. By the time they left, it was already deep into the night

As Lu Zhuangyuan said, the bandits indeed had many horses. They also found some supplies such as dried food and blankets. However, there wasn't much of anything else, especially no silver. It appeared that they had hidden their silver behind the collapsed wall.

Now, there was nobody alive in that cave, and so the silver would be forever buried with the bandits that the Wandering God had killed.

That night, they continued to travel without rest, all the way until noon of the next day, all so they could distance themselves from the bandit hideout.

Once here, Li Huowang and Bun stood guard while the rest of them took this chance to get some sleep.

When all of them woke up in the evening, Li Huowang immediately laid down and fell asleep. By the time he woke up, it was the next morning.

As he rubbed his eyes sleepily, he saw Bai Lingmiao distributing some porridge to the women they had found. At the same time, he heard the voices of Sun Baolu and Puppy talking beside him.

Chapter 194 - Disguise

As Li Huowang observed those women, he overheard the conversation between Sun Baolu and Puppy.

“Old Sun, those bandits were really wicked. But all the women they captured look pretty decent. Should I pick one of them to be my wife? I don’t mind if they are dirty; it’s fine as long as they can bear children,” wondered Puppy.

“Forget it; they’ve just come out from that place. Don’t bully them,” said Sun Baolu.

“Tsk! What are you saying? I’m not taking a concubine, but openly marrying a wife. I may not be that good-looking, but they would definitely be climbing up the social ladder if they were to marry me,” said Puppy. After a moment, he continued, “Old Sun, do you want one too? If we miss this opportunity, it won’t be so easy to find such pretty wives.”

“Forget it, they are all so pitiful.”

“Hey, we are helping them! Think about it, even if they return, people will still gossip about them, and they won’t be able to marry anyone! At least with me, they will be able to have warm meals,” said Puppy.

At that moment, Li Huowang reached to remove his blanket, and stood up. He ignored Puppy who was spouting nonsense, and made a beeline for Lu Zhuangyuan who was drinking porridge.

The Lu Family Troupe appeared a lot more refreshed after a night of rest; their faces were cleaner, and their clothes were neater.

As he saw Li Huowang approach them, Lu Zhuangyuan hurriedly stood up. At the same time, he stuffed the bowl he was holding to his younger son, and his expression turned into one of utmost respect.

“Is this yours?” Li Huowang returned the tobacco pipe to its rightful owner.

“Ah yes!” Lu Zhuangyuan nodded and received it. “Sorry for the trouble. You had to return this small thing to me personally.”

“If you feel guilty, then do me a favor. We need your assistance,” said Li Huowang.

Lu Zhuangyuan was surprised. This Daoist had supernatural abilities, and so was not sure what kind of help he could offer.

On the other hand, Li Huowang turned to look back at the others who were eating. “Help us put on a disguise and some makeup.”

Soon after, everyone’s faces had theater makeup. Even Li Huowang’s coin veil was decorated with a long beard.

Once all of their weapons were stashed onto the carriages, they could no longer be recognized as a messy group of escorts, but a large theater troupe of about twenty people.

“From now on, you will lead this theater troupe. That means, we are all under your command. You will be the one to answer if anyone asks questions,” said Li Huowang as he looked at Lu Zhuangyuan.

Hou Laoer had pointed out that they were quite conspicuous. Hence, Li Huowang’s objective was for them to change their looks.

Lu Zhuangyuan also understood the situation immediately, and patted his chest while assuring them that there would be no problems.

“Senior Li, will this do?” Puppy asked. He had a white circle drawn on his nose.

Li Huowang’s beard shook with his head as he said, “No matter what, we have to try. We’ll be found far too easily if we continue like before. We can’t fight the entirety of Hou Shu.”

Currently, Li Huowang’s entire face was black, he had a fake beard, and he was wearing a set of theater clothes. It was completely different from his look as the red-robed Daoist from before. He was completely unrecognizable.

“Senior Li, have some food,” said Bai Lingmiao who was wearing an opera costume as she poured some porridge for him.

Li Huowang was about to begin eating, but as he scanned the rest of them, he noticed that Chun Xiaoman had not applied any makeup.

Bai Lingmiao hurriedly explained, “Sister Xiaoman has too much facial hair. She needs to shave it off before applying the makeup.”

“Then shave it off quickly; don’t waste any more time. Who knows when those people will catch up with us,” said Li Huowang as he threw over his sharp sword, and began to eat his porridge.

“There’s no need for that thing; we’re not beheading anyone. I will shave her face,” said Luo Juanhua. Then, she removed two strings from her wrists and walked over to help.

The string heads intertwined, and the black hair on Chun Xiaoman’s face was quickly shaved off, revealing her white skin underneath.

By the time Li Huowang finished eating his porridge, Xiaoman’s face had also been completely shaved off all the hair.

At this point, the other disciples from the Zephyr Temple looked at her curiously. Chun Xiaoman’s face had always been covered in hair, and this was their first time seeing what she truly looked like.

Luo Juanhua had been extremely meticulous, even shaving off the hair on her neck cleanly.

Chun Xiaoman looked at the rest of them nervously. In reality, even she herself did not know what she looked like either.

Xiaoman quickly walked up to a mirror and examined her face carefully.

At that moment, she saw a young maiden about sixteen years of age, with a delicate, slightly round face, and a straight nose. She was not some stunning beauty, but could still be considered pretty.

While Chun Xiaoman did not know about the others, she was definitely satisfied with her appearance. She felt extremely moved as she used her hairy hands to support her face. After all, nobody would want to remain as a hairy monster their entire life. She also wanted to be like other women, to get married and to bear kids.

Xiaoman is actually so young...

Li Huowang thought to himself, and then began to pester them, "Stop gawking; hurry and put the makeup on her. No place in Hou Shu is safe for us right now."

Hearing this, Lu Juren took up his brush and began to paint on Xiaoman's face. Despite her reluctance, the dense ink gradually covered her appearance once again.

Ta ta ta!

At that moment, horse hooves suddenly sounded as a group of fierce-looking men quickly rode past them. One of them turned back to glance at them, but did not pay much attention to a theater troupe like theirs.

Li Huowang instantly had a feeling that this wasn't a good omen. "Hurry, those people must be related to the bandits and have likely come to look for us,"

Li Huowang's words instantly caused the slightly relaxed atmosphere to tense up.

After they all finished their porridge, they quickly packed up and left.

In the following period, Li Huowang avoided all the major roads and took smaller paths.

Whether it was due to the make-up or their choice of routes, it took them ten days to safely arrive at a small town nestled among several rocky hills.

This town was not very large, and there seemed to be just one major street running through it. Even so, it seemed quite busy due to the constant flow of travelers passing through this hub.

When he saw the bustling street, Li Huowang breathed a sigh of relief. They were a little closer to being able to leave Hou Shu.

“We’ll rest here tonight, and continue on our way tomorrow,” announced Li Huowang before leading the group in.

Just a few steps in, Li Huowang’s eyes gleamed as he saw the old man they had bumped into along the way previously,” Senior? Where are you going?”

Hearing this voice, Jin Shanzhao turned around and saw a middle-aged man with a long beard. However, the voice sounded quite familiar, and so he asked in surprise, “Oh? Is that you, Daoist? Such a coincidence.”

“Coincidence?” Li Huowang’s eyes shrank, and then he quickly walked up to the old man and said, “Hit me.”

“Hmm? What for?”

Thump!

Suddenly, Li Huowang’s fist landed onto Jin Shanzhao’s chest, causing the latter to stumble back.

“Daoist? Why did you do that? Have I offended you somehow?” asked Jin Shanzhao as he struggled to catch his breath.

Li Huowang did not respond to him, and instead looked down at his fist.

I can touch him, and this sensation... Seems like he’s not a hallucination, unlike Monk.

Chapter 195 - Play

With Li Huowang's explanation and help from the rest of them, Jin Shanzhao's anger finally subsided.

After all, it was up to Jin Shanzhao whether to believe the so-called reasons fabricated by Li Huowang.

"Elder, since we're traveling in the same direction, then how about we go together? It will be convenient for mutual support if we encounter any trouble on the way," suggested Li Huowang.

As he recalled the corpses of those bandits, Jin Shanzhao hesitated for a moment but nodded in the end. "Alright, I'm getting older and may get picked off by bandits quite easily. Traveling together might just be safer. However, Daoist, you should respect old people just as you do your own parents. Just a few more strikes like those, and I'll have to be placed in a coffin."

"Of course not. I was too careless previously," said Li Huowang.

Li Huowang finally heaved a sigh of relief when he saw the old man agree. It was not that he wanted to stick with this stranger, but rather to ensure that the man wouldn't report him to the others while they were on the move.

As long as they stuck together, then he could be monitored.

The entire town was very busy, and their painted faces attracted quite a bit of attention as they walked through. Quite a few people stood still and pointed curiously toward Li Huowang's group.

Can they tell that that we are from the kingdom of Si Qi?

However, this thought was quickly dismissed from Li Huowang's head.

Lu Zhuangyuan's family wasn't from the kingdom of Si Qi in the first place, and they didn't perform any plays from there, so nobody would suspect that they were from there.

However, the crowd's interest did serve as a reminder for Li Huowang.

After all, while they may not be suspected to be from the kingdom of Si Qi, they may raise suspicions as a theater troupe that didn't perform any plays.

After some contemplation, Li Huowang came up with a solution. "Troupe Leader Lu, since we are a theater troupe, why don't we set up a stage for a play? There's already an audience waiting."

Performing a play was something that was expected of them.

Hearing Li Huowang's suggestion, Lu Zhuangyuan nodded enthusiastically, and then came to the Lu Family Troupe and instructed, "Hurry up! Didn't you hear the Daoist? Quickly find an area to set up the stage."

"But... Dad, I'm so tired. We just came out of the bandits' hideout. Didn't we sing and dance for long enough over there? Let's rest for a while more..." said Lu Xiucui.

Lu Zhuangyuan glanced at Li Huowang who was standing nearby, then picked up his tobacco pipe and smacked it on his son's head. "You sing when I tell you to! What's with all this nonsense?! You should follow your father's words!"

Since there were no trees or bamboo poles around, they could not erect a proper stage and had to make do by draping a large red cloth over a broken wall. The carriages that were led behind the broken wall served as the backstage.

Though it was quite crude, the townsfolk were not picky. They soon gathered around when they saw that there was a play.

Li Huowang was not one to sit by idly. "Go and help out. Remember our identities; right now, we are a theater troupe. We can find an inn to rest after the performance."

Li Huowang's words caused everyone besides Jin Shanzhao to start moving.

Since all of them weren't really skilled as performers, they could only assist them offstage, but even this lightened the burden on Lu Zhuangyuan's group massively.

Dressed in black, Lu Juren raised his knife and stepped on the stage, causing the buzzing crowd to gradually become quiet. There was no applause, but a curious sense of expectation filled their eyes.

While the Nuo Opera was famous in Hou Shu, the people were not dismissive of other types of plays either.

Dong dong jiang!

As the Lu Family Troupe began to play their music, Lu Juren followed their rhythm and started singing. "Today~ for~ justice~ down~ mountain~ pass~ blade~ to~ assist the battle!"

Meanwhile, Li Huowang observed the audience, using his keen senses to search for any potential risks. Fortunately, after searching for a while, the only noteworthy thing was a thief stealing some money at the periphery of the audience.

He also saw Jin Shanzhao engrossed in the performance.

"Senior Li, previously... I didn't refuse to give you that bamboo slip... I just..."

At that moment, a hesitant voice rang out behind him.

When he saw Chun Xiaoman, Li Huowang raised his hand to stop her. "I know that you were sold by your family and often feel uneasy. But the Profound Records is a very sinister item and not suitable for you. If you use it improperly, it can end up costing you your life."

"Then, Senior Li, how come you can use it?" asked Xiaoman.

"I..." Li Huowang touched the smooth surface of the Profound Records, and smiled bitterly, "...I am just used to it."

"Sorry for being harsh with you. That's just my temperament. Please bear with me," As he said this, Li Huowang reached out to pass the bronze bell to Chun Xiaoman. “Take this. Although it requires your lifespan, at least it’s safer than the Profound Records.”

Chun Xiaoman accepted the bell with a look of surprise. They had spent so much time together, and she understood this bronze bell’s power quite well. She was amazed that he would entrust it to her. With this, the unease in her heart finally vanished without a trace.

She wanted to say something, but all she could say was, “Thank you, Senior Li.”

Li Huowang sighed. He did not want to give any of these items to others. It was not out of selfishness, but because each of them was extremely dangerous. In this crazy world, one had to sacrifice something if they wanted to obtain something else.

Just as Li Huowang was instructing Xiaoman on how to use the bell, an unexpected scene began to happen.

It was not the arrival of enemies, but Lu Juren’s emotions suddenly seemed amiss on the stage. He seemed to be overly engrossed in his performance. Even with Li Huowang’s limited knowledge of the plays, he felt that there was something off with the lines.

“Rouge and powder like enchanting drugs!”

“The lotus-like face is the source of this bewitching charm!”

“The little golden lotus, this malicious spirit!”

“The willow-like waist, akin to a snare for horses!”

“Those charming eyes force me to wear a cuckold’s hat!”

“A pair of jade-like wrists serve as a pillow for a thousand men!”

“Scarlet lips, savored by countless guests!”

“Doesn’t matter if it’s Zhang, Wang, Li, or Zhao!” [\[1\]](#)

“On the mandarin duck pillow, he calls out affectionately!”

As he finished singing the last verse, Luo Juanhua, Lu Juren’s wife, raised the gong and pounded it indignantly, before dashing toward the backstage with tears streaming down her face.

Clang!

For a moment, the entire stage and the audience fell silent.

Then, the audience erupted in cheers and applause.

“Amazing!”

“Encore, encore!”

“This is so much more energetic than the Nuo Opera! What kind of show is this?”

“Let that lady who just struck the gong come back on the stage. I’ll reward her generously!”

Various coins and silver pieces, and even some food, gradually littered the ground.

This was the most rewarding response the Lu Family Troupe had received in all their years performing.

1. common surnames 📖

Chapter 196 - Kill

As the leader of a theater troupe, Lu Zhuangyuan easily managed to reign in the chaos. He ran up the stage, stood in front of Lu Juren, and apologized to the customers with a smile on his face.

After that, he gave his younger son a look and immediately pulled Lu Juren to the back of the stage.

Lu Xiucan understood what needed to be done and quickly somersaulted onto the stage. He grabbed the gong and used it to quickly collect the money on the stage while performing.

“The Lu family... It seems that they have trouble...” muttered Li Huowang as he approached the carriage. He knew about what had happened to Luo Juanhua within the bandit camp, but there was nothing he could do.

When Li Huowang was close to the carriage, he saw Lu Zhuangyuan raising his smoke pipe and smacking it on his son’s head.

“She’s your wife! How could you say all that on stage?! You are embarrassing yourself and the entire Lu family!” shouted Lu Zhuangyuan.

Lu Juren suddenly grabbed the smoke pipe and pulled it out of his father’s hand, causing the latter to fall over with his eyes wide open as he stared at his son, shocked.

“Embarrassing? What do you mean I am embarrassing the Lu Family? We are performers! We are already the lowest of the low! We are already embarrassed enough! Even prostitutes have a higher status than us! Who else could we even compare ourselves with? Didn’t you see how she acted when she was within the bandit camp? She was laughing with them! She even... did that in front of the bandits! Father, I've had enough! Why is my life so miserable?!" Lu Juren knelt on the ground and continued pounding his fist on it, despair evident in his eyes.

"Why do you think I was laughing with them? I did it for all of us! If I didn't do that, then they would've killed Cui'er! You think you are the only one who is miserable?! I'M MISERABLE TOO! But I am not a noble... I'm only the wife of a performer. However, even while I'm miserable, I have to endure and pretend like nothing is happening. You think I'm a shameless woman who would sleep with just anyone? What choice did I have?" shouted Luo Juanhuan through her sobs while hugging her large belly.

Looking at this scene, Li Huowang sighed.

The root cause of this situation were the bandits. As long as bandits continued to exist, there would be many others who would suffer the same fate as Luo Juanhua.

The soldiers were supposed to suppress the bandits, but to think that they became the bandits themselves.

Wang Deqiu was right. Soldiers and bandits were more or less the same.

What a fucking horrible place this is.

There was nothing much Li Huowang could do. He whispered to the members of his group and told them to keep everything in mind.

Soon, Sun Baolu and Puppy huddled around Lu Juren while Bai Lingmiao and Chun Xiaoman approached Luo Juanhua.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang approached Lu Zhuangyuan and patted him on the shoulder. "Troupe leader Lu, don't just sit there and stare. The performance has not ended."

Lu Zhuangyuan looked tired; it was as if he had suddenly aged considerably. He walked toward the stage with empty hands. "Juren had never acted like that before..."

However, when he emerged from the backstage, he saw that all of the customers were gone, and the few remaining residents looked afraid as they congregated near the edges of the town.

Seeing this, Lu Zhuangyuan had no time to care about his family problems and shouted as he ran back inside, “Daoist! Daoist, quick, come out! We have trouble!”

Hearing this, Li Huowang ran out to check the situation while the others prepared themselves to escape. Knowing that something was wrong they quickly packed their belongings and prepared themselves.

“Wait here, I will go and see what’s wrong,” instructed Li Huowang.

Li Huowang immediately hid his sword within his robe and ran toward the entrance of the town.

On the way, he had to pass through a dense group of villagers and camels before he could see what was happening.

The entire town had been surrounded by soldiers!

The soldiers weren’t wearing their standard uniform. Instead, they were all wearing mismatched armors and holding a variety of weapons. Every single one of them had a green “Qiu” character tattooed on their heads.

When Li Huowang saw Hou Laoer within the group carrying a large spear, he immediately knew that they were here for him!

Hou Laoer and the rest of the Small-arms soldiers were all riding horses and carrying the same type of large spear. At this moment, all of them were encircling a massive general.

The general was huge, with a body that was at least four times as large as that of a regular human. The general was wearing full plate armor with a helmet while holding a massive halberd that was at least twelve feet long.

The general just stood there unmoving, but waves of oppressive aura was radiating from their body. Even standing as far as he was, Li Huowang still feel it.

Li Huowang had a bad feeling about it. If he had to describe the general, then he would say that the general was nothing short of a landmine that could blow up any moment.

Meanwhile, the residents of the town buzzed in fear. Even though they were people native to the country of Hou Shu, they looked more uncomfortable than Li Huowang.

“Heavens! It’s the outlaw soldiers!”

“What should we do? We need to run!”

“How can we run? They’ve already surrounded us!”

As he observed the situation, Li Huowang blended into the back of the crowd and thought about how to escape.

They are probably here for me, but most likely don’t know who I am. If they knew, then they would’ve rushed into the town to get to me by now. Should I wait for them to conduct an inspection or make a run for it? They don’t look very disciplined so maybe I can try bribing them...

While Li Huowang was busy thinking about how to escape, a fat man wearing silk robes approached the soldiers. When he got close to the general, he lowered his head and started saying something.

Looking at his outfit, Li Huowang deduced that the fat man was most likely the person in charge of maintaining relations with the outsiders.

This is a busy town where a lot of traffic intersects and numerous outsiders come and go. They probably can’t find me even with the help of the villagers.

But what happened next shocked Li Huowang.

The massive halberd rose and fell down.

Instantly, the fat man's body was split in half.

As this happened, a soft breeze blew past the faces of everyone within the town.

Then, the general stepped forward and removed their helmet.

Li Huowang saw that it was a man with a woman's face... no, it was a woman! Her face also had a tattoo, just like the others; the words "Loyal to the nation" covered half of her face, making her look incredibly vicious.

"Everyone! There's a spy from the kingdom of Si Qi within the town, so please forgive us!" shouted the general.

The general's voice was melodious, but her words caused everyone who heard them to tremble.

After her declaration, she once again wore her helmet.

"Brothers! We will not sheath our weapons today until we kill them all! We need to ensure that the spies do not escape!" commanded the general.

"HA!" Immediately, the soldiers brandished their weapons and pointed them directly at everyone within the town.

Chapter 197 - Longteng

Li Huowang finally realized what was happening as the outlaw soldiers began charging toward town.

These bastards weren't trying to find the spy through verifying people's identities, but through killing the entire town!

Dong~ Dong~ Dong~

The sound of the wardrum struck fear in the hearts of everyone present.

Amidst the chaos, the outlaw soldiers showed no mercy as they continued their charge toward the unarmed civilians.

As he stared at the army, Li Huowang immediately knew that assassinating the general wasn't a good idea.

It had a low probability of being successful, and he didn't know how strong the general was. All he knew was that the general had to be significantly stronger than Wang Deqiu.

The best course of action is to run and escape their encirclement!

After deciding this, Li Huowang chose one of the directions with the least amount of soldiers and immediately ran back into the heart of the town.

At the same time, everyone else started running as well, the entire situation turning chaotic.

When Li Huowang finally got close to the center of the town, he heard the sound of metal ripping through the air.

Everyone, including Li Huowang, turned around and saw that the female general was directly pointing at them with her halbert.

Then, her strong and clear voice resonated in the air, "Charge into the Heavens and Earth and become a dragon! Flying Dragon formation!"

"Kill them all!" The outlaw soldiers shouted and ran into the town.

Seeing this scene, all the civilians were horrified and the only thing they could think about was escaping.

However, a lot of the people were trampled to death as they tried to flee the scene.

Splat!

The sharp knives held by the soldiers easily stabbed into the bodies of the civilians and took their lives.

The soldiers who were supposed to fight off the enemies were now killing civilians without the slightest remorse.

The civilians started dying in swathes.

On the other hand, the outlaw soldiers enjoyed such a massacre. Some of them even started salivating as they saw the flying blood and flesh.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang continued to run while weaving through the crowd; even so, there were far too many people!

After a while, Li Huowang finally gave up and leapt up onto a roof before finally finding a path back to his group. Then, he ran back as fast as he could.

All of them were still waiting there for him, oblivious to the threat. When he saw that they hadn't tried to blindly run away, Li Huowang sighed in relief.

At this moment, Li Huowang's group was staring at the escaping civilians and feeling anxious. They didn't know what had happened and could only wait for Li Huowang to return.

Bam!

At that moment, Li Huowang suddenly fell from the skies and onto the ground, surprising the rest of them in the process.

"Run! I will explain everything while running! We need to leave the town now; they are killing everyone! Run!" barked Li Huowang.

Even though they didn't know what was happening, none of them questioned Li Huowang and immediately started running with their carriage in tow.

The horses ran as fast as they could, while those on the carriage held on for dear life.

When he finally had the chance, Li Huowang explained to them what was happening.

“How dare they?! Those murderers!” Jin Shanzhao was livid.

Li Huowang stared at Jin Shanzhao intently. “Do you know them? Do you think you can stop them with your identity?”

Li Huowang didn’t know Jin Shanzhao’s true identity. He was a mysterious old man. If his true identity was that of someone influential within the kingdom, then they might be able to save themselves right now.

Jin Shanzhao shook his head. “The outlaw soldiers have already started massacring all the people within the town. There’s no hope anymore.”

“All the more reason for us to run then!”

At this moment, Li Huowang and the rest were running toward the North exit. Even though the outlaw soldiers had surrounded the entire town, at the very least the North exit was further away from the general, and so they had a higher chance of surviving!

As they ran, they saw the civilians in front of them turn around and start running back.

“Zhao Wu! Hold the reins and don’t let the horses get spooked!” commanded Li Huowang.

Their horse carriages were akin to a boat trying to go up against a strong current, causing them to be slowed down considerably.

Suddenly, the crowd of civilians was no more.

Just as Li Huowang raised his head, he saw something sharp aimed straight for his neck. He twisted his body and saw who it was, the “Qiu” character on their forehead revealing the identity of the attacker.

Li Huowang's group had finally met up with the encirclement of the outlaw soldiers.

Immediately, Li Huowang unsheathed his sword and swung it as hard as he could, cutting the soldier in half.

“Charge! As long as we exit their encirclement, we will be able to survive!” roared Li Huowang. At the same time, he raised his sword and charged into the encirclement.

The rest of them dared not stop and followed closely behind Li Huowang.

In the face of Li Huowang's attacks, the outlaw soldiers were caught completely off guard; they had never expected there to be a group of fighters hidden within a traveling theater troupe.

Tens of soldiers were dead in no time.

When the soldiers finally reacted, they immediately started working together. They used their spears to keep Li Huowang and the rest at a distance, using their advantage in numbers to stop Li Huowang's attacks.

I can't drag this anymore!

As he thought this, Li Huowang used a metal tong to pull out two of his teeth. The pain shot through his spine accompanied by a sour taste in his mouth. Then, he unfurled the Profound Records and caused the two teeth to explode in front of the soldiers.

Instantly, the white shrapnels tore into the soldiers causing them to cry out in pain. A large group of soldiers died just like that.

Ding ding ding~!

At the same time, the horrid sound of the bronze bell started ringing.

In response, Wandering Gods flew out and started phasing through a large swathe of the soldiers, killing them in the process.

As more and more soldiers died, Li Huowang finally saw a path to escape the encirclement!

Finally—

Just as he had thought that they would be able to escape, Li Huowang was enveloped by a killing intent so intense that he almost crumbled under the pressure.

Li Huowang instantly knew that he was in danger but he couldn't move; it was as if his body had been frozen solid.

At the critical moment, a dragon roar rang out from the sword on Li Huowang's back, neutralizing the killing intent.

Freed from the killing intent, Li Huowang ducked and rolled as the sound of air being torn was heard. A massive halberd flew over and crashed into the position Li Huowang had been in just moments ago.

The impact caused pebbles to fly in all directions, peppering Li Huowang's face and causing him to grimace from the pain.

After a moment, Li Huowang turned around to look in the direction of the town.

Da da da!

A massive horse donned with heavy armor was carrying the female general as she trampled over the civilians and rapidly approached them. At this moment, the horse's legs were stained in red, just like Li Huowang's robes.

As she got close, fear gripped everyone's heart; all of them suddenly felt the urge to give up. Her very presence was enough to cause them to feel despair.

"Hoho, I finally forced you to come out, Si Qi spy." Her voice was quite soothing to hear.

"This sword was given to me! I'm not a spy from the kingdom of Si Qi!" denied Li Huowang.

"You carry the sword of the You family. Also, if I, Peng Longteng, say that you are a spy, then you are one! Who cares if you are really a spy or not?"

Translator's Thoughts

Here's a rendition of Peng Longteng. Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 198 - Move

As it charged toward Li Huowang, the massive horse crushed the corpses of the civilians under its feet.

At the last moment, Li Huowang rolled out of the way and raised his sword, but Peng Longteng's halberd was already being swung toward his face, the wind from the downward slash blowing his hair backward.

Li Huowang dared not use his sword to block such a powerful attack head-on; even if the sword did not break, his bones definitely would.

However, even as Li Huowang dodged, she easily redirected her halberd and stabbed it straight toward him.

At that moment, a massive man suddenly charged in from the side—it was none other than Gao Zhijian!

As soon as he charged in, he swung his mace against the halberd.

Dang!

Gao Zhijian managed to knock the halberd slightly off course.

However, immediately after, she managed to easily hook the halberd back, causing Gao Zhijian to be sent flying away.

Ding ding ding~!

At that moment, the Wandering Gods appeared and charged toward Peng Longteng. But just as they were about to touch her, the Wandering Gods' bodies twisted and missed her completely!

The Wandering Gods dared not touch Peng Longteng who was cloaked in dense killing intent!

As Li Huowang scanned his surroundings, he saw that Gao Zhijian's right arm had been wounded quite badly, to the point that even his bones were showing and he was bleeding profusely.

“I will hold her off, so all of you run now! She only wants me!” shouted Li Huowang.

However, not one of them followed this instruction, choosing to firmly stand right behind him.

At that moment, the sound of horse hooves rang out once again and Peng Longteng stood still. She observed everything that was happening and smiled sadistically. “Brat, looks like they are all very important to you. How about fighting me one-on-one? If you win against me, then I will let all of you go. How about it?”

Without even waiting for his reply, the general pulled on the reins as she once again charged forward.

Seeing Peng Longteng charge toward him, Li Huowang rolled toward the left.

I need to get her down the horse!

As he thought up to this point, he narrowly avoided the halberd and swung his sword toward the horse’s hind leg.

However at that moment, he felt a strange gaze coming from the horse’s body.

Almost as if the horse had already expected his actions, it dodged his attack and delivered a powerful kick, sending Li Huowang flying and crashing into a small house.

As she saw Li Huowang crawl out of the debris, Peng Longteng chuckled. “Not bad for a spy from Si Qi. Looks like you are able to take on some of my attacks.”

Li Huowang just spat out a few mouthfuls of blood as he glared at her.

This general was too strong. If he wanted to survive, then he was going to need to pull out all the stops.

As soon as he made up his mind, Li Huowang unfurled the Profound Records and placed his left arm on it. Then, he took out a dagger and immediately cut his wrist.

As she saw what was happening, Peng Longteng slightly raised her chin.

At that moment, a dark shadow shot toward Li Huowang's face.

He dodged it, but he realized too late that the shadow was nothing more than a distraction.

Splat!

A massive black spear pierced through Li Huowang's palm, nailing it to the ground.

Meanwhile, Peng Longteng slowly approached him while dragging her halberd against the ground. Then, she picked up the Profound Records and threw it onto the roof of a nearby house.

"To think that spies from Si Qi are now colluding with the crazy bastards from the Ao Jing Sect," muttered Peng Longteng.

On the other hand, Li Huowang snarled at Peng Longteng, questioning her, "Was this what you meant when you proposed fighting one-on-one?"

"Hehe~ You actually believed it? Don't you know that the first rule of battle is to use any and all means to obtain victory? Any and all methods to achieve victory are welcomed here. Just like what we will be doing now. Guys, go kill those performers! But! Kill them slowly; I want them to continue wailing in pain for as long as possible so that this brat can't focus on the battle," ordered Peng Longteng.

As soon as he heard those words, Li Huowang was enraged. "You damned—"

However, he couldn't finish his sentence when he saw Peng Longteng swing her halberd down toward him.

No, I can't die here! Who knows how they will treat Bai Lingmiao and the rest of them once I am dead!

Li Huowang wanted to dodge but he had been pinned to the ground by the spear. He could only watch as the halberd came closer and closer to him.

"Move! MOVE NOW!"

Even as he continued to scream, the halberd stabbed into Li Huowang's skull.

Then, Peng Longteng pulled out the halberd and swung it down once more.

But Li Huowang was unharmed. In fact, there were no wounds on his head. At the same time, Li Huowang suddenly realized that he could move once more. He didn't know what had happened, but there was no time to think. He quickly picked up his sword and climbed up the horse before stabbing his sword at Peng Longteng's helmet.

Peng Longteng kept attacking Li Huowang, but for some reason all of her attacks were landing just a few inches to his left side.

Jiang!

As he stabbed at Peng Longteng's helmet, Li Huowang was surprised to find that he couldn't stab through the helmet despite how sharp the You's family sword was!

Realizing that stabbing wouldn't work, Li Huowang took out the Fiery Scripture and placed it on the helmet. Then, he looked at Peng Longteng pitifully and started chanting.

Soon, the wax on the book melted and slipped into the helmet through the hole as it tried to find a wound to cauterize.

At that moment, the sound of sizzling flesh was heard as Peng Longteng shouted, "Shit! It's in my eyes!"

As she shouted, she pulled up the front guard and quickly tried to remove whatever had entered her helmet.

But in that moment, her hand wasn't the only thing clawing at her face.

Seeing the opening, Li Huowang also stabbed his sword.

In that split second as soon as she sensed the danger, she twisted her head and managed to avoid a fatal blow. At the same time, she raised her halberd to counterattack, but her blow once more landed beside Li Huowang.

Li Huowang did not fail to seize such a big opening. He immediately stepped on the horse's head and stabbed his sword again, this time with even more strength.

Splurt!

Peng Longteng's body stiffened up and fell down from the horse.

"General! The General!" The soldiers shouted and quickly ran toward her.

On the other hand, Li Huowang leapt up from the horse, grabbed the Profound Records before running toward the horse carriage.

"RUN! RUN WHILE THEY ARE STILL CONFUSED! HER SKULL WAS TOO THICK AND I COULDN'T STAB DEEP ENOUGH!" shouted Li Huowang.

Hearing this, Chun Xiaoman rang the bronze bell as hard as she could.

In response, numerous Wandering Gods flew out and slaughtered the soldiers blocking them. The soldiers' morale was quite low after they saw their General falling off her horse, causing them to no longer be able to put up a good fight.

Soon, with the help of the Wandering Gods, Li Huowang and the rest managed to escape.

But they did not stop. They were afraid that the soldiers would catch up to them.

They ran until they reached a fork in the road. At this point they quickly grabbed whatever was necessary before running down the smaller path. At the same time, they directed the horse carriage to run down the main path instead, hoping to use the marks left behind by the horses and the carriage wheels to confuse the soldiers.

They continued to run until some of them could run no more. It was only then that Li Huowang allowed them rest near the base of a mountain.

There were several large boulders at the base of the mountain that were suitable for them to hide themselves.

Only after calming down did Li Huowang realize just how much of a miracle it was for them to have been able to escape.

What just happened? Why did the general only attack the left side of my body? Is there something on my left?

Li Huowang turned to his left but didn't see anything besides a boulder.

"Senior Li, where are you?" asked Bai Lingmiao.

When he saw that she couldn't find him, Li Huowang panicked a bit.

Are her eyes alright? How can she not see me here?

He stood up and walked toward her.

Just as he was walking toward her, everyone shouted in shock and took a few steps back.

He looked at what all of them were staring at and once again turned to his left.

This time, he finally saw it. He saw a figure in a red Daoist robe, and half a head.

The man was split in half, one part stuck inside the boulder while the other was outside.

Li Huowang instinctively grabbed his sword and slowly retreated.

However, the figure did the same thing as Li Huowang as well. As soon as Li Huowang took three steps back, the man did the same and exited from the boulder.

At that moment, Li Huowang finally realized who it was after looking at the robes and the bag of torture tools.

It was himself!

After a moment, Li Huowang looked down and saw that his body was invisible. There was nothing there.

It was as if he had turned into a floating camera!

Li Huowang raised his head and stared at his 'body double'.
The 'body double' mimicked what he did.

“Good Heavens, it’s moving...”

Chapter 199 - Change

His body was indeed moving, but in a very convoluted way.

When Li Huowang straightened his back, he saw that his body did the same in front of him. Then, he raised his right arm and it once again mimicked his actions.

There was no mistaking that it was his body. Li Huowang looked down again and saw that even though he could feel his body, there was nothing there—it was just that he couldn't see it.

He touched the coin veil and saw the image of his body doing the same thing in front of him.

It was as if Li Huowang was performing a shadow play and the image of his body was the shadow.

However, compared to knowing what this was, Li Huowang currently was more concerned about how this situation came to be and how he could go back to normal.

Wait, I remember that earlier when I was nailed to the ground, the general had been constantly striking the left side of my body!

Li Huowang recalled how the general kept attacking to the left of his body. That was the only reason he managed to find such a big opening to attack her.

He hadn't thought about it before, but it seemed that the general had been attacking his illusion.

What is going on? How did I suddenly obtain this superpower? It's... it's as if there is a bug in the world... Is this world fake?

Li Huowang felt scared when he thought about the possibility of this world being fake.

As he stared at his illusion, the situation felt more and more surreal.

Soon, his breath became rapid and he quickly hugged his own head. He kept reassuring himself that this world was the real one as he tried to calm himself down.

No! This is the real world! I cannot think otherwise. This must be a special power that belongs to a Strayed One! Yes, that must be it! I've been unlucky for so long that I finally got a stroke of good fortune! Li Huowang, stop doubting yourself! This is the real world and the other side is fake!

When Bai Lingmiao saw how Li Huowang looked to be in a lot of pain, she approached the illusion and tried to hug him, only to pass right through.

"I'm alright, I'm alright," said Li Huowang as he recovered a little and took a few steps back.

However, Lu Zhuangyuan was horrified as he asked in a meek tone of voice, "What do you mean you are alright? We can't even touch your body. You have become a ghost! Daoist, did you forget about your own death?"

At this point, no one could help Li Huowang; he could only think of a way himself.

After half an hour, Li Huowang finally calmed down.

"I'm not dead, it's just that my body gained a new ability," said Li Huowang.

While they were all resting, Li Huowang roughly told them about what had happened just now.

"Oh~ So it's one of your superpowers." Lu Zhuangyuan nodded, finally understanding what had happened.

Meanwhile, Bai Lingmiao wandered around and finally touched Li Huowang's invisible body. She was quite worried as she asked, "Senior Li, will you remain like this for your entire life?"

"Wait, let me try something," said Li Huowang as he took a deep breath while trying to remember the feeling from before.

Move! Move back and overlap with my real body!

He kept trying for a while and opened his eyes. He saw that the illusion of his body had once more overlapped with himself!

But it was not a complete overlap.

He saw that only the top half of the illusion was above ground. The bottom half was buried completely underground.

Even though the illusion showed him to be stuck halfway into the ground, Li Huowang's real body was still above ground, or at least his feet were still stepping on solid ground.

His illusion had overlapped with him at the wrong height.

"Senior Li, I think I know what this superpower is! It's a method to travel underground, right?" Puppy was excited to see what Li Huowang could do.

On the other hand, Li Huowang couldn't be bothered to answer him as he tried again.

When he opened his eyes this time around, he saw that his illusion had come above ground, but he was now staring at the illusion from the top down! It was as if he was viewing himself in the third person view.

As he saw his illusion mimicking his every move down below, Li Huowang felt as though he was stuck in a game.

Again! I must get back!

Li Huowang tried again as he willed his body and illusion to overlap once more.

However, it was not as easy as he had thought. Rather than achieving it by just saying the word over and over again in his mind, it was more like he had to channel a very intense feeling of moving through space. It was very difficult to pull it off successfully.

After persevering for two whole hours, Li Huowang finally managed to overlap his illusion with his body, albeit in a somewhat imperfect manner.

At this moment, his vision was slightly above his eye level, somewhere around his forehead.

This is the best I can do for now. We still need to escape.

“Alright, we’ve rested for long enough. Let’s leave now and try to escape from Hou Shu as fast as we can,” said Li Huowang.

Hearing this, everyone nodded and grabbed whatever belongings they had left.

“My love, I can’t run anymore. I’m still pregnant...”

At that moment, Li Huowang heard Luo Juanhua whisper to her husband, causing him to look back and see Lu Juren carry his wife without any objections.

The once prosperous town had now been reduced to a pile of rubble. Some of the houses were still burning, but no one bothered with them. The dead bodies of the civilians were piled up in a small mountain.

On the other hand, the outlaw soldiers were all sitting beside the various fire places they had made, drinking and eating meat.

At that moment, a pale fat man was holding a handkerchief to his nose as he weaved through all the rubble. He accidentally stepped on something slippery and saw it was an entire section of intestines, causing him to let out a scream, “Aiya! Good Heavens!”

Seeing this scene, the other outlaw soldiers all laughed.

“Officer Cao, come and have a taste. We just roasted it,” offered one of the outlaw soldiers without any warning.

“Uwek~” At this point, Cao Hai couldn’t stand it any more and started vomiting.

“Relax, it’s pork, not human meat. See, it’s hoof is still on there,” said the soldier who offered the roasted meat.

Cao Hai felt slightly better when he saw there was indeed a hoof attached to the meat. Even so, he carefully declined the pork leg.

“I’m looking for General Peng to discuss something. Have you seen her? I checked the main camp, but she’s not there,” asked Cao

Hai.

“If even you don’t know, then how would I know? I was busy taking my share of money and women until just now,” said the soldier.

Just as Cao Hai was thinking about where to look for the general next, someone suddenly extended their hands into his pants.

Startled, Cao Hai took a few steps back and saw that it was a young man. On the other hand, the man was looking at his hand in surprise.

“Aiya~ I think I just felt something over there. Old man Cao, it seems that there’s still a little bit leftover. Were you thinking about extending your bloodline when you left behind some of it?” asked the young man.

Cao Hai ignored his teasing and hurriedly asked, “Hou Wen, you are one of the General’s Small-arms soldiers. You must know where she is, right?”

“Hehehe, do you want to know where she is?” Hou Wen chuckled and gently patted Cao Hai’s butt. However, when Cao Hai retreated in surprise, Hou Wen patted the front instead.

“Haiya, stop teasing me! I’m really looking for the General! This concerns her future!” shouted Cao Hai.

Hearing this, Hou Wen stopped his teasing and pointed toward a house. “The General is currently injured. So, be careful; she’s in a bad mood.”

After confirming the direction, Cao Hai ignored everything else and ran toward the house Hou Wen had pointed out. It was one of the very few houses that still remained intact.

Translator's Thoughts

Just to make it clear, he can throw out an illusion of his body and move it anywhere while rendering his real body invisible.

Chapter 200 - Both Parties

Cao Hai gingerly opened the door and saw Peng Longteng lying down on a bed. At this moment, there were two doctors bandaging the wound on her neck.

“Aiya~!” Cao Hai approached her and started to stomp the ground beside her bed in frustration. “Are you crazy? You just killed thousands of civilians!”

Peng Longteng replied with her eyes closed, “Who would want to fight for the country if they don’t pay us? It’s so much harder to ask them for money than it is to kill them. Since the nation is having such a difficult time paying us, I might as well as take matters into my own hands. After all, I cannot mistreat my soldiers after fighting the war for so long!”

“You! You—” Cao Hai was infuriated.

“It’s just a small town of a few thousand people... why are you so anxious about it? I’m already very merciful for not plundering a city instead,” said Peng Longteng.

“You talk as if it were that easy! Those were all the civilians of Hou Shu!” shouted Cao Hai as he wiped his tears. “Everyone within the palace is busy dealing with the Natural Disaster and you are just adding to their troubles! You just offended all of them!”

When she heard this, Peng Longteng sat up and pushed the doctors away, “I don’t care about the Natural Disaster. Even if the Heavens were to fall, the soldiers need their money! And why are you so afraid? It’s not like this is not the first time a Natural Disaster has occurred.”

“If you wanted money, you could have just taken it. Why did you kill all of them?” asked Cao Hai. However, even as he complained, he still used his handkerchief to wipe the blood off of Peng Longteng’s armor.

“We just came back from the battlefield and had lost quite a few men. Then, we didn’t even get our money. My soldiers were starting to reach their breaking point, and if I hadn’t done anything then it would have caused a mutiny within my camp,” said Peng Longteng.

Hearing this, Cao Hai’s voice became soft, “There’s no way you will be able to cover this up. Those within the palace should already know about this by now...”

“So what if they know about it? You think I don’t know how they would act? They already embezzled the money that was meant for my soldiers, so they should have already known how I would act. Relax, they won’t make a big deal about it and their superiors will even work to cover it up. If word of this got out, then everyone would be at a disadvantage. This is the best situation for them. Not only do they not have to pay us, we still receive our money too. It’s a win-win situation. Plus, I have my own justification. We already discovered that there were several Si Qi spies within our kingdom,” said Peng Longteng. As she recalled the spies, her face became gloomy and she touched the left side of her face.

The tattoo on the left of her face had mostly been burned off, leaving behind only the character representing ‘loyal’. Even this tattoo had become distorted, giving her a much more fearsome appearance. Her left eye was also blinded. It was now white in color.

“Damned brat! Not only did he escape, he even managed to injure me! Officer, go and find the Surveillance Bureau. Tell them to find the location of the spy and let me know immediately so that I can go and kill him!” commanded Peng Longteng.

“Sigh, just let it go. Since he’s from the Ao Jing Sect, it’s no longer under your jurisdiction. Let's head back to the camp," said Cao Hai.

"No! I am Peng Longteng, and I refuse to leave this grudge alone! Since he offended me, then I will kill him!" said Peng Longteng.

"But what are you going to do? You can't just bring your soldiers and mobilize all of Hou Shu. You are not the Emperor," asked Cao Hai.

"I am a General, someone that protects the people from their enemies. I will destroy all of the enemies of Hou Shu," declared Peng Longteng.

Cao Hai was speechless. "Since when did they harm Hou Shu? Weren't they just beaten and chased off by you?"

"No, they are the enemy!" retorted Peng Longteng as she smashed the bed with arm. Her immense strength caused the solid wooden frame of the bed to break apart.

At that moment, a mace was swung downward, instantly killing a two-meter long snake just like that.

Gao Zhijian took the snake and smiled happily. Then, he placed it on his shoulder and walked back to their resting place.

The mountains were filled with boulders and stones, but at least it was not as barren as before; there was some green vegetation here.

Soon, Gao Zhijian returned and saw everyone inside a cave.

"Make... Make... Make..." stuttered Gao Zhijian as he brought the snake inside the cave.

"Make what? Senior Li told us we can't light up a fire. Go and eat your ration," reminded one of them.

However, Jin Shanzhao thought otherwise. He cheerfully took the snake and said, "We can still eat this without needing a fire. We can use it to make sashimi."

As he spoke, he took out a small knife before carefully skinning the snake and slicing the flesh into small pieces. Then, he plated the neatly cut pieces of flesh nicely.

When he was done, Jin Shanzhao took a pair of bamboo chopsticks, and used it to dip a piece of snake flesh into a chili dipping sauce and ate it. “Mm~ It’s delicious. Come and try it yourselves.”

Hearing this, everyone huddled together and started eating.

Puppy was eating happily with everyone else when he suddenly stopped and shouted for Li Huowang, “Senior Li, come and eat. It’s surprisingly tasty. It reminds me of fatty pork.”

But Li Huowang ignored him. At this moment, he was in the middle of training himself to utilize his newfound power.

Shua!~

When Li Huowang opened his eyes again, he saw that everything around him had turned upside down. Directly below him was his own head.

Closer... Closer... Careful... Don’t go too fast now...

Li Huowang carefully willed himself to get back to his original position as his line of vision slowly became one with his body.

This time, he managed to overlap himself perfectly.

Li Huowang could finally overlap his illusion and himself perfectly after training for so many days.

He then looked around and saw Bun. After a moment of thought, he willed his illusion to appear directly in front of Bun.

Bun was surprised by Li Huowang’s sudden appearance and fell backward. Then, it crawled back up and started wagging its tail at Li Huowang’s illusion.

Li Huowang was happy with the results of his training.

I don’t know how I got it, but this power is very useful. At least I will be able to use it to confuse and surprise the opponent next time around. But I still need to practice more to become used to it.

Li Huowang's current limit was projecting his illusion anywhere within ten feet of himself. During this time, he wouldn't be injured even if the enemy attacked his illusion, just like how the General failed to injure him before.

But he knew that he wouldn't be able to use it frequently; the opponents he would be faced with will not be idiots. They wouldn't be surprised a second time.

"Senior Li, how is your training coming along?" asked Bai Lingmiao as she brought him a bowl of snake sashimi.

"Not bad," replied Li Huowang as he picked up his chopsticks and began eating.

Even though snake sashimi wasn't that delicious, it was still a much better meal than eating dried rations.

"Senior Li, how much longer until we are out of Hou Shu?" asked Bai Lingmiao.

Hearing this question, Li Huowang stopped eating and took out Jin Shanzhao's map. "We can't walk on the main paths anymore, and so we have to take numerous detours. We probably can't travel through some of the smaller paths either. However, given that they don't know where we are, we at least have the advantage in that regard. We will arrive at this place in two days, and then we have to travel for another week before we arrive at the border. And since we cannot go through the official gate, we will have to take yet another detour and hike out of Hou Shu. After that, we will be safe."

"But... we can't travel for that long. Even if we eat our rations sparingly, our food supply will at most last another two days," pointed out Bai Lingmiao, worried.

Chapter 201 - Village

Having returned their appearances to normal, Li Huowang's group continued to travel along a muddy dirt path. At this point, it had been several days since they had escaped from that town.

Currently, all of them had weary looks on their faces; they had not been eating well and were not dressed properly, so this outcome was inevitable.

When they got to a slightly flattened area, Li Huowang used his sleeve to wipe the sweat from his forehead. "Let's take a break."

Hearing this, everyone immediately sat down on the ground, panting heavily.

Bai Lingmiao carefully took out their last yellow biscuit and broke it into half, and kept one of the halves. Then, she passed the remaining half to Li Huowang, "Senior Li, have some food."

Li Huowang looked at her and pinched her shrunken tummy.

This action made Bai Lingmiao feel embarrassed, but she didn't deny him.

"Don't hold yourself back; I know that you have a large appetite. Eat while you can, and don't go hungry. I'll figure the rest out," said Li Huowang.

"I'm really not hungry. You can have it," said Bai Lingmiao as she once again pushed the biscuit over.

However, Li Huowang didn't bother to take it. Instead, he opened the map while trying to think of ways for them to re-stock. They were running out of supplies and needed to find ways to replenish them soon.

He had considered robbing those bandits, but dismissed the idea when he thought of the relationship between the bandits and the outlaw soldiers.

It was difficult to tell whether or not those bandits were acting as that woman's sentries.

Given how difficult it was for them to shake them off earlier, he felt that it was not worth it to provoke the outlaw soldiers just for some food.

Robbing the commoners?

However, Li Huowang immediately dismissed that notion. He would definitely not do such dastardly things like his own Master. He was Li Huowang, not Dan Yangzi.

He suddenly found that it was indeed quite challenging to obtain enough funds and food, yet not rob the bandits or oppress the commoners.

At that moment, Puppy snickered as he walked over, and reached for the biscuit in Bai Lingmiao's hands before being smacked away by her.

"Senior Bai, please give it to me. Senior Li is not hungry, but I definitely am," said Puppy.

"No. There's only a small amount of ration left. Eat your own," replied Bai Lingmiao.

"I've finished mine," said Puppy.

"Then you'll have to go hungry for a few days. You won't die from starvation so quickly," said Bai Lingmiao.

Hearing this, Puppy dejectedly scratched his ribs under his clothing. He turned around to look at the others nearby. But this time, he didn't find anyone else eating. Even the most accommodating Yang Xiaohai didn't have any spare food for him. Gradually, his eyes focused on the group of women they had rescued from the bandit hideout.

"If I had known that it would come down to this, then we should have left these ladies behind. They don't do anything besides waste our food. They are just a burden," muttered Puppy.

Those words instantly caused the women to feel afraid as they huddled together helplessly.

“Are you even a man? Why are you so full of complaints?” said Chun Xiaoman, unable to stand his complaints.

“I’m just saying it as it is. Am I wrong?” retorted Puppy.

“Don’t... abandon us! We can be useful! We know a place where there’s food. It’s quite close to this place. We can take you there,” interjected one of the women.

Those words caused everyone to look toward the group of women.

The speaker was a woman with a big mouth. From the looks of it, she could easily attract the attention of the bandits, evidently not just because of her big mouth.

As she felt everyone staring at her, she drooped her head uneasily.

“Is what you are saying true? Can you really help us find food?” Li Huowang walked over and asked. He suddenly realized that he had been wasting his time and energy. With the help from this group of locals from Hou Shu, he did not even need a map.

“There’s a village nearby... And my fourth aunt has fields there... We can go and ask...” said the woman.

Hearing this, Li Huowang studied the map in his hands once again, but found that there were no markings close to their location.

“Hehe... There are too many small villages around here. I can’t mark them all,” Jin Shanzhao was embarrassed as he came over and explained himself.

“Why bother pretending if you don’t know. Don’t delay our Daoist’s matters,” ridiculed Lu Zhuangyuan.

Hearing this, Jin Shanzhao’s face turned red. “I’m not lying! Do you know how many such villages there are in Hou Shu?!”

“Alright, stop chatting. Let’s go over and see. Bring us to your fourth aunt’s place,” said Li Huowang, his words causing everyone to stand up.

The entire group followed the big-mouthed lady as she led them toward a distant rocky mountain. When they arrived at the barren foot of the mountain, she did not stop, and continued climbing up the empty mountain.

Initially, there was still a semblance of a path, but later, it disappeared completely, and they had to get on four limbs to continue climbing upward.

There were several times when Li Huowang wondered whether this woman was lying to them. After all, this place did not seem like it had a village.

After a lot of effort, when they finally reached the top, they were greeted with a paradise-like scene.

This was a flat-topped mountain, and there was actually a village at the peak.

More importantly, there were lush green fields, a rare sight in the barren lands of Hou Shu.

“Which lunatic... Did they have nothing better to do? Why would they build a village all the way up here? I’m exhausted,” Puppy complained as he rubbed his aching legs.

“I’m guessing that it’s probably to avoid heavy taxes, levies and conscription. There are quite a few possibilities,” conjectured one of them.

“Ah, when you think about it, the people suffer a lot. There are so many things to worry about,” said Puppy.

“Are the Hou Shu officials really so strict? They even force people up the mountains. Our officials are a lot more understanding, and they only collect half of the harvest each season. The farmers are also exempt from forced manual labor,” asked Lu Zhuangyuan. He found a cheap sense of satisfaction when he compared himself to others.

As they conversed, Li Huowang had already confirmed the location of the fourth aunt of that big-mouthed lady, and started heading in that direction.

This place appeared to be quite peaceful, and each house was bright and clean. It was like a paradise that was unaffected by the turmoil outside.

“Senior Li, our village is quite similar to this. Even though we only have a few people, they are all good folk,” said Bai Lingmiao. She seemed to recall something as a faint sense of joy appeared on her face.

When we finally settle down, living with others in a place like this seems like a good choice.

Li Houwang thought to himself.

At that moment, he heard noises coming from within the houses with his keen senses.

A big group of outsiders suddenly entering the village drew the attention, as well as hostility of the villagers. But as the big-mouthed lady accurately reported her fourth aunt's name, the hostility on their faces lessened.

Things seemed to be progressing quite smoothly until they heard that this distant relative had come here to borrow food; as soon as they heard that, they refused to open their doors.

Seeing this, the big-mouthed lady stood before the closed door and pleaded with tears streaming down her face, “I... I don't know... where else to go...”

On the other hand, the people standing around were starting to get impatient and frustrated. They had to continue to endure their hunger as they had nothing to eat.

Translator's Thoughts

Here's Jin Shanzhao! Credits to 格子的乱七八

糟 on douyin

Chapter 202 - Harvest

The atmosphere turned heavy in an instant.

Just then, Chun Xiaoman noticed that Li Huowang had no reaction, and was about to speak but stopped.

"Shh," Li Huowang placed a finger on his lips, motioning for her to be quiet. Then, he tilted his head toward the south and listened carefully. After a while, a rare smile appeared on his face. "Don't worry, the food issue has been resolved."

As the others watched him, Li Huowang's body gradually shifted and slowly phased through the nearby wall.

"Wait here for me; I'll be back shortly," his voice echoed from nowhere.

"Ah, this is what my second uncle mentioned, the art of passing through walls. The gentleman is truly exceptional in every way," commented Lu Zhuangyuan.

On the other hand, Li Huowang concealed his illusion within the wall, while his body continued to remain in a hidden state. He stayed close to the wall and headed toward another building. On the way, he passed through the courtyard where they reared chickens and then stepped into the room. This allowed him to hear the conversation of the people inside more closely.

"Son, you aren't there yet. Your skills are not fully developed. Go and read the Liar's Scripture ten more times," said a man.

"Yes..." replied a youth.

"Don't blame your father for being strict; this is the foundation of our Wu Family. All of our family's assets were amassed by our ancestors by swindling them from others one at a time," said the man.

Li Huowang sighed softly. From the looks of it, this place was not the utopia it seemed. People here actually used their skills of deception to make it big.

But this fact just worked in Li Huowang's favor. Now, he wouldn't need to worry about his conscience when engaging in illegal activities to take care of their urgent needs.

Who knew that the first time I made use of my new ability would be to steal things. I had originally thought of earning money through honest means such as escorting goods and people. But now I'm actually doing things like this. Perhaps legitimate work is not meant for me.

As he contemplated this, he began to search through the entire building.

Soon, he found a hidden compartment and opened it. It was filled with all sorts of silver and gold ornaments, with various styles and varying levels of wear and tear. It was obvious that these were ill-gotten goods.

Seeing these items, Li Huowang's face lit up in delight; he had just found their travel expenses! After a moment, he quickly found a bag and filled it up with the pieces of silver and gold.

As this was happening, the father and son duo were still discussing their arts of deception in the next room over.

"Son, you're the only seedling of our family. You must learn well. If you don't, then our family's legacy will be at risk," said the man.

"I have memorized all of it, Dad. I will study hard and not let you down," replied the youth.

Hearing this, a trace of disdain appeared on Li Huowang's face. This bunch of liars actually felt proud about being from a family of liars.

After making one round, Li Huowang found their cellar and walked in. Here, he found all sorts of preserved meats and salted vegetables. He quickly brought all these outside, and then tossed them behind the wall to the people there.

This was a very strange scene. The vegetable jar would float up by itself, come to the corner of the wall, and then run off once again.

If others were to witness this, they would definitely be very shocked.

Meanwhile, the father continued to speak to his son. “When you go down the mountain this time around, use your arts of deception to find yourself a wife. I will only consider you a worthy disciple when you succeed in this endeavor.”

“Dad, can you actually deceive someone into marrying you?” asked the youth.

“Nonsense! As long as you put your heart and mind to it, you most certainly can. Back then, your mom was also hoodwinked by me, and she’s still in the dark even now,” said the father.

The more Li Huowang heard them talk, the angrier he felt. After a while, he suddenly stopped what he was doing.

Should I just kill them?

Because of his past with the Sitting Oblivion Dao, Li Huowang felt extreme hostility toward any and all liars, to the point that he felt that it was best to kill off all liars.

“Daoist, you can’t do that. They are indeed in the wrong, but that doesn’t mean that they deserve the death penalty.”

The appearance of a sudden voice beside caused Li Huowang to jump. When he turned toward the voice, he saw that the voice belonged to Monk, someone he hadn’t seen for quite some time.

Monk circled around Li Huowang and started nagging him with his little pearls of wisdom.

After a while of contemplation, Li Huowang finally decided to give up on the idea.

Monk was right; he shouldn’t kill them. He couldn’t just go around killing to deal with issues. That would only make him more and more radical; if he only held a hammer in his hands, then everything he saw would look like nails.

While a death sentence could be avoided, a life sentence was inevitable. He had decided that he would completely empty their house and allow them to savor the feeling of losing everything.

After coming to his decision, Li Huowang emptied everything from their house, taking away everything as long as it was edible or worth some money.

“Son, when you deceive others, you can’t just make things up. It is necessary to use a mixture of truth and falsehoods. That’s how you will get others to believe you,” explained the father.

“Dad, I know that. But how much truth should be mixed with falsehoods? The Liar’s Scripture does not elaborate on that,” questioned the youth.

“Fool! That obviously depends on who you are dealing with. When dealing with those that are easier to deceive, use less truth and more lies. Against those that are less believing, especially the more stubborn types, speak more truth in front of them. Then, they will believe you when you try to deceive them later. Remember: a competent liar’s words must have some truth within!”

“I understand.”

Li Huowang was about to leave, but after overhearing their conversation, he went back into the room. When he emerged again, he was holding a slightly worn out book with the words “Liar’s Scripture” written on it.

I’ll let you guys lie even more!

“How’s it going? Did you guys get everything?” asked Li Huowang as his illusory body merged with his actual body and he appeared before the others once again.

“Yes, we got everything; it’s to the point that we can’t fit anymore. But, Senior Li, where did you get all these items from?” asked Puppy, already munching on a piece of cured meat.

“That’s good. Come, we will talk on the way,” said Li

Huowang.

As they left the village, the miserable cries of the father-son duo rang out in Li Huowang's ears before gradually fading away.

"Dad! Our Liar's Scripture has been stolen!"

"Dad! Our chickens have been stolen!!"

"Dad! The pots on our stove have been stolen!!!"

After a lot of effort, they finally managed to move everything down from the rugged mountain path.

When they looked at all the heavy things that they were holding, everyone's faces were filled with joy; they wouldn't need to go hungry anymore.

The first thing they did when they got down the mountain was to find a source of water, make a fire, and enjoy a meal.

After they had eaten their fill, their anxieties disappeared, and even their tempers improved.

"Sister, I apologize for my thoughtless words from before."

Puppy beamed as he once again approached those women.

"Get away! Who doesn't know what your actual thoughts are at this point? Once you're full, you directly start thinking about dirty things," said Xiaoman, shooing him away.

"Sister Xiaoman, look at the way you're talking. My words were not intended to harm anyone, but were for the greater good..." said Puppy, trying to defend himself.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang listened to them bickering before reaching into his pocket and passing the heavier bags to Bai Lingmiao, "This is the loot from those liars. There are quite a few pieces of gold and silver; you can count them."

"Okay," replied Bai Lingmiao.

As watched the others who were now full after their meal, Li Huowang finally felt at ease.

They had managed to resolve their worry about supplies, and now all they had to do was to get out of Hou Shu. Then, their current troubles would be over.

He pondered for a moment, then flipped through the Liar's Scripture that he had gotten earlier.

There's actually a manual that specializes in teaching people the art of deception. It's my first time seeing something like this.

Heh, there are even tactics and strategies for deception here.

Originally, Li Huowang had just been planning to pass some time by flipping through the book. But as he continued to look through it, his expression became more solemn.

He found that the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao had also used some of the tactics mentioned in the book.

The Sitting Oblivion Dao's words had indeed contained a mixture of truth and falsehoods!

Chapter 203 - True? False?

“What happened to Senior Li?”

“I don’t know, he was fine until just a moment ago. How come he seems like he suddenly got possessed after glancing through that book?”

“Junior Bai, do you want to go and take a look? Is his illness acting up again?”

Under their urging, Bai Lingmiao nervously walked over and squatted beside Li Huowang. She asked, “Senior Li, are you... alright?”

As she spoke, Bai Lingmiao sneaked a glance at the rows of words that Li Huowang was staring at. She was illiterate and did not know what they meant, but from the looks of it, they seemed to be important to him.

When she saw that Li Huowang didn’t respond, Bai Lingmiao paused, then took out the whip that she used to knock the drum. Then, she used it to knock the book aside, sending it flying.

Senior Li had been reading this book before he became like this. Perhaps it is something ominous.

She then asked him again, “Senior Li, are you alright?”

On the other hand, Li Huowang, who usually had heightened senses, now could not hear what the others were saying. He was entirely focused on the lines of text that he had written on the ground.

I am Peng Zhi, one of the Three Corpses. (False)

I am Hong Zhong, one of the three leaders of Sitting Oblivion Dao. Earlier, the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao lied to me because I instructed them to do so. (False)

I killed the people in the dead town. (False)

Among the members of Sitting Oblivion Dao, there is a high-ranking person who is also a Strayed One. He has lived to the age of 190, and has completely shaken off the hallucinations brought about by being a Strayed One. (?)

As Li Huowang looked at the fourth line, he contemplated various possibilities.

Could this be real?

Since everyone wanted to capture Strayed Ones, he knew that they were clearly valuable. If they could make use of Strayed Ones, then why could the Strayed Ones themselves not use their own powers?

Due to his newly acquired abilities, Li Huowang deduced that the potential of a Strayed One far surpassed what he had imagined.

If there's a way, then that would mean that this illness can be cured! Then, I can become a normal person. No, I may even be able to completely control this strength. If that were the case, then no one would dare to deceive or harm me anymore!

With excitement bubbling within him, Li Huowang felt a surge of strength course through his body. Even his mood turned from being gloomy to becoming more impassioned.

However, he gradually calmed himself down. Everything hinged on one major premise—that the Sitting Oblivion Dao member was speaking the truth back then.

But based on their past interactions, it was rather uncertain.

Li Huowang did not know the probability of the last statement being true. But even if there was only the tiniest sliver of a chance, it was already extremely tempting for him.

After all, he was desperate.

His desire was not just for more power, but it was for a way out of his suffering.

His random bouts of switching between reality and hallucinations was too tormenting. He did not want to go through the excruciating pain he had gone through before; it was something that was even worse than death.

I can't do anything right now, but after we escape from Hou Shu, I can start gathering information on this slowly, and analyze it rationally.

I also need to be cautious, and not rashly believe any of the words uttered by the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao. Be it true or false, I need to take things one step at a time, only using the truths as my reference.

After sorting out his thoughts, he stood up. When he looked around, he noticed that the others were watching him with strange expressions.

“Why is everyone staring at me? Is there something on my face?” asked Li Huowang.

“No, there’s nothing,” said Yang Xiaohai as he tried to pick up the large pot and place it on his back. However, Gao Zhijian suddenly reached out and lifted it with his big hand.

At the same time, the rest of them also started to pack up their belongings, as though they were preparing to set off.

Li Huowang looked around, then picked up the Liar’s Scripture that was lying in the distance, and started preparing to continue their journey.

But at this point, he suddenly had a thought.

Hold on! Could those two liars also be from the Sitting Oblivion Dao? Are they planning to deceive me again? No, I need to go back there.

With a grim look on his face, he threw the Liar’s Scripture on the ground, and started heading back toward the flat-topped mountain.

The others were bewildered by this, unable to understand what was going on. For a while, everyone remained silent.

“I’ll keep an eye on him, in case his illness acts up on the way,” Chun Xiaoman said, then picked up her sword and followed him.

As the rest of them waited, four hours quickly passed and it started turning dark. At that moment, they saw Li Huowang once again coming down from the flat-topped mountain with Chun Xiaoman following behind him with a disturbed look.

On the other hand, Li Huowang’s expression was clearly better than it had been before he had gone up the mountain; it was as though a heavy weight had been lifted from his shoulders.

“What happened?” Puppy ran to Chun Xiaoman and whispered.

“Those two liars are pitiful. It’s really terrible. They were just deceiving others, and did not deserve to die,” said Xiaoman.

“Why did Senior Li do that?” asked Puppy, surprised.

Faced with this question, Chun Xiaoman hesitated, unsure of how to explain. “He... wanted to see how many faces those two had. Evidently, they only had one face each.”

Hearing this, Puppy hissed, his scalp tingling.

“Quit chatting. We should hit the road before it’s completely dark. Don’t forget that we are still being pursued,” said Li Huowang.

Li Huowang’s words prompted both of them to pick up their pace and catch up with the others. They both stopped discussing what had happened on the flat-topped mountain.

Just then, another unexpected event occurred as they were preparing to set off.

“Senior Li, what’s happening? Are you okay?”

At this moment, Li Huowang had an extremely distressed expression on his face as he clutched his head with both hands. He shouted, “...chains... Chain me up quickly! It’s coming!”

“Senior Li, we don’t have the chains! They were all on the carriage!”

“Then quickly dig a hole and bury me! Hurry! Don’t let me run around!”

Before they had finished digging the hole, Li Huowang had already returned to a ward filled with the disinfectants. There was a person standing before him. It was a young, bespectacled man in a white coat.

The man smiled slightly and pushed his glasses up. “Li Huowang? You’re finally awake? Let me introduce myself. I’m your attending physician, Dr. Hou. How are you feeling now? It seems that you have been having fewer and fewer periods of wakefulness compared to before.”

Li Huowang looked around and asked, “Where’s my mom?”

Hearing this, a warm smile spread across Dr. Hou’s face, and he said amiably, “Your mom had something to attend to outside. She had been here until just a moment ago, but you had not yet awoken. Li Huowang, if you truly care about your mom, then you need to cooperate with my treatment. The sooner you recover, the earlier you can repay her for all she has done for you. Let’s have a chat. I know you think that this place is a hallucination. That’s alright, then how about we talk about your “real world” there? From the looks of it, many... interesting things have happened over there.”

Chapter 204 - Wang Wei

When he heard Dr. Hou reveal his identity, Li Huowang immediately turned away and stopped talking. He had no interest in listening to the nonsense of a doctor within the hallucination.

When Dr. Hou saw his patient's resistance, he did not say much either. He just tapped a few words on his tablet and left the room.

As soon as he stepped out, Li Huowang heard a new pair of footsteps entering the room. "Little buddy, I heard from Dr. Hou that you are awake. Can you go to the restroom by yourself? I'd rather not have to change your catheter bag. Please take some pity on me."

Even without opening his eyes, Li Huowang recognized this distinctive voice with its characteristic chattering. It belonged to Nurse Wang who had talked to him over the phone.

Suddenly, a warm towel was placed on his face and it began rubbing. "Here, young master, let me wash your face."

Li Huowang pushed the towel aside and glared at the newcomer. This was a plump man with an unmemorable face. There was a blue nurse's cap on his head, and he was also wearing a blue nurse's uniform. The only distinctive feature on his face was a mole on the left side of his chin.

"Ah? Young master, you are awake? Do you need my help with anything?" asked Nurse Wang.

Li Huowang looked at him, annoyed. "Can you stop talking? Do you enjoy chatting with mentally ill patients? Aren't you afraid that you'll go insane yourself?"

"Well, mentally ill patients are quite interesting. Yesterday, the patient in bed 89 next door was being quite picky with his food. Do you know why? He said that the eggplants seemed shifty, and that he was afraid they would do something bad to his tummy. Hahaha!” laughed Nurse Wang.

After laughing, Nurse Wang resumed his duties. He picked up the urinary catheter bag and headed to the bathroom to empty it, and then he returned.

“Your urine is too yellow. Looks like you’ve become more heaty. Young people are really quite something; it’s even possible to become heaty through hospital food,” commented Nurse Wang. Then, without waiting for Li Huowang to reply, he continued, “Hey, kid, back at the nurses’ station, I heard that you say that you obtained some supernatural abilities? Why, have you turned into an Immortal over there?”

“Is that any of your business?” asked Li Huowang. This Nurse Wang was like a fly that buzzed around him incessantly, making him feel extremely vexed.

“Tell me more, I love to hear your nonsense; it’s really interesting. I can’t play with my phone when I’m on shift, so I rely on you to pass time. I also heard that you found a woman over there? How is it? Is it lifelike? If it is, then you’ve hit the jackpot!”

Anger flared in Li Huowang’s eyes as he glared at the man who was making inappropriate comments about Bai Lingmiao.

But the next moment, the rage on his face vanished, and it was replaced by a deep distrust. “What’s your surname?”

“Didn’t I tell you just now? My surname is Wang. You can call me Nurse Wang. Or, you can follow beds 65 and 31, and call me Handsome. I don’t mind either,” said Nurse Wang.

“Wang? Are you Wang Deqiu?” asked Li Huowang.

“No? What kind of crappy name is that? My name is Wang Wei,” said Nurse Wang.

Hearing this, the doubt in Li Huowang’s eyes vanished, and only chilliness remained in his gaze. “You’re lying to me. You are no nurse. Your true identity is that of a doctor.”

Puzzled, Wang Wei scratched his head. "What? Is your illness flaring up again?"

"You led my mom away, because she has an honest personality, and you were afraid that she'll expose the situation. Previously, you kept provoking me with your words, in an attempt to elicit a response from me."

Hearing this, a helpless smile appeared on Wang Wei's face. He bent down to connect the urine bag, and then turned to the door and said, "Come in."

The ward's door opened, and Dr. Hou from before walked in. Then, he bowed and greeted Wang Wei, "Teacher."

"Did you see that? The patient is still rather sensitive. They only lose self-control when their illness acts up. In stable conditions, they're just like anyone else; probably even smarter than normal people. So, you must treat patients normally. Don't treat them like fools just because they are mentally ill," said Wang Wei. Then, he turned back to Li Huowang. "Let me introduce myself. I am your attending physician, Dr. Wang Wei. It's a pleasure to meet you."

"Why pretend to be a nurse?" questioned Li Huowang.

"Because you have a strong aversion to doctors. So I thought of using a different identity to talk to you. But, there's not much difference between a doctor or a nurse. We're all here to serve patients," said Wang Wei.

After uncovering the man's true identity, Li Huowang closed his eyes and stopped interacting with him, quietly waiting for the time to pass. Since he had the time, then he would rather think about how to quickly leave Hou Shu, than to waste time talking nonsense to him.

"Li Huowang, do you really think that it's possible that I am nothing, and just a figment of your imagination?" asked Wang Wei.

"Hmm?" Li Huowang opened his eyes.

Seeing the patient respond, Wang Wei continued, "I often wonder why our self-perception is so fascinating. If someone believes that they are something, then they will become that thing. Did you know that not all conscious beings work the same way. For example, in the minds of some animals, or even infants, there is no concept of 'self'. Beings like them can never suffer from mental illnesses. Speaking of which, mental illnesses can be considered to be a more advanced condition."

"What are you trying to get at? You're all over the place. Dr. Wang, go and take a break if you can't do this. Don't end up having a nervous breakdown of your own in the midst of attempting to treat a patient," said Li Huowang.

"Let me correct you," said Wang Wei as he continuously circled around Li Huowang's bed. "It's not nervous, but mental. There are many professional diseases amongst doctors, and mental breakdown is one of them. So strictly speaking, you're not wrong."

Li Huowang couldn't be bothered with him, and closed his eyes again.

"Li Huowang, based on my analysis of your previous recorded conversations, it seems that you've acquired some sort of an ability there, like a power to displace yourself, right? Did you know that this corresponds quite well with schizophrenia? You're already quite ill now. You can't afford to get any more sick. It's alright if you don't respond to me. After all, my salary will still be the same. But, your mom will be very saddened. She paid quite a large sum to hire me after all. Oh, and I forgot to tell you. This is a private hospital, and the rates here are quite high. And since it's private, very little of it is covered by medical insurance. Do you really want to stay here like this for the rest of your life? Have you ever thought about the burden that you're placing on your family? As the saying goes, there is no dutiful child before the sickbed. It will be the same for your mother and the others. You're so stubborn, and never cooperate with the treatment. Be it your girlfriend or your mother, they will all eventually leave you. I've seen that happen far too many times. Ultimately, you'll likely be locked up in a cheap hospital, unable to come out your entire life, and grow old in loneliness."

Chapter 205 - Fight

As Wang Wei continued to speak, his tone gradually became heavier. “Of course, aside from your mother, there’s also your girlfriend! They will all eventually come to despise you because nobody wants to be around a lunatic.”

Seeing Li Huowang lying on the bed and continuing to glare at him, Wang Wei continued, “Do you know how long it takes for her to get here by train? How many transfers she has to take? How many excuses she has to come up with to explain to her parents? No, you don’t know. Because you only think about yourself. That lady named Yang Na has been sacrificing so much for you. But what about yourself? You have been uncooperative with the treatment and unwilling to take even a single step out of your comfort zone. Li Huowang! What kind of man are you?!”

As heard all this, the veins on Li Huowang’s forehead throbbed.

“Li Huowang, you don’t deserve her! Yang Na should have long since given up on you and gone away to find someone better! Then, the final outcome would be her getting together with someone else and bearing their children. And all the while you would just continue to lie here on the sickbed and imagine them together in bed!” continued Wang Wei.

“Shut up!”

Creak~

The straps restraining Li Huowang began to tear as he glared at Wang Wei intensely.

Wang Wei could see the hostility in Li Huowang’s eyes; even so, he wasn’t the least bit afraid as he walked over to the bedside and removed the restraints.

As soon as he was free, Li Huowang pounced on Wang Wei and grabbed his nurse's uniform, and then threw a punch. "What do you know?! You're just a hallucination! Do you know anything about what I've been through?! You don't know anything!"

Wang Wei also started to fight back. Soon, a fist landed on Li Huowang's face, causing his nose to start bleeding. At that moment, Wang Wei's expression seemed to have become as crazed as Li Huowang's—his teeth were clenched as he stared back at Li Huowang.

"Then let me tell you! I do know! You think you're the only one who has experienced hallucinations? Wrong! I was once like that as well, but I managed to overcome it, and now, I'm a qualified doctor! So, I'm far stronger than you, you coward!" shouted Wang Wei.

As they continued to fight fiercely, a syringe suddenly plunged into Li Huowang's arm from the side. Immediately, Li Huowang felt as though his brain had rusted as his movements became sluggish and he suddenly felt very weak.

Wang Wei, along with his student, supported Li Huowang and restrained him to the bed once again.

Then, Wang Wei stuck his fingers into his mouth to massage his slightly loosened teeth while gasping for air. "This young man hasn't had any exercise for a long time, but his strength is still quite impressive."

"Teacher, you..." Dr. Hou looked puzzled. Though he had heard of his unique style of doing things when they first met, he still found it quite unusual to see a doctor engage a patient in physical combat.

Wang Wei stood by the bedside and looked down on Li Huowang, whose face was bruised and battered.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang continued to stare at this person as his mind slowly became a whirling mess. Gradually, the two figures before him began to change, and grew much larger. Their voices echoed, and it seemed like drumbeats were echoing along with their speech.

“His condition is more unique in that he has very high psychological barriers. It’s to the point that he’s almost emotionally isolated. Our first step is to increase his interaction with the real world, to allow him to meddle in this world through his own senses,” explained Wang Wei.

“But... the books don’t say that...” questioned Dr. Hou.

“The books don’t say? Then do they describe such a case in the books? Don’t be too rigid with what you’ve learned. Sometimes, you have to be flexible and adapt,” retorted Wang Wei.

Li Huowang didn’t know what happened after he passed out. The only thing he remembered was that it was very messy. When he woke up again, he found that the world in front of him was upside down, with a large round moon hanging below him.

It took him a while to realize that it wasn’t the moon that was upside down. Instead, it was him who was turned upside down.

It seemed that he had used his new ability while he was unconscious.

He slowly adjusted his body, and then retraced his steps with the help of the chaotic marks on the ground. It didn’t take long before Li Huowang spotted Puppy peeking out from behind a rock.

“Didn’t I instruct you to bury me? How come you let me escape?” asked Li Huowang.

Puppy had an innocent look on his face as he said, “Senior Li, we did bury you. But the problem is that you stepped out from the ground... again.”

“Stepped out? What do you mean?” demanded Li Huowang.

“Just like that time, when we were mourning for you, and you climbed out of the grave,” explained Puppy.

Puppy’s words instantly made Li Huowang’s expression worsen. He hadn’t really considered this aspect previously.

Gaining a new ability had indeed made him stronger. And perhaps, this was a good thing to others. However, that may not necessarily be so for himself; after all, Li Huowang understood very well that he was a lunatic.

If there was anything more dangerous than a lunatic, then it was a lunatic trained in using a weapon.

The greater the power, the greater the responsibility. That was true for others. But for himself, the greater the power, the more danger he posed to others.

No matter what happens in the hallucination, I must try to remain as calm as possible.

Li Huowang pondered these matters as he silently walked back.

On the way back, Li Huowang saw the others looking around while carrying torches. It seemed like they were all looking for him; from the looks of it, he had walked quite far.

Li Huowang could see the fear in their eyes. He did not say anything, and just continued to walk back.

When he returned to their previous location, he saw that everyone was back.

Li Huowang appeared behind Bai Lingmiao, and said, "I'm back."

Hearing his voice, Bai Lingmiao shuddered and slowly turned around, revealing the bruised right side of her face to him.

When he saw this, an intense sense of self-blame washed over him, making it hard for him to breathe. It was clear that he was the one who had inflicted those injuries on her.

On the other hand, tears welled up in Bai Lingmiao's eyes as she hugged Li Huowang, "That's great, Senior Li! I thought I'd never see you again!"

Seeing this, Li Huowang wrapped his trembling hands around Bai Lingmiao, as if he wanted to pull her toward him.

Once his sense of self-blame lessened, a strong sense of fear swept over him. It was fortunate that he had only punched someone this time. But what if he had a knife next time around?

Despair inducing images flashed through Li Huowang's mind, causing his pupils to tremble slightly.

Even though he didn't say a word, Bai Lingmiao seemed to be able to sense what he was thinking as she reached out with her fair hand to stroke his back. "Senior Li, it's okay. I know you didn't mean it. It's just a little bit of swelling; it'll be gone in a few days."

However, her words couldn't improve Li Huowang's mood. He whispered softly in her ear, "Promise me, if there's a next time, you... will stay further away from me."

"Alright," Bai Lingmiao nodded obediently, her true thoughts remaining unknown to him.

Li Huowang's gaze slowly moved past Bai Lingmiao's shoulder, and his emotions became increasingly resolute. In the end, his gaze settled on the line of words that he had carved into the ground.

Among the members of Sitting Oblivion Dao, there is a high-ranking person who is also a Strayed One. He has lived to the age of 190 and has completely shaken off the hallucinations brought about by being a Strayed One.

Chapter 206 - Jin Shanzhao

The ox-cart steadily moved forward as it creaked here and there.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang and the rest were slowly walking beside the ox-cart.

After placing their luggage onto the cart, they didn't have a lot to carry and were thus much more relaxed.

All of these ox-carts were bought by Sun Baolu from a small town that they had just passed by. They still had to travel a long way, and so it was necessary to purchase these ox-carts.

However, Jin Shanzhao was still carrying his bamboo basket as he hummed. He felt much better being surrounded by the lush green grass.

Since such an environment couldn't be seen in the central region of Hou Shu, Jin Shanzhao knew that they were close to the border.

At that moment, he opened his map and tried comparing it with their current location.

"Hmm... A few more days and we should be able to reach the border," muttered Jin Shanzhao.

Once he finished checking the map, he stored it once again and clasped his hands together toward Li Huowang. "Young Daoist, we will be reaching the border soon. Congratulations. As long as you exit the border and enter Qing Qiu, you will be fine."

Li Huowang was still busy reading the Liar's Scripture. Hearing Jin Shanzhao's words, he raised his head and nodded before continuing with his reading.

“Where are you planning to go? Will you travel with us to Qing Qiu and the Liang Kingdom?” asked Li Huowang.

“No, I will not be joining you on your journey. I will send you off to the border and return,” replied Jin Shanzhao.

“Return? Where to? Aren’t you afraid they will capture you?” asked Li Huowang.

Jin Shanzhao smiled confidently. “No worries. I have my methods of protecting myself.”

Hearing this, Li Huowang turned to look at him; he had a feeling that the man was just bluffing. Back then, Jin Shanzhao was scared shitless by the outlaw soldiers, but now, he was trying to put on a brave front.

They were both still chatting when they saw a village in the distance.

Once they got close, the group stopped outside while Jin Shanzhao and Li Huowang entered the village to buy some food.

Having just two people helped them avoid garnering unwanted attention, and Jin Shanzhao was good with his words. It made communicating with the villagers much easier.

Li Huowang had no intention of stopping here. They had decided to quickly buy the food and continued with their journey; they needed to escape Hou Shu as fast as possible. Even though it was tiring, they had no choice due to the outlaw soldiers that were looking for them.

Just as they had entered the village, Li Huowang caught the scent of something nasty. He followed the scent and saw a pig pen. The pen was built directly below the houses.

When he saw what the black pigs were eating, Li Huowang’s voice trembled, “Do they... feed the pigs that?”

Looking at these pigs and the pig pen, Li Huowang recalled the Benevolent Nunnery and Abbess Jingxin who had died within the pig pen.

“Hmm? And why would you say that? Isn’t this usually how you rear pigs? This is why I don’t eat pork and dog meat; both of them feast on feces,” said Jin Shanzhao.

Li Huowang suppressed his sadness and looked at Jin Shanzhao. “Wait, you mean to say that everyone else does the same thing to rear their pigs?”

“Naturally. This was how it has been for hundreds of years,” said Jin Shanzhao as he picked up a stone and wrote something onto the soft soil. He wrote the character for ‘home’. Even though he used a piece of rock, his handwriting was still quite neat and meticulous.

“Do you see this? The upper part of the character symbolizes the roof of the house, while the lower part of the character symbolizes pigs [1]. A roof over pigs makes the character for ‘home’. Hence, people have been feeding pigs with feces ever since ancient times. If we can read characters and decipher their components, we can see how culture and tradition have shaped them,” explained Jin Shanzhao.

Li Huowang squatted down slowly and stared at the character. After a while, he touched the character with tenderness in his eyes.

“So this is home... Looks like I might’ve misunderstood the Abbess,” muttered Li Huowang. His eyes started to water when he remembered all the help that the Benevolent Nunnery had given him.

Even if the entire world had gone mad, that was one of the only places where he had felt warmth. Now that place is no more.

“Young Daoist?” As Jin Shanzhao saw Li Huowang’s emotion become unstable, he took a step back.

After traveling together for so long, Jin Shanzhao had long since noticed that something was wrong with Li Huowang. Even though Li Huowang had many powers, his mind was... off.

Hearing the voice, Li Huowang buried the character for ‘home’ with some soil and stood up. Then, he once again turned to look at Jin Shanzhao, his gaze back to normal.

“Old man, your identity must be very special,” said Li Huowang.

A regular civilian would only recognize some words; most of them were even illiterate. Then how did Jin Shanzhao write with such a neat handwriting, even with a stone?

Jin Shanzhao stood there and considered his question.

“I’ve saved your life and you won’t even tell me this? No need then. Let’s go and find some villagers to buy some food,” said Li Huowang.

Just as Li Huowang took a few steps forward, Jin Shanzhao called for him, “It’s fine. I can just tell you. I am actually a follower of Zhong Heng Jia.”

“Zhong Heng Jia?” Li Huowang turned around slowly. He didn’t know what those words meant.

As Jin Shanzhao began to explain what it was, his voice became more and more spirited, “The nations divide themselves while trying to unify everyone. The weaker nations would ally with each other to defeat a stronger nation; that is Zhong. On the other hand, a strong nation would try to conquer everything; that is Heng. Hence this is Zhong Heng.”

As Jin Shanzhao explained, Li Huowang slowly understood what he meant. It was a special job that existed only during times when the nations were divided.

Jin Shanzhao’s job was related to intelligence—to act as a tactician beside a warlord or an emperor; to help his lord with strategies and insights, to unify the nations.

To Li Huowang, all he understood was that Jin Shanzhao worked as an intelligent man that helped his lord to unify the nations.

“To understand the bigger picture, analyze the situation, be good at communicating, able to adapt to any situation, and have both intelligence and bravery while making snap decisions. This is what it means to be a follower of Zhong Heng Jia,” explained Jin Shanzhao.

When Li Huowang saw how proud Jin Shanzhao was of his work, he interrupted the latter, “Since you are so great, then why did you not try to persuade that General from before?”

Hearing this question, Jin Shanzhao became sheepish. “Uh... I’m afraid that in this case the sword is mightier than the pen, especially since we were dealing with the outlaw soldiers of Hou Shu.”

“Hehe.” Hearing this, Li Huowang just chuckled and walked further into the village with Jin Shanzhao following him.

“Young Daoist, I know that you don’t believe me, but don’t worry. Once you leave the kingdom of Hou Shu, I will make sure to do my own job and stop them from obtaining your whereabouts through me. Since you’ve saved my life, I will definitely repay you. Once I become an officer of the kingdom of Hou Shu—”

“But you still don’t have a lord. Doesn’t that mean you are jobless?” interrupted Li Huowang.

“No worries. I will get a job soon. Once I become an officer, I will never forget your help,” assured Jin Shanzhao.

“Sure, let’s talk about it once you have a job. But I would probably be in the Liang Kingdom by then,” said Li Huowang.

As they continued to chat, the atmosphere around them was quite pleasant and everything was going fine. However, at that moment, Li Huowang suddenly grabbed his sword as if preparing for a fight.

“Young Daoist?” Jin Shanzhao followed Li Huowang’s gaze and saw several black jars, each of them plastered with a red sheet that had the upside down character for ‘prosperity’.

1. 家 🏠

Chapter 207 - Someone's Staring

“What’s wrong, young Daoist?” Jin Shanzhao asked as he took a few steps back upon seeing how agitated Li Huowang was.

To Jin Shanzhao, those black jars looked quite normal, just like any other clay jars that were used to pickle vegetables. The only difference he could spot were the red sheets with the upside down character for ‘prosperity’.

However, Li Huowang did not let his guard down. “Something just looked at me from within those jars!”

“Looked at you?” Jin Shanzhao was confused and re-examined the jars once more. “Could there be someone inside? But the jars are too small to fit a person.”

“I didn’t say it was a human!” said Li Huowang as he unfurled the Profound Records and shot one of his fingernails toward the black jar, shattering it in the process.

Splash!

The black jars broke one by one as the brown brine and pickled vegetables sprayed everywhere.

Li Huowang kept his guard up and carefully walked over, using his sword to pick up the pieces of the jars as he inspected them.

However, Li Huowang couldn’t find anything wrong. They were ordinary jars used to pickle vegetables.

The sound of jars being broken immediately caught the attention of the people inside. An old lady with a walking stick walked out. “You rascal! Why did you break my jars? Pay up!”

Li Huowang sheathed his sword and threw some fragmented pieces of silver toward her. Then, he carefully retreated, his eyes trained on the old lady.

“Daoist, where are we going? Aren’t we supposed to buy food?” asked Jin Shanzhao hurriedly.

“We need to leave this place now. We can buy food somewhere else!” said Li Huowang. He had lost any and all the trust he had in this village.

He would rather have guessed wrongly than be ambushed by something he didn’t know about; he had grown to be wary of everything in this bizarre world.

The old lady didn’t stop them from leaving. She just grumbled as she picked up the pieces of silver.

After leaving the village, Li Huowang brought everyone with him and resumed their journey once more. This time, they didn’t stop until midnight.

When they stopped, they were in a bamboo forest. At this point, Li Huowang felt that they were far enough away from the danger regardless of what the thing inside the jar was.

They set up a campfire and started cooking. Even though everyone was tired, they still needed to eat or their body would fall apart.

Li Huowang did not partake in the cooking. Instead, he stood guard while standing on the ox-cart. His eyes were extremely sharp and could see even within the darkness.

At the same time, Bun, who somehow understood what Li Huowang was doing, placed its nose on the ground. Then, it started sniffing the area to make sure that there was nothing suspicious.

Nothing happened even as the meal was prepared. It was as if the gaze he had felt within the village was nothing more than an illusion.

Did I make a mistake?

Li Huowang started doubting himself. To be honest, he didn’t even fully trust himself.

But then he immediately tossed those doubts to the back of his mind. Everything was in the past and there was no need to be hesitant anymore.

“Senior Li, the food is ready. Come and eat,” called out one of the assistants.

Tonight’s meal consisted of bamboo shoot noodles. They had collected the fresh bamboo shoots from within the bamboo forest. The bamboo shoots were quite crisp and sweet. Even though there wasn’t any meat, since they had used pork lard to cook the meal, it smelled heavenly. Li Huowang gladly ate the meal without a complaint.

All of them were huddled around the campfire as they ate their meal. The sounds of munching and slurping did not stop.

After eating their meal, all of them felt sleepy. Soon, they were lying down and covered in their blankets as they fell asleep.

However, Li Huowang was on night duties tonight. He trusted no one else to do this.

At this moment, there were no other noises in the bamboo forest besides the crackling of the flames.

Li Huowang sat beside the fireplace as he carefully caressed Bun’s soft fur. Unfortunately, given that he wasn’t a robot, he too soon felt sleepy. He shook his head in an attempt to stave off his sleepiness, but it was to no avail. Then, he took out one of the sharp pikes from his bag of torture tools and used it to stab his right palm.

The blood that poured out made his robes become an even deeper shade of red. Li Huowang’s body instantly tensed up from the pain and he no longer felt so sleepy.

“Young Daoist, why not switch with me? An old man like me doesn't sleep much anyway.”

Li Huowang didn't need to see who it was to know that the voice belonged to Lu Zhuangyuan. The footsteps and the smell of the smoke gave him away. “Troupe Leader Lu, go and sleep. We have a long way to travel tomorrow and you should rest, or you might collapse.”

Lu Zhuangyuan approached Li Huowang and sat beside him, his face filled with even more wrinkles than before. Then, he carefully took out three strips of tobacco before mixing them with some dried leaves and placing the mixture within his smoke pipe.

“Daoist, what do you think of my youngest son?” asked Lu Zhuangyuan.

“Hm?” Li Huowang looked at Lu Xiucan who was currently sleeping with his older brother and sister-in-law. He had never really thought highly of Lu Xiucan. Not only was he cowardly, he was also very hesitant and didn't have much self-confidence.

“Young Daoist, I know that this is just wishful thinking... But I would still like to give this a chance. Could you take him in as a disciple? He's technically not a performer yet because he still hasn't perfected his singing. I hope that you won't dislike him. I don't expect you to teach him everything you know, but at the very least our ancestors would be happy if he manages to learn even one of your powers,” said Lu Zhuangyuan.

Just as Lu Zhuangyuan finished speaking, Li Huowang suddenly stood up.

“They are here! Everyone, wake up!” Li Huowang shouted while the rest of them tried their best to shake off their grogginess.

“Prepare yourselves!” Li Huowang warned the others as he slowly approached one side of the bamboo forest. The darkness within the forest made it look even more sinister.

It wasn't long before Li Huowang saw two white urns within the bamboo forest. The urns weren't large, only around the size of the watermelon. There was a long sheet of red with words plastered on each of the two urns.

One of them read ‘Deceased Mother, Yang Fengling’ while the other read ‘Deceased Grandfather, Li Gongquan’.

It was clear that these were cremation urns. There were even signs of worship in front of them.

Seeing this scene, Li Huowang hesitated.

Should I smash them? Or would something pop out if I smashed them?

After much consideration, Li Huowang carefully retreated. At the same time, the bonfire disappeared as all of them ran.

It was only after some time had passed that the lids of the two urns slowly lifted up. Then, the head of a child popped out from each of the two urns, both of their faces smeared with white powder.

They were not normal children either. Their heads were roughly the size of a man's fist. The red makeup on their cheeks amplified the paleness of the rest of their faces.

Both of them looked at each other and chuckled. Then, they raised their pale white arms and legs before climbing out from the urns.

Both of them were just about to leave when a shadow fell from the skies and blocked their path.

Li Huowang gritted his teeth, as his bloodshot eyes glared at the two weird things in front of him.

Chapter 208 - Danger

The ‘children’ were surprised and afraid when they saw Li Huowang’s towering figure.

“So you do know fear!” said Li Huowang as he unsheathed his sword while releasing a thick murderous intent.

With just a single stroke of the sword, the urns were smashed and the two ‘children’ were beheaded.

But they did not bleed. Instead, brown ash flew out from their pale bodies. Within the brown ash were bits and pieces of white bones.

The ‘children’ were made from the ashes of the cremated!

“Hang on. This doesn’t look like an evil being that spawned naturally...” muttered Li Huowang as he checked the urns and saw fingerprints on some of the shrapnels.

Sha~ Sha~ Sha~

At that moment, the sound of paper ruffling through the bamboo leaves rang out from all directions, causing Li Huowang to stand up. Knowing that he was in a difficult position, he snarled.

There weren’t just one or two sets of eyes gazing at Li Huowang; he could feel numerous gazes coming from every direction. He was surrounded!

Then, Li Huowang saw what it was. These beings were different; they had a body, with each of them wearing funeral clothes that were usually worn by the dead.

They also had white urns instead of heads.

Each of the urns had a strip of red paper plastered to it, the ‘gazes’ seemingly coming from the paper itself.

They flickered amongst the darkness of the bamboo forest, appearing and disappearing from time to time.

Li Huowang knew that they were moving, but he couldn't see how they moved. They were slowly approaching him using an unknown method.

After a moment, Li Huowang unfurled the Profound Records and grabbed his pliers, ready to pull out his teeth at a moment's notice.

Just then, something red appeared on his face and covered his vision.

It was a red talisman, similar to the yellow talismans attached to the foreheads of zombies he had seen in movies.

Li Huowang quickly ripped it off and saw the words written on the red talisman: Deceased, Li Huowang.

Staring at the words, Li Huowang's mind quickly raced with all of the information he knew about this world.

Are they trying to convert me into them? Who are they? No wait, I think I've heard about them before while I was at the Zephyr Temple.

At that moment, a single name appeared in his mind.

Mountain Grandma! They are the Mountain Grandmas!

As his thoughts reached this point, Li Huowang raised his pliers, but not to pull out his teeth; instead, he intended to sacrifice his left eye.

Pop!

As he sacrificed his left eye without any hesitation, a sinister light enveloped the surroundings. Immediately, all of the nearby Mountain Grandmas were covered by this sinister light.

And then, they disappeared. Everything that was enveloped by the light had vanished.

Li Huowang took this chance and quickly ran back up the path. Everyone else was still waiting for Li Huowang on the path, but they didn't know what had just happened.

"Run! Leave the bamboo forest! It's too dangerous here!" shouted Li Huowang.

When they saw Li Huowang's missing left eye, none of them objected to his command. As blood continued to drip from his eye socket, all of them disregarded their fatigue and ran as fast as they could.

They didn't stop even after they had exited the bamboo forest. What awaited them was a grassy plain. Even then, they continued to run on the endless field of grass until dawn.

At that point, Jin Shanzhao threw his bamboo basket down onto the ground and sat down, his shirt drenched in sweat. He panted rigorously while trying to catch his breath. Then, he plucked some of the grass before placing it back down powerlessly. "Ha... Ha... Qing... We are... almost... in Qing Qiu... Ha..."

Meanwhile, Li Huowang was once again perched on the ox-cart. This time around, because of the fact that there was nothing blocking his view in the plains, he could maximize his sharp vision and survey everything around them despite only having a single eye at the moment.

If the Mountain Grandmas were pursuing them even after they had run so far away, then Li Huowang would have no choice but to fight them.

Thankfully the sun continued to rise, the warm rays of sunlight washing away the coldness within Li Huowang's body. He could no longer feel any gazes.

Back within the bamboo forest, the Mountain Grandmas were long gone. Then, one of the stones on the ground suddenly spoke. "What should we do? It doesn't seem like he is someone we can defeat. Even the Mountain Grandmas we lured toward them were defeated. Should we request for backup?"

The stone had just finished speaking when one of the bamboo shoots spoke up, "Why even bother wasting our time with them? I remember that Peng Longteng was trying to find that brat. We should just tell her where they are heading instead."

“You are right. In the end, if she somehow ends up causing a mess of things, then we can just push the blame onto her. On the flip side, if she is successful, then we will also get some merits at least,” replied the stone.

Then, the stone and bamboo shoot became quiet once more, never to speak again.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang and the group rested on the grassy plain for an entire day. They had no choice. As much as they wanted to continue running, they were still human.

Thankfully nothing else happened, except for a few people walking past them.

At this moment, Bai Lingmiao was sitting beside the sleeping Li Huowang, her heart aching at the sight of his wound.

Even though Li Huowang was sleeping, it was not restful at all. He continued to move in his sleep, murmuring something all the time.

As she saw this, Bai Lingmiao gingerly placed her hand onto Li Huowang’s bloody eye socket. “How painful this must be...”

Bam!

Li Huowang suddenly woke up and moved rapidly, both his hands already placed on Bai Lingmiao’s neck.

Everyone was shocked to see what had happened, including Li Huowang.

After a moment of stunned silence, Li Huowang immediately let go and inspected Bai Lingmiao’s neck. When he confirmed that she was not hurt, and was merely shocked, he felt relieved. Then, he hugged her and kissed her, refusing to let her get out of his embrace.

“Senior Li... Everyone is still watching...” muttered Bai Lingmiao.

Hearing this, Li Huowang finally stopped and sighed. “Please stay further away from me when I’m sleeping next time.”

“But... We’ve always been sleeping together.”

“Listen to me. I’m a bit tense during these times so we can sleep together again once this crisis is over, ok?” said Li Huowang.

“Alright... But Senior Li... Your eye...”

“No worries. This is better. At least like this they will have a harder time recognizing me,” reassured Li Huowang.

Li Huowang and the rest continued their journey the next day. They walked for three more days before they saw the border on the afternoon of the third day.

The border was essentially just a short wall with a few soldiers. At the same time, the walls were quite crooked, a clear indication of the sloppiness.

“This is only natural; Qing Qiu and Hou Shu have always been allies. They never had to be wary of each other,” explained Jin Shanzhao upon noticing Li Huowang’s curiosity.

“Allies? Doesn’t that mean that the outlaw soldiers would be able to cross over into Qing Qiu?” asked Li Huowang as he stared at the busy street in front of him.

“Impossible. If the soldiers of Hou Shu entered Qing Qiu, then it would mean war. It would be a much more serious situation than killing a few thousand of their own civilians,” replied Jin Shanzhao.

Hearing that, Li Huowang felt slightly more relaxed.

Then, he recalled something and looked back at the old man.

“Will you be turning back now?”

Jin Shanzhao smiled and bowed. “Young Daoist, may we meet again. I will never forget the fact that you saved my life. If I do end up becoming an officer, then I will repay you graciously.”

Li Huowang chuckled. “No need. Just find a place and live out your life quietly. Might as well retire before you even start working.”

Hearing this, Jin Shanzhao suddenly became serious for once. “The only reason I’ve learned so much is for the sake of my future lord! How could I not use the knowledge I've accumulated over tens of years? My dream is to stop the wars between nations! I will bring peace to the lands!"

As he spoke, Jin Shanzhao's eyes were blazing with passion.

Li Huowang was impressed by Jin Shanzhao. Even though the latter looked cowardly, his dreams were magnanimous. He could sense the seriousness behind Jin Shanzhao's words.

After a moment, Li Huowang bowed respectfully toward Jin Shanzhao. "Then, I wish you good luck in your future endeavors."

Jin Shanzhao smiled and bowed back. "Thank you Daoist. We will go our own separate ways from here on out."

Shiuuu~

At that moment, something flew through the air as it approached them rapidly.

Shriek!

Jin Shanzhao was still smiling when a massive halberd flew through the air and crashed into his waist. Instantly, he was cut in half just a few feet away from Li Huowang, barely leaving him alive.

Chapter 209 - Blood

A single drop of blood splashed into Li Huowang's opened mouth.

Salty, smelly, and bitter.

That was all Li Huowang could think about as he saw the halberd cut through Jin Shanzhao's body and fly toward himself.

The owner of the halberd had meant to attack him and Jin Shanzhao was just in their way.

At that moment, Li Huowang subconsciously used his new power and moved his body two inches toward the left.

Bam!

The halberd phased right through his illusion and crashed into the ground behind him, cracking it in the process.

Unharmd, Li Huowang looked down at Jin Shanzhao who had stopped smiling; he suddenly felt confused.

On the other hand, Jin Shanzhao opened his mouth to try and talk to Li Huowang but nothing came out. Soon, his eyes became unfocused and he died.

Staring at Jin Shanzhao whose body was split in two, Li Huowang suddenly felt unsure about what he was supposed to do.

This was not supposed to happen!

Just a moment ago Jin Shanzhao was talking about his grand dream and now he was dead; it was as if he was nothing more than a joke.

Dak dak dak~

Suddenly, the sound of horse hooves came from far away. Li Huowang looked up, anger filling his heart. As he saw the familiar helmet, he roared furiously, "PENG LONGTENG!"

This time around, Peng Longteng had brought with her a cavalry of hundreds. She rode her armored steed as she slowly approached the border region where Li Huowang's group was.

Their group had been hiding for so long, but she still managed to catch up with them.

As she approached them, she used her one remaining eye to see that Li Huowang was unharmed. Seeing this, she smiled cruelly. "Looks like you are indeed something. I underestimated you last time and I won't make the same mistake again. As an acknowledgement of your strength, I will make sure to leave you with an intact corpse! Charge!"

As she roared, the hundreds of cavalry behind her followed suit and charged toward Li Huowang, their oppressive aura aimed directly at him.

Halfway through their charge, Peng Longteng suddenly raised her hand and pointed at Li Huowang. "Fire!"

In response, all of the soldiers raised their bows and shot arrows straight toward Li Huowang. The rain of arrows ensured that he had nowhere left to run.

However, in the face of this dangerous situation, instead of running away, Li Huowang did the opposite—he raised the sacred text over his head and ran straight toward the soldiers.

Since these were the plains where cavalry had the advantage, he judged that it would be impossible for him to run away. So the only thing he could do was choose to fight!

Splurt!

An arrow curved and shot straight toward Li Huowang's chest from an impossible angle!

However, it did not harm him; he had separated his body and illusion once more. At this moment, he was close enough to see the soldier's faces.

"That's just an illusion! He must be somewhere nearby! Quick, use the method that we used to take down that black-faced monk before!” shouted Peng Longteng.

Following her orders, the cavalries all separated and surrounded Li Huowang in a large circle. However, even as they surrounded him, they did not stop their attacks. They continued shooting their arrows into the circle blindly, covering every inch of the open space to make sure that they hit Li Huowang.

Splurt!

At that moment, a sharp pike with backward facing hooks pierced into Li Huowang’s forearm through his palm.

Li Huowang shouted in pain as he ripped out the bone marrow from his forearm before splashing it onto the Profound Records.

In the next moment, the forearms of the horses and soldiers all snapped into two, causing them to fall down onto the ground.

This caused a chain reaction that caused the other soldiers to trip as well. With this, the rain of arrows finally stopped.

At that moment, Li Huowang suddenly saw a shadow appear above his head—Peng Longteng’s halberd was just above him!

However, she was not aiming for him. Her halberd was aimed at the Profound Records!

Seeing this, Li Huowang picked up the Profound Records and immediately dodged to the left. Once he was out of danger, he launched himself toward Peng Longteng as he stepped on her armored horse and stabbed his sword into the gap of her helmet.

He was attempting to do the same thing as he did last time!

Ding!

The sound of clashing metal was heard. However, Peng Longteng did not attempt to attack Li Huowang directly. Instead, she swept her halberd in a large arc, causing everything around her to be cut in half indiscriminately.

Seeing this, Li Huowang leapt upward and somersaulted to dodge her attack.

This was the moment when Peng Longteng’s massive amount of battle experience showed its usefulness; she managed to intuitively guess where Li Huowang was and successfully kicked him in the stomach!

Li Huowang was launched into a small hut, causing it to collapse!

On the other hand, Peng Longteng and her army slowly surrounded the demolished hut as they waited for the dust to settle.

But Li Huowang's body was nowhere to be found!

A burrowing technique?

Just as Peng Longteng had that thought, her senses alerted her of an impending danger, causing her to immediately leap off her horse.

In the next instant her horse was cut in half from the bottom just like Jin Shanzhao.

At the same time, Li Huowang's bloody illusion slowly appeared from underneath the ground.

This was a new method of using his power that he had just thought of. All he needed to do was project his illusion below ground; this would effectively render his real body invisible.

This is the key to defeat her!

Li Huowang lowered his sword and sank his illusion back underground.

Then, the invisible Li Huowang slowly approached Peng Longteng, who was now without a horse.

However, just when he was almost there, Peng Longteng quickly ran to another soldier and pulled them down before taking control of their horse.

"Ha! Don't think that you are omnipotent just because you have some tricks! Your parlor tricks are nothing compared to a soldier's combat methods! For example, one of our techniques is called distraction!" shouted Peng Longteng as she ushered her horse and led the outlaw soldiers to charge in another direction.

Seeing this, Li Huowang was stunned. But then, he immediately realized what they were aiming for. They were targeting Bai Lingmiao and the rest!

Realizing their intentions, Li Huowang chased after them; however, he was not as fast as a horse. Thus, the outlaw soldiers managed to reach them first!

As soon as Li Huowang heard one of the women scream, he unfurled the Profound Records.

His heart hurt when he saw one of them being killed!

Instantly, a sharp bone spike shot out from one of his finger toward the soldiers.

This is not enough!

Li Huowang roared and opened his robes as he used his bare hands to rip open his wounds. Even so, his anger made it so he felt no pain.

Then, a huge chunk of flesh fell heavily onto the Profound Records.

Chapter 210 - Peng Longteng

Many of the outlaw soldiers fell to Li Huowang's attack. Realizing that she could no longer afford to ignore Li Huowang, Peng Longteng decided to separate her army. Half of the army continued their attack against Bai Lingmiao and the rest while the other half followed Peng Longteng to attack Li Huowang.

"Huowang?"

Just as Li Huowang was on the verge of collapse, a blurry voice rang out. But, he shook his head, causing the voice to disappear.

Then, Li Huowang raised his head and saw the soldiers that were charging at him. Seeing them, he smiled. "You think I don't know the soldiers' combat methods? I call this the 'torture method'."

When Peng Longteng was once again in front of him, Li Huowang roared. "Come! We fight one-on-one!"

However, all he got in response was a halberd being swung right at him.

"Brat, you think I can't defeat you? If it wasn't for how self-harming this technique was, I would've used it before! Roar!" shouted Peng Longteng as she raised her halberd. At the same time, the soldiers around her clashed their weapons with each other.

A horrible screeching sound resonated through the entire area.

But the sound wasn't coming from the weapons clashing against each other. Instead, it was coming from the soldiers. Their screams were impossibly horrifying and guttural, such that they could strike fear into the hearts of their enemies.

Accompanying their horrifying screeching was a rain of blood

—all of them started to bleed from their seven orifices.

However, the blood evaporated instantly, forming clouds of blood that enveloped all of the soldiers.

Even Peng Longteng was not spared, her blood flowing out from her helmet.

As they continued bleeding, the soldiers soon started shriveling up.

Now, all of them were nothing more than demons shrouded in a red mist, their eyes devoid of all feelings and their only purpose being slaughter.

At that moment, Li Huowang's sword suddenly reacted to the killing intent being emitted by the soldiers, causing a faint dragon roar to be heard; it was as if the sword was resonating with them.

“ROAAAR!” roared the outlaw soldiers as they thrust their weapons toward Li Huowang.

Seeing this, Li Huowang immediately used his new power and shifted his real body elsewhere.

But the enemy's plan involved overwhelming Li Huowang with pure strength—they did not even attempt to locate where Li Huowang's real body was as they started attacking indiscriminately.

At that moment, a single drop of blood fell from Li Huowang's body and mixed with the bloody fog.

Instantly, all the soldiers turned toward Li Huowang. They had sensed him.

As Li Huowang stared into their eyes, he saw nothing but greed and yearning.

These soldiers have eaten humans before and not just once, but many, many times!

Li Huowang instantly understood.

“Men! It's time to eat some flesh!!” roared Peng Longteng.

At the same time, the outlaw soldiers howled like hungry ghosts, their saliva dripping down from their mouths as they charged toward Li Huowang without any regard for their lives, instantly turning the situation extremely dangerous for him.

Li Huowang wanted to use the Profound Records but he couldn't do it anymore! Everytime he tried unfurling the Profound Records, the soldiers would interrupt him.

Gradually, Li Huowang's situation worsened and he almost died a few times.

Just as everything was about to go awry, the sound of a drum was heard.

Dong dong dong~

At the same time, one of the soldiers was thrown down by a red-veiled woman, his head instantly decapitated.

Bai Lingmiao had arrived to help him, finally allowing Li Huowang to have some breathing room.

I can't use the Profound Records like this! It's too easy for it to be countered!

After a moment, Li Huowang sheathed his bloody sword and tore open his own skin without any hesitation.

Shou San's appearance from back then had given him an idea. If he could become like Shou San, then he could use the Profound Records anytime he wished without needing to unfurl it on the ground.

Li Huowang unfurled the Profound Records and directly inserted it into his own flesh. The pain was so unbearable that it instantly caused him to start howling.

Even so, Li Huowang was unable to embed the Profound Records into his flesh.

"Hm?" Noticing that something was off with Li Huowang, Peng Longteng instantly pointed her halberd at him. "Invisible wind, follow the Heavens!"

Just as Peng Longteng shouted those words, the berserking soldiers arranged themselves into a Wind Formation as they charged toward Li Huowang.

On the other hand, as they got closer, Li Huowang's body suddenly burst into flames. Gradually, Li Huowang's skin was burnt completely black, his appearance becoming similar to that of the God that the Ao Jing Sect worshiped.

At the same time, the flames on Li Huowang's body burst forth and engulfed the soldiers. Given that the soldiers were all clumped together, it was quite effective.

However, Peng Longteng charged straight through the flames as she ran toward Li Huowang. Instead of feeling fear, she was excited. "Haha! Brat! Not bad, but I've already seen through your illusion. You are dead!"

A massive gust of wind blew Li Huowang's flames back with every swing of her halberd. As she got closer and closer, Li Huowang finally realized just how tall she was. She was at least two heads taller than him!

JIANG!

As he blocked a swing from her halberd, Li Huowang's feet instantly sank three inches into the ground.

At the same time, Li Huowang's flames engulfed Peng Longteng. Despite being armored quite heavily, soon the skin underneath her armor started to burn and swell.

Even so, Peng Longteng was not the slightest bit afraid; instead, she was ecstatic. It was as if her entire existence was meant for slaughter and war!

"Hahahaha! This feels great! Come on! Fight me some more!" shouted Peng Longteng as she knocked Li Huowang away with her halberd. Then, she once again swung it toward Li Huowang.

Engulfed in flames, both of them were locked in a frenzied battle where a single hit from the other would mean death.

As he saw Peng Longteng's armor slowly starting to glow with a reddish hue, Li Huowang had a daring idea. After a moment of consideration, he charged toward Peng Longteng, lowering his body in the process.

“One more time!” shouted Peng Longteng.

However, this time around Li Huowang did not dodge the halberd that was swinging down from above. Instead, he raised his sword and used it to stab through the gap in her helmet.

He intended to kill her even if it meant that he would be heavily wounded.

Even though he managed to dodge the blade of the halberd, he was still hit by the pole, instantly causing a large cavity to appear on his body. Despite this, his sword managed to find its mark.

Just as he had thought, the heat of the flames had made the helmet much softer than before.

At that moment, Li Huowang’s sword, which was engulfed in flames, stabbed Peng Longteng’s neck in the very same spot he had stabbed her last time. As he roared, a cracking sound was heard. Then, with one last burst of strength, he sent Peng Longteng’s armored head flying into the air.

Then, everything became quiet as the blood fog retreated from the outlaw soldiers. All of them stared at Li Huowang in horror as they immediately disappeared in front of him.

At the same time, the flames engulfing Li Huowang scattered as well.

Li Huowang’s remaining eye had been cooked to the point that it was barely functioning. Still, he looked down and inspected his body.

At this moment, he didn’t have a single inch of skin left on his body. All that remained was a charred mess. In fact, his body had become quite a bit smaller from being burned so much.

Plop.

Without his skin, the Profound Records fell onto the ground.

When Li Huowang suddenly felt his back tingling, he turned around in a daze, only to find a round faced man.

Even though the man was scared of Li Huowang, he still held his dagger with a handkerchief as he used it to stab Li Huowang numerous times.

For a moment, Li Huowang was confused by that man's actions as he stabbed Li Huowang numerous times, leaving countless wounds on Li Huowang's dried body.

Who is this guy and what is he doing?

As he thought about this, Li Huowang swung his sword and ripped open that man's stomach.

Cao Hai staggered backward before placing his back against Peng Longteng's body and sliding down. He stared at her unmoving body that was standing even in death with eyes filled with yearning. "General..."

On the other hand, Li Huowang stood up shakily and staggered back toward where Bai Lingmiao was. Amidst the intense pain, his mind soon started to wander off.

It is so painful. Why am I always getting hurt so much? Is living supposed to be this painful? I don't feel like living anymore... But... I can't... I must survive! Mom... It hurts so much... Can you make all this pain go away?

Just as Li Huowang was hobbling back, he suddenly sensed movement behind him.

When he slowly turned around, he saw that the headless Peng Longteng had raised her halberd as she prepared to swing it down toward him!

Chapter 211 - Keep

The headless Peng Longteng was still capable of moving. This was completely out of Li Huowang's expectation; there was no way he could've seen it coming.

Presently, Li Huowang didn't have any skin now and his senses had dulled by quite a lot. Even his movement speed had slowed down considerably. There was nothing he could do but watch as the giant halberd was swung down toward his head.

Am I going to die?

He was not afraid; in fact, he even felt a sense of freedom as the end approached.

At the critical moment, a shadow leapt up and crashed into Peng Longteng's left shoulder. The impact from the tackle was so massive that it caused Peng Longteng to slightly shift toward her right.

The halberd narrowly missed Li Huowang and fell to his left, leaving him surprised at having survived the attack.

He looked up and saw that the silhouette belonged to none other than Gao Zhijian.

At the same time, another silhouette in red suddenly appeared in front of Li Huowang. Then, the face of a beast emerged from underneath the red veil and picked Li Huowang up by his neck before running away while carrying him.

As he was dragged away from Peng Longteng, Li Huowang stared at the white clouds above him. He smiled; having someone else come rescue him felt quite nice.

After dragging the burnt Li Huowang far enough away, the beast released its jaws and placed him down before running back.

However, given that their enemy could still move, Li Huowang refused to lay down just like that. Despite the immense pain, he tried sitting up before ordering Puppy, “Go and bring the Profound Records for me.”

Hearing the command, Puppy swallowed his saliva; he wanted to prop Li Huowang up, but he didn’t know where to hold him. After all, there was no skin left on his body. Then he asked, “Senior Li, where’s the Profound Records?”

Li Huowang used one of his few remaining fingers to point toward where Peng Longteng was.

But at that moment, someone else made a run for it instead. It was Chun Xiaoman! As she reached the location pointed by Li Huowang, she picked up the Profound Records.

Despite Li Huowang’s orders, the situation had suddenly changed.

Gao Zhijian had been pierced through by the halberd, his body limp as it was propped up. The difference in strength between him and Peng Longteng was too big.

“Quickly give me the Profound Records!” Li Huowang shot up and tried to walk over but he fell down soon after. At this point, his entire body was essentially burnt into a giant piece of charcoal. Each step he took made a part of him fall off.

Chun Xiaoman saw how terrible Li Huowang looked and then she saw Peng Longteng fling away Gao Zhijian. Seeing their dire situation, she grit her teeth, she unfurled the Profound Records and placed her sword against her left arm before chopping it off.

Once chopped, her left arm quickly lost all color; then, the hair on her dismembered left arm grew into numerous tentacles. Soon, the entire arm, along with the tentacles all burrowed into the ground.

Just as Peng Longteng raised her halberd and was about to run toward Li Huowang, Chun Xiaoman’s dismembered left arm exploded from beneath the ground and crashed into Peng Longteng's body, sending her flying away. The force from the impact almost caused Peng Longteng to let go of her halberd.

Just then, the red-veiled woman ran over on all fours and leapt into the air. Three rotting wolf skulls appeared from beneath the red veil before forcefully biting down on Peng Longteng's halberd.

At the same time, the sound of the drum rang out from a distance.

Dong dong dong~

"The turtle carries the Earth, while the Earth carries the Heavens~ A pair of magpies observe everything~ A single blink from the turtle would shake the Earth~ The Heavens and Earth would topple if the turtle rolls over~"

Dong dong dong~

As the chanting rang out, the red-veiled woman turned her body at an impossible angle in the air. Thanks to the extreme torque generated from her twisting body, Peng Longteng finally lost her grip on the halberd.

Without a weapon, the headless Peng Longteng could no longer fight as efficiently as before. Soon, Chun Xiaoman's arm and the tentacles coiled around Peng Longteng's body and trapped her.

On the other hand, the red-veiled woman threw the halberd onto the ground before launching herself at Peng Longteng once more, assaulting her with the three wolf skulls. After tearing apart Peng Longteng's armor, the wolf skulls made short work of Peng Longteng's body, stripping her flesh off her bones.

When he saw that everything was over, Li Huowang finally fell unconscious. Up until now, he had only been keeping himself conscious through sheer willpower. The last words he uttered before falling unconscious were, "Save Gao Zhijian."

Even as he lost consciousness, Li Huowang was on the verge of death. His consciousness faded in and out repeatedly.

I'm so tired... No... I can't give up. Someone is waiting for me.

Everyone paid a terrible price to rescue me. I can't die!

Who? Who is watching me? Who are you?

He wasn't sure how long he was out for, but he finally opened his one remaining eye.

The familiar surroundings told him that he was currently on the ox-cart.

He looked downward and saw that Bai Lingmiao was currently holding an urn as she slowly applied a sticky yellow oil on his body. Looking at her reddened eyes, he knew that she had been crying.

Li Huowang tried his best to open his glued lips. As a thin stream of blood flowed down from the corner of his mouth, he asked, "How is Gao Zhijian?"

His hoarse voice caused Bai Lingmiao to jump a little before she carefully approached Li Huowang's head, tears welling up in her eyes once again.

"Where is Gao Zhijian?" Li Huowang asked again. He was very worried about how Gao Zhijian was impaled by the halberd before being flung away.

Bai Lingmiao wiped off her tears and replied, "He is fine. I summoned the Immortal families to heal him. Thankfully, the halberd hadn't pierced through any of his vital organs."

"That's good." Li Huowang smiled and tried to sit up, only for Bai Lingmiao to stop him.

"Senior Li, you can't move now. I am applying rat oil onto you. My mother once told me that it's very effective at treating burn wounds," said Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang listened to her and continued laying down on the ox-cart while Bai Lingmiao started applying layers of rat oil onto his charred body. Then, Bai Lingmiao told him about what had happened after he fell unconscious.

No one knew what kind of cultivation method Peng Longteng had. How she was capable of moving her body without a head was anyone's guess.

The only thing they knew was that the bloodthirsty general was finally dead. This could be considered her retribution for the dead villagers.

Peng Longteng's bones had been extremely dense, to the point that they couldn't be broken. It was only after all the flesh on her body had been stripped away that she finally stopped moving.

After the danger had passed, all of them quickly crossed the border and entered Qing Qiu to avoid having the remaining outlaw soldiers following them.

After Bai Lingmiao finished telling Li Huowang everything, the ox-cart fell silent. After a moment, Bai Lingmiao asked hesitantly, "Senior Li, can you teach Chun Xiaoman how to regrow her arm? She lost her left arm. Even though she said that it's fine, she's still so young and it's such a shame..."

Chapter 212 - Charred And Rotten Flesh

“No!” Li Huowang replied, adamantly denying her request. But when he saw how wronged Bai Lingmiao felt, Li Huowang’s tone became gentle as he explained, “Actually, there’s no method to learn; there’s only endless suffering. Trust me, compared to going through that, losing an arm is nothing much.”

If Chun Xiaoman wanted Ba-Hui to notice her, then she would have to experience the utmost of physical and mental pain. Having experienced that twice, only Li Huowang knew what he had to go through.

He didn’t want his companions to experience the same sense of despair as him. At the same time, he was afraid that Chun Xiaoman might end up going crazy.

“Oh, I just thought that it would be quite a shame for Chun Xiaoman to lack an arm from such a young age,” said Bai Lingmiao.

“Don’t worry. There must be other methods to regrow an arm in this crazy world. We will just have to find them,” assured Li Huowang. However, he didn’t even know whether he was consoling himself or Bai Lingmiao.

Just then, Li Huowang sniffed the air. “Do you smell something? Why does it stink?”

“Senior Li, you have a lot of dead flesh on you. Given that it is rotting, it would naturally smell bad,” replied Bai Lingmiao.

“Rot? Smells bad?” muttered Li Huowang. Then, he suddenly started laughing. This was a laughter that came from the bottom of his heart.

‘Decay’ had reappeared in this world, meaning that the world had started returning back to normalcy.

At the same time, since ‘decay’ had returned, a daring thought popped up within Li Huowang’s mind.

Does this mean that the Abbess came back to life?

Li Huowang made a bold guess. It was just wishful thinking, but it could very well be real. After all, in this bizarre world where the laws were twisted, anything could happen.

He suddenly had a strong urge to run back to the kingdom of Si Qi and check on the Benevolent Nunnery; however, it was nothing more than a fleeting thought. He knew that he couldn’t go back there in his current state.

He had just killed Peng Longteng. Unless he wanted to seek death, he shouldn’t think about returning to the kingdom of Si Qi for the next few years.

So, ‘decay’ has returned. Did it return on its own, or did a being bring it back?

Li Huowang tried to think about it as he recalled the Bodhisattva composed of flies back within the Benevolent Nunnery.

The Righteous Monastery worshiped a Flesh Buddha and they obtained a power associated with flesh and blood.

The Ao Jing Sect yearned for Ba-Hui’s power[\[1\]](#) and used their pain to commune with it in order to obtain extraordinary power.

Does this mean there is a being that is in charge of ‘decay’? Does it mean that something happened to the previous being when ‘decay’ had disappeared? Now that ‘decay’ is back, does that mean that the being is once again present at its original place?

All sorts of thoughts ran through his mind.

Thinking back, the Abbess’s death was too unnatural. How could such a powerful individual die within the pig’s pen?

Were multiple beings at war with each other and the Abbess was just caught in the crossfire?

Li Huowang instinctively thought about the beings within the Baiyu Capital. Back when he was outside the Ox Tail Gate, Li Huowang had seen that the beings inside were consuming something.

Was it them?

When he tried to recall what had happened that day, Li Huowang suddenly felt sharp pain shooting through his body and his breath became rapid.

“Senior Li, what’s wrong?” asked Bai Lingmiao as she noticed that something was wrong with him and quickly held his hand.

Li Huowang tried his best to forget about the Baiyu Capital. “I can’t listen... I can’t think... Stop thinking...”

In order to break his train of thought, Li Huowang quickly asked Bai Lingmiao, “Where is the book? Where is the Fiery Scripture? Quickly bring me the wax-covered book!”

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao quickly rummaged around before giving him the wax-covered Fiery Scripture.

As Li Huowang chanted, the white wax was engulfed in flames before congregating together. The flowing white wax then slowly crawled onto Li Huowang’s charred body and slowly started treating him. It crawled slowly, cauterizing the wounds on his body.

A pungent smell filled the interior of the ox-cart.

On the other hand, the pain made Li Huowang relax. He needed the pain to stop himself from thinking.

Those things were not for him to think about. After all, the leaders of the various kingdoms should be the one responsible for dealing with the Natural Disasters.

At this point, everything had already been resolved and there was nothing he could do. All he needed to do was to survive. Only when he became stronger would he have the rights to think about these matters.

Then, Li Huowang suddenly remembered something and asked Bai Lingmiao, “Where is the Profound Records? The blood-red bamboo slip?”

When Li Huowang stopped his chanting, the white wax once again changed back into normal wax.

When Bai Lingmiao heard Li Huowang ask about the Profound Records, she was quite hesitant but relented in the end and went outside.

A verbal fight ensued outside. But Li Huowang could barely hear it.

After some time, Bai Lingmiao returned with the Profound Records.

Seeing her return, Li Huowang used all of his strength to sit up, causing Bai Lingmiao to be surprised.

“Come, pull off the scab on my back and shove that thing inside me,” said Li Huowang. He wanted to implant the Profound Records into his body while his skin had yet to grow back. It was a good opportunity to do so. Once his skin grew back, the Profound Records would be embedded within him. That way, he wouldn’t have to unfurl it every time he wanted to use it. That way, it would be easier to attack with it as well.

Previously, he had been curious as to why Shou San would hang the Profound Records onto his chest. But now he knew.

Bai Lingmiao naturally knew why Li Huowang wanted to do so. “Senior Li, do you have to do this? If you do this, then no one else will be able to use the Profound Records anymore.”

Li Huowang nodded resolutely. “Yes, that’s my intention.”

This time around, Chun Xiaoman had lost an arm. There was no telling who would lose what the next time a situation like this happened.

The Profound Records was too easy to use. Everyone else could just copy him. Thus, he would rather keep the Profound Records embedded under his skin to ensure that no one else could use it again.

Bai Lingmiao bit her lips, but in the end, she decided to follow his instructions. She shakily placed her pale hands onto the scab on Li Huowang's back and tore it down. Li Huowang's painful scream could be heard from within the ox-cart.

Underneath the scab was Li Huowang's bleeding tissue. Bai Lingmiao carefully unfurled the Profound Records and placed it onto his back.

Once she was done, Li Huowang turned around and quickly laid down before pressing the Profound Records deep into his body.

After everything was over, Li Huowang finally closed his eyes to rest. It had been a very tiring day. As he was falling asleep, Li Huowang opened his hazy eyes and looked at Bai Lingmiao. "Did you get everything from Peng Longteng's body?"

Bai Lingmiao nodded. "Puppy said that the armor could probably be sold for money and so we placed everything onto the ox-cart. We even carried the massive halberd; even if we can't use it on our own, we can always melt it down and reforge it into weapons we could use."

"What else did you obtain from Peng Longteng's body besides the armor and halberd?" asked Li Huowang.

1. original text states that they worship Ba-Hui, which is incorrect. Ao Jing Sect's god is someone who wants to consume Ba-Hui's power and usurp it 🤔

Chapter 213 - Reward

Bai Lingmiao nodded. "The General had an identification plate on her. Initially, Puppy thought that it was made of gold, but it was actually bronze. There's not much value to it."

"An identification plate? Show it to me," asked Li Huowang.

Soon, the identification plate was placed in front of him. It was indeed a bronze plate with Peng Longteng's name and position etched onto it.

"There's an emblem of a tiger at the top of the plate. This must be the identification plate of the soldiers." Li Huowang traced his finger at the top of the tiger's head before asking Bai Lingmiao to store it. He decided to keep it; after all, they might be able to make use of it in the future.

Even if they didn't use it, it was just a single plate and didn't weigh that much. On the other hand, Dan Yangzi's sacred text was much heavier than that plate, and its usage was very limited as well. Even so, they were still carrying it with them.

"Oh, Peng Longteng had a book with her as well. Since none of us could read it, Gao Zhijian took it," said Bai Lingmiao.

"Book?" Li Huowang was just beginning to relax when he became alert once more. "Bring the book over."

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao headed outside only to return empty handed after a while.

"Zhijian said that the book is just a manual containing different techniques for soldiers to cultivate in. It's not very interesting," said Bai Lingmiao.

"He didn't want to give it to you? Call him over and I will talk to him directly." Li Huowang became even more suspicious.

Why does he not want to give it to me if it's just a normal training manual?

Soon, Gao Zhijian soon arrived near the ox-cart. At this moment, his body was covered in bandages while his face was still pale from his injuries.

Then, Li Huowang asked seriously, “I know that Peng Longteng was incredibly strong and that she had quite some tricks up her sleeves. I know that you also want to learn them and become stronger, but these training methods have their own risks. If you aren’t careful with them, then you can die. Do you understand me?”

Li Huowang was suspicious that the book contained Peng Longteng’s training methods and that Gao Zhijian was secretly trying to learn from it.

After going through so much, Li Huowang had understood that in this crazy world, it was impossible to obtain any power without paying a price.

To obtain something, one must sacrifice something.

Thus, any cultivation or training methods had to have their own inherent risks. Li Huowang did not want Gao Zhijian to turn into another Peng Longteng.

“This... this... this is just... a training manual...” said Gao Zhijian sheepishly.

“Since it’s just a training manual, then why are you hiding it? Show it to me!” demanded Li Huowang.

Gao Zhijian hesitated for a while, before finally passing him the book.

The book was called Jiang Yuan. Li Huowang turned over the coarse paper with his charred fingers and saw the words written on it.

“Those who use this manual are bound to the Emperor and have to gather soldiers for the military. One must not camp on terrains that are difficult to move on. One must convene with allies at strategic locations. One must not stop at dangerous environments. One must come up with tactics at chokepoints. One must fight to their death in an environment with no place to retreat. Some paths cannot be taken, some enemies must not be attacked, some cities must not be taken, and some lands must not be contested. Those who do not adhere to the above nine rules will lose their lives even if they are an Emperor... Wait... Is this really a manual?" Li Huowang was surprised as he looked at Gao Zhijian before turning back to the manual once again.

Even though the content was difficult to understand, and Li Huowang struggled to comprehend the latter part of the manual, there was nothing wrong or supernatural about it. It was just a normal manual.

Pak!

Li Huowang closed the book and stared at Gao Zhijian in confusion. "It's really just a normal manual. But why are you so obsessed with it?"

"It's... it's nice to read," replied Gao Zhijian as he extended his large hands and took back the book.

When Li Huowang saw Gao Zhijian's bandages starting to get bloody once more, he dismissed him. "Go back and rest first. Once your injuries get better, you can continue reading it."

Hearing this, Gao Zhijian smiled and nodded before taking the book back with him away.

Once he was gone, Bai Lingmiao quickly grabbed a thin blanket and covered Li Huowang's body. "Senior Li, your injuries are very serious. There's no need for you to worry about things like them right now. You need to rest."

Li Huowang wanted to sleep, but the pain from having the Profound Records embedded within his back was keeping him awake. He stared at the roof of the ox-cart, his mind wandering around. He had nothing to do. After some time, he got too bored and called out, "Miaomiao, please prop me up. I want to see the outside world.”

Bai Lingmiao was quite reluctant, but still did as she was told after some persuasion.

When the curtains of the ox-cart were pulled open, all Li Huowang saw was a large field of green grass. They were traveling through the grass plains.

As he took in the beautiful scenery around him, Li Huowang felt his spirit getting uplifted. It was the same feeling that one would get if they got to drink a large cup of iced water during summer. He could see the grass swaying rhythmically amidst the gentle breeze.

“Is this Qing Qiu? It is so much more beautiful than Hou Shu,” commented Li Huowang.

Bai Lingmiao nodded and agreed, “I’ve heard my father tell me that Qing Qiu is located to the west of the Liang Kingdom. He told me that the horses and goats of Qing Qiu were of excellent quality.”

Li Huowang nodded. “‘Qing Qiu’ means green hills. I can see the ‘green’, but where are the hills?”

Bai Lingmiao had never traveled far from her village, and so she didn’t know how to answer his question.

“Who among us is from Qing Qiu?” Li Huowang asked after a moment.

“Sun Baolu is from Qing Qiu. Besides him, there was another disciple and two of the assistants. However, all of them except Sun Baolu are dead,” replied Bai Lingmiao.

Hearing this, Li Huowang sighed. “Find out where they used to live. We will send their bodies back.”

Too many had died during their travels.

“Mmhhh. But I’ve heard that the people of Qing Qiu do not bury their dead. Let me ask Sun Baolu,” replied Bai Lingmiao.

Bai Lingmiao continued talking for a while, but didn’t get a reply. Puzzled, she turned around and saw Li Huowang frozen on the spot with his single eye opened wide from shock. It was as if he had seen something; however, there was nothing but grass outside.

“Senior Li, what are you—” Just as Bai Lingmiao was speaking, her words were cut short when she saw the wounded Li Huowang suddenly grab his sword, leap out of the window, and crash onto the floor.

The impact instantly caused his charred left leg to snap like a twig. At the same time, cracks started appearing all over his body.

But Li Huowang ignored all of it. Instead, he pointed his sword toward his left arm, making it so that he could cut off his left arm at a moment’s notice.

Seeing this, Puppy, who was the closest to him, ran over to Li Huowang and hugged his right arm to prevent him from cutting his left arm off.

“Quick! Bring the chains! Senior Li’s illness is back!” Puppy shouted at his companions.

Li Huowang froze and asked Puppy, “You can’t see them?”

“Ah?” Puppy didn’t know what he was referring to. “See what?”

Hearing his words, Li Huowang’s body collapsed listlessly onto the soft grass below as he stared at the sky above with his one remaining eye. He was the only one who could see the headless Peng Longteng standing there like a statue, her shadow covering his entire body.

Peng Longteng’s armor was still glowing red with blood seeping out from the cracks of her armor. She looked the same as how she looked during her fight with Li Huowang.

Why did she become an illusion and follow me? Why?

Li Huowang didn’t know how it happened.

At that moment, he suddenly saw something moving behind Peng Longteng’s illusion.

It was Jin Shanzhao, or to be exact, only his upper torso. His organs were rotting as they trailed behind him.

He too had become an illusion!

As Li Huowang was being tied up with a chain by his companions and carried into the ox-cart, he saw Jin Shanzhao opening his mouth, as if he wanted to say something.

“What do you want to say?” asked Li Huowang.

Jin Shanzhao’s mouth opened and closed, but in the end, no voice came out.

Chapter 214 - Yang Xiaohai

Splash~

Yang Xiaohai closed his eyes as he dunked his head into the clear river water. After shaking his head a few times, he raised his head, feeling quite spirited.

With this, he had managed to finish washing up and drinking water at the same time.

“The water is so sweet here,” muttered Yang Xiaohai as he rubbed off the water on his chin before filling a pail of water and hurrying back.

After traveling for so long and having had enough food to eat, Yang Xiaohai’s body was no longer as skinny as before. He now had distinct muscles and his face was no longer yellow. He had even grown quite a bit taller.

“Good morning, Senior Cao Cao,” Yang Xiaohai greeted Puppy, the latter circling around some of the ladies. However, when he saw how Puppy didn’t have any time to talk with him, Yang Xiaohai just smiled and walked up to the pot.

He was no longer the innocent child he once was; he knew why Puppy was working so hard at serving the ladies.

Given that most of them were still asleep, they hadn’t yet started a fire under the pot. They waited until almost everyone was awake before starting the fire to cook breakfast.

After placing down the pail of water, Yang Xiaohai picked up a stick from the fireplace and started observing Chun Xiaoman, who was practicing with the sword, from the sidelines. Then, he started copying Chun Xiaoman by swinging the stick, focusing just as hard as Chun Xiaoman.

When she saw what Yang Xiaohai was doing, Chun Xiaoman suddenly sent a stab toward him. Flustered by the sudden attack, Yang Xiaohai fell onto the soft grass.

Chun Xiaoman was holding the sword with her one remaining arm as she said, "Get up and practice with me. You can't just learn by staying on the sidelines."

Usually, Li Huowang would practice swordplay with her; however, given his current condition, it was almost impossible for him to do so.

Hearing Chun Xiaoman's words, Yang Xiaohai got excited and picked up his stick before trying to stab her.

Yang Xiaohai was someone who loved practicing with the sword and didn't loathe how tiresome it was. After all, if he managed to learn well, then he wouldn't be bullied by others even if he ended up becoming a beggar once more.

They continued practicing until they saw Bai Lingmiao come out from the ox-cart.

Seeing her, Chun Xiaoman sheathed her sword. "Let's go and prepare breakfast. They are awake now."

"Ok!" Yang Xiaohai happily returned to the fireplace and the pot. But when he got back, he frowned upon seeing someone else doing his job of starting the fire.

It was a plump woman. She was one of the women Senior Li had saved from the bandit's camp.

Many of the women had died back at the border of Hou Shu due to the attack of the outlaw soldiers. She was one of the few remaining survivors.

"Get away!" said Yan Xiaohai as he ran over and took the flint from her hands. He was adamant about not letting anyone take his place.

The plump woman was not angered by his actions, and instead smiled sheepishly. "Little fellow, you are back?"

Yang Xiaohai had once talked to this woman for a while, but he had never expected her to suddenly claim that she came from the same village as him. He hated her quite a lot. She was particularly good at scheming.

After being rescued by Li Huowang, all the women had been eating and drinking without worries. Some of them even ran away at the border. However, more importantly than anything else, the women that were traveling with them had even started taking over Yang Xiaohai's jobs! So, he hated them.

But the one he hated the most was the plump woman with a beauty mark on her chin.

"Don't call me little fellow, and I'm not from the same village as you!" shouted Yang Xiaohai. There was no way things could be so coincidental. The woman was obviously lying.

Seeing his reaction, the plump woman smiled, a dimple appearing on her left cheek. Then, she started talking to Yang Xiaohai as he started the fire, "Little fellow, what is the name of that large man? He's so strong."

Yang Xiaohai turned around and saw Gao Zhijian who was gritting his teeth while trying to lift the halberd up. Veins could be seen bulging around his neck as he exerted all of his strength to do so.

"And why do you care?" asked Yang Xiaohai, annoyed.

"Little fellow, are you annoyed with me?" The woman smiled and dusted off some dirt from Yang Xiaohai's body.

"Don't touch me!" shouted Yang Xiaohai, causing the woman to step back a little.

Feeling wronged, the woman asked, "Why are you doing this? I was finally able to meet someone from my village and I just want to get close to you."

I was sold when I was young so there's no way you would recognize me!

But, in the end, Yang Xiaohai never said those words to her.

“Don’t come and steal my work. Just sit there next time,” said Yang Xiaohai.

“But my benefactor is injured... I was just trying to help,” retorted the woman weakly.

Hearing her words, Yang Xiaohai turned and stared toward the ox-cart.

At this moment, Li Huowang was staying inside the ox-cart.

As Yang Xiaohai recalled everything that had happened to them, he started getting worried.

Senior Li was their pillar. He must live!

After a while of trying, the flint finally produced some sparks and started a fire. Then, Yang Xiaohai raised his head and ordered the woman. “Go and fetch some water.”

The woman was not angry at being ordered around by a child, and instead looked eager. She turned around while carrying an empty pail.

Meanwhile, Yang Xiaohai patted the dirt on his shirt and approached the ox-cart warily. When he got close, he heard someone talking.

“What are you trying to say? What should I do for you to take Peng Longteng and leave?” asked a voice.

Yang Xiaohai moved to the other side of the ox-cart and saw Li Huowang perched on the window.

Compared to how burnt his body was before, he looked much better now. Even so, his appearance was still quite gruesome.

Half of his head was covered in new skin while the other half was still exposed with some patches of scarred flesh. The skin and flesh from his jaws had been burned off, exposing his white teeth that clacked when he spoke.

Not only did the current Li Huowang look scary, his eyes were constantly staring at something distant as he continued to talk to himself. "Monk, do me a favor and ask him what other final wishes he had? I know that he's very pitiful and I do want to help him, but why is he still following me around as an illusion? Shouldn't he be following around Peng Longteng, the one who had killed him?"

At that moment, Li Huowang's one remaining eye suddenly darted around before fixing itself on Yang Xiaohai.

Yang Xiaohai suddenly felt his scalp tingle from fear, almost causing him to run away. Now he knew why Li Huowang's ox-cart was usually much further away from the others.

Li Huowang himself was almost as scary as an evil being.

"Is something the matter?" asked Li Huowang.

Yang Xiaohai was so afraid that he didn't know where he should place his hands.

"Senior... senior... sen-senior... senior Li, is everything alright?" asked Yang Xiaohai. Even though he was terrified, he still cared about Li Huowang.

However, Li Huowang just ignored him and continued to talk to himself.

Yang Xiaohai quickly fled back to the fireplace, only to be stopped by Puppy.

"How's Senior Li?" asked Puppy.

Yang Xiaohai shook his head. "I think Senior Li's condition is slowly getting worse. Should we find a doctor?"

"How can a doctor possibly treat him? Even that Baldy could only suppress it in the past," said Puppy as he stood there with a worried look on his face. He too wanted to cure Li Huowang. "I remember what the Black Taisui looked like. That Baldy used to feed those to Senior Li to suppress his illness. But the question is, where can we find one?"

Chapter 215 - Seniors And Juniors

Gao Zhijian's face was red as he carried the halberd back onto the ox-cart. He had to use all his strength just to carry it back.

Once he got it back onto the ox-cart, even without waiting to catch his breath he quickly took out a cloth and wrapped the halberd up. Senior Li had told him before that whenever he was done with training, he had to wrap the halberd up. Given that this halberd originally belonged to a General of Hou Shu, it might draw them into a conflict if the officials from Qing Qiu recognized it.

After he finished wrapping the halberd, Gao Zhijian scratched his head with a sigh. He had trained for so long, but was only barely able to carry the halberd around. On the other hand, Peng Longteng had been able to easily wield the halberd as if it weighed nothing. He had measured the halberd and had thought about cutting it to make it shorter and lighter. Twelve feet long was just far too big for him to use it.

While cavalymen often required their weapons to be twelve feet long, those fighting on foot wouldn't require such a large weapon. After all, it would be too hard to use such a long range weapon to fight an enemy in close quarter combat.

Then, Gao Zhijian opened the curtains of the ox-cart and stared at the messy armor kept within. He had tried measuring it and adjusting the size to fit his body. He was sure that the armor was definitely extraordinary, especially since it was able to block Senior Li's sword. But that woman was larger than him. He would have to find a blacksmith to alter the size if he wanted to be able to wear it properly.

At the same time, the other issue was the weight. The entire armor weighed several hundred pounds. His strength was still insufficient to use such a thing.

“Simpleton, what are you doing? Come here, I have something to talk to you about. It’s good news!”

Hearing the voice, Gao Zhijian begrudgingly turned around and saw that the voice belonged to Puppy.

“Did you see those girls? Some of them are interested in you!” said Puppy.

Gao Zhijian looked at where Puppy was pointing and saw that several women were staring at him. After being found out, the women immediately hid behind another cart.

“Simpleton, do you want a wife? If you want, then I, Cao Cao, will become your Yue Lao[1] and help you hook up with them!” declared Puppy.

However, Gao Zhijian completely ignored Puppy as he continued checking the pieces of armor with a sour expression on his face.

“Are you thinking that they are dirty? You shouldn’t do that; you know, they never even treated you like a simpleton. All of us are born with defects, and so we can’t choose who we get to marry. So, we might as well settle for one of them. If you miss your chance, then there might not be another one in the future~ Let me tell you this: I think I have a chance with one of them. Who knows, you might be able to attend my wedding reception soon,” bragged Puppy as he rattled on and on.

“Go... Go...”

“Go? Yeah, let’s go!” responded Puppy.

“Go... Go away!” shouted Gao Zhijian, causing Puppy to be surprised.

“Hey! I look up to you as a brother and was worried about your love life! It will be close to impossible to find someone if we miss our chance this time around!” said Puppy.

But Gao Zhijian just slapped Puppy away, causing the latter to fall onto the ground.

After a moment, Puppy grumbled and cursed under his breath while walking toward Zhao Wu’s ox-cart.

“Ps~ Psps~”

On the other hand, Gao Zhijian called for Bun who was sleeping under one of the horse carts.

Hearing the voice, Bun stretched its body, and slowly walked toward Gao Zhijian.

As Gao Zhijian carefully cradled the dog, he felt its smooth fur running across the palm of his hand causing him to start smiling. He reached into his shirt and brought out half a piece of cornbread. Seeing the food, Bun instantly started wagging its tail.

Then, Gao Zhijian tore off some of the bread and placed it on his palm before silently enjoying the feeling of Bun licking his palm.

Bun ate really fast and the cornbread was finished in just a few moments.

As he saw this, Gao Zhijian closed his eyes and buried his face into Bun’s soft fur. He really liked dogs. Dogs were better than humans. He had even thought about asking Senior Li to give the dog to him.

After a while, Gao Zhijian stopped what he was doing and carefully took out the soldier’s training manual and started reading it once again. He didn’t know why he never got tired of reading it. While he didn’t truly understand the contents of the book, he felt a familiar feeling when he read it.

Meanwhile, Puppy saw Gao Zhijian hugging Bun and shook his head. “Sigh, he’s still a bit stupid. To think he prefers dogs over women.”

“Puppy, I would advise you to behave a bit. If you act rashly against those women, then I guarantee that Chun Xiaoman will kill you; even Senior Li is too injured to stop her right now,” warned Zhao Wu while holding an abacus. He was counting their inventory.

“Even if you don’t support me, why are you admonishing me? I would never be rough with those women even if I’m trying to find a wife. I have many methods to woo them without touching them! Just you wait, I am sure I will be able to get a wife before we reach Liang Kingdom. Do you want to bet?” said Puppy.

“Sure, sure. You are amazing. Go and try to hook up with one of the girls. I’m a bit busy counting our inventory right now. If I don’t do it right, then we will end up without food for days,” said Zhao Wu, shooing him away.

Puppy scratched the white patches on his face and stared at Zhao Wu. Zhao Wu’s body was still the same as ever, with one shoulder higher than the other. After a moment, Puppy tried to persuade him one more time, “Are you sure you don’t want to come with me? You should know that people like us would have a hard time finding a wife. If you don’t seize your chance, then you will be single forever.”

At this point, Zhao Wu became annoyed. “Senior Li is already injured so badly, yet you still have the time to think about such trivial things?”

“Relax, he can even grow back an entire arm. What are you afraid of? I’ve finally made sense of Senior Li, and he’s bloody amazing!” said Puppy as he raised his thumb high up into the air. “Relax, even if the Lord of Hell were to come and find him, Senior Li would still be fine.”

However, Zhao Wu was still worried. He thought about everything that had happened throughout their journey and how Senior Li had managed to survive through every single crisis. All of them had some impairments here and there, but Senior Li’s illness was invisible, and it was the most dangerous of them all.

“What are you worried about? Senior Li is more or less half an Immortal right now with so many powers under his belt. Even if we encounter something dangerous, there's nothing we can do to help him. Zhao Wu, didn't I say it just now? We must know our limits. I know I don't have the strength to do much, and so I don't bother with it at all," said Puppy.

"Why are you so pessimistic?" asked Zhao Wu, irritated.

"As if you are very ambitious. Except for Senior Li, all of those who were ambitious had already been killed by that Baldy back in that cave," Puppy scoffed.

The sound of the abacus suddenly stopped before Zhao Wu spoke in a voice filled with hesitation, "Puppy, do you think Senior Li could teach those powers to us?"

The moment Zhao Wu said that, Puppy hugged his stomach and ran away. "Aiya~ Aiya~ My stomach hurts~ I need to go to the toilet now, so we will talk later."

Puppy knew that Li Huowang's powers came at a price. Chun Xiaoman had used it once and lost one of her arms. That was too scary. It was also possible that the reason Senior Li became crazier by the day was due to those powers. He did not want to end up like him.

1. god of marriage and love 🙌

Chapter 216 - Considerations

Ox-carts. Although they were a lot slower than horse-drawn carriages, they could carry a lot more weight. Furthermore, there was no need to be concerned about the food required to feed out here in Qing Qiu since it was available everywhere.

Li Huowang and his group had a smooth journey after leaving Hou Shu, and did not encounter any evil spirits or bandits. Moreover, Li Huowang's injuries were gradually improving. Thus, everyone was in high spirits.

As the ox-cart continued to move slowly, Li Huowang limped alongside it. At the same time, Bun faithfully circled around him while wagging its tail.

“Senior Li, why don't you head back into the cart and rest? Your injuries haven't been completely healed,” said Bai Lingmiao worriedly.

Li Huowang's newly grown hair swayed slightly as he shook his head. “Lying in the cart all the time makes my limbs stiff. Walking is good, and besides, I'm recovering quite well now. At least Bun is now able to recognize me.”

Li Huowang still remembered how Bun barked at him back when he first got off the cart. But that couldn't be blamed on it; he did indeed look quite frightening back then.

Fortunately, Bun could recognize him now. His skin had healed completely, and just as planned, the Profound Records was safely embedded within his back.

“Senior Li, we can take a break now. We'll continue walking for another two hours after noon and finally reach Women's Mountain,” said Sun Baolu. Being a local, he was quite familiar with the area.

Nowadays, Sun Baolu always had a smile on his face. He used to be very quiet, but had become a lot more talkative ever since they arrived in Qing Qiu.

“Are you really going back, Old Sun? Why don't you join us so that you don't get kidnapped again?” suggested Zhao Wu.

However, Sun Baolu simply smiled brightly and shook his head in response to the suggestion. “No, someone is waiting for me. I have to go back home.”

Meanwhile, Li Huowang raised his crutch and pointed to a nearby stream. “Let's head there and start a fire.”

It was quite challenging to find firewood in Qing Qiu, but they were finally able to start a fire after gathering some dried branches.

After starting a fire, the others went to fetch water and forage for wild vegetables.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang sat alone, once again lost in his own world, detached from the outside noise. He looked up and saw Peng Longteng blocking the sun.

Even after all this time, she was still around.

His only solace was the fact that she was just standing there motionless and not doing anything.

Peng Longteng looked quite towering in her heavy armor. Even without her head, she still easily surpassed Li Huowang in terms of height. Li Huowang estimated that she was at least two meters tall when she was still alive.

At that moment, Li Huowang suddenly heard some unusual sounds. Even so, he didn't turn around to check on it; he knew that the sound was coming from Jin Shanzhao dragging his organs through the grass.

Why did both of them turn into illusions and start following me?

This was a question that had been filling Li Huowang's mind for a long time; however, he didn't have an answer.

It was not just these two either; the earlier illusions of Jiang Yingzi and Monk also left him without any answers.

Is this the power of a Strayed One? Can the Strayed Ones control the people they have killed?

A new speculation appeared in Li Huowang's mind.

How can I make them disappear? No... that's not right either... I didn't kill Monk. In fact, he might still be safe and sound back in the Righteous Monastery, never to have actually died.

But, if they aren't appearing due to my powers as a Strayed One, then what could be the reason? Could it be that I actually have a mental illness?

Li Huowang was feeling a little disoriented when he suddenly felt an itch, causing him to reach his bruised hand into his new clothes and scratch himself.

When Bun noticed his actions, it raced over and started wagging its tail as it squatted down in front of him.

Rip!

Li Huowang tore a huge piece of dead skin and hurled it toward Peng Longteng.

“Woof woof woof!” Bun barked delightedly while chewing on the dead skin greedily.

After finishing the snack, Bun went under Peng Longteng's legs and obediently sat in front of Li Huowang. Li Huowang knew that Bun liked these treats. All of his dead skin from before as well as his severed leg had all gone into its belly.

As he stared at Bun, Li Huowang stretched out his hand to pat its head, and then gazed off into the distance toward Peng Longteng.

After a while, he sighed deeply and mumbled to himself, “Well, at least these two don't talk. They won't be as annoying as Monk.”

“Daoist, am I annoying? I'm not, am I? I haven't done anything,” said Monk.

Hearing this, Li Huowang just gave a self-deprecating smile and chose to remain silent. Self-assurance was just that; he was more concerned about what would happen next after these three illusions.

What if these illusions multiply in the future? What if... I end up becoming like Dan Yangzi?

Li Huowang shivered as he thought back to the horror of Dan Yangzi and the hundreds of hallucinations.

I need to figure out what's going on and get rid of them. If I end up like Dan Yangzi, then I will surely go insane.

With these thoughts, the urgency of resolving his issues as a Strayed One became even more apparent to Li Huowang.

“Baolu!” called out Li Huowang, instantly causing Bun's ears to perk up. Then, it turned around and saw Sun Baolu running toward them. After a moment, it took a few steps forward, pushed its head against Li Huowang's legs, nudging him with its black nose.

“Senior Li, you called me?” asked Sun Baolu.

At this point, Li Huowang closely examined Sun Baolu once again. He was still the same as when they left the Righteous Monastery, still wrapped up tightly in his clothes. In fact, throughout their journey, he had always kept a low profile, to the point that Li Huowang sometimes forgot that he was even there.

“Do you know Qing Qiu well?” Li Huowang asked.

Sun Baolu nodded. “I'm very familiar with it.”

“Very familiar?” Li Huowang was a bit surprised; this was the first time he had heard anyone say that.

Unless met with unforeseen circumstances, a majority of the people in this world would spend their whole lives within the same twenty miles. Sun Baolu's assertion that he knew the entire place very well made Li Huowang skeptical.

“People in Qing Qiu are not like people in other areas. We follow nature. We travel to areas where nature is fertile. From my grandfather to my father, we've moved around Qing Qiu all our lives," explained Sun Baolu.

Hearing this, Li Huowang finally understood. "Oh, so the people here are nomadic."

Seeing the vast grasslands, Li Huowang could have guessed as much. People here relied on the land for everything, including their food.

"The sun is scorching today. Why don't you take off some clothes?" suggested Li Huowang. But when he saw Sun Baolu just standing there smiling, Li Huowang didn't insist further.

"Well, let's get down to business. Are there any experts here? Maybe someone like Dan Yangzi?" asked Li Huowang, finally bringing up the real reason behind calling over Sun Baolu.

Chapter 217 - Rabbit

Upon hearing this, Sun Baolu's face showed a hint of confusion, but he quickly regained his composure. "I don't know if the Lama from Luoism count or not, but my dad and grandfather respect them a lot, and it's said that they can communicate with spirits. I've only heard about that, and haven't witnessed it myself. I've only seen them twice ever since I was young. They came to ask for food, and my dad entertained them."

Based on what Sun Baolu explained, Li Huowang got a basic understanding of what the so-called Lama from Luoism were like.

According to Baolu's description, they were the ones responsible for hosting the wedding and funeral ceremonies all over Qing Qiu. He also learned that they were rather secular, and that they did not place any restrictions on meat or wine.

These Lama also claimed that there were no evil spirits in the entirety of Qing Qiu because of the protection of their Immortal Heaven.

"No evil spirits? There's none at all?" Li Huowang looked around, surprised at the stark contrast between this place and the others.

"Well... at least I haven't seen any, and neither have any of the others," said Sun Baolu. He wasn't as certain as Li Huowang had expected him to be.

"No evil spirits... Do you want to get in touch with those Lama? Perhaps you can ask for information about Strayed Ones," suggested Sun Baolu.

But after careful consideration, Li Huowang dismissed the idea. Even if he had the bronze coin mask, it was too dangerous to recklessly interact with other factions. If he were to be recognized as a Strayed One, it would lead to a lot of trouble.

After all the things he had been through, in his eyes, none of the factions besides the Benevolent Nunnery were any good.

It was Liang Kingdom after they passed through Qing Qiu. For now, there was nothing more important than getting to Liang Kingdom safely.

With this thought, Li Huowang came to his decision.

We can't bring this group of people there. After sending all these people along their separate paths, I might go and look for them myself.

"Tell me more about these so-called Lama from Luoism. What's their reputation like around here?" asked Li Huowang.

"They're still alright, at least in my experience," said Sun Baolu.

Li Huowang continued to question Sun Baolu, extracting all the bits and pieces of information about the Lama from Luoism that he could.

"Senior Li, time to eat," called out Bai Lingmiao.

A bowl of clear noodle soup was placed before Li Huowang, and there were some small, white tubers floating in it.

"What is this?" asked Li Huowang as he used his chopsticks to pick one up.

"I don't know. Senior Sun told us that these vegetables can be eaten. He said that he used to dig them up from the grass and eat them as snacks. He called them wild yams," replied Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang stuffed a wild yam into his mouth and gently bit into it. He found that they were like bitter potatoes, but the taste was decent.

At that moment, Bun, who was lying on Li Huowang's body, suddenly perked up, and then dashed toward a grassy area in the distance.

"Why did Bun run off? Should we follow for a look?" asked Bai Lingmiao.

“Let it have some fun. We’re usually rushing on the road, and it’s tough to find time to relax. Bun understands human nature, and will return when it’s time to leave,” said Li Huowang as he continued to eat. At the same time, Bai Lingmiao squatted beside him as she continued to watch over him.

Soon, the bowl of wild yams was quickly finished by Li Huowang, prompting Bai Lingmiao to serve him another bowl.

Li Huowang didn’t know if it was because his skin was growing back or something else, but his appetite right now was no less than that of Gao Zhijian or Bai Lingmiao’s.

As she gave him another bowl of noodle soup, Bai Lingmiao reached her right hand out to gently pat off the dust on Li Huowang’s body and she said longingly, “Senior Li, after passing through Qing Qiu, we’ll soon arrive at Liang Kingdom. Once we arrive at my village at the base of the Cowheart Mountain, we can settle down over there. We can use the silver to buy a few acres of land. Then, you can use oxen to plow the land, and I will weave at home. When we have saved enough money for a house, we can share the house with my parents.”

“Working the fields and weaving? Do you want to do that for the rest of your life?” asked Li Huowang as he slurped the rest of the noodles.

Hearing his response, Bai Lingmiao responded carefully, “Senior Li, you don’t want to work in the fields? That’s alright, you don’t have to. We have oxen.”

“I’m fine with doing anything, but I must cure my illness first,” said Li Huowang.

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao grabbed his hand. “Senior Li, it’s alright. I don’t mind you being like this. I can take care of you whenever your illness acts up.”

Li Huowang recalled Bai Lingmiao’s swollen face from before, and shook his head firmly. “No, it must be cured.”

He had to cure this illness, otherwise he wouldn't dare let himself stay by Bai Lingmiao's side in his current condition. Currently, he was like a ticking time bomb, one that could burst at any moment, capable of doing something he would end up regretting for the rest of his life.

Although he still had Yang Na and his mother on the other side, they were merely hallucinations and didn't actually exist. It was time he gave up on them.

"Senior Li, I beg you. It's fine like this, don't go looking for anything more. Didn't you tell me before that even the powerful Abbess couldn't find a solution either?" begged Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang placed his bowl down and looked at her with surprise. "How would we know if we don't give it a try? Don't you want me to be cured of my illness?"

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao hesitated, but finally chose to remain silent as she looked down.

On one hand, she was worried about Li Huowang's safety. But on the other hand, she was even more concerned that one day, if his illness was truly cured, then he would abandon her when he no longer needed her.

A healthy Li Huowang was too good, far too good, someone far beyond her reach.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang continued to eat his noodles, his eyes watching Peng Longteng, Monk, and half of Jin Shanzhao. He recalled his speculation about the Sitting Oblivion Dao, and his gaze grew more resolute.

No, I must completely resolve the issues associated with being a Strayed One. If Bei Feng from the Sitting Oblivion Dao really is a Strayed One, then there must be a way.

Even if there isn't a way, I must look for one. If I don't, then I would be letting myself down.

At that moment, Bun returned while holding a dead rabbit in its mouth. It placed the rabbit in front of Li Huowang and wagged its tail excitedly.

Bun's arrival broke the deadlock between the two. Bai Lingmiao reached out to rub the mutt's head. "Good dog. You know that Senior Li's body needs nourishment right now."

She picked up the rabbit and headed toward the pot.

Li Huowang looked at her departing figure, then said to Bun who had its tongue stuck out, "I know that she has my interests at heart, but I really dare not continue to be like that and accompany her for the rest of our lives. Honestly, I'm afraid that I may accidentally kill her some day."

"Woof woof!" Bun barked at Li Huowang, and then placed its nose on the ground.

Li Huowang reached into his clothes and pulled out another piece of dead skin, then threw it toward Peng Longteng.

Seeing this, Bun immediately dashed toward Peng Longteng's crotch.

Meanwhile, Sun Baolu used his excellent skills to roast the rabbit, turning it into a delicious meal for everyone.

Chapter 218 - Women's Mountain

Li Huowang walked slowly with the support of a crutch, leading the blindfolded Bai Lingmiao. He couldn't move fast as his severed leg had yet to fully heal.

Fortunately, the ox-cart wasn't fast either. It sacrificed speed and compensated for it by carrying a greater load while matching Li Huowang's current pace.

"Is this Women's Mountain?" Li Huowang squinted, shading his eyes with his hand as he looked at the distant hills. As he looked at these hills that were devoid of trees and covered with only green grass, he understood why this kingdom was called Qing Qiu^[1].

However, it might also be related to the lower height of these hills, unlike those mountain peaks that reached into the clouds. These grass-covered hills were akin to clusters of low ridges that were not interconnected.

"Senior Li, do you see the resemblance? When you squint and look, don't those hills look like half a woman's face lying down?" said Sun Baolu as he excitedly pointed with his fingers.

Li Huowang examined them carefully before shaking his head. He couldn't quite make out the obscure likeness between those hills and a woman's face.

These oddly-shaped hills were very strange, and there were neither too many nor too few. They just seemed to appear out of nowhere in the landscape, with no apparent connection between them.

"This year is the Year of the Moon, and according to our ancestral tradition, my family should be camping and grazing about a hundred miles from here. It won't be long until I can reunite with them!" said Sun Baolu, excited.

However, Li Huowang wasn't particularly interested in what Sun Baolu was saying. He was more concerned with their supplies. With there being so many people on this journey to Qing Qiu, their foodstock was running low.

"Can we find a market to buy food inside Women's Mountain? If not, we are going to starve to death," asked Li Huowang.

"Yes, no doubt about it. People from the nearby areas would often go there to exchange goods. I even went there once when I was seven," replied Sun Baolu.

With Sun Baolu's explanation, Li Huowang knew that in the vast and sparsely populated Qing Qiu, nomadic people would often choose a specific area to facilitate trade. Over time, these areas would become established marketplaces. Officials from Qing Qiu also came to these locations to collect taxes.

When Li Huowang saw tiny black dots moving at the base of the hills, he realized that Sun Baolu's information was correct. There were indeed people over there.

"Let's go. But remember to put on your veiled hats beforehand to avoid drawing attention from the locals," said Li Huowang as he donned his veil. His current bruised appearance wasn't any better than the others.

As the ox-cart approached the Women's Mountain, they followed a small path that led to the inside of the encircled area. In an instant, everything suddenly became clear.

A vast area of tents stretched out before Li Huowang and the others. The sound of horse hooves, people shouting, and donkeys braying filled the air. Li Huowang suddenly felt like he was attending a lively fair.

Many of the Qing Qiu people were dressed quite differently compared to the people from Hou Shu. Currently they were all preoccupied with their affairs, shouting and calling out to each other in this bustling marketplace.

At the same time, the sheer number of livestock led to an enormous amount of dung. The distinctive smell filled the air, causing everyone to furrow their brows.

The most significant difference between the people from Qing Qiu and Hou Shu were their rosy faces. The people of Hou Shu were covered in heavy freckles, regardless of age or gender. This was perhaps due to the prolonged exposure to the sun.

They also noticed that the people of Qing Qiu generally had shorter statures compared to Li Huowang and the others, making their group a lot more noticeable.

Everyone around them wore rough, makeshift leather garments, and circular bone ornaments could be seen dangling from the braids of the women and around the waists of men. Aside from bones and leather, they used grass for almost everything else—from crafting grass shoes and hats to weaving grass baskets, which were available for sale.

When Li Huowang's group entered, they attracted the attention of the Qing Qiu people. Faced with foreigners, everyone regarded them with caution and indifference.

At that moment, a loud noise and a chopping sound suddenly rang out from a nearby grass stall. A sharp knife was raised high and brought down forcefully, splitting the head of a hairless, grotesque dog into two halves.

Startled, Bun whimpered and quickly sought refuge beneath the ox-cart, with its tail between its legs.

“Are you truly a Qing Qiu native? You seem quite different from them,” Li Huowang remarked as he glanced through the black veil toward Sun Baolu.

Sun Baolu's face dimmed as he explained, “It's because... my mother is from another place.”

However, his eyes quickly lit up as he rushed through the crowd toward the front. He quickly made his way through the crowd, clearly overwhelmed with excitement as he embraced an elderly Qing Qiu person and proceeded to engage in conversation.

When they got closer, Li Huowang realized he couldn't understand their conversation at all.

Of all places, it had to be this one that had its own language.

Li Huowang was speechless; he could foresee some communication issues during their time in Qing Qiu.

Following a brief exchange with the elderly person, Sun Baolu returned to Li Huowang and said enthusiastically, "Senior Li, there is no doubt about it! That person is one of my kin! My family is not far from here."

"Alright, even if it's not far, we still need to proceed one step at a time. First, help us buy some food. We're running low on supplies," said Li Huowang while surveying the lively marketplace. Their inability to communicate due to the language barrier meant that they would have to rely on Sun Baolu for negotiations.

Sun Baolu nodded in agreement and was about to dive into the bustling crowd, but was suddenly stopped by Li Huowang. "Wait for a moment. Is there a place to eat around here? Everyone is hungry and could use some rest."

Soon, everyone arrived at a noodle stall where green noodles could be seen hanging from the rafters, making the whole place resemble a forest.

According to what Sun Baolu told them, here each group would cook their noodles in a shared pot and pay only for what they consume.

Although this method of eating was unfamiliar to the rest of the group, it didn't stop them from enjoying the meal. The aroma of the grass-infused noodles, combined with the spiciness of the mutton and spicy sauce, made for quite a delectable meal.

The noodle house was crowded with many diners. Fortunately, the presence of the hanging noodles made it difficult for the nearby people to see Li Huowang's group without their veils.

Where's Bun?

Li Huowang suddenly realized that the mutt was nowhere to be seen. As he turned to look for it, he saw Bun returning from underneath the noodle stall, holding something in its mouth. It spat the object out near Li Huowang's feet, and then sat down, wagging its tail while waiting for a reward.

As he saw the gleaming white bone near his feet, Li Huowang was puzzled. “What is this?”

While the others were unfamiliar with it, Sun Baolu recognized it immediately and explained, “Senior Li, that is a horse bone. Qing Qiu people rear horses, and they naturally eat horse meat as well. It's quite tasty.”

-
1. Qing Qiu can also be known as green hills 🏞️

Chapter 219 - Second Deity

“Horse bones? Where did you end up getting one of those? Please don't bring over random things. I'm almost out of scraps of my own dead skin to feed you,” Li Huowang turned to Bun.

Bun clearly didn't understand Li Huowang's words. It just lowered its head and used its black snout to nudge the horse bone closer to Li Huowang's feet. "Woof?"

Seeing this, Li Huowang patted its head and turned to Sun Baolu who was sitting across from him. “Alright, we are done eating. Since the place is different, the food will also be quite different. Just choose some local goods that aren't easily perishable.”

After finishing his instructions, Li Huowang nodded in Bai Lingmiao's direction, prompting her to hand him a money pouch she had sewn for herself using some scraps.

Sun Baolu weighed it with his hand, then stood up and wiped his mouth. “Okay, it's on me!”

“It's getting late, so let's check into an inn to rest. Staying outside every day can be quite tiring as well,” said Li Huowang as he pushed himself up with his crutch.

However, they soon faced a new challenge. Without Sun Baolu, they didn't understand what the people of Qing Qiu were saying.

After some gesturing from Puppy, they finally managed to check-in.

Bun followed Li Huowang into the tent-like room, circled him a few times and then settled down before starting to gnaw away on the horse bone it had found earlier.

Lying on the straw mat, Li Huowang sighed deeply and closed his eyes, allowing his tense body to relax.

A delicate pair of hands gently cradled Li Huowang's head to rest it on a pair of soft thighs. Then, the same gentle fingers rhythmically pressed against the newly grown hair on his head. As he breathed in the familiar scent, Li Huowang gradually drifted off to sleep.

"Wait, your fingernails seem a bit long," Li Huowang held her hands and slowly opened his eyes only to realize that the person he was facing was not really Bai Lingmiao but her Second Deity.

From his current position, Li Huowang could barely make out what was inside of the red veil. It was quite dim inside the red veil. Even with Li Huowang's excellent vision, he could only see the fox-like eyes that were glowing with an eerie light. However, there was something unsettling about the number of eyes. It was not a symmetrical pair but one larger and two smaller eyes.

At that moment, something inside the red veil gently moved and blocked Li Huowang's view.

"What do you want?" asked Li Huowang as he looked at her calmly. In the past, trouble from the Second Deity might have been a more concerning matter for him. But after his many experiences, her affairs didn't seem so important anymore.

"Hehe..." The Second Deity grabbed Li Huowang's hand and slowly brought it into her red veil.

Li Huowang felt snake scales, fur, and something that pricked his skin, something akin to a hairpin.

Then, she suddenly grabbed Li Huowang's hand and quickly pulled it, stuffing it into her bulging clothes. She slowly bent down, and the red veil got closer and closer to Li Huowang's face.

As they got closer and closer, some things were faintly appearing in front of Li Huowang through the red veil. There were human-like skulls, animal skulls, and some other objects that couldn't be identified easily. Li Huowang looked at them and said calmly, "I don't know where you're from or whether you're involved in the schemes of the Immortal families, but if you dare to harm Bai Lingmiao, then I won't let you off! Since you've always been watching from the sidelines, you must know that I have the ability to back those words, even if... it comes at a great cost."

Li Huowang threatened her and waited for her response.

To his surprise, she didn't get angry or scared in the face of his threat. Instead, she suddenly broke down.

The sound of her crying resembled the eerie wails of a female ghost, sending shivers down one's spine. Although it was terrifying, the Second Deity was really crying. She leaned against him, nestled in his arms, and continued to sob.

As Li Huowang gazed at the red veil, he hesitated for a moment. Then, he found himself embracing her; it was as if the one crying in his arms wasn't the Second Deity but the girl suffering from albinism with whom he had been through many life and death situations.

Li Huowang hesitated as he reached out his hand. After some contemplation, he began to softly caress her head.

Amidst the soft sounds of crying, the exhausted Li Huowang started to drift off into a deep sleep. After traveling for so long, his body was indeed weary and in need of rest.

"Senior Li, wake up! We've arrived at Cowheart Mountain! We are finally home!"

"Home?" Li Huowang opened his eyes to see the massive mountain and the village nestled beneath, as well as the vast golden rice fields nearby. The scene was quite harmonious and completely different from the gloomy visions of his dreams.

After a moment, he shifted his gaze upward and examined the mountain's appearance. He good-naturedly asked in surprise, "This doesn't look like a cow's heart at all. Do you guys just name these places randomly?”

Turning around, he saw Bai Lingmiao standing beside him.

“I don't know. My grandpa taught me this, and his ancestors taught him too,” replied Bai Lingmiao as she turned and smiled, revealing her frightening face.

Green snake scales appeared to crawl like centipedes on her white fox fur. Black needle-like thorns dotted the fur without hindering the movement of the scales. However, when the snake scales reached the center of her face, they couldn't go any further; two beastly eyes which radiated an eerie green glow blocked their path.

“Senior Li, what is wrong with you?” asked Bai Lingmiao as she took a step forward, causing Li Huowang to step back.

With his keen senses, Li Huowang suddenly felt something behind him. He abruptly turned around, and the two beast faces, which were now even more distorted and horrifying, appeared before him once again.

“Husband, do you dislike the way I look?”

“Ah!” Li Huowang was drenched in cold sweat as he opened his eyes, only to see that he was still in the grayish canvas tent.

He turned and saw Bai Lingmiao snuggled beside him, then glanced toward Jin Shanzhao and Peng Longteng in the corner. Only then did he realize that he had just had a nightmare.

It felt so real... I haven't had a nightmare in a long time .

Li Huowang turned on his side, pulled Bai Lingmiao closer to him, then closed his eyes again.

Is this a new nightmare now?

Li Huowang shook his head.

No... this time, it is not a nightmare. Because Jin Shanzhao and Peng Longteng are here.

Not long after he closed his eyes, he opened them again; he sensed someone lying down behind him.

At that moment, a bifurcated red tongue slithered from behind and gently licked Li Huowang's bruised neck. "Husband, do you dislike the way I look?"

Li Huowang pulled Bai Lingmiao closer into his arms, holding her even tighter. He buried his face in her white hair, and slowly said, "I don't mind, but you are not Bai Lingmiao."

Chapter 220 - The Marketplace

Upon hearing Li Huowang's response, the bifurcated tongue slowly retracted back into the blood-red veil and its mouth that was adorned with pointed teeth curved slightly upward into a faint smile. Then, the Second Deity, who was lying on the bed, carefully leaned toward Li Huowang, with Bai Lingmiao by his side.

The three of them lay quietly on the bed, not saying anything. The room finally fell silent.

As expected, Li Huowang once again overslept the next day. Thankfully, no one was on his case this time around.

"Senior Li, here you go." A bowl of white liquid was placed in front of the incapacitated Li Huowang.

"What is this?" asked Li Huowang; he noticed some white substances floating inside.

"Sheep milk curdled with tofu. I heard from Baolu that a saying in Qing Qiu suggests that drinking sheep milk helps wounds heal faster," said Bai Lingmiao.

Hearing this, Li Huowang took a big sip from the bowl. It wasn't particularly tasty or unpleasant. He was just not used to it. Nevertheless, as long as it wasn't overly salty or spicy, he wasn't picky when it came to food and drinks.

After he finished his bowl, Bai Lingmiao picked up a towel and reached over to Li Huowang's mouth, gently wiping away the milk mustache from the corners of his mouth.

"How's Sun Baolu's progress with the supplies?" asked Li Huowang.

"He left early this morning. He said that the sheep from the first store were in poor condition, and so he planned to visit a few more places,” replied Bai Lingmiao.

“What? Sheep? I told him to buy food stocks. Why is he buying sheep?” asked Li Huowang.

Bai Lingmiao chuckled. “I asked him the same thing earlier. He explained that in Qing Qiu, live sheep are considered provisions. Sheep's milk is suitable for consumption. And when the sheep's dung dries, it can serve as a source of fuel. Plus, live sheep can move on their own, which is more convenient than carrying around dry rations.”

“Ah, I see. Well, alright.” Li Huowang decided to follow local norms in this instance.

After keeping away the bowl, Bai Lingmiao went over to Li Huowang and softly held his calf and pulled back his pants, carefully observing the healing progress of his severed leg.

“Senior Li, look! It has grown down to your ankle. It should be fully healed in the next few days,” exclaimed Bai Lingmiao joyfully.

As he stared at Bai Lingmiao's delicate face, Li Huowang momentarily got lost in his thoughts. He couldn't help but recall the happenings of the night before.

“Miaomiao, have you been keeping something from me recently?” asked Li Huowang.

“Hmm? What's wrong? I haven't kept anything from you,” said Bai Lingmiao, tilting her head with a puzzled expression.

Li Huowang went straight to the point, completely disregarding whether she really knew what was going on. “It is concerning your Second Deity. Has she been affecting you? Or have the Immortal families threatened you?”

“No, why would she threaten me? Our lives are connected. If I die, then she will die too,” replied Bai Lingmiao.

“Is that so?” Li Huowang thoughtfully regarded Bai Lingmiao.

“Remember, I'm right here. If there's ever any trouble, make sure to come to me, alright?”

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao nodded. Then, with a hint of caution, she asked, “Senior Li, there is nothing much to do today. Can we go out for a walk?”

“A walk? Why?”

“Just... to go out and have some fun. After all, I haven't been to Qing Qiu before. It seemed quite lively outside when we came here yesterday,” Bai Lingmiao replied with a rare mischievous grin on her face.

Li Huowang re-evaluated the girl before him. Her current demeanor reminded him of the time he watched a movie with Yang Na. At that moment, it suddenly dawned on him that this young girl, despite all her maturity, was still just a teenager.

Li Huowang suddenly felt a pang of guilt. He hadn't considered this aspect before.

“Alright then, let's go. Let's have a good time today,” said Li Huowang as he picked up his crutch and walked out of the rudimentary inn with her support.

Once outside, the glaring sun made Bai Lingmiao scrunch up her pink eyes. “The sun is so bright today.”

Li Huowang quickly untied the white ribbon on her wrist and used it to cover her eyes. “No, your eyes must be covered up. Otherwise, the sun will hurt your eyes.”

“But... this way... I can't see anything...” Bai Lingmiao's enthusiasm waned, realizing that she would have to miss this rare opportunity.

“In that case, you can hold onto me, and I'll describe everything I see to you. How does that sound?” suggested Li Huowang.

“Okay... that works!” The smile on Bai Lingmiao's face immediately returned as she clasped Li Huowang's clothing with both her hands.

“Miaomiao, there's someone in front of us, buying a baby lamb. Here, reach out and feel it,” started describing Li Huowang.

Bai Lingmiao reached out and stroked the lamb's furry head. In response, the lamb stuck out its tongue and licked her palm from below, startling her into withdrawing her hand swiftly.

After a while, she carefully reached her hand out again.

“Come on, let's continue,” said Li Huowang.

Then, the one-eyed and one-legged Li Huowang started hobbling around with the support of his crutch. Bai Lingmiao walked slowly by his side in the bustling marketplace, her eyes still covered.

Through Li Huowang's descriptions, Bai Lingmiao gradually learned about the ins and outs of the entire marketplace. At the same time, she felt genuinely happy now. Although she could not see anything, she could still feel that Senior Li genuinely cared for her and was there for her.

After a while, Li Huowang suddenly came to a halt, causing Bai Lingmiao to accidentally bump into him. She asked, “Senior Li, why did we stop walking? What do you see?”

“Oh, there's a group performing tricks up ahead. They're spitting fire. The fire was so high that it ended up burning someone's hair, and now that person is jumping around in a frenzy,” replied Li Huowang.

Li Huowang's description of the scene amused Bai Lingmiao, to the point that she even felt like taking off her blindfold to sneak a peek. However, Li Huowang stopped her.

“Another person is swallowing knives. He just shoved three knives down his throat without even blinking,” continued Li Huowang.

As he continued to describe the scenes of the people around them, Li Huowang and Bai Lingmiao both wore smiles.

Meanwhile, the ragged slaves had lifeless expressions, having long become completely numb to their situation.

The kingdom of Qing Qiu had more to offer than its green noodles and tent-like inns. There was a darker side to it all. They were involved in human trafficking!

“There's a monkey act next to the fire-breathing show. That monkey is very intelligent, even to the point of being able to whip its owner,” Li Huowang continued to relay. “Quick, the monkey is heading our way. Let's go.”

Li Huowang limped while guiding the blindfolded Bai Lingmiao away from that area.

Li Huowang continued to accompany Bai Lingmiao through the marketplace, thinking that they had seen enough for the day. However, they soon encountered an unsettling sight on the market platform.

There was a dead body being disemboweled with a dagger.

“Senior Li, what's happening over there?” asked Bai Lingmiao.

“People are wrestling over there. The guy looks enormous, and is probably twice as heavy as you,” lied Li Huowang.

“Senior Li, I'm not that heavy!” Bai Lingmiao blushed and nudged Li Huowang's arm.

“That was my mistake, let me correct that. The wrestler is probably four times as heavy as you,” said Li Huowang.

At that moment, Li Huowang abruptly lifted his head to gaze at the sky. The sky had suddenly been obscured by something.

It was a flock of vultures.

At that moment, dozens of pitch-black vultures swooped down and covered the corpse, going wild as they tore at it savagely.

The vultures competed fiercely over their scarce meal. After gorging themselves, they scattered like flies, leaving behind only a pile of scattered bones and some hair on the ground.

Then, the people who had been waiting on the side approached the pile of scattered bones while carrying small hammers, and gently started tapping the bones. Once the bones had been properly fashioned into trinkets, they decked themselves with these trinkets, adorning their hair and garments with them.

As he saw this, Li Huowang finally understood how the people of Qing Qiu got their bone ornaments.

“Senior Li, what do you see? I want to know!” Bai Lingmiao tugged at Li Huowang's clothes, asking repeatedly.

Da da da~

Just then, Bun skipped through the crowd and arrived by Li Huowang's side, carrying half a human skull in its mouth. Then, it dropped the skull by his feet while wagging its tail and sitting there, panting continuously.

Chapter 221 - The Marketplace (2)

When Li Huowang saw Bun fetch him a human skull, he suddenly realized what the bone from before was—it should have been a human bone as well!

Does Bun like the taste of humans now since I kept feeding it scraps my skin?

Li Huowang was starting to regret his earlier actions as he watched Bun with a pained look on his face.

“Woo?” Seeing how its owner did not react, Bun tilted its head and used its black snout to push the skull closer to Li Huowang’s feet.

Seeing this, Li Huowang extended his hands and started rubbing Bun’s head. At the same time, Li Huowang raised a dagger and cut off a piece of his own flesh and placed it in front of Bun.

Li Huowang held the bloodied dagger and aimed it at Bun’s neck.

He had decided that he would kill the dog the moment it was attracted to the piece of flesh.

Even though Li Huowang had come to like the dog after traveling with it for so long, he would never keep a man-eating dog by his side, both for the sake of himself and the others.

However, Bun just continued to enjoy the head pats, not the slightest bit attracted to the piece of flesh. After waiting for a moment, Li Huowang slowly retracted the dagger.

Bun hadn’t become a crazy dog that loved to eat humans. It just loved to fetch things and present them to Li Huowang.

But, compared to Bun, one person came to mind when he started thinking about how suspicious all this seemed.

It was a human bone, so why did Sun Baolu say that it was a horse bone? Something's up... Why did he lie to me?

Li Huowang frowned. Sun Baolu was the only one who could interact with the people of Qing Qiu. If there was something wrong with him, then they were all in big danger.

"Senior Li, what's wrong? Why are you not talking anymore? Are you feeling tired? If so, we can just head back." Bai Lingmiao felt the atmosphere was off and tried to be considerate.

"Oh, it's nothing. Bun just fetched the hoof of a donkey. It's right in front of us; you can touch it if you want," replied Li Huowang.

When Bai Lingmiao felt Bun's familiar head, she smiled. "So it really is Bun. I see that it loves to fetch a lot of different things for us. I have to wonder... where did it learn to do that?"

Just as Bun was about to lick Bai Lingmiao's hand, Li Huowang stopped it and pulled her away.

"It's definitely a bad habit. Bun, let's go. We should look at the other places in the market as well," said Li Huowang as he kicked away the skull and continued talking to Bai Lingmiao.

The incident from earlier did not stop Li Huowang and Bai Lingmiao's little adventure through the market. They continued browsing the place with Li Huowang describing what was going on to Bai Lingmiao.

They were going to resume their journey tomorrow anyway, and he didn't want to make Bai Lingmiao worry because of these small issues. At the same time, he also decided to temporarily hide his suspicions about Sun Baolu.

In order to prevent Bai Lingmiao from accidentally seeing those gruesome scenes, Li Huowang did his best to guide her away from those places. But due to that, the places they could go to were quite limited.

Soon, many people within the market noticed a hobbling man guiding around a blind woman, walking through the market again and again. However, the man would say a different thing every time they passed through the same area.

With Li Huowang's crafty storytelling, Bai Lingmiao still managed to 'see' how wonderful the place was without taking off her blindfold. It took them the whole afternoon before they finally decided to stop. The sun would soon set causing the temperature to drop.

"Miaomiao, it will be dark soon. We should head back," said Li Huowang as he took off Bai Lingmiao's blindfold.

Bai Lingmiao blinked a few times and excitedly looked around, but was disappointed; she didn't see any of the interesting things that Li Huowang had told her about.

"Since it's going to be dark soon, many of them have already closed shop for the day. Let's go back well," Li Huowang gently explained to her.

Bai Lingmiao looked at the sky and nodded. "Yeah, you are right. Let's go back. Ah! Today was so fun!"

As he saw Bai Lingmiao's smile, Li Huowang's heart ached.

Was she satisfied with just this?

"Senior Li, look. Bun is still following us," said Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang stared at Bai Lingmiao as she rubbed Bun's chin. "Don't touch it. The dog has become quite dirty."

"No worries. Bun is quite clean. Everytime we found a river during our journey, Bun would always wash itself in the water," said Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang said nothing. Both Bai Lingmiao and Bun didn't know any better, and so he didn't know how to explain. In the end, he just slowly hobbled back to the inn.

Seeing this, Bai Lingmiao quickly stopped petting Bun and went to support Li Huowang, helping him distribute some of his weight by letting him lean onto her.

“Woof!” Meanwhile, Bun barked and wagged its tail while circling around them.

However, the quiet atmosphere didn’t last long.

Soon, Li Huowang and Bai Lingmiao saw Sun Baolu standing on the deserted street, accompanied by tens of goats.

Sun Baolu was very happy when he saw Li Huowang. “Senior Li, look at all these goats! After an entire day, I’ve picked the best of the best! Oh, Senior Bai, this is the leftover money after I bought all these goats.”

Li Huowang looked at Sun Baolu.

He still looked the same as before.

Li Huowang acted as if nothing had happened and calmly said, “Let’s herd the goats back. We still need to resume our journey tomorrow so that you can reunite with your family as soon as possible.”

“Yay!” Sun Baolu did not realize that something was wrong with Li Huowang and started herding the goats back.

None of them said anything along the way. After arriving at the inn, Sun Baolu quickly herded the goats to the side of the ox-cart. Then, he went and boasted to Zhao Wu about how he had chosen the best goats with the lowest price.

“Sun Baolu, are you really that happy to go back home?” asked Zhao Wu while munching on some cornbread and staring at Sun Baolu. He felt confused; the Sun Baolu in his memories was not someone that was this jovial.

“I’m really confused. You are just like a regular human without any disabilities. Why did that Baldy capture you?” asked Zhao Wu suddenly.

Sun Baolu’s face froze as he pulled his sleeves down. “Did that Baldy ever need a reason to capture people? The goats are here, so just count them. They will be our food source for our travels so please be more careful with them.”

Zhao Wu nodded and Sun Baolu left the ox-cart.

As Sun Baolu thought about how he would be able to reunite with his family soon, he broke out into a smile. He happily skipped around for a while before stopping abruptly.

In front of Sun Baolu was Li Huowang, leaning against a wooden beam. At this moment, his gaze looked quite... unfriendly.

Chapter 222 - Baolu

“Senior Li? Is something wrong?” Sun Baolu asked carefully.

Li Huowang used his chin to point toward the outside before placing his crutches underneath his armpit and hobbling out. “Let’s go and have a chat, just the two of us.”

Sun Baolu hesitated for a moment before finally deciding to walk out.

As it got darker, very few people could still be seen outside at this point.

The bone-chilling wind blew gently, tugging at Li Huowang’s and Sun Baolu’s sleeves.

Sun Baolu was not having a good time. He was trying to think about how to answer Senior Li’s question. After all, he had never thought that his lies would be seen through so quickly.

“No need to delay this anymore. We still need to resume our journey tomorrow. So tell me, why did you lie and say that the bone was from a horse, not a human? How many more things are you hiding from us?”

Sun Baolu hesitated for a moment, and then sighed. “Senior Li, it’s not that I wanted to intentionally hide it from all of you, but I just thought that there was no reason for me to explain the local traditions of Qing Qiu to you and everyone else; after all, we are just passing through this place. I was afraid that you would think we are weird.”

“Cutting up a human being, feeding them to the vultures, and then using their broken bones as decorations? I don’t think this is a tradition,” commented Li Huowang. He was still shocked by what he had seen today.

Hearing the doubt in Li Huowang’s voice, Sun Baolu explained as best as he could, “Maybe outsiders would think that this is crazy, but this really is one of the traditions followed by the people of Qing Qiu. Except for those who died from an illness, everyone else is given a sky burial. Since the dead would also rot underneath the ground, we might as well use them to feed the animals and then hunt them down for food. Regardless of what we do, everything is decided by the Immortal Heaven. All living beings would still go through reincarnation afterward.”

Li Huowang looked at Sun Baolu calmly. “Immortal Heaven? Do the people of Qing Qiu worship it as a God? Where does it usually reside?”

This was the second time Li Huowang had heard of that name.

Sun Baolu pointed at the moon. “It’s there. The Immortal Heaven cannot touch us, and we cannot see it, but it will always have something that we want.”

“Hm?” Hearing his words, Li Huowang looked at the moon as well.

“That’s the belly button of the Immortal Heaven while the entire night sky is its shadow. Its shadow is made from the two candles it holds during the night,” explained Sun Baolu.

“The entire night is its shadow? And what about the day?” Li Huowang asked.

“During the day, the sun represents the two candles it’s holding! The Immortal Heaven will observe us behind the candles. Thanks to it, we can live a good life,” Sun Baolu said as if it was the truth.

Hearing those words, Li Huowang began to ponder.

The Five Realms of Buddha mentioned by the Righteous Monastery, the Nuo Opera performers that talked about Da Nuo, the Baiyu Capital that Li Huowang himself had seen, and now the Immortal Heaven described by Sun Baolu.

Everyone had their own views about the world. Some of them even contradicted the others.

However, Li Huowang had seen ‘it’ itself and knew that there was no Immortal heaven, nor was there any Da Nuo or the Five Realms of Buddha.

All Li Huowang had seen was a world gone crazy. The humans living within it and the beings living above it were all being tormented along with the world.

Li Huowang wanted to ignore all the other worldviews, but he tried his best not to do so.

Maybe the things I saw were mere illusions, and maybe what they said is true? No matter what, the world and Gods any of them described were much better than the crazy world I saw back then.

As he saw Li Huowang just standing there silently, Sun Baolu said with a bitter expression on his face, “Senior Li, you don’t believe me, do you?”

Li Huowang thought about it and finally gave his answer, “I trust you. But then, what about the people who took the pieces of bones as decorations?”

“That’s also one of the rules that has been passed down in Qing Qiu. Legends say that the bones contain a person’s bravery and strength. If we wear them on our body, it will not only increase our bravery and strength, it could also repel evil. But only the bones of extremely talented individuals are highly sought after. The unpopular ones just have their bones buried under,” explained Sun Baolu.

“Why is the culture of Qing Qiu so... unauspicious?” questioned Li Huowang.

“Is it unauspicious? I think it’s normal,” said Sun Baolu matter of factly.

After Sun Baolu explained more about the culture of Qing Qiu as well as some of their myths, the scene Li Huowang had seen before started to make sense.

Even so, Li Huowang was still suspicious and did not let his guard down.

Sensing the suspicion in Li Huowang's gaze, Sun Baolu revealed an unpleasant expression on his face. "Senior Li, we are all comrades that escaped from the Zephyr Temple. You've already sacrificed so much just so you could let us return home. I would never lie to you. Even if I wanted to hurt you, I would've done so when you were unconscious. After all, you are far too strong and a single hit from you would probably kill me."

Li Huowang nodded. "That's indeed the case. Then, since you trust me so much, can you tell me why you wrap your clothes so tightly around your body?"

Something definitely happened to Sun Baolu's body. Li Huowang had never really given it much thought before, but now he wanted to know what Sun Baolu was hiding.

Hearing those words, Sun Baolu paled and hugged his shirt tightly before taking a few steps back. He didn't know why Li Huowang would suddenly ask about that.

"What are you afraid of? You can just show me. All of us have some kind of deformity one way or another. Do you think that any of us would laugh at you? Or do you think that your condition is worse than mine?" pressed Li Huowang.

Sun Baolu felt extremely humiliated by Li Huowang's words. His eyes were red as he shouted, "Senior Li! I'm really different from all of you! Please, I beg you! If you keep pushing it, then I would rather just kill myself!"

When he saw just how big his reaction was, Li Huowang hobbled closer. "You are going to go home soon and we will most likely not meet each other again. Do you still want to hide it?"

Sun Baolu took a deep breath and shouted, "Fine! I will tell you and only you alone once I get back to my home! You must never tell anyone else or I will die right in front of you!"

Seeing how serious Sun Baolu was, Li Huowang realized that there was no reason to push him any further; they were comrades and not enemies.

At the same time, Li Huowang also realized he had become far too suspicious of everyone after being lied to by the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao.

“You don’t have to tell me if you don’t want to. I’m just asking,” assured Li Huowang. He decided to temporarily trust Sun Baolu as he started hobbling back toward the inn.

Hearing those words, Sun Baolu wiped his tears with his sleeves and helped Li Huowang walk back to the inn.

Just as they had almost reached the inn, Li Huowang heard something from the right. He turned around and saw that something glowing was headed their way.

Li Huowang stopped at the entrance of the inn. “Wait, that light is weird. It’s too diffused.”

The light slowly came closer and closer causing Li Huowang’s eye to widen with shock.

“Baolu... Didn’t you say that there were no evil beings in Qing Qiu? What is that?” asked Li Huowang.

“That’s not an evil being, that’s a Lion Dance. Senior Li, don’t you know about Lion Dance?” asked Sun Baolu, confused.

Chapter 223 - Leave

“Lion Dance?” Li Huowang’s still could not fathom it. The thing that was approaching them was not the Lion Dance that he knew of. The Lion Dance he knew was festive and glamorous, not a large dirty white sheet that didn’t even have a head on it!

Underneath the white sheet was a glowing white light. The light illuminated the white sheet from within, as well as the surroundings. Li Huowang noticed that it was the same exact light that he had seen just now.

Li Huowang wouldn’t have thought that it was an evil being if it was just a glowing piece of white sheet, but what made his hair stand on end were the various dried handprints on the white sheet.

Under the illumination of the light, the white sheet was somewhat translucent, and there were handprints of various sizes clearly printed on it.

As the Lion Dance got closer, Li Huowang saw that it had many white tassels attached to it, the same ones that were seen on the funeral banners.

Then, Li Huowang looked down and saw the legs of the performers. They weren’t wearing shoes and their feet were caked in mud.

If there was one similarity between this and the Lion Dance that he knew, then it was the hands holding up the white sheet. They were all swaying rhythmically while moving forward, almost as if they were dancing. Everytime they moved forward, the sound of pieces of wood smacking against each other could be heard from underneath the white sheet, as if following a beat.

“Senior Li, it’s fine. I also cried when I saw them for the first few times, but afterward I got used to it,” said Sun Baolu, trying to reassure Li Huowang.

However, Li Huowang just carefully pulled his coin veil up a bit to cover more of his face. “Sometimes the things we are used to are not all that safe. Why doesn’t that Lion Dance have a head?”

“That’s because they are still disciples! Only the masters have the qualifications to don on the head. The disciples usually practice at night when no one is around,” explained Sun Baolu.

Once Sun Baolu explained everything to Li Huowang, he shouted toward the Lion Dance. Based on his tone, Li Huowang could tell that Sun Baolu was cheering on the Lion Dance performers.

But the headless Lion Dance did not respond to his cries. They just kept moving forward slowly and rhythmically before passing by Li Huowang and Sun Baolu.

After a while, the Lion Dance finally left the street. Now, the Lion Dance was nothing more than a glowing white light in the darkness, the same as before. During the entire process, the Lion Dance hadn’t even reacted to Li Huowang or Sun Baolu.

“See, Senior Li? Qing Qiu is not the same as the other places. With the protection of Immortal Heaven, the evil beings dare not come out over here,” said Sun Baolu proudly.

Li Huowang was still somewhat suspicious when he looked at Sun Baolu before heading into the inn. “Then, why is the Immortal Heaven so selfish? Why is it only protecting this area?”

“I don’t know. My family was the one who taught me that,” replied Sun Baolu.

“The Lion Dance... Do the masters among them gather and teach the disciples so that they can take the mantle as the next generation?” asked Li Huowang.

“No, they don’t gather disciples from the public. They are inherited instead. There’s a special place in Qing Qiu where they came from, called the Lion Dance Palace,” explained Sun Baolu.

“Lion Dance Palace?” Li Huowang mumbled and repeated the name. He had heard of it before but he couldn’t remember where.

Just as he was thinking hard about it, Monk’s illusion suddenly shouted and pointed in the direction of the Lion Dance, “Daoist! Something’s not right! Something’s wrong with the Lion Dance!”

“Hm?” Li Huowang turned and looked at Monk’s illusion. “What’s wrong?”

“Did you not count them? The number wasn’t right! There were more hands than there were feet under that sheet! Something’s definitely wrong with that Lion Dance!” replied Monk.

“Wait!” Li Huowang tried his best to remember what he had seen and a chill went up his spine.

If it wasn’t for Monk, he would’ve failed to notice it.

Why were there more hands than there were feet?!

“Senior Li?” Sun Baolu retreated a few steps back when he saw Li Huowang mumbling to himself. Just as he was planning to call for the others and ask them to bring the chains in case Li Huowang’s illness relapsed, Li Huowang started hobbling back inside.

“Baolu, we won’t be sleeping tonight! We need to guard everyone!” shouted Li Huowang while hobbling inside.

“Ah? Oh! Alright!” While Sun Baolu didn’t know why they still needed to stay up at night to stand guard, he did it anyway.

During the third section of the night, Sun Baolu saw as Li Huowang stood up and called for everyone to start preparing to move out.

The others didn’t know why they needed to travel during the night, but they did as they were instructed.

At this moment, they had traded their gold and silver for a whole bunch of highland barley and several lambs.

“Here, let me handle it! I’m great at it! When I was young, I helped some rich people to herd their lambs for two years!” Lu Zhuangyuan volunteered himself and was temporarily assigned the position of the lamb herder.

Soon, they left Women's Mountain under the moonlight.

Throughout the process, Li Huowang kept looking backward from time to time. He looked terrible due to the lack of sleep.

Given how anxious Li Huowang was, everyone thought that something would happen to them. However, they didn't have the energy to think about other stuff and so the mood of the entire group became depressing.

Chun Xiaoman was carrying her sword as she went over and asked Sun Baolu, "What happened to Senior Li? Wasn't he always by your side? I saw him bringing Senior Bai to happily play around earlier, so why did he suddenly become like this tonight?"

Sun Baolu hesitated for a moment before whispering back, "I don't know either. There shouldn't be a problem."

Sun Baolu's voice was as quiet as a mosquito as he continued, "Maybe Senior Li is having one of his episodes again. I remember that every time it happened, there was always someone trying to harm him through his hallucinations."

Xiaoman looked at the nervous Li Huowang and ran over to Bai Lingmiao to question her instead.

But even as they arrived at a river to rest, Chun Xiaoman still had no idea what had happened to Li Huowang.

"Set up the pot, gather some of the lamb feces and start the fire under it!" instructed Li Huowang.

Meanwhile, some of them scattered to find some wild vegetables.

Puppy's eyes lit up as he caught two grasshoppers from the long grass. He plucked off their wings and legs before placing them into a pouch on his waist.

"Qing Qiu is so fertile. I can't believe that I managed to catch some good food so quickly over here," mumbled Puppy as he started to look for more grasshoppers.

After a while, Puppy suddenly found a small spiny vine. He carefully twisted a part of the vine off before peeling it to reveal the emerald core within. Then, he chewed on the core, feeling satisfied. He had eaten this before and it tasted quite good, just like a stalk of celery.

Just as Puppy was about to harvest the entire vine, a basket fell in front of him, surprising him. He raised his head and saw that it was Chun Xiaoman's basket. She had placed the basket down in front of him as she walked toward Li Huowang.

“Please bring these back when you return to the fireplace,” said Xiaoman.

Translator's Thoughts

This is what a Lion Dance looks like in our world. Some of their performances are pretty amazing

Chapter 224 - Riverside

“Hey!” Puppy grumbled when he saw Chun Xiaoman so blatantly use him for physical labour. But, in the end, he wasn’t able to raise his voice for fear of being chopped up by her.

Meanwhile, Chun Xiaoman approached the sitting Li Huowang. “Senior Li, why are we traveling so urgently today?”

Li Huowang patted the ground beside him and said. “There might be an unseen danger. I’m just guessing, but it’s better to be safe than sorry.”

As he spoke, he turned around and looked in the direction of the Women’s Mountain. Whether or not the Lion Dance Palace was an established sect like the Righteous Monastery, he was glad that they hadn’t noticed his identity.

Should I make contact with them and ask them about Bei Feng of the Sitting Oblivion Dao? No... It might be too dangerous. If I want to solve the issues related to being a Strayed One, then I need to work on something else first.

At that moment, Bun walked over and placed down a stone that it had fetched from somewhere else. Then, it started wagging its tail, hoping for Li Huowang to pet it.

“Senior Li, you don’t have to shoulder everything by yourself. You already have an illness and it might even get worse if you just bottle everything up. You can tell us about your worries and we can figure it out together,” said Xiaoman.

Hearing this, Li Huowang started patting Bun’s head while calmly telling her what he had seen yesterday.

“So, your illusions told you that there were more hands than feet in the Lion Dance and then you recalled that it in fact did have more hands?” asked Xiaoman, feeling amazed. She suddenly felt that the whole thing was quite ridiculous and thought that Sun Baolu was right.

Li Huowang felt her distrust but didn't get mad. He just sighed disappointedly as he stared at the three illusions in front of him and mumbled, "See? This is why I prefer to keep it all to myself and not tell anyone."

If he spoke to others, not only would he not gain their understanding, they would even think that he was crazy if he ended up saying certain things out loud.

"Daoist, don't worry. I will always believe in you. It's fine if they don't understand you," declared Monk.

However, Li Huowang just ignored Monk's illusion and looked at Chun Xiaoman's empty sleeve. "Have you gotten used to only having one arm?"

Chun Xiaoman was slightly surprised to see him taking care of her. "Losing an arm was worth it to save everyone's lives. After all, if it weren't for everyone here, then I would long be dead."

Li Huowang decided to use this opportunity to explain to her about his power. He placed his fingers into his left eye socket and gingerly touched the dry, but still recovering eyeball. "The ability to regenerate an arm... It's not that I don't want my secrets to be leaked, but that it's not something you can just use. The process would be too painful for you to handle."

Chun Xiaoman nodded. "I know. You would've taught it to me if I could use it. You are not someone that selfish."

Xiaoman wanted to say something else, but in the end, she decided against it. Instead, she just quietly approached Bai Lingmiao.

At this moment, Bai Lingmiao was picking some wild vegetables some distance away.

Xiaoman squatted down beside Bai Lingmiao and removed some of the wild grass from within Bai Lingmiao's basket. "If you want to live with him in the future, then you have to find a way to cure his illness. Right now it's even affecting his daily life."

However, Bai Lingmiao was still riding the high of their date from yesterday and just nodded along.

Seeing this, Chun Xiaoman gently nudged Bai Lingmiao's shoulder. "Did you hear me? I'm talking to you."

"Yes, I'm listening. Xiaoman, I'm fine even if he's not cured. As long as I get to be with Senior Li, I will be happy," replied Bai Lingmiao.

When she saw how stubborn Bai Lingmiao was, Chun Xiaoman sighed. "Why are you so stubborn? If it was anyone else who was being this stubborn, then I would've long since stopped caring about them."

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao smiled and hugged Chun Xiaoman. "Thank you for your concern. I will listen to you."

Chun Xiaoman's heart melted when she saw Bai Lingmiao's cute face. "Fine, fine. Anyway, the sun is so bright today; you should quickly put on your blindfold."

"I'm just digging up some wild vegetables. As long as I keep my head down I will be fine," replied Bai Lingmiao.

Given that summer solstice was almost upon them, there were many wild vegetables to be found in the grassfield. They ate about half of the wild vegetables they collected while the rest of them were stored, meant to be eaten the next day.

Even though there were some rough bits and pieces of vegetables within their soup, they still ate it gladly, all thanks to the lard floating at the top of the soup.

After their meal, the men went and washed up in the river. The days were getting hotter and no one enjoyed having sweat sticking to their body.

After the men finished bathing, it was the women's turn.

Bai Lingmiao and Chun Xiaoman carefully supported the pregnant Luo Juanhua to the river while the other women that they had saved from the bandit camp followed them as well.

Some of the men were tempted to take a peek at the bathing women, but none of them dared to even look in the direction of the river when they saw Li Huowang sitting there menacingly like an iron pillar, guarding the women from unwanted gazes.

Behind Li Huowang was a scene straight from heaven. The setting sun dyed the river a beautiful red.

Bai Lingmiao poured the water that was glimmering with a red color onto her jade white skin, leaving glimmering droplets on her body.

Even Chun Xiaoman was astounded by the beautiful scene in front of her.

Meanwhile, Luo Juanhua, who also saw this scene, admired her as well. "Tsk tsk, such beautiful skin. Your man must love embracing and caressing you in bed."

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao blushed and lowered her body into the water. "Sister Luo, what are you talking about?"

"There are no men here, so no need to be shy. But once you are at my age you will come to understand that for men, it's all just an act," said Luo Juanhua. Then, she carefully walked over while holding her belly and curiously asked Bai Lingmiao, "Say, how is your man in bed? Is he good? Does it feel good? Oh, and how long does he last?"

Hearing those questions, Bai Lingmiao was so embarrassed that she almost dove down into the water and Chun Xiaoman had to walk over and rescue her from the embarrassment. "Sister Luo, she's very shy; please don't embarrass her so much."

Luo Juanhua sighed pitifully. "I'm just trying to teach her since she's so young. But if she doesn't want to, then I won't do it. Plus all this is still quite tame compared to what we used to talk about in my village. There, every woman in the village would bathe together in the lake and our topics were so dirty that even the old men would run away whenever they heard us talking.”

Having said that, Luo Juanhua carefully walked away toward another woman.

As she watched Luo Juanhua walking away, Chun Xiaoman held Bai Lingmiao’s arm and pulled her up. “Alright, she’s gone. You can stand up now or you will end up drowning.”

Bai Lingmiao patted her chest and sighed. “I’ve never seen her be so open before. That startled me.”

“They are already mature adults. They are all the same,” said Chun Xiaoman as she used her cloth to help wipe down Bai Lingmiao’s body.

“Do you think that we will also become like her once we reach her age? It’s so embarrassing...” Bai Lingmiao blushed while staring at Luo Juanhua who was laughing with the others in the distance.

Chapter 225 - Reaching Home

Chun Xiaoman spoke while still wiping Bai Lingmiao's body, "I don't think it's inappropriate. Since you've already slept with Senior Li, it's not really a taboo. So, don't slouch and stand straight."

However, Bai Lingmiao was so embarrassed that she couldn't say anything. She still felt that this topic was something private, and that it shouldn't be discussed with anyone else.

The women bathed for a long time. It was only when the skies were getting dark that they dried themselves off and wore their clothes.

Because of the fact that they had departed before dawn, most of them were already tired. Thus, all of them went to sleep quite early except for the ones who were standing guard at night.

"Since I have a lot of hair, I could only dry them halfway. Hope you won't hate them," said Xiaoman.

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao hugged Chun Xiaoman with all her might and shoved her face into Chun Xiaoman's dense hair. "How could I hate it? I love my dear Xiaoman."

Xiaoman raised her hairy legs, tickling Bai Lingmiao all over.

"Hey, stop it! I'm ticklish!" said Bai Lingmiao.

"You love me? I think you love Senior Li more than you love me. I think that you will just wait for me to fall asleep before putting on your undies and then get into Senior Li's blanket," said Xiaoman.

"Senior Li is still wounded and I'm just going to go there to take care of him," defended Bai Lingmiao.

"Do you think he needs your care? I think there's only one thing you can take care of for him, hehe..." chuckled Xiaoman.

"Xiaoman, why are you like this too?"

Both of them were whispering to each other underneath their blanket when they saw someone carefully approaching the river.

"Who's that?" asked Bai Lingmiao.

"Who else? It's Sun Baolu. He never bathes with anyone. He's even more afraid of someone peeping at his body than us," replied Xiaoman.

Nothing happened that night except for some wolf howls.

When Li Huowang woke up, he was hugging Bai Lingmiao.

"Senior Li, you were having a nightmare," said Bai Lingmiao as she carefully rubbed his chin, feeling concerned.

"Don't worry. I'm used to it."

Li Huowang had bags under his eyes when he woke up. He looked toward the Women's Mountain one more time before finally deciding to let his guard down for a bit.

I never revealed anything, so they probably don't know that I'm a Strayed One. Even more so since they were just disciples. Regardless of whether they can be considered good or bad, we should be safe for now.

After they finished washing up, Sun Baolu brought a bowl of brown liquid to him. "Senior Li, time to eat."

"What is this?" asked Li Huowang, his sharp sense of smell almost causing him to start retching from the noxious scent.

"It's fresh lamb's milk mixed with lamb blood and some salt. Not only does it taste great, it's quite good for people with injuries too," said Sun Baolu as he took a sip before giving the bowl to Li Huowang.

Li Huowang took a sip and almost puked; however, he somehow suppressed the feeling and forced himself to drink it.

While it was definitely nutritious, it was not his cup of tea.

Meanwhile, Sun Baolu hopped up and down in excitement.

"Senior Li, don't you think I was right? As long as we bring enough lambs, we don't have to worry about our meals!"

Li Huowang used his sleeves to wipe his mouth and gave back the bowl. "Sure... Anyway, we should be reaching your home soon after leaving Women's Mountain right?"

Sun Baolu's eyes lit up upon hearing this question. "Yes! Let's go! They should be just ahead!"

Even though the scenery around them looked the same to Li Huowang, Sun Baolu was still able to point out the differences.

"There! That mountain! I used to herd lambs over there! I lost my left molar tooth when I fell down over there! Oh, I also saw a white wolf in the east! I'm not joking, it really was a white wolf! My parents said that it was impossible but I definitely saw it with my own eyes! And look! Do you see the marks on the ground? This must be where my people set up their tents before! We are quite close!"

As they got closer and closer, Sun Baolu became more and more excited. In the final two days, Sun Baolu didn't sleep a wink and stood guard for both nights.

On the third day, after they walked over a small hill, they finally saw something different—on the grassy green plains was a herd of white lambs and black cows.

There were several large tents close to the lambs, and most importantly, humans.

"HEEEY!" Sun Baolu cried out as he ran toward his people. He abandoned everything and ran as fast as he could.

When Li Huowang and the rest approached them, they saw that Sun Baolu was being hugged by a group of crying people. They were his tribesmen! Even though they don't understand the language of Qing Qiu, Li Huowang could still feel the strong bond they had between them.

Seeing this scene, Li Huowang felt a burst of warmth in his heart. While he was happy about the fact that he had managed to bring Sun Baolu back to his home, he was even happier to see that Sun Baolu was being treated with kindness.

At that moment, Li Huowang saw a woman carrying a basin of milk out from a nearby tent. When she saw Sun Baolu, her face froze. Then, she threw down the basin and ran toward him.

Her voice instantly caught Sun Baolu's attention and he started crying when he saw her. Under everyone's gazes, both of them hugged each other and started crying.

"Wow... so he was telling the truth. He really did have someone waiting for him," said Puppy, feeling jealous.

While both Sun Baolu and the woman were hugging each other and cherishing the moment, an old man hobbled over to them. The old man was wearing several colorful ribbons on his neck. Then, he started speaking to Sun Baolu in Qing Qiu's native language.

From the looks of it, the old man's position was quite high; his words instantly caused both Sun Baolu and his woman to calm down.

Sun Baolu talked to the old man for a while before excitedly bringing him toward Li Huowang. Then, he excitedly introduced Li Huowang and everyone else to his tribe.

Li Huowang had no idea what Sun Baolu was telling them, but he soon had a rough understanding of what he had said. That night, Li Huowang was served with an entire rack of roasted lamb ribs and honey water.

That night, everyone finally had the chance to eat some meat again. None of them held any reservations and eagerly dug into the meat, directly using their hands.

The campfire was bright and warm. A crowd of people hollered at Sun Baolu while the latter was busy giving everyone a toast with a cup of wine.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang took in the festive scene and drank from his cow horn cup. "Is this bee honey? It's sweet but not overpowering.”

“It’s ant honey. It’s even rarer than bee honey,” replied a voice.

Li Huowang raised his head and saw a beautiful lady. Even though she was wearing Qing Qiu’s garbs, her white skin gave her away as someone who was not born here.

When the woman saw Li Huowang staring at him, her eyes became red with tears as she kneeled down in front of Li Huowang. “Thank you for sending my son home from so far away! Thank you Daoist Li!”

Chapter 226 - Wu Yue

Just as the beautiful woman's head was about to touch the blanket, Li Huowang reached out to help her up.

"Madam, there's no need for such courtesy. We are fellow brothers in distress, so helping each other out is only natural; there's no need for such a grand gesture," Li Huowang said appreciatively in the face of the woman's gratitude.

After repeated refusals from Li Huowang, she finally sat down.

Then, with a lingering fear in her heart, she said to Li Huowang, "After our son went missing, we searched all of Qing Qiu, but couldn't find him. I thought that I had lost him forever. Thankfully, he has returned unharmed."

With that said, she took out a string of prayer beads from her sleeve. Then, she began to spin them as she bowed toward the north.

Li Huowang noticed this and was taken aback. "May I ask which Bodhisattva you're praying to?"

Perhaps it was due to many of his experiences from before, but Li Huowang was especially sensitive to religious matters in this strange world. He had a feeling that there was something wrong with such practices here.

Hearing his words, Wu Yue misinterpreted them as Li Huowang mocking her. Thus, she explained helplessly, "Sir, I didn't mean that. Our son has managed to return all thanks to your efforts. It had nothing to do with some ethereal Bodhisattva."

"Also, I've stopped worshipping Bodhisattvas ever since marrying into Qing Qiu. Even so, I had been following Buddhist customs ever since childhood, and thus, it's a habit that's difficult to break," she added.

Li Huowang assured her, "I didn't mean to mock you. I was just merely curious about which Bodhisattva you were praying to."

Hearing this, Wu Yue was surprised. "Bodhisattva... Isn't Bodhisattva the one who saves people from their suffering and rescues the distressed? Is there a different one as well?"

Her reply, which reflected the ignorance of the locals, caused Li Huowang to inwardly sigh.

People in this world are so superstitious. They just believe in anything without discrimination. It's all blind faith. They are not that much different from Dan Yangzi.

However, looking at it from another perspective, Li Huowang thought that Wu Yue's belief was a good thing. In this insane world, worshipping a 'real' Bodhisattva was far more dangerous than worshipping a false one.

"Madam, please, take a seat. I was just asking out of curiosity. By the way, I noticed earlier that Baolu was hugging a woman. Is she his lover?" asked Li Huowang as he tried to change the topic to ease the somewhat tense atmosphere.

"She is his older sister. She has been clinging to him ever since she was a child. They even had an engagement. She was so devastated after Bao'er went missing," Wu Yue explained.

"Older sister?" Li Huowang was surprised by her response. He couldn't comprehend how this parent could be so accepting of this unethical situation. And given that they are siblings, why is there such a significant difference in their skin color? Sun Baolu and the woman did not even appear to be of the same race.

"They don't share the same father. When I left the Liang Kingdom and came to Qing Qiu, Bao'er was already in my womb. At that time, Zhuo'er had already been born," Wu Yue clarified, hinting at her son's mixed heritage.

Li Huowang had immediately inferred this after observing the woman in front of him who had a skin tone that was different from the people of Qing Qiu.

At that moment, a dark-skinned, sturdy Qing Qiu man approached them with a smile. He held a cow-horn cup in his hand and spoke in a quick, rhythmic Qing Qiu dialect before extending the cup toward Li Huowang.

Seeing this, Wu Yue quickly translated. "Baolu's dad wants to thank you for saving his second son and wishes you an eternal life, blessed by Immortal Heaven."

"The toasts in Qing Qiu are certainly unique," Li Huowang nodded, and raised his cup in response, clinking it with the cup in the man's hand.

As he drank his honey water, Li Huowang studied the couple in front of him. Sun Baolu's parents did not appear to be the slightest bit compatible with each other.

The man was short and stout, with a broad face that could easily be mistaken for a monkey's. He looked completely unworthy of a beautiful woman like Sun Baolu's mother.

Li Huowang couldn't help but speculate if Sun Baolu's mother had been bought by the man. Given his previous experiences with the slave trade on Women's Mountain, he couldn't help but entertain such thoughts.

"Senior Li!" shouted Sun Baolu, already pretty drunk. He sobbed and hurled himself upon Li Huowang while mumbling something incoherently. "Senior Li! I can't bear to leave you! I'm not going back! I wish to stay with you and accompany you to the Liang Kingdom!"

Seeing his son in such a state, Sun Baolu's father quickly put down his cup and pulled his son away from Li Huowang to help him sober up outside the tent.

As Li Huowang watched their somewhat disheveled figures, he smiled.

Sun Baolu was talking nonsense. He was already home, reunited with his family. There was no reason for him to continue traveling with Li Huowang. Furthermore, there weren't that many places left for him to go through. Based on the map, Qing Qiu was not far from the Liang Kingdom. In fact, if the Cowheart Mountain wasn't too far away from here, then Li Huowang would even consider returning here whenever he had the chance in the future.

Li Huowang returned to his cross-legged sitting position and took a bite of the skewered roasted lamb that was covered in black spice. As he bit into it, the thick meaty fluids erupted on his tongue and a delectable aroma filled the air. He found this roasted lamb to be especially delicious.

He felt that it might have something to do with his enhanced senses, but to Li Huowang, having lived in two worlds, this was the tastiest lamb skewer he'd ever tasted.

The tender and succulent meat, combined with the salty and tangy seasoning, made every bite incredibly enjoyable. It was no wonder that everyone was so engrossed in their meals that none of them were talking; they were all huddled around the lamb and beef bones, gnawing away at them contentedly.

Like everyone else, Li Huowang too couldn't wait to dig into the delectable cuisine, and immediately set aside everything else to relish in the meal arranged for them.

The Qing Qiu guys danced around in a circle and tossed their heads, but it wasn't particularly entertaining. Even so, their exaggerated movements and actions enhanced the festive atmosphere within the large tent, bringing a smile to everyone's faces, including Li Huowang's.

After some of them had filled their bellies, they too began dancing with the Qing Qiu people, linking arms with them and swaying to the rhythm.

Here, the Lu Family Troupe's performance stuck out quite a bit because of their talented singing and acting. The unique melodies and moves that they introduced earned them a large amount of applause and cheers from the Qing Qiu people.

As he looked over the crowd, Li Huowang smiled.

Everyone appears to be having a good time here. However, why is there only sadness and pain when they are with me?

As Li Huowang was lost in thought, his keen senses detected someone staring at him.

It was Sun Baolu's mother.

He turned his head slowly to look in her direction and noticed a deeply troubled expression on her face, completely different from her earlier composed appearance.

Li Huowang turned to her and asked, "Madam, is there something you'd like to tell me?"

Wu Yue, who had been hesitating for a while, finally made up her mind. "Benefactor, even though we have just met, I hope you don't mind me speaking openly. How about you and your group reconsider going to the Liang Kingdom? It's not a good place. Staying here might just be a better choice."

Chapter 227 - Beauty

“Oh?” Her words managed to get Li Huowang to refocus his scattered attention. “Why do you say that? I’ve heard that the Liang Kingdom is the most affluent place here. While the people from other places have to endure droughts and hunger, the people of the Liang Kingdom never go hungry.”

“Everyone says that the Liang Kingdom is good, but how can those who haven’t been there truly understand how they treat their people?” asked Wu Yue agitatedly. She seemed to have recalled some unpleasant memories as she almost started retching and had to cover her mouth in distress.

“Hmm?” Li Huowang furrowed his brow at her words. Her description contradicted what Bai Lingmiao had said. She had once described her hometown as a carefree paradise.

After a moment, Li Huowang signaled for Bai Lingmiao to come over. Seeing his signal, she promptly set down her cup beside Xiaoman and joined them.

Taking Bai Lingmiao’s hand, Li Huowang turned to the lady beside him and asked, “Madam, can you tell us some more?”

Wu Yue lowered the hand that had been covering her mouth as she looked at Bai Lingmiao, who was leaning forward, and eventually shook her head. “I was thoughtless. We shouldn’t talk about such things during mealtime as it might ruin your appetite. Benefactor, if you want to know more, we can talk about it tomorrow.”

With that, she turned around and left, leaving both of them puzzled.

“Miaomiao, did you live comfortably in the Liang Kingdom? Did people bully your family? How are the local authorities there?”

After a moment, Li Huowang began questioning Bai Lingmiao.

In fact, Li Huowang knew very little about the Liang Kingdom, the place where he envisioned living in the future. He knew that the Liang Kingdom was quite large and was the strongest among all these countries, but that was about it.

If they were going to spend their whole lives there, then he needed to know more.

“We’re living very well! Nobody dares to bully us! I have quite a large family, and my grandfather is the village chief. All the other uncles and aunts are very kind to me, and even my elder brothers and sisters treat me quite well. In fact, what Puppy and Xiaoman said about looking down on or disliking someone based on their appearance doesn’t happen where I come from at all,” said Bai Lingmiao.

“Have you only ever stayed in Cowheart Mountain? What about the other parts of the Liang Kingdom? Have you been there?” Li Huowang asked again.

“I don’t know... I haven’t been to other places,” replied Bai Lingmiao.

Bai Lingmiao’s words made Li Huowang slightly concerned about what Baolu’s mother had just said earlier. Now, he was genuinely curious about what she had wanted to say.

At that moment, Li Huowang noticed Sun Baolu puking in the distance. He walked over and helped him exit the tent.

Realizing that he couldn’t wait until tomorrow, Li Huowang decided to ask Sun Baolu. After all, since he was her son, he should know some things about his mother.

“Stop drinking and sober up. I’m here to ask you some questions about your mother,” said Li Huowang to the drunken Sun Baolu, who was leaning against a water bucket.

“Drink! More!” Sun Baolu had a silly grin on his face as he raised the empty cup in his hand and aimed it at Li Huowang’s chest.

“Ah...” Li Huowang sighed as he reached for the hilt of his sword behind him, gently unsheathing a fraction of the blade. In an instant, the rising murderous intent made Sun Baolu start trembling uncontrollably, while the haziness in his eyes was replaced by extreme fear.

Clang!

Li Huowang sheathed the sword and reached for Sun Baolu's empty cup, then scooped up some cold water from the nearby bucket and poured it over his face. “Are you awake now?”

Sun Baolu nodded repeatedly as he took quick, shallow breaths and wiped the water off his face. “I'm awake, I'm awake!”

“Is your mother from the Liang Kingdom? Did she tell you anything about the Liang Kingdom?” Li Huowang asked.

Sun Baolu's expression became somewhat peculiar upon hearing this question. “Senior Li, what's going on? We were all having a good meal, so why are you suddenly asking about this?”

Feeling that there wasn't anything that needed to be kept hidden, Li Huowang told him about what his mother said and his own concerns. “If the Liang Kingdom is truly as bad as your mother says, then the rest of us might need to consider finding another place to settle down.”

With a flushed face, Sun Baolu raised his head and looked at the round moon in the sky. “Senior Li, can I choose to not say anything?”

Hearing this, Li Huowang was slightly displeased. “Does your family really have these many secrets? You act like you can't tell anyone anything, almost as if you're the emperor's illegitimate child or something...”

Sun Baolu gritted his teeth. “Fine! You saved my life and brought me back home. If you want to know, then I'll tell you. What do you think of my mother's appearance?”

“Hmm?” Li Huowang didn’t quite understand where this topic was heading. How was this related to the question he had asked earlier?

“My mother is quite good-looking, right? When she was younger, she was even more beautiful than she is now, almost ethereal!” continued Sun Baolu.

“That doesn’t sound like something a son should say about his mother. It’s better to be more discreet in front of outsiders,” Li Huowang reminded him. From the looks of it, Sun Baolu still wasn’t entirely sober.

“Senior Li, if my mother was as beautiful as I said, then what do you think she did in the Liang Kingdom before?” Sun Baolu looked at Li Huowang with a bitter smile.

Hearing this, Li Huowang’s heart skipped a beat. He chose to remain silent as he waited for Baolu to continue explaining.

“My mother was only fourteen when she was dressed up and hired at a noble’s mansion to serve as a ‘beauty paper,’” Sun Baolu shivered as he uttered a phrase that Li Huowang couldn’t comprehend.

“What’s a ‘beauty paper?’” asked Li Huowang.

“My mother used to clean people’s buttocks with her tongue. That’s what it means to be a ‘beauty paper!’” Sun Baolu gnashed his teeth as he finished the sentence.

This revelation stunned Li Huowang. He finally understood why Baolu’s mother felt ill when discussing the Liang Kingdom and why she believed that they treated people inhumanely.

Previously, he had thought that being a concubine or a prostitute still implied a sense of humanity. However, in the Liang Kingdom, these beautiful women were valued solely to wipe people’s buttocks.

“You think that’s too disgusting? Wrong! That is just the beginning! What do you think ‘beauty pots’ refers to? Those Liang Kingdom people have all sorts of twisted ways to dehumanize people!” shouted Sun Baolu as he stormed away, leaving Li Huowang standing alone in the cold outside.

As he watched Sun Baolu’s departing back, he felt a little regretful; however, that regret soon turned into disgust.

Compared to what he had just heard, even the Abbess of Benevolent Nunnery seemed clean and pure.

But just as the feeling of disgust settled in, he also felt a profound sense of helplessness.

He should have known that there was no utopia in this insane world.

Why did I even bother traveling thousands of miles? I should have just taken over the Zephyr Temple when I had the chance.

However, this was just a passing thought. After all, he still needed to think about those who needed to go back to their homes.

“Senior Li, are you okay?” Bai Lingmiao poked her head out of the tent, feeling concerned. She was worried about him having another episode.

“Yes, I’m heading in soon,” replied Li Huowang.

The party within the tent continued, but at this point, Li Huowang had completely lost his appetite.

Chapter 228 - Hysteria

Li Huowang opened his eyes after the pounding pain eased and found himself lying in a small tent. By his side was Bai Lingmiao, wearing nothing but a bellyband. At this moment, she was silently combing her hair with a comb fashioned out of a bull's horn.

After a moment, Li Huowang reached out and pulled her into his arms.

Just as she was about to undo her bellyband, Li Huowang shared with Bai Lingmiao what he had learned the previous night.

As she listened, her bashful gaze gradually turned into one of horror and disgust. Sun Baolu's mother had been through far more than anything she could have imagined. How could someone commit such acts against a fellow human being?

"So, it appears that the Liang Kingdom isn't as wonderful as it seems," murmured Li Huowang as he placed his fingernail-less hand on Bai Lingmiao's shoulder and let out a sigh.

"But... but where I come from, these things don't happen... my hometown is great," said Bai Lingmiao weakly.

Li Huowang chuckled. Of course, that was something true for Bai Lingmiao. In their small and simple world, the vast majority of commoners spent their whole lives within twenty miles of their houses. As a result, they were more or less unaware and oblivious to the outside world.

At the same time, Li Huowang was aware that it was presumptuous to judge the entire Liang Kingdom based purely on the experiences of Sun Baolu's mother. Her's might just have been exceptional cases.

Nevertheless, Li Huowang always thought about the worst-case scenario. He needed to be prepared to be able to survive in this world.

Thus, Li Huowang lovingly embraced Bai Lingmiao, buried his nose in her soft neck, and took a deep breath before saying, “Don’t worry. I didn’t say that we are not going back. But, we should re-evaluate the situation after we enter the Liang Kingdom.”

Hearing this, Bai Lingmiao breathed a sigh of relief. She had almost thought that Li Huowang had decided not to accompany her home.

“Let’s get up. Now that Sun Baolu has returned home, we should also continue with our journey,” said Li Huowang as he patted her head.

Although this was a nice place, there was no reason for them to stay in Qing Qiu when there were still potential dangers. They could rest all they wanted when they eventually reached their destination.

When the two of them emerged from the tent, they noticed that everyone else was already awake. After last night’s drinking session, it was evident that the others had grown quite close to Qing Qiu residents. They even went so far as to wash up at the river while linking arms and chatting.

They were speaking to each other, but it was clear that neither side could understand the other’s language.

The morning air was quite refreshing. As Li Huowang stood in front of the tent while surveying the lively surroundings and took a deep breath, he felt his spirit being lifted. He scanned his surroundings and eventually settled his gaze on Sun Baolu. Surprisingly, despite having consumed so much alcohol the previous night, Sun Baolu had woken up quite early. He was currently busy herding some of his sheep.

“What are you doing? There’s no need to send any more sheep with us. We might not even be able to eat all the sheep that you’ve already given us,” said Li Huowang as he approached Sun Baolu.

After returning home, Sun Baolu seemed to have become a bit more cheerful. He wore a bright smile on his face as he spoke to Li Huowang, “No worries. If you can’t finish eating them, then you can just sell them. Qing Qiu’s sheep fetch a good price in the Liang Kingdom. Consider it an early gift for you and Junior Bai.”

As soon as Sun Baolu finished speaking, he sensed that Li Huowang was ignoring him. His eyes appeared to be empty as his body swayed, and his face became very unsightly.

This is bad!

Li Huowang suddenly squatted down and clutched his head, startling Sun Baolu.

“Baolu, quick! Go get a chain from Gao Zhijian and tie me up! It’s happening again!” exclaimed Li Huowang in agony.

Sun Baolu quickly realized that Li Huowang was having another one of his episodes. He immediately threw down the whip he was using to herd the sheep, and ran toward the cowhide tent in the distance.

When he returned with a group of disciples, they found Li Huowang standing upright, tilting his head back and muttering to himself, “Wang Wei, I have nothing much to say to you. Please leave.”

“I am very clear about my situation. Don’t even think about using reverse psychology. Someone has already tried that on me before, and it won’t work again.”

Just when the disciples were unsure of what to do, Li Huowang seemed to sense their presence nearby. He spoke as calmly as he could, instructing them, “Have you brought the chains? If you have, then stop dawdling and tie me up. I’ll do my best to stay still. After you’ve tied me up, go and pack your things. Once all of you have had breakfast, we’ll continue with our journey.”

Hearing Li Huowang’s instructions, the others immediately snapped to attention and worked together to securely bind Li Huowang with the chains. Even so, when they recalled their previous experience, they didn't dare to take any chances and quickly moved away from him after they finished chaining him.

"Is it any of your business who I talk to? Here we go again! If you have the guts, then go ahead and kill me today. Otherwise, get the hell out of here!" said Li Huowang.

After saying this, Li Huowang fell silent, and just when the others thought that it was finally about to end, he suddenly erupted into a furious roar that startled them. "Do you want to die? I'm mentally ill now! Killing someone isn't a crime for me!"

Bound by his shackles, Li Huowang abruptly stood up upright like a zombie. This scene instantly caused the onlookers to step back in fear.

Meanwhile, realizing that something was amiss, the other Qing Qiu people gradually gathered around, with Sun Baolu repeatedly explaining what was happening to Li Huowang.

Soon, several hundreds of people formed a circle as they watched Li Huowang's performance. By this point, he'd gone from being an enraged figure to one filled with tremendous helplessness and frustration.

"Mom? Why are you here? I was just angry, I didn't want to kill anyone... Please, don't cry. My condition hasn't worsened," Li Huowang begged.

Then, as if he had heard something, Li Huowang's expression slowly shifted from one of resignation and irritation to one that was filled with pain. He gradually collapsed to the ground, curling into a fetal position.

"Mom, I'm begging you, just let Dr. Wang leave. I don't need treatment. I know my situation. Don't waste any more money hiring experts. Please... just keep it for your own use," pleaded Li Huowang.

Seeing his labored breathing and increasingly pained expression, Bai Lingmiao could barely hold back her tears. She wanted to rush over and hold him, but was pulled back by Luo Juanhua and Chun Xiaoman.

“Are you trying to get yourself killed? Senior Li can kill you with just a single touch!” reminded Xiaoman.

Li Huowang seemed to be listening to something. Soon, his face contorted in pain as he twisted on the ground like a worm, repeatedly rubbing his face in the grass. His tears mixed together with the dew on the grass, slowly turning indistinguishable from one another.

“Mom, are we short of money at home? If we are, then just tell me, and I’ll figure something out.”

“Don’t lie to me. You’ve even cut your own hair with scissors. I can tell...”

At that moment, Li Huowang suddenly sprang up from the ground, his face contorting with anger as he screamed into the air, “Wang Wei! Shut your mouth! It’s none of your fucking business!”

Chapter 229 - Unexpected

“You don’t need to remind me that she is fake! Even if my mom is just a hallucination, I still wouldn’t want her to be hurt!” Bound by chains, Li Huowang roared in frustration, his veins bulging on his neck.

But in the next moment, he slumped down again. Agony covered his face as he knelt down on the ground, repeatedly hitting his head against the earth. His banging started creating dents in the ground, each dent being larger than the last.

When Li Huowang finally stopped, he made every effort to keep his emotions in check and calm himself down.

“Mom, can you go outside for a moment? Don’t worry, I’ll have a good talk with Dr. Wang. It will be fine. I’m securely bound. I can’t hurt him even if I tried,” said Li Huowang.

At that moment, Bun suddenly emerged from the crowd, holding something in its mouth, ready to go close to Li Huowang; however, it was quickly held back by Gao Zhijian. “Don’t... don’t... don’t go!”

“What do you want? Let me tell you, if you dare to exploit them, then I won’t let you off!”

“What responsibility do you have? Just take your money! Can’t you just deceive her and tell my mom that you’re powerless?” Li Huowang exclaimed.

“I’ve told you before. People like you can’t help with my affairs!”

“Fine, I misspoke. Hallucinations like you can’t help me at all!”

“What are you trying to do? I won’t try! Everything here is fake! It’s all fake!”

As he spoke, Li Huowang twisted his head, plunging his entire head under the grass, burying it completely.

After a while, there was a loud boom. Then, Li Huowang lifted his head from the grass and shouted into the air with a distorted expression on his face, “Do you think you’re tough? All you do is just stand there, blabbering on and on!”

“You dare to say that you understand me?! What do you understand?! Do you know what I’ve been through?! How could you possibly empathize?!”

“Take both sides seriously?! That’s easy for you to say! If you have the ability, then why not put yourself in my situation and try it? Have you ever tried eating chocolate balls on one side while someone tries to force-feed you iron nails on the other?”

“I don’t care about myself! I don’t even mind swallowing nails! But I have people I care about, and I’m afraid of losing them!”

“I’m afraid that one day, while I’m using chopsticks to pick up food on one side, on the other side, I’m shoving chopsticks into Bai Lingmiao’s eyes!”

“I won’t give up! Someday, I’ll find a way to get rid of these hallucinations! I won’t suffer like this forever! Someday, I too will be normal!”

Li Huowang appeared to have seen something that caused his face to be in a state of disbelief. His pupils continued to twitch as his breathing grew even faster.

Then, Li Huowang abruptly turned again. At the same time, his worm-like bounded body burrowed into the earth and he shook his dirt-covered head vigorously.

“No! Li Huowang, you’ve already fallen for this twice! You can’t fall for it again! This is fake!”

“You can’t become confused again! The others are still trying to survive! If you get trapped again, what will happen to them?”

Under the gaze of the onlookers, Li Huowang kept rolling on the green grass, ruining the neat arch beyond recognition.

An hour later, Li Huowang finally stopped. He lay there motionless, no different from a corpse.

“I’m fine now, release me,” said Li Huowang, his hoarse voice filled with exhaustion.

However, just as the others were about to rush forward, Bai Lingmiao stopped them. “You guys stay here. I’ll go alone. Senior Li doesn’t want to see anyone right now.”

As the crowd gradually dispersed, Bai Lingmiao knelt beside Li Huowang and gently began to undo the chains. She was not bothered by the fact that he was caked in dirt and directly cradled his head in her arms while using her fingers to massage his temples.

Li Huowang inhaled deeply before exhaling all the stale air from his lungs. He stared blankly at the sky, and murmured, “Miaomiao, they kept on forcing me. I... am so exhausted...”

As she heard his voice, Bai Lingmiao was on the verge of tears. But given the circumstances, there was little she could do to help. All she could do was hold Li Huowang’s head and give it a light massage.

Li Huowang looked at her, his expression somewhat hesitant. After a while, he whispered again, “Miaomiao, please stop treating me so nicely. It feels too surreal. I fear that everything here is merely a hallucination.”

Bai Lingmiao’s eyes glazed up, as she lay on Li Huowang’s chest and choked on her tears.

After a while, Li Huowang held up his right hand in front of him. Then, he grabbed a dagger with his left hand and severed a portion of his little finger. As he experienced the pain, he silently closed his eyes. At the same time, the flicker of doubt between his brows dwindled away. “What a joke. How could this type of intense pain be faked?”

“Woo~?” At that moment, Bun approached them and gingerly walked around Li Huowang while holding something in its mouth.

Seeing it, Li Huowang picked up the severed part of his pinky finger and tossed it toward the mutt's feet.

"Woof!"

Bun immediately spat out the snake-like black object from its mouth, and excitedly used its front paw to hold down one end of the little finger while using its teeth to delicately start nibbling away at it.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang sucked on his bleeding right hand before patting Bai Lingmiao on the back to comfort her, "It's okay, don't cry. Get up. Look, everyone is secretly watching us."

Once she rose from his chest, Li Huowang carefully loosened the ribbon from Bai Lingmiao's wrist and put it on her eyes.

"The sun is quite strong during the day. Remember to cover your eyes up, or the sunlight might hurt them," reminded Li Huowang.

Then, Li Huowang led the blindfolded Bai Lingmiao back toward their carriage.

Following this incident, the residents of Qing Qiu all had strange expressions on their faces when they looked at Li Huowang.

Li Huowang didn't mind this since he was leaving and was unlikely to see them again anyway. He didn't give that much thought to what people said behind his back or how they perceived him.

"Until we cross paths again, Baolu. Goodbye. Do not forget to write us letters whenever it's convenient." Li Huowang stood by the carriage as he spoke to Sun Baolu who was holding a Qing Qiu girl.

Hearing this, Sun Baolu looked somewhat helpless. "Senior Li, I don't know how to read or write."

Li Huowang said hoarsely, "That's alright. Take care of yourself."

With that, he led the others and left the group of tents.

Li Huowang wasn't really interested in finding out more about what Sun Baolu had been hiding under his clothes. He wasn't such a gossip person.

Puppy, Gao Zhijian, and the others went over to embrace Sun Baolu. Many of them were overcome with emotion. They were like brothers who had been through thick and thin. The thought of never being able to see each other again was quite heartbreaking for them.

Bun, being a dog, couldn't comprehend these emotions. It just kept circling Li Huowang while holding an object in its mouth.

As Bun's tail brushed past his leg for the fifth time, Li Huowang sighed. Lowering his gaze to face Bun, he said, "Spit out whatever's in your mouth. If you go around picking up random things again, then I'm going to make stew out of you!"

Bun spat out the object in front of Li Huowang and sat down while wagging its tail and staring at him.

"What exactly is this? Shedded snakeskin? Does Qing Qiu have snakes this big?" asked Puppy as he used a knife to lift the object brought by Bun.

At that moment, a dark figure suddenly darted out from the side, startling everyone.

Seeing it, Li Huowang, who had been utterly unconcerned until now, rushed toward it. As he held the object in his trembling hands, it was evident that he was quite excited.

"This is... a Black Taisui!"

Chapter 230 - Source

“Senior Li? What’s the matter?” asked Puppy cautiously, his heart thumping loudly when he saw Li Huowang suddenly start to chew on the object. “Oh no, Senior Li is having an episode again.”

However, Li Huowang completely ignored what Puppy thought, and focused on slowly savoring the taste of the layer of skin. The more he chewed, the more excited he became.

This taste is unmistakable! It’s definitely the skin of a Black Taisui! I can finally do something about my hysteria!

Though the skin was completely dried up, Li Huowang had seen it once before, and he knew that the Black Taisui would turn into a puddle after it died, leaving behind only this layer of skin. The reason why it became like this was that the Black Taisui would be dehydrated after its death.

Currently, he didn’t have any methods to deal with his hallucinations, and finding a method to resolve the issues related to being a Strayed One was simply a distant dream with extremely slim hopes.

However, a Black Taisui could help him isolate the hallucinations, something which was very useful even if the effect was just temporary!

“Bun! Where did you find this thing?” Li Huowang turned to ask Bun.

“Woof woof...” The dog’s ears drooped as it cocked its head toward him, clearly not understanding what he was trying to ask.

Seeing this, Li Huowang directly placed the Black Taisui skin in front of its nose. “Smell it! Find where it came from!”

“Woof woof!” This time, Bun seemed to understand Li Huowang’s intention. It sniffed the black skin, and then turned around before running toward the nearby grassland.

“Leave the ox-carts with Sun Baolu for now! We’re not leaving yet; we will only leave after we find the Black Taisui!” instructed Li Huowang as he used his crutch and started hobbling to chase after Bun.

Though the others did not know what Li Huowang was up to, they still followed after him. They were afraid about him having another episode in his current state.

This time around, Bun ran quite far away, to the point that even Li Huowang’s armpits began to bleed from the friction caused by the crutches rubbing against his armpits as he chased after it.

Dadada~

At that moment, the sound of horse hooves rang out, causing Li Huowang to turn over and see Sun Baolu who was riding a horse with some Qing Qiu people following behind him.

“Senior Li, what are you looking for? Get on the horse, and I’ll bring you there!” said Sun Baolu.

Hearing this, Li Huowang stepped onto the saddle and mounted the horse, and then pointed toward Bun who was running into the distance. “Follow it!”

The horse was obviously much faster than Li Huowang, and so they would at least not be left behind.

As the sun gradually rose higher and higher into the sky, the air around them became noticeably hotter.

So far? Where did Bun find the Black Taisui from?

As he thought about it, Li Huowang touched the sword on his back. Black Taisui may have been dangerous to him previously, but it was definitely less so now.

Right now, he couldn’t consider whether or not the Black Taisui would threaten him. Instead, he had to consider how he could capture it alive, imprison it, and then consume its flesh in a sustainable way.

While Li Huowang was busy pondering these issues, Bun, who had been running ahead frantically, suddenly vanished.

When the horse passed by, Li Huowang found that Bun had not truly disappeared. Instead, it had run into a low-lying area of a grassfield.

There was an irregular round hole on the left side of the depression, one which resembled the rabbit holes commonly seen on the grasslands. However, no matter how one looked at it, this hole did not seem like it was something that was dug by a rabbit. It was too large, and was at least a foot wide.

Li Huowang dismounted and approached Bun, who was circling around the area. As he approached, he noticed the traces on the ground, which seemed like the traces left behind by a Black Taisui.

The scattered black skin had been dispersed by the Qing Qiu wind, and only some pieces were left behind. However, the traces of blackened water had not yet vanished completely.

Li Huowang recognized this black water. It was something sprayed out by a Black Taisui right before its death. In the area he was standing, any grass that had been touched by this black water had withered completely.

The traces of the black water extended from inside the round hole. Li Huowang could roughly ascertain the situation based on what he had seen so far.

The Black Taisui should have been living within this hole, but had somehow suffered some sort of fatal injury. Then, it used the last of its energy to climb out before finally dying outside.

Then, the skin it left behind was picked up by Bun and brought back to him.

Well... Hopefully there was more than one Black Taisui within this hole.

As his thoughts reached this point, Li Huowang vigilantly approached the dim, round hole.

“Hold on!” shouted Sun Baolu as he rode his horse and rushed up before blocking Li Huowang’s way to the entrance of the hole. Terrified, he jumped off his horse and grabbed Li Huowang. “Senior Li, you must not enter! You really must not!”

Sun Baolu’s face was drenched in cold sweat. It seemed like he was terrified of the round hole, and did not even want to look at it.

“You’ve been here?” Li Huowang asked. Anyone who wasn’t blind could see the terror he felt toward the hole.

“Senior Li, I beg you! Please, leave quickly! It’s very dangerous here!” pleaded Sun Baolu.

Sun Baolu was almost kneeled down, but Li Huowang still didn’t budge.

What joke is he playing? How can I let a Black Taisui run after finally finding some clues about it?

“Baolu, calm down. It’s safe here. No one can harm you here,” Li Huowang soothed him, gradually calming Sun Baolu down.

Then, Li Huowang took a water gourd from Gao Zhijian, and passed it to Baolu. “Take a sip. Your lips are cracking up.”

After Sun Baolu drank all the water within, Li Huowang asked him once again, “What do you know about this place? What’s inside here? I need to find something in there, and your information can help me a lot.”

“Senior Li, you really mustn’t go in there! Qing Qiu has no evil spirits, not because they vanished without a trace, but because they have all hidden themselves under the grass! That is the entrance to their hideout!” said Sun Baolu.

Hearing this, Li Huowang looked down toward the hole in the green grass which Sun Baolu was pointing his trembling finger at.

If that’s the case, then everything under Qing Qiu’s surface was evil?

Li Huowang shuddered at the thought.

After some consideration, he felt that this was within the logical limits in this crazy world. Otherwise, a Black Taisui wouldn't randomly appear in a place like this.

"That's all? Anything else? What else do your tribesmen know?" asked Li Huowang.

"Senior Li, don't go in! No one else knows what's inside! In Qing Qiu, there are orders not to even allow anyone to discuss what's inside this cave. Just mentioning its name and imagining its appearance can bring about a disaster!" pleaded Sun Baolu, trying to convince him.

After listening to Sun Baolu, Li Huowang pondered for a moment, and then spoke, "Alright, I got it."

Then, he used his crutches to walk toward the hole behind the horse.

"Senior Li, I've already made it so clear to you! Why are you still trying to enter it?! You will really die!" shouted Sun Baolu, jumping from anxiety.

Li Huowang looked at him, and then recalled the hallucination from earlier in the morning. At this point, he truly craved a Black Taisui which could help him isolate those hallucinations.

"I have already come across quite a few evil entities before, and I'm not a fledgling like before. Meeting one wouldn't necessarily mean defeat for me," said Li Huowang.

He truly did not want to experience the entanglement of the two worlds anymore. In fact, Li Huowang had little confidence in himself. He was afraid that he would end up delving deeper into the hallucinations if he experienced them a few more times.

Chapter 231 - Sun Baolu's Secret

“It’s very dangerous inside. All of you stay here. I can deal with this myself.” After Li Huowang instructed Bai Lingmiao and the rest, he walked into the cave on his own.

However, those words instantly displeased all of them. Puppy was the first to say something, “Senior Li, you can’t do that! We can help you if we end up meeting trouble.”

Li Huowang looked at Puppy’s skinny body and felt annoyed. “And what can you help with? Even Bun is more useful than you! If you come with me, then I would have to protect you instead!”

Hearing that, Puppy lowered his head in shame. “How could you say that?! I actually had to gather a lot of courage to bring myself to say that. I also trained myself with a blade, or at the very least, if your illness strikes again, then I could tie you up with the chains.”

“Senior Li, even if Puppy is useless, we can still be of use to you. You can enter, but you must bring us in!” Bai Lingmiao’s face was serious as she held her drum and whip in her hands. Even though she had always been meek, her heart had always been abnormally resolute in dire situations. She would always take charge in certain situations.

At the same time, Gao Zhijian stepped forward as well. Even though he didn’t say anything, his clenched fist already told everyone about his decision.

“Senior Li, since the Black Taisui can help suppress your illness, all of us are more than happy to help. The more people we have, the better. Also, we are different from Puppy,” said Chun Xiaoman as she held the bronze bell in her hand.

Staring at their serious faces, Li Huowang felt happy in his heart. “Fine, but be careful. If there’s anything wrong then we must immediately head back out.”

After saying that, Li Huowang turned around as he prepared to bring the rest of them into the cave.

However, at that moment, Sun Baolu ran forward and stopped all of them.

“Why are you so persistent? Get away,” snapped Li Huowang, finally getting annoyed.

Hearing those words, Sun Baolu’s eyes went wide with agitation and he started taking off his clothes. His hands continuously trembled while untying the knots. “Senior Li! Listen to me! I went in there once. If you think you are fine with becoming like me, then I won’t stop you! Senior Li, you once asked me why I hide my body, right? It’s because I’m different from everyone! No matter what deformities you have, at least all of you are still human! But me? I’m a monster!”

As Sun Baolu’s shirt started to slide off, Li Huowang saw a small pit the size of a thumb at the base of Sun Baolu’s neck.

“What’s that? Is that a belly button? Wait, that is a belly button! But why is Sun Baolu’s belly button at the base of his neck?”

At that moment, Sun Baolu removed his shirt and showed everyone his body. With the exception of Chun Xiaoman and Bai Lingmiao who had turned around, everyone who saw Sun Baolu’s body gasped.

“Sun... W-why are your or-organs messed up?” Puppy stammered.

At this point, Li Huowang finally understood why Sun Baolu had hidden his body from them all this time—it was because Sun Baolu’s body was completely messed up. To be more accurate, all of his organs were located in the wrong places.

Sun Baolu's anus was located on his belly, while his belly button was at the base of his neck. His genitals were growing from where they shouldn't be growing, while his nipples were nowhere to be seen.

It was almost as if a child had used some clay to make Sun Baolu's body.

Meanwhile, as Sun Baolu saw their horrified faces, he felt more and more ashamed. He had always had nightmares about people finding out what his body looked like, and so he kept hiding it. To think that there would come a day when he would have to show it to everyone on his own.

After a moment, Li Huowang sighed and hobbled over before helping Sun Baolu wear his clothes.

"What happened to you?" whispered Li Huowang.

"Something touched me inside the cave and I became like this. Back then, it was too dark, and so I didn't see what it was. I just felt a giant brush touch my body and then I became like this." Sun Baolu trembled from fear as he recalled what had happened to him in the past. "Back then, I was still quite young. I was only seven when some of the lambs I was herding ran into this cave. Even though the adults had said that the caves were dangerous, me and my four friends thought that it would be fine. In the end, I was the only one who managed to escape."

As he spoke, Sun Baolu stared at Li Huowang with agitation. "Senior Li, you've saved my life and allowed me to finally come back home. I'm deeply indebted to you and I cannot let you die in there!"

Even now, Sun Baolu was still trying his best to persuade him.

Li Huowang sighed. He could feel the concern in Sun Baolu's voice. "You should know that there is probably a Black Taisui in there, right? Do you know what that means to me?"

As he spoke, Li Huowang calmly explained why he needed to enter the cave, “This is why I must enter the cave at all costs; if I don’t, then I will forever be haunted by my hallucinations. It’s the only cure that I know of. I know that you have good intentions and I appreciate it. But if you want the best for others, then you must never force your kindness on them. Instead, you should let them choose. Thank you for the information. It will be very useful to me.”

Li Huowang patted Sun Baolu’s shoulder before heading toward the cave; he was adamant about capturing a Black Taisui.

The others looked at each other before quickly following Li Huowang.

As Sun Baolu saw all of them disappear into the dark cave, he did his best to stop his legs from trembling. After hesitating for a while, he finally relented and followed after them. “Since all of you are entering the cave, then I will come as well! I’ve been here before and I can guide you!”

As they entered the cave, they took out the glowing green rocks. Everything around them had become eerily quiet. The sound of wind, as well as the warm sunlight had disappeared completely.

“Hu~” Li Huowang exhaled lightly and white mist came out from his mouth. “Baolu, has the cave always been this cold?”

Li Huowang’s voice startled the tense Sun Baolu, but he quickly nodded. “Yes. It was this cold before as well. The deeper we walk, the colder it will get.”

As he spoke, Sun Baolu quickly walked past them. “I will take the lead, but you guys must follow me closely. If we go slightly further ahead, then we will reach the point where I lost one of my friends.”

Sun Baolu’s warning immediately made everyone tense up as they held onto their weapons.

The cave was extremely silent. There were no other noises besides their footsteps.

It was not a limestone cave but a rocky one instead. The cave was slanted ever so slightly downward. This meant that the more they walked, the further away they were from the surface.

Translator's Thoughts

Finally I get to show you Sun Baolu's fan art!

Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 232 - Cauldron

They slowly made their way down the cave. No one said anything as they walked. Even though they continued walking for a long time, they had yet to reach the bottom; it was as if the cave was never ending. Luckily the deeper they walked, the wider the cave got. Due to this, it was not as oppressive as it had been near the entrance.

“Wait, stop.” Li Huowang saw something and kneeled down. He stared at the footprints within the cave.

“These are the footprints of an adult. Looks like someone else also came into this cave before... Everyone, be careful. Let’s continue walking.” Li Huowang stood up and continued walking down the cave. Compared to the evil beings, he was more afraid of encountering another human.

After all, if a human could enter this cave filled with evil beings so easily, then that would mean that the human had to be extremely powerful.

After a while, there was a turn in front of them. Sun Baolu stopped nervously and spoke, “Back then, when I passed through this point, one of my friends disappeared.”

Sun Baolu’s fear soon affected everyone else causing all of them to become a lot more alert.

Li Huowang pulled Sun Baolu back and walked to the front of the bend. He held his sword and stood there while surveying his surroundings, but in the end, nothing attacked him.

“Are you sure it’s here? There’s nothing on the ground except for two dead lambs,” asked Li Huowang.

“Dead lambs?” Sun Baolu and the rest carefully approached Li Huowang and raised their glowing rocks. Just like Li Huowang said, there were two dead lambs and nothing else within the darkness.

Looking at their mummified bodies that were covered in dust, it was clear the lambs had lost their way in here and then died from hunger.

After a moment, Li Huowang sliced open the mummified lambs, causing the dried up organs within them to fall out.

However, Li Huowang did not stop there, and stomped the corpses of the lambs to bits. He was being cautious of the lambs suddenly being reanimated and attacking him.

Even though it might seem like he was being overly cautious, he would rather be safe than sorry in this situation.

After turning both the lambs to dust, Li Huowang sheathed his sword and continued walking.

Even though the cave became wider and larger the deeper they went, Li Huowang still couldn't see what was within the darkness.

The darkness within the cave was bizarre; it was as if it was even darker than the darkness found in other places. The glowing rocks in their hands only allowed them to illuminate a short distance away, while Li Huowang's eyes could barely see any further than that.

After walking for some time they soon encountered even more mummified lambs, but this time Li Huowang did not destroy them; there were just too many of them. They were littered across the floor, and there were at least 800 of them!

"We could attribute there being one or two dead lambs to them wandering in here and getting lost,, but more than a few hundreds? It's clear that someone did this purposefully. Someone herded the lambs into the cave and waited for them to die. But, who did this?" Li Huowang pondered out loud.

The body of the lambs were fine as well; there were no traces of them being bitten.

With all these indicators, it was clear that the Black Taisui was not around here. After all, it would never give up on the lambs since it required their meat to survive.

After giving it some thought, Li Huowang took out the dead Black Taisui skin from his pouch and once again placed it in front of Bun. “Bun, smell this and help us find its source.”

Bun licked its lips and hesitantly walked forward.

Li Huowang waved his hand and everyone quickly followed after him. “Stay close. Don’t fall behind.”

“It should be fine in the short path ahead, but if we walk for another seven minutes or so, we will arrive at the place where I was hit by the brush last time around. That was also the farthest I went back then,” Sun Baolu nervously reminded them.

The dead lambs littering the ground did not stop as they went deeper and deeper into the cave. Finally, after walking for ten minutes, they saw something different.

It was a massive bronze cauldron, roughly ten feet tall.

The giant bronze cauldron was covered in green rust and dust; it was as if it hadn’t been used in a long time.

“Huh. This wasn’t here when I last came here,” said Sun Baolu, confused.

This fact instantly caused Li Huowang to raise his guard. He looked at the cauldron and then at the mass of dead lamb behind them. He felt that both of them were somehow connected. Li Huowang knew that a cauldron was an important object in ceremonies.

After a moment, Li Huowang circled around the cauldron and looked behind it. Just as he had expected, he found plates made from white jade, as well as the rotting carcasses of several animals that had been used as a sacrifice.

This place was indeed being used by someone for ceremonies.

Didn't Baolu say that this was the place where all the evil beings hid? Then why is there a ceremonial ground here? Unless... was it the evil beings who were conducting the ceremony? If so, what are they worshipping?

Li Huowang carefully approached the cauldron and looked inside. However, other than ashes, there was nothing else inside it.

“Ah!”

At that moment, a sudden cry rang out, surprising Li Huowang. When he swiftly turned around, he saw Bai Lingmiao hugging her Second Deity tightly.

“What’s wrong? Did you see something?” Li Huowang quickly ran forward and asked.

“Lamb! The lamb!” shouted Bai Lingmiao as she pointed toward the left side of the cave. At the same time, she hugged the Second Deity even more tightly.

Seeing this, Li Huowang carefully approached the location that Bai Lingmiao was pointing toward and illuminated the area with his glowing rock. There, he found even more lamb corpses.

However, these corpses were different. These corpses were half human and half lamb! The corpse of an old man was just beneath Li Huowang’s feet. When he checked, he saw that the old man had spiral horns growing out from his forehead. Right before his death, the old man had been touching his face with his hooves, his face filled with despair.

There was another corpse right beside the old man’s corpse. The top part of this corpse belonged to a lamb, and had been skinned, but the bottom half was distorted, looking like a combination between a human and a lamb.

This was merely the start.

As Li Huowang raised his glowing rock and illuminated even more of the dark corner, he saw more and more corpses that were transformed half way through, each more horrifying than the last. It was no wonder that Bai Lingmiao was so scared.

As he looked at these half-human half-lamb corpses, Li

Huowang instantly remembered the lamb corpses he had seen before. “Those weren’t lamb corpses! Those were humans! They were transformed into lambs and then made into sacrifices!”

After coming to this realization, Li Huowang quickly ran toward the cauldron and saw rows and rows of lamb corpses, each of them placed neatly.

Upon realizing that the lambs were originally humans, it finally dawned on Li Huowang just how much danger they were in!

Someone had killed thousands of people over here just to offer sacrifices and worship!

Chapter 233 - Lion Dance

When Li Huowang realized that all these dead lambs were humans that were transformed, he was beyond shocked.

Numerous questions raced through his mind.

What are they worshiping, and who are they?

However, in the end Li Huowang kept going back to the same two questions.

He needed to get the answers soon. If there was an evil sect within the depths of this cave, then he might have to reconsider whether he wanted to leave immediately or not.

While it was worth the risk to enter the dangerous cave to get his hands on a Black Taisui, it was not worth it to risk everyone's life.

At that moment, Sun Baolu noticed something. "Wait, Senior Li, something's not right. Look at how the offerings were placed. It's backward. Someone was... offering the animals to the dead lambs."

"They are not worshiping some deity but the lambs?" Li Huowang frowned as he continued to observe the dead lambs and the offerings.

"Is it a Lamb God? Sun Baolu, is there a Lamb God in Qing Qiu?" Puppy asked.

"Lambs are just livestock. Why would we worship livestock as gods? Qing Qiu doesn't have such a rule," replied Sun Baolu.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang quickly tried to recall the names of various sects and their powers.

The Righteous Monastery worshiped the lustful flesh Buddha; the Ao Jing Sect worshiped the pain-giving Ba-Hui[\[1\]](#), and the Benevolent Nunnery worshiped the decaying Bodhisattva.

As he thought about all this, Li Huowang had a sudden idea and accidentally said it out loud, “I get it. They are not worshipping the lambs themselves. The lambs are merely a metaphor or a vessel. They are worshipping death itself!”

“Huh?” No one else understood what he meant.

They didn’t understand it, but Li Huowang did. He stood above the giant cauldron and stared at the corpses of the lambs below.

Someone or something had chased thousands of people in here and transformed them into lambs. Then, those that failed to undergo the transformation were cast aside, while those that managed to complete their transformation into lambs were herded and killed at the same time.

Once the lambs died, they started their ceremony. They were not worshipping the lambs, but the ‘death’ of the lambs itself!

As he carefully thought about the clues presented to him, he slowly deduced the intricacies of this world.

Not only were the evil beings of Qing Qiu all trapped underground, there was even a sect that worshiped death itself!

Worse still was the fact that Li Huowang didn’t know whether this sect was formed by humans or something else.

Since the sect worshiped death, that meant that their powers were closely related to death. Just based on that information alone, Li Huowang realized the strength of their enemies and just how much danger all of them were in.

Realizing all this, Li Huowang quickly ran down and warned everyone. “Run! We need to get out of here, now! It’s no longer an issue about facing a mere evil being anymore!”

Li Huowang was just about to lead everyone out when the sound of smacking wood suddenly rang out.

Dak~ Dak~ Dak~

Hearing this sound, Li Huowang unsheathed his sword while quickly scanning the darkness.

Dak~ Dak~ Dak~

The sound of smacking wood was rhythmic, and it came from everywhere, making it so Li Huowang could not determine where it originated.

Given that he did not know where the enemy was located, Li Huowang dared not rush in a single direction, afraid that he would crash into them.

Li Huowang bit his lips and focused, trying his best to locate the enemy based on the sound. He needed to know where the enemy was right now!

The sound slowly got louder and closer. Finally, Li Huowang's sharp senses allowed him to determine the source of the sound.

"IT'S ABOVE US!" shouted Li Huowang as he quickly looked up into the darkness and threw out the glowing rock in his hand. The glowing rock got stuck within the cracks of the ceiling, its light illuminating the top of the cave.

Finally, they saw what it was—a massive human face, one larger than a dinner table, was being illuminated by the green light of glowing rock.

The face was completely flat and it seemed like a man. Its skin was pale and it had an extremely large mouth. At this moment, two eyes the size of lanterns were staring at Li Huowang.

Behind the neck of the man was not a humanoid body, but a caterpillar-like body. At the same time, hands of various sizes could be seen holding the sheet together.

The rhythmic sound of smacking wood was originating from the body!

Li Huowang immediately recognized what it was. He had just seen it at the Women's Mountain!

Is that the Lion Dance from the Lion Dance Palace?! That can't be! It has a flattened dead human face and not a lion head! Were they the ones who conducted this ceremony? Are they not from the Lion Dance Palace but the Death Dance Palace[2] instead?!

Regardless of what it was, Li Huowang could not ignore that massive being at the top of the cave. After a moment, he decided to be the one to make the first contact with it.

Li Huowang carefully worded himself, “Masters from the Lion Dance Palace, I, Xuan Yang, greet you humbly. I have no intention of causing trouble for you by trespassing into your territory, but there is an underlying issue. I need to find a Black Taisui that can be refined into a pill. I’ve heard there was one in your territory, and so I came here to seek one. If the Masters from the Lion Dance Palace could help me find one, I will give a bountiful reward to the Lion Dance Palace.”

While he didn’t have a ‘reward’, the first thing he needed to do was get out of this situation. This was the best he could do for now.

But the Lion Dance did not react. It just continued to hang from the ceiling without saying anything. One might even have mistaken it for a hanging stone statue instead.

Why aren’t they saying anything? Maybe they don’t understand my language and can only speak the native Qing Qiu language?

Upon reaching this conclusion, Li Huowang turned around and instructed Sun Baolu what to say to the Lion Dance above.

However, just as Sun Baolu was about to talk to the Lion Dance, Li Huowang’s body tensed up as he sensed an intense feeling of danger coming from behind him. He immediately dodged to the left.

But it was too late. Something hit his back forcefully, the impact causing him to be flung away.

“It’s an ambush! The Lion Dance above is just a decoy!” shouted Li Huowang as he crashed into the darkness and struggled to stand up. When he finally managed to get up, he quickly inspected his back but was surprised to see that it was fine.

“Huh? What’s going on?” Li Huowang felt his back before finally touching the Profound Records embedded underneath the skin of his back.

At that moment, he realized that it was the Profound Records that had blocked the attack. Even though the embedding process had been very painful, it was very useful. He now had armor on his back.

However, Li Huowang didn't have time to be happy. He quickly found his crutches and hobbled back to the light, finally seeing what it was that had ambushed him.

It was another Lion Dance, but this one had a flattened woman's face with red lips!

1. Ao Jing Sect is infatuated with stealing the power of Ba-Hui, and they actually worship the sacrificial god. Likely mistake by the author, similar to the earlier chapter 🤔

2. character for lion and death have almost the same pronunciation 🤔

Translator's Thoughts

One of my favourite fan art so far. This is their version of Lion Dance. Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 234 - Death

The sounds of the bronze bell and drums filled the dark cave.

Ring~ Ring~ Ring~ Dong~ Dong~ Dong~

Amidst the harmony of the two sounds, the Wandering Gods, the Second Deity, and all of Li Huowang's companions were fighting off against the female Lion Dance.

Li Huowang did not run to help them. Instead he focused on the Lion Dance on the ceiling that was falling downward. He couldn't let the two Lion Dances trap them!

Jiang!

Li Huowang unsheathed his sword and ran as fast as he could toward the male Lion Dance.

Meanwhile, the various black legs of the Lion Dance under the white tassels and white sheet of the Lion Dance started to tap aggressively as it ran towards Li Huowang.

Soon both of them were close enough to see each other's faces, and both of them saw the killing intent contained within the other's eyes.

Both of them clashed. The giant Lion Dance rammed into Li Huowang, brushing the white tassels on its body toward Li Huowang.

But both of its attacks missed. On the other hand, Li Huowang raised his sword and sliced it downward toward the side of the Lion Dance.

Both of them quickly ran past each other. Li Huowang was unharmed while several feet of the Lion Dance were cut off.

What the Lion Dance saw was just an illusion of Li Huowang. Li Huowang had already separated his main body and illusion before he ran over here.

Staring at the unharmed Li Huowang, the Lion Dance's massive lantern-like left eye moved upward, revealing a round black hole. Then, seven to eight arms resembling dried up monkey paws extended outward from behind and placed themselves neatly into rows like eyelashes.

Soon, several irregularly-shaped eyes filled the empty eye socket. At the same time, the man's face became very scary with the several small eyes all staring at Li Huowang's true body.

Li Huowang clenched his teeth, feeling a chill run down his spine. Regardless of what it was, it was definitely not a Lion Dance!

After a moment, Li Huowang threw his crutches away and stabbed his broken leg into the ground. His eyes were filled with killing intent as he roared, "Come!"

Then, he held the sword in front of him before swiping his left hand toward the sword. Instantly, two of his fingertips were cleanly cut as they started expanding in midair. With a pop, the sharp bone exploded from the flesh and flew toward the Lion Dance.

The bone bullets were extremely fast. The Lion Dance failed to avoid them and soon, two bloody holes appeared on its large face.

The two bone bullets had penetrated the face and continued to penetrate through its entire body. Accompanying the sound of tearing flesh was the sticky black blood flowing down the feet underneath the white sheet.

The performers of the Lion Dance were hurt, but they did not give up. The Lion Dance shook its body rigorously and the white tassels shot themselves toward Li Huowang.

However, Li Huowang had already anticipated this. He quickly took out a plier and pulled two of his molars out of his mouth. The two molars exploded in the air, causing the white tassels to be torn apart and fall listlessly toward the ground.

At the same time, the Lion Dance itself was also torn by the shrapnels from the exploding teeth. Reddish-black blood seeped out of the white sheet, making it look even more fearsome.

At this point, while the Lion Dance had realized that it was no match for Li Huowang, it still didn't say anything. The feet below the white sheet quickly moved as they dragged away its torn body into the darkness.

But how could Li Huowang let it escape so easily? He quickly shoved the pliers into his mouth again.

In the face of Li Huowang's attacks, the wounded Lion Dance soon died.

Then, without waiting to catch his breath, Li Huowang quickly ran over to help out his comrades. Once he joined in, the other Lion Dance also fell quite quickly.

Li Huowang leapt onto the Lion Dance head and stabbed his sword down, slicing right through the neck and chopping off the Lion Dance's head!

Without the head, the Lion Dance soon slumped onto the ground.

Bam!

The Lion Dance fell heavily and thick blood seeped out from underneath it, staining the ground with reddish-black blood.

Li Huowang retrieved his sword and leapt down. Then, he looked at everyone who had been spooked and asked, "Is everyone alright?"

"Everything's fine. It's just that Gao Zhijian's left ear was touched by the white tassels, causing it to shift downward by an inch. Those white tassels were most likely the things that Sun Baolu had touched before," Chun Xiaoman answered him.

Li Huowang nodded when he saw Gao Zhijian now have one ear lower than the other. Then, he wiped the blood off his sword and placed it back into its sheath before turning around and inspecting the two Lion Dances.

Behind the flattened faces of the Lion Dance were not live humans, but masses consisting of fleshy corpses.

The entirety of the Lion Dance was just one body. It didn't matter whether they were the hands or the feet, all of them originated from a single, grotesque body. Underneath the white sheet, various organs were connected to each other with blood vessels, confirming Li Huowang's suspicions.

Li Huowang didn't know whether these beings were born like that, or whether they were made by humans. But no matter what, their situation was quite bad; in fact, it might have just gotten even worse.

The truly scary thing about the Lion Dances was the fact that they were not confined to the underground, and that they could appear in the open in Qing Qiu. They were even accepted as a part of life by the people of Qing Qiu!

But while Li Huowang was sad, he was no longer surprised anymore.

"Heavens... What is this..." Puppy was too shocked to even speak properly.

"Im... im... impossible! This cannot be right!" Sun Baolu stared at the Lion Dance corpse with a complicated look on his face. Everything that he had learned to accept in the past ten years was toppled over just like that. "Senior Li, what... What are they?"

At this moment, Li Huowang was standing beside the male Lion Dance corpse. He didn't have the luxury to think about what would happen to those living within Qing Qiu. In the end, they were just passers by who were passing through Qing Qiu so it didn't matter to him.

Instead, he was thinking about another problem.

Li Huowang stabbed the organs and flesh of the Lion Dance as he tried to find something.

"Senior Li, what are you finding?" asked Puppy.

"I'm finding Death," answered Li Huowang. However, Puppy didn't understand what he was saying.

“What?”

Li Huowang was too lazy to explain and just continued examining the massive corpses in front of him.

Something's not right here. The RIGHTEOUS Monastery had the lustful flesh Buddha and those monks could use powers related to flesh. The Benevolent Nunnery had the decaying Bodhisattva and they could use powers related to decay. But these Lion Dances... They did not use any powers related to death even though this place worships it... Unless... there's another sect underneath here?!

As his thoughts reached this point, Li Huowang turned to look toward the giant cauldron. His body felt numb from the cold. This place was far more crowded than he had originally thought.

Chapter 235 - Black Taisui

“Woof!”

Bun’s barking broke Li Huowang’s train of thoughts as he saw Bun heading into the darkness.

“Daoist! Go and chase after it! The dog just caught a sniff of what you were looking for!” Monk’s illusion quickly reminded Li Huowang.

“Black Taisui?” Li Huowang took a glance at the illusion and quickly hobbled after Bun. Everyone else followed after him.

Bun ran faster and faster through the cave. After a couple of turns, Li Huowang also started getting excited! He too could smell a Black Taisui!

The Black Taisui is nearby!

Li Huowang’s heart started beating rapidly. But just as he was about to run faster, Li Huowang felt his scalp tingle and he immediately ducked. Thankfully, he managed to duck just in time, allowing something to swing past where his head had just been.

Bam!

Gao Zhijian slammed that thing with his mace and helped Li Huowang escape whatever it was.

When Li Huowang stood up once more, he saw that the thing had slipped back into the darkness.

Everyone else grouped around Li Huowang and readied their weapons.

Li Huowang’s body was tense as he asked Gao Zhijian, “Did you see what it was?”

“Meat... meathook!” Gao Zhijian explained what he saw.

“A meathook? Another evil being is here? Why can’t we just catch a break.” Li Huowang stared into the darkness alertly.

“Did you see it?” Li Huowang spoke to Monk’s illusion.

“No, I was distracted,” replied Monk.

Dak dak dak~

At that moment, something came from Li Huowang’s left side, causing everyone to point their weapons there, only to find that it was Bun running toward them.

Bun placed its head onto the ground and barked at Li Huowang.

“Daoist, it’s asking why aren’t you following it?” suggested Monk.

Li Huowang frowned. “Shut up. As if you know how to talk to dogs.”

Seeing this, everyone was surprised as they stared at Li Huowang.

“Senior Li, please don’t get one of your episodes over here. If you do, then we will really be done for.” Puppy trembled.

Li Huowang frowned at him and then looked at Bun. “Why did that thing attack me and not Bun?”

But no one could answer him. Meanwhile, Bun just wagged its tail and walked around in circles. Looking at how impatient it was, the thing they were looking for should be close.

Staring at the darkness ahead, Li Huowang decided to follow Bun. They were already here and it would waste all of their efforts if they decided to turn back now.

“Come! Everyone, follow me! Remember! Don’t lose track of anyone and don’t fall behind,” instructed Li Huowang. In order to prevent another ambush, all of them huddled around before walking forward carefully.

Because of the thing just now, Li Huowang kept looking upward to see if there’s anything on the ceiling.

On the other hand, when it saw its owner start to walk, Bun continued to trace the scent into the cave.

Nothing happened for the next two hours; neither the meathook nor the Lion Dance made an appearance. It was quiet, too quiet.

All of them were feeling oppressed by their surroundings. Within the dark and silent cave, everyone was tense; after all, anything could leap out from the darkness at any time. Cold sweat dripped down from their faces.

“Shhh! Quiet! I think we found it.” Li Huowang stared at the writhing tentacles within the darkness. Even though it was still blurry, Li Huowang was sure that it was a Black Taisui!

The Black Taisui was curious by the sudden light and extended one of its tentacles to touch the glowing green rock.

“We finally found it.” Li Huowang’s breath became soft. It was as if he was afraid of scaring the Black Taisui away.

“Senior Li, how should we bring it back?” Sun Baolu whispered.

Li Huowang stared at the Black Taisui and pondered about it. This Black Taisui was quite a bit bigger than the one in the Zephyr Temple.

“Zhijian, bring me the chains that all of you use to tie me up. We might need to surround and ambush it. When we act later, be careful not to kill it,” said Li Huowang.

As everyone moved around slowly, the chains slowly wrapped around the Black Taisui.

When Li Huowang gave the signal, Gao Zhijian raised his mace and ran over to the Black Taisui, as if about to smash it into pieces.

Bam!

At that moment, several translucent tentacles exploded from the Black Taisui’s flesh and stabbed toward Gao Zhijian.

In the instant it attacked, everyone raised the chain and ran around it.

They were trying to bind it!

Li Huowang also shot forward and cut down the tentacles with his sword.

Compared to the Lion Dance, the Black Taisui was an easier foe for them to subdue. Even so, it was a ridiculously hard task to capture it without killing it. They could use all of their techniques to kill the Lion Dance, but they couldn't use them against the Black Taisui.

After all, they could neither be too hard on it nor too soft.

Li Huowang's group wanted to use the chains to capture it, but the Black Taisui's tentacles kept disrupting them.

The situation got chaotic very fast.

At this point, Li Huowang's plan has gone completely awry! The tentacles did not disappear after he chopped them off; instead, even more of them extended from where he had cut them.

At the critical moment, all of them heard something coming from their left.

Something was approaching them!

Peng! Shua!

The sound was too bizarre, completely unlike anything Li Huowang had ever heard before.

Shit! Something is coming and I can't wait any longer! I guess I have no choice.

Making up his mind, Li Huowang took a deep breath and quickly took out a dagger before cutting off the skin on his torso.

He peeled off the skin and flesh, revealing his white ribs to the air.

Then, without heeding the pain that almost made him pass out, Li Huowang threw the large piece of skin towards the Black Taisui. It quickly expanded and captured the Black Taisui. No matter how many tentacles the Black Taisui spawned to stab at the skin, it was useless!

“Let’s go!” Li Huowang ignored his pain and ordered everyone to run in the opposite direction with the Black Taisui.

They were faster than whatever that thing was, and so the sounds slowly grew silent.

“Senior Li, you are hurt.” Bai Lingmiao glanced at Li Huowang’s shirt which was gradually becoming more and more red. As she spoke, she took out the Golden Wound medication and spread it across his torso.

Li Huowang almost had the urge to kill himself from all the pain and the medication, but when he saw Gao Zhijian dragging the Black Taisui, he once again found the drive to live.

Li Huowang smiled. Amidst the intense pain wracking his body, he started laughing.

Finally... he had finally found the method to stop the hallucinations once and for all.

“Wang Wei, didn’t you say that that side is reality? If you can still drag me back to ‘reality’ after I consume the Black Taisui, then I will believe you!” Li Huowang laughed, mumbling within the darkness.

Chapter 236 - Darkness

“Senior Li, who’s Wang Wei?” Hearing his mumblings, Bai Lingmiao asked out of curiosity.

Li Huowang shook his head. “Hehe, Wang Wei is just a nobody. He doesn’t exist.”

Bai Lingmiao helped him up and they quickly retraced their steps. Compared to when they came in, the road back wasn't as bad.

Since none of them died and they even found the Black Taisui, everyone felt relieved. Still, they wanted to head out as soon as possible.

“Senior Li, once we get back out, can we rest at Sun Baolu’s place for a few days? I want to eat more roasted lambs before we leave. I feel like I’ve lost six months of my life,” Puppy pleaded with Li Huowang, his white patchy face revealing a tired expression.

Li Huowang looked at everyone else and noted their tiredness before agreeing, “Sure. It’s thanks to everyone that we succeeded this time. We should get some more rest.”

In the end everyone was a living human. He had to consider the limits of their physical capabilities as well.

Hearing Li Huowang’s agreement, Puppy clenched his fist in excitement. Just the thought of the lamb meat already caused him to start salivating. “Haha! The things I had heard about the roasted lamb meat of Qing Qiu was not exaggerated in the slightest! Other places simply can’t compete with it!”

“Wait, Puppy, what are you holding in your hands?” asked Li Huowang when he saw some white threads floating in Puppy’s fist.

Puppy opened his fist and showed Li Huowang. “Oh this? These are the white threads on the Lion Dance. I cut down quite a lot of it. Since it could turn Sun Baolu into what he is today, this must be quite a special item. I think that I can sell it once we reach someplace big, like the capital of Liang Kingdom. We should also consider our finances as well, right? After all, we've already used a lot of our money throughout our journey."

Within Puppy's fist was a pouch woven from thick cloth. Inside the pouch were bundles of white threads that looked like cotton.

Li Huowang shook his head. Puppy never failed to surprise him when it came to money. "The Lion Dances are already dead and so these might not even work anymore. And yet, you still took them with you?"

Puppy heard Li Huowang's words and felt that it was indeed possible for them to no longer work. His heart started pounding as he gingerly extended his pinky finger and swiped it against one of the white threads.

At that moment, Puppy saw with his very eyes as his fingernail shifted to the other side, while his fingerprints shifted to where his fingernail was before.

"This... this ..." Puppy checked his pinky fingernail and stared at Li Huowang helplessly. "Senior Li, it's still working, but now... my pinky finger is upside down..."

"Why are you panicking? It should be fine, plus there's no need to sell them for money. Why don't you research how to use them to kill enemies? For example tying one of them to a needle and shooting the needle through a blow pipe or something," suggested Li Huowang.

Li Huowang's advice caused Puppy's eyes to light up! "Hey! You are right! Senior Li is indeed a knowledgeable person! You are so much smarter than me!"

Puppy was excited! With these white tassels, he too could also be considered someone with supernatural powers!

It doesn't matter if it's real or fake, but now, I will also be able to show off to the women and make them want to marry me! I will also be able to help Senior Li next time if there's trouble!

As he thought about this, Puppy ignored his inverted pinky finger and quickly kept the pouch of white tassels securely inside his shirt.

While Puppy was busy considering the possibilities, everyone else started to slow down.

"Wait, this isn't right. We've walked so far and yet we still haven't even reached the cauldron?"

Li Huowang's words were like a splash of cold water on all of their faces. Not only did it extinguish all of their happiness, it even made them feel somewhat scared.

All of them stared into the darkness, trying to find something familiar they could recognize.

But everything within the darkness looked the same to them.

"This place isn't right! It could make us lose our way!" At this point, all of their relief was gone and they started panicking again!

"Don't panic! Look at the foot prints! We just need to use them to retrace our steps!" said Li Huowang, causing all of them to lower their glowing rocks toward the ground.

Seeing the clearly visible footprints, they finally calmed down a little.

"Let's slowly retrace our steps," instructed Li Huowang.

Everyone followed Li Huowang's orders and slowly retraced their steps, even if some of their footprints weren't all that clear in certain places. There was also the trail of blood that Li Huowang had left from when they were walking just now.

An hour passed as they continued to retrace their steps, but they had yet to reach where the Lion Dance corpses were. They were certain they hadn't walked so far away. Even so, the blood stains continued leading them into the darkness.

Sun Baolu was the first one to start despairing. "Senior Li, we can't go out anymore. The cave has eaten us."

Li Huowang wasn't feeling good about being forced into the dead end either. However, at that moment, he heard something.

"Sh!" Li Huowang lowered his body and placed his ear onto the ground.

Li Huowang slowly crept forward. "Everyone, hide your glowing stones. Someone's coming."

Hearing his words, everyone kept away their glowing stones, allowing the darkness to engulf them. All of them were feeling afraid as they held onto each other to prevent themselves from getting separated.

"What do you mean you heard someone? I'm not hearing anything?" asked Puppy. However, just as he said this, Li Huowang silenced him by covering his mouth.

They continued walking slowly until Li Huowang suddenly stopped. Everyone tried their best to listen but heard nothing.

However, Li Huowang heard it clearly. It was an old man's voice.

"Let me test you. We are born as humans, but what is a 'human'?" asked the old man.

A child's voice answered him, "Humans are made of flesh, so the flesh is human."

Li Huowang frowned and stopped as he listened to their conversation.

"Wrong! The flesh is nothing but a vessel," said the old man.

"But Master did not say that. He just told me to stop thinking too much and taught me that humans are made of flesh," said the child.

"Shh! Don't listen to Master. That old man is just making stuff up! Everything is a lie," said the old man.

"Can you stop talking in circles? If you don't want to tell me, then don't! It's so annoying!" snapped the child.

At this point, the old man's voice became conceited as he started explaining, “Humans are One, and One is humans. Everyone has One, and One becomes Two. From there the cycle of life and death is born. Two becomes Three, and then it becomes the Three Corpses and Seven Emotions. The path to cultivating the Dao is to cultivate the One. In order to do so, we must first abandon the Seven Emotions and kill the Three Corpses to return back to One!”

Chapter 237 - Sheng Erzi

Li Huowang was crawling on the ground while trying to pinpoint the location of the two voices. He started listening to their conversation.

Cultivation of Dao? Is he a Daoist? Is he talking to someone else? But it doesn't seem like a Daoist that I know, or at least I don't know any Daoists that cultivate the One.

As Li Huowang continued listening to them, the two of them continued with their discussion, the girl was scoffing at the older man.

“What rubbish are you talking about? Your mother was pregnant for ten months before she gave birth to you. Don't you think it's stupid to abandon your flesh?” said the girl.

“No, no! You must be thinking that the flesh on our bodies, the Seven Emotions, and the Three Corpses all belong to us, but that's wrong! They all belong to someone else! Even life and death belonged to someone! It was them who gave it all to us!” said the older voice.

“They belong to someone?”

“That's correct! The pain of our body, the smile on our faces, our previous lives, and our future lives all have an owner! Do you think it's good for us to carry all that with us? No, they are all shackles! We need to remove all of them! Fifty Major Daos, and the Heavens controlled forty-nine of them; on the other hand, we humans only needed to have access to one! That is how we become One!”

After hearing all that, the girl asked the question that Li Huowang wanted to ask. “What happens after we become One?”

“Hehe, after we become One, no one owes anyone anything.

Then, we will all be truly free, free from the Three Realms and Five Elements.”

What are they talking about? What owners and what One?

Li Huowang frowned and tried his best to understand their conversation.

Do all of them have their respective owners? Pain belongs to Ba-Hui while happiness belongs to the God of Prosperity?

At that moment, Li Huowang instinctively remembered the big cauldron.

Are they... worshiping the owner of death?

Li Huowang shook his head and cast aside all excess thoughts.

No, I can't let myself get roped in by them. They might just be talking about what they believe in and it might not even be real. They might as well be another Dan Yangzi, thinking that they know everything while truly knowing nothing! I shouldn't be thinking about this right now. I should be thinking about how to react if I happen to meet them and how to get out of here. Should I just reveal myself to them?

Li Huowang thought about it but felt that it was too risky.

Staring at the darkness around him, Li Huowang thought about another idea.

Should I slowly tail them and hope that they will leave the cave?

No, this is even worse than last time!

Just as Li Huowang was thinking about how to deal with both of them while escaping the cave, someone pulled on his sleeves.

“Senio... Senior Li!”

“Sh! Quiet!”

Li Huowang was getting angry. If those two people heard them, then they might lose their only chance to escape the place.

“Senior Li, someone is holding my wrist, but there's no one on my left!” Sun Baolu was almost crying as he said that.

Hearing this, Li Huowang gulped. He slowly moved his hands across Sun Baolu's sleeves.

He felt a very rough hand.

When Li Huowang held that hand, it instead grabbed onto him and pulled him toward the darkness.

Immediately, Li Huowang unsheathed his sword and swung it down.

At the same time, upon sensing the movement within the darkness, Chun Xiaoman brought out her glowing stone.

A green glow illuminated their surroundings but there was nothing there.

While Li Huowang was looking around, a young Daoist ran toward them. The Daoist was wearing a yellow Daoist robe while his cheeks were sunken. He wore black cloth shoes and a crown with a picture of the Taiji.

Compared to Dan Yangzi, this fellow actually looked like a Daoist.

When the Daoist and Li Huowang saw each other, the Daoist stopped in his tracks and suddenly shouted at them, revealing his black and rotten teeth, “Run! Sheng Erzi is coming!”

Li Huowang recognized that voice as the one who had been speaking just now! However, he looked much younger than his voice would indicate.

When all of them saw the Daoist running into the darkness, Li Huowang and the rest immediately followed after them. They didn’t know what Sheng Erzi was, but they knew it would definitely be terrifying if it was something that lived within the cave.

Compared to that man, Li Huowang’s group was considerably slower due to having to drag the heavy Black Taisui around.

Just as Li Huowang was beginning to think that the Daoist might be using them as meat shields, the Daoist suddenly turned back.

The Daoist bit both his fingers and blood flowed out from the wound. He used the blood to quickly draw a talisman in the air.

“Hide the lights!”

Staring at his thin back, Li Huowang hesitated for only a moment before ordering everyone to hide their lights.

Within the darkness, the Daoist started to chant. It was a peculiar chant. It wasn't the chant of a sutra or a spell, but seemed like a completely different system.

When the chant was over, a peculiar pressure enveloped them. Li Huowang felt goosebumps rising all over his body, as if something unidentifiable had covered it. He then felt his body temperature to drop rapidly.

“Shh~” The Daoist shushed them and told them to stand there quietly.

At that moment, Li Huowang felt something hairy hiding beneath his two feet. Sensing the trembling, he knew that it was Bun.

Bun was afraid of something that was approaching them.

Li Huowang felt the ground trembling, as if something massive was closing in on them.

The trembling gradually became stronger, and Li Huowang was barely able to see something massive coming out from within the darkness.

Huff~

A warm gust blew Li Huowang's hair. The rancid stench indicated that something massive had just exhaled at them!

Then, a rusty scale dropped in front of Li Huowang from the darkness above. The scale was tied to a rope and the rope in turn was tied to a pair of cloth shoes.

Cloth shoes?

When Li Huowang saw what it was, the scales suddenly tipped and the cloth shoes fell downward.

Shua!

A female corpse clad in red clothes with a long tongue suddenly dropped in front of Li Huowang.

Both of them were just an inch away from each other.

Chapter 238 - Sent Off

Staring at the corpse that was just an inch away from him, Li Huowang almost reflexively unsheathed his sword. However, he suppressed his movements to the limit in order not to unsheathe his sword.

That was because Li Huowang saw that the thing was not staring at him. It really was just a corpse and not Sheng Erzi.

Li Huowang carefully looked up and saw a mass of darkness up there. Thinking back upon the shaking earth just now, he somehow guessed what it was.

The corpse is just part of it! Maybe it's just a finger. The thing hidden in the darkness is the real Sheng Erzi!

The thing did not attack them immediately. It was clear that the Daoist's method was working.

After thinking about it for a moment, Li Huowang started to study the corpse in front of him.

The woman's clothes were red. Within the darkness, it appeared to have a deep crimson color. Wrinkles covered her face and she had white hair. She was an old lady!

She just hung there in the darkness, her wax-like eyes staring at Li Huowang without moving.

Minutes passed, proving that Li Huowang was right. If he didn't move, the corpse didn't do anything to him. It was just like a puppet.

Within the darkness everyone just stood there motionlessly. If it wasn't for their pale white breath signifying that they were alive, then they would be no different from statues.

Li Huowang finally understood the meaning of living through days as if they were years. His limbs started to go numb from not moving for so long.

No one knew how long it was before the rope started moving once again. The corpse slowly floated back upward, leaving Li Huowang's field of vision.

Li Huowang gently shifted his gaze upward, only to see the corpse entering the being within the darkness.

Li Huowang didn't know what the old lady's corpse meant for Sheng Erzi.

Was it a part of its body or a decoration? Sheng Erzi means 'Son of Ropes', right? Why is it called as such?

Then, the trembling sound started again as the being went further and further away.

Time slowly passed. Once the trembling had gone far enough, the invisible pressure around them receded as well.

Flash!

At that moment, a light illuminated everyone's pale face. It originated from a yellow talisman being lit on fire. The Daoist was holding it with two fingers. He first saw Li Huowang's exposed ribs and then chuckled nervously, "Daoist, Sheng Erzi has left. We are safe now."

When they brought out their glowing stones and saw that all of them were still alive, they finally sighed in relief. At the same time, they were all quite amicable with the other Daoist after the latter saved their lives.

When the Daoist saw how weird all of them looked, Li Huowang tried to explain their situation to him.

"Hoho, no worries, no worries. I am a disciple of Luoism. My name is Han Fu. Pleased to meet you," The skinny Daoist bowed to Li Huowang while revealing his rotten teeth once again. His teeth were yellow and black. They grew wildly in different directions and he had plaque caking his gum. The stench from his mouth made all of them take a step back.

It was not your everyday normal bad breath, but one that could rival a toilet.

However, even though he wasn't a hygienic man, Li Huowang did not mind it, not after having been to the Benevolent Nunnery.

Compared to his bad breath, Li Huowang was more interested in what he had just said.

Luoism? Is it a branch of Daoism?

But he did not say it out loud, fearing that it would reveal him as a fake. Instead, he chose to respond with a similar greeting.

“Zephyr Temple, Xuan Yang. Pleased to meet you.”

Li Huowang was happy that not only could they communicate, Han Fu didn't seem like he wanted to kill him either. Maybe they really could find a way out of here with their help.

“Oh? Are you also a Daoist? I thought you were someone from the Ao Jing Sect instead.” Han Fu was happy to talk to someone as well.

“I used to be from the Ao Jing Sect, but I've left it due to personal reasons.” Li Huowang made up a random excuse.

Where is the other person he was talking to? Did Sheng Erzi catch her? Why isn't he sad? No, I can't ask him or he would know that I had been listening to them just now.

Li Huowang didn't have the time to care about others right now. He pointed to the Black Taisui behind him and said, “Master had instructed us to come and capture some guiding drugs, but we ended up getting lost. We are fortunate to be able to meet a fellow Daoist as well. I hope Senior Han can lead us out of here.”

With those words, Li Huowang had not only presented what they needed him to do, he had also implied that he had a ‘master’, ensuring that the other party would not act rashly.

While Li Huowang was sizing up Han Fu, the latter was doing the same. When Han Fu saw Li Huowang's bronze coil veil, he paused for a moment, and then laughed, “Sure, and no need to be polite. We are fellow Daoists after all. Come, let me bring you out of here. You can't walk around here randomly or you will end up dead."

As they followed Han Fu into the darkness, Li Huowang thought about something and asked, "Senior Han, what was that evil being? We have never seen one like it before."

Finally having met someone knowledgeable, Li Huowang decided to seize the opportunity. Without a Master, this was probably the only choice he had.

Han Fu was more than happy to answer him. "That was Sheng Erzi. Sometimes an elderly might not have children to take care of them, or maybe their children didn't want them. Whatever the reason, there's a saying that an elderly person could go and find Sheng Erzi to help take care of them before it sent them off to the afterlife."

Li Huowang recalled the female corpse and was surprised. "That thing could actually take care of someone?"

"Haha. Are you stupid? They are just lying. Anyone with eyes would be able to see that something like that would never take care of the elderly. Old people... They are useless. They can't do anything, can't tend to the fields, and are basically just eating for free. When the time is right, the villagers choose a good day and carry the elderly on a chair before sending them to Sheng Erzi. They would even play drums and musical instruments to liven things up. As for the elderly's money and the house~ Hehe, everyone would get a share of it," explained Han Fu.

At that moment, Puppy suddenly spoke up. "I know! In my village, this is called 'eating the final member'."

"Yep! It's called 'eating the final member', as in robbing the assets of the last surviving member of a family that has no descendants. But since it doesn't sound nice, they just refer to it as sending them to Sheng Erzi to be taken care of. That way, it sounds much better,” said Han Fu.

As he heard Han Fu explain it, Li Huowang was filled with anger—he was angry that people would do something like that.

But in the end, there was nothing he could do about it.

Chapter 239 - Daoist

To think that they would send one of their own to the evil beings just to obtain their assets. Li Huowang had never thought that there would be such a disgusting practice behind such a funny name.

“Sheng Erzi must be happy seeing so many people being offered to it?” asked Li Huowang.

“Of course. Whenever it sees a new elderly, it becomes very excited. If it had hands and feet, then it would be pouring tea for them!” replied Han Fu.

After talking for so long, Han Fu and Li Huowang had become closer, at least on the surface.

“Senior Han, how long until we reach the surface?” asked Li Huowang while staring at the darkness surrounding them.

“Ptui~” Han Fu spat on the ground and said nonchalantly, “Almost there. You need to remember that within the Feng Capital, if you want to get out, then you must always move up. Never go down. The further up you go, the closer you are to the surface. Even if you meet a dead end, you need to just dig a hole and go out.”

“Feng Capital?” muttered Li Huowang, finally learning the name of the interconnecting cave systems beneath Qing Qiu.

After a moment, Li Huowang gently stepped on the ground and felt the slight incline. He sighed in relief.

Looks like we are indeed heading up.

“Sigh. It’s so tiring to do anything these days. I thought that Daoists had a lot of free time, but I was wrong! Xuan Yang, don’t you think being a Daoist is hard?” Han Fu raised both hands and stretched his back.

“You are right. In this world, nothing is easy.” Li Huowang did his best to answer.

Where is the girl? He was talking to her until just now, but he doesn't look too concerned about her absence. Maybe she's not dead?

Li Huowang looked around cautiously. Even after they had gotten friendly with each other and survived their encounter with Sheng Erzi, Li Huowang still didn't trust Han Fu.

"Look, we are almost there," said Han Fu, pointing toward a glowing white light. From the looks of it, that was the entrance.

Everyone sighed in relief when they finally saw the entrance again. After staying in the dark for so long, they were beyond ecstatic to finally see a sliver of sunlight.

Everyone followed Han Fu's lead while carrying the Black Taisui.

Even though they were almost there, Han Fu still continued to chat, "Hey, did you know about the Natural Disaster that occurred on that day? I heard everyone had been waging wars against each other when the Natural Disaster happened, and that was the reason why everyone stopped the wars."

"That's natural. After all, 'decay' disappeared from the world," said Li Huowang while counting his group to ensure that everyone was there.

"I remember that the last time a Natural Disaster happened, I was still three years old," recounted Han Fu.

Li Huowang was focused on the white dot in the distance that was gradually becoming larger, but he was distracted by Han Fu's words. "You mean the Natural Disaster has happened more than once?"

Li Huowang was shocked. He suddenly realized that despite having been here for so long, he knew far too little about the world. He suppressed his excitement and asked Han Fu calmly, "Do you remember what happened during the last Natural Disaster?"

"Oh so you don't know? I thought you knew. I remember that last time, the ‘Lies’ disappeared and it was very amusing! I heard my Master say that back then, the members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao were so bored that they almost killed themselves, haha!” said Han Fu, happily laughing away.

“‘Lies’ disappeared?” Li Huowang could never imagine what kind of world that would be .

Everyone could only tell the truth?

However, before he could ask anything else, Han Fu asked him something first.

“Xuan Yang, do you know why a Natural Disaster happens?” Han Fu teased him.

“Does Senior Han know about it?” inquired Li Huowang.

Han Fu got close to Li Huowang and whispered, “I can tell you, but you mustn’t tell the others. This was what my Master said.”

Just as Li Huowang was anxious waiting for the answer, Han Fu lashed out with his right hand and quickly swiped it at Li Huowang’s face.

Pa-tak!

Immediately, Li Huowang’s bronze coin mask fell onto the ground.

Li Huowang quickly tried to use his hands to hide his face, but it was too late. Han Fu had already seen his face by then.

With this, Han Fu’s curiosity was satisfied, making him feel quite pleased with himself.

“And here I thought who that man is! He’s a Strayed One!” At that moment, the shrill voice of a girl came from within Han Fu’s body.

In front of everyone’s shocked eyes, a fist-sized baby head popped out from within Han Fu’s clothes. The baby head had sparse hair and was wearing the same Daoist crown as Han Fu.

A yellow-robed Daoist with a normal head and a small head. It was too bizarre!

It was no wonder that he was fine when he saw Puppy and the rest. Han Fu was even more of a freak than them!

Li Huowang growled. There had never been two people; it had always been just one! Han Fu was just talking to the other head!

“Senior Han, what is the meaning of this? Do you think the Zephyr Temple doesn't have backup?” Li Huowang gripped his sword and stared at the odd Daoist. He really didn't want to fight without knowing how strong Han Fu was.

“Hehe~” Han Fu's two heads chuckled at the same time, both revealing the exact same type of rotten teeth. “So you are a Strayed One. You should know what I want to do now, yea?”

“Hehe, guess, guess!” said the little head.

Han Fu formed a seal with his hand and placed it on his chest. Immediately, the darkness behind him came to life and enveloped Han Fu.

“He's trying to kill me!” shouted Li Huowang as he slashed at whatever remained of Han Fu—his one eye that had yet to be enveloped by the darkness.

Li Huowang managed to cut the darkness in half just as it enveloped Han Fu, but it was too late. Han Fu was already gone.

“Brat~ Since you have come to the Feng Capital, then you can just stay here,” the two head's voices intersected with each other and rang out from all directions.

Li Huowang stared at the surrounding darkness and fixated on the white light in front of them. He immediately pointed toward it and shouted at everyone, “Run! We need to head out now!”

No matter what Han Fu was planning from within the darkness, they had to get out first or there was nothing they would be able to do!

Translator's Thoughts

Hanfu! Pretty interesting character design.

Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 240 - Lion Dance Palace

When everyone heard Li Huowang's command, all of them brandished their weapons and moved at the same time, running directly toward the light.

As they ran toward the exit, Li Huowang did his best to listen to his surroundings. Now that Han Fu had disappeared into the darkness, they were surrounded with danger. He could ambush them at any time!

Since the two headed Daoist knew his identity, there was no way that he would let them go!

A friend had become an enemy just like that. He once again realized that humans were always worse when compared to evil beings!

*There's no such thing as a good person here in this crazy world!
Everyone is twisted and no better than livestock!*

As they closed in on the light, it dispelled the darkness around them. Everyone was happy to be basked in the light. They did their best to reach the outside and ran even faster.

But they slowly stopped, going from a full blown run to a slow jog to just regular walking before stopping completely. At the same time, they stared in despair at the "sunlight".

The light in front of them was impure. There were even many stains on it resembling hands and feet. An extremely large jade plaque sat above the light with three big characters etched onto it: Lion Dance Palace.

What they had been running toward was not the sun! Instead, it was the headquarters of the Lion Dances, the Lion Dance Palace!

The massive lump of light was formed by numerous Lion Dances gathering together and amplifying their light!

Han Fu had lied! He had never wanted to bring them outside even before this!

Hearing the sudden movements, the huge faces of the Lion Dances turned to face Li Huowang and blocked the light. They stood in rows until all Li Huowang and the others could see were rows and rows of flattened dead human faces.

All of them were staring at Li Huowang with their lantern-like eyes. The pressure they gave off was immense.

It wasn't just one or two Lion Dances here, but hundreds of them!

Li Huowang had killed two of them before, and so he knew just how strong they were.

"Run!" Li Huowang shouted and brought everyone back into the darkness.

Then, Li Huowang turned around, glaring at the Lion Dances that existed in all directions, from the floor to the ceiling. He knew that someone had to intercept all of them here while the others retreated.

At that moment, Li Huowang decided to stand his ground as he swung his sword toward his body.

But suddenly, someone burst forth from within the darkness below and stopped Li Huowang. He held a bronze coin sword that had three yellow talismans attached to it. The sword was aiming precisely for Li Huowang's waist!

Jiang!

The talismans burst into flames and the two swords clashed.

The owner of the sword was none other than Han Fu!

However, Han Fu didn't want to fight Li Huowang openly. After clashing once, Han Fu's two heads smiled as he returned back to the darkness of the ground.

Without waiting to understand what was happening, Li Huowang instinctively ducked down upon sensing a dangerous attack. He barely managed to avoid the white tassels that one of the Lion Dances had shot toward him.

Han Fu had never wanted to fight against Li Huowang openly! He only needed to interfere with Li Huowang and allow the Lion Dances to kill Li Huowang instead!

Now, his goal has been achieved when Li Huowang saw that the Lion Dances were very close to him. All of them opened their mouths to reveal six rows of sharp teeth.

Li Huowang's legs hadn't been healed yet. Thus, in terms of speed, he was quite a bit slower than the Lion Dances.

After a moment, Li Huowang looked back into the darkness and saw that everyone else was gone. He decided to make his last stand here and brought out the flint before placing it against his body.

However, before he could light himself up on fire, a familiar drum sound rang out and a person in red ran on all four toward him. Then, a beast head appeared from underneath the red veil, bit onto Li Huowang's neck, and dragged him into the darkness.

Bai Lingmiao's body was very agile when she was in this form. She never slowed down even while carrying Li Huowang. With her help, they gradually outrun the Lion Dances.

The Lion Dances tried to stop them by shooting out the white tassels but all of them were destroyed by Li Huowang sacrificing his teeth. However, thanks to that, Li Huowang soon ran out of teeth.

He was just out of harm's way when a new danger appeared. As Li Huowang was being dragged across the ground, a bronze coin sword appeared from within the ground and aimed for his back.

Just as Li Huowang was about to be stabbed by it, he suddenly turned around and stabbed his own sword into the ground. Upon feeling the peculiar feeling he felt when he did so, he knew that he had managed to stab Han Fu. "You think you can use the same trick twice?"

As he spoke, Li Huowang stabbed the ground once more and blood appeared on his sword. At the same time, a painful grunt could be heard coming from within the ground.

But Han Fu did not stop this time. Suddenly he once again stabbed his bronze coin sword above ground, this time with numerous talismans and blood covering his sword.

Just as Li Huowang raised his sword to block the attack, he suddenly heard Han Fu start chanting something!

Soon, the chant was completed and the entire bronze coin sword exploded, turning into individual bronze coins that dodged Li Huowang's sword before regrouping once more into the original sword with talismans on it. Then, the sharp bronze coin sword stabbed the talismans into Li Huowang's waist, embedding them deep into his body.

The intense pain made Li Huowang howl loudly, but he chose not to run away. Instead, he started stabbing again and again into the ground—he was attacking recklessly in hopes of being able to kill Han Fu!

As Li Huowang and Bai Lingmiao were retreating, his and Han Fu's blood started intertwining.

Soon, Han Fu could no longer withstand the attacks and had to bring his sword back underground.

On the other hand, after they finally managed to defeat Han Fu, Bai Lingmiao continued to drag Li Huowang through the cave while running as fast as she could. She could not stop for even a moment; after all, the Lion Dances were right behind them.

Compared to Han Fu, they were much deadlier!

Chapter 241 - Exit

Li Huowang's shirt was torn from getting constantly dragged against the ground. Even so, he was staring at the Lion Dances that were relentlessly chasing after them.

With the aid of the white glowing light emanating from their bodies, Li Huowang was barely able to discern something even larger behind the Lion Dances chasing after them.

Li Huowang didn't know which sect the Lion Dance Palace belonged to, but he was certain there must be power differences between the various Lion Dances. The two Lion Dances he fought from before were likely some of the weaker ones.

"Second Deity! Run faster! The Lion Dances behind us are only the smaller ones! There's a massive one behind them!" shouted Li Huowang.

Hearing his words, Bai Lingmiao ran even faster. However, she did not run blindly, instead following the sound of the drum.

At that moment, Li Huowang suddenly heard something and patted Bai Lingmiao's shoulder. "Head East! Listen to me and head East!"

Instantly, Bai Lingmiao slammed all four limbs onto the ground and leaped toward the left wall. Then, she ricocheted off the wall and turned toward where Li Huowang was telling her to run.

It wasn't long before they arrived at a 'forest' within the darkness. The 'trees' were just hanging corpses. There were so many of them that they resembled the trees of a forest. It was the same as what Li Huowang had seen just earlier.

At that moment, Li Huowang felt a gaze trained on him, causing his thoughts to slow down. This was the territory of Sheng Erzi and at this moment, it was looking at them while hanging from the ceiling!

But Li Huowang was not afraid. He was certain that compared to the two of them, Sheng Erzi would be a lot more interested in the group of glowing Lion Dances.

Just as he had expected, Sheng Erzi was attracted to the Lion Dances after sensing the massive disruptions brought about by them. The hanging corpses slowly floated toward where the Lion Dances were.

With the aid of Sheng Erzi, Li Huowang and Bai Lingmiao finally managed to escape from the Lion Dances. As they went further away, the sound of footsteps and the intensity of the white glow gradually reduced before disappearing.

Without anyone chasing them, Li Huowang and Bai Lingmiao followed the sound of the drum and finally reunited with everyone.

The others were relieved to finally meet with Li Huowang again. They huddled around and asked him a lot of questions.

“No need to be worried. Han Fu is nothing because he’s weaker than me if he fights me head-on. We just need to avoid being ambushed by him!” Li Huowang encouraged them.

“But Senior Li, where should we go now? We don’t even know where we are.” Chun Xiaoman stared at the darkness surrounding them. She felt hopeless about their situation.

Even though they had beaten back Han Fu and managed to escape the Lion Dances, the situation was still grim. The caves were somehow able to confuse them, and even if they didn’t have such power, without any landmarks to guide them, everything around them looked the same.

As long as they couldn’t escape the caves, they would get attacked by Han Fu or the Lion Dances again sooner or later.

Hearing this, Li Huowang looked around and saw the bell on Chun Xiaoman’s waist. “Give me the bell. We still have other methods to navigate here. We can ask the Wandering Gods to find the exit for us!”

Chun Xiaoman only just realized that the Wandering Gods could also be used in such a manner. She was just about to hand over the bell when she retracted it.

“Senior Li, I’m younger and have a longer lifespan. Let me use it instead.” Without waiting for Li Huowang’s answer, she quickly rang the bell.

Soon, several Wandering Gods flew into the darkness. At the same time, Li Huowang saw Chun Xiaoman grow slightly taller; however, he wasn’t so sure.

Time slowly passed within the oppressive cave but the Wandering Gods did not return. Thus, their hopes were dashed once again.

“Maybe the Wandering Gods were eaten by some evil beings?” Puppy came up with the worst-case scenario.

Li Huowang frowned at their current predicament. Disregarding Han Fu, who was waiting to ambush them from within the darkness, if the Lion Dances took care of Sheng Erzi and then chased after them once more, then they would be dead. They needed to get out of here quickly!

He tried to recall the Profound Records and the various rituals recorded on it. He sieved through all the information, but in the end, didn’t find anything useful for them.

The Profound Records was an indispensable item of the Ao Jing Sect. It recorded various rituals and methods to torture one self and others, but there was nothing it could do for now.

Li Huowang was about to ask whether Bai Lingmiao could request aid from the Immortal Families when he saw Gao Zhijian pointing his finger up into the air with a serious expression. Holding onto the wound on his body, Li Huowang asked him. “What are you doing?”

Gao Zhijian did not answer him. Instead, he placed his finger into his mouth, sucked on it, and raised his finger once again.

Seeing this, Li Huowang understood what he was doing. “Are you using your fingers to detect the direction of the wind? Is there wind?? Did you find the exit?”

Gao Zhijian lowered his hand and nodded. He pointed towards the west. “This... this way.”

“Gao Zhijian! Good job!” Li Huowang patted his shoulder heavily and ordered everyone else to immediately run toward the west.

The wind direction was not linear and billowed through the cave system. Sometimes it shifted upward while at other times it shifted downward.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang re-evaluated the big man in front of him once more. He was impressed that Gao Zhijian could think of such a method to find the exit.

This is not something an idiot can come up with. His background must be special.

But right now, there was no time to ask Gao Zhijian about his background.

“Everyone bend down. The ceiling is quite low in front,” instructed Li Huowang.

Hearing this, everyone couched and shuffled forward.

The hole gradually became narrower. It was only after the cave became narrow to the point that Gao Zhijian almost couldn’t squeeze through that it started growing wider once more. At the same time, a howl could be heard in the distance.

Li Huowang heard it and was elated. That was not a wolf’s or a ghost’s howl, but the sound of wind passing through the narrow holes!

Gao Zhijian was right, there was indeed an exit there!

Everyone else noticed it as well, and celebrated internally. After running around in the dangerous cave for so long, all of them were already tired. Still, they squeezed whatever remaining strength they had and started running.

They ran through the curving cave and were soon greeted by a sudden burst of light. They saw an opening at the top of the cave! The wind was blowing in from the opening.

The light coming from the exit was not the bright glowing light of the Lion Dances, but the silvery moon light. At this point, it was already dark outside.

Soon, they walked under the opening and saw stars within the skies.

While this was not the place where they came in from, it was still an exit they could use.

Chapter 242 - Talisman

Within the intersecting darkness of the cave, Li Huowang and the rest were standing beneath the sliver of moonlight, staring at the exit of the cave.

“That’s too high up! How should we climb up there? It’s almost vertical.” Puppy stared at the hole high up on the ceiling with despair.

However, while this might’ve been a big problem for regular people, it was all too easy for Li Huowang. Even if he didn’t know how to solve it, the others would.

Li Huowang turned around toward Bai Lingmiao and raised his chin to signal to her. She hesitated for a moment, before nodding and covering her head with the red veil.

Li Huowang said nothing as he looked at her seriously.

Dong dong dong~

“Veil covering the head, legs stomping on the violet earth! We seek the auspicious Southern Dipper and Northern Dipper! The sixth elder of the Southern Dipper and the crepe myrtle hidden in the mouth of the Northern Dipper!”

With the aid of the drum, Bai Lingmiao was soon possessed by one of the Immortals and her head shot backward. She gazed through the red veil toward the starry night.

Her body started to tremble and shake. When it was over, she grabbed the chains they used to tie down Li Huowang from Gao Zhijian and placed them on her body. Then, without any warning, her body collapsed onto the ground as if she had lost all her bones. After that, she started wriggling her limp body like a snake as she climbed up the smooth walls of the cave.

Even though the walls were vertical, Bai Lingmiao was still capable of reaching the top and crawling out of the hole.

Once outside, she tossed the chains back into the hole. The end of the chain fell in front of everyone, resolving their problem.

“You guys go up first. I will bring up the rear,” said Li Huowang as he stood motionlessly within the moonlight and used what remaining light they had to stare into the darkness.

“Senior Li, you are already gravely injured. You should go up first,” Sun Baolu expressed concerns when he saw Li Huowang’s wounds.

It wasn’t wrong of him to think like that. Li Huowang had indeed suffered many injuries. Not only were his left hand’s fingers cut off, a large chunk of flesh and skin from his torso had also been torn away. His body was already in tatters.

“Stop whining and get up, now!” Li Huowang declined his good offer. He knew that he was the strongest person in their group and he had to be the one taking up the rear. That way, if anything happened then he could handle it himself.

If someone else were to take the rear, then they might die if an evil being passed by.

Under Li Huowang’s command, everyone started climbing up the chain one by one.

The difficult part was getting the Black Taisui up. It continued to wriggle even though it was trapped. It took them a long time before they managed to tie it up and pull it upward with Gao Zhijian’s help.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang raised his head and saw everyone climbing up with difficulty. Just as he was calculating how much time they would need, he sensed something and turned toward his left, his face filled with hostility.

At that moment, Han Fu walked out from within the darkness with his two heads. Blood stained his yellow robes from where Li Huowang had attacked him.

Han Fu did not step into the moonlight, choosing to stop at the edge of darkness. He chuckled when he saw Li Huowang gripping the sword tightly. “Xuan Yang, it seems that the minor characters have finally left, right?”

“Yeah, they have.” Li Huowang cracked his right fist in anger.

“Senior Li, are you alright down there? Who are you talking to?” Puppy shouted down from above.

Hearing the voice from above, Li Huowang frowned. “Don’t worry! I’m just talking to my illusions! You guys continue to climb up!”

Then, Li Huowang glared at Han Fu coldly. “You were already here from the start, weren’t you? Do you think you can win against me one-on-one?”

Han Fu shook his head and smiled. “Hehe, did you not realize that I’ve already stabbed several talismans into your body? They are already enveloping your organs...”

Having said that, Han Fu splayed his arms open. Then, the sound of wind came from his wide sleeves and surrounded Li Huowang. At the same time, a massive rune floated out from the ground.

The rune had the same color as Han Fu’s teeth and immediately enveloped Li Huowang the moment it appeared, making it hard for him to move.

Han Fu immediately started chanting, causing the rune to start wriggling. Then, it split into numerous black lines before entering Li Huowang’s body through his wounds.

When Li Huowang suddenly stopped moving, Han Fu was delighted. “It’s so easy to capture a Strayed One alive. I wonder why the others always said that we shouldn’t fight a Strayed One head-on?”

“What do they know? Strayed Ones are hard to come by. How could a group of people who have never seen one of them ever have the experience of capturing one?” explained the small head on Han Fu’s shoulder.

Han Fu walked over and started looking at the frozen Li Huowang. “I don’t see anything special on the outside. Who should I sell this rare ingredient to?”

“I don’t think we should sell him. Maybe they would directly rob it from us if they were stronger than us. We might as well use it ourselves,” suggested the little head.

“How should we use it? Skin him and toss him into a pot to cook him? I only know that Strayed Ones are rare but I have no idea why they are rare. We should just sell him,” said the normal sized head.

“We don’t even know why they are rare in the first place nor do we know the price. What if we end up selling it for too low? We should ask Master. They should know since they are very knowledgeable,” suggested the little head.

“But what if Master robs us of the Strayed One and kills us?” questioned the normal sized head.

As Han Fu’s two heads were discussing what to do with Li Huowang, the frozen Li Huowang suddenly lunged his arms forward.

Han Fu failed to react and a sword was stabbed into his stomach.

“Impossible! I had just sealed you!” Han Fu’s blood spilled from the corner of his mouth as he stared at the angry Li Huowang.

“Shitty bastard! If you can’t do it right, then don’t try to copy others to come and kill me!” Li Huowang growled and took his blade out of Han Fu’s body before slashing downward.

Han Fu hadn’t given up just yet. However, just as he was about to form a hand seal, Li Huowang’s sword reached first.

Han Fu’s fingers were chopped off in one swift motion and blood sprayed everywhere.

“Impossible!”

Amidst his dying howls, Li Huowang quickly sliced up Han Fu, starting from the neck, followed by the mouth, the nose, and finally the forehead.

Chapter 243 - Li Huowang

Han Fu's blood sprayed all over Li Huowang. He just stood there and stared at the mangled corpse in front of him.

The Daoist that had tried to capture him, Han Fu, was dead just like that.

Li Huowang was in disbelief. Compared to the enemies he had faced before, Han Fu was far too weak. It was as if Han Fu was just playing around. Li Huowang even doubted whether this was Han Fu's real body.

After a moment, he kicked Han Fu's bloody head and felt disgusted. "You are so weak and yet you want to rob someone?"

He now understood that everyone in the world wanted to capture a Strayed One, regardless of their strength. Even if some of them were weak, they would still give it a shot to try and capture one.

By this time, Puppy had already crawled up the hole. He peeked into the hole and shouted, "Senior Li, are you alright?"

However, when he saw Li Huowang's bloody face, Puppy felt goosebumps rising all over his body. He swallowed with difficulty. "Do you... want us to come down?"

"No need! I'm coming up now," replied Li Huowang as he grabbed the chains and started climbing up.

But then, he stopped and came back down again. He rummaged through Han Fu's body and found some yellow talismans.

I wonder if I can use them even though I have never learned how to use them.

He rummaged further and found several small beads wrapped in talismans.

Hm?

Li Huowang opened one of them and saw a familiar bead.

“This is a lifespan pill!”

Li Huowang had seen one before and knew just how valuable it was.

Seeing how the lifespan pill was about to disappear, Li Huowang quickly ate it, instantly feeling his body become lighter.

He rummaged around and found nineteen lifespan pills. Overjoyed, he quickly kept them away.

He continued rummaging about, but didn’t find anything else besides tools and materials used to make talismans.

Finally, Li Huowang picked up the bronze coin sword and placed it on his back before turning around to leave.

Having lost some of his fingers and having blood all over his body, climbing the chain had become extremely difficult. Even so, Li Huowang climbed up slowly.

All the while, he was thinking about the now dead Han Fu.

I wanted to ask him more about the world. Too bad he’s dead.

“Senior Li, quickly climb up! Hurry!”

When he looked up, Li Huowang saw their nervous faces through the hole. “Hm?”

When he looked down, he saw Han Fu standing up once more! Han Fu was barely capable of standing up despite having almost his entire body bisected.

Then, the shrill voice of a girl came from his corpse, “You killed him! How am I going to live now?! Waaaa~”

The voice was so shrill that it hurt Li Huowang’s ears. It even resonated throughout the cave.

“He’s not dead!” Realizing this, Li Huowang sliced off the final finger on his left hand and used the Profound Records.

The finger bulged and exploded in mid-air, sending a sharp bone spike flying down toward Han Fu and pinning him to the ground.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang continued climbing up. He had no time to think about whether Han Fu was still alive or not.

Just then, the entire cave rumbled. A bright light illuminated the dark cave.

Li Huowang looked down and saw a massive white snake, one larger than the cave itself! It was attracted by Han Fu's voice!

But this white snake didn't have any scales. Instead, it was composed entirely of the white tassels found on the Lion Dances!

At that moment, Li Huowang finally understood the true nature of the Lion Dances! The flattened dead human faces, the bloody flesh within their bodies, the hands and feet, all of them were fake! The white tassels on their bodies was the true body of the Lion Dances!

When Li Huowang saw the white snake, the snake saw him as well.

Instantly, the entire snake collapsed and the white tassels flooded everywhere within the cave, from the walls to the ceiling.

"Senior Li!" Seeing the situation, everyone immediately acted and started pulling up the chain.

Li Huowang continued to climb while they pulled the chain. At this point, he was barely able to avoid the white tassels.

Thirty meters! Fifteen meters! Nine meters!

Just when Li Huowang was almost out of the cave, the white tassels formed into a massive hand that grabbed him.

Then, amidst everyone's shouting, Li Huowang was dragged down from the chain into the cave.

The chain was also ripped out from everyone's hand. It slipped through their hands and fell into the cave. Only a portion of the chain that was attached to the ground remained above the hole.

Bai Lingmiao collapsed onto the ground, tears flowing down her eyes.

Everyone was shocked. What should they do without Li

Huowang now?

After a moment, Bai Lingmiao suddenly moved and ran toward the hole with the Second Deity.

Seeing this, Puppy grabbed Bai Lingmiao to stop her before Gao Zhijian appeared behind her and the Second Deity and restrained both of them.

At the same time, Chun Xiaoman approached the struggling Bai Lingmiao with tears in her eyes and slapped her. "Can you stop being crazy?!"

Finally, Bai Lingmiao stopped and slumped down like a puppet.

Just as everyone was unsure about what to do next, the sound of the chains rang out once again.

Puppy was the first one who heard it. "Wait! The chain is moving! Senior Li is not dead! Hahaha! I knew it! Senior Li would never die!"

Puppy's words instantly attracted everyone's attention. They looked toward the chain and saw that it was indeed rattling lightly.

Puppy was just about to start pulling up the chain once more but Chun Xiaoman stopped him. "Careful! It might not be Senior Li!"

"Pull me up!"

At that moment, Senior Li's voice rang out from down below. With this, everyone stopped thinking about it and grabbed the chain to pull it up.

With everyone's help, a mangled hand soon appeared from the hole.

The hand was truly mangled. The fingers were twisted and the skin was torn apart, almost as if it was a claw made by piecing together different pieces of flesh. At the same time, several white tassels were stuck to the twisted hand.

The mangled hand dug into the ground with its nailless fingers and trembled as Li Huowang used all of his strength to pull his body up.

Finally, Li Huowang's body appeared in front of everyone's shocked eyes.

It was indeed Li Huowang, if he could still be called as such.

Chapter 244 - Treatment

Laying down on the soft grass, Li Huowang panted while staring at the wriggling Black Taisui. He was very happy. The last time he was this happy was when Yang Na gave him chocolate.

His entire body was aching all over and he could barely muster any strength. Even so, his objective behind risking his life by entering the cave had been achieved.

With the Black Taisui, he would finally be able to get rid of the hallucinations and would never be plagued by them again. He would finally be able to get rid of the sense of confusion and doubt that all the Strayed Ones suffered from.

“They told me that I can’t keep eating the Black Taisui or it would grow within my belly, but I don’t trust them! Even if that really is the case, all I need to do is to open up my stomach and dig it out! Then, I can just eat it again!” muttered Li Huowang.

While Li Huowang was thinking of the possibility and the chances of success, he suddenly saw everyone staring at him weirdly. They had already managed to escape from the cave and yet, they were still horrified. None of them even tried to help Li Huowang despite how injured he was.

“Stop staring and come help me pull the chain up. I tied Han Fu on the other end of the chain. His other head is still alive. Pull him up and I will try to pry out some information from Han Fu,” ordered Li Huowang. Even so, none of them made a move.

“What’s wrong with you guys?” Li Huowang tried crawling toward them, but all of them took a step back.

“Senior Li? Are you... really Senior Li?” Bai Lingmiao hugged her arms, her eyes filled with tears and fear at the thing in front of her.

Finally, Li Huowang realized that something was amiss with his body. He raised both his arms and was horrified to see what had happened to them.

His single eye underneath his ear closely examined his arm. When he tried to move his fingers, he saw the fingers stuck to his wrist move ever so slightly.

“Impossible! What is happ—” Li Huowang turned around and looked down on his body. Underneath the moonlight, he almost screamed from shock when he saw what his body looked like now.

He barely recognized his mangled body!

Sun Baolu’s body would be considered ‘normal’ when compared to him! His body had been twisted and mangled, his various organs shifted into different locations. The white tassels dotted his entire body and flowed gently. He was no longer human, or at least, he didn’t look like one.

It’s the white tassel’s power! After it dragged me down, I was transformed into this.

Li Huowang grabbed one of the white tassels and saw with his own eyes as the fingers touching the white tassels slowly shifted away from his hand.

Can I still be considered a human being?

Li Huowang gingerly touched his twisted face. All of his facial organs had been reorganized and were no longer at their original places.

Impossible! This is too surreal! Is this world really that bizarre?

Li Huowang shivered.

No, you have to calm down. This is nothing. It can be fixed.

With this in mind, Li Huowang turned around and faced the others with a confident expression. “Don’t worry. This can be fixed.”

As he spoke, Li Huowang grabbed a dagger with his twisted right arm and stabbed it into his face. Then, under everyone’s horrified gazes, he opened a slit on the side of his face toward where his ear had shifted to.

Li Huowang carefully grabbed the ear and forcefully dragged it along the wound before placing it at its original location on the side of his head.

But the ear just fell down onto the ground.

Looking at his ear on the ground, Li Huowang smiled instead. “Wait, that’s a good idea. Since I can recover my body, I will just cut off all the organs and let them regrow back. I will just become an amputated man for a few days. There’s nothing to worry about.”

With those words, Li Huowang grabbed the dagger and aimed it toward his eyes.

When Puppy saw what he was planning to do, he tried stopping him from afar. “Senior Li, don’t do that! You can still be fixed!”

Puppy had lied. He didn’t know what to do, but Li Huowang just looked too horrifying.

At this point, he felt that it was probably better to just commit suicide.

Hearing Puppy’s words, Li Huowang stopped trying to stab himself and looked at his twisted thumb. Another idea had just popped up in his mind.

Wait... Since the white tassels caused this, then technically, I could use them to fix myself too!

Li Huowang grabbed one of the white tassels on his hand and tried to place it beside his eye. However, the white tassel continued moving around, all the while twisting his fingers even more.

“STOP MOVING!” Li Huowang tossed the white tassel onto the ground and stomped on it before once again placing it on his face.

Soon, Li Huowang felt his vision start to move under the effect of the white tassel.

Then, Li Huowang used his other three fingers to gently move his eye back to its original location; however, no matter how hard he tried, he couldn't get it back to its correct location.

Shua!

After a while, Li Huowang decided to carve a slit near where his eye was and forcefully move it back to the correct location.

"Is it back in the right place?" asked Li Huowang while panting.

Once he got their approval, he started moving his other organs back to their original place. It took him quite some time before he managed to get all of his facial organs back in place on his face. He was in so much pain that he almost fainted.

"What are you guys staring at? Come and help me," said Li Huowang.

With this, everyone crowded around Li Huowang and started helping him to move his organs back to their original locations. It was not an easy process, and while the white tassels did help in moving the organs back to their original location, it was not very accurate. Thus, Li Huowang had no choice but to use the dagger to forcefully correct the placements.

Meanwhile, Puppy's hands trembled continuously as he moved Li Huowang's left ear that had fallen onto the ground. Then, he picked it up in panic and quickly spat on it before placing it back on Li Huowang's head.

At that moment, a hand tapped him on his shoulder. When he turned around and saw that it was Bai Lingmiao, he almost jumped in fright.

"Let me help suture it," said Bai Lingmiao.

Hearing this, Puppy sighed and gave her the ear.

The entire process was akin to torture, but Li Huowang managed to endure it. No one knew whether it was because he was happy at having managed to capture a Black Taisui, or whether it was because he had already gotten used to such pain.

By the time they finally finished shifting all of Li Huowang's organs back to their rough original locations, it was already daytime. Throughout the process, Li Huowang had been grunting and shouting in pain.

Translator's Thoughts

Welp, here's the jumbled up Li Huowang.

Credits to 格子的乱七八糟 on douyin

Chapter 245 - Black Taisui

“Alright let’s stop for now. Once my wounds recover, we can slowly shift them back to the proper location,” said Li Huowang.

Hearing those words, everyone sighed.

Staring at the bloody Li Huowang, Chun Xiaoman finally stopped enduring and fell knee first onto the ground. She crouched and vomited, emptying everything in her stomach.

But there was nothing else to vomit out. She had already vomited twice before this.

On the other hand, Bai Lingmiao shakily stroked Li Huowang’s hair, her eyes filled with tears. She didn’t know what to say.

“Why are you crying? We should be smiling instead! Not only is everyone alive, we even managed to capture the Black Taisui and Han Fu! This is good news. What’s even better? Miaomiao, now I can rearrange my face; anytime you get bored looking at my usual face, you will be able to change it.” Li Huowang did his best to console them.

Li Huowang knew just how bad he looked and just how much pain he was in. But, he had to act tough. If he kept complaining, then not only would his problems not get solved, even their group’s morale would drop as well.

It was something he had learned from Lu Juren’s wife, Luo Juanhua. When you are in a situation beyond your control, you have to act as if it doesn’t bother you so that the people around you don’t end up becoming sad.

However, Li Huowang had failed to learn the essence of this trickery from Luo Juanhua. The louder he laughed, the harder Bai Lingmiao cried.

Exhausted, Li Huowang finally closed his one remaining eye and said, "I will rest first. We will find our way back once I get up."

After saying that Li Huowang passed out.

In the haze between consciousness and unconsciousness, something familiar appeared within his mind, bobbing up and down. He wanted to know what it was but couldn't figure it out.

In between his bouts of consciousness and unconsciousness, he kept forgetting what he was about to do; it was as if his memories weren't intact.

Suddenly a sea of stars enveloped his mind. Li Huowang suddenly remembered the night where he and Yang Na stayed up to watch the night sky at the rooftop of their school. He realized that he was seeing one of his past memories.

"Yang Na, I'm sorry. I'm ill and I need to stop coming to school so that I can get treated." The youth hugged the girl.

"When will your treatment be completed? Will it take long?" asked the girl while holding his hands and swaying them.

"I don't know, but it shouldn't be too long. I will do my best to follow their treatment and get discharged as soon as I can, for your sake. After all, I've promised you that we will enter the same university and get married once we both graduate."

The girl blushed and nodded. "Ok. I will wait for you."

Both of them gradually got closer before finally hugging together.

"Huowang? Are you ok?"

"Senior Li, are you alright?"

"Li Huowang! Snap out of it!"

"Little Li, which side do you think is real? That side or this side?"

Various people were talking and tearing his most precious memory apart.

Li Huowang didn't want to go back. He wanted to stay in this wonderful moment, but he knew that it was impossible. Soon, everything started to crack and splinter, and his dream came to an end.

"AH!" Li Huowang opened his eye, covered in cold sweat. Then, he saw that his head was placed on Bai Lingmiao's lap as she gently fed him warm milk.

Feeling the warm goat's milk in his mouth, Li Huowang's scattered senses soon started to consolidate. Currently, he felt like his brain was akin to a rusted machine that sputtered and squeaked from time to time.

"Where are we?" asked Li Huowang as he looked at the top of the cow hide's tent.

Seeing Li Huowang awake, Bai Lingmiao sighed in relief. "This is Sun Baolu's house. He used to herd the lambs around here, so he brought us back. Also, you've been passed out for more than ten days. It's a relief that you finally woke up."

Li Huowang quickly removed the blanket covering his body and inspected his body.

By now, the massive wound on his torso had almost completely healed, while the other smaller wounds had already finished healing. But, his body was still slightly twisted in some ways. At the very least, someone normal wouldn't have their navel growing on their hips.

But, at the very least, he looked much better compared to when he had just crawled out from the cave. He looked human.

More importantly, his left foot had regrown halfway through. Now, he would no longer have to hobble around everywhere.

After he inspected his body, he did not rest and quickly asked Bai Lingmiao about the Black Taisui and Han Fu.

"No worries. Everything has been prepared, but we have to thank Sun Baolu and everyone else. If it weren't for all of them, then we would not have been able to haul both of them back. All of us borrowed two cow hide's tent. We also borrowed two more tents from them and set them up further away from the others. The Black Taisui and Han Fu are being guarded by us. So you can just lie down and rest for now," explained Bai Lingmiao.

"No, we have to go to the Black Taisui now!" said Li Huowang. He didn't want to wait any longer. He wore his clothes and directly walked out of the tent.

When he got out of the tent, he saw many people looking at him. At this point, the Qing Qiu people were no longer looking at him with curiosity but with wariness instead.

It was only natural. If they were able to stay friendly despite seeing what Li Huowang currently looked like, then it would be even more unsettling for him.

He greeted them and walked away from the other tents before approaching the two lonely tents a distance away in the grassland.

When Li Huowang was walking over to the tents, he met Lu Zhuangyuan who was herding the lambs back. Lu Zhuangyuan saw the wounded Li Huowang and was surprised. "Young Daoist? I can't believe that you can already walk around after resting for only ten days! Ha, I knew it! With your supernatural powers, no evil beings can win against you!"

But Li Huowang was completely fixated on the Black Taisui. He didn't even bother with Lu Zhuangyuan's flattery.

After confirming that Han Fu's little head was still alive, Li Huowang entered the tent containing the Black Taisui. This was the most important thing for him right now.

When he entered the tent, he saw that the Black Taisui's tentacles were impaled onto the ground with spears, imprisoning it within the tent.

Li Huowang circled around the Black Taisui and inspected it. After confirming that it looked the same as the one he had seen within Zephyr Temple, he reached out for the Black Taisui and grabbed a piece of its oily flesh. Then, he carefully cut away the piece of flesh with his dagger, causing the Black Taisui to immediately release a sharp cry as sticky black fluids flowed out from its wounds.

He looked at the piece of flesh in his hand and saw that a part of it was slowly transforming into tentacles. After a moment, he slowly opened his mouth and placed it in.

However, just as he was about to bite down, he paused.

Chapter 246 - Box

“What? Senior Li, did we go through all that trouble just to retrieve something fake?” Puppy’s voice was filled with nervousness when he saw Li Huowang pause there.

He really hoped that this thing would be useful since Senior Li was quite difficult to deal with when he was having an episode.

On the other hand, Li Huowang just shook his head with a frown, holding the Black Taisui while frozen in place.

What am I hesitating about? It’s just a hallucination over there.

He lifted the Black Taisui to his mouth, yet hesitated once again.

Everyone in the tent could tell that Senior Li was deep in thought after recovering from a major illness.

When Chun Xiaoman returned from her sword practice, she approached Bai Lingmiao to enquire about what was happening.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang slowly returned the flesh in his hand back to the Black Taisui’s body.

“Miaomiao, how much gold do we have left?” inquired Li Huowang.

Bai Lingmiao felt that it was quite strange that he would ask about this right now, but still answered honestly, “We exchanged some silver at Women’s Mountain earlier, so there should still be a few dozen taels[\[1\]](#) left.”

“A few dozen taels? That’s not enough,” Li Huowang mumbled to himself, then turned to look at Sun Baolu. “Your people should have some hard currency, right? Can you help me borrow some? Don’t worry, we will return it once we’re done.”

A rare trace of hesitation flashed across Sun Baolu’s face as he replied, “Alright, I’ll go ask.”

“Senior Li, what do you need so much gold for?”

“Yes, we should have enough money to reach the Liang Kingdom.”

Faced with all these questions, Li Huowang sighed. He shook his head, opened the curtain, and prepared to step out of the tent. “Stop asking, it’s none of your business. Is there anything to eat? I’m hungry.”

Sun Baolu was even more efficient than Li Huowang had anticipated. He had only just taken the first bite of his meal, when Baolu returned, carrying a small, round package while leading his mother into the tent.

Sun Baolu did not speak first, and instead cast a questioning glance at his mother.

Upon seeing his mother nod slightly, he carefully unwrapped the cloth in his hands. The gleaming gold within almost dazzled all their eyes.

It was an oval-shaped, palm-sized gold box, inlaid with various pieces of fine quality agate and jade. Inside this golden box, there were several gold ingots and some jewelry.

While it did not seem big, gold was very valuable. This small bundle was worth quite a lot.

Seeing Li Huowang’s surprise at the value of this item, Sun Baolu’s mom could understand that he was wondering about how a commoner could get their hands on something so valuable. She said, “Daoist, there’s no need to treat this as taboo, as this is not something taken from graves. It is my dowry, given by the host family back then.”

“The host family?” questioned Li Huowang as he reached out to take the box, nearly dropping it due to the heavy weight of the gold.

The woman’s expression was rather complex as she explained, “Yes, the host family gave it. After all, those that can afford to use a ‘beauty paper’ are all very wealthy. This item may be priceless to the common folk, but it’s practically nothing in the eyes of some. Daoist, you saved my son, so consider this as repayment. I hope you will accept it.”

“I don’t want it, and am merely borrowing it. I will return it to you once I’m done,” replied Li Huowang. From the looks of it, she wanted to use this object to pay off the favor.

She seemed to be unwilling to come into further contact with Li Huowang, and bowed respectfully before leaving through the curtain door.

“What’s up with your mother? Why the huge change in attitude?” asked Li Huowang.

Sun Baolu was evasive, as though he could not express what he wanted to. “Senior Li, you’ve likely frightened many by returning here. Being able to get out of that place alive while bringing back two strange items... It’s likely that the tribe members are gossiping about you behind your back.”

“Never mind. Also, I don’t want your family’s item. When I’m done with it, you can take it back. Do you understand?” said Li Huowang.

There was some uneasiness in Sun Baolu’s eyes as he asked, “Then, Senior Li, when do you plan to use this gold?”

Li Huowang held onto the golden box and looked slightly dejected. “In a bit, though, even I don’t know when. Baolu, I appreciate all your help. We may have to stay here for some time.”

“Senior Li, you’re being too courteous. You have saved my life,” replied Sun Baolu.

In the following days, the other disciples all found that Senior Li, who was recovering, always kept the golden box by his side. One might think of him as a miser, but they knew that he was not like that.

Among them, only Bai Lingmiao knew some details. She understood why he was behaving like that.

At night, Bai Lingmiao turned around to see that the person beside her was sitting up straight while clutching the golden box motionlessly, almost looking like a wooden statue.

Seeing this, Bai Lingmiao sighed softly, then turned slightly away from him. "Senior Li, are you very reluctant to leave that place? Or do you still think that there's a possibility that it's real over there?"

In the darkness, Li Huowang did not reply.

"Then, Senior Li, do you hope for that place to be real or fake?"

Faced with those questions, Li Huowang sighed deeply before his extremely exhausted and hoarse voice echoed within the tent, "I too, wish to know the answer to that question."

As the days passed, Li Huowang, who had become almost unrecognizable after so many changes, gradually returned to his original appearance.

His wounds had almost healed completely, and so, he was about to go and question Han Fu. At this point, Baolu walked in. He was now dressed in Qing Qiu's local attire.

"Senior Li, the tribe chief has asked me to ask you some questions," said Sun Baolu.

"What is it?" Li Huowang looked through what he knew quickly. Things had been calm in Qing Qiu recently, and there were no significant matters.

"It's about those women you rescued from the bandit village. Some of them have caught the eyes of a few young men, and the chief wants to probe them a little. However, if you don't agree, then they won't dare to act recklessly either," said Sun Baolu.

"Sure, why not," Li Huowang readily agreed.

From Baolu's mother's attitude, staying in this place seemed like a stable option. It was definitely better than following him everywhere and risking their lives.

Back at the border of Hou Shu, quite a few of them had died because of Peng Longteng. If these women continued to follow them, who knew how many of them would be left by the time they arrived at the Liang Kingdom?

“Alright! Then I’ll head back and report to the chief!” After receiving Li Huowang’s approval, Baolu was back to normal and no longer as taciturn as before, his personality returning to his cheery self.

Just as the excited Baolu was about to leave, Li Huowang reached out and grabbed his arm, instantly turning it black and blue.

Sun Baolu turned back to see Li Huowang looking at him fiercely as he shouted, “Hurry! Get Zhijian to bring the chains over!”

“Alright!” replied Baolu.

Sensing his surroundings change around him, Li Huowang hurriedly stashed the golden box into his arms.

Soon, the noisy and bustling tent was replaced by the quiet and clean hospital ward.

It was night here, and Li Huowang noticed that his mom was sleeping on the chair beside him. At this moment, she was covered in a small blanket that he used in his own room.

“Mom.”

1. Tael refers to both a unit of the currency and the weight. Here's it's referring to the currency 🤔

Chapter 247 - Sun Xiaoqin

"Mom, wake up, please," called out Li Huowang.

As Sun Xiaoqin seemed to hear her son calling out to her, she was in a daze.

She thought that she was dreaming. When she rubbed her eyes and got up from the reclining chair, she was surprised to see Li Huowang looking at her.

"Son? You've finally awakened again?"

Sun Xiaoqin quickly took out the nearby calendar and started to jot down. "Son, look at the time intervals at which you've awakened. They seem to be shortening. Does this mean that your illness is improving?"

Li Huowang smiled at her and nodded. "That's right. Maybe it really is getting better."

"That's wonderful! By the way, are you hungry? How about an orange? Ah, when you're not awake, you keep talking nonsense, and I don't even know if you've eaten enough," said Sun Xiaoqin as she took out a red plastic bag filled with oranges and began to peel one of them.

"Mom, I'm not hungry. Have you been accompanying me all this time?" asked Li Huowang.

Sun Xiaoqin sat by his bed while extending her right hand with an orange peel as she gently stroked his face and looked at him lovingly. "Don't worry, Mom is here. Dr. Wang has also said that me staying by your side and seeing you every day might help improve your condition."

"Don't listen to him, he's a liar," Li Huowang's voice quivered as he looked at his mother.

“Alright, alright, I’ll listen to you. We won’t call him anymore. Look at how he’s even beaten my son up. When we’ve saved enough money, we’ll go abroad and find the best doctor,” said Sun Xiaoqian.

Hearing her soothing tone, Li Huowang’s lips trembled slightly. Tears began to slowly flow down from his eyes.

“Son, don’t cry. Why are you crying? Did that Wang Wei bully you while I wasn’t around? Tell me, and I’ll deal with him!” Sun Xiaoqian’s brows raised sharply, and her indomitable spirit was back.

Li Huowang shook his head vigorously, either to deny her words or to shake off his tears, he didn’t know which. “Mom, my hands are a little numb. Can you help untie me?”

“Ah, of course.” Sun Xiaoqian readily agreed and immediately started to untie the wide cloth straps on his hands.

She did not even consider the possibility that he would suddenly go crazy and attack her; after all, he was her flesh and blood.

Li Huowang controlled his newly freed hands and massaged his numb wrists, then wiped the tears off his face. Then, he reached into his blanket and slowly pulled out the golden box that he had brought from the other side.

“Mom, here. This is all for you,” Li Huowang smiled as he softly explained and passed the golden box to his mom.

“This... this...” Sun Xiaoqian was clearly flustered at the sight of the object. Her thoughts were jumbled; where did all this gold come from?

Li Huowang took out a small ingot from the box and placed it in his palm before her. His eyes gleamed with anticipation as he said, “Mom, look. With these, not only can you buy back our house, but buy a few more as well. You can even buy some shops to rent out. In the future, you won’t have to work anymore, and can have a steady income every month. Also, didn't you say that you wanted to travel abroad after retirement? There's no need to wait that long anymore; you can just go now. With all this gold, you can travel wherever you want."

As he spoke, he reached into his pocket and took out an exquisite pair of jade earrings, and then passed them over to her. "Mom, this is the birthday gift I owe Nana. Please pass it to her. Also, help me tell her..."

He paused, struggling with his expression as he recalled those memories. He took a deep breath and forcefully suppressed his emotions before continuing, "Mom... Help me tell Nana, I am sorry. Tell her not to wait for me anymore."

Hearing all this, Sun Xiaoqin began to panic; it almost seemed like her son was saying his final goodbyes.

She quickly placed the golden box on the table and dashed out before shouting toward the empty corridor, "Doctor! On-call doctor, come now!"

After that, she hurried back and anxiously held Li Huowang's hands as she choked out, "Son, what's going on? Did you run into some trouble? Tell Mom about it; I'll find a solution for you! No matter how big the problem is, I can help you to solve it. Don't scare Mom like this!"

Li Huowang smiled as he watched tears flow down his mom's face. He held the golden box between them and said, "Mom, why are you crying? You should be happy. Look at all this gold. Our family is rich!"

"I don't want the gold! I just want my son to come back!" Sun Xiaoqin leaned forward and hugged Li Huowang's head as she sobbed loudly.

As he heard those words, Li Huowang's heart ached deeply. He even considered not eating the Black Taisui so that this side could continue to be with him, and so that he could be together with them. But when he recalled the swollen face he had given Bai Lingmiao, he once again steeled his resolve to never look at this side.

I can't abandon my reality because of this fake hallucination! I must take responsibility for my actions!

But... it feels so real. Is all this really fake?

Li Huowang held his mother tightly as he took in all her strong emotions.

At that point, Li Huowang saw Wang Wei, who was clad in white, entering the ward with his student.

Li Huowang smiled at him, "Dr. Wang, I'm leaving now, and we might never see each other again. How about we make a bet? Didn't you say that this side is reality? If you have the ability to make me awaken again, then I'll admit that this side is reality."

He continued to hug his mom as he said his final words, and then closed his eyes while smiling.

When he reopened them again, he found that he had returned to the vast Qing Qiu. He looked around at the azure sky and the green grass lands, then took a deep breath.

When the others finished removing the chains that bound him, Li Huowang looked at all of them. Then, he approached Sun Baolu and passed the golden box back to him before turning toward the tent that held the Black Taisui.

Chun Xiaoman watched his back with some concern. When he had been suffering from his hysteria, he had been half laughing and half crying. "Keep an eye on him. I feel that Senior Li is... a little different today."

Shortly after, they arrived at the tent and saw their Senior Li emotionally holding a piece of the Black Taisui flesh.

"Senior Li, what's going on? Eating this thing should temporarily cure your hysteria, right? Isn't that a good thing? Then why is he crying?" asked Sun Baolu. However, his questions went unanswered.

All of them just stood there silently, watching Li Huowang cry as he consumed the flesh in his hands.

Chapter 248 - Show Off

Yang Xiaohai woke up from his dreams and looked at the cowhide tent above him, and then inexplicably chuckled to himself.

A stinky foot suddenly kicked over from beside him. “Do you want to die? What are you doing lying in bed and laughing so early in the morning?”

Yang Xiaohai sat up and looked excitedly at Puppy, who had his eyes closed and was rubbing his nose. “Senior Cao Cao, we don’t have to do anything now, and we still get to eat meat every day. Shouldn’t we be happy?”

This was genuine meat, and he had never eaten so much of it in his entire life. Even the Emperor may not be living such a grand life.

“Look at you, getting so happy over just a few meals. Kids will always be kids,” sighed Puppy.

He was different; he had higher aspirations.

After a moment, Puppy got off the bed and patted the snoring Gao Zhijian’s leg. “Simpleton, get up. We’ll likely be leaving in the next few days.”

“We’re leaving so soon?” Yang Xiaohai asked reluctantly.

“Senior Li has cured his hysteria, and so leaving is next. Why, did you plan to live here forever?” asked Puppy.

Yang Xiaohai frowned and mumbled, “It’s not a bad idea.”

“Hey! Do you think that this is your own home? You’re just a guest here! That’s why the others are treating you so well. If you stay any longer, then they are going to start throwing plates and stools at you,” said Puppy.

After lecturing Yang Xiaohai, Puppy saw that Gao Zhijian was still asleep. After a moment, he lifted the blanket and grabbed Gao Zhijian's pants, and then abruptly yanked them downward.

Puppy sniggered as he saw the half-asleep Gao Zhijian frantically grab his pants, and then headed outside the tent. After he stepped out, he walked barefoot into the river and began to carefully wash up.

He hadn't been so diligent before, but Xiaoman had told him that women liked clean men, and so he started to maintain his hygiene.

"Your face has white and yellow patches, and you look like a rat. If you also appear messy, then you might as well just die."

This was what Chun Xiaoman had told him originally.

Puppy had thought about it and felt that she had a point. Hence, he had started to groom himself more.

Surprisingly, after he started to take care of his appearance more, some of the women from the bandit camp had become a lot more willing to talk to him.

Puppy knew that he had to work harder; after all, there were also those men from the Qing Qiu tents that had started to show interest in those women, making him more anxious.

It was not a problem for him to pick from amongst the leftovers, but he was afraid that they would all be selected, and he would be left with nobody.

After cleaning up thoroughly, he untied his belt and let out a stream of urine into the river. Then, he took out a crumpled up red flower from his pocket and placed it on his ear before swaggering back toward the tents.

After he entered the camp, Puppy noticed Li Huowang's figure. He was just about to greet him, but noticed that Li Huowang was messing around with his horrifying torture tools that were scattered everywhere.

Ah... Senior Li, what are you planning to do again?

Puppy was not going to invite misfortune for himself, and thus quietly decided to tiptoe past him.

He did not go directly to the women's tents, and first came to the entrance of the Lu Family Troupe's tent, and then whispered from outside, "Xiucai! Xiucai!"

"Ah! Coming, coming!" replied a voice.

Not long after, Lu Xiucai came out with a milk mustache and said, "Let's go. I'm done eating."

The two of them walked together as they walked toward the women's tents.

"How is it? Is my flower nice?" asked Puppy.

"Men shouldn't wear flowers. Only women should," replied Lu Xiucai.

"Why can't men wear them? Where I'm from, men who bring flowers often attract young ladies," retorted Puppy.

When they arrived outside the women's tents, they didn't enter immediately, and only quietly waited outside.

However, their mouths never stopped as they squatted there and discussed which women were the prettiest, or who had the biggest butts or assets. Although their relationship was not particularly close, they had a lot to talk about on such matters.

As the sun gradually climbed higher into the sky, those women finally emerged. Each of them was carrying their clothes as they walked toward the river to wash up.

"Ah, here they are! Hurry, follow them!" said Puppy. Then, he spat into his palms and combed his sideburns before laughing and following behind them.

The women weren't afraid when they saw the two men approach them in such a lively manner. They just gathered around and seemed to discuss something while occasionally bursting into laughter.

"Uh~! Under the moonlit willow tree, people gather uh.. at noon!"

Lu Xiucan's sudden voice caused Puppy to jump, and also attracted the attention of those women.

"Xiucan, what did you say?" asked Puppy.

"I don't know either, I only know that line. My dad said that women these days prefer cultured men," replied Lu Xiucan.

Hearing this, Puppy looked at him with disdain, then swiped the flower on his ear, and continued to grin as he walked toward the women.

Soon, they arrived at the river side, and Puppy really found himself chatting with the women.

Having spent so many days together, these women had all learnt that Puppy was just all talk.

At the start, Puppy had thought that his words had worked. However, after some time, he understood that they were all only asking about Gao Zhijian.

At that point, a bunch of Qing Qiu men with bare arms rode their horses and whooshed by, attracting the attention of the women.

After circling around, one of them suddenly led his horse through the water and smiled at a big-mouthed lady before extending his hand toward her.

"Hurry, this man is not bad! Look at those muscles!"

"Right, Lan'er. Didn't you say you were interested in him last night?"

"We can't afford to be picky, Lan'er."

When Lan'er was led onto the horse, the crowd, be it male or female, all started to cheer, except for one.

"What's the big deal?!" Puppy felt frustrated.

"Uh~! Under the moonlit willow tree, people gather uh.. at noon!" shouted Lu Xiucan.

"Alright, Xiucan, stop howling! Has anyone even glanced at you after an entire hour of howling?" asked Puppy as he looked condescendingly at the young man beside him. He suddenly felt that he shouldn't have partnered with him today; he was completely useless.

I don't believe it. I can't be overshadowed by that dark, short guy!

Puppy paused, then took out a small wooden pipe from his waist, and a needle wrapped with white silk. He inserted the needle into the pipe. "Cough, cough! Ladies, watch closely. This is a skill that I learned from a true master. This is a supernatural ability~"

As everyone's eyes turned to him, Puppy felt proud of himself, and began to show off with the pipe.

Hehe~ What's the big deal about horse riding? Can it compare to this?

"Look closely, don't blink! This is not something that just anyone can see!" said Puppy as he led over a sheep and placed the wooden pipe at his mouth before pointing it toward the sheep's head and taking a deep breath.

The next moment, his face turned red, as he frantically clutched at his neck.

"Ka~ Ka~~"

Chapter 249 - Success

Lu Xiucan was quite puzzled as he watched Puppy's face turn red while the latter clutched his neck.

Didn't this guy say he was going to display a supernatural skill?

Why does he look so deathly now? Could this be the supernatural ability that he was talking about? Anyone could do that.

"Ka~ Cough!" As Puppy bent over in a violent coughing fit, the short needle wrapped in white silk finally came out and fell onto the ground.

"My heavens, I nearly died here," muttered Puppy as he looked at the needle wrapped in white silk with some lingering fear in his eyes.

His brain had nearly frozen just now. He had been prepared to take a deep breath before blowing out, but instead, he ended up inhaling that thing into his throat.

Suddenly, Puppy remembered something and leapt up from the ground. Terrified, he opened his mouth wide toward Lu Xiucan and asked, "Quick, quick! Help me see if there's anything inside my mouth!"

"What? There's nothing... But why is your throat so small? It feels a bit sticky on the side," responded Lu Xiucan.

Upon hearing this, Puppy was so scared that his soul nearly left his body. After a moment, he reached two fingers into his mouth and hurriedly probed around his throat. Though it caused him to gag, Puppy found that aside from his throat shrinking a little, there were no other issues.

"That's good. Fortunately, it got stuck in the throat, and didn't go down any further. If I had swallowed it, then I might have ended up like Senior Li previously." muttered Puppy. He knew that he didn't have Senior Li's capabilities. He would have definitely turned into a monster.

Finally feeling relieved, he heard laughter coming from the riverside causing his face to turn red from embarrassment as he quickly bent down to retrieve the needle from the grass.

Puppy felt that he had been humiliated before these women, which in his opinion, was something much more serious than the mistake that he had just committed.

"This doesn't count! Let's try again!" shouted Puppy. He was unwilling to give up, and directly placed the needle wrapped in white silk back into the small pipe.

After his previous bitter experience, he didn't dare to be careless again. He took a deep breath and placed his mouth at the end of the small pipe, and then blew hard toward the grazing sheep.

Swoosh!

The needle flew out from the pipe and pierced into the base of the sheep's black horn.

Then, everyone saw as the sheep's horn rapidly slid down on the wool, directly reaching its chin.

Instantly, there were exclamations and screams, all of which made Puppy feel extremely satisfied to the point where he almost couldn't help laughing out loud. However, he pretended to have a nonchalant look on his face as he asked, "How about that? Didn't I say that I have supernatural abilities? Who else could do this?"

As he spoke, Puppy took out another needle and blew it onto the sheep. This time, it hit its front hoof. Immediately, the sheep's foot twisted, causing it to stumble and fall onto the ground.

Heh! This thing is really effective! Next time we encounter bandits, I'll use this to deal with them! But I must remember to take a deep breath before blowing it.

Just as Puppy was feeling satisfied with his masterpiece, one of the women washing the clothes in the river approached him. She had a pear-shaped face, and her eyes were filled with curiosity as she looked at the pipe in his hands and asked, "What is this, my lord?"

"Hehehe~" Puppy was delighted to be called a lord, his grin stretching from ear to ear. "This is the magical tool I use to display my divine abilities! You can look at it, but you cannot touch it. Ordinary people must not touch it!"

With this topic, the two of them finally began to chat properly.

On the other hand, seeing this scene, Lu Xiucan felt extremely envious. But all he could do was watch on; he did not possess any such items.

Time passed quickly, and the women soon completed washing their clothes.

As he watched them leave, Puppy was happily looking at a white stone in his hands. This was given to him by that woman; she said that she had picked it up by the roadside.

It was a very ordinary stone, at best a little rounder and brighter than the others. But the object itself was not important. What mattered was the intent behind her giving this stone to him.

The flower by Puppy's ear was also gone; he had given it to the woman.

"Hehe~! Xiucan, I'm going to get married!" Puppy sniffed the stone, and then carefully placed it in his pocket.

As he saw Puppy acting like this, Lu Xiucan started sulking; he felt that this was extremely unfair. Puppy looked like that, with yellow and white patches all over his face. How was he deserving of this?

"No, the flower is too insignificant. I need to give her something more valuable. I'm going to go and borrow some silver from Junior Bai!" Puppy said excitedly while preparing to leave.

"Ah, Puppy, hold on!" Lu Xiucan shouted.

"What? Want to borrow this? I risked my life to obtain this thing!” Puppy walked to the strange-looking sheep and removed the needle before storing it carefully.

“Who wants to borrow that broken toy? I wouldn’t take it even if you gave it to me. It’s just that before leaving, my dad asked me to talk to you about something,” said Lu Xiucan.

Puppy was about to leave, but turned his head back unexpectedly. Lu Zhuangyuan had never asked him about any matters before this.

“How was the Daoist’s facial complexion today?” asked Lu Xiucan.

“Why don’t you go and see for yourself? He’s not too far away,” replied Puppy. Just as he was about to leave, he was stopped by Lu Xiucan.

“Hey, it’s already saddening enough that no woman bothers with me. Puppy, help me this once. I really dare not go there,” pleaded Lu Xiucan.

“What? What did you call me?” asked Puppy, his brows raised.

“Cao Cao, Brother Cao Cao! I beg you! You’re about to get married soon! Adults should be magnanimous,” said Lu Xiucan.

Seeing his pitiful look, there was a hint of glee on Puppy’s face. “What’s there to be afraid of? Can Senior Li eat you? Let’s go, I’ll accompany you to take a look.”

The riverside was not too far from the tents. Not long after, they leaned against the side of a tent and looked at Li Huowang in the distance.

“Is he sharpening knives?” Lu Xiucan asked cautiously.

“No; those are his special instruments that are used for torture. He probably thinks that they have dulled after use, and so he’s sharpening them,” replied Puppy.

“I can’t see his face. Brother Cao Cao, could you help me get closer for a look?” request Lu Xiucan.

“Hey! Why should I go and see? It’s your business; why don’t you go yourself?” questioned Puppy. “But why does your dad want to ask about Senior Li’s facial expression? Does he want to discuss something with Senior Li?”

“I don’t know. My dad has been more worried lately,” replied Lu Xiucan.

At this point, the two of them suddenly noticed that Li Huowang was looking directly at them.

Seeing this, Puppy pushed Lu Xiucan on his back, sending him out from behind the tent’s cover. Then, he walked out as well while smiling widely at Li Huowang.

At that point, Puppy noticed that Senior Li had put away all his torture tools, and hanged them on the lower row of the cowhide bag. Then, he turned and walked toward the two lonely tents in the distance.

“Eh? Senior Li isn’t going to the Black Taisui’s tent, but the other one,” commented Puppy.

“Puppy, what’s in that tent?” Lu Xiucan squinted.

Puppy looked at him with disdain. “That’s none of your business. Go back and tell your dad that Senior Li’s temper hasn’t been good these past few days. If there’s anything he wants to discuss, then he should wait a few more days.”

Chapter 250 - Enquiry

“Nice to meet you. Let me introduce myself. I am Li Huowang. Now, as for you guys who tried to ambush me previously, I have forgiven you for that. After all, being a Strayed One, it’s only natural that you would like to snatch me, coveted me just like a ginseng. This time around, I am here to discuss another matter. In a nutshell, I am very unfamiliar with this world, and would like to gain more knowledge about it through you. Of course, there’s another reason as well. You are aware that I’m a Strayed One, and I’m also looking for a way to get rid of this problem. If you know something and tell me about it, then I’ll truly appreciate it.”

Li Huowang sat on the chair as he spoke to Han Fu in a serious manner.

His conversation target was not the larger of those two blurry fleshy heads drooping before him, but the fist-sized head around Han Fu’s neck region.

The ability of the white tassels hadn’t been kind on him either, completely changing up his face. Though Li Huowang called it a head, it was more like a lump of flesh with twisted organs attached to it.

This being was extremely peculiar. Its main body had completely died, and yet, it was still alive and well. Li Huowang wondered how the disciples of Luoism cultivated such techniques.

“What’s your name? Also Han Fu?” questioned Li Huowang.

The small head simply sneered and did not reply.

There was a clattering sound as various shiny torture tools were laid out in a row before Li Huowang. Then, he picked out a half-spherical iron tool, and carefully brought it toward the small head.

“Ahh~!!” The sharp cries of the small head pierced through the air.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang opened the tent cover beside him and threw the small eyeball in his hand toward the Black Taisui.

“Still not willing to talk?” asked Li Huowang.

The small head used its one remaining eye to look at the assortment of various strange-looking torture tools before finally showing a hint of fear. However, that fear was soon replaced by determination once again.

“You Ao Jing madman! Will you let me off if I speak?!” asked the small head.

“I won’t. But dying directly and dying through slow torture are two different matters,” replied Li Huowang in a matter of fact manner. “Did you know? I was never really good at torture, but I have experienced a lot of pain and various kinds of tortures. Do you want me to make you live through everything I have ever experienced?”

Seeing Li Huowang wiping the blood on a nearby towel, and then picking up a barbed hook, the head began to struggle. But at this point, its four limbs were already completely broken; its resistance was simply futile.

“I don’t know! I really don’t know!! We just left the mountain not long ago!” screamed the small head.

“Really? If you just left the mountain not long ago, then, the nineteen lifespan pills were gifted to you by your master for your travel expenses?” asked Li Huowang.

At the same time, the barbed hook pierced through Han Fu’s flesh and slowly pulled out some things. Then, Li Huowang then picked up the coarse salt he had borrowed from Sun Baolu, and evenly applied it on the wound.

The small head twitched in pain, and foam mixed with blood began to spew from its mouth.

After a while, Li Huowang kept his torture tools away and took out the Fiery Scripture and began to recite the obscure incantations with a merciful expression.

Immediately the solidified white wax melted and turned into a pool of fire centipedes that climbed onto Han Fu's body. Then, amidst the crackling and roasting sounds, the centipedes started healing the injuries caused earlier.

"Ahhh!!"

The screams echoed into the distance, frightening many of the Qing Qiu kids in the tents. They also unsettled the adults into keeping their distance.

After several rounds of torture and healing, the small head finally gave in. "I'll talk, I'll talk!"

"Alright, then let's start with the simple questions first. Can this lifespan pill be used as currency?" asked Li Huowang as he took out a pill wrapped in yellow talismans.

When he saw the other party nodding numbly, Li Huowang directly stuffed the pill into the gourd and continued, "Is it very expensive? Is there any point of reference?"

"One lifespan pill can hire someone like Han Fu to help you one time," replied the small head.

Li Huowang nodded in understanding. "How does one obtain lifespan pills?"

"By killing others; however, ordinary people won't do. They need to have been born on a Yang day, in a Yang month of a Yang year. Do you want to know the refining method?"

"No need. Next question. Han Fu mentioned that you are a disciple of Luoism? Where is your temple located?"

"Liang Kingdom's Snakebone Mountain."

"How many people are there in your temple?"

"Fifty-seven."

"How many heads?"

“Two hundred and twenty-four heads.”

“What are you?”

“I am Han Fu’s Nascent Soul.”

Li Huowang continued to ask various small questions to confirm the authenticity of the information. He already knew the answers to some of the questions, and just asked them to test if the other party was trying to deceive him.

Once he confirmed that the other party was not lying to him, Li Huowang began asking the more crucial questions, “What is a Strayed One? How is one formed? How many Strayed Ones are there in this world?”

“I really don’t know about these things. The information about Strayed Ones was only something casually mentioned by my master in passing,” said the small head.

When the small head saw Li Huowang slowly reaching for the torture tools once again, it cried out in fear. Snot and tears flowed down from its face as it pleaded, “I really don’t know! My master just told us that Strayed Ones are extremely rare treasures and that they are not to be missed if we encounter one of them!”

“Then, how do you confirm whether someone is a Strayed One?” asked Li Huowang. He had been thinking about this question for a long time—why could everyone he encountered immediately recognize his identity at just a glance?

“I don’t know how the others identify them, but my master said that everyone has three fires on their shoulders. It’s normal for these fires to be big or small, but only the fire of a Strayed One appears and vanishes intermittently,” replied the small head.

Li Huowang looked down toward his shoulder, but didn’t see any so-called fire.

That’s enough, it’s time to ask the most important question.

Li Huowang looked at the small head, and after contemplating his words for a while, he spoke again, “Have you heard, either from your master or on your journey, the method to break free from the bewilderment and sense of doubt that the Strayed Ones suffer from?”

“No. You are the first Strayed One we’ve met.”

Li Huowang carefully examined the deformed head. This statement was likely to be true, since Han Fu was just a neophyte. Even if there was a method for one to break free of the bewilderment and sense of doubt that a Strayed One suffered from, he may not necessarily be aware of it.

“Then, what do you know about the Sitting Oblivion Dao?” asked Li Huowang.

“I know this. They are a group of scammers who love to deceive people.”

“What are their names?” continued Li Huowang.

“I heard that their names all represent the various mahjong tiles, like Ba Wan and San Bing. But I have heard that these names are just aliases. When one Ba Wan dies, another one replaces him.”

“Then, is there one called Bei Feng in the Sitting Oblivion Dao? Do you know anything? What’s his strength like?” asked Li Huowang.

This person was the Strayed One that had managed to break free from the bewilderment and sense of doubt that Strayed Ones suffered from. If Li Huowang wanted to completely break free from his own bewilderment and sense of doubt, then this person was very important to him.

“I don’t know. I haven’t dealt with the Sitting Oblivion Dao,” replied the small head.

Following that, Li Huowang asked some more questions about the Sitting Oblivion Dao, but the information known by the small head was very limited.

After a while, Li Huowang looked at the small head in front of him, and then stood up with both hands on his knees. The chair creaked as he stood.

“Very well, I've finished asking everything. Now, I need to confirm the truth of what you said,” said Li Huowang as he reached for the torture tools once again.

Chapter 251 - Surveillance Bureau

When it saw Li Huowang bringing out the torture tools once more, Han Fu's Nascent Soul was beyond terrified.

"Wait! Stop, stop, stop, stop!" The little head did its best to tilt back from fear while trying to distract Li Huowang. "I really don't know much about the Sitting Oblivion Dao! If you want to fight against them, then go and find the Surveillance Bureau! They know a lot about them!"

"Surveillance Bureau?" Li Huowang lowered the tools and thought about it. "Weren't they employed by the Emperor to deal with evil beings? They know a lot about the Sitting Oblivion Dao?"

The Nascent Soul nodded its head. "Yeah! They are sworn enemies! The Surveillance Bureau captures and kills any members of the Sitting Oblivion Dao! This is even more so the case since two hundred years ago when the Emperor of Dongxia was switched with someone from the Sitting Oblivion Dao. After that, he then led the entire nation to its ruin. Since then, the Surveillance Bureau has placed the Sitting Oblivion Dao very high on their list! Also, when it comes to the Sitting Oblivion Dao, they would be happy to share any and all information without holding back. Qing Qiu, Liang Kingdom, the kingdom of Si Qi, and Hou Shu are all in cahoots with the Surveillance Bureau. They surely know something about the Sitting Oblivion Dao."

"Oh? Is that so?" Li Huowang sat on the stool and pondered about it.

Since Bei Feng is one of the Four Joys of the Sitting Oblivion Dao and both parties are sworn enemies that have been fighting for years, the Surveillance Bureau must have information on Bei Feng! Maybe I really could find details about Bei Feng through the Surveillance Bureau.

Li Huowang was not desperate enough to directly search for Bei Feng and try to force him to spill out the secrets about getting rid of the confusion and sense of doubt of a Strayed One. Instead, he first needed to confirm whether or not Bei Feng really was a Strayed One that had gotten rid of the sense of confusion and doubt that Strayed Ones normally suffer from.

Even though he wanted it to be the truth, he would never forget that it was another member of the Sitting Oblivion Dao who had told him about that.

Thus, before acting he had to first confirm the truth, or this time, he might end up being tricked by a dead member of the Sitting Oblivion Dao.

Only after confirming that Bei Feng was indeed a Strayed One and had gotten rid of the confusion and sense of doubt that Strayed Ones suffer from would he decide his next course of action.

“Surveillance Bureau...” Li Huowang mumbled before once again focusing on the Nascent Soul in front of him. “Tell me everything about the Surveillance Bureau. The more you tell me, the less pain you will have to feel.”

Through Han Fu’s Nascent Soul, Li Huowang understood that the Surveillance Bureau was a department that handled matters that the regular soldiers couldn’t; this included things like getting rid of evil beings that had slipped into the city and other supernatural issues.

And one of their highest priority targets was the Sitting Oblivion Dao.

“Do they only care about the Sitting Oblivion Dao? What about the other sects like Ao Jing Sect or the Righteous Monastery?” Li Huowang was puzzled.

The Nascent Soul’s single remaining eye was filled with confusion. “Why would they care about them? They are proper sects.”

“Bullshit! What do you mean proper sects?! They...!” Li Huowang stopped and thought about it. After thinking it through, he realized that there was indeed no reason for the Surveillance Bureau to deal with them!

One of them was just a group of people who loved torturing themselves while the other was a group of monks that, at most, broke the taboo of sex. No matter how many sins they committed, most of them were committed within their sectors and didn't affect the daily lives of other people, nor did it affect the Emperor. It was clear that they were allowed as long as they didn't do anything majorly disrupting. The Righteous Monastery was even capable of being built within the heart of a city, clear evidence that it was allowed.

Li Huowang knew that the Emperor must know about what the Righteous Monastery was doing, but since he did not interfere with their actions, it meant that the Emperor had allowed them to do so...

Originally, Li Huowang had thought that both of those sects were evil sects, but after experiencing the world, he now knew that both of those sects were much better than the bandits or the robbers.

In fact, the nuns from the Benevolent Nunnery were considered literal Bodhisattvas during these chaotic times. The nuns were just greedy, dirty, and gluttonous while not hurting anyone.

“Aren't you a disciple of Luoism? Would the Surveillance Bureau not come and apprehend you after killing so many people?” asked Li Huowang as he revealed the nineteen lifespan pills in front of the Nascent Soul.

“Cultivators would kill people from time to time for the sake of their cultivation. As long as you don't kill people with wealth and power, the Surveillance Bureau would normally just ignore you,” said the small head.

“Hehe... So much for the Surveillance Bureau being responsible.” Li Huowang smiled bitterly.

The Nascent Soul understood the sarcasm and explained, “The Surveillance Bureau doesn’t have a black-and-white relationship with all of us. Sometimes the Surveillance Bureau would request other sects to do their business and we would just do it.”

With this, Li Huowang now knew that the Surveillance Bureau had a rigid internal structure but was more lax toward outsiders. Most of the issues like Han Fu cultivating on his own would be ignored by the Surveillance Bureau.

To the Surveillance Bureau, all they needed to do was to keep tabs on and employ some of the lone cultivators as freelancers. Then, as long as they got their job done, they would get their payment even without needing to meet up.

“The Surveillance Bureau’s major enemies are sects like the Sitting Oblivion Dao or extremely dangerous Evil Beings. But their most important mission involves dealing with the Natural Disasters,” continued the Nascent Soul.

“Wait, did you just say Natural Disasters?”

Li Huowang perked up. He knew that at least two Natural Disasters had occurred before. One was the disappearance of ‘Decay’ while the other was the disappearance of ‘Lies’ that Han Fu told him about.

The one in charge of handling the Natural Disasters was the Surveillance Bureau!

Li Huowang slapped his head for being so slow. The characters for the word Surveillance Bureau were already hinting that they dealt with Natural Disasters[1]. To think he couldn’t unravel the connection between the two even though it was so simple.

“Since the Surveillance Bureau deals with Natural Disasters, how do they resolve them?” Li Huowang asked the Nascent Soul. He was quite curious about this crazy world.

“I don’t know! I’m not from the Surveillance Bureau! I’m not lying!”

In the first place, Li Huowang hadn’t expected it to know and was already satisfied that it had known so much.

“Daoist Li, is Han Fu’s Seven Star Sword with you?” asked the Nascent Soul.

This attracted Li Huowang’s attention. “Seven Star Sword? You mean the bronze coin sword?”

“Yes! Let me tell you how good it is! The Seven Star Sword was forged by our Master using 184 pieces of bronze coin during the Wu Hour of the Fifth Day of the Fifth Month of the Shen Year; that coincides with not only the Eight Solar Terms, but also with one of the Three Festivals! It could easily get rid of the evil energy from Er Hei and Wu Huang; this makes it very effective at dealing with evil beings!”

1. The name of the Surveillance Bureau in Chinese is 监天司, with 监 meaning to watch, inspect, or supervise; 天 meaning skies or heavens; and 司 meaning department, bureau 📌

Chapter 252 - Clue

“If you want to learn how to use the sword, then you must first learn the Luoism’s special seal, the Xiandu Cishe Seal! I know how to use it and I can teach you!” continued the Nascent Soul.

Li Huowang was not surprised by its words and even chuckled at the Nascent Soul, “It will take a long time to learn it, am I right? In order for me to learn it, I need to let you live and you can just keep dragging it on and on, allowing yourself to survive, right?”

When it saw that its plot had been uncovered, the Nascent Soul shrunk back in fear. It revealed its rotten teeth and smiled in order to pacify Li Huowang. “No one wants to die. Since Han Fu is dead, you can just pluck me off his body and place me on yourself instead! That way, I can become your Nascent Soul! Daoist Li, you might not know this, but the Nascent Souls of the disciples of Luoism are very beneficial. If you have two of them, then you can cultivate thrice as fast. We can even help you condense energy—”

“Who says you have the right to suggest conditions to me?” Li Huowang cut it off and pulled out a metal spoon before pointing it at the Nascent Soul’s single remaining eye. “Now, tell me everything about the Xiandu Cishe Seal. I have a lot of time to play with you, so you can go ahead and try any and all tricks you can think of.”

Li Huowang finally walked out of the tent on the evening of the second day. His clothes were littered with pieces of flesh and drenched in blood, but he was also holding a lambskin parchment in his hand. It contained the cultivation method of the Xiandu Cishe Seal written on it.

Li Huowang had even asked the Nascent Soul whether it knew how to use Han Fu’s talismans, but confirmed that it didn’t know anything about it. By then, the Nascent Soul had been mutilated to the point that its face was barely recognizable.

In the end, the only thing it knew about was the method to use the Seven Star Sword.

Li Huowang sighed. If he had been able to learn how to use the talismans of the disciples of Luoism, then he wouldn't have to rely on the Profound Records every time he fought. After all, the Profound Records would severely harm his body whenever he used it.

Still, it was not very important to him at this point. He would have just considered it to be an additional reward even if he had managed to learn it. Instead, he was more concerned about the information related to the Surveillance Bureau.

The Surveillance Bureau had a direct impact on whether or not he would be able to get rid of the sense of doubt and confusion.

He dragged his tired body back into his tent, took the towel that Bai Lingmiao gave him, and wiped his face. He didn't even take off his shoes before laying on the bed.

Bai Lingmiao carefully took off his shoes and socks before covering him with a blanket and left.

However, even though Li Huowang was tired after staying up all night, he could not fall asleep. He kept thinking about what the Nascent Soul had told him. The more he thought, the more annoyed he became, to the point that he had to sit up and go through all the information one more time.

Supposedly, Bei Feng is a Strayed One who has managed to get rid of the sense of doubt and confusion that Strayed Ones suffer from. If I want to verify this information, I will have to go and find the Surveillance Bureau. However, that would be if I don't get any more clues. But... how should I go about obtaining information from the Surveillance Bureau? After all, I'm a Strayed One myself.

Li Huowang knew what it would mean if such a massive organization found out about him.

Li Huowang sat on the bed for a very long time. When Bai Lingmiao called him for dinner, he still didn't have any ideas.

When Bai Lingmiao learned about his troubles, she hesitantly gave a suggestion, "Senior Li, aren't both you and the Surveillance Bureau standing in the same camp and fighting against the Sitting Oblivion Dao? Can't you just get the information from them directly?"

"What do you think the Surveillance Bureau would do when a stranger suddenly comes knocking on their door, asking for information about the Sitting Oblivion Dao? The best case scenario would be them beating me up before throwing me out." Li Huowang sighed as he took the bowl from Bai Lingmiao and began eating.

"But... aren't the both of you standing on the same side? Can't you just explain it?" questioned Bai Lingmiao.

"Do you think this is a game where two children become friends? It's not that easy. Miaomiao, they are strong enough to be able to use the disciples of Luoism as pawns. The Surveillance Bureau is not as upright as you think," explained Li Huowang.

However, at that moment, he suddenly had an idea that caused his eyes to light up. "Wait a minute... our identities could be switched! We could just change our identity; as long as I hide the fact that I'm a Strayed One and make sure that people aren't able to see through me, then I can just join the Surveillance Bureau!"

Li Huowang got excited and hugged Bai Lingmiao before twirling her around in circles. He felt that this idea was quite good. "Even if Bei Feng is not a Strayed One who has managed to get rid of the sense of doubt and confusion that Strayed Ones suffer from, I could still use the Surveillance Bureau and their resources to figure out another method! As long as I hide the signs of me being a Strayed One, then I can have a massive organization as my backing!

Then, I could also use the Surveillance Bureau to hide my identity so people wouldn't check and probe my background easily! The Surveillance Bureau is also quite lax when it comes to people from the outside, and since they might not even require me to meet up, I can hide my status even better!"

Bai Lingmiao smiled when she saw how happy he was. As long as he was happy, she was happy as well.

Li Huowang looked at her beautiful face and kissed her.

After a while, amidst the panting and moaning, a black fingernail gently pinched off the fire on the candles, sending the tent into darkness.

After a long time, Bai Lingmiao was lying on Li Huowang's chest, her slender body rising and falling with Li Huowang's breathing.

"Senior Li, please go to sleep soon. You haven't slept in two days." Bai Lingmiao was concerned about him.

However, Li Huowang hugged her waist and shook his head. The beginning is the most difficult part of the process. After getting some clues, he finally had an idea of what to do rather than just going around cluelessly. Worst case scenario, he could just try to avoid Bei Feng for now. As one of the Four Joys of the Sitting Oblivion Dao, Bei Feng's strength must be extraordinary. Li Huowang would most likely die if they met each other right now.

I must become stronger than Bei Feng if I want to learn the method of getting rid of the sense of doubt and confusion that Strayed Ones suffer from. But... without a Master to teach me, increasing my strength is going to be quite difficult. I don't even know how to cultivate. Plus, the sects of this world are all ridiculous. Each of them has their own method of cultivation. I might not be able to handle the brutality of it all...

Li Huowang frowned.

Seeing this, Bai Lingmiao gently persuaded him with her soft fingers. "Senior Li, please go to sleep. There's never a shortage of things to think about. We can sleep first.”

Under her gentle persuasion, Li Huowang finally slept after staying awake for two whole days.

Chapter 253 - Baolu

By the time Li Huowang woke up, it was the afternoon of the second day. He felt refreshed after having had enough sleep. After washing up and wearing his clothes, he exited his tent.

“Senior Li, where are you going?” asked Bai Lingmiao.

Li Huowang looked back into the tent and saw that Bai Lingmiao was sewing some clothes. “I’m off to bid Sun Baolu goodbye. Since we are done with everything here, we should take our leave now.”

They had found the Black Taisui and he had finished dealing with the Nascent Soul. There was no reason for him to stay in Qing Qiu anymore.

Li Huowang circled around amongst the tents before finding Sun Baolu on the grassy plains. Currently, he was riding a horse while his sister was flying a kite behind him. Both of them were having fun riding on the horse. Li Huowang could even hear their laughter from afar.

When he saw Li Huowang approaching them, Sun Baolu quickly asked the girl to keep the kite away while he leaped down from the horse.

“Senior Li, are you looking for me?” asked Sun Baolu, panting.

Li Huowang stared at Sun Baolu. “Yes. We have stayed here long enough. We will be leaving tomorrow.”

“So soon?” Sun Baolu was reluctant to part with them. He had traveled with them for so long that he had come to see them as part of his family. After all, Li Huowang and the rest had traveled so far away just to send him home, and they didn’t even ostracise him for how he looked.

“Senior Li, why don’t you stay for a few more days? Everyone is happy here,” suggested Sun Baolu.

“We can’t. It’s better if we leave soon. I would rather not have all of them get used to being here. Plus, your family keeps slaughtering lambs and cows for us. We can’t have you go broke because of us.” Li Huowang chose to decline politely.

“Don’t worry! The lambs of Qing Qiu are very cheap and much easier to take care of than the other places! If we finish eating our lambs, we just need to go to Women’s Mountain again to buy some kids[1] and calves. Soon, we will have another large herd!”

Li Huowang smiled. “It’s fine. Let’s talk about business for now. First of all, you must not tell anyone about what happened in the cave that night, especially the Lion Dances! You must treat them just as you have treated them before. Never reveal to them that you are aware of the kind of monstrosities they are.”

Since the Lion Dances had become a part of the life of those within Qing Qiu, Baolu had no choice but to keep quiet about it lest something unfortunate happened to him. After all, there was a possibility that those monsters living underneath the cave system were a proper sect here within Qing Qiu.

It would not be wise to offend them.

Looking at how serious Li Huowang was, Sun Baolu nodded. “Alright Senior Li, I understand.”

After giving further instructions, Li Huowang looked at the youth in front of him. “Does your woman know about your body?”

Sun Baolu’s smile froze and he nodded his head bitterly. “She knows but she doesn’t abhor me for it.”

“Alright, come with me.” said Li Huowang as he entered the tent without another word.

Sun Baolu didn’t know what Li Huowang was planning, but then he suddenly recalled the white tassels and became excited.

“Where’s Puppy? Bring him here!” Li Huowang shouted within the empty tent.

An hour later, Li Huowang used one of the white tassels and helped Sun Baolu rearrange his organs back to their original places once again.

At that moment, the entrance to the tent suddenly opened up. Sun Baolu's mother had brought a bunch of strong men with her as they barged into the tent. All of them gasped and shouted when they saw Sun Baolu's twisted body.

Li Huowang glared at them but continued to slowly move his hands to push Sun Baolu's anus from the front toward the back.

Puppy was also helping Li Huowang. He gently pushed Sun Baolu's penis from the armpit region down toward the crotch.

Soon, the tent became quiet as everyone stared at what was happening. Some of the men even looked at Li Huowang with respect.

Sun Baolu was not Li Huowang. They could not carve his body to pull the organs back accurately, and so there were some minor mistakes in the positions of his organs. But even then, Sun Baolu was so happy that he was practically jumping with joy.

Even if they were slightly skewed, his organs were finally back in their original places. He was not a monster anymore!

His body had returned to what it once was ten years ago!

Sun Baolu was just about to kneel onto the ground but was stopped by Li Huowang.

"I'm cured! I'm cured! I'm not a monster anymore, I'm a human!!" shouted Sun Baolu as he pranced around the tent naked.

That night, another feast was set up. Everyone ate lamb and drank wine to celebrate Sun Baolu being cured.

Sun Baolu's parents raised a toast, revering Li Huowang. The people from Qing Qiu were all treating Li Huowang with respect.

They had originally thought before that the man with the two swords on his back was different from others; when they saw him cure Sun Baolu, it confirmed their suspicions and rumors about Li Huowang spread amongst them.

“Senior Li, this is a nice place. Why don’t we settle down over here? The Liang Kingdom might not be great,” said Puppy while munching on an entire roasted lamb leg.

“You should focus on eating your meat in peace. You can’t even be quiet with a mouthful of meat. If you want, you can just stay here; I won’t force you to follow me,” said Li Huowang as he bit into a smoking piece of lamb.

Hearing this, Puppy started contemplating what he should do.

At that moment, a massive hand suddenly patted his shoulder. It was Gao Zhijian. Puppy turned around and saw how serious Gao Zhijian looked. “Don’t... don’t stay! Some... something... something is wrong... here.”

“Something is wrong? Sun Baolu grew up here. What’s wrong with this place?” questioned Puppy.

Gao Zhijian looked at everyone who was happily eating the roasted lamb as they munched on and swallowed the lamb meat laden with spices. “I... I don’t know... But something... something is wrong!”

“You can’t even talk properly and you want to advise others. How about you fix your stuttering first before trying to persuade us?” said Puppy.

Gao Zhijian saw Li Huowang staring at him, causing him to scratch the back of his head before sitting back down. Then, he drank his cup of ant honey in one gulp.

Since this was their last night here, the feast lasted deep into the night. By the time Li Huowang and everyone woke up and placed everything onto their ox-cart, it was already noon.

The wriggling Black Taisui was being tied down by strong ropes made from dried up cow tendons.

“Senior Li, I hope we will meet again!” Sun Baolu hugged Li Huowang, his eyes red with tears.

“It’s better if we don’t meet again. I feel like everyone who meets me gets bad luck.” Li Huowang patted his back and left with everyone else.

1. baby goats 🐐

Chapter 254 - Lamb Meat

The ox-cart that had been left sitting for a long time started to move once more. This time, they were traveling to the Liang Kingdom from the border of Qing Qiu.

All along the way, Puppy covered his forehead with his hand while fanning his sweaty face. “Senior Li, it’s such a hot day today. Should we just travel tomorrow?”

“And what if it’s hot tomorrow and the day after that as well? We might as well start traveling only once autumn is here. Since Qing Qiu is so great, why are you following us? You can just follow Sun Baolu and herd the lambs over here,” said Li Huowang.

Hearing this, Puppy looked at the remaining women traveling with them and chuckled sheepishly. He was not stupid. He had almost gotten a wife for himself, so how could he stay in Qing Qiu? Having meat to eat might be great, but having a wife was his lifelong wish. Plus, he was not afraid of not having any meat to eat if he continued to follow Li Huowang.

As if sensing Puppy’s gaze, one of the women tried to shift his attention by staring at Li Huowang before giving up and rolling her eyes at Puppy. She was blushing while doing so.

Meanwhile, Li Huowang carefully unfurled the lambskin parchment and stared at the method of cultivating the Xiandu Cishe Seal written on it. Other than the Black Taisui, it was one of the other things he managed to obtain from adventuring down within the depths of Qing Qiu.

“Senior Li, what is this?” Zhao Wu turned around and asked while controlling the ox.

“This is a cultivation method of a new technique,” replied Li Huowang.

His words attracted everyone's attention. "Senior Li, did you manage to learn it?"

"Not yet. I don't want to learn it just yet, in case there's something wrong with it. After all, I did get it from an enemy," explained Li Huowang.

Li Huowang was very well aware of the possibility that the Nascent Soul might have tampered with the cultivation method. Li Huowang himself had done this before to escape from the Zephyr Temple and he did not want to end up like Dan Yangzi.

Li Huowang took the bronze coin sword off his back and tried flipping it around before placing it down. "I need someone to test the cultivation method first."

"Senior Li, me! Let me try!"

Hearing those words, Li Huowang turned around and saw that it was the last of the remaining assistants, Yang Xiaohai.

"Do your work and don't butt into adult's affairs," said Li Huowang, rejecting him. There was a chance that the method could kill someone, and so Li Huowang would never let someone close to him learn it. He needed to find someone who could technically die without affecting them.

"Senior Li, look!"

At that moment, Chun Xiaoman lifted off one of the tarps and showed them all a golden box with precious stones embedded onto it. The gold ingots contained within it were quite familiar.

Li Huowang was stunned. It was the dowry provided by the host family that gave away Sun Baolu's mother! She must've secretly hidden it in their cart last night.

As he looked at it, Li Huowang knew what she was trying to express. There was no doubt that she was extremely grateful to Li Huowang for curing Sun Baolu's body and gave it to them as a thanks.

Li Huowang looked back but saw that the tents were long gone.

All that was left were the grassy green plains.

“It’s alright. Since she gave it to us out of gratitude, we should just accept it. We can use it for our travel expenses. At least we can buy food to eat in the Liang Kingdom.”

They continued their journey. It was probably because Qing Qiu was sparsely populated, or maybe because their luck was turning for the better but their journey was relatively peaceful. Nothing happened at all while they were on their journey this time around.

They traveled for more than a month. The days were getting hotter even though the summer equinox had passed.

The sound of a bird call came from above. It was very harsh. Hearing it, Li Huowang, who was staring at the map in his hands, looked up at the bird in the sky.

After a moment, he placed the map in front of Bai Lingmiao and asked, “Can you understand this? Do you remember where the Cowheart Mountain is?”

Even though the maps of Liang Kingdom that they obtained in Qing Qiu weren’t very accurate, the major landmarks were accurate enough.

They were approaching the border of the Liang Kingdom, and so they needed to determine the accurate location of Bai Lingmiao’s home soon.

“This isn’t right... and this isn’t either...” Bai Lingmiao muttered as she traced the map with her fingers along various different routes, but she was hesitant.

It was a difficult task to determine where her home was based on just the crude lines; however, it wasn’t something that could be blamed on her. When Li Huowang saw the map for the first time he too had been confused. It was just too crude.

After a while, Li Huowang kept the map away.

It seems that I will need to buy another map in the Liang Kingdom if we want to know where Cowheart Mountain is.

“Wait, I just remembered that you are not from the Liang Kingdom. Where are you from?” asked Li Huowang as he turned and looked at Puppy.

“No worries. I don’t have to go back. I grew up as an orphan and had to rely on the villagers for food. If I don’t go back, then I can help them save some food.” Puppy chuckled. He had no desire to go home and was staring directly at one of the girls beside the ox-cart.

Li Huowang noticed it too and then stared at the sun high in the sky. “It’s almost time to eat lunch. Since we are almost out of Qing Qiu, we can kill one of the lambs.”

Hearing that, everyone grew excited. Even though they ate a lot of meat during their time in Qing Qiu, they still weren’t satisfied. Everyone of them had grown up poor, and so eating meat was a luxury for them.

Li Huowang, however, was just being rational. Since the Liang Kingdom didn’t have as much grass as Qing Qiu, the lambs would end up becoming skinny if they stayed in the Liang Kingdom for too long.

“Meeeeeeeh~”

Puppy pulled away one of the older lambs by its horn, bringing it over to a nearby river.

Everyone had had lamb so many times during their time in Qing Qiu that they were very adept at slaughtering one. Soon, they drained the blood, skinned, and gutted it. Then, they spread the salt and spices onto the lamb’s carcass before stabbing it with Peng Longteng’s halberd. They propped it up between the two carts and lit a fire below the lamb.

If Peng Longteng saw how badly they were treating her weapon, then she might just come back to life from anger.

Staring at the crackling fire lit by dried lamb feces and the smoking roasted whole lamb above it, Puppy licked his lips and chuckled. “Hehe, it’s a good thing to use the entire lamb completely~”

Chun Xiaoman smacked the back of his head, causing Puppy to yelp and get up before approaching the women who were collecting some wild vegetables nearby.

Once the lamb was done, the wild vegetable soup was done as well. The oily roasted lamb meat complemented the mild soup perfectly.

Everyone sat on the grass and enjoyed the delicious feast.

Puppy happily cracked open the head of the lamb and took out the roasted lamb tongue before placing it into one of the women’s bowls and saying, “Hong’er, come. I left the best part for you: the lamb’s tongue.”

The woman’s name was Hong’er. She blushed and accepted it with gratitude before eating the small pieces of meat one by one.

After a moment, Puppy approached her and sat beside her, but she didn’t move away.

As for Yang Xiaohai, the plump woman was asking him for the lamb’s tail but he refused angrily.

Meanwhile, Zhao Wu sat on the ox-cart, feeling envious of what he saw. He looked down at his powerless body and sighed. He turned and concentrated on his lamb offal and wild vegetable soup.

Chapter 255 - Employer

Li Huowang was also enjoying the meal along with everyone else as he bit into a juicy lamb leg. However, he sat slightly further away from the others to think about his own matters and to get some peace and quiet.

Even though the Nascent Soul told me that it's easy to join the Surveillance Bureau, I still need to find a way to enter. How should I contact them? I can't just ask for them on the streets. I can't even guarantee that the bronze coin veil can perfectly hide my status as a Strayed one. It might be able to fool someone like Han Fu, but it might not work on more powerful people.

I also don't have any information on the Liang Kingdom. There's no point in me thinking about this now. I should just adapt to the situation later on. The beginning is always the hardest part. As long as I take the first step, the rest will soon follow.

While Li Huowang was thinking about his next course of action, his sharp hearing managed to pick up the sound of a pair of shoes stepping onto the grass. He raised his head and saw Lu Zhuangyuan's wrinkled face as well as his flattering smile.

"Young Daoist, are you free? I would like to discuss something with you," asked Lu Zhuangyuan.

"Oh? Go ahead." Li Huowang placed down the bone in his hand and looked at Troupe Leader Lu. With having to deal with the matter of the Black Taisui, he had almost forgotten that the Lu family was traveling with them.

"Young Daoist, as you know we had to abandon all our costumes and instruments in Hou Shu to escape the soldiers, but we are still performers! We cannot just eat your food without doing anything. So I was wondering... could I borrow some money from you to get our equipment back and start performing again?”

Li Huowang was fine with this. Sun Baolu’s mother gave them a lot of money so he wasn’t too concerned about it. “Sure, go ahead and get the money from Bai Lingmiao.”

“Haha, Young Daoist, I’m not done yet. You can keep this first.” Lu Zhuangyuan took out a wrinkled piece of paper with a handprint on it.

Li Huowang took the wrinkled piece of paper and saw the squiggles written on it. The words were difficult to read.

“What is this? A talisman?” asked Li Huowang.

Lu Zhuangyuan blushed from shame as he replied, “This is a loan paper. Please excuse me for being illiterate, but it’s still official because it has my handprint on it for authenticity! Young Daoist, we are eternally grateful to you and we don’t want you to loan us the money just like that. We even ate and drank from your coffers all this time. So I came up with this: As long as we have yet to pay back the money we owe you, you will become our employer! Everytime we perform, we will split the earnings in half. Half of it will be paid back to you, while we will keep the other half.”

“You are paying half of it to me? I’m afraid that you might not even be able to pay all of it back in your lifetime. You don’t need to worry about all this and should just take it,” said Li Huowang, wanting to return the piece of paper to Lu Zhuangyuan.

“Ai~!” Lu Zhuangyuan stopped him. “We can no longer accept your generosity for nothing. If you insist, then we dare not borrow any money from you.”

Seeing how adamant Lu Zhuangyuan was about this, Li Huowang didn’t insist any more and decided to keep the wrinkled piece of paper.

Lu Zhuangyuan was overjoyed when he saw that. He quickly called for his family and all of them stood in front of Li Huowang as they greeted him, “Good day to our employer!”

Li Huowang was too tired to care about Lu Zhuangyuan's intentions. Staring at them, he suddenly had a funny thought; it was like he had just gotten himself a hen. Even though the hen was skinny and would lay eggs inconsistently, at the very least he would have a supply of eggs for himself in the future.

"Sure, go back and have your meal. Once we are done having our meal we can continue our journey. We need to leave Qing Qiu as soon as possible," instructed Li Huowang.

"Understood, employer!" replied Lu Zhuangyuan.

Li Huowang shook his head when he saw how happy he looked as they walked away. Then, he picked up his warm bowl of soup and drank it.

"So many of the people we met used to talk about how glamorous the Liang Kingdom supposedly is. To think that I would get a chance to explore it in my lifetime," said Lu Zhuangyuan as he happily led everyone back to the camp.

While he was happy, the rest of them were not. Lu Juren looked quite gloomy as he talked to his father, "Dad, you just sold us off. Why are you so happy?"

"Sigh, you brat." Lu Zhuangyuan sighed at his own son before taking out his smoke pipe. He lit it up with the campfire and started smoking.

"What are you thinking about?" asked Lu Zhuangyuan.

"I want to go back. I don't want to go to the Liang Kingdom. I don't want to perform anymore," said Lu Juren as he stared at the pregnant Luo Juanhua.

"You!" Lu Zhuangyuan wanted to hit his son with the smoke pipe, but seeing how Lu Juren did not hide from it, Lu Zhuangyuan slowly lowered his hand. "You are making it sound so easy. If you don't want to perform, then what do you plan to do? We don't have a field at home for you to go and farm on. Do you want to be a gigolo? And even if you want to go back, the soldiers are still at war

